Mostly cloudy with occasional rain in south portion. High today from 40 to 45. High yesterday was 39; low 21.

Students, Faculty Homeward Bound

The exodus of SUI students leaving for Thanksgiving holidays was well underway yesterday as crowds jammed into special trains, busses, autos and planes.

Along the highways students were lined up for blocks trying to get home for Mom's turkey dinner by way of their "thumbs." Some of the more ingenious hitchhikers used signs to tell the motorists where they were going. One student thought it was good psychology to use the signs.

"Even busy drivers are susceptible to the power of suggestion," he said.

At the local air terminal more than 50 students took advantage of one special and two regularly scheduled flights to reach far-away destinations. Those bound for New York City and the eastern seaboard were able to reach LaGuardia Field in six hours flying time. This is a far cry from early Thanksgiving days when more than a few miles was a weeks trip.

Although classes didn't suspend until 12:30 p. m. yesterday, about 75 students "jumped the gun" and were homeward bound on the 9:15 p. m. Rocket. Rock Island ticket agent Frank Meehan reported that over 300 students are expected to use trains as a means of reaching home.

The Crandic lines doubled schedules to handle the crowds and extra busses were brought into Iowa City to accommodate the heavy student traffic.

Many of the students had been planning for the last few days to leave for home as early as possible. However, the registrar's office had issued the regular reminder that the classes preceding and following the vacation were "no-cut days."

One semester hour is added by the registrar's office to the number needed for graduation of an underclassman for each unexcused absence on a "no-cut" day.

After attending the classes yesterday, the students found that obstacle removed from their desires to spend Thanksgiving with their families.

But many students weren't so lucky. Some were unable to leave Iowa City because their home is in a foreign land. Others will remain in town to work.

However, many of the foreign students, thanks to Iowa City residents, will be eating at turkey-laden tables today after all. Foreign Student Advisor Richard E. Switzer said yesterday that there was a "good response" to a notice in Wednesday's Daily Iowan asking people to entertain foreign students on Thanksgiving day.

Quadrangle, Hillcrest and Currier will remain open during the five-day vacation, and reports indicate that quite a number of students will be using these facilities.

But Nov. 29 will find the majority of students facing the prospect of returning to classroom routine. Then the "specials" will be bound for the same destination, Iowa City.

Five Students Hurt As Car Overturns Outside Iowa City

An Iowa City girl and four other SUI students were injured yesterday afternoon when the sedan in which they were riding crashed at Scotty's inn corner, eight miles east of Iowa City on Highway 6.

Suzanne Albrecht, nursing student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Albrecht, 1212 E. Court street, was found to have an injured shoulder when she and all but one of the group were taken to University hospitals.

Those treated were Frances Marian Kinney, of Little York, Ill., driver of the car; Lois Marilyn Lambert of Eliza, Ill., and Halden Smith of Little York, the only boy in the car. Miss Kinney suffered a fractured collar bone and wrist. Miss Lambert had broken ribs and Smith was slightly cut and bruised.

Janice Lewis, Caseyville, Ill., was not treated at the hospital. Smith was released.

At least four of the riders were thrown from the car when it struck loose gravel on the sharp curve and turned over several times off the road. The auto, owned by Miss Kinney's father, was thoroughly smashed.

The students were apparently going to Illinois for the Thanksgiving holiday.

At least four of the students were thrown from the car before it came to rest, Smith said, and after being unconscious for a short time, he awoke to find himself lying in a ditch.

One of the girls apparently was dazed, he said and he helped to make her and one or two of the other students comfortable until help arrived.

Before the accident occurred, Smith said, he, Miss Albrecht and Miss Kinney were riding in the front seat.

Miss Lambert and Miss Lewis are juniors in the college of liberal arts. Miss Kinney is a nursing student.

Navy Sponsors Treat For Israeli Youngsters

HAIFA, ISRAEL (AP) — Crewmen of the U.S. Destroyer Beatty yesterday invited 35 Jewish youngsters to come aboard today for a Thanksgiving treat of moving pictures and ice cream.

Plans to offer the young Israelites a turkey dinner were abandoned when religious authorities ruled that navy turkey isn't kosher.

Turkeys Tremble at Thanksgiving Fate — DESTINED FOR A LOVELY FUTURE, these turkeys are taking refuge from the hidden ax of Terry Rodgers, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rodgers, route 1. Although Terry really doesn't mean to harm the birds (which belong to City park), butchers, fathers and other little boys have ganged up on the noble turkey again this year. But their assaults on the turkeys were not for the whims of a photographer. The birds, complete with cranberries and all the trimmings, will grace many tables throughout the nation as we observe our day of Thanksgiving.

Passengers Refuse To Leave 'Queen'

SOUTHAMPTON (AP) — Passengers aboard the strike-bound luxury liner Queen Elizabeth yesterday were ordered to get off by tomorrow but approximately 900 said no and voted for a "sit-in" strike.

Capt. C. M. Ford, the ship's commander, told the passengers the strike would not be tolerated and that water and lights would be cut off.

The Cunard White Star line, owners of the ship, had given notice yesterday afternoon to all 1,500 passengers that they must disembark.

WSUI, KSUI to Be Off Air for Holiday

University radio stations WSUI and KSUI will be off the air today in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Program director John Highlander said WSUI will resume its regular operating schedule Friday morning. KSUI, however, will remain on a half-time broadcasting schedule until after the Thanksgiving vacation.

The hours of KSUI transmission will be from 4 p.m. until 8 p.m., Highlander said.

Evans Sentences Four To 10 Years in Prison

District Judge Harold D. Evans yesterday sentenced four men to imprisonment up to 10 years each.

William C. Spencer and Lawrence Backes Jr., both of Peoria, Ill., pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the Parkway Inn Nov. 16, and received 10-year sentences at the men's reformatory at Anamosa.

