Propose Plan For German Ruhr Control

French Want Controls Even After Occupation

WASHINGTON (AP) - France proposed a three-point plan to the United States last night to keep the Ruhr from serving again as a German war arsenal.

The French formula would continue international controls even after occupation troops have left Germany.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet told newsmen the plan is "also in the interest of Germany—and I want to emphasize that because we want to see Germany's economy eventually integrated into the economy of Europe."

Bonnet presented the plan in a formal note to Under Secretary of State Lovett.

Earlier this week, France had objected vigorously to a British-American program to hand over limited control of the vast Ruhr industries to the Germans. The French assembly, mindful of the Ruhr's war-making potentialities, voted 377-181 Thursday to repudiate any such action.

But Lovett made it clear to newsmen in Washington that the United States—while determined to prevent a rebirth of German military might—plans to go ahead with the program of limited German management as a stimulus to Germany's post-war recovery. Bonnet said the French government's proposals called for:

1. De-cartelization of the many German combines and corporations in the Ruhr—a "very important point."

2. Denazification of management of the Ruhr industries.

3. Continued allied control over production of coal, steel and coke industries and a voice in distribution of investments these factories might make.

France has insisted that Germany must never regain full control of the Ruhr which provided 70 percent of Hitler's armaments.

Street Fights Mark Berlin Campaigning As Election Nears

BERLIN (AP) - Fighting mad Social Democrats in west Berlin last night threw Communist invaders out of their election campaign rally and served defiant notice that they are "too tough" to bend under Communist "dictatorship."

The Communist hecklers, following a week-long pattern, tried to break up one of the final rallies.

SOVIETS BAN CHEWING GUM BERLIN (AP) - The Communist rump government in the Soviet sector of Berlin banned chewing gum in its first decree, German newspapers said yesterday.

They said that a German reporter was stopped by police in the Soviet sector while he was munching his gum and told: "Chewing gum is American. It is now against the law here."

ies of the powerful Social Democratic party and bumped into hard and willing fists.

Social Democratic party guards bounced a half dozen of the hecklers around. Then party physicians waiting at a specially-erected first aid station dressed the victims' cuts and bruises.

Use of guards by various parties to protect their meetings from street fighters dates back to pre-1933 days when Nazi and Communist strong-arm gangs fought in Berlin streets.

After order was restored last night, Ernst Reuter, who is expected to be made mayor after tomorrow's election, cried:

"We know who our foe is but he does not know how tough we are."

Disclosure of the existence of two rings was made by the secret service after the federal reserve bank of New York announced that a "substantial number" of nearly perfect copies of bank notes have been circulated throughout the greater New York area during the past few weeks in the biggest counterfeit operation in the United States in 14 years.

Bank officials warned shoppers, merchants and commercial banks to be on the look-out for the bogus bills, especially in the confusion of the Christmas buying rush.

2 Big Battles Taking Shape In China War

NANKING (AP) - China's nationalist army threw 150,000 men into the decisive battle south of Suchow last night in an effort to stem the Communist tide sweeping toward the capital city of Nanking.

By a reliable estimate, nearly a million men were locked in the momentous battle between recently-surrendered Suchow and the rail hub of Pengpu, with both sides rushing fresh troops into the area.

In addition, in the area around Kalgan in Chahar province of north China another major battle seemed to be developing.

Nationalist General Soong Hsi-Liang, the hero of the 1937 battle of Shanghai, was reported to have arrived at the scene of the Pengpu fighting with four army groups, numbering 100,000 men, after a forced march from positions in central China.

Despite repeated government vows to defend Nanking, the civilian population was steadily moving to safer places. Travel of any sort was becoming increasingly dangerous, however.

Captains of river steamers reaching Nanking are afraid to let down their gangplanks, lest they be overwhelmed by refugees. Passengers are hauled aboard by ropes. Three yesterday fell into the river and drowned, and many were injured.

Mme. Chiang Talks Again with Marshall

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek conferred with Secretary of State Marshall yesterday for the second time in 24 hours and told reporters she came away "encouraged."

The Chinese president's wife is here seeking stepped-up help for the Nationalist government in its war against the Chinese Reds. She visited Marshall at Walter Reed hospital, where he is undergoing a physical check-up.

"We talked about China and I am encouraged," Mme. Chiang told reporters as she emerged from a visit which lasted nearly four hours.

She added with a smile: "I would like to know anybody who has seen and talked with General Marshall and does not come away encouraged."

Mme. Chiang said she has not completed further plans for her stay in the United States, pressing home her appeal for help.

UN Overrides U.S., Britain; Adopts New Holy Land Plan

PARIS (UP) - A United Nations committee rebuffed the United States and Britain last night and adopted a new plan designed to bring peace to the Holy Land through a three-nation conciliation commission.

Each paragraph of the conciliation plan was adopted by a majority vote in the UN political committee. A vote on the resolution as a whole will come today.

Reject Anglo-U.S. Clauses

During the paragraph-by-paragraph voting the committee rejected clauses supported by Britain and the United States which would have given the conciliation commission power to alter Palestine borders and which would have merged Arab Palestine with the Kingdom of Trans-Jordan.

Before adjourning, the committee adopted 29 to 6, with 13 nations not voting, a far-reaching provision designed to permit the return or compensation of some 555,000 Arab refugees from Israel-held portions of Palestine during the Holy Land war.

Other UN developments:

1. The general assembly approved an American-backed plan to continue the little assembly another year. The vote was 40 to 6 with India abstaining. Members of the Russian bloc opposed the action and maintained their boycott of the little assembly.

2. The assembly's 14-nation steering committee discussed when to adjourn the session but made no decision. It will meet again today. Strong sentiment was developing for adjournment on Dec. 11 with another session in New York early next year.

Warns U.S. of Counterfeiters

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two huge counterfeit rings, one in New York and one in Chicago, are flooding the nation with bogus $10 and $20 bills representing millions of dollars, it was disclosed yesterday.

Disclosure of the existence of two rings was made by the secret service after the federal reserve bank of New York announced that a "substantial number" of nearly perfect copies of bank notes have been circulated throughout the greater New York area during the past few weeks in the biggest counterfeit operation in the United States in 14 years.

Bank officials warned shoppers, merchants and commercial banks to be on the look-out for the bogus bills, especially in the confusion of the Christmas buying rush.

Philadelphia Alarmed By Mystery Fumes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Smog tension gripped river sections in Pennsylvania and New Jersey yesterday after scores of persons were made ill by mystery fumes drifting over a wide area.

Apprehensive residents, mindful of the Donora, Pa., poison smog tragedy in October, jammed police station telephones with more than 1,000 calls during a six-hour period.

