Santa: They Made the Stacks Too Small

Tight Situation Eased

Rumors Reveal Santa Snubs Snug Stovepipes; Cotter Promises Chimney Stretcher

A tight situation might have developed here this week if university officials had not intervened, reliable sources reported yesterday.

Last week word was heard around university juvenile circles that a certain Mr. Santa Claus would by-pass the temporary housing areas here on his regular Dec. 24 evening business trip.

This report was not confirmed, but it was believed to have originated from observations made by architectural experts that chimneys of the barracks and trailers were of inadequate dimensions to accommodate Claus in his evening descents.

Claus, who also goes under the name of Kris Kringle, has been described as a rotund, ruddy-complexioned person with a fondness for wearing colorful clothing.

Estimates of his girth have varied from 40 to 50 inches. This makes it almost impossible or him to negotiate the five-inch width of the temporary dwellings' smokestacks, said these experts, unless he "can put on quite a squeeze play."

As the report circulated it was feared that panic would develop among the kindergarten population. Parents worried about a possible epidemic of sad faces, wet eyes and discordant vocalizations from their progeny on Christmas morning.

University officials were contacted and measures have been taken to correct the situation. Here is the latest word from these officials.

Robert Cotter, manager of married student's housing: "We have a chimney stretcher on order. However, if it doesn't arrive, I will personally be available Christmas Eve to let Claus in with a master key."

C. W. Dack, area supervisor for Finkbine park, said he will do everything humanly possible to help Santa out—or rather in.

He explained, "Many of the barracks have fire escape doors. I will advise leaving them unhooked so that Kringle can enter without hazarding a descent through the smokestack."

"Also, I have informed responsible quarters at the North Pole that I will be standing by for any emergencies occurring on Christmas Eve."

Hawkeye village's assistant supervisor R. V. Manatt suggested that Santa try the two roof ventilators found in most of the trailers in the village.

R. W. Ayers, supervisor for Riverside park, mentioned the possibility that belief in the existence of Claus will help him through the chimney, no matter how small. He said the red-coated traveler can get down any chimney.

In any event university officials were taking every precaution in what might be a tight situation.

Jews' Bid Rejected By Security Council; Russia, U.S. Agree

PARIS (AP) — The new Jewish state of Israel failed yesterday in its first bid to join the United Nations.

Both the United States and Russia supported the Israeli application, but it failed to obtain the necessary seven affirmative votes in the UN security council.

Syria voted against admitting Israel, and five nations, including Britain and France declined to vote.

Israel now goes on the UN waiting list, along with 12 other nations previously rejected.

The vote on Israel apparently ended the security council's work in Paris.

Since the council must meet at least every two weeks under the UN charter, there probably will be one more perfunctory meeting in Paris before the 11-nation body adjourns until next year, when it will reconvene at Lake Success, N.Y.

Yesterday's action, however, does not mean that the Israeli application is dead. It can be raised again at any time, and probably will be before the end of the April session of the general assembly in New York.

Just before the vote was taken, Egypt informed the security council that "masses" of Jewish troops have started a new attack on El Faluja, in southern Palestine.

U.S.-Soviet Quarrel Halts Xmas Parcels

BERLIN (AP) — A new Soviet-American disagreement last night blocked delivery of more than 50,000 Christmas gift parcels to Germans in the Soviet zone and Berlin.

American officials won't send any more rail cars to Soviet Germany because, they say, the Russians don't return the cars.

Correspondence disclosed that Maj. Gen. Semenkhin, chief of Soviet communications, wrote to the American communications chief, Eugene H. Merrill protesting the stoppage and Merrill shot back that the Russians apparently used the gift parcel system to retain 1,700 rail cars rightfully belonging to the U.S. and British zones.

Merrill complained to the Soviets a month ago and two weeks later the Russians offered to correct the situation. When nothing was done, the American chief embargoed shipments.

A Soviet army newspaper hinted at reprisals for the French action Thursday in dynamiting Berlin's transmission towers as menaces to air navigation near Tegel airport.

The Taegliche Rundschau said editorially: "This barbaric demolition will be entered in future accounts and all necessary conclusions drawn from it."

Propose Benefits to Head Off Threatened Railroad Walkout

WASHINGTON (UP) — A presidential board proposed yesterday that the railroads head off a threatened strike by granting one million non-operating employees an immediate seven-cent hourly pay increase and a 40-hour work week.

The 40-hour week would begin Sept. 1 and this pay hike would be retroactive to last Oct. 1.

One union official in Chicago indicated the workers would accept, but their chief negotiator described the board recommendations as "very disappointing" and hinted at further negotiations with the carriers.

Industry officials have said the 40-hour week would "bankrupt" them.

The presidential board estimated its recommendations would cost the railroads $450-million annually.

It proposed:

1. A seven-cent hourly "third round" wage increase, retroactive to Oct. 1.
2. A reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours beginning Sept. 1, 1949.
3. Cancellation of the unions' present contract provision for time and a half pay for Sunday work in exchange for the 40-hour week.

Glider Rescue of 9 Fails in Greenland

WASHINGTON — Efforts to rescue nine airforce men marooned on the Greenland ice cap failed yesterday when a glider sent to pick them up bogged down in deep snow.

The airforce said two attempts were made by a C-54 from Goose Bay, Labrador, to lift the glider into the air.

Both times, however, the glider's wheels dug into the snow and the ship nosed down. It was undamaged, and no one was injured.

The airforce said the next rescue attempt may involve a plywood runway. Plywood dropped from the air will be pieced together to form a smooth runway for the glider to use.

If this fails, wheels on the glider may be removed so it can slide on its belly for a pick-up from the air.

The glider was dropped early yesterday on the ice cap.

The nine men are stranded as the result of two mishaps. A twin-engine C-47, with seven men aboard, made a forced landing on the ice cap on Dec. 9. On Dec. 13, a B-17 rescue plane attempted a landing to pick up the men and instead over into a snowbank. Two men were aboard the B-17.

The airforce said the plane was to take out five of the airmen in one pickup and then rescue the remaining four on a second pickup.

Seven Men Killed In Bomber Mishap

SHREVEPORT, LA. (AP) — Seven persons were killed yesterday when a B-25 bomber from Biggs airforce base, El Paso, Tex., exploded near Robeline, about 75 miles southeast of Shreveport.