After pleading guilty to two grand jury indictments, Charles Brown of Des Moines was ordered imprisoned at Fort Madison for 10 years. Albert Meaker of Tipton also was sentenced to Fort Madison after he pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the Clear Creek School No. 1.

In other actions at the Johnson county district courthouse yesterday:

1. Two men entered guilty pleas to charges of operating motor vehicles while intoxicated.

2. Irvin Pike of West Liberty said he was innocent to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

3. Joe Ryan of Iowa City pleaded not guilty to two grand jury indictments.

4. Marvin Krauth, who listed his address as Columbus, Ohio, pleaded innocent to charges of obtaining money under false pretense.

Spencer and Backes were taken to Anamosa yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Harold Gaspey. Both men are 18 years old and were charged on County Attorney Jack C. White's information.

"I regret very much sending 18-year-old boys to the penitentiary, but the law is clear. I only hope this period will help you to become decent citizens in the future," Evans said, in passing sentence on the two men.

Backes' mother, who came from Illinois to be with him as he appeared in court, wept as she heard sentence pronounced.

Scott Swisher, appointed by the court to serve as counsel for Spencer, pointed to him and said that Spencer had not seen his mother since he was 13 years old.

Brown was indicted by the grand jury on breaking and entering and assisting a felon to escape. The county attorney had accused Brown of attempting to escape from the county jail Oct. 23.

Evans, in passing sentence, said the two terms would be served concurrently.

Meaker withdrew a not guilty plea which he made Oct. 7, on charges of breaking and entering. He was sentenced in connection with the series of thefts and break-ins this summer at the county schools and farms in this area.

Fines of $300 were paid by Cedric Ulin of Wellman and Henry Kasper of Iowa City after they pleaded guilty to grand jury indictments of operating motor vehicles while intoxicated. Evans also revoked their drivers licenses for 60 days.

To Set Trials
Evans said trials will be set for Pike, Ryan and Krauth.

Pike was indicted by the grand jury Nov. 22 on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated Oct. 10. Ryan was indicted by the same grand jury on counts of assisting a felon to escape and larceny. Krauth was indicted for obtaining money under false pretenses.

No Paper Tomorrow
To give the staff and employees of the Daily Iowan an opportunity to spend Thanksgiving day with their families, there will be no paper tomorrow morning.

Marshall, President Ponder U.S. Action In China Situation

Rooster Phones Mayor, Gets Action

MERRITTON, ONT. (AP)—Roosters crowing in the middle of the night here were keeping Mrs. Ruby Lawrence awake.

She decided to bring the matter to the attention of the council by direct methods. So she telephoned Mayor Leslie Skipper and several council members about 4 a. m., holding the telephone so that they could hear the crowing.

The councillors lost no time in passing an anti-noise by-law which puts it up to the roosters' owners to take action.

Dunnington Backs Methodists Rapped by Thomas Committee

"The House un-American activities committee has turned out to be the greatest un-American influence in our way of life because of their attacks on the very men who stand in the forefront of the battle for liberty and progress," Dr. L. L. Dunnington said yesterday.

Speaking of the recent attack by the Thomas committee on the Methodist Federation of Social Action, Dunnington said in an interview, "The committee should be, and perhaps will be, abolished by the new congress. J. Parnell Thomas is violating the constitutional rights of freedom that he so easily condemns others for."

Monday the committee said Communists were infiltrating churches and church organizations in the United States and the Methodist Federation of Social Action, while not an official church unit, was trying to use the prestige of the Methodist church to promote the line of the Communist party.

In answering this accusation Dunnington said the federation represents the most progressive and liberal members of the Methodist church, but he added, "There is not one Communist and not one member who does not repudiate the Communist cause."

Dunnington, a member of the federation, said the organization has 5,000 members including 15 bishops of the Methodist church. The federation has deliberately remained an unofficial organization since its founding in 1907 because it wanted to be unhampered in its furtherance of progressive movements, he added.

Dunnington has attended the annual meetings of the organization since 1928 and intends to go this year. He said because of the many conservative and right-wing elements in the Methodist church the federation felt it best to remain an unofficial organization to avoid conflict with the church.

He said because the members of the federation are socially very liberal in their views they are being attacked by the Thomas committee. The committee, he said, has been greatly influenced by the garbled reports on the federation's meetings by the "yellow" press.

In defense of the Methodist organization Dunnington said:

"People in Iowa City who know me, know I am not a Communist nor a Communist sympathizer and the same thing can be said of all the people that the un-American committee has attacked. There is not a single Communist among the whole lot."

"The whole attack," Dunnington said, "is manufactured out of nothing, has no truth and is the most vicious kind of un-American attack. It makes every real friend of America a liar and a traitor."

The un-American committee has used the reports of the "yellow" press to make its accusations of the church group and they are passing criticism on some of the finest members of the Christian church whose integrity is beyond reproach, the minister said.

Tuesday night Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist church denounced the House un-American activities committee for its presumption to speak in the field of religion.

Dunnington said that Jack R. McMichael, executive secretary of the Methodist group, is one of the most able battlers from a liberal point of view and his integrity is above reproach.

Anna Jarvis Dies
WEST CHESTER, PA. (AP)—Anna M. Jarvis, 84, the founder of Mother's day, died at Marshall Square sanitarium yesterday after a lingering illness.

The aged woman, who had been blind and a helpless invalid for years, died of a combination of ailments brought on by old age, physicians said.

Case of the Nude Pledges

Minister Charges Coeds Watched Cavortings, Fraternity Boys Scampered in 'Nude'

FRANKLIN, IND. (UP)—A minister said yesterday he saw a group of college boys running nude around the campus at night while coeds watched from dormitory windows.

But the Rev. John Beyer's story was disputed by the boys, the coeds and officials of Franklin college.

Beyer, 25-year-old pastor of Helmsburg Baptist church, said he and his wife saw the students racing around in near-freezing temperatures in the darkness. The Beyer's watched by the gleam of their auto headlights as they sat in their parked car after visiting friends near the campus.