Doctors in Pennsylvania's Bucks county, northeast Philadelphia and in the New Jersey communities of Riverside, Beverly and Edgewater treated patients who complained of smarting eyes and irritated throats.

Victims described the odor as one resembling "thousands of rotten eggs." Health authorities tried to trace it to industrial plants lining the Delaware river.

Men Carry Freight; Railroad Bill 22 Cents

DECORAH (AP) - Mayor George Baker learned yesterday he must have a 22-cent railroad ticket to put on a walking contest here the way he planned it.

Baker said he would give $50 to any man who could duplicate the feat of Baker's grandfather—walk from Conover to Decorah, a distance of 9 6-10 miles in two hours and 55 minutes, carrying a 60-pound weight. Ten men have accepted the challenge.

The mayor, however, thought it would be nice to have a handicapper to follow the walkers. He asked the Milwaukee railroad to help out.

Yes, the railroad replied, it could supply a handicapper—but interstate commerce commission regulations would require Baker to buy a railroad ticket. The price of the ticket is 22 cents.

Truman Tells Armed Forces To Keep Budget Fights Quiet

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Truman, struggling with next year's budget, clamped a virtual "silence" order yesterday on the armed forces and other agencies seeking to convince the public they need more money.

Family quarrels about money should be kept in the family, was the sense of a letter he sent to the army, navy and air force—and all other government agencies.

The letter urged the departments to "exercise extreme caution" in talking about budget affairs and said the purpose was to "prevent any premature announcements." (The White House traditionally has claimed the right to make the first announcements on the annual government budgets, a tradition not always observed.)

The letter came in the midst of a rising number of published stories describing the reaction of each service to Mr. Truman's proposal that the overall military budget for the next fiscal year, beginning next July 1, be limited to $15-billion. Each service has let it be known that its own plans in the national defense picture must be altered if the budget ceiling is held to the level tentatively set by the White House and budget bureau.

The question of how to spend on military needs ties directly in with how much shall be taken from taxpayers.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, head of the President's economic advisory committee, has said twice within the last month: If military spending runs much "over $15-billion, then it may become necessary to raise taxes and return to federal controls.

They say the United States will be weakened in its peace-keeping role if the proposed 70-group air force has to be slashed, and if the navy has to reduce its Mediterranean strength, for example.

The army already has announced plans to reduce draft calls, pleading insufficient funds.

On the other hand some civilian advisers in the administration are known to feel that military services are wasteful by nature, and ask for more than they need.

Donaldson Warns Public Of Christmas Mail Rush

WASHINGTON (AP) - Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson warned last night that the "most acute mail congestion" in history threatens the delivery of Christmas cards and packages unless the public heeds the "mail early" warnings.

He said the normal volume of mail is now at an all time high and equal to last year's Christmas rush. Unless Christmas mail is shipped off immediately, he said, much of it may not reach its destinations before Christmas Day.

Men Carry Freight; Railroad Bill 22 Cents

DECORAH (AP) - Mayor George Baker learned yesterday he must have a 22-cent railroad ticket to put on a walking contest here the way he planned it.

Baker said he would give $50 to any man who could duplicate the feat of Baker's grandfather—walk from Conover to Decorah, a distance of 9 6-10 miles in two hours and 55 minutes, carrying a 60-pound weight. Ten men have accepted the challenge.

The mayor, however, thought it would be nice to have a handicapper to follow the walkers. He asked the Milwaukee railroad to help out.

Yes, the railroad replied, it could supply a handicapper—but interstate commerce commission regulations would require Baker to buy a railroad ticket. The price of the ticket is 22 cents.

Find Microfilms Of U.S. Secrets

After Second Visit

(AP Wirephoto)

AFTER CONFERRING WITH MARSHALL, Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, leaves Walter Reed general hospital with Mrs. George C. Marshall, her hostess. Her visit yesterday with the secretary of state was the second since she arrived in this country. She is also scheduled to confer with President Truman at an undisclosed time. Marshall is in the hospital for observation.

Reveals Huge Pre-War Spy Network Here

WASHINGTON (AP) - The house un-American activities committee declared last night that a bunch of microfilms, found in a hollow pumpkin on Whittaker Chambers' Maryland farm, offers conclusive evidence that national security information was "fed out of the state department" before the war.

Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) made the announcement on behalf of the committee. Chambers, a self-described former Communist, now is a senior editor on Time magazine.

In a statement, Mundt said the copied documents were given Chambers by "a member of the Communist underground" who was not identified.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, told reporters that Chambers was subpoenaed Thursday to produce the documents.

Mundt's statement said:

"There is now in the possession of the committee, under 24 hour guard, microfilmed copies of documents of tremendous importance which were removed from the offices of the state department and turned over to Chambers for the purpose of transmittal to Russian Communist agents.

"These documents are of such startling and significant importance, and reveal such a vast network of Communist espionage within the state department, that they far exceed anything yet brought before the committee in its 10-year history.

"These microfilms have been the object of a ten-year search by agents of the U.S. government and provide definite proof of one of the most extensive espionage rings in the history of the United States."

Spokesmen for both the justice and state departments said last night they had no immediate comment. They showed a desire to know more details. Mundt announced that he is getting in touch with other committee members with the aim of reopening the committee's hearings into alleged Communist espionage as soon as possible.

After Duet Truman Leaves Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Truman left last night by yacht for Norfolk, Va., for a week-end ceremony aboard the battleship Missouri, named after his home state.

The President and his party left Washington aboard the Williamsburg at 9:26 p.m. Iowa time. A short time before, Mr. Truman and his daughter Margaret had been guests of honor at a father-and-daughter dinner at the National Press club.

At the dinner, the President and Margaret brought down the house with a piano duet which she called "The Jenny Lind Polka" which "daddy taught me when I was about ten."

She added, to much laughter, that she did not believe they had played it since.

Wolfish Airplanes Try Leaflet Lure

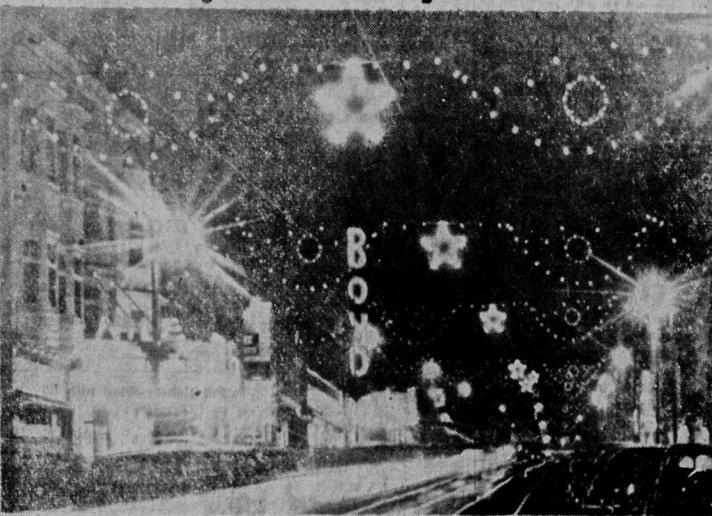

GRANVILLE, OHIO (AP) - Two airplanes dropped leaflets on the Denison university campus yesterday. They read:

"The boys of Denison give way to the men of Kenyon."

