Deadlock Persists on Berlin; Truman Firm

PARIS (AP)—Russia and the western powers apparently doomed the Lie-Evatt plea for renewed Berlin peace negotiations by announcing yesterday their previous positions remained unchanged.

The western power position was disclosed by President Truman at Key West, Fla. He said flatly that the United States will not resume four-power talks on Germany until Russia lifts the Berlin blockade.

Russia, on the other hand, said in a note to Herbert V. Evatt, president of the United Nations assembly, and Trygve Lie, UN secretary-general, that the council of foreign ministers must consider all German problems, not merely the Berlin dispute.

No Blockade Mention

The Soviet note said nothing about lifting the Berlin blockade. The Russians said more plainly than ever that they would like a big four meeting of Prime Minister Stalin, President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Premier Queuille of France.

The Soviet note said it shared the view regarding the importance of "personal contact" among the heads of powers.

Stalin Must Come Here

President Truman settled that question, too. He told his Key West news conference he would not leave Washington to talk to Stalin, and had no plans for meeting with him in Washington. He also said he had no new plans to send a special envoy to Moscow to talk to Stalin.

Only six days ago the Soviet press gave great prominence to reports that the president was considering talks with world leaders and even a trip to Moscow.

Elsewhere in the UN:

1. A special 58-member committee began work to help the assembly's political committee clean up its heavy agenda. Delegates are hoping the assembly session will end by Dec. 11.

2. The assembly's legal committee approved the final articles of a convention on genocide—mass destruction of human groups.

3. The assembly's economic and social committee approved a resolution on the economic situation of the world.

4. The assembly's trusteeship committee approved a report on the progress of the trusteeship system.

5. The assembly's human rights committee approved a resolution on the human rights situation in the world.

6. The assembly's international law committee approved a resolution on the international law situation in the world.

7. The assembly's administrative committee approved a report on the administrative work of the assembly.

8. The assembly's budget committee approved a report on the budget of the assembly.

9. The assembly's committee on the situation of women approved a report on the situation of women in the world.

Orders Armistice In Palestine War, Countries Say No

PARIS (AP)—The United Nations security council yesterday ordered an immediate armistice for all of Palestine in the face of new Arab and Jewish defiance.

Egypt's Mahmoud Bey Fawzi and Syria's Faris El Khouri flatly rejected the armistice, warning again that the Arab world is determined to wipe out the last trace of a Jewish state.

Aubrey Eban of Israel welcomed the peace negotiations which an armistice would provide, but, in harsher language, he said the Jews will never give up their newly won territory in the Negev.

The council reaffirmed its Nov. 4 resolution which called for withdrawal from the Negev desert of southern Palestine, by Friday under pain of possible sanctions but it did not mention the Galilee area of northern Palestine.

The council ordered the Jews and Arabs to negotiate at once, either directly or through acting UN mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunche for:

1. Delineation of "permanent armistice demarcation lines beyond which the armed forces of the respective parties shall not move."

2. "Such withdrawal and reduction of their armed forces" as will assure a permanent peace and an end to the fighting.

Hope for Settlement Of Waterfront Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—A waterfront strike had paralyzing effects on the east coast's industrial life yesterday, but the picture brightened from two directions.

A high federal mediation official is scheduled to arrive today to get in touch with AFL longshoremen.

At the same time Canadian affiliates of the stevedores indicated they would begin work again today at Halifax, N.S., docks after announcing a walkout Monday.

Dunnington Tells Farmers Soviets Losing

DES MOINES (AP)—Russia is losing the battle of Europe and if we remain calm we can have peace, Dr. L. L. Dunnington, Iowa City, asserted here yesterday.

Dr. Dunnington, who has visited Europe many times, addressed the Iowa Farm Bureau federation.

He credited the Marshall plan and the food from farms in Iowa and other farm states with turning

Housewives Win 'Coupon War'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Indianapolis grocers fought a $2-million "coupon war" yesterday while happy housewives breached the battle lines to cut the cost of living.

The battle started when a local grocery chain mailed to every home in metropolitan Indianapolis a book of coupons worth $5.20 in trade.

Some independent grocers indignantly offered to honor the chain's coupons. One stocked up on coupon items and concentrated on selling them to holders of the other firm's coupon books. Another chain cut its prices 10 cents on all coupon items for a week and told its customers: "Why monkey with coupons? We'll give you the coupon price right over the counter."

The value of coupons flowing around the city was estimated at $2-million.

Harvey Hagelskamp, secretary of the Indiana Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers' association, said coupons began flooding the market about six months ago when ample stocks of food and household supplies were restored after wartime and post-war shortages. Hagelskamp said one issue of an Indianapolis newspaper contained coupons worth $1.10 on Nov. 4.

Independent grocers criticized manufacturers of products advertised on the coupons. They said the manufacturers apparently made a special deal with the Standard Grocery company, distributors of the coupon books.

They said they found that fair trade laws prohibited manufacturers from favoring one outlet over another. The independents believed that if they accepted Standard's coupons they could redeem them with the manufacturer the same as Standard can.

Harry Adler, owner of an independent supermarket, said he had 36 coupon items on his shelves.

"We've got a fortune tied up in coupons," he said. "Boxes and boxes of them."

Meanwhile, housewives peeled off coupons one after the other and said it was nice to be spending something besides money for a change.

Pilots Jump When Plane Engines Fail

DES MOINES (AP)—Two national guard F-51 single engine fighter planes were abandoned by their pilots last night in the same general area. Both fliers parachuted to safety.

One was Joseph L. Philippson, 24, Des Moines, who abandoned his plane about four miles north of Indianola when the motor started cutting out and spraying oil.

The second was Col. Frederick C. Gray, senior national guard air instruction officer, who had given the order to Philippson to abandon his ship.

Gray said he circled the area in his plane for about an hour after Philippson had left his ship. Then his motor started to cut out and spray oil, and he had to leave his plane.

