Non-Residents Oppose Limit To Enrollment

Out-of-Staters Protest State Board Suggestion

By CHARLES CARROLL
The proposal of Henry Shull, president of the State Board of Education, to limit enrollment at three state-endowed colleges caused a howl of protest yesterday from SUI out-of-state students.

At a budget hearing last week the board of education asked for a 50 percent increase in expenditures at SUI, Iowa State college and Iowa State Teachers college. Shull suggested increasing tuition and placing a ceiling on enrollment at the state colleges.

The out-of-state students, who would be hardest hit if the proposal were adopted, pointed out that they pay nearly three times the tuition of state students. Native Iowans in the college of liberal arts, pay $65 per semester while non-Iowans pay $150.

Ellen Spero, A3, New York, said, "Iowa's reputation would be hurt if the door closed on out-of-state students. Why don't they raise entrance standards instead of trying to get rid of us?"

"Use State Surplus"
Carolyn Gustafson, A4, Chicago, suggested that the deficit be made up "from the big state surplus and leave the tuition alone."

Lois Klopfer, A3, New York, explained that she transferred from Bennington college, Vt., but "even if they did raise the tuition I'd probably come back because Iowa is still a lot less expensive than most eastern schools. Why couldn't they get rid of those girls who come to college only to get married? That would reduce the number of students a great deal."

Pete Hedlund, A1, Rockford, Ill., said that he "sees no reason why a student shouldn't be admitted just because he doesn't live on the right side of the Mississippi river."

"Let Well Enough Alone"
Charles Silliman, C4, Quincy, Ill., remarked that "half of the funds come from us out-of-state students. Why can't the board let well enough alone?"

Student council President Evan I. Hultman, Waterloo, claimed that an "expansion of facilities" is the answer to the questions of maintaining present tuition rates and limiting enrollment. "I have visited almost every Big Nine school's campus within the past year, and, without exception, expansion of major proportions has been going on. Iowa should keep in step with other schools of the conference," Hultman said.

Gov. Robert D. Blue, who was present at last week's meeting, asked for a report of what privately endowed schools are doing about tuitions. Gov. - Elect

Lucky Sasses Had No Monday Classes—

BACK TO SCHOOL CAME THESE FOUR SUI COEDS yesterday afternoon, loaded down with suitcases and the usual array of almost forgotten articles. These lucky gals didn't have Monday afternoon classes, and were able to prolong their stay at home. They are (left to right) Shirley Kushner, Council Bluffs; Betty Rodgers, Griswold; Mary Ann Reed, Council Bluffs, and Janet Winick, Des Moines.

William Beardsley, also present, said he believed Blue stood on "good ground."

Beardsley said private schools are increasing tuition rates and going back to pre-war enrollments. SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and Iowa State college President Charles Friley agreed that the trend of private schools is adding to the enrollment burden of state colleges.

Shull opined that state schools will be suffering growth pains for many more years.

"Our surveys indicate that the future enrollment at SUI and ISC will probably never drop below 10,000 nor the enrollment at Iowa State Teachers college below 3,000. Even though the number of veterans under the GI bill of rights has already dropped off," Shull said.

Shull continued, "We have to pour more money into these institutions. If no more money is forthcoming from the state we will have to cut accordingly."

SUI's enrollment has increased from a 1940 mark of 6,697 to 10,886 in 1948. Similar increases have shown up at Iowa State college and Iowa State Teachers college.

In 1941 there were 6,100 students at ISC as opposed to a current 10,150. Teachers college enrollment has jumped from a pre-war figure of 1,800 to 3,069.

Shull called the tuition issue "one of the most controversial issues in public education." He said he hopes if the legislature would support a tuition increase.

The three state schools were built to accommodate between one-quarter to one-half less than present enrollments, Shull said.

The board's requests for additional funds consist of $50,517,872 for salaries, supplies and maintenance during the next two years, an increase of more than $25-million.

Also included in the request was $32,238,257 for capital improvements—$29,958,536 more than last year's budget.

Heading the building program were a proposed $2,420,000 pharmacy-dental building at SUI and a $2,600,000 fieldhouse and auditorium at Iowa State college.

An overall salary hike of 15 percent was included in the board request.

Explosion Rocks Portland Harbor

PORTLAND, ORE. — A waterfront explosion rocked a wide area of the city last night but a fire that broke out in a municipal terminal building and piled lumber was soon under control.

Firemen on the scene said Walter Kraft reported that he stepped into the dock commission office, smelled gas and flipped on an electric light. The explosion followed.

'Bloc' Against Communists in China Asked

NANKING (P) — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, enroute to Washington in a U.S. army plane, may urge the United States and Britain to organize an anti-Communist bloc in the far east, the official Central Daily News hinted yesterday.

The government organ said creation of such a bloc was "even more vital" than American aid. Its proposal was made as strong MEMO CHANG IN HONOLULU HONOLULU (P) — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, flying to Washington to seek American aid for the Chinese government, arrived here yesterday at 1:19 p.m. (5:19 p.m. Iowa time) aboard a U.S. navy plane. President Truman has assigned his former personal plane, "the sacred cow," to carry China's first lady from Moffett field, Calif., to Washington. She left Shanghai Sunday with a small party of advisers.

Chinese Communist forces pushed southward toward the banks of the Yangtze river, with advanced units reported within 110 miles of Nanking, the Chinese capital.

The editorial reflected the prevailing official viewpoint that the Nationalists alone, even with American help, would not be able to stem the Communists' advance.

The focal point of the fighting appeared to be just north of Pengpu, 110 northwest of Nanking, although large-scale battles raged at several stations along the Su-chow-Nanking railroad between Pengpu and Su-chow.

Su-chow, 200 miles northwest of Nanking, still was firmly in government hands, although its position is similar to that of Mukden before the government evacuation of Manchuria early this month. Su-chow is completely encircled by the Communists and the garrison there must be supplied by air. Military sources admitted it would be suicide for the Nationalists to try to fight their way to Nanking.

But the garrison was under orders last night to sally south to save Nanking and rescue an entire army group trapped by the rampaging Communists.

Israel 'Confident' of Formal Admission To United Nations

PARIS (P) — Israel formally asked for United Nations membership yesterday on the first anniversary of the UN vote to partition Palestine.

Israeli sources expressed confidence the application would receive the necessary seven votes in the security council and the required two-thirds majority in the general assembly.

France and Belgium appeared to hold the deciding votes in the 11-member security council. Both favored partition last year. French sources said the French cabinet would decide the issue. Belgian delegates also were awaiting instructions.

Other council members, on the basis of recent declarations, probably will line up this way:

For admitting Israel: the United States, Russia, Soviet Ukraine, Canada, Colombia and Argentina — six votes.

Against admitting Israel: Syria. Abstaining: Britain and China. Shertok, leaving the secretary-general's office, would not predict the outcome. "It's on the knees of the gods," he told newsmen.

Meanwhile Russia accepted a plan by Juan A. Bramuglia, president of the security council, to name a "neutral" commission of currency experts in the Berlin dispute. The United States, Britain and France earlier had approved the plan in principle.

'Untouchability' Ended By India's Constitution

NEW DELHI, INDIA (P) — India's 60 million "untouchables" officially became men and women instead of pariahs yesterday when the constituent assembly finally approved a clause in the new constitution.

"Untouchability is abolished and its practice in any form is forbidden," the clause said. "Enforcement of any disability arising out of untouchability shall be a punishable offense in accordance with the law."

MacArthur Action May Delay Deaths Of Tojo, Six Others

Stolen Car in Freak Crash

IMPALED BY HEAVY bridge timbers, a car hangs precariously over the heads of rescuers who risked their lives to move the driver, Harold V. Hubbard, 24, Alameda, Calif. (on ground at bottom of picture). Nearly an hour passed before splints could be placed on Hubbard's legs so he could be moved. While first aid was being administered the police radio announced the car had been stolen from a parking lot earlier in the evening. Hubbard is being held under guard while police investigate.

He's Awaiting Decision From Highest Court

TOKYO (P) — Condemned Japanese war leader Hideki Tojo and his six top-ranking cohorts have apparently been granted a last-minute reprieve from the gallows pending action by the United States supreme court.

In a terse, two-word reply to a query by press representatives standing the death watch, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the condemned men would "certainly not" be executed until the supreme court takes action on the appeals of two of the defendants.

Although the appeals of only two of the seven men are known to be before the supreme court, MacArthur's statement indicated that none of the group would go to the gallows before the court takes action.

However this point was not definite.

MacArthur's public information office was endeavoring to find out whether two would be spared and five hanged immediately, or whether all seven would be permitted to live pending supreme court action.

The two who have appealed were former Premier Koki Hirota and former Gen. Kenji Doihara.

Unofficial observers here believe that MacArthur's dramatic move could result in these major Japanese war criminals finally being executed on December 8, Tokyo time—December 7, Pearl Harbor time.

News dispatches from the United States indicated the court meets next Monday, Dec. 6. If the justices decided they have no jurisdiction in the matter, the way would be cleared for the Pearl Harbor day hangings.

Apparently MacArthur took the move on his own initiative in order to spare the embarrassment which would arise should the appeals be successful after the men were hanged.

Foreign correspondents viewed the delay as a break for them in their efforts to get MacArthur to reverse his secrecy policy under which newsmen will be barred from witnessing the executions.