Then the leaflets invited girl students of Denison to come unattached to a Lacrosse team dance Saturday night at Kenyon college, an all-male school 30 miles north of Granville.

The shower of leaflets was precipitated by a stunt of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity of Denison. The fraternity, launched a "woman-hating week" and bequeathed the Denison girls to Kenyon.

Bright Stars Lead Through Bethlehem

(AP Wirephoto)

A STAR SO BRIGHT it can be seen for 25 miles shone down last night on Bethlehem. But it wasn't the peaceful town of Bethlehem where a glowing star announced the birth of the Christ child 1948 years ago. It was the noisy, bustling steel center of eastern Pennsylvania. The 90-foot star and its accompanying display of dazzling lights were turned on Thursday night for the Christmas season. They will remain lit until Jan. 2. Shown above is a portion of the approximately seven miles of decorative street lighting decorating this self-styled "Christmas city."

Harrison to Start Big Boys Against Shorter Tiger Five

Impressed by the play of three of his tallest operatives against Omaha university Wednesday night, Iowa's basketball Coach Pops Harrison will send an entirely different starting lineup against Colorado college at the fieldhouse tonight.

In the second non-conference game of the 1948-49 season, which will begin at 8 p.m. preceded by a freshman intra-squad battle, Harrison plans to open with Glenn Dille and Don Hays at the forwards, Al Weiss at center and Tony Guzowski and Bill Andrews at the guards.

The Hawkeyes were not overly impressive in their opening win over Omaha Wednesday, 64-44. They led by the scant two points, *

Broadcasts — WSUI, Iowa City; KCRG, Cedar Rapids, and Hawkeye sports network led by KXCI, Iowa City.

Dille at 6-feet, 6-1/2 inches is the tallest member of the Iowa squad. Yet it was not the Tulsa, Okla., junior's height which caught the fancy of the Iowa fans. It was his deft ability at hitting a one-handed push shot from the corner while leading the Hawks scorers with 12 points.

Harrison is still very much in the experimental stage with his crew of hoopers. He has a host of material on his 22-man squad and is trying to weed out the best working combinations.

sophomores while Hays and Guzowski, a junior and senior respectively, are veterans from last year.

Others who will probably break into the lineup for the Hawks include Guards Bob Schulz, regular from last season, Bill Hall and Tom Parker; Forwards Floyd Magnusson, Charlie Mason, Bob Vollers, Stan Straatsma and Dick Riecks, and Centers Roger Finley and Frank Calsbeek.

"I found out a lot of things and learned about some of our strong points and shortcomings in the opener with Omaha," Harrison said yesterday.

The Iowa coach was disappointed with his team's defensive tactics which allowed the Nebraska quintet too many close shots at the basket. He was also not happy with Iowa's offensive work, but commented that maybe Omaha's peculiar zone defense might have hampered the Iowa shooting.

The Hawks will have a decided height advantage over their Colorado foes tonight, since the starting lineup will average close to 6-feet, 4-inches. The Colorado five averages an even six feet.

Colorado college, which is located in Colorado Springs, has three of the four top scorers from last seasons team which won 13 of 20 games. Jack Quamme, forward, scored 261 points last winter, while Ed Scott, guard, had 210 and Wilfred Perkins, forward, 167.

The Tigers lost their opener this season to the Denver Chevrolets, crack AAU team, 68-39.

Irish-USC Game Tops Final Grid Go-Round

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Notre Dame's inter-sectional clash with Southern California in Memorial stadium here is a standout in today's final go-round of the regular college football season.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's illegal this year to drink during a football game in Memorial coliseum.

Last year the average was a full truckload.

the Trojans and wind up their third straight undefeated campaign. A crowd of around 100,000 will witness the game.

Southern California's loyal Trojan rooters hit a high pitch in their home-coming celebration yesterday, fully aware that the party may flatten out along about sundown, today after the football team finishes its encounter with Notre Dame.

Coach Frank Leahy brought his squad in from South Bend yesterday morning, and gave them a limbering up in the afternoon. Aside from a couple of bum legs belonging to Halfback Terry Brennan and Fullback John Panelli, the Irish looked in great shape.

Both players came up with injuries in their workout at home last Tuesday but the team trainer said he was positive they'd be ready to roll today.

Cloudy skies were forecast for today's 20th game between the two inter-sectional foes but prospects were good for no rain.

Clemson Favored Over Citadel The Clemson Tigers, another major unbeaten eleven, also are expected to close in a rash of touchdowns against the Citadel at Charleston, S.C. The Southern conference leaders were ranked No. 11 in the final national poll.

Alabama and Auburn met at Birmingham in their first football game since 1907. No one can recall what the two Alabama schools have been mad about all that time.

Five Bowl Games Five extracurricular, or bowl, games also are on today's card, as follows:

Missouri Valley vs. Evansville in the Refrigerator bowl at Evansville, Ind.; John Carroll vs. Canisius in the Great Lakes bowl at Cleveland; San Francisco State vs. Southern Louisiana in the Fruit bowl at San Francisco; Emporia Teachers vs. Southwest Missouri Teachers in the Mo-Ka bowl at Kansas City, and Toledo vs. Oklahoma City in the Glas bowl at Toledo, Ohio.

Kay Accepts Offer For Shrine Game

Bill Kay, Iowa's tackle who was voted to the Associated Press All-America second team Wednesday, said yesterday that he had accepted a bid to play in the North-South Shrine game at Miami, Fla., Christmas Day.

It had been reported earlier that Kay was to play in the Blue-Gray All Star contest at Montgomery, Ala., on the same day.

Kay said he had received little information on the Miami North-South game, but did know that Herman Hickman, head coach of Yale university, will lead the North squad.

NU Wins First Bowl Skirmish by Flip

PASADENA, CALIF. (AP) — Northwestern's Wildcats won their first skirmish yesterday in the coming Rose Bowl football battle with California.

Northwestern will wear purple jerseys in the game, and California will wear white instead of its familiar blue.