Philippson is a lieutenant in the national guard air arm. He is an end on the Drake football team.

Two Dubuque Hunters Missing After Storm

DUBUQUE (AP)—Two Dubuque duck hunters were missing last night after the high wind and rain storm that struck this area yesterday.

They were Leroy Dixon and Robert Zahina.

Sheriff Leo Martin said Homer Apel, also of Dubuque, had reported that Dixon and Zahina had been in boats on the Mississippi river off north Buena Vista north of here.

Apel told authorities he and his companion had headed their boat back to shore when the storm hit, but that they did not see Dixon and Zahina again.

Martin said he would ask the coast guard to assist in a search for the men today.

Progressives Ask 'Red Dean' To Lecture on Campus Soon

SUI's Young Progressives last night wired Chicago, asking that the "Red Dean of Canterbury" speak on the SUI campus.

The "Red Dean," the Rev. Hewlett Johnson of England is currently on a lecture tour of the U.S. and Canada.

Young Progressive Vice-Chairman Larry Kaplan sent the telegram to a Chicago organization that is sponsoring Johnson's speech there, Nov. 27. In the wire Kaplan said that his group "desires very strongly to sponsor a campus address by the Rev. Johnson on or after Nov. 9."

Kaplan assured the Chicago sponsoring group, the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, "huge attendance" for a Johnson talk at SUI.

Johnson drew public attention several weeks ago when U.S. and Canadian authorities "hesitated" about granting him a visa to tour the two countries. His first application for a visa was turned down by the U.S. because his visit was sponsored by the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship. Later, when the group headed by Professor Perry issued a new invitation, the visa was granted.

Auto Trade Facts To Justice Bureau

WASHINGTON (AP)—A house investigating committee announced last night that evidence of "exorbitant" profits reaped by some automobile dealers is being turned over to the justice department and other law enforcement agencies.

Rep. Macy (R-NY), committee chairman, said the purpose is to determine "whether any violation of law has been uncovered."

There is no law against the "bonus" payments and other practices disclosed by the investigation, but committee members have shown interest in whether dealers and salesmen have reported such payments on their income tax returns.

Macy is chairman of a special house committee which has been investigating trade practices in the auto markets.

Strikes Wrong Key, 'Sinning Top Notch'

HASTINGS, NEB. (AP)—The Rev. Frank Schroeder of the United Brethren church hastened to explain to his congregation that it was merely a slip of the typewriter when members of the flock caught this sentence in the weekly bulletin:

"The sinning should be top notch this morning for we have ample hymnals . . ."

Truman OK's Plan For Reorganization

KEY WEST, FLA. (AP)—President Truman said yesterday that recommendations made by former President Herbert Hoover's commission on reorganization of the executive branch of the government should have the early de-termination of the new congress.

At his first news conference since the Nov. 2 election, Mr. Truman made public the text of a letter he sent Mr. Hoover promising his full cooperation and reaffirming "the importance which I attach to the work of the commission."

The president also released a statement in which he was "hopeful that the commission's report will be a milestone in the development of a sound and economical structure and efficient procedures for the executive branch of the federal government."

Variety Didn't Pay For This Printer

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Printer Charles Kocktavy does varied types of work, his district court appearance revealed yesterday.

Kocktavy was charged with printing football pool tickets—in legal phraseology aiding by printing in the setting up of a lottery. Detectives produced 322 cards seized at his shop.

After he'd been questioned, Kocktavy watched intently while city and state warrants were filled out. Then he pointed to the forms. "I printed those, too," he said.

Asks for U.S. China Stand

NANKING (AP)—Battle-seasoned Chinese Communist troops have been hurled back east of the vital government base of Suchow in what Nanking hailed yesterday as a major victory.

While independent observation confirmed a Communist withdrawal on the east, there were signs that a Communist assault to the south, threatened to encircle Suchow, which is 200 rail miles northwest of Nanking.

The Communist radio said their troops have seized Suijing, 48 miles southeast of Suchow. If true, they are less than 60 miles from closing a ring around Su-chow, since their forces are either in or around Sushien, 58 miles southwest of Suijing.

Private foreign reports from Nanking reaching Shanghai predicted the government would decide within three days whether to fight on or ask the Communist for terms to end the civil war.

It was reported reliably that Gen. Fu Tso-yo, commander in north China, which includes Peiping and Tientsin, was watching closely and if Nanking collapses will pull his troops west into his old citadel in inner Mongolia.

Foreign business was getting ready for any Communist arrival in Shanghai. Some foreign banks were shifting head offices outside China and quietly advising their employes to leave.

Despite the government report of victory, thousands of Chinese—many of them officials and their families—were leaving Nanking or packing. They were joining the lengthening line of American, British and other foreign nationals quitting the capital.

The diplomatic corps met in emergency session. It was reported that the problem of feeding embassy staffs was discussed. The U.S. embassy began evacuating embassy dependents.

What worries officials most deeply, is what they consider to be the inability of the Nationalist government under Chiang to deal vigorously and victoriously with the aggressive armies of the Communists.

The real problem awaiting action by the president and his secretary of state, however, is regarded by American experts as determination of the extent to which American help can be given to Nationalist China.

What worries officials most deeply, is what they consider to be the inability of the Nationalist government under Chiang to deal vigorously and victoriously with the aggressive armies of the Communists.

His appeal raised the possibility that some new American policy statement on China might be forthcoming in the near future. As far as officials available here now know, however, it would be substantially a declaration of American support for the Chiang regime and opposition to the Communists.

Wants Policy Clarification

Truman Plans Review Of World Conditions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo disclosed yesterday that he has asked the state department on behalf of his government for a declaration of American policy on China in the present crisis.

His disclosure came some hours after President Truman reported that he would review the whole international situation with Secretary of State Marshall here next Monday. American policy on China is expected to be one of the major problems before them.