Ticket Applications Accepted Tomorrow

Beginning tomorrow requests may be made in writing for Iowa basketball ticket application material. A limited number of reserved seats will be on sale for seven of Iowa's home games.

A stamped addressed envelope must be enclosed. Beginning Dec. 6 the department of athletics will begin filling applications. Remittance for the $2 tickets, plus 25 cents for postage and handling, should be by check, draft or money order.

Reserved seat games are Jan. 3, Western Reserve; Jan. 8, Purdue; Jan. 15, Ohio State; Jan. 17, Minnesota; Feb. 19, Wisconsin; Feb. 26, Indiana, and March 5, Michigan.

Sale to each purchaser is limited to not more than two reserved seats for any two conference games.

Truman, Aides Map European Plan

Connally Insists on European Self-Help

WASHINGTON (P) — President Truman discussed a "vigorous program for European recovery" with his top aides yesterday amid signs that it may run into trouble in congress.

The 40-minute White House conference was held after Sen. Tom Connally, (D-Tex.) predicted the new congress will demand that European nations do more for their own recovery.

Connally, who becomes chairman in the new congress, told a news conference that some countries have regarded the recovery act as "more of a buffet" than a "self-service cafeteria." The same thing goes, he said, for the proposed North Atlantic security pact for the mutual defense of the United States, Canada, and the "free nations" of western Europe. Congress, he asserted, probably will serve notice that: "We are not just going to take over and do it all. . . they've got to do something too."

The President met with Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Economic Administrator Paul F. Hoffman and W. Averell Harriman, ECA's roving ambassador in Europe. No details were disclosed.

Hoffman said, however, that "we had a very interesting talk about ECA affairs in general as they pertain to Europe." Recovery aid to China did not come up, he added.

Harriman interjected that "we discussed a vigorous program for European recovery."

It was understood the conference was held at Hoffman's request so that he, Marshall and Harriman could talk with the President before Harriman returns to his headquarters in Paris.

Connally prefaced his press conference remarks by saying that he has not consulted with Marshall or other government officials since he arrived here from Texas Saturday.

He then launched into a discussion of the Berlin crisis, expressing a personal belief that the Soviet - Western power deadlock will be ended soon. He said tension appears to be "lightening" and that he expects a settlement along the lines of a western power acceptance of Russian currency in Berlin in exchange for Russia's removal of its transportation blockade.

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

Harrison Silent on This Year's Cage Prospects —

One is reminded of the extreme over-lapping of the athletic seasons in these days of atomic bombs, television and the like, by the fact that Pops Harrison unveils his Iowa hoopsters before Old Gold basketball paraphernalia.

It's things like that which make this sports writing ordeal exciting. You make up your mind that footballs, pigskins, half-backs, tackles and touchdowns are non-existent, even though you were slinging those nouns around just last week, and begin concentrating on basketballs, hoopsters, cagers, hacking, etc.

With this in mind, and basketballs knocking footballs out of our thoughts, we set out for Harrison's lair inside the field-house yesterday afternoon. We, like you, were wondering just what Harrison will produce this winter to off-set all-American Murray Wier's feats of the last few years.

To be truthful with you we found out nothing to cement our suspicions that the Hawks may be a good ball club. The only definite news Pops would divulge was the fact that Omaha is the opponent tomorrow night and that 22 Iowans would be in Old Gold basketball paraphernalia.

Pumping Harrison for his views about the hoopsters was like twisting food out of the hands of a hungry kid. He was as ambiguous in his answers as we are in some of our writings.

"Gosh, I don't know," was his reply to our question about the over-all picture this year. "It's kind of tough to say."

"They're pretty unpredictable then, huh Pops?"

"Yep, that's about it."

Pops is making no accusations good or bad until he sees his charges in the heat of a ball game. He is definitely worried about the lack of a scoring punch, or at least what appears to be lacking.

He plans to start an all letterman quintet against Omaha. Bob Schulz and Bill Hall will be teamed at guards; either Rog Finley or Don Hays, both of whom stand 6-5, are ready for center; Charlie Mason and Floyd Magnusson seem to be tagged as the No. 1 forwards right now.

But there is depth in the Iowa ball club. Two forwards who saw a good share of duty last winter, Bob Vollers and Stan Straatsma, may have first string berths before long.

There is also the possibility that any one of three sophomores will grab the center slot, while Hays, an excellent marksman with a one-handed pushshot from the corner, would move to a regular forward job. Hays has been working at that position since practice began in October.

The three sophomores, all standing better than 6-5, are Glen Dille, Frank Calsbeek and Al Weiss. All are promising but inexperienced.

The guards pose a problem. Schulz is the lone veteran, and the loss of the schrewd Jack Spencer will undoubtedly be felt.

Hall is currently running No. 1. However, Tom Parker, Bucky Harris, Sophomore Bill Andrews and Jim Graham, a letter winner in 1945, are battling right along with Hall for a position alongside Schulz.

Thus, Harrison does not really have a first five yet. He plans to use several different combinations against Omaha and continue experimenting in the Colorado college game here Saturday night.

What do you know about Omaha, Pops?

"Not a darn thing," he exclaimed. "Basketball is quite a bit different than football in that you never can tell how strong a small college team will be."

"In football you can usually count on a runaway," Pops went on. "But in basketball it's not hard for a small college to come up with five good basketball players."

Asked how he and his cagers would travel to away games this year, Pops raised his arms, fluttered them up and down and then said, "Fly!"

The Hawkeye coach is convinced that flying is here to stay, and he intends to reap the benefits as far as saving time goes. Since the Big Nine plays games on Saturday and Monday nights, long train rides can take a lot out of a ball club.

Notre Dame, N. Carolina Finish 2d, 3d

NEW YORK (AP)—Michigan is the mythical national football champion in the final Associated Press poll of the 1948 season.

The votes of 387 sports writers and radio commentators gave the unbeaten, untied Wolverines a 123-point margin over runner-up Notre Dame, which will attempt to complete its second straight perfect season at Southern California's expense Saturday. In the matter of first place ballots, Michigan had a substantial 192-97 margin. In points it was 3,448 to 3,325.

The Iowa Hawkeyes received four points in the final tabulation.

Notre Dame, which won the regular season poll last season, led only once this year during the eight-week run of voting. North Carolina, which finished third, also set the pace early in the season. Michigan was No. 1 six times, the last four weeks in succession.

Well over 1,000 points back of Notre Dame came the once-tied North Carolina Tar Heels who received 31 firsts California, the host team in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, grabbed fourth place with an even 2,000 points North Carolina had 2,281.

Oklahoma, which closed the season with a rush to move into the Sugar Bowl as North Carolina's foe, was ranked fifth with 30 firsts and 1,906 points.

Despite its surprising 21-21 closing tie with Navy, the unbeaten Army Cadets drew enough support to take sixth place. Then came Northwestern which will represent the Western conference in the Rose bowl.

Georgia was a distant eighth, some 550 points behind Northwestern, with Oregon and Southern Methodist in that order to round out the first ten.

All of the first ten teams, with the exception of Notre Dame, have finished their regular seasons.

Bednarik Wins Maxwell Trophy

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Charles (Chuck) Bednarik, University of Pennsylvania's all-America center, yesterday was named the outstanding football player of 1948 by the Maxwell club.

At the same time, the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football league announced selection of Bednarik as their all-star draft choice.

Bednarik is the first lineman to be named winner of the Maxwell trophy. Others included Southern Methodist's Doak Walker, the 47 recipient; Glen Davis and Felix Blanchard, both of Army, and Georgia's Charley Trippi.

He will receive the award at the club's annual dinner Jan. 11.

The Eagles won the right to deal with the 235-pound center in the NFL's recent all-star draft draw.

Bednarik came to Penn from Bethlehem (Pa.) high school. He graduates from Penn in June.

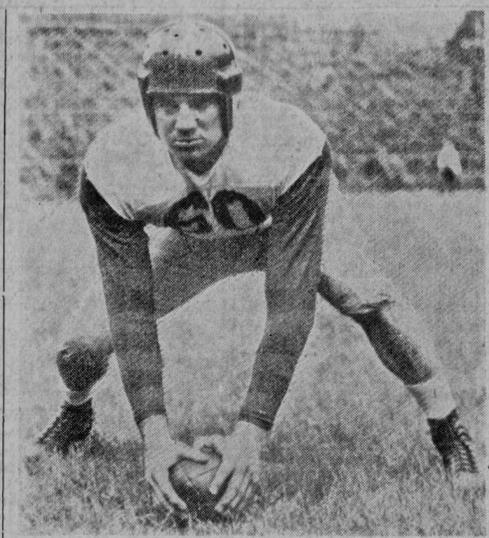

sons. However, seven of them will be busy in bowl games on Jan. 1.

Notre Dame will try for its 22nd straight victory and its 28th without defeat in its finale Saturday against Southern California. The Irish smeared Washington, 46-0, last week while Michigan finished its season Nov. 20.

Michigan and Notre Dame have run 1-2 in the poll since Oct 19 but Army had been third for the last two weeks. North Carolina, California and Oklahoma each moved up a per while Army dropped three points to sixth.