The issue, arising from the similarity of the two colors, was decided in a coin flipping ceremony. Athletic Director Ted Payson of Northwestern won the toss from Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf of California.

Hawkllets Rout W. Waterloo

By HOBERT DUNCAN

The potent Iowa City Little Hawks, unleashing an amazing demonstration of scoring power, captured their third consecutive triumph of the season last night by routing West Waterloo's Wahawks 53-15 in a Mississippi Valley game played in the City High gymnasium.

Big Gene Hettrick, Hawkllet center, sparked the Iowa City first quarter rush that sent the Little Hawks into a commanding 15-4 margin, by dropping in four buckets and a pair of free throws.

Waterloo's Bill Reed hit a free throw at the outset of the second period to make it 15-5, but Hettrick and Rox Shain tallied three points to give the victors an 18-5 margin. The Little Hawks continued hitting the hoop with relentless accuracy to bounce into a 23-8 intermission lead. Hettrick, spearhead of the Hawkllet offensive drive, fouled out late in the second stanza.

Dick Kennedy, Hettrick's replacement at the Iowa City pivot slot, pushed in a basket at the start of the third period, and Kenney Hay notched a free throw to rocket Iowa City into a 26-8 edge before Dan Stieber counted from the field for Waterloo to reduce the deficit to 26-10.

The Iowa City reserves, who played almost the entire second half, continued to increase the Hawkllet's lead, and Iowa City held a 37-10 margin at the end of the third period.

Harold Neighbors broke the Wahawks long scoring drought by dropping in a two pointer midway in the last quarter, but the Hawkllets roared back with eight quick points for a 52-12 edge.

Hettrick pushed in 13 points and Dick Kennedy tallied 10 markers to pace the Little Hawks offense. Jim Sisk counted a bucket and four free throws to lead the Wahawks.

SINKING ONE from close in is Iowa City's Bob Diehl (No. 10) as two West Waterloo defenders, Jim Sisk and Harold Neighbors, and Bill Fenton (No. 15) of Iowa City wait for a rebound. The Hawkllets won, 53 to 15.

U-High Sinks Before Franklin, 57-23

By ALAN MOYER

(Special to The Daily Iowan)

CEDAR RAPIDS — Playing out of their class for the second time within a week, University high's Blue Hawks fell before Franklin high school, 57-23, here last night. The Thunderbolts got off to a slow start but began rolling in the second quarter. Push shots from the corners and a fast break put Franklin ahead at halftime, 21-6.

Although his team was never in the game, U-high's Bob Ojeman topped the scoring for both clubs with 11 points.

The Franklin scoring was divided among four boys, only two of whom started the game. Forward John Culver and Center Dick Ofringa each got nine points, while substitute forwards, Bob Cooper and Jim Davis chimed in with seven and eight tallies.

Midway in the third period the Thunderbolts really got going. Everything but the bench fell through the basket as Franklin pulled away.

U-high put on a flurry of their own late in the third quarter when Karl Harshbarger and Curt Miller found the range.

The win was Franklin's second in three starts. U-high begins its conference schedule next week against Mt. Vernon.

Hawkeye Coaches To Draw Schedules At Winter Meeting

Some 24 dual contests in three spring sports will be drawn by SUI coaches at the Big Nine winter meeting in Chicago beginning Dec. 11, while the 1950, 1951 and 1952 conference football schedules also will be drawn.

Otto Vogel, Iowa baseball coach, expects to book 12 conference games for his 1949 Hawkeyes. Non-conference games will be added later, to make a complete schedule of between 25 and 30 games.

In tennis, Iowa Coach Donald Klotz plans to schedule at least six dual matches with league teams and later non-conference additions will bring the complete card to about 15 meets. Five or six dual meets will be arranged in golf by Coach Frank O'Connor.

Dr. Eddie Anderson and Director Paul Brechler will work on the 1950, 1951, and 1952 football schedules Dec. 13, expecting to book six conference games for each of those seasons. The 1949 card is complete with six conference games and contests with UCLA, Oregon and Notre Dame.

Track coaches also will meet, although the 1949 outdoor schedule was arranged last May. Coach Francis Cretzmeyer of Iowa will be present.

Wrestling Coach Mike Howard will attend the meeting of wrestling coaches Dec. 11 for a discussion of rules interpretations and of a possible shift of the dates of the conference tournament.

Doak Walker Named UP Player of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Doak Walker, the handsome triple-threat halfback who led Southern Methodist to the Southwest conference championship, yesterday was named football player of the year in a United Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters from every section of the nation.

Walker, a junior who still has another year of college eligibility, was picked by 101 of the 280 persons participating in the poll. He also was named back of the year, receiving 139 out of 294 votes cast in that poll.

Charley (Choo Choo) Justice of North Carolina was second but far behind Walker in both polls.

Al DiMarco, Iowa back, received one vote for player of the year.

Illini Sneak Past Butler

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — Wally (Ox) Osterkorn pumped in 27 points to lead Illinois over Butler 67-62 in the Illini's basketball opener last night.

The big center's output was the greatest since Andy Phillip dumped in 40 for Illinois against Chicago in 1943.

Illini found Butler a stubborn foe most of the way and led only 35-34 at halftime after the score had been tied seven times in the first section. With 10 minutes to play, the Illini spurred into a 59-39 margin as Osterkorn hit for seven quick points. That broke up the game.

Osterkorn, who scored 14 points in the first half, hit 11 pivot shots out of 20 attempts. Illinois' team average was 24 baskets out of 68, while Butler made 22 out of 72 shots.

Ralph O'Brien, whose guarding limited Dike Eddleman to one basket, led Butler with 14 points. Three of the Indiana school's stars fouled out in the closing minutes. Bob Evans was banished with 14 minutes to go, John Barrowcliff with 10 and Jim Doyle with five.

Purdue is the last Big Nine school to swing into action, meeting Detroit Monday.

Series Dispute 'Silly Anyway'

Martin Second Guesses Second Guessers On Much-Discussed Pickoff Play

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Let's give that disputed play in the 1948 World Series one more second guess, which is an advantage umpire Bill Stewart didn't have.

We won't go into the accuracy of Stewart's decision calling the Braves' Phil Masi safe at second on a pickoff play in the first game other than to say The Associated-Press camera sequence, the only clear photo shots, indicated the arbiter might have muffed one in calling Masi safe.

Even pictures sometimes are misleading, though. We always look like a Frankenstein, although really we're a handsome lug, said he as he freestyled little children with his sweetest smile.

We'll just consider the logical reasons the movie cameras didn't catch the play. The official World Series films show only a fleeting blurry shot, entirely inconclusive, and cries of "censorship" have been heard.