Koo told a reporter that he had transmitted to the state department the "desires" of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek for a policy statement, asserting that his government simply does not know what United States policy is.

What is wanted, he added, is a declaration of "sympathy, solidarity and support" for Chiang's Nationalist regime which recently has suffered critical defeat at the hands of the Communist forces in Manchuria and North China. An American statement of the kind his government wants Koo said, would help to raise morale of the people and armies of Nationalist China in their struggle with the Communists.

His appeal raised the possibility that some new American policy statement on China might be forthcoming in the near future. As far as officials available here now know, however, it would be substantially a declaration of American support for the Chiang regime and opposition to the Communists.

Predicts U.S. Price Seesaw

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The man who should know said yesterday food prices are on the way down but that it won't mean a thing to the average worker, because rents and other items will go up.

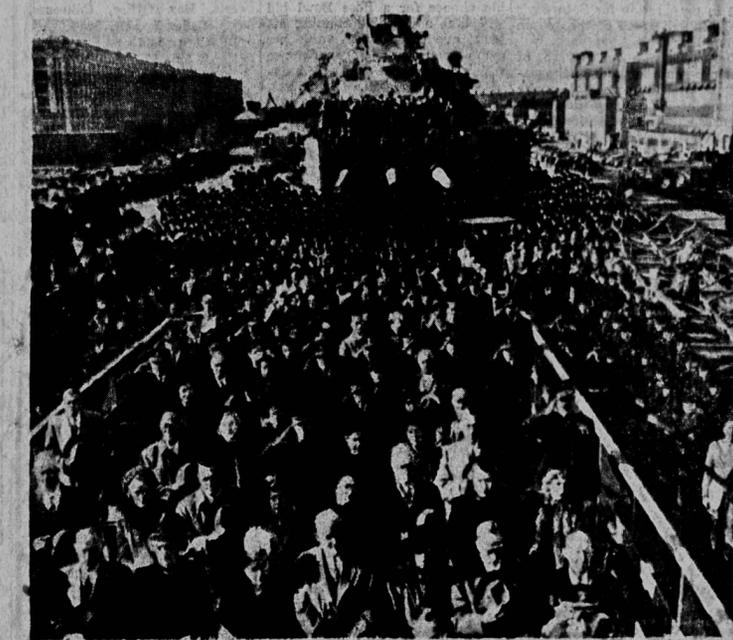

Ewan Clague, commissioner of the labor department's bureau of labor statistics, speaking at a two-day conference sponsored by the industrial council of the chamber of commerce, said:

"At present, our consumer prices have reached a peak and farm prices are, if anything, coming down."

"At the same time, there is a tremendous upward pressure starting in commodities where there still exists a heavy postwar demand."

CIVILIAN GUESTS AND FUTURE OFFICERS and crew of the new heavy cruiser Des Moines stood on deck of the vessel and faced towards the stern at start of the commissioning ceremony in the Boston Navy yard yesterday. The Des Moines was given an all-day builder's trial Monday in Massachusetts bay. The cruiser is the first of a new class and carries nine automatic, rapid fire 8-inch guns. These guns are able to fire four times faster than any guns of the same or larger caliber.

Parlay on Naming Heir Chooses George, 3 to 5

CHICAGO (AP)—Bookie betting cards distributed in Chicago yesterday quoted odds of 3 to 5 that Princess Elizabeth's baby will be named George.

The odds were even on Philip, 6 to 5 on Albert and 2 to 1 on Louis.

The last selection on the cards was: Jake—100 to 1.

No Comment from Bierman as Expected

As expected, Bernie Bierman, Minnesota's head football coach, has no comment to make on the accusations by two Iowa fans that he used profane language in shouting to the crowd during the Hawkeye-Gopher game Saturday.

Letters made public by County Attorney Jack C. White and James G. Ruhl, both of Iowa City, Monday, stated the exact same quotes used by the irate Bierman to the fans sitting behind the Minnesota bench.

Bierman was quoted yesterday as saying he did not believe a charge that he used abusive language was "worthy of any comment."

We agree with you, Bernie. There's not very much you can say.

However, Bierman did make one comment yesterday which doesn't quite jibe with what apparently occurred on the sidelines.

"I have no specific statement to make at this time," Bierman said yesterday, "other than to say that there are fallacies in the letters purportedly written and made public by certain Iowa fans in attendance at the game."

"I said after the game I thought the Iowa fans were very unsportsmanlike, and I will stick by that statement."

So now the story rests in Bierman's hands. Irregardless of the fallacies in the two letters, it will be interesting to see if Bierman denies the one word-for-word quote used by White and Ruhl in their accusations.

BERNIE BIERMAN

It was also expected here that the Minneapolis sports writers would let loose a blast at the Iowa crowd, and that they did. However, they are just following Bierman's example since the enclosed press box in the Iowa stadium does not give full vent to either cheers or the boos.

It is interesting to note, before quoting some of the Minneapolis writers' comments, that no other school in the Big Nine complains of the Iowa spectators.

Charles Johnson of the Minneapolis Tribune had this to say about the crowd: "The victory hungry Iowa crowd made things miserable with their hostile attitude."

Mr. Johnson, can you name one hometown crowd in the Western conference, or the United States for that matter, which is not victory hungry? The Iowa fans wanted their team to win just as much as you wanted to see a Minnesota victory.

"There is no reason," Johnson continued, "why any group of amateur athletes should be subjected to the abuse Bernie Bierman says was heaped on his squad. Such incidents do not do any large school any good and it should be apparent to Hawkeye authorities they must lick this situation immediately or they'll have trouble getting any teams to invade their territory."

Sid Hartman of the Tribune quoted Clayton Tonnenmaker, Gopher center, as saying, "One guy on the sidelines hit me in the head with a helmet after I intercepted that pass in the second quarter. And when I went after him the Iowa boys were ready to fight."