The Barksdale field public relations office said the plane carried 5 airmen and 2 navy enlisted personnel. Witnesses said the explosion which occurred at or near the ground blew the bodies and plane almost to bits.

Barksdale field officials said the names of the dead would be made public after next of kin are notified.

Seek Laws To Spy-Hunt By Wire-Tap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tighter laws for trapping and punishing spies — including legalized tapping of suspects' telephones — will be a prime project of the Truman administration in the new congress, Attorney General Clark said yesterday.

"We'll have some recommendations right at the beginning of the session in January — amendments to the present statutes on espionage," Clark told reporters after a House.

(For story on contents of microfilm documents released today, see page 8)

He elaborated at the justice department later, telling a reporter that the department will make a recommendation "concerning the use of technical surveillance — in plain words, wire tapping," in spy cases.

He also said:

1. "We feel that the espionage law could be greatly strengthened by a revision of the section which required proof of intent and motive for successful prosecution. These things are very hard to prove and we feel changes could be made to aid prosecution."
2. The department probably also will ask a change in the statute of limitations, so far as it prevents prosecutions for espionage activities after a given time. One justice department official has said, in the current spy case, that the present peacetime statute cannot be used for overt acts committed more than three years ago; there is an unsettled difference of opinion on this point.

Rep. McDowell (R-Pa), member of the un-American activities committee, reported from New York that he gained "some highly important and highly valuable information," McDowell said that acting as a subcommittee, he had questioned two witnesses in the committee's spy probe. He reported "promising leads that will be pursued immediately in Washington and New York."

MOSCOW, IDAHO (AP) — When Mrs. W.M. Tinniswood heard a crash in her front room yesterday, she found a hen pheasant on the floor and a large window smashed. Thinking the invader was dead, Mrs. Tinniswood hurried downstairs to tell her landlady. As they returned to the apartment, she found the other profit window.

The pheasant had recovered from the first blow, and departed the hard way.

Investigating Committee Arrives in Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA (AP) — The government said last night invading forces in northwestern Costa Rica suffered the loss of five men in an attack last night near Santa Rosa.

Meanwhile, a commission representing the organization of American States (OAS) arrived here yesterday to investigate Costa Rican charges that the invading troops are from Nicaragua.

Airforce's Swank New Plane Last Word in Luxury Travel

WASHINGTON (UP) — The airforce yesterday took the secrecy wraps off its plush new airliner which President Truman reportedly said "is too swank for me."

It's the same plane which one had become president. Both Dewey and the airforce denied to be used for "VIPS," the military term for very important persons.

Still another published report was that Mr. Truman had said he had never heard of the plane — except what he read in the news-papers — although airforce Secretary W. Stuart Symington was represented as saying he told the president about the craft many months ago.

In any event, it was put on display yesterday and observers found it the last word in air travel.

Costing $1,193,794, it is a duplicate of the Constellation civilian airliner on the outside but the interior resembles a luxury railroad car.

Its two cabins are done in dove gray and blue. The main cabin has indirect lighting, brass accessories, two luxury divans, two large leather chairs and a desk bearing the gold air force seal.

Doctor Says He Stabbed Man in CR Hotel Room

Rallies After Suicide Try to Tell Story Of Revenge in Triangle Love Affair

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, 29, rallied from the effects of self-administered poison last night to admit that he stabbed a man fatally at Cedar Rapids, Ia., over the victim's attentions to his wife.

Police reported Rutledge admitted the slaying but claimed he did not know he had killed Byron C. Hattman, 29, and that he had acted in self defense.

Rutledge rallied briefly after taking poison in his west end home here when he was arrested for questioning in Hattman's death. Hattman's body, a deep stab wound in the chest, was found in a hotel room at Cedar Rapids Wednesday.

They said Rutledge told them he went to Cedar Rapids to offer Hattman money if he would stay away from his wife, Sydney, 23, a six-foot blonde.

Hattman flashed a billfold and said he didn't need money and a fight started, Rutledge told officers. He claimed Hattman pulled a knife from a pocket.

"I took the knife away from him and jabbed at him a number of times to keep him away," Rutledge said.

Rutledge said Hattman fell to the floor and that he picked up the billfold and knife and fled. He returned to St. Louis and threw away the knife and billfold, he said, but couldn't remember where.

Before the questioning ended, Rutledge told police that Hattman, a designer for the Emerson Electric Manufacturing company, had started making telephone calls to his wife last August and had asked her to get a divorce and marry him.

The doctor said he went to Cedar Rapids to "square accounts for my wife."

When police arrived yesterday, Dr. Rutledge went to the bathroom where he applied pancake makeup to his bruised face, blackened in the fight with Hattman, and took the poison.

The daughter of a prominent Hannibal, Mo. doctor, she attended Carleton college at Northfield, Minn., and earned an A.M. degree at Washington university here.

In Cedar Rapids, police inspector H.J. Krudna said officers were led to Dr. Rutledge after another hotel guest reported seeing a stranger in Hattman's room before the murder. Further inquiry disclosed that Hattman had told Cedar Rapids business acquaintances how he was "having trouble with a St. Louis doctor." They later learned that Dr. Rutledge had been granted credit at a garage there for minor auto repairs.

Application for a grant calling for federal funds from July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1952, had been placed in October, Dr. Wilbur R. Miller and director of the psychopathic hospital, reported.

Miller also said that the funds, granted under the National Mental Health act, will be used for training mental health personnel and more teachers for expanding the teaching program in psychiatry.

That set off the fireworks. Mrs. Tom Spragle, camp secretary for GI city, one of three trailer camps operated by the school, wanted to know where he got his authority.

Cowan went to his lawyers, then left for New York on a trip without answering the question.

Paul Hanna, business manager of the university, put out the verbal fire yesterday with one statement:

"There will be no move to enforce this ban."

Perhaps 'Twould Be a Reasonable Investment

PICK CITY, N.D. (AP) — This Garrison damsite boomtown decided yesterday it had better supplement its fire chief, Vincent X. Mayde, with some fire-fighting equipment.

