Mme. Chiang In Washington To Seek Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek reached the capital yesterday to set off an urgent new campaign by the Chinese Nationalists for firmer American backing against their Communist foes.

China's first lady was flippant on her own immediate plans. But Ambassador Wellington Koo, shortly after a hurried conference with her, voiced a plea for help before it is "too late."

With the Communists sweeping almost to Nanking, Koo declared in a speech in New York that all Asia as well as China was in peril of falling behind the Iron Curtain. He said this might increase a "hundredfold" the burden on the United States "as the leader of freedom's crusade."

Without spelling out what help the Nationalists require, he said they were ready to accept "corruption proof" American control of any new aid spending. Koo flew to New York for the address before the China institute and arranged to return to the capital last night.

Madame Chiang, smiling but silent, stepped from her plane and went immediately to the nearby Leesburg, Va., home of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Marshall.

Koo and Dr. H. H. Kung, former Nanking prime minister, motored to Leesburg to confer with her. Top officials of the administration, apparently cool to her dramatic unofficial mission, were missing when Madame Chiang stepped from President Truman's former personal plane, the Sacred Cow, at the end of a three day flight from Shanghai.

Mr. Truman was represented by Col. Robert Landry, his air force aide, and the state department by W. Walton Butterworth, chief of its office of far eastern affairs.

Chinese diplomatic and other officials, headed by the ambassador and Dr. Kung, were on hand in full force.

There was none of the fanfare she was accorded when she came to the capital in wartime 1942 and addressed Congress.

After her arrival, Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said there had been no request for an appointment for Madame Chiang with Mr. Truman.

Sees Antidote For Radiation

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Chicago scientist predicted last night that the world eventually will have a protective remedy from radiation poisoning due to atomic bomb blasts.

Dr. Robert D. Boche spoke on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the atomic age.

Basing his prediction on recent research in radiation, he said the antidote may come "in our lifetime."

Six years ago today a group of scientists, including famed Italian physicist Enrico Fermi, huddled in a concrete squash court under the university's athletic stadium.

They watched a "pile" of bricks and rods hum into action. The first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction was born. From this test came the atomic bomb.

Boche said he found in research last month that when healthy single-celled organisms are placed in a fluid which has been exposed to nuclear radiation, all the cells die. But he said, only some of the cells died when they are radiated directly and placed in a non-radiated fluid.

"This means that a portion of radiation injury is indirect," Boche said. "Our job is to discover what chemical combination is produced and then neutralize it."

Boche said the discovery should come "in our lifetime—if we find it soon enough."

"The answer might even be a pill, which would make it quite simple," Boche said.

Wounded Chinese Nationalists Leave Front — STRETCHER BEARERS carry wounded Chinese Nationalist troops to a rear-line first aid station. This picture was taken Nov. 25 during the fighting on the Suchow front. Yesterday it appeared that 350,000 of these government troops were trapped around Suchow. As a result, a new line of defense was being set up only 100 miles from Nanking and government officials were preparing to evacuate that city.

Ready Nanking Defense

By HAROLD K. MILKS
NANKING (AP) — With 350,000 government troops trapped on the Suchow front, a thin new defense line was thrown up yesterday only 100 miles from shaken Nanking.

The capital seemed to have scant faith in the new line, manned by but 80,000 soldiers. Officials packed. Archives were boxed. Diplomats expected official word within 24 hours that the city is no longer safe.

Chinese official sources in Shanghai said an "auxiliary" capital will be set up at Canton, on the south-China coast. They denied, however, that Nanking is being abandoned by the government.

The new defense line against the Communist offensive is being dug along the south bank of the Hwai river. It will be anchored on Pengpu, about 105 miles up the railway from Nanking.

Reports from the front said the bulk of 80,000 men in the sixth and eighth army groups man the line. Most of them are recruits, or remnants of veteran armies of the lost Manchurian campaign.

A part of this force is holding a salient 10 miles deep on the north bank opposite Pengpu. This is an exit for any troops that may fight free of the massive trap south of Suchow.

The Hwai river, if it could be adequately defended, is a great military barrier. At places it is wider than the Yangtze. It is the string of a necklace of lakes on the plains north of Nanking.

Neutral military observers reported that 100,000 Communist veterans of Gen. Chen Yi's east China armies are sweeping south, hoping to encircle and destroy the two army groups before they can fortify the river line.

Meager reports shroud the fate of the 350,000 first-line troops caught in the Communist net south of Suchow, which is 211 miles northwest of Nanking. Here is the best available picture:

The 250,000-man garrison of Suchow has been stalled 25 miles south of the city in an attempt to fight free and rejoin the battle to save Nanking.

Units of the second and sixteenth army groups from Suchow were in the spearhead which struck against a hard line of Communist resistance. The thirteenth army group was following the other two.

Four Children Perish In Second Iowa Fire

CHEROKEE (AP) — Four children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duvall burned to death in a farm fire yesterday. It was the second such Iowa tragedy in two days.

Five other children were at school when the Duvall home a mile and a half southeast of Cherokee caught fire and burned to the ground.

The children were alone in the house when trapped by the flames.

The father was at work in the fields and the mother had gone to the home of her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Duvall, who live about 75 feet away from the Charles Duvall home.