A letter sent from St. Paul was received yesterday by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce. The writer, who did not give his name, enclosed a clipping of a story by Joe Hennessey of the Tribune.

The letter said, "Friends — I used to live in Iowa. My relatives lived there for 35 years. You fellows can change this situation if you want to." The letter was signed, "Hopeful."

Here are excerpts from Hennessey's "Top of the Morning" column:

"Bernie Bierman was as near to being angry as the calm and soft-spoken gentleman ever has been after Saturday's game at Iowa City.

"Bierman has been a coach too long to be thin skinned over the taunts of the spectators.

"The Iowa City fans, that is to say the fans who drive from the other small Iowa cities for a Saturday holiday, were rough, no question about it. Such a situation exists at no other Big Nine school. Being the last to cast a stone at those who imbibe of the strong stuff, they could at least be postponed until the game is completed.

"Iowa, a semi-prohibition state, permits no public drinking. Legally, that is. The empties (bottles) in Iowa stadium were evidence to the contrary."

Hennessey also said that the annual Iowa-Minnesota game is "taken seriously" at Iowa City but "is only another game at the Twin Cities."

He then went on to say that it was a "good bet" that Ohio State may replace Iowa as an every year opponent for Minnesota.

Boston Ready to Stop Iowa's DiMarco, Doran

WESTON, MASS. (AP)—The Boston university football squad stressed pass defense yesterday in a two and a half hour practice session in preparation for Saturday's final football game of the season against Iowa at Fenway park.

The Terriers, well aware of their pre-game selection as the underdogs, are determined "to make a game of it" and are designing defenses against the passing of diminutive Al DiMarco, Iowa quarterback, and the running of the Hawkeyes' Ralph Doran.

Coach Buff Donelli plans to use a two platoon system against the midwesterners.

Bowl Pickers Can't Ignore Spartans

Michigan State Gridiron Titan

By STAN OPOTOWSKY
NEW YORK (AP)—While the Northwesterns, Californians and Carolinas confidently made New Year's Day reservations, dark-horse Michigan State yesterday hoisted itself into a position that few Bowl committees can dare to ignore.

There may be a hitch in state playing in the southland, for there's a Negro on the squad. But on the fact of the record, Michigan State is one of the most powerful football teams in the nation.

Statistics Prove It
The latest release of official statistics from the National Collegiate Athletic bureau prove this.

Two weeks ago Michigan State didn't even rank in the first 20, offensively. But last week the Spartans were eighth, and now they're fourth, ranking behind only Nevada, Army and Notre Dame.

Michigan State has averaged 401.8 yards per game with a total of 3,214 yards in eight contests. Nevada's average is 484.7, Army's 429.6 and Notre Dame's 402.0.

Power on Ground
Most of this Spartan power is on the ground. The team ranks fifth in the nation rushing with a 293.8 average per game, but it is not among the first 15 passing. Army tops the rushing with 344.5, with Texas Mines second with 337.0, Notre Dame third with 328.4 and Oklahoma fourth with 296.5.

Nevada tops the passers with 268.9 yards per game, a total of 2,151 yards gained. Georgia Tech is second with a 1,343 total for a 167.9 average, and Georgia third with 1,316 for 164.5.

Michigan State's performance is especially impressive in view of the opposition encountered. The Spartans have played eight games, losing only to Michigan and Notre Dame and tying Penn State.

Three Against Contenders
Of their first five games, three were against one or the other of those national championship contenders. Only one other team in the nation, Navy, played as many as three of the seven major eleven teams still undefeated.

Those tough opening games hurt Michigan State at the beginning of the season, and that's why it's only now that the Spartans emerge in their true light on the statistics measuring stick. Last Saturday, for example, Michigan State gained 624 yards against Iowa State. The previous week, it was 553 yards against Marquette. And before that 357 against Oregon State. That trio is no concentration of powerhouse, to be sure, but neither has front-running Nevada taken on a succession of Notre Dames this year.

Michigan State has averaged 6.10 yards per play on the ground, best in the nation. And there are no Charley Justices or Stan Heath's to pile up this yardage single-handedly. There is not a Michigan State man among the individual leaders. It's strictly a team proposition. And what a team!

Wolverine Defense Against Buck Offense Saturday

CHICAGO (AP)—Unbeaten Michigan's closing sweep for its second straight Big Nine title and perfect season Saturday will pit the Wolverines, the conference's top defensive team, against the best offensive club, Ohio State's Buckeyes.

Official league statistics yesterday disclosed that Ohio with a feeble chance for a Rose Bowl bid will take a crushing running attack averaging 228.8 yards per game against a Michigan defense which has yielded only a 58.2 opponent land average.

But Can He "Pin" Wildcats Saturday?

HERE HE CAN'T MISS — Bernie Krueger, Illinois ace quarterback and passer, examines darts in the bullseye while relaxing with his family yesterday. Illini hope Krueger is as accurate with a football against Northwestern this Saturday. Keeping score is Krueger's 3-year-old son, Bernie, jr. (right). Also looking on are Mrs. Krueger and Chuckie, 6 months.

Frosh Run Boston Plays at Hawkeyes

With only a limited amount of time to prepare for the season's finale with Boston university at Boston Saturday, Iowa's gridiron squad went through a concentrated drill on defense yesterday.

The Hawks will run through their last full-scale workout of the 1948 season this afternoon before leaving for Boston tomorrow morning at 9:15 a.m.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, worried over the fact that his team may suffer a letdown after its bruising one-touchdown loss to Minnesota last Saturday, put the players through a rough contact scrimmage against the freshmen.

The frosh, who end their gridiron season Friday with a scrimmage game, ran Boston formations at the varsity. The Terriers use the T-formation with plenty of passing.

Section E Wins Hillcrest Title

Section E annexed the Hillcrest touch football championship, Monday with a 12 to 7 victory over Section F.

Section E received the opening kickoff and advanced the ball to the 30-yard line. On the first play Dick Hesseinus romped over for the first Section E touchdown.