The fact is that if a score of newsreel cameras failed to catch it, there would be no reason to expect the official series' camera alone to have it. The newsreels certainly weren't censored. If they caught a controversial shot like that they'd have played it up in fast motion, slow motion and emotion.

It was simply a case of the action taking place so rapidly at an unexpected location that the cameramen—all except John Lindsay—were caught with their shutters down.

They were expecting any action to take place at home plate. If an outfielder fell down and broke a leg while there was a close play at the plate, it would take a cameraman toting tea leaves to catch the distant incident.

Sure, other close plays in the official movie were shown clearly, and run in slow motion, but those plays were anticipated. When Lou Boudreau streaked for third and was called out on another close play by Stewart, it was easy to anticipate where the action would take place and have the camera trained there.

It's really a rather silly argument anyway. Masi was officially safe on the play. Nothing can change that. The movie cameras missed it. Nothing can change that. There was no censorship. There was nothing to change.

Patricia Dunn to Wed

THE ENGAGEMENT AND APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF Patricia Dunn to Russell L. King is being announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony E. Dunn, Marshalltown. Miss Dunn is a junior at the University of Iowa and is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega social sorority. Mr. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. King, Council Bluffs, is enrolled in the University of Iowa graduate college. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi social fraternity. The wedding will take place late in December in Marshalltown.

A Suggestion for — Holiday Dessert!

A different dessert that can fill many holiday uses is the Chocolate Upside Down Cake recommended by Mrs. William L. Adamson, 513 Dearborn street. The cake is a favorite dessert of her husband, director of the Scottish Highlanders, and is demanded nearly as much as candy by her three young children, Mrs. Adamson finds.

Steps to follow in baking the cake were outlined by Mrs. Adamson:

- Sift together:
  - 1 cup flour
  - 1 1/4 t. salt
  - 3-4 cup sugar
  - 2 t. baking powder
- Add:
  - 1-2 cup nutmeats
  - 1-2 cup milk
  - 1 t. vanilla
- Melt together:
  - 2 T. butter
  - 1 square baking chocolate

Beat until well mixed (2 minutes). Pour into ungreased baking dish approximately 9 in. square.

Then mix together:

- 1-2 cup white sugar
- 1-2 cup brown sugar
- 4 T. cocoa

Sprinkle over batter. Then pour 1 cup boiling water over all. After baking for 40 minutes in a 325 degree oven, the cake should be cut into serving pieces and removed from the baking dish with a spatula or pie server. The thick chocolate sauce on the bottom of the baking dish should be spooned on to the cake.

Mrs. Adamson suggests serving this with either whipped cream or ice cream. It's a pleasant change from holiday desserts such as fruit cake, plum pudding or ice cream alone, and can be whipped up quickly, she finds.

Heavy desserts like this can be served with light main courses. An ideal party refreshment would be the Chocolate Upside Down cake served with ice cream and coffee.

Women Voters League to Hold Panel on City Manager Plan

The city manager form of government will come under close scrutiny of the Iowa City League of Women Voters in the next two weeks.

The local women's group will sponsor a panel discussion on the subject Dec. 13, featuring A. A. Rhombert, city manager of Dubuque. Also, four more discussions on local government will be held at members' homes.

At one discussion two members of the city council, Alderman William Grandrath and Clark Mighell, will be quizzed about their jobs in governing Iowa City.

Besides Rhombert, other members of the panel group are Edward W. Lucas, Democratic county committee chairman, Alderman Max Hawkins; William H. Bartley, city solicitor, and Prof. Elizabeth Halsey, head of the SUI women's gym department and chairman of the League's committee on forms of local government.

Rhombert will describe his work as manager of Dubuque and the structure of the city-manager system. He will later be questioned by the other panel members and persons in the audience.

The discussion will be held in the basement of the First English Lutheran church at Dubuque and Market streets at 12:45 p.m. It will be open to the general public. Mrs. Allyn Lemme will preside.

Monday night Grandrath and Mighell will be asked questions like "Does a new council have help in preparing a budget?" and "Is there any long term planning Iowa City?" at the home of Mrs. C.M. Kos, 906 Lucas street. Husbands are invited to attend this city government quiz.

Other discussion groups considering forms of city government are Mrs. E.W. Sheldrup, 340 Ellis avenue, 1:30 p.m. Monday; Mrs. George E. Falk, 225 E. Davenport, 8 p.m. Dec. 13 and Miss Jane Condon, 120 E. Court, 8 p.m. Dec. 13.

At its last monthly meeting the league was scheduled to take a stand on supporting a city manager government in Iowa City. However, members decided not to vote on the issue until they felt more acquainted with the system.

Johnston claimed he suffered cuts and bruises and two broken ribs.

Symphony in CARE Concert

The SUI symphony orchestra will present Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp's prelude "Summer," a number by SUI Graduate Wendell Otey and three other selections at a concert in Des Moines tomorrow.

Clapp will conduct the 100-piece orchestra.

The concert will be played in the KRNT radio theater under the auspices of the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe.

Money from a collection taken at the concert will be used to buy CARE packages for overseas shipment.

The orchestra will open the program with the national anthem, followed by two numbers that were played at its concert here Wednesday night, the "Secret of Suzanne" overture by Wolf-Ferrari and Tchaikovsky's 6th symphony.

An intermission will follow during which Dorothy Jackson Anderson, Des Moines mezzo-soprano who sings at the Presbyterian church there, will sing three songs and the collection for CARE will be taken.

The second half of the concert will feature the works by Clapp and Otey.

Clapp's "Summer" was first performed in 1913 at St. Louis. It was revised by the composer in 1925. "Summer" has been performed by symphony orchestras in St. Louis, Minneapolis, Chicago and elsewhere.

The orchestra will play the Otey composition "Prelude, Scherzo and Passacaglia." Wendell Otey, now head of the music department at San Francisco State Teachers college, Calif., wrote the number as his doctor's degree thesis here at SUI.

Clapp said the Otey number was selected for the program as an example of music composed here at the university. It is one of the best works written here, he said.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

The late D. W. Griffith was fond of telling people that in the big Civil war battle scenes of his "The Birth of a Nation" he employed 50,000 extras. When people pointed out that this must have cost him a half million dollars a day for over a hundred days, and marveled "How did you stay solvent?" Griffith would chuckle and say, "I worked out an infallible system. Our soldiers used real bullets."

Tallulah Bankhead, touring in Noel Coward's museum piece, "Private Lives," was kept awake one night by a persistent rattle against her window pane. She discovered it to be a piece of metal on the end of a wire, and angrily drew it inside and tucked it under her pillow. A few moments later she was sleeping the sleep of the innocent. The next morning she was horrified to discover that the metal piece under her pillow was the LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR.