Origin of the fire was not known.

The home was a two-room, one story frame dwelling. It had been built of two wooden grain bins fastened together and covered with asphalt siding. It was completely destroyed.

The parents said the baby was asleep on the bed when the mother went next door and the other children were dressed.

The four bodies were burned and it took nearly two hours to recover the remains.

Tuesday morning four children died in a fire at Ottumwa when fire attributed to a defective flue broke out while four children were sleeping. They too were alone at the time. Their mother had gone across the street to deliver some mail.

The Duvall fire was discovered when a neighbor, Ray Smith, driving along Highway 5, saw flames shooting from the little house. The mother and grandfather of the children then tried to enter but flames shot from the door and they were not able to get inside.

The Cherokee fire department was called, but didn't answer the call as the home is outside the city limits.

Communists Interrupt Berlin Political Rally

Auto-Borne Raiders Invade 2 Factories, Destroy Equipment

KALAMAZOO, MICH. (AP) — An auto-borne band of 300 raiders invaded two struck factories early yesterday, overturned and burned vehicles, beat up workmen and smashed equipment.

Michigan's top-ranking police officer said the speed and precision with which the military-style foray was carried out hinted of "a possible Communist tinge."

After a flying trip to the scene with Governor Kim Sigler, state Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard told newsmen the possible Communist angle would not be overlooked in a widespread investigation.

Gov. Sigler, other state officials and Kalamazoo Police Chief Howard Hoyt blamed "union goons" for the sudden, forceful assault. Sigler demanded a one-man grand jury to investigate the invasion. Arrangements were rushed so that such a jury could start its inquiry today.

There was no direct comment from the CIO united steel workers, who have been on strike at the two plants of the Shakespeare companies since Sept. 7 in a demand for contract changes.

The raiders hurled bricks through windows, smashed parked cars, set a milk truck afire and swarmed into the factories to wreck equipment.

Then, with commando-like precision, they re-formed a 40-car motor caravan and fled the city in the gloom of early dawn.

Mobs Riot in Syria As Cabinet Resigns

BEIRUT, LEBANON (AP) — The Syrian cabinet resigned yesterday. Three persons were killed and 52 injured as troops clashed with mobs which swept through the streets of Damascus crying for resumption of the Palestine war.

This information was relayed to Beirut by correspondents in the Syrian capital. They said the situation was critical following the resignation of the government headed by Premier Jamil Mardam Bey.

Anti-Communists Urge Voters Turn Out for Free Elections

BERLIN (AP) — Communist hecklers precipitated a violent fist fight in western Berlin last night when they tried to break up a political rally.

It was the first outbreak since a Communist-called meeting in the Soviet sector Tuesday declared the regular city government out of office and elected a new Communist regime by a show of hands.

An audience of several hundred in Neukolln was being urged last night by Social Democrat speaker to turn out a big vote against Communism in next Sunday's elections when Communist hecklers interrupted.

A dozen men began throwing punches. German police, with the enthusiastic aid of Social Democrats, threw the rowdies out of the hall. Outside the hecklers sang the "Internationale." There were no arrests.

Scores of similar rallies are scheduled for the remainder of this week in all parts of western Berlin, and west German police have been alerted to keep order.

Police said there was no way of telling whether last night's hecklers came from the Soviet sector of Berlin since none was arrested. Berliners are still free to circulate from one sector to another.

The western military governments announced last night that no member of the police can engage in any political activity beyond mere party membership.

Meanwhile, Communists began entrenching themselves in the city hall in eastern Berlin.

They locked the regular mayor out of his office in the Soviet sector, piled his furniture in the corridor, tore his name off the door and prepared to install the Communist regime chosen Tuesday.

The freely elected city council countered by declaring null and void any of its executive officers who participated in naming the rival Communist government.

Meeting in the British sector, the council demanded the resignation of such officials who are members of the Social Unity (Communist dominated) party.

The resolution, which was understood to be aimed at a deputy mayor and a leading assemblyman, also took away most of the party rights of Social Unity members of the city council.

The division of Berlin along east-west lines was thus solidified following the action of the Communists Tuesday in setting up their new city administration headed by Friedrich Ebert.

West Reminder — PARIS (AP) — The United States, Great Britain and France reminded Russia yesterday that they reserve full right to take such measures as may be necessary to protect their position in Berlin.

They said also that they must see and study any report by United Nations security council experts on the Berlin currency situation before they approve it.

Bell Phone System Seeks $240-Million In Rate Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Telephone and Telegraph company disclosed yesterday that its Bell system subsidiaries have applications pending for a total of $240-million a year in new rate increases.

Rate increases already granted to Bell companies since the war, company officials said, now total $170-million a year.

The pending applications, covering 29 states, include second and third round boosts in some states.

Expansions Percentages — The rate boosts thus far approved by state regulatory commissions and municipalities, A.T. and T. spokesmen said in an interview, represent an increase averaging about 14 percent of the gross total of customers' bills for local service and to toll calls to points within their own states.

If the full amounts of the pending applications should be granted, they said, the average would be 22 percent. If you include interstate long distance service which has not gone up, it would be only 17 percent, they added.