After an exchange of punts at the start of the second half, M. Seeger cut laterally across the field and grabbed a short pass to score E's second touchdown.

After being held scoreless for over three quarters of the game, Section F's offense began to click. A short pass from Carrol Block to Kenneth Block climaxed a 40-yard drive for a touchdown. K. Block caught another pass to score the extra point, making the score 12 to 7.

Intramural touch football came to a standstill yesterday afternoon as rain washed out all the scheduled games. These postponed games will be played off at a later date.

In today's lone touch football game Quad. Lower D will meet Quad. Upper C in the finals of the Quadrangle tournament. They will play on field No. 2.

Good-Bye, Old Party

There's a new bandwagon stampeding within the GOP which may roll straight along until 1950. Left far behind in the dust is the party's old guard.

The leaders of the move are all lustily calling for turnovers, revamping face liftings and revisions. The Republican party is going to throw reaction and isolationism overboard. Sensible conservatism is to take the helm.

At a Des Moines meeting the Republican Veterans League of Iowa launched what it called "a move to obtain adoption of a more liberal and progressive platform by the Republican party of Iowa."

It is seeking to hold public meetings in which representatives of management, labor, agriculture, veterans and small businessmen could list what they want in a legislative program.

These proposals would then be stirred around and ironed out into a state program for the GOP.

On the national level, most of the criticism leveled against the older factions of the party comes from the liberal "young Turk" congressmen.

This group gained considerable strength from the 1946 elections. Cold shouldered by older GOP congressional leaders, they sent up a howl that was embarrassing for many in the party.

Such senators now make it known that they had banked on Dewey to liberalize the party leadership after his election. They now are bemoaning the fact that the old guard soured the voters on the GOP.

Sen. Wayne L. Morse (R-Ore) called on his fellow "young Turks" to help revamp the party. Joined by Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt), Morse pleaded for an end of "old guard" thinking.

In urging labor to show "self-restraint" in its demands for labor law reform, Aiken warned against a "National Association of Manufacturers attitude of wanting everything." He was setting a pace for many conservatives who wanted to abandon the past without giving up completely.

It's a pace many other Republicans are taking up. The end result may turn out to be a winning Republican party.

As Free Men Meet . . .

While American politicians are marking time until the opening of congress next January, two European legislatures are tangling in the affairs of a troubled world.

The French chamber of deputies began debating government charges that the Communist International Information bureau has ordered and helped finance the wave of strikes gripping the nation.

This is the first action by the French lower house since its two-month vacation. While it was gone, the rightist forces of Gen. Charles De Gaulle won control of the upper house in nationwide elections.

Pitched battle between De Gaullists and Communists can grow out of the present debate. A cabinet collapse may be precipitated.

In Britain, the Labor party is pushing forward its plans to nationalize the nation's iron and steel industries. The Conservative minority will be unable to block approval of the plan.

Running a nationalized steel industry will be the Labor government's biggest stab at socialism. It could stand or fall on the outcome of the move.

The issues being debated are crucial and the outcomes uncertain. But things aren't too far gone, not as long as free men can meet to deliberate.

Dilemma over Dogs

If you were here last year you remember the big battle between pet-owners and married student housing administrators over keeping pets in the housing areas.

A rash of this familiar controversy has broken out in Pammel Court at Iowa State college. Apparently not all student renters had a clause in their leases which stipulated no pets as was the case here at SU.

In fact, when dogs were prohibited at ISC some residents decided to keep cats instead.

The issue was forced through here by virtue of a clause in the lease which forbid keeping pets and with arguments of cleanliness and health.

One of the big differences between schools in the process of determining pets or no-pets policy is the series of elections held at ISC by the interested groups to find out the majority feeling.

So far the voting has determined that a majority of the court residents favor a change in the present system which allows pets in one section but not in the other. Now all they have to do is vote on what to change to.

Nobody Loves Us . . .

Britain Views the U.S. Elections—

Attlee's Cabinet Sees Continued Air

The recent U. S. elections — which established a definite continuation of the moderate trend to the left — were very heartening to the present British government.

Britain's position in Europe, and in the world, depends largely on America's willingness to go along with certain British policies. Another new deal government in Washington is not so likely to frown upon the British experiment in socialism, as would say, a Dewey government, some of whose leaders would have taken a stand against fostering socialism anywhere.

The election of Harry Truman in his own right has strengthened his position in British eyes, and the foreign office can now safely assume that the Truman doctrine will be carried on with ever greater vigor.

This doctrine is of great importance to the British, for it has decreed certain areas, which the British have been unable to hold, territory in which the United States will contain the Soviet Union.

ERP has, through its dollar aid, prevented economic disaster. It is for this reason too, that Britain rejoices over the Truman victory. Witness the comments on the election in the Financial Times, Britain's leading financial organ:

"Europe probably is justified in believing that the continuity of American dollar aid is more firmly assured under a Democratic congress than under one dominated by economy-minded Republican elements with a predisposition toward isolationism."

The anti-British sentiment in certain sections of the Republican party, centering around the Chicago Tribune, gave many a British diplomat uneasy moments when it looked as if the Republicans would win.

The defeat of Sen. Brooks, who was strongly championed by the Tribune, along with the defeat of other isolationists across the country, further strengthened the President's hand in his negotiations for possible military ties with Britain.

For the British, the two most important results of the elections have been, a moderate swing left in this country, and the strengthening of internationalist sentiment in Washington and the rest of the nation.

Britain can go ahead with further socialist measures without having to fear a possible cut-off from American aid. She can also take a strong stand against Russia, knowing that the remnants of anti-British opinion have been removed from power in Congress.

There is only one question on which the British will have to alter their policy. It was believed that a Republican victory might weaken the Jewish position in Palestine, and that American support would be thrown to the Bernadotte plan.