"They ran around in the nude while the coeds watched from the girls' dormitory," said Beyer. "It was a plain case of public indecency."

He said he would demand an investigation by Prosecutor Robert B. Lybrook. Lybrook said if Beyer asked him to do so he would "investigate carefully."

Jack Walters, president of the Franklin chapter of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, confirmed that a group of Phi Deltas had "a campus footrace" during a pledge party on the eve of the school's dismissal for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Walters said he would resume the investigation after classes were resumed next Monday.

Lybrook said he was told a photographer snapped flashbulb pictures of the race.

"If we can get those pictures, the question of whether the boys were nude ought to be solved," he said.

Release Policy To Turn Ruhr Industry Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Marshall disclosed yesterday that President Truman and he are still trying to decide what the United States can properly do to assist China in its present crisis.

Marshall told a crowded news conference that the American government is well aware that the situation in China — caused by the southward sweep of Chinese Communist armies — is critical.

One factor in this government's consideration, he disclosed, is the involvement of the United States which might result in China and which, he said, is already in effect in various parts of the world.

He did not spell out what he meant by this but other officials say privately that in giving aid to China's anti-Communist forces the United States must make certain that it is not assuming an almost unbearable burden for carrying on an indefinite "hot war" against the Communist forces.

Marshall met the press after holding his second foreign policy conference of the week with President Truman. Another visitor to Mr. Truman yesterday was Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo. The envoy said that as a result of his talk with the President he was "encouraged" in his hope for greater American aid for China.

The most positive news came in another quarter of foreign relations when Marshall read a lengthy statement on Anglo-American policy for turning operations of the great industries of the Ruhr over to German management.

In effect, he rejected French protests against German operation of these industries. The French have expressed fear that the Ruhr might be used again to re-arm the German nation.

Meanwhile the economic cooperation administration announced approval of shipment of $22-million worth of oil from Saudi Arabia to China.

Britain Revises Its Palestine Proposals

PARIS (AP)—Britain said last night she had revised her Palestine proposals in an effort to meet American objections.

The text of Britain's new proposals was not available immediately. However, a spokesman said Britain had accepted the U. S. recommendation that Jews and Arabs be allowed to work out a mutually acceptable settlement on boundaries.

Britain originally proposed that the United Nations assembly approve the Bernadotte plan which recommended that Israel give the Negev desert to the Arabs in return for western Galilee.

The revised resolution seemed to rule out any arbitrary changes in the boundaries of Israel by the present assembly session.

The British insisted, however, that the conciliation commission fix the boundaries on Bernadotte's specific conclusions.

The U. S. has taken the position that the territory given Israel under the partition plan should not be reduced without Israel's consent.

ALL ABOARD FOR HOME! This group of students, bound for a five-day vacation from university study, met one of the steaming special trains at the Rock Island depot yesterday. After walking and waiting for the train, the students found the steaming coaches a welcome sight. However, the train meant something more than relief from the cold. It would take them home to families and Thanksgiving dinners throughout all of Iowa and many other states. (Daily Iowan Photo by Jim Showers)

Speed Key, Height Drawback In Hawkeye Forward Candidates

Four Veterans Back to 'Pops'

What's wrong with his picture? Almost any Iowa basketball fan over the last four years can spot it right away: There's no Murray Wier grinning in the midst of these 1948-49 forward prospects.

Murray Wier stayed for four years at Iowa, writing his own chapter in the court annals here. Murray was a hot article while he lasted, but good things like Wier don't last more than four years in the Big Nine.

Bowl Game Nixed Because of Negro

EASTON, Pa., (AP) — A raging controversy developed yesterday over whether Lafayette college rejected a bid to play in the Sun Bowl football game at El Paso, Tex., on New Year's day because a Negro halfback would not be permitted to play.

Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of the college said that the bid to play Texas Mines in the annual game was turned down because Sun Bowl officials made it plain that the halfback, Dave Showell, would not be welcome.

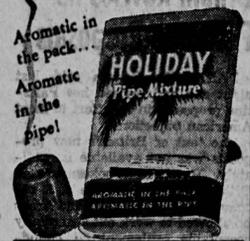

But this was quickly denied by C. D. Belding, chairman of the Sun Bowl committee. He said at El Paso, Tex., that race discrimination had nothing to do with Lafayette's rejection of the bid. He claimed the Lafayette authorities gave that as an excuse when announcing the rejection to an aroused student body.

Hutchison countered with a statement in which he said the race issue was definitely discussed by the Sun Bowl promoters.

"I must state emphatically that the acting president of the Texas College of Mines and C.D. Belding, chairman of the Sun Bowl committee, each informed us repeatedly that Showell would not play in the proposed game," Hutchison said.

Lafayette originally sent a telegram of acceptance, but it carried the proviso that Showell be permitted to play. When this was refused, the faculty committee flatly turned down the bid.

Reicks, like Mason, is a throw-back to Wier, a small shifty, deft dribbling hot shot. Freeman, a junior, hasn't played steadily enough yet to show his full high school promise.

Bealmear Picks Army, Irish, Georgia, Cornell over Penn

NEW YORK (AP)—Answering the bell for the last round of pigskin predictions in 1948 with a final effort to add a few points to an average that now stands at .786 on 522 correct guesses and 150 misses after nine weeks:

ARMY vs. NAVY—Although army hasn't lost a game and Navy hasn't won, this Saturday contest still is the glamor game of them all. The Middies always play their best against their service rivals, but their best this year is none too good. Given good weather, Army can name the score. Here's where both streaks carry over until 1949. Army.

GEORGIA TECH vs. GEORGIA—Saturday will be a red letter day in the Southeastern conference with three or four teams scrambling for a piece of the title and a bowl bid or two. If the Bulldogs win here, they can have the works. Then how about Georgia and Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl? On Johnny Rauch's passing, Georgia.

Texas Christian vs. Southern Methodist—With its role of Cotton Bowl host and at least a half interest in the Southwest conference title assured, SMU really hasn't much to play for Saturday. But the Mustangs aren't likely to forget that tie which TCU hung on them a year ago. A hefty vote for Southern Methodist.