Cite High Costs — Company officials called these increases modest in relation to their own higher costs and to price increases in general since the war. They added that of the $170-million a year increase already granted, Bell companies would receive about $100-million after taxes, and the same proportion would apply to future grants.

The percentages were applied to the overall telephone bill of all Bell system customers. Because of the varying charges for different types of service and the differing rates of increases asked in various states, the individual customer might find his own bill had gone up slightly or considerably.

Palestine Plan Gains Ground

PARIS (AP) — The United Nations political committee last night adopted the first parts of the American-supported British plan which would set up a commission to help Arabs and Jews negotiate their own boundaries in Palestine.

Moving slowly toward a solution after three weeks of debate, the committee approved the first four out of 30 paragraphs of the British resolution creating a conciliation commission to promote final peace in the Holy Land.

The committee however refused to reaffirm last year's partition boundaries, voting down an Australian proposal to make the original plan the "starting point" of any UN effort to bring Arabs and Jews to a settlement. The vote was 24 to 13 with 12 abstentions.

Earlier, the United States, speaking out in support of Britain's new proposals, told Israel in effect that if it wants to keep conquered western Galilee it might have to give up at least part of the Negev.

The committee adjourned last night with the most important paragraphs still to be voted upon, but the trend appeared to be toward approval of the British plan.

Frank Noyes, 85, Veteran Journalist, Dies in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Messages of condolence on the death of Frank B. Noyes, pioneer in the field of modern news gathering, streamed in from all quarters of the nation yesterday.

The 85-year-old journalist, one of the organizers of the present Associated Press and its president for 38 years, died at his home earlier yesterday. He was the former president of the Washington Star, and chairman of the newspaper's board of directors until his death.

In a letter of sympathy to the family President Truman singled out Noyes as a "dominating figure, who has been a power in American journalism from the turn of the century."

Members of Mr. Truman's cabinet, other high figures in government, and newspapermen from near and far joined in the expressions of grief for the veteran publisher.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., of the house of representatives, himself a publisher, called Noyes' death "a major loss to Washington and to the country."

Attorney General Clark characterized him as "a great American" who always was in the forefront of progressive movements.

Says People's Army Invades South Korea — SEOUL, KOREA (AP) — Seoul Police Chief Kim Tai Sun said yesterday that the Soviet-sponsored north Korean people's army has invaded south Korea in force. He ordered police to shoot down Communist agitators "without hesitation."

A government spokesman, meanwhile, said that more than 40 soldiers from north Korea attacked the police station at Kaesung city, two miles south of the frontier.

Justice, Walker Top Backs

By FRANK ECK (AP) Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—A pair of terrific triple-threat men and two fleet-footed backs who excel on end sweeps comprise the high powered backfield of The Associated Press all-America football team announced yesterday.

The boys who have been doing everything possible with the ever elusive pigskin are Charlie (Choo) Justice of North Carolina and Doak Walker of Southern Methodist.

Their running mates are Bobby Jack Stuart of Army and Art Murakowski of Northwestern's Rose bowl-bound Wildcats.

And if this quartet wanted for additional offensive strength a coach of such talented array could always turn to the ends,

George Barney Poole of Mississippi and Dick Rifenburg of Michigan's undefeated Wolverines.

The remainder of the veritable stonewall known as the line includes Tackle Leo Nomellini of Minnesota and Bill (Moose) Fischer of Notre Dame, Guards Ron Franz if unbeaten California and Paul (Buddy) Burris of Oklahoma and Center Charles (Chuck) Bednarik of Pennsylvania.

Speed is the keynote of the backfield which averages but 176 pounds. However, with such a front wall maybe the backs would need no speed for the line averages 220 pounds with Rifenburg the lightest at 197 and Nomellini the heaviest at 250.

Walker, Fischer and Bednarik repeated from the 1947 team.

To the Midwest again goes the honor of placing the most collegians on the team. Four hail from that sector while two are from the east, two from the south, two from out of the southwest and one from the Pacific coast.

While Justice and Walker were unanimous choices, three other players—Rifenburg, Fischer and Burris—drew wide acclaim from the hundreds of Associated Press staff writers, newspaper sports editors, broadcasters and coaches who assisted the nominations.

Michigan and Notre Dame, rated the top two teams in the country throughout the season, and California, unbeaten Rose bowl host, are the only eleven to place more than one man on the 33-man squad.

Besides Fischer, Notre Dame's Emil Sitko is a second team back and Leon Hart a third team end. Michigan has Rifenburg on the first eleven and Back Charles (Chuck) Ortman with the second team while California has, in addition to Franz, Jackie Jensen, as third team back.

While the "two-platoon" system was in vogue this season because of the unlimited substitution rule, only three players on the first team saw part-time action. They are Justice of North Carolina, Stuart of Army and Rifenburg, Michigan's wingman.

Michigan, Irish Place Two Each On UP All-Star First Team

By LEO H. PETERSEN United Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—The Midwest, with five players, thanks to the powerhouse clubs of Michigan and Notre Dame, dominates the 1948 United Press all-America football team selected yesterday by sports writers and sports broadcasters from every section of the country.

Two players each from the far west and the southwest and one each from the east and south rounded out the club made up of the finest players at their positions this year.