The Truman victory spelled continued and stronger support of the State of Israel. Britain's dependence on the United States on other matters will probably be the deciding factor in getting her to move closer to American policy in Palestine.

(Second in a series. Other interpretations of the U. S. elections in European eyes will appear in future issues.)

Guy Gillette Outlines —

Three-Point Goal for Himself

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator-elect Guy M. Gillette (D-Iowa) outlined yesterday his three-point program for himself:

- (1) To find some way to make the United Nations work.
- (2) To develop a sound long-range farm program.
- (3) To amend and modify the Taft-Hartley act to attain justice in labor-management relations.

Gillette told a reporter that Republicans lost the presidential election "because the republican high command refused to allow Governor Dewey to take a definite stand on any of the major issues in the public mind."

The Iowa Democrat was elected to a six-year term after being defeated in 1944 following 12 years in the senate.

McBride's Haul

By BILL MCBRIDE

A rather happy bit of news has been tossed on my desk by an unknown agent. It seems there is a baby holding school opening in California someplace, and if I might add an opinion I'd like to say that it's high time.

The baby holding situation has been steadily going from bad to worse in recent years. Some say this is due to the increase in the number of babies, and others toss it off with a curt nod toward lack of coordination.

When it comes to baby holding I tend to lean toward the let-well-enough-alone group. Outside of absolute emergencies it is better to keep hands off infants.

Any adult male with an ounce of insight will keep his hands off a baby until it gets at least old enough to sit up on its own. At the gelatin spine age, children are just too unpredictable to handle without a contrivance of safety belts and sideboards.

Just what that age is I'm a little uncertain, but until it is reached I would as soon take my chances with a rubber stepladder. Let us suppose you visit a couple who has just made an addition to the family . . . in other words, one or the other of that couple has recently given birth to a child.

It is quite possible that the purpose of your visit is to have a look at the addition. If you go with your mind made up just to look, you will manage all right . . . if you forget that you're in for a nerve wracking evening, and don't say I didn't tell you so.

Most cases of baby-holding-fantods develop out of failure on the part of the holder to be firm. Upon entering the baby's house (and if he is the first-born it is his house) you will be met by beaming parents.

That beam in the parents' eyes means that before the evening is over you will be asked if you wouldn't "like to hold baby for awhile." Theoretically this is some sort of honor. This puts the visitor on a spot, since refusal may, from the parents' viewpoint indicate disinterest.

On the other hand, agree to hold baby and you may find yourself in an even more embarrassing position. This is particularly true if you are single and have visited this home with your date . . . or if you happen to be a partner in one of those rare cases, a childless marriage.

In either event, picking up the child will surely evoke kindly (and rather bovine) looks from the female who is escorting. With that look comes a barrage of unkind remarks on the part of any males who happen to be present.

A child's father can hold him and look perfectly normal, but any other man looks entirely out of place under those circumstances. Inevitably someone says gloatingly, "He looks pretty good on you, Mac. How long will it be before you place your order?" Answer that if you can, Mr. Visitor.

Assuming you get off easily without side remarks from other males in the room, what about the strain on your sense of responsibility? Suppose you drop the little duffer? In lifting him from his hamper, or whatever he lies in, what grip do you use? Unlike most articles which are frequently carried, a baby has no handle. Unless you grasp him in just the correct manner, you are not only leaving yourself open to ridicule, but may sprain back muscles (your own) trying to appear graceful.

In relieving someone else of the child's weight, the person holding him always has the advantage. The holder has had an opportunity to find a good hand-hold, whereas the person to whom the little rascal is about to be transferred has no other alternative than to reach out wildly and grasp him any old way that presents itself.

Occasionally this results in pinching the holder or causing him to cry out in a shocking manner, and then you're in for it. There will be voices saying, "Oh, the poor little fellow." "Give him to me, George . . . look out, George, you're hurting him!"

About the best advice I can think of comes in the form of poetry from an old book of verses . . . leave them alone until you've one of your own.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

In the Bierman-fans incident, do the fans have the rights to ask a coach to sit down? He has to stand, as do his players on the sidelines, to perform his job. If the fans can't see, as their requests to other coaches indicate,

I suggest either devoting the lowest seats to another use than holding grippers or selling them to customers with a warning that the spectators' vision will be blocked.

Youngest Member Of Explorer's Club To Lecture Here

The youngest member of the Explorer's club, Maynard Miller, will present a modern story of adventure and scientific exploration Sunday at 8 p.m. in Macbride auditorium.

Sponsored by the Iowa Mountaineers, Miller, 25, will present an all-color motion picture, "Yahsetasha," of the first expedition to scale Mount St. Elias from Tey Bay, Alaska.

With supply help from the U.S. Airforce, seven young men of the Harvard Mountaineering club, and the wife of one of the club members, conquered St. Elias where some mountaineering experts had failed.

Speaker

MAYNARD MILLER

Yakutat and sailed up Icy Bay to the foot of famed Tyndall glacier. There they set up a series of campes from which they climbed the towering peak in 34 back-breaking days.

It was no accident that Miller was chosen by his associates from the Harvard Mountaineering club to lead their Mount St. Elias expedition.

Miller was graduated from Harvard in 1943 with a degree in geology, but he had qualified as a climber long before.

At sixteen, he had climbed every major peak in the Pacific northwest.

In 1941 he was a member of the American Geographical Society Glacial Study expedition to the Alaska panhandle.

A year later he was asked to lead the Harvard Mountaineering club's Selkirk expedition to test U.S. Army food and equipment on the high ranges of British Columbia.

Junior Chamber Makes Christmas Party Plans

Committees were also formed for the distributing of "Christmas baskets" of food to needy Iowa City families and for the planning of a Jaycee "junior" party and the second annual Junior-Senior Chamber party.

Free Man of Any Connection With Death of Colorado Coed

BOULDER, COLO.—After brief questioning, a Boulder man was cleared late yesterday of any connection with the rape-slaying of Theresa Foster, 18, student at Colorado university.

