Gas Explosion Hurts Sixteen; Man Missing

'Big and Little Inch' Blow up in Indiana

SEYMOUR, IND. (U)—Two pipe lines exploded into a mountain of searing flames last night and firemen guarded a wrecked pumping station to prevent escaping gas from causing another blast.

Sixteen persons were injured and one man still was unaccounted for hours after the first explosion. Three men were hospitalized with burns but no one was injured seriously.

Most of the injured were working in or near a pumping station near Reddington, Ind., a relay point in the "big and little" inch pipe lines which carry natural gas from Texas to the east coast.

Flames which soared 300 feet into the air charred the station, set numerous fires in fields and woods, and threatened farm buildings. The blast rocked a 25-mile area, shaking buildings in cities for miles around.

A strong west wind which fanned the flames before they were brought under control blew gas which seeped from the twisted and broken pipes and prevented it from accumulating. Fire fighters feared some fires still burning would ignite the gas if the wind died down.

An engineer for the Tex-Eastern Transmission corporation, which operates the pipelines, said the blasts "might have been caused by a break in one of the pipes."

State police said the fire, which threatened nearby farm homes for more than an hour, was brought under control shortly after gas was cut off at relay points in Ohio.

Iowa City Escapes As Blizzard Tears Through Midwest

While large portions of the midwest suffered under the impact of one of the worst early-winter blizzards in years, the predicted snow for Iowa City failed to materialize. But the weather bureau doesn't give up easily. It still predicts rain changing to snow in eastern Iowa today.

Elsewhere in the nation the season's worst snow storm continued to move eastward, crippling rail and highway travel, tearing down communications lines and isolating more than 100 towns.

At least seven deaths were attributed to the weather, including four on icy highways. One section of the storm lashed an area 85 miles wide across northeastern Nebraska into northwestern Iowa and southwestern Minnesota.

The other section, driven by high winds, fanned out over Kansas and as far south as Lubbock, Texas. Telephone and telegraph communications were reported "badly snarled" in Kansas and many towns were cut off from long-distance service. Highway ditches were dotted with abandoned cars.

Schools were closed in southwestern Minnesota and parts of South Dakota as the storm hit in full force. Fifteen inches of snow fell at Marshall, Minnesota, and the storm still was continuing.

In Boston, where Iowa is slated to meet Boston University on the gridiron, rain and strong winds are predicted for this afternoon.

China Nationalists Drive Home Gain

NANKING (P)—Triumphant government divisions yesterday drove home their first big victory in months of civil war, reportedly fanning out 70 miles east and 30 miles north of Suchow.

Gen. Huang Po-Tao's Seventh army group, whose firm stand on the east flank helped turn the course of a battle that saved Nanking, raced east along the Lung-hai railroad. This is China's main east-west line.

Gen. Chow Chih-Jou's rejuvenated air force, which was the decisive factor in turning back the great Communist lunge toward the heart of China, took a rest. The fliers were heroes in a grateful capital.

Hawks in Good Spirits

Prepared to Show Big Nine to Boston

By BUCK TURNBULL
Sports Editor

BOSTON, MASS.—Iowa's gridiron Hawkeys arrived here yesterday morning in good spirits, prepared to shoot the works at Boston university today in the closing game of the season for both schools.

Having completed their Big Nine schedule last Saturday with two victories and four defeats, Dr. Eddie Anderson's Hawks are heavy favorites to storm over the once-beaten Terriers of Beantown. The Iowa team spent a rather restless night with little sleep on the long train ride Thursday.

Rain was predicted for Saturday which would undoubtedly bog down the offenses of both teams. Today's attendance, which will probably not hit 20,000, will be the smallest crowd the Hawks have played to this year.

The game, which begins at 1 p.m. Iowa time, will be played in Fenway park, home of the Boston Red Sox. Several Iowa radio stations will carry play-by-play descriptions of the eastern invasion, first for the Old Gold school since 1936.

It will be a homecoming game for Dr. Anderson, who has not returned here since his final coach-

Evidence of a possible letdown following this fall's conference games, and especially last week's bruising 28-21 loss to Minnesota were not apparent as the Iowans worked out on the Fenway park turf yesterday afternoon.

The entire 33-man traveling squad feels assured of stopping Boston's winged "T" style of offense, which adores the wide-open game of passing football.

Leading the Terrier attack is Quarterback John Toner, left-handed passing specialist. Toner throws to one of the nation's top pass catchers in End George Sulima, who has caught 23 aerials for 479 yards, ranking 12th in that department in America.

Russians' Proposal On Arms Reduction Voted Down by UN

PARIS (P)—The United Nations assembly decisively defeated last night Russia's demands for a one-third reduction within a year in the armed forces of the five great powers and for the immediate banning of the atom bomb.

Instead the assembly adopted a western resolution calling for further study by the conventional arms commission of steps which would lead toward eventual arms reduction.

Dulles Attacks Plan

Before the decisions were taken John Foster Dulles of the United States called the Soviet proposals "almost irresponsible" and a "cruel deception." He said the Russian resolution was more dramatic than the western proposal, "but it achieves drama at the expense of oversimplifying the problem."

Charges Arms Race

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky charged that the United States and Britain are carrying on a "mad armaments race" against Russia. He accused the U.S. of building up a western European system directed against the Soviet Union.

The vote on the Russian resolution was 39 to 6. Only the nations in the Soviet bloc backed Russia's No. 1 project in the 1948 assembly.

Davis, 'World Citizen,' Attempts Speech in UN

PARIS (U)—Garry Davis, self-styled "citizen of the world" and son of a prominent American orchestra leader, got up yesterday to try to tell the United Nations diplomats how to make peace.

He delivered the shortest speech ever heard in the UN. "I interrupt. I interrupt," the red-haired wartime flier shouted from the balcony to the general assembly 25 feet below.

"In the name of the people . . ." That was as far as he got. Security police grabbed him, hustled him off to jail, held him for three and one-half hours and then released him. With a handshake, he stepped into the Paris night. Five of his friends, also arrested, were also released.

Traffic Tragedy Toasts Tonsils

NEW YORK (U)—John Kainersky, 35, New Suffolk, N. Y., suffered painful burns on his tonsils yesterday in a traffic mishap. Kainersky stopped his automobile on a street in Long Island City to see what was wrong with his motor. He was smoking a cigar.

A truck struck Kainersky's automobile from the rear. He swallowed the cigar.

Dr. Robert Schwinger came driving by. He removed the stogie and took Kainersky to St. John's hospital. His condition was diagnosed as not serious.

Hancher, Anderson Get Top Iowa Salaries, Report Shows

DES MOINES (AP)—Two SUI faculty members as well as the president of Iowa State college drew higher salaries than the governor of Iowa during the last fiscal year, according to the annual state salary book issued yesterday.

President Virgil M. Hancher of SUI and President Charles E. Fridey of Iowa State college each drew $14,000 for the fiscal year ending last June 30. Dr. Eddie Anderson, SUI's football coach, drew $12,500 in the same period; the report revealed.

Gov. Robert D. Blue's salary for the past fiscal year was $12,000, a boost from $7,500 made by the state legislature at the beginning of the year.

The publication of the annual salary book is required by law. The year's edition listed approximately 37,000 state employees, compared to 35,000 in 1947.

A lower turnover in personnel was noted than in the previous year but the number of regular employees increased.

A total of 574 persons received salaries of over $5,000 from the state during the past year. This compares to 390 who received that amount the previous year.

More than two-thirds of the 574 persons who received salaries over $5,000 were state educational institution employees, figures showed.

Twenty-nine employees in addition to the three university officials named received salaries over $10,000. Nineteen of these were on the SUI payroll, four on the Iowa State college rolls, and two were associated with University hospitals in Iowa City.

Queens Given Air For Lack of Heir

CAIRO (P)—The reigning queens of Egypt and Iran who bore no sons to inherit the thrones have been divorced by their royal husbands.