Mayde was on the job all right, but without hose, water, or chemicals as he stood helplessly as his house burned to the ground Thursday.

Communists Advance Within 30 Miles of Chinese Capital

NANKING (AP) — Defense headquarters on the ragged front before Nanking "pulled back yesterday to a point only 30 miles northwest of this Communist-threatened Chinese capital.

The 6-mile withdrawal from Pengpu to Chubshin indicated a worsening of the government position, although there were few fresh developments on the battlefields.

In the north there was desultory fighting around Communist-surrounded Peiping, but a waiting calm continued inside the ancient city walls.

Removal of Gen. Liu Tze's headquarters from Pengpu was reported by Seymour Topping, AP staff correspondent in Pengpu.

Topping said advance echelons of the headquarters pulled out Thursday night. They informed railway officials that only part of headquarters was moving.

Removal of telephone wires and heavy truck traffic, however, indicated a large-scale move. Panicky residents of Pengpu piled on top of the southbound trains to go along with the military.

At the same time, Topping reported elements of the fresh 20th army were arriving in Pengpu with about 14,000 men, indicating that the fighting front was not being abandoned.

Dispatches from Peiping said the government troops of Gen. Fu Tso-Yi were continuing counterattacks just outside the city.

Santa Thrown Out For Disturbances

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A red-suited Santa Claus on a good will Christmas mission was thrown out of a hotel here yesterday for "disturbing the peace."

The eviction of Santa, with his white whiskers, jingle bells and a sack of toys, was undertaken by Ali Mohammed, owner-manager of the Ali hotel on Howard street. Mohammed told police he found "the funny old man toiling up three flights of stairs shouting and hollering happy this and merry that."

The outraged Santa Claus was Clifton Van Meter, 55, a school janitor. He said the school's vice principal, Miss Margaret McCullough, had asked him to play Santa to a family with six children at the hotel.

The teacher drove him to the hotel. He said he had just located the first child on his list and was shouting happy messages when Ali Mohammed attacked him, and threw him down three flights of stairs.

"And suddenly there I was, in front of Miss McCullough, without my pants, without my whiskers, without my hat. Somehow I managed to rescue the toys."

Hawks Favored at MSC Tonight

Spartans' 1st Test Against League Rival

(Special to The Daily Iowan) EAST LANSING, MICH.—Michigan State college will get its first athletic competition against a Western conference opponent since being admitted to the newly-formed Big Ten when the Spartans play host to the University of Iowa basketball team here tonight.

The powerful Hawkeye squad of Coach Pops Harrison arrived here yesterday afternoon by train, 15 strong. Harrison's aggregation easily trounced four teams this season while MSC has split even in four contests.

Exams Hinder Spartans
Because of Michigan State's two losses to Western conference quintets, Michigan and Indiana, plus the Spartans' recent lay-off due to term-end examinations, Iowa has been placed as a five-point favorite.

Coach Ben F. Van Alstyne's cagers have been through only informal practice sessions this past week and no team workouts have been held.

The same lineup which has taken the floor in recent games will start against Iowa. The five includes Bill Rapchak and John Granack at the forwards; Jack Wulf at center, and Hugh Dawson and Robbie Robbins at the guards.

Hawks to Start Height
The Hawkeyes are expected to start their usual tall lineup which averages 6-feet, 4-inches. This would have Don Hays and Glenn Dille at forwards; Al Weiss at center, and Bob Schulz and Tom Parker at guards.

Eighteen MSC players have seen action in one or more games this year, but only six have registered more than 10 points. The individual scoring leader to date is Granack, six-foot junior from Hammond, Ind., with 32 in three games. Next is Rapchak, junior forward from Whiting, Ind., with a three-game total of 25 points.

Iowa's 6-foot-, 4-inch sophomore center, Al Weiss, paces the Hawk scorers with 39 points in four games. Glenn Dille, 6-foot, 6½-inch forward trails Weiss with 26 points.

Iowa and Michigan State have met only twice previously in basketball. The Hawks won the first game here in 1940, 40-34, and the second match at Iowa City in 1945, 66-29.

See Peace, Possible Playoff in Pro War

CLEVELAND (AP)—A hint of peace between the young All-America football conference and the established National league game yesterday from Ben F. Lindheimer, owner of the Los Angeles Dons and chairman of the A-A executive committee.

A sentence hidden deep in a lengthy statement regarding the prospects of the three-year-old circuit said quietly that scouting costs had been reduced and that of the players discovered, "whether they come into our conference, we want them in professional football."

The single sentence, flimsy as it was, was the only positive statement of the opening day of the conference's third annual meeting. The session opened amid rumors and continued on through unverified reports that equalled the needles of a Christmas tree in numbers.

Lindheimer's statement also refuted reports that the circuit was ready to fold by looking forward to tighter competition in 1949 and pointing out that the conference's 1948 attendance was only 5.49 percent below that of 1947.

Prior to Lindheimer's announcement, Dan Topping, president of the New York Yankees, said he would be glad to serve as landlord on Dec. 26 should the winner of the National league title game and the A-A champion agree to meet.

A New York paper said yesterday that if the Philadelphia Eagles, owned by Alexis Thompson, won the National league title game from the Chicago Cardinals, he might send his team against the A-A champion in a football world series.

Thompson, one of the few National league owners seeking a truce in the dollar war between the two circuits, is a close social friend of Topping. For the past two seasons Thompson's Eagles have won everything but customers. They have won the eastern championships two years in a row although unable to show a profit at the box-office.

Tomorrow the Eagles are host to the Cardinals, while the Cleveland Browns will be seeking their third consecutive A-A title here in a fray with Buffalo, winner of the eastern division.

Move Way for 'Moving' Van

Two Iowa Gridders in Shrine Benefit Games —

Woody, Kay Leave This Weekend

Two star Iowa football linemen, Center Dick Woodard and Tackle Bill Kay, will be on their way west and south respectively this weekend to participate in all-star football games for the benefit of Shrine hospitals.

Woodard left Iowa City on the 4:42 Rocky Mountain Rocket this morning for Chicago, and will report to Northwestern university where he will join the East squad for the trip to San Francisco. He and Warren Benson of Minnesota are the centers on the squad which will meet the West all-stars in Kezar stadium Jan. 1.