Sheriff Arthur Everson said the man had been questioned to determine whether he might be the owner of a bloodstained parka coat found in a culvert south of Boulder.

The parka was found by Mrs. Heitman of Lakewood, stuffed in a road culvert about 2 1/2 miles from where the beaten body of the 18-year-old Colorado university coed was found last Thursday.

Meanwhile, at Rocky Ford, Police Chief Homer Eddy reported a man was being held after dried blood was found in the luggage compartment of his automobile.

Eddy said samples would be sent to the Colorado university laboratory.

Authorities at Canon City said yesterday afternoon they were convinced a man held there had no connection with the case. Sheriff George Friedenberger at La Junta, Colo., reported relatives and friends of the man insisted he was in La Junta the night the Foster girl disappeared.

As a result, no further efforts were planned to analyze blood stains found in the man's car.

At La Junta a large searching party combed the countryside yesterday for a 17-year-old mother who disappeared three days after the Boulder coed was killed 210 miles away. Sheriff Friedenberger, who ordered the search of bridges and culverts near the southeastern Colorado town, said the disappearance of Mrs. Kay South, mother of a one-year-old child, was "taken lightly" at first, but added that officials were "taking a more serious view now."

Friedenberger said a check of bus and train depots had ruled out the chance that the young woman left town that way.

'Co-Weds' to Hold Its First Meeting

The "Co-Weds," a newly reorganized Congregational church married student group, will meet for the first time tonight at 8 o'clock in the church club rooms. The "Co-Weds" were formerly called the "Four-C" club.

The Rev. Thomas E. Keehn, legislative secretary of the council for social action of the Congregation-Christian churches, will address the group.

The Rev. Mr. Keehn, also editor of the Washington Report, will talk on pending national legislation involving Christian consideration.

Miss Grace Hadley, Congregational church student director, said yesterday that the Rev. Mr. Keehn is coming here from Grinnell college where he attended a social seminar in connection with the annual Gates lectures. His subject, she said, will be "Washington Since D-day, Nov. 2, 1948."

New Telephone Directory Being Delivered

A record of nearly 12,000 telephone subscribers began receiving their new Iowa City telephone directories yesterday.

About 9,000 of the 164 page phone books are going out by mail, while the remaining 3,000 are being delivered by messenger to large subscribers such as the university, hotels, and business establishments, according to Roy Williams, local Northwestern telephone company manager.

International Student Day Celebrated by University Students

About 50 persons celebrated International Students' day at SUI in the Methodist church last night.

Students from six countries told what students are doing in their own countries to further international peace and understanding.

Speakers included Alice Isidorides, Greece; Jason Lee, China; Gunnar Sausjord, Norway; Eric Egan, Argentina; Ranjana Sidhanta, India, and Harlan Hockenberg, Des Moines, for the United States.

Egan pointed out that the big opportunity for foreign students is to get a "true impression" of American people, their customs and habits and take it back to their own countries. "American students abroad should do the same," he said.

Miss Sidhanta told how students in India tried to make an "unhappy world a little less unhappy" by associating with the villagers and creating a "solidarity that goes beyond the colors of our skins." Students feed the villagers before telling them how wonderful education is, she said.

Student Council President Evan Hultman told the audience he hoped the celebration would become an annual event here and that interest in it would grow each year.

Celebrations similar to this one are going on in universities all over the world, International club President Michael Flach said.

Martha Hiscock sang two Czechoslovakian folk songs during the program.

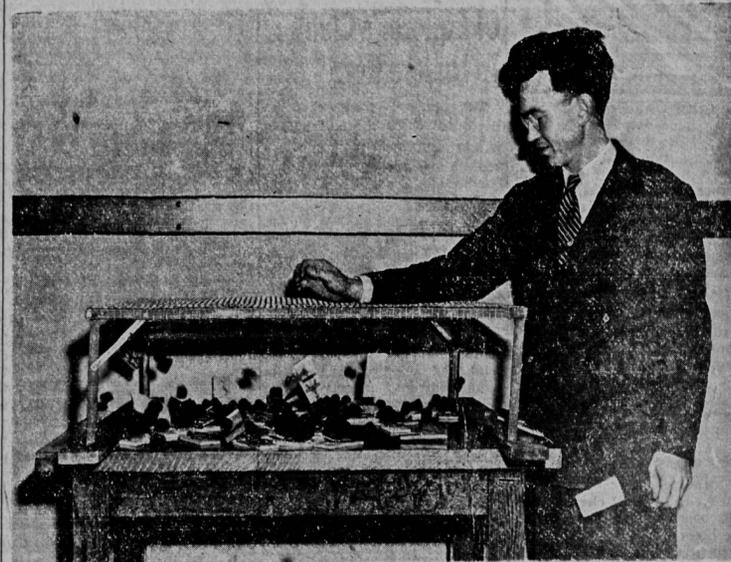

A world meeting of students is held every year on Nov. 17 at Prague, Czechoslovakia to celebrate International Students' day. The celebration is followed by discussions over a three-week period of problems facing students all over the world.

Electrical Engineers To Hear Hoyer Talk

C. N. Hoyer, personnel director of Radio Corporation of America will speak to SUI electrical engineers tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the electrical engineering auditorium. Hoyer will discuss recent technical development in RCA's laboratories.

He will speak to student sections of The American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Demonstrates Mousetrap Energy

A MOUSETRAP ATOMIC BOMB, set off by SUI physicist Prof. James Jacobs, is chain reacting breaking up uranium nuclei (mousetraps) and hurling neutrons (rubber stoppers). The device is used by SUI physicists to demonstrate atomic chain reaction to their students and laymen.

Exchange Instructor Tells Legion About Merry English Life

People in England are crowded and strictly rationed on food, clothing and gasoline, but they joke about their problems and enjoy life in spite of the difficulties, says Mary Feaver, attractive exchange teacher here at SUI.