Michigan and Notre Dame, two of the nation's undefeated and untied major teams, placed two players each, while California, a third perfect record eleven came up with one. Only Clemson of that select undefeated, untied group failed to land a berth on the all-star eleven.

Iowa Cagers Overpower Omaha, 64-44

REACHING FOR THE BALL early in the Hawkeyes' successful season opener are Al Weiss (22) of Iowa and Archie Arvin (23) and Guy Oberg of Omaha. Ray Schmidt (24), Omaha, seems to have Weiss pretty well tangled up as Don Hays, Iowa, moves in from the right and Glenn Dille, Iowa, looks on from the rear. Iowa won the game last night, 64 to 44.

Dille, Hays, Weiss, Mason Lead Hawks to Opening Win

By BUCK TURNBULL Sports Editor

In a dull season's opener Iowa's cagers overpowered Omaha university at the fieldhouse last night, 64-44. It was the 33rd straight home non-conference victory for the Hawkeyes.

Omaha, although seemingly never in the ball game, trailed by two points, 27-25, at the half time intermission before Coach Pops Harrison inserted his "tall boys" to push the game into a rout.

The giants of this year's Iowa squad, Glenn Dille, Al Weiss, Don Hays and Frank Calsbeek, gave hope to the estimated crowd of 9,500 that the 1949 Hawks may have a bright future in Big Nine action.

Parker Starts
Harrison opened the game with one surprise starter, Guard Tom Parker, along with four other veterans—Bob Schulz, guard, Roger Finley, center, and Charlie Mason and Floyd Magnusson, forwards.

He then substituted freely throughout the game as Iowa was never headed after the first three minutes.

Dille, 6-foot, 6 1/4-inch junior forward from Tulsa, Okla., pumped in six field goals, all in the second half, to lead the evening's scorers with 12 points. Center Guy Oberg paced the Indians from Nebraska with 11 points.

Charlie Mason, Iowa's scampering little 5-foot, 10-inch forward from Muscatine, throttled the nets for nine points during his appearance in the first half. Al Weiss, 6-4 sophomore from Chicago, a second half performer, also scored nine points and looked the role of a rugged Big Nine player.

Basket Foggy
The basket was foggy for both teams in the early stages of the contest. Omaha took a brief 2-1 lead on Oberg's hook shot following Mason's opening free throw.

Floyd Magnusson connected with a driving lay-up for the Hawks after three minutes had gone by, and that 3-2 lead was never relinquished.

LA Seniors Set Election Of Officers

Senior liberal arts students will elect class officers Dec. 10, the student council election committee said yesterday.

Balloting will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in Iowa Union lobby and first floor, north, Schaeffer hall. Only liberal arts seniors will be eligible to vote, the committee said.

They will vote for four of the proposed candidates. The candidates receiving the highest vote totals will become president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer in that order.

The slate of candidates will come from two sources.

1. A list of about 12 nominees presented by the committee at a nominating caucus for all liberal arts seniors at 4:30 p.m. Dec. 8, in the geology auditorium.

2. Additional nominations from the floor at the caucus.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will serve as clerks at the Dec. 10 election, the committee said.

The officers elected will serve the remainder of the school year and will represent all SUI liberal arts students.

Select Jury to Hear $2,750 Damage Suit Of J. L. Johnston

The second jury for the November term of Johnson county district court was selected yesterday afternoon for the trial of J. L. Johnston's $2,750 damage suit against Roy A. Williams.

Johnston filed the suit after the car he was driving and the one driven by Williams collided north of City Park bridge on Highway 218 last Sept. 2.

The plaintiff said he suffered cuts and bruises and two broken ribs.

Williams later filed a counterclaim asking $1,489.36 damages against Johnston for personal injuries and damage to his car. After conducting the early stages of the trial court was adjourned late yesterday until 9 a.m. today.

D.C. Nolan is attorney for the plaintiff while Will J. Hayek and Messer, Hamilton, Cahill and Bartley represent the defendant.

The eight men and four women jurors selected for the trial are Barbara Robbie, second ward; Charles Kuebrich, Hardin township; Nora Gosenberg, fifth ward; Melvin Knebel, Sharon township; Clifford Yoder, Sharon township; Charlie Doyle, Oxford; Mariah Christensen, second ward.

University High Group to Attend Meeting

Four delegates of University High organization will attend a district conference at Ottumwa Saturday, Club Advisor J.R. Skretting said yesterday.

Theme of the district conference, which covers the south and east part of the state, is program training.

Below-C's Busy Secretaries Prepare Reports

Many SUI students will be wearing long faces next week—or they should be. Mid-semester delinquency reports will be out.

Only below-C grades are listed on these reports which are being prepared for distribution by Secretaries Mrs. William Beeke, 21 N. Dodge, and Mrs. Ed McDaniel, 4435 Governor, in the liberal arts advisory office.

For two days they have been wrapped up in lengthy sheets of "dirty" carbon paper which are inserted between the long rolls of reports. They hope to have the reports ready for students and their advisors by the first of next week.

Students living in dormitories, sororities and fraternities will receive their reports from house proctors. Other students will be asked to pick up their reports at the liberal arts advisory office, 109 Schaeffer hall.

The college of commerce plans to distribute delinquency reports in the same manner. Date for picking up reports at that office had not been decided yesterday afternoon.