The royal palace said yesterday King Farouk, Egypt's 28-year-old monarch, signed the decree three days ago which divorced him from Farida, the beautiful queen who bore him three daughters.

Simultaneously it was announced that King Farouk's sister, Princess Fawzia, one of the world's most beautiful women, has been divorced by the shah of Iran. They have a daughter.

Under the laws of both countries only a male heir can ascend to the throne.

Warren Austin Enters Walter Reed Hospital

WASHINGTON (P)—Warren Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations, entered Walter Reed army hospital last night for treatment of complications resulting from a cold.

Austin arrived at National airport yesterday evening after an overnight flight from Paris.

Looking Inside, Outside of University's New Atom Smasher

ADDING FINAL TOUCHES to the atom smasher, Leland J. Luft, G, works inside the huge 50-foot steel tank which houses the target apparatus. At least 25,000 man-hours went into the machine's construction. The tube running out the center of the tank end in a "barrel" through which atoms are blasted.

PUTTING A FRIENDLY HAND on the target apparatus of SUI's atom smasher is Prof. James A. Jacobs, chief physicist in charge. Below Jacob's arm is an entry port for entrance into the machine. Near his left shoulder is a viewing port with a two-inch thick glass for observation while the machine operates.

Physicists' Trial Run Successful

By RUSS PAULDING
and MEL SCHINKEL

SUI's atom smasher fired its first successful volley at 8 p.m. last night.

The testing chamber below the campus near the Physics building was filled with anxiety as the power switches of the Van de Graaff generator, one of this country's largest, were closed.

After eight years of planning, minutes seemed like hours as an electrical potential which would send millions of atom smashing particles hurtling down the accelerator tube, was building to the firing point.

Soon a yellow spot appeared at the end of the tube, spelling success for the physicists.

"I'm darned glad," exclaimed James A. Jacobs, chief physicist in charge of the machine. So were half a dozen other physicists. They smiled proudly as they acknowledged success.

The physicists said the atom smasher is not completely finished but that last night's trial run was certainly a good beginning.

Last night's operation begins future experiments by SUI scientists in the smashing and penetrating reaction of atoms of various elements.

Installation of the machine began in the summer of 1941. The war interrupted construction and work was not resumed until 1946.

To house the huge atom smasher, a special chamber of rough-poured cement walls and floor has been built under the ground between the physics building and Schaeffer hall.

The apparatus of the machine is enclosed in a seven-eighth inch steel tank which is about 50 feet long and 8 feet in diameter.

The atom smasher is known as a pressure type electro-static generator.

The operation of the atom smashing machine depends upon the spraying of an electrical charge of a low voltage generator on a moving belt. This operation can be compared to the accumulation of rain by a river. As the river fills up, like the charges on the belt, the river's potential power increases.

At a later point in the belt's travel, the electrical charges accumulate and collect at an electrode. The electrode is like a dam on the river. Just as the dam stores the river's water power, the electrode stores up the electrical charges.

In the electrode, the charges are stored with additional charges which are continually carried into the electrode until the terrific voltage to smash atoms is obtained.

Using the belt as a conveyor of electrical charges, a low voltage generator capable of releasing only 10,000 to 50,000 volts can store up to 6 million volts in the electrode.

The high voltage electrode is the powerhouse which starts the atoms through a 22-foot cylindrical tube. These atoms are injected in a gaseous state into the tube.

The tube is called an accelerator tube because it is made up of additional electrodes spaced

President Swims, Loses Spectacles

KEY WEST (P)—President Truman lost his spectacles while swimming at the enlisted men's beach yesterday. He always swims with his glasses on, head out of the water.

He returned to the "Little White House" on this submarine base to pick up one of his many spares.

Later, while strolling on the beach with a secret service man, he spotted the lost pair of glasses.

"By George, there are my glasses," the president remarked. The secret service man jumped into the water and retrieved the missing spectacles.

Hawkeyes Can Keep Terriers from School Record

Taking Time Out

Sagging Average Gets Last Uplift Today — Look, it's a bird! It's a plane! No, it's those silly fools trying to pick football games again.

Yep, that's right. Here we go into the last crazy football Saturday on our prediction schedule for 1948 feeling the worse for wear but having a lot of fun, anyway.

Our experts, Harold Yeglin of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, Don Sulhoff of the Cedar Rapids Gazette and Spunk Broders of WSUI, wish to thank all you fans for sticking with them on both the good and bad days.

This week as our final guest we have Bill Seward, sports editor of the Iowa City Press-Citizen, to finish up our guests' predictions. We caught Bill strolling through our newsroom the other day in quest of a scoop, and pinned him down to picking the seven games.

With the final day upon us, our season's record stands at 37 wins and 19 losses.

Iowa-Boston — The Hawks should bring home the bacon if they continue to go all out as they have done in previous games this year. It's the final game and we have no doubt that the spirited Iowans will whip the Terriers. Final score: Iowa 34, Boston 6.

Northwestern-Illinois — The Rose Bowl bound Wildcats may have a rough game with Illinois today. The Illini have pointed for this one for two weeks. Northwestern is a corker. Final score: Northwestern 21, Illinois 17 (Don Maechtle's gonna kick a field goal).

Minnesota-Wisconsin — Look out for that Gopher avalanche today. We doubt if Wisconsin will stop that power. Final score: Minnesota 34, Wisconsin 7.

Ohio State-Michigan — This has the makings of a good game. The Buckeyes, improving rapidly, may give their rival Wolverines a real run for their money. Final score: Michigan 26, Ohio State 20.

Purdue-Indiana — The old Oaken Bucket series finds both the Hoosier state teams as more or less the weak sisters of the Big Nine. Neither has lived up to expectations. Indiana's ace fullback, Chick Jagade, will miss the game because of an injury. We like Purdue, since it's about time the Boiler-makers played another good football game. Final score: Purdue 20, Indiana 7.

Kansas-Oklahoma — The Jayhawks always give Oklahoma a good game. We doubt if it will turn into an upset, but it may be fun to watch. Final score: Oklahoma 20, Kansas 14.

Yale-Harvard — The grudge battle of the century once again. We'll go out on the limb and pick the Eli playing on Harvard's home gridiron. Final score: Yale 14, Harvard 7.

The experts see 'em this way:

Harold Yeglin (35-21)

Iowa 26, Boston 7; Northwestern 21, Illinois 6; Minnesota 30, Wisconsin 13; Michigan 18, Ohio State 7; Purdue 26, Indiana 0; Oklahoma 14, Kansas 6; Harvard 18, Yale 14.

Don Sulhoff (33-23)

Iowa 21, Boston 7; Northwestern 27, Illinois 14; Minnesota 35, Wisconsin 13; Michigan 21, Ohio State 12; Purdue 14, Indiana 7; Oklahoma 27, Kansas 13; Harvard 14, Yale 13.

Spunk Broders (30-26)

Iowa 21, Boston 6; Northwestern 14, Illinois 7; Minnesota 34, Wisconsin 7; Michigan 21, Ohio State 7; Purdue 7, Indiana 6; Oklahoma 27, Kansas 13; Yale 12, Harvard 7.

Guest Bill Seward (30-26, guests' record)

Iowa 27, Boston 7; Northwestern 14, Illinois 0; Minnesota 20, Wisconsin 7; Michigan 26, Ohio State 7; Purdue 7, Indiana 0; Oklahoma 27, Kansas 13; Harvard 12, Yale 9.

Your predictions:

Iowa	Boston
Northwestern	Illinois
Minnesota	Wisconsin
Michigan	Ohio State
Purdue	Indiana
Oklahoma	Kansas
Harvard	Yale

Boston Victory Today Would Be 7th in Row

Terriers, has averaged better than five yards per carry this season. Silvia Cella, husky 200-pound fullback, has rammed opposing lines with a 4.3 average.