Cornell vs. Pennsylvania—This turkey day clash, opening the season's biggest football weekend for the city of brotherly love, is the Ivy league crown. Penn's defending champs are 7½ point favorites. But it's time somebody else had the title, Cornell.

Washington vs. Notre Dame—Just another whistle stop for the Irish on their way to another all-victorious season. If somebody with enough 'stuff' would get on the Irish schedule, it might break the monotony. A Saturday game, Notre Dame.

Michigan State vs. Santa Clara—The only team to beat Oklahoma and Nevada, Santa Clara could claim the title as giant killer of the year by upsetting Michigan State Saturday. Our guess is that Santa Clara has had its fun. Michigan State.

Texas A and M vs. Texas—

More Stars Sign for Northern All-Stars

MONTGOMERY, ALA. (AP)—Four additional northern stars have signed up for the Blue-Gray football classic to be played here Christmas day.

Blue-Gray headquarters today announced the addition of Ed Finn, quarterback and Bill Mc Ciellan, tackle, both from Brown; Guard Ray DiTiero of Ohio State, and End John Rogers of Temple.

They brought the Blue squad up to 17, seven under the limit. Southern coaches have 23 on their roster.

Hack Wilson to Get 'A Proper Funeral'

CHICAGO (AP)—Hack Wilson, former Chicago Cub home run king, will have "a proper funeral," Phillip K. Wrigley, president of the Chicago Cubs said yesterday.

Wilson's body lay unclaimed for about 24 hours in the Baltimore city hospital morgue.

"A group from the east is making all funeral arrangements," said Wrigley. "Nobody wants to take credit for it, but he will have a proper funeral."

"Baseball people will make all the arrangements for the funeral," he added.

He said services for the former Cub ace, who died Tuesday of a lung condition, probably will be held at the end of the week.

GRIDDER SUES CHICAGO (AP)

Russell Ashbaugh, former Notre Dame football player, yesterday sued the Chicago Rockets of the All American conference for $7,000 he claims is due him under a contract.

Ashbaugh, in his federal court suit, said on last May 24 he contracted with Rockets to play during the 1948 season for $7,000, but that after he injured his knee in a practice game the club canceled the contract on Sept. 7 and has refused to pay him.

Ashbaugh lives at 12 St. Joseph Manor, Elkhart, Ind.

U-High Opens Court Schedule Tomorrow Against Williamsburg

U-high opens its 1948-49 basketball season tomorrow against Williamsburg on the U-high floor.

Coach Lewis Allie knows his team will not be in top shape with less than two weeks of work, but feels the team will improve with each game.

Three lettermen from last winter's hoop squad — Bob Ojemann, Dennis Hagler and Curtis Miller — will be counted on to fill starting positions.

Ojemann led the team in scoring last year while playing guard. This season Allie intends switching the six-foot two-inch senior to center. Miller is expected to be at forward with Hagler at guard.

The other two positions and the all-important reserve strength is a question that time alone will answer.

Provided those gaps can be adequately filled Coach Allie sees prospects for a "pretty good" season. Whether his Blue Hawks will duplicate last year's tie with West Branch for the conference title, he wouldn't predict.

"We'll win half our games, anyway," he said.

Other candidates for the team will include Carl Harshbarger, Dean Evans, Carter Morgan, Don Camp and two big boys, Tom Brown, six feet four inches, and Jim Vitach, six feet, three, both juniors.

The '48-49 season will be Allie's fourth as Blue Hawk basketball coach. He was here one year before the war and the last two seasons.

Extend Contract for Wildcats' Bob Voigts

CHICAGO (AP)—Football Coach Bob Voigts, winner of Northwestern Wildcats won the coveted Big Nine Rose Bowl berth yesterday was granted a five-year extension of his contract.

Northwestern University President Franklin B. Snyder also announced a contract extension for Athletic Director Ted Paysure of five years. Both extensions will run until Aug. 31, 1954.

Snyder said the move was "in no sense a reward for a successful football season," and that actually the extensions were recommended before the recent football season ended.

Don't Call Me 'Joe', Call Me 'Marcel', Says Joe Scarpello

Joe Scarpello, Iowa's Olympic wrestler, is probably the only man in the state who has ever been mistaken for Marcel Cerdan, the French fighter and new world-midweight champion.

While Joe was on his cook's tour of Europe following the Olympics last summer, a Paris restaurant owner and friend of Cerdan caught sight of Joe and decided the resemblance was so close he asked for Joe's picture to hang next to Cerdan's.

Joe's profile is still hanging there in Paris, and the proprietor asks his customers to guess which is which.

As an alternate to his arch-rival, Glen Brand of Iowa State, on the American team, Scarpello made the trip to London.

Brand went on to win the world title at London, the only Yank beside Henry Wittenberg, 191-pound New York policeman to bring back a crown.

"If he had held the bouts under intercollegiate rules instead of Olympic rules, I think the Americans would have won every match," Joe said yesterday. "Those Olympic rules are more brute strength—no science."

"Brand was pretty good," Scarpello admitted, "but he sure didn't have much competition."

Scarpello sat in on the track and swimming events during the games, as well as wrestling.

"Wally Ris? Gee, he sure looked like a champ," he said.

Under Olympic committee rules, Scarpello was to be given three chances to challenge Brand for the first string berth.

"I wrestled him once in Lehigh, Pa., where we were working out before going to Europe," Scarpello recalled. "He won the split decision and then Cliff Keene (one of the American team coaches) said there wouldn't be any more challenging."

The two were pitted in the final round of the Olympic tryouts at Ames last spring. Brand was given a unanimous decision after a closely fought match.

As Scarpello left the big center mat to meet his mother and sister who were waiting under the stands the partisan Iowa State fans, accorded Joe the greatest ovation of the evening.