Kay will leave for Miami, Fla., Sunday by plane from Omaha. He was picked as a tackle on the North squad for the game with the South all-stars Christmas night. The game will be played in the Orange bowl.

Woodard will be the 14th Hawkeye to perform in the New Year's classic at San Francisco since the first game in 1925. He probably will be used as defensive center. Iowa's Bob Smith and Hal Soener helped the East triumph last January, 49-9.

The Miami game, a relatively new all-star contest, has no connection with the annual Blue-Gray battle which also pits outstanding eastern and southern players.

Little is known here of the personnel of the North squad coached by Herman Hickman of Yale. Kay was named on The Associated Press all-America second team and the third all-players all-America selection.

Both Woodard and Kay intend to continue their gridiron careers with professional teams next year.

KSUI to Broadcast Hawklet Home Tilts

All home basketball games of City high's Little Hawks will be broadcast by KSUI, the University of Iowa's FM station.

KSUI is located at 91.7 on the FM radio dial.

Tonight's game with Dubuque high school, a Mississippi Valley conference game, will go on the air at 8:05 p.m.

The scheduled home games are Keokuk, Dec. 30; Franklin, Jan. 3; Roosevelt, Jan. 13; Vinton, Jan. 24; Davenport, Feb. 4; Wilson, Feb. 11, and Clinton, Feb. 18.

Brechler Leaves On Coast Journey

Paul Brechler, University of Iowa director of athletics, left yesterday for the Pacific coast.

Brechler will see the Rose bowl game between Northwestern and California in Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1, and during the week of Jan. 3 to 8 will attend sessions of the National Collegiate Athletic association in San Francisco.

He is taking Mrs. Brechler and their son, Bill, for visits with friends and relatives in northern and southern California.

"It's a combined business and vacation trip," Brechler said yesterday.

Montana on Way Out of Pacific Coast Conference

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Montana university "definitely is on the way out" of the Pacific Coast conference, the United Press learned from a reliable source yesterday.

And the northern school's status will be a major topic for discussion at the annual PCC meeting in Palm Springs, Jan. 2 to 5.

Montana's recent decision to de-emphasize sports after the 1948 season in which the Grizzlies didn't win a game in conference competition, will bring the matter to a head, PCC leaders agreed yesterday.

There has been talk for years that Montana and Idaho would either be dropped or quit the fast company of PCC athletics, but nothing ever has been done about it. A few years ago Montana considered a voluntary withdrawal, but nothing happened.

Northwestern Leaves Today for Rose Bowl

EVANSTON, ILL. (AP)—Northwestern university football players, keyed to a fighting pitch for their Rose bowl debut, packed their bags yesterday for the long trek to the west coast.

They'll get a rousing send-off from students and Evanston citizens when they board a special fast train today at 5:30 p.m. The 45-man squad is scheduled to arrive in Pasadena at 9 a.m. Pacific time Monday, with only a few stops en route.

Coach Bob Voigts said, "The boys are keyed up now and they're going to stay up." He said, "They know this is the one game they have to win."

The team ran through its last hard scrimmage yesterday after completing semester examinations. Fullback Art Murakowski said, "If we can get through those exams, we can get through anything."

Most of the students have left Evanston for the Christmas holidays, but university officials and campus leaders went ahead with plans for a pep rally and noisy celebration at the station as the team boards the diesel-powered train.

Joe Miller, director of student affairs, said, "There aren't many of us left in Evanston, but it's going to be a big sendoff just the same." He said all the citizens of Evanston had been urged to come down to the station, "and a lot of them are going to join us."

Stop Surge, Win, 48-47

(Special to The Daily Iowan) CEDAR RAPIDS—Iowa City high school staved off an insurgent McKinley quintet here last night to post a close 48-47 Mississippi Valley conference triumph, the third straight league win for the Little Hawks.

Heavy favorites before the start of this ball game, the Hawklets just did manage to come out ahead and keep their unbeaten string of five consecutive conquests intact. McKinley's valiant comeback in the final period fell one point shy of pushing the game into an over-time.

City high led by a slim margin throughout the first half after the Cedar Rapids' quintet had jumped into an opening 5-0 lead. The Little Hawks led at half-time, 26-23, and jumped the edge to 40-34 at the third quarter mark.

Then came the McKinley deluge. Gardiner Dutton, forward, paced the late attack and with two minutes left in the game, Iowa City held a two-point lead, 47-45. With one minute, fifteen seconds remaining, forward Bill Fenton dropped in a free throw to make the score 48-45.

But Jerry Brown hooked in a field goal for the Golden Bears with 45 seconds to go. With 30 seconds of playing time left Dutton missed a crucial free throw, Iowa City taking control of the ball and talking out the remaining seconds.

The feature of the game centered around the battle waged by two of the tallest centers in the state, Gene Hettrick (6-5) of the Little Hawks and Eldon Brooks (6-7) of the Golden Bears. Hettrick poured in seven field goals and three free tosses to lead the Hawklets with 17 points. Brooks fouled out of the game early in the third period after hitting seven points.

Whitey Diehl poked in 11 points for City high to trail Hettrick for scoring honors, while Bill and John Fenton scored eight points apiece.

Tonight the Little Hawks will meet Dubuque here in their fourth conference game of the season. Game time is 8:15 p.m.

U-High Drops 36-26 Game to West Branch

University high school's Blue Hawks lost their fifth straight game at West Branch last night, 36-26.

The Bears held a 6-5 edge at the end of the first quarter and were never seriously threatened thereafter.

Next action for the Blues will be at Winfield Thursday night.

Detroit Quits NBL; N.Y. Rens Added

CHICAGO (AP)—Detroit withdrew from the National Basketball league yesterday because of poor attendance. The franchise was switched to Dayton, Ohio.

Dayton will be represented by the New York Rens, one of the outstanding Negro basketball teams in the nation. They will be known as the Dayton Rens. They will start play in Dayton Sunday night, engaging the Anderson Packers.

Prep Cagers to See Iowa-TCU

The basketball game here Dec. 22 between the University of Iowa and Texas Christian university has been designated as high school basketball squads' game, Athletic Director Paul Brechler announced yesterday.