However, the Terriers' schedule points against a possible victory for them today. They simply have not played the caliber of opponents which supports a six win, one lost record as being outstanding.

Boston dropped the season's opener to Muhlenberg, 27-0, and followed through with consecutive

BOSTON (AP) — Buff Donelli, Boston university coach, is on record as saying "if our boys play the game they're capable of playing, there's no reason why they can't pull an upset over Iowa."

If the BU team wins today, it will be the first eleven in the history of the school to win seven in a row.

For Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa coach, it will be a sort of homecoming. He coached for a decade at Holy Cross, where he had two undefeated seasons, and his last game hereabouts was played at the same Fenway park.

triumphs over Scranton, Colgate, Temple, New York university, Syracuse and Fordham.

The Hawkeyes have picked a year of thrillers into their overall record of three wins and five losses. The mere won and lost column will never indicate the courageous fighting spirit which has dominated play throughout the fall of 1948.

Iowa has had trouble in finding a better-than-average scoring punch, the passing of Quarterback Al DiMarco having been held uppermost in the majority of offensive strategy.

But in the Hawks' 19-13 victory over Wisconsin three weeks ago, the running halfbacks Ralph Doran and Don Fryauf began to develop. Both are high in conference individual rushing statistics, with Doran's 83-yard average the Big Nine's best.

The continued improvement of Bill Greene at fullback lends additional speed to a light backfield which averages a little more than 170 pounds per man.

The Iowa ace this afternoon should be its hefty line, which has unflinchingly taken the best Notre Dame, Minnesota, Wisconsin and four other Big Nine teams have had to offer.

The offensive ace which Boston will find very troublesome lies with the Big Nine's best pair of pass-catching ends, Bob McKenzie and Jack Dittmer. The amazing duo make DiMarco an extra special threat with his active pitching arm.

Iowa football teams have previously made only three trips to the east coast for intersectional games. The Hawks whipped Yale in 1922, lost to George Washington in 1932 and defeated Temple in 1936.

Three injured members of the Iowa squad, Halfbacks Bob Longley, Mearl Naber and Dave Meltved, accompanied the traveling squad but will not dress for the game. Longley has been sidelined with a knee injury while Naber and Meltved are out with dislocated shoulders.

The Iowa players, coaches and athletic officials made their headquarters at the Parker House yesterday. They will remain there tonight, leaving for the return trip to Iowa City Sunday evening.

Lippy Must Explain Signing Fitzsimmons

CINCINNATI (AP) — Leo Durocher, who now manages the New York Giants, is going to have to explain to baseball Commissioner A.B. Chandler how he signed Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons as coach.

A source close to the commissioner said Chandler wants to know why Fitzsimmons' appointment as a coach was announced when he still was under contract to the Boston Braves.

Durocher, Fat Freddie, and officials of the Giants will be invited to tell the story to Chandler at the meeting of baseball heads in Chicago next month.

Wildcats Can Nail Bowl Trip by Hurdling Illinois

Injuries Slow Northwestern

By JERRY LISKA

EVANSTON, ILL. (AP) — Northwestern's football Wildcats, beaten only by Michigan and Notre Dame, will strive to nail down a Rose Bowl bid against Illinois in a season finale today.

It will be the 42nd renewal of the traditional intra-state rivalry.

The Wildcats, with triumphs over Purdue, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ohio State and a 28-0 spanking by Michigan in Big Nine play, can clinch a bowl trip by hurdling the Illini in Dyche stadium.

That would give Northwestern a final 5-1 league record, almost automatically slamming the bowl door on two other hopefuls—Minnesota and Ohio State.

Ohio State (3-2) winds up against undefeated Michigan (5-0) which is ineligible for a bowl encore, and Minnesota (4-2) closes against wallowing Wisconsin

(1-4).

The Wildcats emerged from their 12-7 setback by Notre Dame last Saturday in fine mental fettle, although somewhat banged up physically.

Two regulars, Tackle Steve Sawle and End Chuck Hagmann, will ride the bench with injuries sustained against the Irish.

Northwestern was well pleased in giving Notre Dame its hardest battle of the season, so much so that Illinois hopes the Wildcats will be lulled into over-confidence today.

The Illini are in a scrappy mood after their 34-7 trimming by Ohio State last Saturday.

Illinois gave Michigan its closest tussle of the year before bowing, 28-20; rallied to frighten Army before the Cadets won 26-21; and made Minnesota hustle for a 6-0 verdict.

Of 10 senior Wildcats suiting up for their last game, excluding a possible bowl appearance, two are key regulars — Halfback Frank Aschenbrenner and Center Alex Sarkisian.

It will be the farewell appearance for 14 Illini, among them Dike Eddleman, the Big Nine's best punter.

A sharp passing attack, sparked by Quarterback Bernie Krueger, is Illinois' chief counter against a well-blended Northwestern offense. The Wildcats have a bevy of fleet, hard-hitting backs, including Fullback Art Murakowski, Aschenbrenner, Ed Tunniff, Tom Worthington, Johnny Miller and Gasper Perricone.

The No. 1 Wildcat passer, Quarterback Don Burson, is long overdue for the kind of aerial show he staged when Northwestern erased a 16-0 deficit and beat Minnesota, 19-16.

Gene Hettrick, Hawklet End, Selected to All-State Eleven

Gene Hettrick, City high's end and offensive standout, has been selected to the all-state first team by the Iowa Daily Press Association.

The 6-foot, 5-inch, 205-pound senior, who earned similar recognition on the all-state basketball team last winter, is the only Iowa high school athlete to win positions on both first teams this year.

Four other Iowa City griders gained honorable mention by coaches, officials and sports writers, who voted from a list of 700 players nominated for all-state honors.

Those honored included three other City high players. They were Center Dave Crumley, Tackle Francis Beasley and Fullback Rox Shain. Bob Ojemann, University high fullback, also gained honorable mention.

Hettrick, who was a major factor in the Hawklets' second-place finish in the Mississippi Valley conference, received more votes than any other player in the conference in balloting by the coaches for an all-league team.

Hettrick was surprised when told he'd made the all-state first team. Earlier in the week he thought he might repeat the honorable mention award he received last year.

Hettrick's selection marks the seventh straight year City high has placed a player on the all-state first team.

In 1941 two Little Hawks made the second team. Since then the first team members have been: Dean Yanaush, tackle, and Joe Casey, back, 1942; Dick Lee, tackle, 1943; Tom Hirt, tackle, 1944; Evan Smith, end, 1945; Jim Sangster, back, 1946; and Bill Reichardt, back, 1947.

Fighters' Troubles: Bivins KO's Wife, Rocky Disappears

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police yesterday charged Heavyweight Challenger Jimmy Bivins with scoring a knockout punch on his wife, Mrs. Dollie Bivins, 24, told police that her husband socked her and knocked her out because dinner wasn't ready when he came home. She was treated at the hospital for a minor concussion and bruises.

Police issued a warrant charging Bivins with the attack.

Bivins denied the story. He said, "She threatened earlier to make trouble for me after the Doug fight. This must be what she meant."

Bivins fought a four-round decision exhibition with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis here Wednesday.

Veck Fails to Obtain Top Pitcher from Mack

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bill Veck, president of the world champion Cleveland Indians, failed yesterday in an effort to obtain one of the Philadelphia Athletics top pitchers from Connie Connie, although in the market for infield and outfield strength, said not one of his pitchers is up for sale or trade.

"Furthermore," he added, "I have money to spend. If Mr. Veck wants to sell me some of his players, I'll do business with him."

SIOUX CITY, IA. (AP) — A prediction that Cedar Rapids would ask for and be granted a Western league baseball franchise at the winter meeting of the circuit next month in Minneapolis was voted here yesterday by General Manager M. R. Murphy of the Sioux City Soos.

Brown Wins Run for Turkey

Finishing first in the annual Hawkeye run yesterday, Keith Brown now literally has a turkey tucked under his arm.