Again, when he reappeared to go to the shower room, the Cyclone fans hailed him noisily.

Under the stands, Joe introduced his family to Mike Howard, Iowa mat coach. "She can take me," he boasted as Mrs. Scarpello beamed proudly.

Mrs. Scarpello and Ann went with Joe to the Olympics, and after the games went with him through Europe—Paris, Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

As a flight engineer during the war, Joe flew 18 missions over Germany from various bases in Europe.

The tour was a chance to meet his friends in various European countries again.

"I thought the people over there were much better off than when I was there before," Joe said. "They were rebuilding everything and really looked better."

Scarpello's resemblance to Cerdan goes beyond the similarity of profiles. Joe is at home in the ring as well as on the mat. He won various championships as a boxer in the army.

Dick Dunkel's COLLEGE FOOTBALL POWER INDEX

EXPLANATION—The Power Index provides a direct comparison of the relative strength of any two teams for this season to date. Thus, a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger than a 40.0 team on their comparative records, in which scoring margin has been weighed against strength of opposition. This does not necessarily mean that a 50.0 team should defeat a 40.0 team by exactly 10 points in the future. Teams rarely follow past performance that closely. The Dunkel system correlates records of all college teams and was started in 1929. For week ending November 28

LITTLE NANCY BEVERIDGE SUPERVISES Thanksgiving preparations in the dining room of her barracks home, 207 Riverside park. Perhaps, even at that tender age, she's dreaming of the roast turkey she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beveridge, will share today with Mr. and Mrs. Tony Guzowski and their daughter, Helen Jean.

They're Thankful Anyway

Married Students Far from Home to Combine Their Thanksgiving Observance

Today, our fourth peacetime Thanksgiving, will be observed here by many married students whose homes are too far away to visit.

But festive dinners will be served in the traditional manner, bringing the Thanksgiving spirit into barracks and trailers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beveridge, 207 Riverside park, and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Guzowski, 200 Riverside park, will combine their observance by sharing a sixteen pound turkey sent to the latter by a relative who owns a turkey farm.

Drumsticks for Helen Little Helen Jean Guzowski, who is almost two, and 16-month old Nancy Beveridge will take care of the drumsticks. It won't be necessary to have special baby food for the little girls because they both eat everything.

The two wives will prepare the Thanksgiving dinner, planned around roast turkey. The rest of the menu will include tossed salad, cranberries, fruit, mashed potatoes, candied yams, peas, relishes, home-made rolls, butter, pumpkin pie and coffee.

Sterling on Table

The table will be set with Lunt sterling in the William and Mary pattern, Hiesey's "orchid" crystal, and gold-bordered china. A centerpiece of decorative gourds, fruit, and nuts will add a festive touch to the table.

High-chairs will be omitted for the day. Both little girls will sit at the table with their parents, perched on books or pillows, and sporting the very latest in bibs.

With new memories of another Thanksgiving just like the ones they used to have at home, both families will pause with the rest of the nation and count their blessings.

Alice Jean Hofmann Married

The marriage of Alice Jean Hofmann to Robert E. Harris took place at 2:30 p. m. yesterday in St. Mary's church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Hofmann, 604 Grant avenue, are the parents of the bride. Mr. Harris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Harris, Williamsburg.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Carl Meinberg performed the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Maid of honor was Lois Eninger, Spencer, and Ben H. Hofmann Jr., brother of the bride, was the best man.

A reception was held following the ceremony in Hotel Jefferson. The couple then left on a wedding trip to Chicago.

The bride graduated from St. Mary's high school and the State University of Iowa. Mr. Harris graduated from Williamsburg high school and attended the State University of Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris will make their home at 913 Seventeenth avenue SW, Cedar Rapids.

AEC Fellowship for Marion Ferguson

An SUI zoology major, Marion Ferguson, A4, is one of 18 students in this country to receive pre-doctoral atomic energy commission fellowships. Prof. J. H. Bodine announced recently.

Bodine, head of the zoology department here, is a member of the fellowship board and attended a meeting in Washington, D.C., earlier this month to distribute the awards.

The stipends vary from $1,500 to $2,400 per year toward doctorate degrees. After his graduation here in February, Ferguson will study phases of atomic energy relating to biology.

According to Bodine, Ferguson's record is such that he was accepted unanimously for the fellowship.

ALCOCK NAMED
Dr. Nathaniel G. Alcock, SUI urology department head. Sunday was named president of the Mississippi Valley Medical association.

Porter, Hall to Discuss Social Science Methods

Two SUI professors will discuss "The Analysis of Scientific Method in Social Sciences" in the senate chamber of Old Capitol Nov. 30, at 8 p. m.

Dr. Kirk Porter of the political science department and Dr. Everett Hall of the philosophy department will lead the discussion at a meeting of the SUI Science and Social Philosophy club.

Students are invited to attend this meeting.

King for a Day!

A Plea for Disunity

The unfettered individualism coming out of the recent election is exerting itself further. An Indiana Preacher—the Rev. Dr. Howard W. Stone—has proposed the Organization to Encourage People to Quit Organizations. The OEPQO has for its motto: "Be a quitter." Its password is "no."

We'd like to be the first to propose an Iowa City branch. I wouldn't be an organization; we'd forget about membership drives, dues, officers, meetings and the like. Anyone could join by simply quitting. You wouldn't even have to notify us.

We've been told hundreds of times that in a complex society people must act collectively to get anywhere. So we have political clubs, labor unions, chambers of commerce and pressure groups.

People who used to be individuals are now a part of a block. Poll one farmer and you have the opinion of all farmers. Better yet, talk to a leader of a farm organization and you will find what all the farmers will be thinking tomorrow.

Granting that in many instances people must band to be effective, there are too many groups, blocks, organizations, parties, leagues, committees and associations dotting the landscape.

If millions of Americans found on Nov. 3 that it wasn't fatal to snub the mythical "trend" and act as individuals, real progress has been made.

It's time for the little man to exert himself by renouncing all surplus affiliations. Individuals of the world, disunite!