Each group is limited to 15 persons, including coaches and three car drivers, and the personnel will be admitted for 60 cents per person. No seats are reserved. The game will begin at 8 p.m.

The tallest team to face the Hawkeye in non-conference action, TCU will bring a quintet which averages 6-feet, 3-inches in height.

Purdue Wins, 64-47
LAFAYETTE, IND. (AP)—Purdue's Western conference basketball team won its fourth straight victory last night, defeating Nebraska's Cornhuskers, 64 to 47, after building a 12-point advantage in the first half.

The marriage of Alice Lotridge and James E. Dunley, both University of Iowa students, will be solemnized at 10 o'clock this morning at the Catholic Student center.

The Rev. Leonard J. Brugman will perform the single-ring ceremony. The bride will be given in marriage by her father.

Taste-Tempting —

Liver Snack

"Is this all I can have, Mommy?" pint-sized David Goldin begged as he plopped another piece of liver into his already over-crammed mouth.

Planned on each side by an admiring child, Mrs. Judah Goldin, 450 Grand avenue, was preparing the evening's appetizer. Mrs. Goldin's popularity with her son, David, and daughter, Robin Elinor, is especially augmented at "chopped liver time."

The dish also appeals to her husband, Prof. Goldin, who teaches in the school of religion and is director of Hillel foundation.

Mrs. Goldin's recipe for this traditional Jewish dish supplies housewives with a headache-soothing answer to family demands for snacks, salads and hors d'oeuvres.

Chopped liver, made in the following way, took Mrs. Goldin five years to perfect:

Saute four chicken livers in about four tablespoons of rendered chicken fat until done, but not hard. The livers are better rare than well done. Run the livers, four eggs and one small onion about the size of an egg through the food chopper.

Use one egg to one liver if possible. More liver may be used but never more eggs.

Mix together with fat from sauted livers and add salt and a little pepper to taste. If there is not enough to make smooth paste, add more rendered chicken fat.

Serve on crackers as an entree with slices of kosher pickle, pickles, or as stuffing for tomatoes.

Hors D'Oeuvres Meet Sampler's Approval

"UM-M-M. GOOD!" DAVID GOLDIN GLEEFULLY APPROVES as he samples the chopped liver his mother, Mrs. Judah Goldin, is preparing for the evening's appetizer. His sister, Robin Elinor, anticipates her share as she watches her brother with wide-eyed curiosity. Mrs. Goldin is using a liquidizer to grind the liver, eggs, and onions, but a food grinder may be used instead.

Wright Plane Welcomed to U.S. Museum

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Wright brothers' airplane was welcomed to its place as the nation's foremost aviation relic yesterday in a ceremony sobered by reflection of the mighty changes it has wrought for all men.

Giant B-36 bombers and tiny jet fighters, representing the limits of size and speed achieved since the fateful 12-second flight at Kitty Hawk, N.C., 45 years ago, flew overhead as Chief Justice Vinson accepted the priceless machine for the Smithsonian Institution.

President Truman greeted the "Kitty Hawk" to "a final mooring in our national museum" in a message read by his air force aid, Col. Robert B. Landry.

The formal acceptance started a day of notable aviation activities, including the award of the Collier trophy jointly to three men who had major parts in the achievement of supersonic flight.

The honor, commonly rated as the highest in aviation, was given to Capt. Charles E. Yeager, airforce pilot who made the first supersonic flight in October, 1947; John Stack, government scientist whose research helped make the flight possible, and Lawrence D. Bell, aircraft manufacturer who designed and built the plane.

The plane which Wilbur and Orville Wright built and flew in HERE TO STAY is the airplane "Kitty Hawk" first flown by the Wright brothers 45 years ago. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson (at rostrum) is shown accepting the plane for the Smithsonian institution at a ceremony yesterday. The plane (top foreground) hangs from cables just inside the main entrance of the Smithsonian's north hall of the arts and industries building. Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" hangs just behind it.

1903 was returned from England last month after an exile that began in 1928. Wilbur died in 1912, but Orville carried on for 30 years the fight to bring official recognition of themselves as the inventors of the flying machine and discoverers of the principles which made it possible.

Iowans' Aid Asked In State's Collection Of Historical Matter

William J. Petersen, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Iowa, yesterday appealed for Iowans' aid in obtaining documentary material.

In a message in the News for Members publication released yesterday, Dr. Petersen said, "The State Historical Society welcomes material of interest to historians such as farm journals, diaries, letter collections, business records, and the accounts kept by professional men."

"Recent gifts to the society's archives include several such significant items, and it is possible there are many more hiding in attics and cupboards, or in filing cases and warehouses all over the state.

"If there are any in your attics, send them in and let our research staff evaluate them. You may have uncovered an important link in the history of the state."

Petersen also said yesterday that Iowa Citian James Doolittle had been elected to membership in the society and that St. Paul's Lutheran church, Iowa City, had been granted an institutional membership.

Oliver D. Collis, Clinton, owner of a boat on which many Iowa Citizens along with society members from throughout the state took a historical site trip last October, was made a life member of the society.

A total of 134 members joined the society this month.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A WALL STREETER'S wife ordered some toys for her baby boy from a Montgomery Ward catalogue. They arrived broken, and the Wall Streeter, who fancied himself as a wit, sent the mail-order house this letter. "I dot the toys on sent but they was broke. Pleath thend udders wite away cause I want to pway with them. Maybe Thears Woebeck will help oo out."

An equally gay soul at Montgomery Ward—could it have been Mr. Avery himself?—answered promptly, "Dear Thony: We ith sowwy but we ith out oo thock. Thears Woebeck never even thaw toys ath lovely ath thothe. Will oo excep cash weefund or would oo wather climb a twee?"

The Flonzaley Quartet had just concluded a concert at Town Hall when a lady descended upon the second violinist, and demanded a look at his instrument. She examined it minutely, and then exclaimed, "It looks exactly like a first violin!"

He's Insulting

But They All Love The Wig-Maker

By Claire Cox

NEW YORK (UP)—Adolph Senz is all tuckered out, after 50 years of trying to tame tempestuous operatic sopranos.

Senz used to have quite an athletic flair for disarming stiletto wielding divas, but now, at 80, he has to content himself with fatherly scoldings.