Announcement of the distribution dates will be made later in The Daily Iowan.

Pete Gets His Wish: Police Put Him in Jail

Old Pete had a long, hard argument but he finally talked Judge Emil C. Trot into sending him to jail yesterday. Displaying one badly blackened eye, Pete walked into police court yesterday and asked the Judge to send him to jail.

"I've heard of this happening, but I didn't believe it," Judge Trot said.

Then Pete explained that he was on a drinking bout and only a few days in jail would straighten him out. So they gave him the usual intoxication tests, most of which he passed. Finally when Pete kept insisting that he wanted to go to jail police decided he couldn't walk a line, and Pete's wish was granted. He was sentenced to five days in the county jail.

Industrial Hygienist Explains Control of Occupational Illness

Research and prevention are two of the most important factors in the control of occupational diseases, industrial hygienist Warren A. Cook told the Lions club at noon luncheon at Reich's cafe yesterday.

Cook is a representative of the division of industrial hygiene and engineering research with Zurich Accident and Liability Insurance company in Chicago. He said that many new occupational diseases, he said.

Industrial hygiene is a factor, Cook said, consists chiefly of analyzing the air and taking precautionary measures to purify it. Most industrial diseases, he added, are contracted from impure air because most occupational diseases enter the body through the lungs.

Cook said most occupational diseases are caused by gases given off by mixtures of chemicals, chemicals on metals and stone dusts. In recent years the development and manufacture of jet engines has introduced new factors that industrial hygienists have had to overcome to prevent new occupational diseases, he said.

Prof. Koebel —

Cellist Highlights Concert — Of Symphony

By DONALD KEY

Professor Hans Koebel, cellist, highlighted the second concert of the SUJ Symphonic orchestra with a brilliant performance of the Schumann cello concerto last night.

This work is one of the most difficult written for cello. The last movement, composed when Schumann was on the verge of his breakdown, demands the technique of a virtuoso, and Mr. Koebel played it not only with perfection but with inspiring artistry. Under his hand the cello seems to become alive. It speaks, sings, and, at times, the tone has the effect of filling the auditorium.

Two Encores
Professor Koebel was recalled for two encores. The first, "March," from the "Childrens Suite" by Prokofieff written for cello alone, "Requiem" by Gaspar Cassado was the second. Miss Katherine Rose accompanied the soloist for this last number. The orchestral side of the program consisted of the overture, "The Secret of Suzanne" by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari and the Tchaikovsky "Symphony in B minor (Pathetic)." The overture, a light and gay type of music, was played with sparkle and refinement. In this work the horns seemed to catch the mood and they gave a skillful performance, especially the third horn.

"Casual Reading"
The "Pathetic Symphony" of Tchaikovsky was given what appeared to be a casual reading. The string section, notably the higher strings, could not seem to get together and play as a unit. Someone was constantly starting ahead of the rest of the section and spoiling the precision. However the brass proved themselves a much better group than the first concert indicated. The balance there has shown a great improvement.

Still the finest work seems to be done by the woodwinds. They have a full rich tone and a professional assurance in their soloists. Indeed, this reviewer has heard many a professional orchestra that may well be envious of these woodwinds. The first clarinet and first bassoon were outstanding in their solo work.

Third Movement Better
The third movement of the symphony was done better than the others. This is the famous "march" where the mood of the symphony changes from the desolate to the triumphant. It is the ward Cowden, -op President, plains Program

Two hundred forty men and women—mostly farm people—were last night of a way they help provide for an economy but stability under the UN's terms in this country—through Consumers Cooperative association.

Edward S. Cowden, CCA president and general manager, said this at a dinner meeting in the Iowa City at which 26 eastern Iowa cooperatives were represented. It was the first time a CCA meeting was held in Iowa City. A regional wholesale cooperative made up of 300,000 member families. These members own CCA, and 1,511 local cooperatives in nine midwestern states.

Cowden asked the presidents of cooperatives to conduct a "crusade" during January to bring CCA to their neighbors. Cooperative consumers are workers for "economic democracy" in the middle west, he said. A cooperative president from Iowa said "lack of education is one of our co-op back because people 'don't understand cooperation is.'"

Refinement and distribution are the most important business activities of CCA. Among CCA's other ventures are its co-op and fertilizer stores, food stores and farm machinery

Since its beginning in 1929, CCA has accumulated 944 oil wells which supply the farmers with gasoline at a saving because they own it, he said. Last year's CCA savings totaled $8,300,000. This amount was distributed among the local cooperatives as a patronage refund, he explained. On an international basis, Cowden said the cooperative takes exploitation out of international oil transactions by leaving money in the country in which business is conducted. Cowden compared the Marshall plan with a group of boys playing marbles. In a marble game when one boy gets all the marbles, the game comes to a standstill until the boy redistributes the marbles. The Marshall plan gives European countries "marbles" in the form of credit and goods so they can get back into the game, he explained. Cowden said he thought the Marshall plan was doing a "swell job" under existing conditions. He added that a cooperative plan is also "good foreign policy" and would promote free flow of international trade.

Fuel Shortage Here

Phillips Warns Possible SUI Coal Shortage May Affect Heat, Power This Winter

You'll probably never have to sit in classes wearing full winter garb or write tests by flashlight, but there is a need for conservation of university fuel.