Dear Joe and Jane,

Every now and then a Theatre manager feels like he wants to explode with superlatives. Sometimes it's uncalled for, but this time I'm afraid 'Ye Olde Cinema Manager' just can't resist... We're RAVIN' about 'THE RAVEN.' Course Prof. Lechay took the words out of our mouth... he called it 'terrific!' We agree, Prof. Lechay... We feel it's one of the finest films we've ever shown. It's got everything... acting, photography, plot — and s-u-s-p-e-n-s-e — that will leave you limp!

And too, it's another Mid-West Premiere, and when the Capitol says Mid-West Premiere we really mean premiere... way ahead of Chicago. Zounds! We sound egotistic today.

Remember it's just a step from the Old Capitol to the New.

China: Fog, Sentiment and a Funeral

America's foreign policy toward postwar China has been one of stalling, indecision and fog. Now that Nationalist China is living its last days, Americans are either indifferent or panicky. For instance, Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, wartime commander of the fifth fleet, warned that if China falls to the Communists the rest of southeast Asia will also fall. Only India and Japan will be able to keep their democratic heads above water. And Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) told the National Association of Manufacturers' convention "we have, by a combination of blunder and default, succeeded in delivering much of east Asia into the hands of the Kremlin." Judd's only solution seemed to be a quick shot in the arm for China with dollar serum. Getting in line to moan and lament was Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) who is presently visiting the far east. From Bangkok, Siam, he told the world that the strength of Siamese Communists endangered the American position in the far east. It followed that a Communist China to the north would be fatal for Siam. Sensing part of the trouble, another senator—Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt)—complained of U.S. "besieged army" tactics. He wants a new type of political offensive to beat Russia in the cold war. Flanders was unsatisfied with a U.S. policy of spending billions for rearmament, relief and recovery—but he could offer no alternative plan. And so it goes. Like faithful pilgrims at the Wailing Wall, there is nothing for American experts to do but cry. Madame Chiang Kai-Shek has brought desperation terms with her to Washington. She is prepared to deliver China's destiny into U.S. hands. Saving China would be up to U.S. dollars and military genius. A snap decision to send American aid to wobbling China will pump a few whiffs of air into our far eastern policy vacuum. But will it be enough? With sentimental thoughts of a beautiful wartime partner being beaten, American policy makers cannot see beyond their tear-beattered noses. We've used desperation tactics in the far east for three years now. They haven't worked. Why not consider the possibility of a Communist China? Why not plan to hold the line south of China to save the rest of the far east? At this stage of the game, your proposals for a sound U.S. policy for the entire far east are as good as the next person's. Americans will not think their way out of the Chinese puzzle in five minutes. But let's start shopping around for the answer instead of planning to attend China's funeral.

Buying an Automobile in Iowa City? You'll Find Courtesy, No Kickbacks

By Daily Iowan Research Staff

The business methods of auto dealers have received a rather murky color when viewed on the national scale. The congressional investigation of auto sales is turning up facts that have been common knowledge for months by both rumor and publication. Naturally the prospective auto buyer wants to know if legitimate suspicion can be focused on local dealers. In the case of local business the picture seems to be pretty clean.

A canvass was made of a representative cross-section of local auto dealers. The purpose of the canvass was to uncover the general attitude and approach of the dealer to the average auto buyer. Canvassers represented themselves as unmarried buyers with yearly earnings around $2,200. Each dealer was asked what the chances were of getting a new sedan on a one-third down payment (as required by federal regulations) and the balance to be paid on an 18-month basis.

All dealers were very courteous even after the customer had stated his financial position. All were willing to take the customer out in a new car and let him try it out for himself. Generally no discouragement was given to the customer towards buying on installment.

The majority of dealers said that it would take at least a year before a new car could be obtained. Some said they were still working on 1948 orders. One dealer had only one new car ready for immediate sale and which had not been promised to anyone—this was an exception to the general condition but the dealer made no comment on it. Another dealer promised delivery within 90 days provided the customer paid $100 down for priority on delivery lists. One dealer definitely stated that he had a long waiting list; he tried to sell the canvasser a good 1946 used car.

Two dealers said that the customer would not receive exactly the car ordered as far as standard equipment was concerned. They said that price increases were in line and that parts would be installed at the factory according to availability. This would make the exact price of ordered cars uncertain. The price of an ordered car on the date of delivery might then be a little more—or in exceptional cases, a little less—than what the dealer had listed it.

As far as extra equipment was concerned, most dealers were definite on prices and on availability. Extras like radios, heaters, overdrives, etc. could be ordered with a fairly definite promise of delivery. Most dealers asked what extras the customer wanted, then added their cost to the price of the automobile and quoted a flat sales price. No vague hints were made as to kickbacks, inability to sell without extras, and similar factors which have given auto dealers in general a bad hue. Locally, the auto business seems to have a pretty clean slate.

The survey reported here represents the situation in a small midwestern city. Whether that picture represents the situation in the majority of small cities and towns is a big question and one not sufficiently investigated to date. The congressional investigations so far have been concerned largely with Washington, D. C. and big-city auto dealers where other factors are present. In big cities auto dealers are as thick as flies and customers are ten times as thick. This would tend to create more of a seller's market than a buyer's market. The dealer would feel free to discriminate as to whom should have priority. He could juggle priority lists without hesitation because the multitude of his buyers would hardly discover such actions in the mass race for any new car. Moreover, the buyer would be concerned about keeping in the dealer's good graces—reversing the "customer is always right" situation. In small towns and cities business is built on good reputation and a steady clientele. The movement of new cars is just as fast as in the cities but customers are in a position to discredit the dealer should he juggle any priority lists.

This small city dealer then cannot afford to operate in as high-handed a manner as his big city counterpart. He must depend on future business from his present clientele and must consider them if he plans to stay in business very long.

Big city dealers operate on a mass-sales scale. They are not afraid to discriminate when an extra dollar here and there persuades them to deliver just a little bit faster. The dissatisfied customer is only one in many and his voice is hardly heard. In small cities and towns the dissatisfied customer who voices his opinion is heard far and wide. The small city dealer must treat the majority of his paying customers on a fairly equal basis because he wants to sell the car to his customer, service the car and then sell the same customer a new car in a few years.

The confusion in the new-used-car business may be shown by the example of the man who when arrested had been living a good life simply by taking orders and down-payments on cars. He delivered often enough to keep the customers interested, sometimes taking a loss on the cars he actually delivered but a long "sucker list" kept him supplied with anticipatory down payments.