"I insult them," he declared, "but they always insult me first." As the Metropolitan Opera association's wig maker and make-up expert, Senz is supposed to get into peoples' hair. But more singers than you can shake a baton at have gotten into his, and whether they can hit F above high C or A below low G, he gives them a large chunk of his still agile mind when they unleash their tempers.

Love His Spunk

The opera singers love him for his spunk. They fondly call him "Papa Senz," and his garret-like room crammed with wig in the upper reaches of the Metropolitan Opera house has been a favorite haunt of many stars, including Caruso and Gallucci, who Senz says had the greatest voices of all time.

Senz, who still has the same eye for the ladies he had when he was a handsome young Austrian immigrant 53 years ago, said he's glad the Prima Donnas have become slimmer through the years, but it hasn't improved their temperaments.

Checks Wigs

He has to see that their wigs are on securely for the most hair raising scenes and that they aren't wearing the blush of youth in their cheeks for the death scene in "La Traviata." Sometimes, when a curl is askew or the makeup doesn't blend with their moods, the singers let loose with a little non-operatic shrieking. But Senz shuts them up.

"Sometimes we have a little fight," he said. "Some of them get so hot they start to insult. I insult back again. If they start to scream, I scream better than they. I used to have a pretty good tenor voice myself."

Lets Them Scream

Senz' formula for getting singers back on key, temperamentally at least, is to let them scream and holler before the first act until you'd think they never could sing another note. He disappears until they've cooled off over an aria or two, and then after the second act, he gives them a piece of his mind.

"By that time, we kiss and make up," he said, "and I tell them how they are doing. If they aren't singing so good, I tell them, and if they're in good voice, I tell them that, too."

them that, too.

"I used to give Kirsten Flagstad a bottle of brandy when I thought her performances were up to par. Now I just give the girls a great big kiss, and that makes them, so, so happy."

How to make a permanent house guest of Santa Claus

Make sure he'll come back by putting cookies and milk on the mantel!

That's kid stuff! The real (and certain, sure) way to keep Santa Claus coming back again and again is to invest in U.S. Savings Bonds.

That way you'll have the old gent around the house all the time ten years from now!

And what a delightfully jolly house guest he'll be! Santa'll spend practically all his time slyly tucking crisp folding money into your pockets.

You'll have Christmas whenever you want it as those U.S. Savings Bonds mature and you get back four dollars for every three you put in.

Make sure of those future Christmases right now. Sign up for U.S. Savings Bonds under your firm's Payroll Savings Plan. Or simply tell your bank how many bonds you want to buy every month.

There is no safer investment! There's no investment you can make which will help your country more!

But hurry! Those are reindeer hoofbeats you hear on the roof!

Five SUI students will spend the Christmas holidays skiing in what once was a ghost town in the mountains of Colorado. The students are Mark Meier, George Meier and Micky Thomas, Iowa City, Dick Ulman, Sioux City and Gene Griffin, Munich, Germany. They plan to spend eight days, including Christmas, in Aspen, Colo. This little community was once a roaring mining town. It faded into a ghost town until skiers adopted it and made it famous. The students, all members of the Iowa Mountaineers, are skiing enthusiasts most interested in the possibilities of Aspen. They say the town located about 160 miles west of Denver, and nestled in the heart of the Rockies, is ideal for winter sports. It is surrounded by 14,000 foot peaks on which fine powdered snow stays from November to June.

To save money the students will take their sleeping bags and stay at the Prince Albert bunkhouse. This is an unfurnished, heated hostel which has moderate rates. Christmas day is open house day at Aspen. The students said the entertainment may include hayrides, dog sleds or dancing — with all the trimmings.

Following their Christmas holiday in the Rockies the students plan to return to Iowa City, Dec. 31.

Teachers in Oto Agree to Return

OTO, IA. — Nine striking teachers in this town of 400 people agreed to return to their classrooms yesterday after Mrs. Jane Robson, president of the board of education, resigned.

Teachers in the town's high school and grade school left their jobs last Tuesday and said they objected to Mrs. Robson's actions in connection with board duties.

Dr. D.E. Rinker, a board member, was named acting president. He said Mrs. Robson had resigned and "would not act as a member of the board."

Oto's 53 high school students and 153 grade school pupils have been out of school since the strike.

Postoffice Frowns On Fowl Violations

Live fowl are being sent through the mails in violation of postal regulations, and the postoffice department doesn't like it.

The most recent issue of the "Postal Bulletin" advised postmasters to tell prospective senders of poultry that the only fowl that are mailable are day-old chicks, ducks, geese, turkeys and guinea fowl.

People have been violating this regulation by mailing half-grown and even adult birds, the bulletin said.

Car Hits Light Pole; Blacks Out 1,500 Homes

A 4-HOUR BLACKOUT in 1,500 Iowa City homes resulted when this car struck a light pole Thursday night near the intersection of Kirkwood avenue and Franklin street. The pole, which was snapped in two near the top, carried a 13,000-volt feeder line into a major power station. Two women passengers were taken to University hospitals where they were treated for light injuries. They were released yesterday. The car was driven by William W. Voelckers, a university student who lives at 1234 E. Davenport street. He was charged in Iowa City police court with failure to have his vehicle under control. Shown at the scene of the accident are an Iowa City policeman and a Daily Iowan reporter.

Pollster Wails Movie-Makers Ignore Poll 'Flop' Find

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD — This being the season for pollsters' alibis, clouded crystal ball division, Dr. Gallup's movie research outfit now explains why some movies turn out to be surprises like the election.

The alibi: Movie-makers are stubborn and sometimes don't take Dr. G.'s advice. Their pictures wind up lousy, and everybody ribs the pollsters.

"We've been blamed for the shutdown of Enterprise studio because of our predictions on 'Arch of Triumph,'" says Jack Sayers, head of Audience Research, Inc., Gallup's movie poll outfit.

"We told Enterprise the movie had below average enjoyment and would be a terrific disappointment. We told them to avoid disaster they should release it all over the country at the same time before word-of-mouth killed it."

Instead, Enterprise launched the Ingrid Bergman movie at a large Miami premier and invited the New York press to take a look. The critics were bored; the movie dropped dead.