The final standings on a point basis of 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 (first place votes in parentheses):

1. Michigan (192).....3,448
2. Notre Dame (97).....3,325
3. North Carolina (31).....2,281
4. California (31).....2,000
5. Oklahoma (30).....1,906
6. Army.....1,799
7. Northwestern.....1,421
8. Georgia (3).....579
9. Oregon.....769
10. Southern Methodist.....683
11. Cleveland (6) (62).....12
12. Vanderbilt (2).....249
13. Tulane 216; 14. Michigan State (2).....206
15. Mississippi (13) 183; 16. Minnesota 120; 17. William and Mary (4) 107; 18. Penn State 87; 19. Cornell 76; 20. Wake Forest 68.
- Ohio State 63; Santa Clara 58; Missouri 38; Nevada 29; Georgia Tech 14; Texas 9; Duke 8; Kentucky 5; Iowa 4; Southern California and Oklahoma Aggies, each 3; Villanova, Occidental and West Chester Teachers, each 1.

THE FIRST LINEMAN to receive the Maxwell trophy as outstanding gridders for an entire season will be Chuck Bednarik, Penn's all-American center. The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football league have announced Bednarik as their all-star draft choice.

Sauer Revamped T for Army

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Coach George Sauer of the Navy disclosed yesterday that he remodeled his team's formation before the Army game.

"Our scouts always came back with the same report: Army has blinding speed," Sauer told members of Washington's Touchdown club.

"I knew, with that speed, that if they had the ball, it would be a long afternoon for us."

"So we decided to mix our T formation with some single wing blocking assignments. We had been using one man to take out one of them, but we decided to use two men on one. This meant we'd be satisfied to get four or five yards at a crack."

And was that strategy responsible for Navy's surprising 21-11 tie?

"We had the ball on 73 running plays to Army's 48, and we had 12 pass plays to Army's 10. We controlled the ball three-fourths of the time."

But Sauer hastily pointed out that it was the fighting spirit of Navy, not the coaches, which made the tie possible.

The Navy players were polled by the Washington Evening Star, and they voted Notre Dame the No. 1 team in the nation."

St. Mary's Triumphs, 31-21

Seydel Leads Win Over CR Quintet

By LELAND OLSON
After warding off a couple of second period threats the St. Mary's cagers went on to tip St. Wenceslaus of Cedar Rapids, 31-21, here last night.

Dale Seydel, who led Rambler scorers with nine points, drove under the basket for two points after the tip-off and seconds later Bob Henderson tapped in a rebound to give St. Mary's a 4-0 lead.

Al Sattler countered for the Red Hawks under the basket making it 4-2.

By quarter-time the Rambler had gained a 11-4 advantage, but the Cedar Rapids boys led by the Drahozals brothers pulled into striking distance midway in the period.

At the half they were breathing hot and heavy down the neck of St. Mary's but still trailed, 17-15.

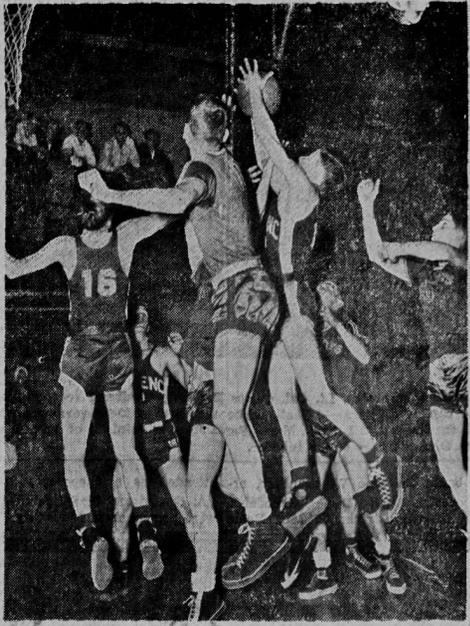

Paul Flannery hit on two successive drive-in shots to open the third stanza for the home-owners. A pair of free throws and buckets by Black and Seydel widened the gap to 27-19 going into the final quarter.

Harry Black and Bud Lenz garnered the remaining points for St. Mary's in the final minutes.

In preliminary game the St. Mary's underclassmen nosed out the Red Hawk reserves 18-17 in a hair-raising finish. Dick Zahradnek was the hero scoring five points in the final five seconds for the victors.

Iowa Gridders Present Dr. Eddie with Trophy

Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa's head football coach, was presented with a gold trophy from his 1948 squad yesterday noon during a luncheon meeting of the Iowa City Quarterback club.

The presentation was made by Center Dick Woodard, game captain for eight of the Hawks' nine games.

Before introducing members of the Iowa squad to the Quarterback club, Anderson said, "This has been a fine squad. I've been proud of these boys all season."

Paul Brechler, SUT's director of athletics, also commended the gridders. "It was a real pleasure to be around this group of well-behaved boys," Brechler said.

U-High's Blue Hawks Meet Roosevelt Tonight

The Blue Hawks of U-high will travel to Cedar Rapids tonight to try for their second basketball win in as many games when they meet powerful Roosevelt tonight.

Orange Bowl Picks Texas

NEW YORK (AP)—The Orange bowl picked Texas to oppose Georgia at Miami Jan. 1 and programs were completed yesterday in two smaller bowls.

The Texas Longhorns, who have won six games, lost three and tied one, will be making a trip to their third major bowl. They played in the Sugar bowl last year and in the Cotton bowl three times previously.

With the Miami program set, the four major bowl programs are now complete.

Trinidad junior college of Colorado accepted an invitation to meet Northeastern (Okla.) in the second annual Salt bowl at Hutchinson, Kas., Saturday.

Murray State college of Kentucky will play Sul Ross Teachers of Alpine, Tex., in the Tangerine bowl at Orlando, Fla., Jan. 1.

The salad bowl committee invited Arizona to meet Drake university at Phoenix, Ariz., New Year's Day. The Arizona players will vote to decide acceptance.

Meanwhile, Villanova college said it is considering an offer to play Nevada in the Harbor bowl at San Diego, Calif. The game is Jan. 1. Harbor bowl sponsors said an invitation has been extended Navy.

Here's the lineup of the major bowls:

Rose at Pasadena — California vs. Northwestern.

Sugar at New Orleans — North Carolina vs. Oklahoma.

Cotton at Dallas — Southern Methodist vs. Oregon.

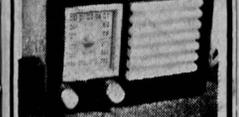

Orange at Miami — Georgia vs. Texas.

Gator at Jacksonville — Clemson vs. Missouri.

Dieck at Birmingham — Wake Forest vs. Baylor.

Delta at Memphis — Oklahoma A. and M. vs. William and Mary.

Sun at El Paso, Tex. — West Virginia vs. Texas Mines.

'Lassies' Play At Half-Time of All-Star Game

About 40 SUI co-eds gave up part of their vacations to perform last Friday night with the Highlanders between halves at the College All Star — Minneapolis Lakers' basketball game in the Chicago stadium.

Most of the young ladies spent Thanksgiving at home, meeting in Iowa City Friday morning with Pipe Major Bill Adamson to travel to the Windy City. Others met the group at the La Salle hotel in Chicago Friday afternoon.

Performed Drum Dance
Iowa's "bonnie lassies" performed several numbers between halves. Bobbie Ginter, A4, Marshalltown, was featured in a drum dance while the entire group did a "Highland Fling."

Pipe Major Adamson and his young son, Johnny, drew a great deal of applause for their bagpipe duet, Ravel's "Bolero."

Other numbers played included "Scheherazade" and the "Sorcerer's Apprentice."

Ended at 11 p.m.
The performance ended at approximately 11 p.m. leaving several of the women about 15 minutes to catch trains for their respective homes. Cabs waiting at the stadium door sped the young ladies to railroad depots.

The women were given about two hours for shopping in Chicago's loop Friday afternoon.

Clipping The Dips from Your Trips

Placement Bureau Wants Information On Summer Jobs

Students — did you like your job last summer? Student Placement Director Robert Ballantyne would like to know.

He wants to know how the 750 students he placed in jobs last summer liked them and whether they would like to go back.

Ballantyne is also interested in the hundreds of students who found summer work on their own.

Yesterday Ballantyne asked all students who had off-campus employment last summer pick up a report card at the receptionist's desk in the office of student affairs, fill it out and drop it in a box there.

The information received will be used in placing students in jobs next summer.

No Luck

Fails to Kill Himself After 30 Tries

CHICAGO — Frank C. Lewandowski, 39, was forbidden by a court yesterday to commit suicide.

Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner signed an injunction after hearing testimony that Lewandowski has tried at least 30 times to kill himself and failed.

Harry X. Cole, attorney for Lewandowski's wife, told the court that the man had tried a rope, gas, a knife, a scissors, whiskey and iodine, all without success.

Cole represented Mrs. Adeline Lewandowski in her suit for separate maintenance.

Judge Miner ruled that Lewandowski had tried long enough. He issued the injunction against further attempts and granted Mrs. Lewandowski separate maintenance.

"If he succeeds next time," Mrs. Lewandowski asked as she left court, "shall we get him cited for contempt?"

Cites Iowa City Meter System

DAVENPORT—Iowa City was cited yesterday as one of the few Iowa cities in Iowa using parking revenues for improvement of the parking situation—their legal use.

Other Iowa cities mentioned by R. E. Rhoades, manager of the Motor Club of Iowa, as using the funds correctly were Dubuque, Mason City and Waterloo.