Supt. R. J. Phillips of the physical plant called upon students and faculty members yesterday to help conserve SUI's coal supply.

"By not wasting electricity, heat and even water, we can help eliminate the possibility of power shortages during the winter," he said.

He offered four suggestions:

1. Keep windows closed as much as possible.
2. Turn lights off when not in use.
3. Leave the thermostats alone. Most of them are set for 70 degrees and must be adjusted with special tools.
4. Don't waste water, especially hot water.

"It may be necessary to cut off the power in some places without some conservation," he said.

He estimated that "ten percent" of the coal supply—needed to generate electricity as well as produce heat—could be saved by real conservation.

Conservation would also relieve the pressure on the steam generation facilities which have a limited capacity, according to Phillips.

Last month the university consumed 6,000 tons of coal. In December 6,500 tons should be used and next month SUI probably burn around 7,500 tons, Phillips said.

If shortages should occur, certain buildings would be affected more than others. University hospitals must always have a constant heat and power supply.

School buildings would be first hit.

The conservation appeal is extended to cover all university buildings, including dormitories.

'Y' News and Notes — Iowa City Families

(The following column of news of YMCA and YWCA activities will be a regular weekly feature on this page. THE EDITOR)

BASKETS FILLED to the brim with all the Thanksgiving foodstuffs and trimmings, tied with gaily colored ribbons, were delivered to four less fortunate Iowa City families Tuesday, Nov. 23. The YWCA social action committee gathered contributions from the women's housing units.

TYPICAL OF THE INTEREST members have in the arts and crafts program is this scene of Christmas preparations. 'Y' members, left to right, are Margie Irwin, Al Dewitt; Dottie Danielson, A2, Fairfield; Helen Goldberg, A1, Milwaukee, Wis., and Mary Dunlap, A4, Iowa City.

YWCA MEMBERS sponsor programs given at the psychopathic hospital every other Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m. Yesterday's program included Lou Jendinson at the marimba, David McAdams, vocalist, and Diane Carsons giving humorous readings. Any talented person is invited to help at these entertainments.

A THANKSGIVING tea was held in the YWCA rooms before the program Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 23. Coffee and cake were served by cabinet members, who acted as hostesses.

THE FIRST Major in Marriage lecture was given by Prof. Marshall R. Jones in the Chemistry auditorium, Nov. 17. The subject of his lecture was "General Attitudes Toward Marriage."

Dr. Edward J. Shoben of the psychology department spoke on "Factors Influencing a Successful Marriage" at the second Major in Marriage lecture yesterday at 4:30 p.m. All students are invited to attend the lecture series, which are held in the Chemistry auditorium on Wednesday.

"CHILDREN MUST play" — and that's what Wednesday evening entertainment helps them to do at children's hospital and general hospital.

A group of students on campus make up skits, organize bedside recreation, and provide personal interest for each youngster in all six wards. The chairmen of the two girls' wards in children's hospital are Carol Shuttleworth and Eunice Germansky. Chairmen of the boys' wards are Sally Watson, Lawrence Johns, Pam Dooley, and Bob Messerli. Joyce Hellem and Jake DeRyke are chairmen of the two wards in general hospital.

EVERY SATURDAY morning from now until Christmas, members of the hospital arts and crafts committee will help children in children's hospital and the school for handicapped children make gifts for Christmas. The arts and crafts program, under the supervision of the occupational therapy department, is only one of many activities the YWCA sponsors in university hospitals. Approximately fifteen "Y" members, under Mary Dunlap, help in this program from 9 to 11 a.m. every Saturday morning.

THE YMCA has charge of the morning chapel programs for this week. Dean "Tiny" Davis is in charge, with John Pollock doing the announcing. The program will feature dramatizations, interviews, and choral readings. The theme of the week's program is to depict the "Y" function as a pioneering agency in the field of developing Christian personality and a Christian society. This is a fine opportunity to find out more about the "Y" and what is doing on this campus.

THE COMMITTEE on effective citizenship will meet today at 4:30 p.m. in the YWCA rooms. The discussion, led by Robert Tyson, will be on the facts leading to the ban on political speakers from campus facilities and the policy of the board of education since that time.

Samson's Hair

The cartoon above represents a bitter split between France and the Anglo-Americans. It is, however, not all inclusive when it comes to accuracy.

While the world was thinking of other things several weeks ago, the U.S. and Britain quietly announced that they were preparing to turn over the industries of Germany's Ruhr over to German management.

Even when all political factions in France jumped to their feet in opposition, no one paid too much attention to it all.

Now, a few weeks later, foreign observers are beginning to wonder what hit them. Suddenly the newspapers are alive with denunciations of the plan, with angry demands that the persons responsible for such a plan be rebuked and with alternatives to the plan.

For the first time since the cold war began, the western powers are holding their own sufficiently to look around and see what's happening. The feeling of success caused by the Berlin airlift has caused the western allies to relax their tense unity.

After the fighting of the last war stopped, Russia and the west quickly shed their coat of unity, leaving a whole body of disunity and disagreement exposed.