Passing of a Tradition

The army's recent announcement that recruits are going to be treated like "human beings" must come as a surprise to the three million men who served in the armed forces during the war.

Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief of army field forces, is leading the drive to bring Boy Scout tactics into the army. Recently, he promised a convention of American War Mothers that new soldiers will:

- 1—be sent to a post as near home as possible;
- 2—be encouraged to ask questions about their army routine;
- 3—have a personal relationship with their instructors; and
- 4—have an explanation for everything they do that is new to them.

Profanity in the armed forces will die from disuse, Devers promised. The general hastened to say that the army is going to be "considerably different from the army you have heard described."

Other, more subtle changes, are being made in the services. Individually tailored uniforms will be given each recruit. Good, wholesome food will fill every menu. K-rations and other less edible foodstuffs will no longer be called upon to make hungry soldiers' mouths water.

Even the posters spurring enlistments have changed. There was a time when a virile, swastickling sergeant beckoned others to follow him to "travel and adventure."

Now a frail, clean-shaven private, looking scarcely 18 years old, claims, "My future is secure. How about yours?" In fine print the favorable features of army life are mentioned. They include: good food, good pay, good training and steady advancement.

Maybe the whole housecleaning of the army can be labeled progress, but we don't like it. We much prefer the sergeant or boss's mate who could swear for half an hour without repeating himself. He, with all his shortcomings, typified the cocky attitude of our services.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Exit, Euclidean Outlook!

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

Recently I speculated for about seven hundred words on what would happen if we were to change the basis of our foreign policy, from the idea that we must hastily prepare against the danger of war with Russia, to the entirely different idea that Russia can't make war upon us, even if she should want to, because she is too battered, too poor and too weak.

In other words, what would happen if we were to build our foreign policy on the startling assumption that there is no danger of war? What would we build? Where would our thinking take us?

(I ADMIT it is a novel idea that there is no real prospect of war. Yet, as I pointed out before, certain modern mathematicians have done rather wonderful things by chucking out such well-established ideas as Euclid's notion that parallel lines can never meet. They have thus built a non-Euclidean geometry which has, in its own way, been useful to the world. What I propose, speculatively, is a kind of non-Euclidean foreign policy, built on some other basis than the commonly accepted one.)

In the first place, if we were to decide that war, for practical reasons, is not a real danger, in spite of Russia's admitted malice toward western capitalism, we would undergo an important social reorganization. The influence of the soldier in our society would go down, that of the social philosopher would go up. That is perhaps not a bad thing in the case of a world struggle between conflicting social systems.

By thinking only, or mainly, in terms of possible armed conflict, we are opposing Russia with only part of what we have; we are opposing her with fist alone, instead of with mind and fist. We are, for example, distorting ERP to make it fit into our military conceptions, instead of really using it to rebuild western Europe economically, though obviously the latter development would, in its own way, be a decisive stroke.

In the same way, we are spending fifteen billions a year on arms at home, instead of using that money to solve those problems which communism preaches that we cannot solve, such as housing.

THE FUNNY thing about a program of outright and sturdy military opposition to Russia is that it cripples us in our fight against her. Strangely enough, it doesn't let us fight fair, with all we have. The big hullabaloo about rearming makes us nearer making us tie one hand behind our back than it does to making us genuinely stronger, in a world historical sense. And these dangers are avoided by what I call the non-Euclidean approach to foreign policy.

But there is something else. If we would change the basic assumption of our foreign policy to the novel idea that there is going to be peace, we would find it much easier to fight for peace.

If we believed there was going to be peace we could, for example, yell for disarmament, we could scream like banshees for it; but it sounds kind of silly to yell for disarmament at a time when you are also yelling for arms. When you build a foreign policy on the assumption that there may be war, the policy you so construct kicks back and strengthens the assumption on which it is based. Even if the assumption were wrong in the beginning, it may become true if you build enough policy on it.

IT IS NOT the assumption which makes the policy correct; it may be the policy which makes the assumption correct. I wonder if, in the same way, a foreign policy based on the assumption that there is going to be peace would not also work backward and strengthen its own assumption, ending by making its postulates true.

Haven't the militarists of this world always done something like that, build force on the basis of fear, until the force thus built up makes the world so uncertain and uneasy that the fear finally becomes justified?

My non-Euclidean approach proposes relaxation and confidence instead, as novel bases for a foreign policy, in the hope of attaining equally vivid, but more useful results.

And I cannot close these non-Euclidean notes without mentioning that a nation which based its appeal on relaxation and confidence might come to be invested with a certain unusual charm, perhaps better suited for attracting adherents and allies than the stricken countenance and the hoarse planetary cry of "Help!"

Boston's Curley Says —

'Political Boss' Era Is Dead

BOSTON (U) — Mayor James Michael Curley, one of the last of the so-called oldtime political bosses still in power, says political machines in America are doomed.

At 74 the veteran mayor sees a new era ahead—and he intends to be part of it.

"The people," he said, "are better educated in the science of government—politics, if you say—than ever before. Winning elections with only money and machine organization is a thing of the past."

President Truman's election, Curley says, is a good example of what he means.

"Truman won," he said, "by taking his case direct to the people and convincing them he was right. He did this in spite of a division in his own party and even though some members of his own cabinet felt he couldn't succeed."

Hopping on the Truman bandwagon early, Curley supported the President at Philadelphia and campaigned vigorously for him.

For a half-century Curley has been a stormy figure in Massachusetts politics—as mayor of Boston, congressman, governor and Democratic national committee man.

On celebrating his 74th birthday (Nov. 20), Curley made clear he has no intention of retiring. "I'll be around in politics for another 25 years, God willing," he smiles.

Winding up his fourth four-year term as mayor, Curley indicates he'll seek re-election next year.

What makes Curley tick? Well, for years his popularity in this staid old city has stirred debates.