Rhoades charged that many cities throughout the land are using parking meter funds as a "grab bag" for a variety of municipal purposes.

Rhoades said, "Reports from AAA national headquarters show that on a national average only about 20 percent of the revenue from meters is used to pay for their cost of acquisition, maintenance and upkeep. The other 80 percent is dumped into city treasuries. Thus, an unfair share of city costs is being loaded on the shoulders of the motorist."

The 52nd general assembly in Iowa legalized meters and specifically stated in the bill that revenue should go for off-street parking, according to Rhoades.

Iowa City used these funds to purchase a $10,000 lot which, when completed, will provide parking for an estimated 75-80 cars.

Half of the money received from the parking meters in Iowa City is used to pay for the meters, city officials said. The 150 Park-O-Meters installed originally are paid for but the city is still paying for the 250 Miller meters.

In Iowa City the salaries of three persons are paid from meter funds. These include the two policemen who make collections and maintain the meters and a woman who keeps the books and assists the police judge.

Funeral Rites Held For Dr. Brown, 85, 1888 SUI Graduate

Funeral services were held Sunday in Marengo for Dr. E. N. Brown, 85, an 1888 graduate of the State University of Iowa college of medicine.

Dr. Brown was born June 16, 1863, on a farm near North English. He died Thursday at his home in Marengo.

After attending college in Valparaiso, Ind., Dr. Brown entered the college of medicine here.

Dr. Brown practiced first in western Kansas and then in Ladora, going to Marengo in 1891.

In 1892 Dr. Brown was married to Ethel Mae Tompkins, Marengo. Mrs. Brown died in 1919.

Surviving are five children: Jeanette, Iowa City; Carl A., Greeley, Colo.; James Everett, Los Angeles; Raymond N., Hayward, Calif.; and Mrs. Harriet Paul, Naugatuck, Conn.

Dr. Brown served for many years as city physician in Marengo and as a member of the Iowa County Insanity commission.

The Iowa County Medical society was organized by Dr. Brown who was its first president. He was also a member of the American Medical society and the Iowa State Medical society in which he was a member of the Fifty Year club. For more than 50 years Dr. Brown was consulting surgeon on the Rock Island railroad.

Steber, Operatic Soprano, For SUI's Second Concert

Eleanor Steber, star of the "Voice of Firestone" radio program and leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, will sing in Iowa City Dec. 8.

Miss Steber, second artist to appear in this season's university concert course, will give an 8 p.m. concert in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Prof. C. B. Richter, concert course director, said student tickets will be available on presentation of identification cards beginning Monday. Non-student tickets at $1.50 including tax will go on sale Dec. 7, he said.

Miss Steber made her Metropolitan debut in December, 1940, as Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier" after winning a contract with the Met on the radio show, "Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air," in April of that year.

She has since played 10 major roles at the Met, her latest being Violetta in "La Traviata," Eva in "Die Meistersinger" and the Countess in "Marriage of Figaro."

Wins Award

Her singing for the "Voice of Firestone" last summer brought her the Critics' award as best woman singer regularly on the air—Firestone has her under contract until 1953.

She has also appeared on several other radio programs and with most major American symphony orchestras.

"Eleanor Steber day" has become an annual event in her home town of Wheeling, W. Va., since the town turned out to greet her when she won her Metropolitan contract in 1940.

She is a sculptor, once considered making a career of piano-playing, is an expert on the mysticism of India, China and Japan and likes to play golf and gin-rummy.

Ardent Cook

She also likes to warble hill-billy and western ballads to the accompaniment of her guitar, and she cooks with a vengeance. Pecan waffles are one of her favorite concoctions.

Although she has been singing most of her life, in church choirs in Wheeling and in Boston where she studied voice before she became a star, Miss Steber says she is still troubled by stage fright when she sings before an audience.

Two university English professors, John C. McGalliard and James A. Walker, spoke to an audience of 200 on "Linguistics and Cultural Evaluation" last night at a Humanities society meeting.

McGalliard told of the controversy raging between the two schools of linguists, the neo-linguists and the neo-grammarians. He emphasized that the ideas of the two schools are being assimilated and revolve around a common orbit, the language of man.

Walker pictured language as the medium which permits cooperation or interaction within the group to the extent that the group does not perish. He pointed to infinite regression and evaluating what is good and bad as the chief problems in appraising modern cultural patterns.

Prof. George L. Mosse, president of the Humanities society, presided at the panel and the question period.

McGalliard, Walker Evaluate Languages

Two university English professors, John C. McGalliard and James A. Walker, spoke to an audience of 200 on "Linguistics and Cultural Evaluation" last night at a Humanities society meeting.

McGalliard told of the controversy raging between the two schools of linguists, the neo-linguists and the neo-grammarians. He emphasized that the ideas of the two schools are being assimilated and revolve around a common orbit, the language of man.

Walker pictured language as the medium which permits cooperation or interaction within the group to the extent that the group does not perish. He pointed to infinite regression and evaluating what is good and bad as the chief problems in appraising modern cultural patterns.

Prof. George L. Mosse, president of the Humanities society, presided at the panel and the question period.

Student Arrested For Carrying Gun

Morris Kurtz Palmer, an SUI student from Knoxville, was arrested yesterday by Iowa City police on a charge of carrying a loaded pistol in his car without a license.

Police Judge Emil G. Trott set bond at $1,000 and Palmer was taken to the county jail when he did not post bond. Preliminary hearings will be held at 8 a.m. today in police court.

Judge Trott also fined Clarence Conklin, 30 W. Burlington street, $4.50 for failing to stop for a red traffic light.

AAA Elections to Start In County Tomorrow

Elections of township AAA committeemen will be held in Johnson county townships starting tomorrow and lasting until Dec. 9, Ray E. Smalley, county AAA committee chairman, said.

The newly elected township chairmen will meet Dec. 10, to elect county AAA committee members, Smalley said.

Heavenly Wonder: Sun, Moon Get Up, Sky-Ride Together

If you were up this morning at 7:13 you could have seen both the moon and the sun begin their day. This morning was one of those rare occasions when Old Sol and Lunar get together and they will set this afternoon only 16 minutes apart.

University astronomer Charles C. Wylie said yesterday that you're not likely to see the moon today because even with the aid of a telescope it will appear as nothing more than a thin crescent.

The moon ends its last quarter at 12:44 p.m. today then enters its new quarter. But for all practical purposes, Wylie said, the moon will be invisible all day.

With luck and if the weather is clear you may be able to see a thin crescent of the moon about 30 minutes after sundown tomorrow, Wylie added.

Though the moon and the sun go through this action once every month the phenomenon of the sun and the moon rising at the same time occurs only once in two or three years.

Student Musicians To Present Recital

Four student musicians will present a recital today at 4:10 p.m. in the north music hall.

Harriet Boekenhoff, 'cello, will play "Allegro Moderato" from Haydn's "Concerto in D Major"; Richard Rohloff, piano, will play Bach's "English Suite No. 2 in A Minor."

Robert Chapman, piano, will play the Mozart "Sonata in B Flat Major," and Robert Gower, piano, will conclude the program with Beethoven's "Rondo in C Major," Op. 51, No. 1.

GREGORY WHETSTINE DIES

Gregory Whetstine, 17 months, Moulton, died last night at University hospital. He was admitted Nov. 15.

At Least Somebody Still Trusts a Poll

Two Projects Adopted By Junior Red Cross

Two projects were adopted yesterday by the Junior Red Cross council at their bi-monthly meeting in the Red Cross rooms.

Council representatives will collect Christmas tree decorations from their respective schools for the University hospital trees. A subscription to "Children's Activities" magazine will be financed for the hospital school for handicapped children in Westlawn.

Newly-elected officers of the council include Beatrice Dierks, president; Jean Klein, vice-president, and Grace Berkenholtz, secretary.

Junior Farm Bureau Plans Meet Tomorrow

The Johnson county Junior farm bureau will hold a business meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the lower lounge of the Community building. There will be games and refreshments after the meeting.

Symphony Schedules Koelbel 'Cello Solo

Prof. Hans Koelbel, 'cellist, will be featured as soloist in one number of the SUI symphony orchestra's concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Iowa Union.

The program, announced by Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp conductor, includes:

1. Overture "The Secret of Suzanne" by Ermanno Wolf-Ferri (1876—);
2. "Concerto in A Minor," Op. 129, for violoncello with orchestra by Robert Schumann (1810-1856). Koelbel will play the solo part in this concerto, which is in three movements. Not too fast, Slow and Very lively.
3. "Symphony in B Minor" (Pathe-tique), Op. 74, by Peter Ilyitch Tchaikovsky (1840-1893).

Information Service — Gets Wrong Questions

— From Fact Seekers

Does the State University of Iowa offer a correspondence course on how to make ice cream?

This is typical of the numerous queries which come in almost daily to SUI's information service.

Many students and others have the notion that the Information service is a kind of agency which knows all the answers to all questions.

Some of the questions, of course can be and are, answered by the service.

Quick Answer

The staff did, for instance, readily inform the prospective ice cream maker that his chosen subject is one of about two or three courses that Iowa does not offer.

But answers to such questions as, "Where is building, MBTC located?" are available only because of the general fund of knowledge picked by the service's staff members.