Now this has happened among the western powers. While this is the appropriate time to criticize, to comment and to recommend, it is not the time to sing a fatalistic song of doom. The western powers have been split over Germany since the end of the war. For over three years, the body of disunity has been covered by a coat of unity against Russia.

After the three western allies had run their zones independently for some time, the question of merger came up. Britain and the U.S. merged their areas into a bizonia. Although she was losing heavily in her zone, France refused to go along.

France wanted to unofficially absorb the Saar basin in the same way Russia's Polish puppet did Silesia. The Anglo-Americans didn't like it, but France had her way.

Just before the Berlin blockade was imposed, the western powers prepared to set up a western German state since Russia was unwilling to negotiate a settlement for all of Germany at a reasonable price.

Even though Russia put on the Berlin squeeze in retaliation, the west let the German state idea lay around in the blueprint stage. Traditional French fear of a strong Germany was the cause.

Today, the U.S. and Britain want to strengthen their hand against Russia and are willing to delay negotiations over Berlin. But the French are anxious to negotiate immediately, would rather be a little more conciliatory toward Russia.

Since the western coalition is a democratic one, these splits are natural. There is no iron hand to sweep all into line. If the Anglo-American policy makers can defend their Ruhr decision, let them speak up. As a direct rebuff to plans to keep the Ruhr internationalized, it doesn't make sense. The united front against Russia may suffer during the discussions pro and con—but democratic principles won't.

Chiang Kai-Shek Thinks — U.S. Aid Can Save China Yet

NANKING (AP) — Chinese leaders believe the plight of their nation is desperate, but that it is not too late to turn the tide against communism. They think the appointment of an outstanding American military leader, such as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as supreme advisor to the Chinese Nationalist armies, would be an 11th hour move that could save all Asia from Soviet domination.

These are the impressions received by this correspondent in a long conversation yesterday with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Calm and poised although a major Communist force is only about 100 miles from Nanking and other smaller forces are nearer, Chiang made clear at the outset that this was not a formal interview, but a personal conversation granted me because of our long acquaintance. He regretted, he said, that he could not state his viewpoint for quotation. But he said he considered it would be improper for him to appear to be carrying on at this time a publicity campaign to influence American or other opinion.

It was possible, however, to draw these conclusions from our conversation, from discussions I have had with other high Nationalist sources, and from my experience in covering or directing coverage for the United Press of the Nationalist revolution since its inception in 1924.

1. Chinese leaders believe the present situation probably is the gravest this country has faced in modern times—graver even than during the Japanese invasion because the "invaders" now are Chinese and will not encounter the same difficulty in consolidating their gains as did the alien Japanese.

2. Nationalist leaders nevertheless are not discouraged, and they intend to fight on against the Communists as they did against the Japanese. They believe that they can hold the area south of the Yangtze river indefinitely, but they admit an immediate and urgent need for American munitions and other supplies.

3. China would welcome appointment of MacArthur or some other leading American military man as supreme military adviser and would give him the fullest cooperation.

4. The Chinese want to know quickly whether the United States is prepared to give them any additional assistance and, if so, on what terms.

McBride's Haul

By BILL McBRIDE

Tuesday I was hurrying across the campus to tell a friend about a job coming up in February in which he might be interested when who should I bump into but my old friend, Ed O'Rourke. Ed happens to be an Irish setter you know.

He hailed me with a cheery halloo, and I sensed immediately that he was in high spirits. Instead of his usual stately walk, Ed had pranced over to where I stood next to the geology building. "How are tricks?" the happy setter queried, snapping at an imaginary insect.

I told him tricks were about so-so, and asked what was the reason for his obvious good humor. "This is the kind of good old Iowa weather that makes a dog feel like licking his weight in wildcats," Ed laughed. "I nearly died from prickly heat this summer. Gad! How I suffered. Today I could lick my weight in wildcats."

Without mentioning that he was repeating himself on the subject of wildcats I politely inquired if he had celebrated a happy Thanksgiving.

"Well, if you can call a juicy rabbit, two ham hocks and a ripping afternoon with old friends out in Stadium park a happy Thanksgiving, I guess I had one," Ed smiled as he sniffed around the huge grove on the geology building lawn.

I could see the rock had him puzzled and heard him mutter something about a "darned funny bird bath." Casually I mentioned it was not a bird bath, but a rock specimen placed there for students to observe. "I knew it wasn't a bird bath," he snapped. "I'm no dummy."

Not wanting to upset the delicate balance of joviality Ed had displayed earlier I apologized and tried to set things right by whistling his favorite tune, "Trees." Tears welled up in his eyes, and he began to reminisce. "That reminds me of an old sweetheart of mine," he whispered.

I had never seen Ed in this frame of mind before. He was silent for awhile, and then began to relate the story of his lost love.

"She was a Schipperke poodle, a breed rarely seen in these parts, and won over Ed's heart the moment he saw her. Theirs was a story book love. That precious summer years ago came to life as Ed told of the good times they had.

Curiosity got the best of me, so I asked my friend what became of his sweetheart. It's a strange story. It seems that Schipperkes are the only dogs in the world born without tails. Ed's girl friend had moved to this climate from southern Arizona. The change in temperature when winter came was too much for her, and she died of pneumonia induced by exposure.