Miss Feaver, Bedford, England, told members of the American Legion auxiliary at their meeting in the community building Monday p.m. that life in England "isn't nearly as grim as it sounds."

Mentioning the strict food rationing, Miss Feaver explained that a person in Britain is allowed "one quart of milk a week, one ounce of cooking fat, four ounces of oleo margarine and three or four ounces of butter a week."

"The children are extraordinarily well cared for," said Miss Feaver. They are given free cod-liver oil, free milk and priorities on fresh fruit.

The English adult is allowed only 28 points a year for rationed clothing, she added. The 28 points disappear at the rate of 18 for an overcoat, 6 for a blouse, 2 for hosiery with other articles of clothing costing similar amounts of points.

Children are given special allowances of clothing.

Miss Feaver arrived in America last August and will remain here till the end of the school year.

Miss Feaver exchanged positions with Mary Ella Critz from the University of Iowa's women's physical education department.

CECIL RAPIDS MAN FINED
William H. Moes of Cedar Rapids paid a fine of $100 in Justice of the Peace court yesterday when he was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle without an operator's license. It was the third time Moes had been arrested on the charge.

Chain Reaction Bikini Explained with 12 Mousetraps

Physicists at SUI have "mousetrapped" atomic energy demonstrations. They have jammed into a few mousetraps and rubber stoppers an understandable explanation of the chain reaction in an atomic bomb.

Here's how it works. Each mousetrap represents a uranium nucleus, and each stopper equals a neutron. Two dozen traps are set and placed in a circle about the size of an auto tire. Two rubber stoppers are balanced on each trap.

When the physicist desires a demonstration he merely drops a rubber neutron thru a hole in the center of the table and — in one second — Bikini with rubber stoppers.

SUI physicist Prof. James Jacobs said the original idea came from Prof. R. M. Sutton of Haverford college, but that it had been used with success around SUI for two years.

"Actually the traps are very good to explain nuclear explosion to laymen too," explained Jacobs.

He related that during an atomic demonstration speech at Moline, Ill., someone brushed against the improvised bomb and balls began popping much to the amazement of the unsuspecting audience.

TO SPEAK ON INDIA
The Methodist Women's club will hear Bhagwat Prasad Singh's talk on "How India Looks at America" at its luncheon meeting this noon. Singh is a graduate journalism student from Begusarai, India.

Student Concert Tickets

Students must obtain concert tickets in advance and must present ID cards with the ticket for admission to the Cherkassky concert tonight in the Iowa Union main lounge. The doors open at 7:15 p.m.

'The Fair' to Solve Christmas Problems With Gift Suggestions

You can solve many of your Christmas shopping worries by attending "The Fair" at the Trinity Episcopal church parish house tomorrow from 1 to 9 p.m.

"The Fair," sponsored by the St. Katherine Guild-Auxiliary, will be a gala affair with a house full of booths decorated with red and white streamers.

Mrs. Clifford Boyer, a member of the central committee for the fair, said yesterday that the booths will contain many interesting ideas and notions that will fill many of your needs for those hard-to-decide Christmas presents.

Mrs. Boyer said there will be booths for antiques, home canned goods, baked goods, old buttons, jewelry, books and records.

One of the most interesting booths will hold a display of needle-crafts. The needle work will consist of stuffed toys, kitchen and household gadgets, embroidery work, towels, aprons and children's clothes. Many of these things will help fill out that Christmas list for your family, relatives or friends.

Proceeds from "The Fair" are to be put in a fund for the painting of the Trinity church.

'Dear Octopus' is Film of Family Life

By BOB SENNISH

"Dear Octopus," an English film which puffs up the moral therapy of family life, starts at the Iowa theater today. Using up most of its footage on the normal and really quite pleasant intercourse between members of one family, the movie is nonetheless guilty of sentimental honey-dumping.

Capitalizing upon a golden wedding anniversary, the plot reunites the grown children of a charming elderly couple. The first reunion in many years, the event causes a regrouping of strange faces, eccentric habits and generally heterogeneous personalities.

Situation Ripe

The situation is ripe with possibilities. But it doesn't quite come off.

Instead of keeping the humor afforded by such conditions swift and light, the film parcels in a certain amount of grimness. This grimness, which is decked out in crocodile tears, pursed lips and heart-on-sleeve adornments is eventually set right by the beneficent forces of the home. One need not be cynical to question the Edgar Guest-like solutions.

All 'Come Around'

The swell-headed young playwright, for example, is read the riot act by the rural charmer, Margaret Lockwood. He comes around. Everybody comes around, in fact.

Apart from the aforementioned handicaps, the film is in many ways a very blythe and ingratiating piece of work. The English are peculiar for their ability to reproduce in a comic and off-hand way the inconspicuous delicacies of family life. It is to this faculty that the film owes its finer aspects.

Basketball for Women Opens in U-High Gym

The University women's basketball season got underway last night with four games played in the University high school gymnasium.

Results were: Alpha Chi Omega 25, Chi Omega 1; Westlawn 20, Kappa Kappa Gamma 6; Currier I, 24, Gamma Phi Beta, 11; Currier III, 21, Town Women, 0.

Mrs. Boyer said there will be booths for antiques, home canned goods, baked goods, old buttons, jewelry, books and records.

One of the most interesting booths will hold a display of needle-crafts. The needle work will consist of stuffed toys, kitchen and household gadgets, embroidery work, towels, aprons and children's clothes. Many of these things will help fill out that Christmas list for your family, relatives or friends.

Are You In The Lucky Circle?

Just as we promised, this week another lucky student is entitled to a choice of a free Roast Beef, Roast Pork, or Ham dinner at Moore's Tea Room. The encircled student can enjoy his "dinner on the house" whenever he brings this ad to Moore's. WATCH FOR NEXT WEEK'S LUCKY CIRCLE. YOU MIGHT BE IN IT!