The service was not, as its name might imply, set up as a question and answer bureau.

Its director, Prof. James Jordan explains, "The purpose of the information service is to tell the story of the university and higher education."

In a sense, the information service is the university's public relations agent. The agency operates as a news bureau, gathering information about various aspects of the school for release to newspapers, magazines, radio stations and other communication media.

Admittedly, the service is publicity minded. But Jordan adds, "Our aim is to do more than establish goodwill toward the university. Our function is also of an educational nature."

"Since Iowa is a state institution, the people who foot the bill need to know about what goes on here. We help supply that information."

Prepare Releases

The bureau staff prepares bulletin releases, feature stories, magazine articles, movie scripts and radio scripts. It plans to start producing television scripts soon.

The regular staff includes Dick Spencer, managing editor; Ken Donnellson, news editor; Eric Wilson, sports editor; and Mrs. William Campbell and Mrs. Peggy Hill, editorial assistants.

All are graduates of Iowa's school of journalism.

There are also six "internes" who work with the staff on a part-time basis. They are graduate students or outstanding senior students who are interested in public relations work or interpretive reporting in some specialized field.

One of the internes came by his nickname, "Doc," under unusual circumstances. He is Max Elder, medical science reporter.

Receives Letters

He has actually received correspondence addressed to "Dr. Max Elder," from persons who naturally associated his title as information service interne with the fact that he writes articles on medical science.

Since its establishment in July, 1947, the true character of the information service has become more generally known. But the bureau still gets frequent requests for "information" it was not meant to handle.

GOP Needs New Setup, Attorney Says

Attorney William Morrison of Iowa City recently listed four steps he thought the Republican party must take if they hoped to win future elections.

He proposed them after a letter from Frank Nye, a Cedar Rapids newspaperman, asking what Morrison thought of a proposal by state GOP chairman Whitney Gilliland for a presidential preference primary.

"I'm all in favor of such a primary," Morrison said, "but I would go even further than that." He suggested the following actions:

1. Complete revitalization of the state central committee, calling for the resignation of the majority of the members.

2. Complete revitalization of the national party organization.

3. Change of membership on county central committees.

4. Recognition of the young voter, the laborer and the farmer throughout the whole new setup.

"I think it would be a good idea to get a few professors and labor representatives on the state central committee's policy forming board too," the former state legislator said.

"It's time now to wash out the party's dirty linen, I know we will make some enemies, but better to make them now than before the election in 1950," the Johnson county committeeman added.

In reply to a question concerning an attack on him by National Committeeman Harold Spangler, Morrison shrugged his broad shoulders and said, "That's water over the dam now."

Questioned as to his availability for office in the coming city election in April, he said, "No sir, I do not want any public office. All I want is to see better men nominated from the Republican party."

"As for that city election in April, the Republican party can win it if they will only put up good men. They have done it before, you know," Morrison said.

Levering Outlines Rules for Building UWF 'Grass Roots'

United World Federalists must educate rather than pressurize people to support world government, the national UWF field work chairman told about 40 eastern Iowa government boosters in Iowa Union last night.

Samuel Levering, a member of UWF's national executive and national policy committees, emphasized the importance of field work as a method of building "grass roots" for such a young organization as UWF. UWF was formed by a merger of smaller world government groups in February, 1947.

Levering outlined four essentials for local "grass root" chapters.

1. They must have prestige and acceptance. Levering urged the SUI and town chapters represented at the meeting to build up strong boards of faculty members or leading citizens as active world government backers.

2. They must have active groups of workers.

3. These workers must be employed at tasks most suited to each.

4. They must have adequate financial support. "Shoot high" in asking for contributions, Levering advised. The most active boosters are those that invest in UWF, he pointed out.

In tracing UWF progress during the past two years, Levering explained the present national UWF conception of a world federal government.

Marine Wounded in Attempted Tavern Holdup

THREE MARINES WERE BOOKED FOR INVESTIGATION IN Oakland, Calif., yesterday following an attempted tavern holdup. When police responded to an alarm, Bartender Albert Faccini (right) guarded by a patrolman, broke loose from the trio. Police, thinking he was a bandit trying to escape, shot him in the leg. Marine Melvin Davis (left) was shot in the hand by police.

West Coast Job Opportunities Show Drop in Recent Survey

By WILLIAM E. BEST

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) It's getting tough to find a job on the west coast.

A United Press survey of private, state and federal employment agencies in California, Oregon and Washington — the mecca of job seekers during the war — shows that employers are taking on fewer persons and are more particular about qualifications.

The situation is worst for unskilled and semi-skilled workers. But the pinch is beginning to extend into the white collar class and is catching stenographers, file clerks, retail clerks, movie publicists and studio workers, bartenders, hotel and night club employees, laundresses and others in the service classifications.

The highly skilled worker is the sole exception. He is still in great demand.

Employment experts hasten to reassure that there is no indication of any sort of "recession" and they hesitate to define the tight job situation as the setting in of any long-term "trend."

Most areas of the coast still show all-time highs in employment. And western industry is by no means finished with its expansion program.

But the fact remains that agency portation along the coasts and between coasts and across the Pacific.

But the agencies agree the maritime strike is not the entire answer. Without it, the west coast would still be faced with these facts:

1. There is so much immigration into the agricultural areas of California that the number of jobs available cannot keep pace, according to the California department of employment in Fresno.

2. The entertainment business, including hotels, bars, night clubs and movies, went into a slump before the maritime strike began.

3. Construction, home and industrial, has slowed down partly because of tighter loan restrictions and partly because of lack of a public housing program.

The employment experts cautiously declare that perhaps the normal seasonal slump this winter is worse than last winter but emphasize that it is still too early to definitely judge.

Myron Olson to Attend Iowa Education Meeting

Myron S. Olson, principal of University high school, will attend an executive board meeting of the Iowa State Education association in Des Moines this weekend. Olson is a member of the board.

'Marengo Experiment' Airs Adult View of Atom Energy

What does atomic energy mean to you? This is the type of question presented to the Marengo adult group following the lecture series known as the "Marengo Experiment."

One member of the group, a minister, said, "especially in the application of this new knowledge and energy, do ethical, moral, and spiritual values, increase in importance."

I wish to thank the entire staff that presented the course at Marengo for the splendid way they handled the subject, another member reported.

Sample Opinions

The opinions of the group were obtained by taking a sample of 77 members of the school. Thirty-two men and 45 women participated. The average age was 43 years.

The group represented by the sample included farmers, homemakers, business and professional men, teachers, stenographers, ministers, skilled labor, one nurse, and one college student.

The majority said that the experiment stimulated discussion at home, and aroused interest in social implications of atom energy.

The group decided that the new era was not particularly unpleasant to think about. Many of them plan to inform others of the material presented, watch newspaper references with greater care, and have changed their views on public investigation of scientists.

Deadly or Beneficial?

One woman, not thoroughly convinced that all the scare was removed from the atom era said, "perhaps I feel toward the atomic discovery very much as people in the past felt toward electricity—that it is something deadly."

"Yet in years to come—perhaps—my children will feel toward the atom the way I feel about electricity today."

The "Marengo Experiment" will give a final test in the future to determine how much atom information was retained by the adult school. This should prove the actual value of experiments of this type.

First Christmas in America

MARY FEAVER, ENGLISH EXCHANGE TEACHER AT SUI, sits at her desk in the women's gym to write home to her friends in Bedford, England. Christmas won't be quite the same for Miss Feaver this year. Although she hasn't made any plans yet for Christmas vacation, she wants to see as much of America as possible.

in the Senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Powicke is regius professor of modern history at Oxford university. From 1933 to 1937 he was president of the Royal Historical society. He is the author of some 10 history books.

Powicke has been called one of the greatest living medievalists. He holds honorary degrees from Harvard, Cambridge, the University of Caen, and is a fellow of the British Academy.

Local Attorney Elected National Group Officer

HOUSTON, TEX. (AP)—Iowa Attorney General Robert L. Larson of Iowa City yesterday was named vice chairman for the midwest of the National Association of Attorneys General.

Attorney General Edward F. Arn of Kansas was chosen midwest chairman, and Attorney General Grover L. Broadfoot of Wisconsin midwest secretary.

British Instructor Describes English Holiday Traditions

"I expect I'll miss the church bells ringing over here at Christmas," said Mary Feaver, English exchange teacher in the women's physical education department here at SUI.

In England, said Miss Feaver, every little village has church bells ringing constantly during the Christmas holidays.

But Christmas in England is very similar to Christmas in America, she explained.

"The English children stick letters in the fireplaces for Santa Claus and they wait for Christmas day for him to come riding up in his sleigh complete with presents, reindeer and sleighbells." "Children have stockings to open," and presents are put around the Christmas tree or placed in one big pile.

"If you can't get a tree," said Miss Feaver, "you make a big snowball of cotton and put the presents around that."

If the English people can get it, they'll have "turkey, chicken or duck with chestnut or herb stuffing," said Miss Feaver.

"Very fruity" plum puddings and individual minced pies will also have their place in the Christmas menu.

As the pudding is brought in, the lights are dimmed or turned off and brandy sauce is poured over the pudding and set aflame.

Student Work Topic At Grinnell Meeting

Student work on the campus will be the topic of discussion at a meeting of Congregational church ministers and student center directors from Iowa campuses at Grinnell today.