Once he won an election while in jail; another time while under federal indictment for mail fraud. Charming in manner, Curley seems to enjoy the attacks on him by political enemies.

Visitors to his city hall office always are shown a framed quotation of Lincoln's resting on his desk:

"If I were trying to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me this shop might well be closed for any other business."

McBride's Haul

By BILL MCBRIDE

One of the pleasantest days of the year has arrived — Thanksgiving. . . the day when most of us send poultry market reports skittering to new highs and settle down after a splendid meal with a few polite turkey-flavored burps, promptly forgetting what we have to be thankful for.

From those who have come to consider me somewhat of a culinary expert come requests for directions on how to prepare a Thanksgiving meal.

There are a few simple rules to be observed in selecting a turkey. Seek out a plump bird with soft legs and bright eyes. There is room for speculation at this point, but it would only serve to distract from the original subject . . . which was turkey, I believe.

Turkey buyers can be roughly divided into two classifications . . . (a) those rugged individuals who prefer to purchase their Thanksgiving fowl on the hoof, and (b) those who haven't the nerve to look a poor, unsuspecting bird in the eye and whack his head off.

When choosing your fowl, keep in mind that the male turkey is preferred over the hen. If there is any doubt in your mind as to which is which, you'll just have to take the salesman's word for it.

According to some sources, if the lower or rear end of the bird's breast-bone is flexible, and if the skin can be easily broken when twisted between thumb and forefinger, and if the joint of the wing yields readily when turned backward, you have a fine bird.

I tend to disagree with that school of thought, however. Look at it this way . . . you go to a turkey farm . . . the owner takes you out to the turkey barracks and tells you to take your pick. If you test the rear end of a bird's breastbone for flexibility and it breaks (proving that it is not a good turkey) you're stuck with him whether you like it or not.

No turkey rancher is going to let you barge around breaking up his merchandise and then get off without paying for it. And I haven't even mentioned the bird's feelings on the matter.

Let's suppose that somehow, without maiming the fowl beyond recognition, you manage to select a suitable turkey.

Before you leave the enclosure of the bird's home, make certain you have him securely bound. Turkeys are notoriously agile, and often flap off to hide without a thought to the fact that they represent a considerable investment.

Better still, take along a gunny sack to pop him into. If a box or gunny sack cannot be had, a large valise will serve the purpose just as well, and will also muffle the fowl's cries so that your story to relatives about bacon and eggs on this festive day will still hold water.

Still going on the idea that you belong to category (a), getting the bird home is only part of your job. If you are an apartment house dweller, several problems present themselves.

Do not buy the bird any sooner than is absolutely necessary. Having to care for a gobbler in your bathtub can become quite a chore . . . to say nothing of his invasion upon your privacy.

Eventually the time will come when the turkey will have to be done away with . . . unless you would prefer peanut butter sandwiches for your Thanksgiving meal.

Braze yourself and get it over quickly. One clean swipe with a boy scout hatchet and the bird's life will be snuffed out. Perhaps you don't own a hatchet, though. Perhaps you don't have a backyard in which the headless body can trash. In that case I would suggest electrocution.

Take an ordinary bridge lamp and sever the wires at the base of the light. When that is done, attach a wire to each of the bird's ankles or hocks. Then flip the wall switch and walk out of the room. In a few moments it will all be over.

From there it is a simple matter of plucking and baking. We're going to have a store-purchased duck for Thanksgiving at our house.

China's Sorrow

Behind Prison Walls —

Inmates Produce Many Items

DES MOINES (U) — Iowa's penal institution industries are turning out scores of items with a total value of nearly $500,000 a month, the state board of control reported recently.

With few exceptions, the articles all are used or consumed at institutions under the board's jurisdiction. The items range from soap and insecticides to clothing and furniture.

Five different industries are operated at the Anamosa men's reformatory and six in connection with the Fort Madison state penitentiary.

The five industries at Anamosa use about 230 of the approximately 730 inmates. The Fort Madison industries use approximately 450 of the about 1,125 inmates.

Unique among the industries is the textile mill at the penitentiary. It starts from the raw product, a bale of cotton, and covers every process in turning out men's underwear and socks, blankets, towels, sheets, pillow cases and rag rugs.

First the mill turns the cotton into thread. Then it weaves the thread into cloth. Next comes the dyeing process, and finally the production of the various articles.

Herbert A. Hauge, a member of the board, said that so far as he knows this is the only textile mill west of the Mississippi river. The mill employs 167 men.

Appeals for Support of Bond Sales

Johnson county co-chairmen of the U.S. savings bond drive yesterday called for county-wide support of the fall bond campaign which opened Nov. 11 and will run through Dec. 11.

Frank D. Williams and Ben S. Summerwill, both of Iowa City, pointed out that bond sales in Johnson county had dropped off $916,784 for the first 10 months of 1948, compared to a similar period of 1947. Total 1948 purchases are $3,291,971.

The drive directors said, "It is more than coincidence that, with the exception of neighboring Canada, this is the only nation celebrating Thanksgiving Day. We are free and, despite shortages, we have more food, clothing, housing and other commodities than any other nation in the world."

"Also we can be thankful that individual citizens of this nation are permitted to buy guaranteed government bonds in small denominations, knowing that we can redeem them when we wish at the full purchase price plus interest."

The objectives of the fall campaign are to increase holdings of savings bonds among farmers and to increase the number of participants in both the payroll savings and the bond-a-month plans, the chairmen said.

Johnson county ranks seventh in Iowa in the amount of bond purchases for both 1947 and 1948.

Truck-Auto Collision Injures Iowa Citian

One person was injured and $650 damages resulted from a collision between a panel truck and a station wagon at the intersection of Madison street and Court street yesterday morning.

Robert C. Oldis, 20, 723 E. Jefferson street, was badly bruised when he was thrown from the panel truck he was driving, police said.

The driver of the station wagon, Frank A. Druyor, 25, 115 E. Market street, was not hurt.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $250 and that to the station wagon, $400.