Eight runners slogged their way over a two-mile cross-country run on Finkbine field in an effort to win the coveted first prize — a live turkey.

Besides winning the turkey, Brown was awarded the Hawkeye cup, and the Ida Grove Alumni trophy as the first upper classman to cross the finish line.

In second position, Jack Davis won a goose and the trophy awarded by the Cedar Rapids Alumni association to the first freshman crossing the line.

Bill Snook won a duck by coming in third, and John Collins received a hen for finishing fourth.

Ted's First Homer For Polio Victim

OMAHA (AP) — The first homer Ted Williams hits next year will be for a 14-year old polio victim, Bob Peterson of Stanton, Neb.

It says so on the baseball Bob was proudly exhibiting to friends yesterday.

"To Bob Peterson, the first home run of next season will be for you," said the inscription. "Lots of luck, Ted Williams."

Young Peterson, who expects to leave Children's Memorial hospital here today, had wanted an autographed baseball from a big leaguer. He has eyes on a baseball career himself.

The Omaha parents of Johnny Kowalski, Boston radio entertainer and friend of Boston Red Sox Owner Tom Yawkey, helped arrange for the sending of the autographed baseball.

OHIO Fans Believe Upset of Michigan Today Is Possible

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — You can't tell the folk around this football-mad metropolis that Ohio State's twice-beaten Bucks don't have a pretty fair chance to knock up-beaten Michigan off the nation's No. 1 spot here today.

That age-old question of what happens when an irresistible force meets an immovable object might get an answer in this one. Michigan has allowed eight opponents an average of only 82.4 yards per game by rushing, but Ohio has rolled up a 243.5-yard average on the ground, so someone's record is due for a bit of bending.

On all pass plays—the air game is Michigan's ace in the hole—the Wolves have averaged 8.15 yards, including incomplete ones, but Ohio State has held eight opponents to a 4.61 average.

So it appears each has a fine defense against its opponent's strong point. You can't overlook the fact, however, that Michigan has rolled up 239 points to 41 for the foe, while Ohio has scored 181 and allowed 81, a convincing margin in the minds of the Michigan supporters.

Pre-game fever hit its peak late yesterday afternoon as Chic Harley, Ohio State's first all-America—and rated the greatest player ever to wear the Buckeye uniform—came to town for the fray. A huge parade was staged for Harley, who has almost recovered from an illness which kept him in a Danville, Ill., Veterans hospital for more than two decades.

Louis Dumps Foe Twice in Exhibition

DETROIT, MICH. (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis brought his exhibition tour home to Detroit last night and even with bulky 14-ounce gloves, dumped curly-haired Vern Mitchell of Detroit on the canvas twice in a no-decision six-round exhibition.

Louis weighed 220, Mitchell 194 1-2.

Joe toyed with Mitchell, didn't even bother to sit down in his corner between the two-minute rounds and even took time to smile at his friends around the ringside while he waited for the oel.

Only twice did Louis open up with any sign of a vicious attack and both times he put Mitchell down.

Waterloo Grigger Finds He Has 2 Wives Now

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roger Stephens, Waterloo, Iowa, captain of the University of Cincinnati football team, remarried recently before being divorced from his first wife, his attorney and line coach, John Wiethe, said yesterday.

Wiethe said yesterday Stephens recently learned that his first wife, the former Gayle Lenehan, 24, Waterloo, Iowa, did not file suit for divorce until Sept. 28. The divorce was granted in Fayette, Iowa, Oct. 28. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple have an 18-months-old daughter.

The attorney and football coach said Stephens thought he had been divorced. He added that the athlete and Miss Forsaker will be remarried at a date to be set later.

Season Ends For Hawks!

Today the Iowa Hawkeyes wind up a thrilling football season in their game against Boston U. at Boston.

And... Northwestern and Illinois are slugging it out in Evanston to see if Northwestern goes to the Rose Bowl.

Stratocruisers Assure Luxurious Air Comfort SUI Group to ASCE Meet

LUXURY PLUS is featured in this stratocruiser lower-deck cocktail lounge. The roomy, glistening lounge seats 14 persons and is easily reached by a spiral staircase from the passenger level above. Like the rest of the flying giant, it is specially "air-filtered."

YOU WON'T HAVE INSOMNIA when you sleep in the larger-than-Pullman berths aboard the Stratocruiser. The lower berths are 74½ inches long and 42 inches wide. The upper berths are 75 inches long and 40 inches wide.

Feature New Comfort

By BOB BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent
SEATTLE — The business man wheeled around in his swivel chair and faced the window, looking west, in an Empire State building office. He talked into the phone.

"Joe, I want to come out to Seattle right away and talk over that deal on the pulp mill. Let's see... it's 11 a.m. in Seattle. I'll leave Idlewild Airport in an hour, so pick me up in your car at 5:20 at the Tacoma Airport at 5:20 this afternoon, Seattle time. O.K.?"

That type of business conversation is just a bit premature as of this moment. However, it will be an everyday affair by this time next year, when the luxurious new Stratocruisers, now being rolled off the assembly lines here in Seattle, are criss-crossing the airways of the nation, and the world.

Eliminate Ear-Popping
This system eliminates "ear-popping" and other uncomfortable sensations experienced by passengers during climb or descent in planes not so equipped. It is a vital necessity for comfort, since the Stratocruiser will fly at higher altitudes than any other airliner now in operation.

Piece de resistance in comfort
Of course, is the lower-deck cocktail lounge, which seats 14 passengers at one time, reached easily by means of a spiral staircase.

Carry 114 Passengers
For short range, inter-city flights—high density traffic, up to 114 passengers will be carried, but long distance loads will be 60 to 80 passengers, depending on the range needed, amount of freight and baggage carried, and on the type of seating or berthing arrangement desired.

Boeing expects to start deliveries of the 56 Stratocruisers now built or under contract to airlines this fall. Northwest Airlines, United Air Lines, Pan American World Airways, American Overseas Airlines, Scandinavian Airlines System and British Overseas Airways Corporation all have fleets of stratocruisers ordered.

PRESIDENT TO SEE ARMY-NAVY
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — President Truman will attend the Army Navy game at Philadelphia this year. Mr. Truman and his wife and daughter will sit this time on the Navy side, having sat with the Army fans last year. The game is Nov. 27.

Feature Folding Berths
Another type of chair is the "berthable luxury," which makes up into a larger-than-Pullman size berth, 74 inches long by 42 inches wide.

The Stratocruiser is probably better heated and ventilated than the most modern of homes—two important factors in passenger comfort.

Cabin air is completely replaced with new air every 90 seconds, removing all smoke and traces of odor before it might become objectionable. Special filters remove dust, dirt, smoke color and airborne bacteria from the air, in addition.

An integral part of the heating and ventilating of the Stratocruiser is the "altitude conditioning" system. This device enables the ship to fly in the smooth upper-air levels where greater speed and economy are possible, while passengers and crew enjoy low-altitude air. It can take off and climb to 15,000 feet rapidly or slowly without changing the sea-level air pressure conditions inside the plane.

Sisters Sponsor Guam Gridders

WEARING SUMMER CLOTHING not in keeping with the football season, two former Iowa City residents, Joy and Robertia Jenks, hold a pigskin souvenir of their selection as sponsors of a Guam island army football team. The girls are daughters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Loren T. Jenks who formerly lived here at 726 E. Washington street. Jenks is chaplain for the Marianas-Bonins army command. His wife and daughters arrived on Guam several months ago. The 561st Engineer's football team picked the girls as their sponsor as a jamboree held on Guam at the end of the grid season. Unlike Iowa's football weather, the temperature is always hot during the Marianas pigskin schedule.

Campus Come-on for Winter Cottons

Corduroys, Calicos Bow in Classrooms

By MARY HEALY

Cottons have finally come into their own. No longer are summer dresses and blouses the only cotton clothing in a girl's wardrobe. Every SUI co-ed who is in the "know" has replaced many of the silks, rayons, and wools in her wardrobe with the new year-round cottons.