Patients Run, Hide When They See This Doctor

By CLAIRE COX
NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly all of Dr. Louis J. Camuti's patients run and hide when they see him coming.

"It's been going on for 28 years, and I just can't get used to it," he said. "It hurts a fellow's feelings to be treated that way."

Camuti is a Park Avenue society veterinarian who specializes in caring for cats. He is famous among his fellow vets for his skill in treating feline complaints ranging from broken legs to cancer. "Cats Don't Realize" "I'll bet I've been bitten and scratched by more cats than any other living person," Camuti said. "The cats just don't seem to realize that I am their best friend."

Once in a while he meets up with real problem pets, like Choola, a hypochondriac Siamese, who insists on having his nose-temperature taken even when his nose is as cool as a cucumber. And Fluff, a neurotic angora, who is so anti-social she won't even spit at a mouse. "Another was a perfect hellion," he said. "I don't think I've ever seen a meaner cat. I couldn't go near her without getting all clawed up. The sad part of it was that she was my own cat."

Makes Operation
Camuti interrupted his lament to slip hurriedly into his white surgical gown to operate on a cat owned by one of the horsey set. He washed his hands and slipped quietly into the shiny operating room, where his assistant had prepared a small cat for an abdominal operation. The cat lay unconscious on the operating table as Camuti cut and tied. He performs simple operations in the patients' homes, but this one called for the closest attention.

Cats Intelligent, Anyway
Cats aren't very cooperative, he said, but they are intelligent, and he'll do anything to foster intelligence, even in the feline world. He used to treat monkeys, he said, but he grew to like them too much and he couldn't bear to hurt them. "My cat patients don't like me, but I'll never forget the last monkey I operated on," he explained. "I performed a caesarian on a marmoset. She only weighed nine ounces, and when I went to see her, there she was lying on a big double bed, with tears streaming down her cheeks."

"We lost the baby and the mother though we put her in an oxygen tent. After that, I just couldn't face another monkey."

Buck Hunts Costello

Frank Preparing to Bring Lou 'Back Alive' From 'Prop' Jungle and Stuffed Gorillas

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Frank Buck is in town to bring Lou Costello back alive.

Everybody remember Frank Buck? For 35 years Mr. B. has been a jungle talent scout, combing veldts and thickets for furry cuties to sign up on life-time contracts with zoos.

Mr. Buck has run into some difficulties. He has wrestled with 16-ft. king cobras; he has captured a black leopard that scampered loose for five hours on a ship trembling with the knocking of 80 sets of knees.

Daring Feats

He has single-handedly dragged a man-eating tiger by his tail from a pit trap into a cage. He has single-handedly made 3 movies in the jungle without knowing much about movie-making, regarded in local quarters as more daring than catching man-eating tigers.

Mr. Buck, after surmounting these dangers, has a new assignment.

He is technical adviser to an Abbott and Costello comedy, called "Africa Screams," and maybe it will. He also plays a role in which he captures Mr. Costello, named Stanley Livingston in the movie.

Called from Texas

"Well, sir, I was resting in Texas when the studio called," explained Buck of the switch in his quarry.

"They promised I wouldn't be made fun of because I'm an idol to lots of youngsters and I wouldn't want them to be disappointed." Mr. Buck paused to survey a passing prop man over whose shoulder was draped a lion, hollow and empty. The prop man said Abbott and Costello will be frightened further by a gorilla and a crocodile, also courtesy a taxidermist.

Scorns Props

"Hah! Never had anything like that in my movies," said Buck, meaning "Bring 'Em Back Alive," etc.

"Never been in a jungle like this, either," he added with a wave to an indoor set of fake moss, papier mache rocks and a postcard sky. "I shot all my movies in the real jungle."

Mr. Buck will charge through this Hollywood jungle in the same khaki shirt, puttees, high-laced boots, pith helmet, long-barreled pistol and longer-barreled rifle that he wears in Africa.

King George's Foot Improves, Believe Amputation Unlikely

LONDON (UP)—A Buckingham palace bulletin said yesterday that King George's general health had improved and that there was "less cause for immediate anxiety" about his right foot.

The king was forced last week to cancel all public engagements and postpone a winter trip to Australia because of an obstruction to the blood flow in his right leg. According to the bulletin, the forced rest and relief from long hours of standing have helped the king, but the restoration of circulation will take months.

Doctors had intimated last week that the foot might have to be amputated. Palace sources said however, that amputation was unlikely at present.

Buerger's Disease
The bulletin, like the first one last week, failed to name the illness, but an authoritative source said it definitely had been diagnosed as Buerger's disease.

This causes inflammation and constriction of the arteries and by shutting off the blood flow can result in gangrene in the limbs. It is found almost exclusively in middle-aged males.

Prof. John R. Learmonth, former Mayo clinic surgeon and Britain's leading authority on Buerger's disease, was said to be in "constant attendance" on the king.

Issued after a two and one-half hour visit by five royal physicians, the bulletin was more optimistic than palace observers had expected. It was understood that heart specialist Sir Maurice Cassidy had given the king a thorough examination and he was believed to have authored the phrase, "improvement in the general health of the king is apparent."

SUI Lecturer Writes Novel on Marriage

By JO WRIGHT

A bachelor write a book on modern marriage? Yes, it's been done—by Hubert Creekmore, visiting lecturer and consultant in SUI's writers' workshop this year. His book is the recently published novel, "The Welcome."

A man who has just written a novel on marriage finds himself answering the question, "Are you married?" more often than any other, Creekmore mourned.

Not "Natural"
And he won't agree with you that it's a natural question to ask. "After all, you don't ask a writer of murder mysteries if he's a murderer, do you?" the author asked with a big smile.

"I've found only one person who has approved when I've admitted I'm a bachelor," he said. "He was a Frenchman who is married, and he said, 'Fine! you are just the one to write about marriage.'" Creekmore doesn't know whether the Frenchman's view resulted from the fact that he is married or from a national quirk. The dark, curly-haired author said he spent a year and a half writing this novel, which is his second.

"Seven months of that was straight work and I did nothing else," he said. The rest of the time he worked on the book at night.

Asked if he followed schedules or formulas for turning out work, Creekmore said that he did not. "I did tell myself I had a certain amount to get done, and must work so much in order to do it—well, as you see, I didn't finish it in seven months anyway."

Creekmore's first novel was "Finger of Night." "It's not a mystery story as you might think from that title," he explained. It's about religious bigotry and the title is symbolical.

Poetry Published

He has also had four books of poetry published. One is "Personal Sin," which was once called "Personal Sin" in a newspaper. Creekmore recalled with a laugh. The others are "Stone Anns," "Formula" and "The Long Reprieve," which was called the "biggest and best" by its author. Something of Creekmore's background can be detected in his accent. He was born and raised in Mississippi. After graduating from the university of Mississippi he went to the Yale drama school. He studied playwriting there.

He received his masters degree in American literature from Columbia. After that he worked for the veterans' administration, the social security board and the WPA during the depression. And don't forget to include the navy among my employers, he smiled.

Offered Job Here

Creekmore came to Iowa because, "They offered me a job." He resigned in June from a position with New Directions publishing house. "I had planned to live in a garret on beautiful dream and an empty stomach," said the writer, who is built like a football player.

SUI's writing program is well known in the east, he said. "All the publishing houses know what you are doing here because they are publishing the work of so many former Iowa students," he pointed out.

The writer said he is not working on another novel while he's here. He is translating two books and finishing an anthology of the world's best poetry for the Little Treasury series.

"That's my big job now—all I have to do is read all the poetry in the world and choose the best," he smiled.

This isn't the only instance when Creekmore must decide what is good or bad writing. He does Sunday book reviews for the New York Times, too.

Polio List Drops to 9, Report One New Patient

The active polio list at University hospitals dropped from 10 to 9 yesterday. One new patient was reported but two patients were transferred to the inactive ward.

The new patient is Mrs. Pauline Troster, 33, Corydon. She was admitted to University hospitals Friday in "fair" condition.

Keith Hoyt, 11, Van Horn, and DeWayne Cerd, 2, New Hampton, were transferred to the inactive ward yesterday.

Prof. Moeller to Speak At Iowa Press Meeting

Social or Otherwise—

A new fraternity has been born at Amherst. The group originally was a chapter of the national social fraternity Phi Kappa Psi.

The old chapter was suspended for what was termed "unfraternal conduct." Howard L. Hamilton, Columbus, Ohio, as national president of the fraternity took the action and a meeting of the executive council Sunday upheld the action.

This was done for the sake of harmony. It is time that the dissenters in our nation found out just how far they can go. A few "test cases" like this one could pretty securely establish a social Mason-Dixon line in most activities.

If there is any doubt about the purposes of a fraternity here is the statement issued by the council which upheld the Amherst chapter's suspension:

"The fraternity is primarily a social organization and the executive council found that the overwhelming majority of its chapters and alumni associations is firmly opposed to such initiation."

Then what is the storm about? If our little social groups choose not to take a Negro or an Oriental or an Indian into their ranks, is there cause for concern?

If these groups make any protestations of brotherly affection and concern and at the same time hold to arbitrary membership requirements they are not true to their own principles. "Fraternal conduct" can mean complete inequality as defined by clerical dogma and governmental law.

But supposing the fraternity system in our nation's colleges and universities is not merely a "social organization" as this executive council defined it?