LEAGUE PRESIDENT DIES

VINTON (P)—Miss Lucy M. Tobin, 80, president of the Iowa Division of the National League of Pen Women, died at her home here Tuesday.

Admit New Polio Case; List Totals Ten Active

One new patient entered the polio ward at University hospital yesterday and one was transferred to the inactive ward. This kept the active polio list at 10.

The new patient is Mrs. Bernie Thran, 30, Westgate. She was in "poor" condition.

Terry Skei, 4, Forest City was transferred to the inactive ward. He entered the hospital Nov. 9.

Meatless Thursday Today

Turkey and Trimmings on U.S. Tables, Soup, Bread and Grits in Europe

LONDON (UP)—Turkey and all the trimmings will be the order of the day in the United States today on Thanksgiving.

But throughout most of Europe it will be meatless Thursday. Just as yesterday was meatless Wednesday and tomorrow will be meatless Friday.

In many sections it will be gasless Thursday, so that housewives could not cook even if food were available.

Reports from United Press bureaus show that while conditions generally are better than a year ago, food still is scarce and prices high.

In London, John Bull is rationed three cents' worth of meat today. And he is better off than the average worker in most European countries.

Here is the picture: Germany — Walter Betsch, of Berlin will put into his briefcase half a slice of bread he saved from his lunch. He will leave Richard Boose and Co., telephone equipment manufacturers, and walk eight blocks to his American sector home.

He, Frau Betsch and their two sons each will have a Thursday dinner of two slices of bread, 30 grams of grits and one cup of tea with sugar. If they haven't used up their month's supply of fat, Frau Betsch will mix a paste of five grams of fat, ten grams of flour, ten grams of meat and half an onion to put on the bread.

Czechoslovakia — Frantisek Nock earns $100 a month for his family of six. Half of his salary goes for food. All six, including his aged grandmother, live in one room in the suburb of Kacerov, an 80-minute streetcar ride from the factory in Prague where Nock works. Their meal tonight will be thick soup, perhaps with a few vegetable cubes. Their main course will be potato pancakes. Nock, a "heavy worker" who gets extra rations, may bring home a piece of sausage. The family has coffee and each member gets four eggs a month. Nock may drink some thin beer. He likes it better than wine, which he cannot afford anyway.

France — Jeanne Lerouzel, fortyish, graying, plump, will hurry home from her maid's work in a Paris doctor's home to prepare the usual "heavy" lunch for her husband, an office boy who earns the same amount as she. Together, they have about $100 a month.

They will have thick cabbage and potato soup and a cheap stew of mutton, carrots and potatoes with brown gravy. Perhaps a salad of endive and lettuce may follow and a morsel of rationed cheese, with a glass or two of red wine. They have plenty of bread.

Italy — Salvatore Nicoloso, 44, his wife, Loreta, 43, and their five children will eat two helpings of spaghetti, spinach, cheese, a bit of pork. They do not have wine and meat in the same meal, because Nicoloso makes only $66 a month and it costs the family $2 a day for rent and food. Shoes cost them $8.50 a pair.

Austria — Anton Prohaska, 44, a gardener of the Vienna city government, his wife, Anna, their children, Walter, 9, and Liesel, 7, eat meat only on Sundays. Today, thanks to the Marshall plan, they will have sardines as their main course. They also will have a clear soup, mashed potatoes with tomato sauce and a red pepper salad. Prohaska said he was "10 times better off than last year," but he still cannot afford one glass of wine because a bottle costs 80 cents. He earns $85 a month, but he figures his rent for his neat, three-room apartment and his food come to nearly $80.

Belgium — Alphonse Leemans, a laborer in a nickel factory, could get a fine Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings in a restaurant, but he can't afford it. He and his wife, shopping carefully, spend 80 francs (about $1.80) for a meal consisting of sardines, lettuce, string beans, several slices of roast beef, potatoes, pastry and coffee. They do this once a week, but it will not be today. They will have an inexpensive cut of meat tonight. They budget themselves so that they may see two movies a week. The theater costs them 20 cents each. In summer, they forego the movies and drink 10-cent beers instead.

Evans, Gaffney to Attend District Judges' Meeting

There will be no court held Friday or Saturday at either the Johnson county district court or the Iowa district county court, Judge Harold D. Evans said yesterday.

Judges Evans and James P. Gaffney of Marengo will be in Des Moines both days to attend the Iowa District Judges' association's annual meeting.

Plan Union Services At Methodist Church

Union Thanksgiving Day services will be held at the First Methodist church this morning at 10:30. The services are sponsored by the Iowa City Ministerial Association.

Dr. L.L. Dunnington, First Methodist church, will read the call to worship and the Rev. Wendell Wellman, Nazarene church, will read the scripture.

The pastoral prayer will be given by the Rev. Elmer E. Dierks, First Baptist church. The Rev. Leon England, First Christian church, will read the Thanksgiving proclamation and the Rev. P. Hewison Pollock, First Presbyterian church, will be in charge of the offertory.

The sermon, "Pearls of Great Price," will be given by the Rev. John G. Craig, First Congregational church.

Mrs. Dorothy M. Scheldrup will play Bach's "Pastorale" and "Fugue in C Major" and "Elevation" by Dubois on the organ and Robert Raven, tenor, will sing "Thanks Be to Thee."

Thanksgiving

The spirit of humility and gratitude that brought about the observance of Thanksgiving should be felt more keenly than ever before.

In a world still in a large part torn by strife and suppressed by totalitarian rule, the people of this nation have retained the freedom for which they have fought in the past.

We have produced abundantly — sharing generously with less fortunate peoples abroad. And in spite of post-war problems, the nation as a whole is enjoying the highest standard of living in its history.

By providing dependable, economical gas and electricity at a cost that's actually below the pre-war level, this Company and its employees feel that they are making a definite contribution to comfort, convenience, health and prosperity in the area served.

For this opportunity of serving you, the entire Iowa-Illinois organization is truly thankful.