To cheer up Ed I mentioned hearing of a new Lassie picture soon to be released. "Lassie, Smassie," he sneered with the old familiar twinkle in his eye. "That faker has a pair of setters who do nothing all day long but dig up the bones 'Umph Dog' has misplaced.

"You probably don't know it," he went on, "but Lassie is a male dog—a female impersonator. I spotted that phony in his first movie. When someone threw a ball at him, he pulled his legs together to keep the object from slipping through his lap. It was a dead give-away."

After we finished chatting about Hollywood dogs I told Ed I'd have to be running along to tell a friend about a possible job.

That got him started on how bad things were back in '32, and how he lived on a straight diet of stale doughnuts for 10 days one time, nearly ruining his stomach.

"You can't stay in college the rest of your life," he blurted. "Better start looking the field over for yourself as well as for your friends. For a guy who hollers about the high cost of living as much as you do, you aren't very perturbed about trying into steady work."

What's the use... you can't argue with a dog like that.

cks Perk Up; w Gains Made

W YORK (AP) — A sudden up in demand sent the stock up forward yesterday for one of the sharpest gains in some months. Individual issues advanced fractions to more than 4 points, some up from their low prices of the year. The abrupt reversal was the latest in a market which has seen on the down grade, with interruptions, since the presidential elections a month ago. Since the elections have credited mainly to concern economic plans of the administration.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks jumped one full point to 63.6, the largest since a similar move on Oct. 22. It was previously exceeded on June 8 and again on May 14.

Spedding to Receive First Chemistry Award

Iowa State College atomic energy director, Frank H. Spedding, will be awarded the first Iowa medal of the American Chemical Society's Iowa section at a dinner in the Iowa Union tomorrow evening.

Spedding will deliver the first Iowa medal address following the presentation.

Prof. Robert M. Featherstone, SUI chairman of the award committee, said the new medal will be presented annually to an Iowa chemist or chemical engineer for meritorious achievements in either fundamental or applied chemistry.

The award is intended to stimulate the advancement of chemical science and technology in the state, Featherstone said.

Spedding will be introduced by Prof. Emeritus W. F. Coover, former ISC chemistry director.

Establishment of the award by the Iowa section, of which SUI chemistry Prof. Stanley Wawzonek is chairman, reflected the increasing importance of chemistry in the state, Featherstone said.

FRANK SPEDDING

There are more than 400 members of the ACS in Iowa. This fact attests to the constant growth of process and manufacturing industries in the state, according to Featherstone.

The SUI pharmacologist said, "At present the Iowa industrial output exceeds the farm marketings in dollar value. The field of chemical education and research in Iowa must keep pace with the industrial development."

Recipients of the medal must be residents of Iowa and the work for which they are honored must have been done at an industrial plant, university, research institute or experiment station in Iowa.

The ISC institute for atomic research, which Spedding has headed since its establishment in November, 1945, is an outgrowth of the atomic bomb project.

Spedding's connection with the bomb project began in 1942 in Chicago, where he organized the chemistry division for the plutonium project and headed all chemistry work in 1942 and '43. When it was decided to set up an additional research program at ISC, Spedding divided his time between Chicago and Ames.

County Issues 680 Hunter's Licenses

The ducks and pheasants aren't the only ones who suffer! The hunter pays his toll also. County Recorder R. J. (Dick) Jones said yesterday a total of $1,363.50 had been collected for hunting and fishing licenses during November.

Jones said 680 Iowa resident hunting licenses were sold last month in Johnson county bringing in $1,020.

He said 38 resident Iowa fishing licenses brought in $57; 21 resident combination hunting-fishing licenses returned $52.50, while 10 non-resident hunting licenses sold for $150. (Non-resident hunting licenses cost $15 in Iowa.)

The recorder said 60 trapping licenses returned $84 to his office during November.

ENGINEERS PLAN STAG

A stag party is planned Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Iowa City Armory for all engineering students and faculty. Sponsored by the American Society of Civil Engineers the program will include refreshments and games.

City Police Issue 18 Tickets — for Movies

Eighteen drivers in Iowa City who were stopped by police since last Friday got a free trip to the movies instead of the expected appearance in court.

Last Friday three Iowa City theaters began offering two free tickets to courteous drivers.

The courtesy campaign will end this week.

Police have been giving courtesy tickets mainly for drivers who yield the right-of-way to pedestrians or other vehicles.

Those who received tickets so far are Frank Zeller, SUI student from North Liberty; Mary E. Bruce, SUI student from Ottumwa; Mrs. W.J. Lalor, 612 N. Duquette street; William Soukup, 619 N. Governor street; George Ebert, 528 Brown street; Margaret Huston, 445 Grand avenue; John Kinney, 1004 Kirkwood avenue; James Nash, 732 Rundell street; Joseph Cilek, 501 Kimball road; John Kin-del, Iowa City cab driver; Dr. Paul Morgan, 1117 Seymore avenue; Hartley Seydel, 1125 Third avenue; Joseph Alberhasky, route 1; Don Breeze, 1020 Kirkwood avenue; Mrs. George Callahan, 405 S. William Ehlers, who lives at Hillcrest, paid $27.50 for speeding and Ali N. Esfandiari, a resident of the Quadrangle, was fined $4.50 for failing to stop for a stop sign.