L. G. Balfour of Attleboro, Mass., said recently that the American college fraternity system is "stronger and better than ever before."

He adds: "It has been finally recognized that this system is basically the most democratic slice of American life and that it has no substitute as a character building agency which creates enduring friendships."

About the much-discussed opposition to the fraternal systems, Balfour has this to say: "The opposition now is a voice in the wilderness, a voice unable to distinguish between the democracy of the U.S.A. and the so-called democracy of the U.S.S.R."

This establishes much higher concerns and aims for the fraternities than "primarily—social organization." It is interesting that Balfour made his statement as chairman of the Interfraternity Research and Advisory Council. There is also an L. G. Balfour company at Attleboro, large suppliers of fraternity and sorority jewelry.

Balfour's comments on the size and activity of fraternities are supported by the fact that there are 76 national academic fraternities with a million and a half members and property valued at more than a quarter of a billion dollars in the U.S. today.

Balfour's "democratic slice of American life" is in for a bad time after the suspension of the Amherst chapter. The effect of this group's being drawn into the national race discrimination arguments does not establish fraternities as "character building agencies."

Before this becomes a blanket indictment against all Phi Kappa Psi or against all fraternities—there is evidence from the stand by the Amherst group that character is built by overcoming opposition. From what evidence could be gathered here, the Phi Kappa Psi chapter on the SU1 campus was not in accord with the national ruling; but actually opposed the Amherst suspension.

The National Interfraternity council a few days ago made a statement on this same affair.

In effect, this group upheld the fraternity council's action, but at the same time decided the reasons for considering this suspension necessary.

The logic used by many of the opponents of the Amherst chapter's action was that the fraternity would lose prestige if it accepted a Negro. It scarcely follows that in the day of FEPC and agitation for civil rights legislation any group is going to be frowned upon for giving the American constitution a vote of confidence.

The social factors of fraternity life, however, must be considered since that is the definition one national executive put on fraternities. If that is the fraternity end-all, its effect on American thinking can not be considered as wholly effective.

The fact is that fraternities go far in forming prejudices and attitudes in people just emerging from youth.

They should accept the challenge to meet the nation's problems if anyone has the courage to call them "most democratic slice of American life."

Sports in Today's Germany— Political Tangles Slowing Comeback

(Gerhard Coellen, German veteran and present resident of Hamburg writes his views of post-war German sports in this letter to an SU1 student. The Daily Iowan has previously printed Coellen's impression of the German financial situation. In this article on German sports, the writer believes that demoralizing Germany should include fostering athletic activities.)

German sports had a leading position in Europe before the war. This may be due to the great assistance and support which they received from the government, which spent much money for promotion, sports grounds, sports articles, etc.

I would only recall the wonderful Olympic games of 1936 in Berlin, which were a great triumph of the German sports world as Germany won most of all medals. And the Olympic stadium at Berlin seems to be the most beautiful sports ground of the world.

I would like to remember that the German motor race cars of Mercedes-Benz and Auto-Union were leading in the race sport before the war, which our champion Rosenteyer won.

However, one cannot deny that the support which the Third Reich gave to sports was to a certain degree due to propaganda reasons. Nevertheless, German sports never before had reached such a high point.

Then the war came, during which time games more and more pined away. When the war was lost, the German sports fully broke down. All clubs had been forbidden by the military governments, and permission to re-open them was given about the middle of 1945.

The development in the various zones differs rapidly; namely, in the Russian zone there has been established another kind of organization of the clubs than in the British or American zones in which the old names were resurrected. And as to the French zone, I read in a newspaper a few weeks ago that its military government has granted permission to resume gymnastics with apparatus.

At any rate, that is a remarkable progress 3-12 years after finishing the war. But there are not only the restrictions the military governments have laid upon the German sports—a vast obstacle for the final impulse are the zonal borders to the Russian and to the French zone which had made a general sporting event impossible.

We can only hope that the French zone will be amalgamated into the British and American zones also in respect to sports activities.

Besides these hindrances it must not be forgotten that, with the exception of a few, the preponderant part of the German population was and still is undernourished so it is a wonder that there is a general sporting activity and the enthusiasm is unexampled.

There is also the point of sports outfittings. There are no shoes, no balls, sports togs, the grounds were in bad shape and so it goes. I am glad to say that these things have become something better, but it is quite clear that a pair of trousers is more important than a tennis racket, especially now after the currency reform.

The present participation of Germany is a fact and the difficulties the sports suffer here are indeed great ones. Nevertheless, the German sports men were of good hope that the international sports would be resumed with Germany after the war.

It was foreseen that this would not be the case within one or two weeks after armistice, but the general feeling was that in the course of a certain time Germany would be allowed to enter the international arena.

However, that was a vain hope, for the international sports organizations have strictly forbidden their members any contact with the Germans. No country got permission to send teams to us although there were several nations which proposed to re-introduce Germany into the world community of sport. The most negative votes came, of course, from our ex-enemies.

The Olympic Games in London last summer were a new hope for us; but the same nations which assured us every day that they would do their best to help us and to democratize Germany refused this country as a participant. They had threadbare reasons and I cannot help to deem it a very poor comprehension of fairness to act in such a manner.

Politics and economical competitive reasons may be arguments for a suppression of our people, but that the same measures were taken against us also on the sports basis was a great disappointment to all of us.

What has sport to do with politics, and if so even the resumption of international sport would be a keystone for a sound democratic development of our country. The feeling of being expelled does not promote this thought.

Consequently, the interest of Germans to foreign sports affairs is very small and I cannot remember any Olympic games which were of such disinterest to all people here than the last.

A new ray of hope arose when news was spread that Swiss and Swedish sports men would break the blockade. Actually they arrived in Germany, although their international organizations have forbidden to do so, and although they will have perhaps difficulties. But they were sports men who made light of it.

A few weeks ago the Swiss were the first. They came with three football teams who played versus three German town teams. All three Swiss teams have been beaten which of course was a satisfaction to the Germans whereas as the joy about their coming at all was paramount.

Sweden intended to send over athletes of a Malmo club who were to start in Hamburg and Bremen. Before their start was made possible red tape ran at high speed. Only the American liaison officer at Bremen (he is of Swedish extraction) made it possible at the last minute for them to appear.

In mid-October the North Express reached Hamburg with the Swedish team including some Olympic champions. They were welcomed enthusiastically and their appearance was a great success. The guests won the endurance and obstacle race, whereas the Germans were more successful in short distances. There was also hammer throwing and spearthrowing.

The Swedish as well as the Swiss sportsmen have now sent invitations to their German comrades but it is not yet clear when they can follow same as the season for athletic games has passed now. Probably it will take place next spring or summer and the German sports men are thankful to those nations with which fairness and good will have been carried though.

No doubt, one day Germany will be enjoying the same rights in the international sports.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

A Private Question Now

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

I do not believe any great public passion will develop around the question of whether the Republicans are going to appoint some liberal to be their voice in congress, in place of Senator Taft. A few weeks or months ago, this would have seemed a matter of great importance. The naming of a liberal Republican as party spokesman would have been a great victory for the people.

But a dynamic change has taken place as a result of the election. As matters stand now, if the Republicans do not name a liberal spokesman, they will lose out; the people will not lose it. It is the Republican, not the popular, future which hangs in balance.

IF THEY don't want to do it, they don't want to do it, as the saying goes. And the populace will not wait for bulletins nor will it shed tears. The choice is entirely up to the GOP. If it prefers to remain in the glue in which it found itself stuck on election day, that is on the whole a private choice of the party bigwigs, invested with only faint, if any public interest.

If the Republican liberals, such as Senator Aiken, of Vermont, really wish to transform their party (and I repeat that this is a matter of rather more importance to them than to the people) they will have to behave a little bit more as if the iron had entered their souls.

They could take a lesson from President Truman, who, when the showdown came, was not afraid of open breaks with those fragments of his party with which it turned out to be impossible to get along. He won a new Democratic unity through division.

A coherent program turned out to be more of a party—building force than a desperate hanging on to the irreconcilables. There is only one thing to do with an irreconcilable and that is to refuse to be reconciled with him.

FOR THE plain truth is that, regardless of what decision the Republican party takes, whether to have liberal or conservative leadership, the people will not lose. The public is just not on the receiving end any more.

And it must be a hard thing, I feel, for the strategists of the GOP to understand this shift that has taken place. For the mistake the Republicans made during the last election was not just the surface one of guessing wrong as to how the totals would come out. It was a mistake of a much deeper order; it was like a mistake in noting which way a stream flows, or a wind blows. It was a mistake in orientation.

For years it must have seemed to the GOP that the center of national events lay within its councils, that events moved outward from this center as from a control room, that here the signals were given and the dials twisted to produce the national future.

IT NOW turns out that this wasn't the control room at all, that the dials were dummies, that events really flow the other way. What was supposed to be the center of the circle turns out to have been only a point on the circumference. The really woeful figure in the last election was the dogmatic congressman, full of the certainty that he was telling the world what life was going to be like in years to come, only to find in the end that he wasn't telling anybody anything, but was in fact merely learning of his own fate, by telegraph.

And so the question of what sort of leadership the Republican party is to have is no longer even a national question; it is a private question. It may determine what happens to the Republicans, but it cannot determine what happens to the nation.