With the emphasis on winter styles, cotton fabrics have been designed for wear around the clock and are carried by all Iowa City clothing stores.

Corduroy suits, velveteen skirts and plaid and calico dresses have made their appearance in SUI classrooms this fall. Cotton gabardine shirts in pastel shades or those of bright corduroy are being worn with skirts that stress the new "old look." Any of these sports ensembles is perfect for the chem lab, coke date or basketball game.

When the rains come, SUI girls may be seen hurrying around campus in smart flare-back or fitted raincoats of corduroy, velveteen, cotton gabardine, quilted poplin and lightweight chintz. Versatile rainwear can easily double as casual coats.

Quilted flannel has come out of the boudoir this winter to take its place at parties and dances. Trim two-piece quilted dresses are the latest thing for movie dates and house parties.

Velveteen dresses, worn off the shoulder add a touch of sophistication for university dances and "big" dates. Complete with bustle and the new deep neckline, formal of the same material are making their bid for popularity at formal dances in Iowa City this fall.

Three-piece lounging sets of cotton or flannel, nightshirts like Grandpa wore, and shortie "dormers" are prominent at every dorm and sorority "spread" this semester.

Whether it's a class, dorm party, or formal dance, there is a new winter cotton perfect for the occasion.

(Daily Iowan Photos by Jim Showers)

OFF-THE-SHOULDER is Jeanne Sanner's new aqua date dress, but not off the fashion beam. On more sedate occasions this freshman coed from Farley wears a snug jacket with velveteen buttons and collar over the fitted bodice with scallop trim. The full skirt is made of cotton gabardine.

PROOF THAT COTTON IS A STRONG CONTENDER for popularity honors this winter is the quilted corduroy dress of sage green worn by Elizabeth Metcalf, Al, Des Moines. A wide V forms the neckline of the two-piece dress.

Wayzgoose 'Holiday' Sunday

"Feasting and dancing," reminiscent of 17th century journalism, will feature the entertainment Sunday night when SUI journalism faculty and students take time off for the annual Wayzgoose banquet.

Wayzgoose is an old English term referring to the annual holiday given by master printers for journeymen of the trade. It was the custom to set aside one day each year when master printers would prepare a "goose feast" for their subordinates.

It was also customary, as part of the holiday festivities, for the master printers to furnish entertainment for the journeymen and to give them money "to spend at the ale house or tavern."

The Wayzgoose banquet here at SUI is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity. According to Gail Myers, president of the fraternity, tickets to the banquet are "still available."

The Wayzgoose Gazette, annual eight page tabloid "lampooning" SUI journalists, will be distributed at the banquet. The publication will not be sold on campus this year.

One of the more serious aspects of the affair will be a speech by George Yates, head of the Des Moines Register and Tribune photographic staff. Yates is recognized as one of the leading news photographers in the country.

He is the only photographer ever to receive the Distinguished Service in Journalism medal. The medal is awarded annually to

Thanksgiving Is — 'Significant Holiday'

Helen Okamoto doesn't mind having her turkey dinner away from home in faraway Hilo, Hawaii, this year, because Thanksgiving does not have "as much significance back home" as she believes it has "up here."

She said this lack of meaning is especially true for "Oriental families at home" whose parents from the old country first began to learn about Thanksgiving from their children who study and read about it in school.

"Anyway, I have been invited to spend the holiday with my friend, Wilma Van Beid, so it won't be so bad," Helen said as she prepared to spend her first Thanksgiving away from home.

"I don't think I will be lonesome because I am going to Columbus (Neb.)," she added.

Madison Court Residents
Helen and Wilma are freshmen and live in Madison court cottage 219.

Helen seemed equally excited over the fact that this will be the first time she is going to visit somebody's home here.

To Helen, Thanksgiving means harvested fields, corn shocks, pumpkins in the field and stacked hay. Now she will have a chance to see whether the mental picture she built in Hawaii from pictures in her primer is true or not.

She thought the weather around Thanksgiving time was just as nice as it is in sunny Hilo. She is surprised to find that Thanksgiving is going to be a lot colder for her than usual this year. "I thought the cold and snow started in December," she said.

Helen said she and Wilma have not planned how they will spend the four-day vacation yet. But she wants "to look the place over" and see how people live in a small midwestern town.

Anticipates Small Town
She has read and heard a lot about midwestern towns. Now that she is going to see one with her own eyes, she said this is going to be pleasantly exciting. Especially at this time of the season, she added.

"O-oh, Thanksgiving used to be just another holiday from school for us at home," she replied when asked how most students felt in Hawaii.

She believes though, that the situation will change as the "younger generation" grows up and begin having families of their own. Her reason was the "spirit" will be passed from parent to child instead.

Helen's mother is island-born but her father is not. Their parents did not observe Thanksgiving. For this reason Thanksgiving has not been passed on to her, she explained.

"Of course, we have a turkey dinner with all the trimmings at home," she said, but added that dinner alone does not create a Thanksgiving spirit.

Belgium's Coalition Government Falls

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AP)—The Socialist-Catholic cabinet of Premier Paul-Henri Spaak fell yesterday following the resignation of Justice Minister Paul Struye. It had been in power since March 19, 1947.

Prince Charles, Regent of Belgium, will consult with various political leaders before asking anyone to form a government.

It is believed that Spaak, a Socialist, will refuse to head a new cabinet.

Struye resigned Thursday after being criticized in parliament on his policy of clemency toward former pro-German collaborators.

Everett Poots, formerly of Iowa City, was arrested yesterday on a charge of passing false checks and is being held in the county jail. He was arrested in downtown Iowa City at 1:30 yesterday by Police Officer Harland Sprinkle.

BOND SALES BOOMING
NEW YORK (AP) — A treasury department official said yesterday there are more United States savings bonds outstanding now than at the end of the war. Elihu E. Harris, advertising director of the department's savings bond division, said that bond redemptions have declined steadily since V-J day. Bonds now are held by more than 75-million persons, Harris said, representing a total value of more than $50-billion. He said bond redemptions are below sales.

Landlady Says Tenant Forged Four Checks

A Lone Tree landlady yesterday charged her former tenant with forging four checks totaling $5.50 and drawing them on her bank account without her consent, in a judgment suit amendment filed in Johnson county district court.

Mrs. Mary Petru asked a judgment totaling $2,510.20 against James Masek, Clear Creek township, in a second amendment to her original petition filed last Sept. 13.

The four checks were allegedly forged between 1926 and 1929. The plaintiff claimed she did not discover the defendant's alleged fraud until after last Sept. 30.

In her original petition, Mrs. Petru asked a judgment totaling $1,396 for Masek's failure to pay for 23 years of washing or for board and room between Dec. 1946 and Aug. 1947.

The plaintiff claimed she did the defendant's washing once a week at his oral request for 23 years without being paid for it.

Masek replied that her attempt to collect for the washings was barred by the statute of limitations because her cause of action didn't accrue within five years of the filing of her present suit.

The plaintiff countered by saying her claims for the washing covered a continuous, open account.

Masek filed a counter-claim Sept. 27 asking a judgment for $906.03, claiming he helped the plaintiff in the upkeep of her house and for loaning her money for which he said he was never repaid.

The defendant has requested a jury trial of the case.

Blind, She Helps the Handicapped

HANDICAPPED HERSELF. Miss Genevieve Powell of Wichita Falls, Tex., helps Larry Burger, Lovilia, with his leather-craft work in the occupational therapy department at University hospitals. Miss Powell has been blind for 11 years, but she took up occupational therapy training in order to help others worse off than herself. In the foreground is Blackie, the blind-woman's German Shepherd seeing-eye dog and constant companion for the past eight years.

Anticipates Therapy Degree

"When I lost my sight, I knew I wanted to help others worse off than myself."