The business factors entering the picture in the big cities and the small towns are different enough to warrant a different approach to each. The facts uncovered by the congressional investigation have generally been applied to both types of situations, chiefly by inference. The differences should be clearly pointed out and a truer picture given so that the average dealer, who deals honestly enough with his customers, will not be given a bad reputation by association.

MORE CRIME . . . ADULT DELINQUENCY

Singer Vaughn Monroe, according to a publicity release from New York, has posed the question, "What could be worse than a kleptomaniac in a piano store?" Who, but that unmodulated band leader would ask a question of that nature? The statement in itself is an credible example of adult delinquency. What Monroe needs is a job delivering groceries, and he won't have so much time to fritter away on subjects he knows absolutely nothing about. There are any number of things worse than a kleptomaniac in a piano store. Worse for whom? . . . whom? If I owned a piano business, I could think of plenty of mental disorders worse than kleptomania to have around. No one is going to shoplift a piano if the floor walker has his wits about him at all. I once had a friend in Boston who clerked in a piano store for awhile. . . . The worst experience he could relate concerned a woman afflicted with claustrophobia who fell head first into a grand piano. It was not until four months later that the person who bought the piano, a fellow by the name of S. Holmes, found her. He had seated himself at the piano to play for a group of friends one evening. No sooner did he sit down than his guests began to laugh rudely. (This would be a good spot for "They laughed when he sat down to play.") The cause for hilarity was based in the strange thump sounded when Holmes struck C sharp. By this you can see the sort of friends Holmes had. I know of no one who thinks a thumping C sharp is funny. Opening the side door of the piano, Holmes found the woman, who had nearly lost her mind from being enclosed in such tight quarters for four months, and remarked snidely, "Elementary my dear Dr. Watson." The effect of the statement was lost, since no one in his circle of companions went by the name of Dr. Watson. About those two visiting detectives who were here this week . . . you remember—Inspector Gallstone of the Hearsh squad and Mr. Tracer, the keen old miser of tracing persons. It had been our plan to let the detectives be the detectives Thursday evening when we met in our attic. Things went wrong right from the start when both of the famous sleuths refused to go up to the attic until the place had been thoroughly searched for prowlers and a 200-watt light bulb placed in the ceiling outlet. I had called in several students to re-enact a complicated mystery called "The Case of the Drop Seat Jewel Theft." The gist of the caper was that "Count" Nodkib, internationally famous jewel thief, came to a formal ball disguised as a Sour Dough. After dancing with Nodkib, Mrs. Al Shampker, of the Boston Shampkers, noticed her renowned Black Pearl of India diamond necklace was missing. Police were called immediately, and Nodkib was eyed with suspicion, since several guests complained he had been scratching their watch crystals with a hard, glassy object. Just as the police were about to nab Nodkib, however, the clever suspect slipped out through an ingenious trap door in the back of his underwear, leaving the surprised authorities holding an empty pair of grey flannel longies. That was the end of the skit, and our guest detectives were asked to determine who was the guilty party. Mr. Tracer said, "In other words, Mike (must have meant Mac), you want to know who you done it." At that point Inspector Gallstone broke in with, "I beg your pardon, Mr. Tracer, but don't you mean 'who did it'?" Mr. Tracer responded quickly, "If you will recall the case of the Damp Dirk you will find 'who dont it' is correct." "According to Emily Post," Inspector Gallstone shouted, "the proper terminology is 'who did it.'" Tempers flared. Both gum shoes reached for their hardware and shot each other in the attic. Neither of the shamuses died instantaneously. I rushed downstairs and got the dentist who lives on our floor to come up and help. He took one look and said, shaking his head, "There isn't a thing I can do for these men. They've been drilled once too often." I don't mind having drilled detectives in our attic, but I'm afraid the landlord will be frightfully put out when he hears about that 200-watt bulb.

The right to edit or withhold letters is reserved and, of course, the opinions expressed do not necessarily represent those of The Daily Iowan.)

TO THE EDITOR: While enjoying the lecture by Hartzell Spence on Thursday evening, I anticipated an interesting question and answer period afterward. Needless to say I was disappointed. I later asked several persons why they had offered no questions. The answers consistently followed the same pattern: "I didn't have anything 'Profound' to say!" These answers are, I think, extremely indicative of the "sophistication" so steadily struck at by Mr. Spence throughout his lecture. It seems that in general people are afraid to speak their mind because there might be a bare spot of naivete showing, and that it might be seen by their more "wise" and silent neighbors. I realize there are loopholes in what I say, and I expect some enterprising "sophisticate" will attempt to crawl through them in answering my criticism, or do I dare too much, to expect that such shy, retiring creatures would in front of all the world, raise their voice in question? # Greece Views the U.S. Elections — Royalists' Regime, Average Man Satisfied

Fourth in a Series
Greece is exhibit A in the Truman program. How does that country view the outcome of the American elections? When the Truman doctrine was first designed, it was pointed specifically toward Greece and Turkey. Greece, normally within the British sphere of influence, has become too heavy a burden for Britain's already strained economy. President Truman embarked on a path of containing the Soviet Union wherever he saw such a course necessary. His election means that his program will not be cut off in mid-stream. What does Truman's full assertion of his right to guide American foreign policy mean to the various forces in Greece?

Greece's strategic importance as the gateway to the Dardanelles, as well as its status as the protective flank to Suez, has no assured position as a top-priority sphere in American foreign relations. The second group to be considered are the Greek Communists. They are the rifle of Soviet ideology which is steadily moving south from Bulgaria and Albania.

In addition to being Communists, they do represent some of the democratic forces in Greece who hate the Royalists and the past that they stand for. The genuine Communists in the guerrilla army view the election results with sour faces. Soviet objective no. 1 in Europe is the defeat of the Marshall plan. The President's vote of confidence of Nov. 2 has given him a mandate to continue his program in Greece, and therefore to push the Marshall plan there to the limit. That still leaves the third, and perhaps largest group. What of the majority of the Greek people who look with disfavor at both the Communists and the Royalists. The rank and file Greek does not want to return to royalism. Neither does he want to turn completely left. The moderate trend left which the American elections clearly indicated, plus the Truman attitude of left-handed approval of European socialism, may have encouraged the average Greek. It is quite conceivable that the Greek people are willing to go along with the Marshall plan and even the American support of an extreme rightist government, as long as such a policy seems necessary to their security. In contrast to some of the economy plans which the Republicans had in mind for further American foreign spending, American capital will continue to flow into Greece.

1 A.M. Party Rules Confuse SUI Students

Confusion? There was plenty yesterday among residents and staff members when anyone mentioned "women's hours."

The situation arose when five housing units decided to make use of a Code of Student Life ruling which gives any housing unit permission to hold a one o'clock party—if it is formal.

Normal closing time for student parties is 12 o'clock.