And it is not altogether a bad principle for a democracy to set up, that, within reasonable limits, a mistake made by a public figure, shall, so far as possible, hurt only himself and nobody else.

Judge Asks Quiet Court 'Battle of Trees'

OSKALOOSA, IA. (AP)—District Judge Frank Bechly reopened the famed "battle of the trees" yesterday and he admonished participants to "take it easy."

As he began a hearing on the issue of whether to permanently prevent widening of Avenue A, Judge Bechly said:

"It is my hope that this hearing can be conducted pleasantly. I am going to start it in an easy manner. I am going to sit in the jury box and smoke my pipe. If it proves the case cannot be heard pleasantly, this court will be conducted in an exceedingly formal manner."

He said the need was for "prompt as possible" payment and for safeguards against "inaccurate claims."

Financing legislation, he said, should "provide for the retirement of the debt as rapidly as possible and within the next four to six years, while times are good and we still have some of the war profits."

South Dakotans Seek Ways to Finance Bonus

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Gov. George T. Mickelson suggested three possible ways for financing a state World War II veterans bonus, including a one percent increase in the sales tax.

The governor said financing the bonus will be the main job of the 1949 legislature.

He said the need was for "prompt as possible" payment and for safeguards against "inaccurate claims."

Financing legislation, he said, should "provide for the retirement of the debt as rapidly as possible and within the next four to six years, while times are good and we still have some of the war profits."

McBride's Haul

By BILL MCBRIDE

In most cases I feel quite at home with the English language. Recently, however, it would seem that grammar and I are straying apart. It is hard to tell if it is because of something I have done, or if grammar is beginning to fray at the edges a bit. I prefer to believe the latter.

Only the other day I heard an after-dinner speaker say, "To whom does Mr. Stalin think he is?" Unfortunately I fell into a light slumber at this point, failing to hear the rest of the talk. I have a suspicion that "to whom" is correct, but only because there once was a best-seller entitled "To Whom the Bell Tolls."

Now the old question of whether or not book titles can be trusted as guides to better English grammar rears again. Take Gregor Kiso's latest novel, "Dime and Nourishment." There doesn't appear to be anything grammatically wrong with that title from the surface.

But when you know that Kiso's father, Jose Kiso, was a Cosack turned Communist it takes on an entirely different color, doesn't it? You just can't rely upon book titles to pull out of embarrassing grammar situations any more.

If Corporal Jose Kiso had come to this country in 1918 and opened a laundry, his son's grammar might have improved considerably.

It can be summed up in that old Chinese proverb, "For the want of a horse." Evidently the Chinese weren't so hot on this grammar business either, since that most certainly is not a complete sentence.

However, one can hardly expect Chinese to be perfectionists in English grammar... they speak another language.

An article published in an English newspaper recently stated that much of the English language is derived from Latin and Spanish. That should be sufficient proof that we need to seriously consider a complete overhaul job on our language.

Latin, as everyone knows, is a dead language. Since that is the case, we are patronizing a vocabulary which turned out to be a total failure for its founders. If Caesar couldn't make it work, I certainly don't feel up to struggling with it.

As for Spanish... I have nothing personal against it. As long as it stays in its place (in Spain) there will be no room for argument.

After a full year of habbing Espanol, I found there was nothing in Spanish that I couldn't say equally as well in my native tongue.

A brief note from an Agent in Des Moines (a Yale man) started me on this train of thought. Although the message was so brief that the fellow can hardly qualify for more than an apprentice Agent status at this time, it did serve to inspire serious thought.

Perhaps a small but strong organization could aid in subduing some of the confusion. A statement, such as "Every day throw a word away," could be the motto.

SUI Lutherans Plan to Adopt German Group

The SUI Lutheran Student Association has adopted the student Christian group at the university at Göttingham, Germany. The greatest part of the adoption is to consist of correspondence between the two student organizations.

Miss Fern Bohlken, Lutheran student center director, said yesterday when students here begin correspondence with a German student he is committed not to stop. The success or failure of the adoption depends wholly on the enthusiasm and support of the students participating, she added.

German students, Miss Bohlken said, are hungry for correspondence and moral support from students outside of Germany. She said the failure of the plan might be a great moral blow to the corresponding German students.

The Lutheran Student association adopted the university at Göttingham upon the recommendation of Miss Ruth Wick, executive assistant of the student service commission of the National Lutheran council. Miss Wick became acquainted with the group and the pastor who directs it while she was in Europe this summer.

On Dec. 12 the Lutheran Student association will collect items of packaged food and clothing from members of the organization to send to the students in Germany.

Must Apply Before Dec. 6 for Degree

Students expecting to graduate in February won't get to unless they apply for a degree before the deadline Monday.

Applications for all degrees must be filed at the office of the registrar before 5 p.m. Dec. 6, Registrar Ted McCarrel said yesterday.

Students neglecting to apply for a degree by the deadline will have to wait until June to graduate, he said.

Diplomas are ordered from the class roll, McCarrel explained. If students don't apply for a degree they aren't on the roll.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

ZEKE POPPIN and his wife were the stingiest and ornery couple in Ogunquit. Zeke died at the age of 88, and a few years later it became apparent that his wife was about to join him somewhere or other in the beyond. She summoned her one friend and said weakly, "Hetty, bury me in my black taffeta dress, but afore you do, might as well cut the back out and make yourself a Sunday-go-to-meetin' gown out of it. It's fine material!"

"Couldn't do that," demurred the friend. "When you and Zeke walk up them golden stairs what would them angels say if your dress ain't got a back in it?"

"They won't be lookin' at me," said Mrs. Poppin tartly. "I buried Zeke without his pants."

Colonel Corn wires (collect) to inquire if any of us have heard of the fellow who changed his name to Waldorf Astoria so it would be the same name he had on his towels?

Gage to Observe Muscatine Parade

A pervue of Iowa City's forthcoming Christmas holiday festival will be witnessed today in Muscatine by Robert Gage, secretary to the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

He will observe the Muscatine showing of the Jay Gould Santa Claus parade and street circus, which will come to Iowa City, Dec. 21.

Featuring Santa Claus, clowns and trained animal acts, the Gould production will be sponsored locally by the retail trade division of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

While in Muscatine, Gage will be the guest of Bernard McKean, manager of the Muscatine chamber.

To Test School Opportunities

One hundred and forty - three thousand Iowa pupils in 99 counties are to be tested to determine the equality of educational opportunity in the elementary schools of the state.

The testing program will be administered during January in 978 school systems, including 33,000 rural students, third through eighth grade, and in a few out-of-state, private and parochial schools.

The Iowa testing programs at SUI, working with the Iowa state department of public instruction, will conduct the survey.

Director of the program, Prof. A. N. Hieronymus, said twelve classifications, based on enrollment and organization, have been established to make possible a comparison of the relative achievements of schools of various sizes and types.

In addition a state-wide comparison of pupil averages for schools in each of the twelve classifications will be made.

The primary purpose of this annual testing program is to enable teachers and school officials to become more intimately and reliably acquainted with the eduational capabilities of each pupil in reading, work-study, language and arithmetic skills.

Another purpose is to provide the school administrator with a more objective and dependable basis for evaluating the total educational offering of his school.

Dr. Helen Dawson Authors New Text

Dr. Helen L. Dawson, assistant professor of anatomy and histology, is the author of a new histology text published recently by the Balistion Publishing company.

The text is a revised edition of Lambert's Histology, An Introduction and Guide. Designed for beginning students, it includes laboratory directions.

Jack Oris, graduate photography student, and F. W. Kent, university photographer, helped illustrate Dr. Dawson's text with photomicrographs. Other illustrations were provided by Dr. Dean M. Lierle, professor and head of otolaryngology.

SUI Alumnus Has

Operation Televised

— In Los Angeles

As Dr. Clarence J. Berne moved the scalpel at General hospital Oct. 18, the Los Angeles Times television station (KTTV) telecast his movements across Los Angeles to the American College of Surgeons assembled at the Hotel Biltmore.

First of Kind This transmission marks the first of its kind attempted on the west coast and the third in medical history.

Since his graduation from SUI in 1927, Berne has become professor of surgery at the University of Southern California.

He was an intern in surgery here at University hospitals from 1927 to 1929, an assistant in surgery from 1929 to 1930 and as instructor in surgery from 1930 to 1932. He is a former resident of Hartley, Iowa.

As Berne performed the two and one-half hour operation, Dr. John R. Paxton, Los Angeles, described it over a portable microphone.

A few feet above the operating table one television "eye" looked down on the incision itself. A video camera placed in the observers' gallery gave an overall view while a third camera flashed general views of the 15th floor surgical department.

Engineer 'Mixed' Images Down the corridor an engineer "mixed" the images at a monitoring panel. A directional beam carried the telecast to the Biltmore's Philharmonic auditorium where hundreds of the nation's top surgeons saw the image on a 6 by 8 foot screen.

After the operation General hospital director Phoebe Berman said he thinks the day is not far distant when important operations will be telecast from coast to coast.

'Limitless Possibilities' "The teaching possibilities of this are limitless," said Dr. E. J. Joergenson, secretary of the hospital surgical committee. "A better view than is possible to observers actually present, plus a magnified image, are some of the advantages."

Private TV sets in Los Angeles were unable to pick up the telecast.