This has been the motto of Miss Genevieve Powell, 36, who has been blind for the past 11 years. Next month this short, attractive brunette from Wichita Falls, Texas, will graduate from the occupational therapy clinical training course at the university hospital.

After a brain tumor had caused her blindness in 1937, Miss Powell chose a career where she could help others. With a Texas drawl she explained, "I don't want to work only with the blind, but through my own loss I feel I am qualified to understand and help others with greater handicaps than my own."

To ease her financial worries and to occupy her time during the depression days of 1937, Miss Powell did a number of things. She knitted, sold magazines and taught school.

She began her occupational therapy training at Texas State College for Women at Denton. Her tuition and subsistence while in school was paid by the Texas State Commission for the Blind. Last September she came here to do practical work with patients in the University hospitals.

Miss Powell thinks that if she passes the national examination for registered occupational therapists in February, she will be the only blind person in the United States registered in her profession.

"I'm really not so bad off, after all," she smilingly indicated. "I could probably make more money selling magazines, but there just wouldn't be the satisfaction involved that I get out of my chosen work. I feel that one handicapped person can help another such person adjust to his handicap more easily."

"That's why I'm here."

Truckers Hurt as Machine Overturns

Two Denver truck drivers escaped with minor injuries when the semi-trailer in which they were riding turned over south of Coralville at 2:30 a.m. yesterday. The truck came to rest on its top.

Police said the accident occurred on the first curve south of Coralville when the driver failed to make the turn.

The two men, Fredrik Hardt and A. C. Hampton, were taken to University hospital for first aid and were released yesterday morning. Police said Hardt suffered cuts about the head and Hampton had an injured back.

The truck, owned by the Davenport Freight company, was headed west on its way to Denver.

Get New Sergeant, Nelson Reassigned

One sergeant has been added and one sergeant has left the SUI military department, the department said yesterday.

The new man is Sgt. Glenn L. Howard who reported here from Fort Knox, Ky. He was an SUI student in 1946-47.

Howard, who will be an assistant infantry instructor, spent three years in the European theater during the last war.

He was attached to an infantry outfit and earned the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, combat infantry badge and distinguished unit badge for his services.

Sgt. David L. Nelson, who was an assistant engineer ROTC instructor, has re-enlisted for another assignment and is no longer with the department. His reassignment is not known, the military department said.

The lectures, presented in the Senate chamber of Old Capitol, are for all law students, wives and faculty. The next lecture will be given Dec. 15 by Judge Henry N. Graven on "Lawyer and the Bench".

The committee in charge of the lectures are Paul Beckman, chairman, Fred Pifferle and Norman Peterson.

Fraternity Pledges Hear Second Talk

The second in a series of four orientation lectures sponsored by the Interfraternity council was presented Wednesday in chemistry auditorium.

The program was to inform fraternity pledges about the Y. M. C. A. on the campus.

The next two lectures will be held in Macbride auditorium. "The Role of the National Fraternity and its Relationship to the Local Chapter" will be the topic on Dec. 1.

Seeking and Finding a Level

When the game was over there weren't too many penalties chalked up—the sidelines apparently was the scene of the most rough stuff.

Because when the coaches met in what is usually a "swell game" mutual respect handshake, the visiting coach threatened to cut his Iowa trips off the list because of "hoodlums" who bothered him.

After some Iowa Citians complained about being called "hoodlums" and released accusations against Minnesota's coach, a sports director of a Minneapolis paper suggests they break off relations with Iowa for two years.

Somewhere in this state a group wanted to register a formal protest against Minnesota as a state because a man called them "hoodlums", and reportedly worse than that.

It is interesting to note that aside from non-committal denials from the Minnesota department, these groups are not making official statements. Most of the controversy has come from the public remarks of Coach Bierman and the spectators who objected to his name-calling.

The comment from Iowa director of athletics Paul Brechler that both groups involved are adults and should conduct themselves as is proper for educated grownups strikes near the truth. A coach cannot afford to let his hair down and engage in abusive argument with spectators—but if he does then he should not insist on holding to his position as a sacred cow.

Besides that, the position which the Minnesota press has taken that it is all the fault of those blamed Iowans is an ill-conceived and poorly supported one.

Enough to Drive a Person Crazy . . .

While the state department strategists and other experts who avidly follow the game are all wrapped up in themselves, the public is suffering.

A long succession of hard knocks after V-J day led American foreign policy strategists to believe that they couldn't do business with Stalin.

The alternatives to surrendering or being overrun were few. After a long string of big four conferences, it was concluded that compromising your differences with Russia was out.

Allied statesmen slowly developed their plan for living side by side with Russia. Called by many names—containment, Marshall plan, western union, Truman doctrine, cold war—the new plan based itself upon force, tension, and a battle of wits.

It is apparently a hard-driving, exasperating job to play the game from the Washington-London-Paris end of the international chess board.

But it is the little guy we are worrying about at the moment. It's tough to live in a world fairly erupting with crises, deadlocks, threats and fear.

To prove the point, pick up a daily newspaper. Glance at the headlines.

"Strangled Body of Sex Fiend, Victim Found in New Hampshire Woods."

"Cincinnati Mother Denies Poisoning 11-Year-Old Daughter."

"Man, Crazy from Pain of Tooth Extraction, Shoots Self in Stomach."

"Illegitimate Babies Sell as High as $2,000 Each on Chicago Black Market."

"Nebraska Youth, Declared 4F in Draft, Kills Father, Beats Mother, Shoots Self."

Generally the little man takes the word of the foreign expert that the tense world situation cannot be eased this instant. The elections proved that very few have rebelled against the cold war.

But the pressure is too much for more and more people. People's senses are deadened. Shrieking headlines and columns of gory crime details even fail to extract a spark of interest from most people.

An ax murder is fast becoming just another shred of news—like a major battle in China or a veto in the UN.

While the diplomats are talking war—cold war, hot war, expected war—nobody is taking the opposite tack. It is significant that the Nobel Prize committee could find no one who deserves the Nobel Peace prize this year.

If the U.S. government can worry about an international agreement to standardize screw threads on nuts and bolts (at a 60 degree angle), it might be able to spare a little effort to unwind its over-tense, emotionally fatigued citizens.

The government should award shiny new service stripes to all citizens who survive six months of the cold war without cracking up or butchering someone. And the more severe cases should be packed off to some remote clime to fight a quiet, relaxing war.

The Marengo Experiment —

Atom Bomb: E Equals MC Squared

(Third in a series summarizing the Marengo lectures on the atomic age.)

By RUSS PAULDING

If we could suddenly turn a little piece of gold entirely into energy, we would all be observing the effects from heaven, George Glockler, director of SUI chemistry, informed the Marengo adult school.

"Actually," he added, "if we could take any little bit of matter and change ALL, instead of only a part of it into energy, a tremendous force would result." A tremendous force is another name for an explosion, he explained.

"This concept," Glockler said, is the result of work by the famous Albert Einstein. He published in 1905 his formula, E equals mc squared, which eventually led to the development of the atomic bomb.

The Einstein formula represents figures bigger than the national debt, Glockler said. E represents energy, the small "m" stands for mass, and the small "c" squared, for the speed of light, which is 186 thousand miles per second.

The size of the figures in the formula might be better illustrated, Glockler continued, "if we would say that one gram of matter completely turned into energy would give 21,500 billion calories in heat. This amount of heat is the same as we could expect from burning 3,000 tons of coal.

How big is this gram that could produce this great amount of energy? It takes more than 450 grams to make a pound.

With the advent of the Einstein formula came the idea that energy must have weight.

"If we expect to understand the atom bomb," Glockler said, "we must accept this idea." It follows then: if energy has weight, then heat, which is a form of energy, has weight.

Glockler said that this is a "fundamental concept for understanding atomic energy."

To show how the bomb was developed, Glockler began explaining fundamental chemistry, for background.