University women who went to one of five formal parties held last night were granted 1:30 late permissions. Other undergraduate residents were required to keep regular 12:30 hours unless they used late permissions or had senior privileges.

(Freshman women may have two late permission each semester, sophomores and juniors get three, and seniors without privileges get four.)

Since the parties were not all-university affairs, some students felt this was unfair.

Only women attending an all-university party may be granted a special 1:30 a.m. permit.

The rules in the Code are those of the administration under authority of the president of the university. The University Women's association issues the Blue Book.

In previous years provisions were made in the Blue Book for women's housing units to hold one o'clock parties. Last year the men requested that they be allowed to have one o'clock parties.

After considering the men's request, the committee on student life agreed that the men and women alike could have one o'clock parties if they are all formal, Chairman J. W. Howe explained.

As it now stands, chapter 6, section 10 in the Code says: "All student parties must close at midnight except formal parties which may close at 1 a.m."

The Blue Book of women's regulations (sec. 4, paragraph C) states:

"Special 1:30 a.m. hours shall be granted to university women attending any of the all-university parties announced as 1 a.m. dances."

President D. J. Myers, Currier Hall association, said yesterday, "Many of the girls are questioning the ruling in the Code. They feel as if they are being discriminated against because they aren't going to any strictly formal dances."

Panhellenic Representative Betty Malick, central judiciary board, said she thought 12:30 is "late enough" for girls to stay out.

"The average town house is at a disadvantage because they probably wouldn't be able to sponsor a formal dance of their own," Town Representative Norma Ecklund commented.

Margaret Deane, head counselor of women's dormitories, said, "This is all very confusing to residents and the staff."

K. Winsor is Sixth Ex-Mrs. Shaw After Five-Minute Divorce

RENO, NEV. (AP) — Kathleen (Forever Amber) Winsor took about five minutes out from writing a new novel yesterday and divorced Bandleader Artie Shaw, her husband of two years.

A four and one-half minute session behind closed doors in Judge A. J. Maestretti's chambers and the shapely brunette authoress became the sixth ex-Mrs. Shaw in a line that includes movie stars Ava Gardner, Lana Turner, and Betty Kern, daughter of Composer Jerome Kern.

Prof. F. Rosenthal Tells Hillel Group Of Bible Translations

The Bible is a book of 1,000 tongues and the translations of it into 1,000 languages have been the product of the works of hundreds of men and scholars through the ages, Prof. Frank Rosenthal said at Hillel house last night.

Rosenthal of Drake university spoke before an audience of about 150 people on "The Discovery of Judaism: Christian Scholars of Hebrew." Last night's lecture was the second in a series sponsored by the Bnai Brith Hillel foundation on "The Intellectual Pilgrimage of Judaism."

Rosenthal traced the course of the Bible from the time people began to translate the Old Testament into various languages down to the 16th century. The first translation, from the original Hebrew into Latin, was by St. Jerome in about 380 A.D., he said.

Much of the meaning has been lost by the many translations of the Bible from Hebrew into other languages, the professor said. The entire study of oriental culture began with the interest of scholars to learn the Hebrew language so they could translate the Bible, he added.

Rosenthal, an assistant professor of history, received his secular and religious training in pre-Hitler Germany. At that time he studied Jewish history from many ancient and historical manuscripts.

Rosenthal said, if anyone is really interested in studying the Bible, the person should return to original translations and recent versions.

It's as easy as a trip to the grocery store to play Santa Claus to needy Iowa City families this year.

The baskets will be distributed to needy families at Christmas time by Jaycee members.

CAN'T WRITE CHECKS EDWARDSVILLE, ILL. (AP) — Robert L. Knetzer, bankrupt automobile dealer, told creditors yesterday he did not know who had authority to write checks on his Motor Sales company funds.

The SUI Home Economics club's annual Christmas banquet will be held Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in the river room of the Iowa Union, Katherine Rathe, A4, said yesterday. Miss Rathe is chairman of the event.

Main speaker will be Mary Feaver, physical education teacher here from England. She will discuss the banquet tables will be foot-high Christmas trees. Small colored decorations will be suspended from evergreen sprigs mounted on a cone-like superstructure of chicken wire.

Commonplace Situations

— In 'The Raven'

By BOB SENNISH

One of the most laudable features about the French in their superiority as movie-makers is that they need not stand on their heads in order to be extraordinary. They do not crowd up their films with extravagant costuming, with sets guaranteed to knock your eyes out, or with beavies of luscious and lame-brained Bo-Peeps designated to make hay with your libido.

In short, the French leave more than just elbow-room for what matters in their films.

"The Raven," which opens today at the Capitol theater, is a beautiful case in point. The French do not shy away from commonplace. In fact, they capitalize upon it—but not in the same way as Eddie Guest, the child of commonplace and hero's backside, warbling his worny woodnotes mild. On the contrary, commonness which is latent in commonplace and nurse it along into extraordinary films like "The Raven."

This may not be Aristotelian. But it's good.

Very roughly, the plot gets underway with a flood of anonymous poison-pen letters which become the talk of a small French town. The letters are aimed at the reputation of a young doctor, Germaine, who very haltingly carries out a series of trysts with the young wife of an elderly psychiatrist.

He gets a letter, very childishly advising him to lay off or else. This provokes him not to lay off. Another woman comes into his life. The plot thickens. The letters become more frequent and more sinister. A whole batch of "common people" somehow get themselves mixed into this untidy situation. They get letters. A quiet kind of mass hysteria settles upon the whole town.

A letter is sent to a hospital patient, telling him he has no chance of recovery. He kills himself. A nurse, the most likely suspect, is put in custody. The letters keep coming. Germaine's practice is ruined, there being some meager basis for the secrets betrayed in the letters.

Eventually, the whole town succumbs to the horrible bafflement of the situation. Other-wise normal people begin to behave like idiots, demons, or writers of poison-pen letters. They sneak, fear, gossip, stare, and most of all, show their susceptibility to dirty rumors and the seductiveness of evil.

The rest is not simple enough to recount, event by event. As you've no doubt gathered, the movie would hardly pass muster at the French Academy. There is some disunity, and certain episodes, though good in themselves, have a high degree of irrelevance. But they somehow do not weaken the overall impact. Perhaps they actually lend themselves to the frenzy and suspense which penetrate the entire film.

The movie has no underlying "message." And it wasn't built for "pleasure." A ball-bouncing little girl, more sinister than perhaps a dozen Medeas, will not increase your love of "the kiddies." The sight of the pursued nurse escaping the ugly sounds of the mob and beholding, once in her room, her distorted features in a shattered mirror will not titillate you by this look-see into milady's boudoir.