Next on Gallup's I-told-you-so list: "The Paradine Case." ARI advised David O. Selznick to change the title. Mr. Selznick tossed out the poll.

"He now has the feeling he should have changed the title," said Sayers.

Ditto Sam Goldwyn. Sayers told him "The Bishop's Wife" was a title terrible for a Cary Grant comedy. Sam used it anyway. In two weeks he discovered only adults were buying tickets. They thought it was a religious picture.

Goldwyn switched the handle to "Cary and the Bishop's Wife" to lure the bobby-soxers, but a little late.

ARI also told Universal-international that "Letter from an Unknown Woman" would make money if the studio gave it a heavy build-up. U-I didn't, and the movie didn't.

ARI admits to only two big mistakes. It predicted "Kitty Foyle," a smash hit, would turn out so-so. And the pollsters told RKO "Sister Kenny" would be a neat success, which it wasn't. This error, however, is not unlike people changing their minds and voting for Truman, says Sayers.

McGrath Regrets Leaving Iowa City

Former Dean Earl J. McGrath yesterday expressed regret at leaving Iowa City as he and his wife left for their home in Chicago. McGrath resigned as dean of the college of liberal arts Sept. 27 to accept a professorship of higher education at the University of Chicago. He will begin his duties there Jan. 3.

"We will always feel that Iowa City is our home," McGrath said. "We really like the people here in the university and in the town."

"We don't like the big city and it is going to be very difficult to get used to living in Chicago. This is a great university and I'm sorry to leave it," he continued.

"If this job in Chicago had not been the sort of thing that I'm especially interested in, I wouldn't have left here," he added.

The McGrath returned to Iowa City Monday to visit friends and to get their furniture out of storage. They first left here in October to visit colleges and universities in the middle and far west.

Life Among the Red Herrings . . .

(The following took place among a school of red herring swimming in the Arctic ocean just off Murmansk.)

Comrade Pickled Red Herring—Look, comrades, one of our agents from the Potomac river has smuggled out to return home. It's Comrade Smoked.

Comrade Smoked Red Herring (swimming into the group)—Fellow revolutionists, I have returned from my espionage mission.

Comrade Pickled—Excellent, and what did you bring with you?
Comrade Smoked—One minute, I have it all hidden here in a hollow oyster shell. Ah, yes, first there is this microfilmed message—top secret stuff.

Comrade Pickled (snatching the strip of film)—Hmhm, detailed plans on American foreign policy in Afghanistan. The NKVD will be glad to hear of this.

Comrade Smoked—And on this strip of film I have the latest plans for a super-sonic slingshot. It's the newest American secret weapon.

Comrade Pickled—Excellent, our cells in the Potomac must be working well.

Comrade Smoked—That's where you are wrong, comrade. There's been a big clampdown in the Potomac. The Americans are slowly forcing our organization to the surface.

Comrade Pickled—You mean the Thomas committee is doing all that?

Comrade Smoked—Well, not the Thomas committee so much. They have acted so hysterically and have played so much politics that few people pay any attention to them. It's the federal grand jury that is doing the most harm.

Comrade Pickled—Honest proletarians like ourselves? Doing that?

Comrade Smoked—Yes, first they had the top 12 leaders of our American party indicted. Now they are quietly indicting former members of our spy network. Every red herring we have in the Potomac is in danger.

Comrade Pickled—Well, I'll be a Nickoli Lenin, things must be getting bad over there.

Comrade Smoked—But there's some confusion over some things. You see, fishing has been so poor there lately that President Truman can't tell a red herring from a smelt.

Perhaps Dollars Aren't Enough

U. S. Ambassador to Greece Henry F. Grady dropped into the White House the other day to talk to the boss. When he left, reporters asked him if Greece will get more American aid.

"Sure, Grady laughed. "After all, it's the Truman program." He told reporters that an estimated $40-million will be needed for Greece next year. The U.S. is pouring in $350-million during this fiscal year.

But a slight tone of indecision crept into Grady's voice while making his statements to the press. He could only tell the President that he was "moderately optimistic" about the success of the Truman doctrine.

"We would all be happier if the program had gone better," Grady told the reporters. "But at least Greece is still a free country. It hasn't been sucked under the iron curtain."

What the ambassador was saying between the lines was that things weren't going just right in Greece. The dollar panacea hasn't been enough. There are as many Greek guerrillas roaming the hills of northern Greece today as there were when the Truman doctrine was introduced.

President Truman said he was disturbed about this last week. Now Ambassador Grady has made it a duel. Could it be possible that the inefficient, reactionary, graft-riddled Greek regime is getting in the way? Are we slowly learning that our progressive democratic ideas must accompany our dollars into the Greek war?

Another Spy Threat . . . and Getting Serious

Seek Another '100 Days'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two CIO officials yesterday called for a duplication of the famous "Roosevelt 100 days" of financial and industrial reform to halt business "profiteering" and mounting unemployment.

Donald Montgomery, United Automobile Workers economist, and Russell Nixon, United Electrical Workers representative, said that present profit policies "spell trouble for the workers."

They testified before the senate-house economic committee which is studying the effect of industrial profits on the future economy.

The committee also heard Vice President John Schmidt of Armour and Co., whose firm reported a $1.7-million loss last year, and Howard C. Greer, vice president of Kingan and Co., Indianapolis.

Schmidt said the government does not have to worry about excessive industrial profits in a free economy. Green testified that meat packers have not made enough profit to attract the capital needed to expand their plant facilities.

Business conditions also were discussed by John E. Bierwirth, president of the New York Trust company, at a meeting with President Truman.

Bierwirth said afterward that Mr. Truman "has the same views I do." Asked what they were, he said: "I believe in a free economy and good general business conditions where everyone has a chance to succeed."

Bierwirth said he also discussed taxes with the President and thought Mr. Truman agreed with him that taxes are "awfully high and the people need relief when they can get it." However, Bierwirth did not look for any tax relief in the near future.

California 'Annapolis' To Graduate 384

MONTEREY, CALIF. (AP)—The navy's west coast "Annapolis" for reserve officers and its school for island government graduate their first class today.

Together, the reserve officers' general line school and the school for naval administration, will graduate 384 officers.