"Substances," he said, "the ordinary objects around us such as iron or coal, have definite properties. Some of them are mixtures of several things. For example, he said, air is a mixture of nitrogen and oxygen, emphasizing, "parts of this mixture can be separated."

Lead and feathers have something in common, he pointed out, since they are included in the use of the chemical term "matter." The chemist uses the word "matter" to include all "substances." This means that all substances have weight, whether they are lead or feathers. Substance has the property of "extension," that is, it fills up space, taking a great variety of forms and shapes.

Looking around in this world of ours we see the effects of another chemical term, Glockler said. We see what happens when milk is left in a warm place, it sours. Dead things decay and iron rusts. What has happened? The chemist says there has been a "chemical change."

Another "chemical change," Glockler added, occurs when we stoke the furnace. "Coal combines with oxygen to make the gas, carbon dioxide. This means that carbon, C, when combined with oxygen, O₂, may form carbon dioxide, or CO₂.

WHAT ARE ELEMENTS, MIXTURES, AND COMPOUNDS? The three figures illustrate two of the 9 elements in their fundamental form, in a mixture and in a compound. The mixture in figure two indicates that the elements in this form retain their qualifying properties. This is shown by the effect of the magnet on the iron shavings. Figure three, shows one change produced by a chemical "reaction." The iron in a sulfide compound is no longer affected by the magnet. Another explanation is evidenced by symbols in the lower portions of the illustrations. Let the black rectangle represent basketballs or Fe iron, and the white, baseballs, S, sulfur. To get a mixture we would place the two objects together. The result — baseballs or basketballs, placed together. In this form they retain their original qualities and are easily separated. In the form of a compound we would have nothing that resembled, baseballs or basketballs, since a chemical "reaction" must occur to produce the compound which would possess new properties. A chemical "reaction" of this type might result from the application of heat.

Substances always combine in a definite proportion by weight. If iron is completely oxidized, for example, the result is a chemical change which always functions in the same manner. Seventy percent of the newly formed product will be iron and 30 percent will be composed of oxygen. Oxidation is the chemical change we commonly call rust.

"This fact," the chemist said, "led scientists to believe in the Law of Conservation of Mass. The law means there will always be the same amount of mass or weight, whether we combine iron and oxygen to form an oxide, or take the oxide and change it back into iron and oxygen."

For many years this law was considered final, Glockler said, but this was not true. Eventually the Law of Conservation of Mass had to be modified. Modification began the long road which led to the discovery of atomic energy.

Four hundred thousand substances are known to man. All of them are formed by various combinations of 96 known elements. These elements are the building blocks of the universe — everything is composed of them. They are unique in that to date scientists have found no way to reduce them to anything simpler.

"Mixtures" do not act in this manner. If you add sugar to water, for example, a "mixture" is formed. This new substance, sweet water, can be reduced to something simpler, Glockler said. "If this mixture was allowed to evaporate, tiny crystals of sugar would be left. On the other hand," he explained, "water, a compound, may be changed into its fundamental parts, hydrogen and oxygen, only by drastic means, such as sending an electric current through the "compound."

Other common compounds are baking soda, ether, lime, lye, salt, sand, sugar, and TNT. In the case of a compound we have two or more "elements" combining through a "chemical change." This change will remain constant or permanent, if temperature, humidity, or pressure conditions remain normal.

When "chemical changes" or

"reactions" occur, they are accompanied by an "energy" change, Glockler said. When coal burns in the furnace, it makes carbon dioxide. The carbon dioxide goes up the chimney, and heat is produced, warming the house. For every piece of coal we burn a certain number of "calories" are produced as heat.

"While we used to measure the temperature of this heat, it did not occur to us to try to weigh or measure the mass of it," he continued.

"It was always believed that energy had no mass — in other words, heat did not weigh anything. This turned out to be wrong, as indicated by the Einstein formula.

"Einstein also decided that when carbon combines with oxygen, the result was an amount of carbon dioxide that we could weigh easily, and an amount of heat that could be weighed if we could just invent a balance fine enough.

"This concept must be accepted," Glockler repeated, "if we are to understand atomic energy."

Concluding, Glockler mentioned that the Einstein formula, published at the beginning of the twentieth century, attracted little attention at the time, but the ideas which stem from it are the two ideas we must remember.

1. Energy has weight.
2. If we can convert matter into energy, we can generate a tremendous force.

McBride's Haul

By BILL MCBRIDE

Now that we have conscription again and some of our young men are once more marching off to serve their country it would seem appropriate to pass on a few well-chosen words of advice.

Occasionally a hard-bitten veteran says he doesn't even want the word army mentioned. However, it doesn't seem fair to keep these future soldiers in the dark about some of the more important segments of military life. Those readers who know all about this can just occupy the time by looking through the rest of the paper to see what Minnesota is saying about our illegitimate origins today.

After consulting a committee of veterans I feel that this will comprise a more or less authentic list of recommendations, although it may not be quite complete.

First off, there are the articles of war. Contrary to original impressions the articles are not soldier apparel to be worn in combat, but rather a list of completely fair and simple rules of military law and justice.

Read them carefully and you will discover there is really nothing they don't cover including childbirth and how to make out a laundry slip. Just to be on the safe side the body which formulated those rules threw in one that covers anything the others might have missed. Already you have an idea of the efficiency of your organization.

It is your organization, you know. Not only that, but this is a new army. First sergeants won't swear, your commanding officer will have a direct interest in you as an individual. You are not just another number . . . your number has personality.

Since the new army is your organization, when something doesn't look just right to you, walk into the orderly room and assert yourself. This will lead to greater understanding between you and your superiors, (they really don't think of themselves as superiors . . . more like big brothers) and you will grow to know and love them.

Those fellows in the orderly room may seem a bit cross at times, but it is only because they are constantly harried by the thought that they might not be giving you everything you deserve.

If you should happen to find yourself performing a seemingly menial chore (such as scrubbing large garbage containers) remember that it is all a part of a great pattern intended for your mental and physical development.

The food may seem strange to you at first. You may even be tempted to object to the mess sergeant. I wouldn't do that if I were you. Mess sergeants frequently have tender feelings, and are easily hurt.

The army purchases the best food money can buy, and although it may taste odd at times, bear in mind that the mess sergeant and his friendly helpers do everything they possibly can (through a system of planned menus) to give you a well-balanced and tasty meal.

A word about barracks life . . . this is important. The barracks is your home. You will be free to do pretty much as you please there. It is true that there will be 50 or 60 other fellows about your age living there too, but you will live like one big, happy family.

Share what you have with the fellow next to you, and he will do likewise. And then too, if you have any ideas about prettying up the place, go ahead with them. It's your barracks. Perhaps if you scout around nearby communities you could find a venetian blind for your window.

The citizenry of nearby communities will undoubtedly be most friendly, holding many parties in your favor and looking out for your social welfare.

Since the army is interested in you, it expects you to be interested in it. When volunteers are asked for, step right up and offer your services. Initiative is one of the prerequisites of good soldiering, and if you show initiative, you won't go unrewarded . . . take my word for it.

Atlantis Never Existed

Scientist Hits Legend of Submerged Continent

BERKELEY, CALIF. (AP) — The "Lost Continent" of Atlantis never existed, a sea-going scientist claimed Thursday after 13 years of exploring the bottom of the Atlantic ocean.

Dr. Maurice Ewing of Columbia university said he has mapped, photographed, probed, sounded and visited the ocean deeps since 1935 and found no evidence of the mysterious continent believed to have sunk in a great cataclysm of pre-historic times.

"There never was such a place," Ewing declared flatly. He told the National Academy of Sciences he wasn't looking directly for Atlantis, but he took undersea photographs as deep as 18,000 feet and found no buried temples or lost cities.

His photographs even failed to show any spectacular living monsters still unknown to science.

But Ewing's explorations of the most fantastic territory in the world, the "great unknown" frontier beneath the sea, have shed new light on the geological history of the world and how it is made.

Ewing concentrated his undersea research primarily along the so-called mid-Atlantic ridge, running under the ocean from Iceland to the Antarctic. Ancient historians believed the lost continent was located there, and some modern scientists claim the ridge is the last trace of the engulfed land.

The Columbia geophysicist said he has found on the ocean bottom vast gullies and canyons, and plains as flat and big as the prairies of the midwest; vast "submarine rivers" flowing underneath the Atlantic; and mountains towering 10,000 feet above the ocean floor but still a mile below the surface.

"But there's nothing that looks like a 'lost continent' or drowned cities," he said. Even if a city were covered by many feet of ooze, our photographs, dredges or soundings should give us some indication it was there."

Russians Scorn Movies For Ideological Laxness

MOSCOW (AP) — The central committee of the Communist party has demanded a higher ideological content for Soviet movies and has called for the rejection of films which are "apolitical" or indifferent to the Communist doctrine.

Soviet movies, therefore, like all other Soviet cultural institutions, today are undergoing a self-critical reexamination.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

Miss Alicia Armstrong cannot be expected to understand the tradition of the South, but readers of The Daily Iowan should be afforded the services of a literary critic who has some knowledge of the traditional novel form. Miss Armstrong objects to William Faulkner's Intruder in the Dust on the grounds that he "completely break(s) the dramatic structure of his novel to lecture on the 'problem' of the South." And she goes on to say that "the author intrudes with lengthy speeches."

Now, a careful reading of the book will demonstrate that Faulkner as a novelist does not appear at any point in the narrative. The passages to which Miss Armstrong refers are either included as part of the dialogue, or they are offered as thoughts of the novel's characters in a semi-stream of consciousness technique—a fairly modern literary device, which, I dare say, Miss Armstrong has admired.

However, the evidence on hand proves conclusively that an author has been allowed the privilege of intrusion since the inception of this particular form. Let Miss Armstrong look at Fielding's Tom Jones or Sterne's Tristram Shandy or Thackeray's Vanity Fair; let her observe the gloomy warnings of Thomas Hardy and the moral lectures of George Eliot and the whaling lessons of Herman Melville.

But if Miss Armstrong is one of our young moderns—and I suspect this is true—she will require more recent examples. James Joyce incorporates a critical essay in the dialogue of A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man. Ernest Hemingway's Robert Jordan talks to himself in order that the reader may understand the author's ideas on government; and Robert Penn Warren is apt to include what he calls "pamphlets" to establish a point.

Miss Armstrong also arraigns Faulkner for "sickness." (I take it by "sickness" she means "contrived"). To this charge one need say only that an intelligent study of Othello will establish the point that in some works of art plot is subordinate to character and scope.

At the risk of being condemned as old fashioned, I offer the following lines by Alexander Pope to Miss Armstrong's consideration:

But you who seek to give and merit fame,
And justly bear a Critic's noble name,
Be sure yourself and your own reach to know,
How far your genius, taste, and learning go;
Launch not beyond your depth, but be discreet,
And mark that point where sense and dullness meet.

Alibi, Given Under Serum, Fails in Court

MARTINEZ, CALIF. (AP) — The "other man" accused in Kenneth Long's "truth serum" alibi of being the real slayer of Long's wife cleared himself in court yesterday and was freed.

William Peck, 24-year-old ex-sailor and the third member of a marital triangle that led to the knife murder June 27 of Mrs. Barbara Jean Long, 22, faced his accuser across the courtroom and denied being in Long's Richmond home on the murder day.

The 25-year-old airforce sergeant charged with murder had named Peck as the killer while under the influence of sodium pentathol, the "truth serum" drug. A psychiatrist had conducted the "subconscious interview" and it was recorded on a wire and then accepted in defense evidence Thursday in an action that threw the trial into a turmoil.

Peck was rushed to Martinez from Medford, Ore., to testify.

"Yes," he said almost inaudibly with a nervous side-long glance at Long, "I knew her." He denied "living with her" but admitted "we fell in love" and that he left some clothing at the Long home.

Peck, whose statement that he was in a friend's home across the street from Long's house was corroborated by those friends on the stand, said he was on his way to see Barbara Jean the fatal day but

Truth Serum Testimony Confuses Murder Trial

A WIRE RECORDED TESTIMONY GIVEN under the influence of a truth serum, threw the case of Sgt. Kenneth Long (left), charged with murdering his wife, into confusion yesterday. While under the serum, Long had pointed to William Peck as the real murderer of his wife.

was warned away by a youth playing with the three-year-old Long boy, Kenneth, Jr.

He said the older boy told him:

"Did you know that Kenny is home?"

As he stepped down from the stand, Superior Judge Hugh

Donovan, who had ordered his arrest after hearing the wire-recording Thursday, said "you can go home now."

Porter and Briggs To Attend Meetings In Political Science

Two SUI political science professors will participate in conferences in Boston and Denver next week.

Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the department, will attend the Municipal League's annual national conference on government Nov. 22, 23, and 24 at the Statler hotel in Boston. He has been invited to help revise the League's model state constitution.

Prof. John E. Briggs will attend the second annual meeting of the Western Political Science association Nov. 26 and 27 at Denver, Colo. At the Saturday morning session Briggs will present a paper on "U.S. Foreign Policy and the European Problem."

Briggs is national chairman of the committee on regional political societies of the American Political Association.

The Municipal League has been active in working out model city charters, county government acts, and state constitutions for many years.

Porter has been a staff member in the political science department for 29 years, and has taught state and local administration, and administrative law. He has also had two textbooks published—"County and Township Government in the United States" and "State Administration."

The western conference will discuss community service, national politics, international relations, constitutional law, and administration of natural resources.

He Shows Medals Vets May Get

Qualified army and army airforce veterans may obtain any or all of five World War II medals at the Iowa City army and airforce recruiting station, M/Sgt. O. A. McClung, station commander, said yesterday.

Available are the American Defense medal, awarded for pre-Pearl Harbor service, the World War II Victory medal, for service between Pearl Harbor day and Dec. 31, 1946, and three campaign medals, the American, Asiatic-Pacific and European-African-Middle-Eastern.

McClung emphasized that applicants for the medals must bring the original copy of their discharge and that he could issue medals to former army and army airforce personnel only.

Veterans of other services should obtain their medals through their own branch of the service, he said. "A foreign service bar is given with the American Defense medal for service outside the U.S."

Ribbons, "standing for" the medals, were issued during the war, but the medals themselves were not available because of a brass shortage and other wartime conditions.

Medals will be issued at the recruting station, 204 postoffice building, daily, except Sundays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., McClung said.

Members Disagree At Art Conference

A panel discussion on contemporary American art last night found six delegates to the Midwest College art conference in almost complete disagreement with each other. They spoke before about 250 persons.

The chairman, Allan Weller of Illinois university, began the discussion by presenting the question, "Why is there an increase in abstract form in art?"

Former SUI faculty member, Mary Holmes, now of Ohio State university, suggested that artists continue to paint abstractly because, "They hardly have nerve to say, 'I don't like it.'"

David Durst, who formerly taught at SUI and is now at the University of Arkansas, cited public acceptance of modern trends in furniture and architecture as proof that the public can be educated to appreciate the modern and abstract in painting.

Russ Teacher Casts Her Lot with U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Oksana S. Kasenkina said yesterday she would never return to Russia. She said she was casting her lot forever with America.

The 50-year-old Russian school teacher, who leaped from a Soviet consulate window to international fame 99 days ago, spoke to reporters before leaving Roosevelt hospital where she has been recovering from multiple injuries.

She told them, at a closely guarded news conference, she felt "very, very good" and never would consider returning to her homeland.

"I have every intention of staying forever in the United States," Mrs. Kasenkina said. "The throngs outside the consulate at that time I committed my act and the expressions of multitudes of Americans since I jumped have been very encouraging."