The 18 from the administration school are immediately ordered to two years' duty governing an area three-quarters as large as the mainland United States—the far-flung trust territories of the Pacific.

Another 366 officers will be graduated from the 10 months general line course at this 606-acre swank school converted from the former luxury Hotel Del Monte.

The objective of the 1,135-hour course was to equip reserve officers who joined the regular navy with the equivalent of the training given at the naval academy at Annapolis.

The unsung job of administering the strategic network of islands formerly held by Japan was given to the United States—and the navy—by the United Nations. In addition, the navy governs Guam and American Samoa.

Politics a Man's Game?—

9 Women Win Congress Seats

Politics—traditional haunt of the derby hat and smelly cigar—is slowly retreating to the powder puff and skirt. At least that's true on the national level.

When congress meets next month, nine of the congressmen will be congresswomen. Four are Democrats and five are Republicans.

The total was almost ten when Democrat Marcella F. Killen of Minnesota almost toppled veteran Republican Rep. Walter H. Judd.

One of the women will be a senator. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) a member of congress since 1940, was the first woman elected to the senate since the days of Arkansas' Democratic Sen. Hattie Caraway.

Five of the victorious women were incumbents seeking re-election, one sought to regain the seat she lost in 1946 and two were newcomers to Capitol Hill. The victorious newcomers are:

Reva Beck Bosone of Utah, a pretty red-haired Salt Lake City police judge, who overwhelmed incumbent Republican Rep. William A. Dawson.

Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Covington, Ind., a 53-year-old former school teacher who went against the Democratic trend in her state to eke out a narrow victory over her Democratic opponent, Jack J. O'Grady, for the seat now held by Rep. Nobel Johnson, a Republican.

The successful comeback was staged by Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut. Mrs. Woodhouse, a Democrat who served in the 79th congress, defeated incumbent Rep. Horace Seely-Brown Jr., a Republican.

Incumbents who were successful in their bids for re-election included Reps. Mary T. Norton (D-N.J.), dean of congresswomen; Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif.), a former movie and stage actress; Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.), a veteran of 24 years service; Frances P. Bolton (R-O), and Katharine St. George (R-NY).

Launch Japan Economy Plan

TOKYO (AP)—The United States yesterday told Gen. Douglas MacArthur to order the Japanese government to carry out a nine-point economic stabilization program designed to spur recovery of the country's business, finance and private livelihood.

The announcement released simultaneously in Tokyo and Washington outlined a new recovery plan following the Marshall plan for Europe.

The program was regarded by allied officials as a significant step toward bringing Japan fully into the gold of the nations taking part in the Marshall plan. It was announced coincidentally with the arrival here of ECA Chief Paul Hoffman who is pausing to confer with MacArthur while enroute to the United States from a survey of China.

The allied headquarters announcement pointed out that "the necessity for such a program was recognized by MacArthur in July, 1948, when he urged upon the Japanese government a program which was substantially that which he now will direct that they carry out."

The U.S. departments of state and the army direct that recovery plans be developed and coordinated "to pave the way for early establishment of a single exchange rate."

These are the nine objectives to be called for by MacArthur's directive:

1. Balancing the budget.
2. Strengthening and fully enforcing tax collections.
3. Tightly controlling credit extension to insure maximum effect on economic recovery.
4. Establishing an effective program to achieve wage stability.
5. Strengthening and if necessary expanding existing price control programs.
6. Improving foreign trade controls and tightening existing foreign exchange controls where such authority lies with the Japanese government.
7. Improving the present allocation and rationing program.
8. Increasing production of essential, indigenous raw materials and manufacturing products.
9. Improving the efficiency of the food collection program.

It offered no hint of the size of proposed American economic aid to Japan.

'Conservative' Japanese Women — May Hold Far East Balance

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
(For J.M. Roberts Jr.)

A Japanese newspaperman, one of the first to visit this country since the war, has been giving his view of the most important political influence in the far east in the immediate future.

He says it will be the women of Japan.

It's an interesting idea. The Japanese woman, patient, gentle, supremely graceful and charming, was among the world's most underprivileged beings under the old system. She had no legal rights whatever. She could be divorced simply by a three-sentence memo from her husband. There were no provisions for alimony to protect her.

Having been divorced, her name would be erased from her husband's family book. Her own family might — or might not — take her back.

She had no legal rights to her own children and, when divorced, the husband usually retained custody of them.

Politically, she was a complete zero. She had no vote and it was considered immodest for her even to express an opinion on politics.

The war and the occupation policies, according to my friend, have ripped all this to pieces. The whole social, legal and political system is changing, he says.

Japanese girls are demanding the right to marry men of their own choosing, discarding the old pattern of the "arranged" marriage. They have the vote now. A feminist movement has begun, directed toward obtaining something closer to equality with men in wages and working conditions.

Politically, the newspaperman said, the Japanese women are "very conservative."

If his analysis is correct, and if this trend continues, it is freighted with very much greater importance than you might think. It seems to me that the United States is going to need Japan, not so much as a potential military base, nor as an export market, but as a political outpost in the orient.

The events in China, as they are unfolding today, would appear to accentuate this need.

Chinese Communists are on the way toward gaining control of that vast, sprawling country. But even if it does not fall completely under the control of the Kremlin, China's influence on the rest of the oriental countries will be very great.

From every point of view, Japan was the most modern and certainly the strongest country in the far east before the war. The motor block for her industrial machine is still available. She can be assisted back to her former position.

As a far eastern bulkhead against communism, the Japanese probably could offset the influence of a Communist China.

But the whole Pacific war would have been lost, and the situation rendered much more dangerous than it was before 1941, if Japan should fall back into the hands of its militarists or, like China, go Communist.

Here, the importance of the new factor that has appeared, the "very conservative" Japanese woman.

Freed now from the crushing weight of a militarist setup, Japanese women could go very far toward creating, in Japan, the type of government and society which the United States is attempting to protect and foster everywhere in the world.

The Japanese correspondent may be right. Those women may become a decisive factor in the future of the orient.

Says General Needn't Obey Highest Court

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman yesterday told the supreme court that General Douglas MacArthur would not have to obey a high court order for release of Japanese war lords convicted of war crimes.

General MacArthur's first duty is as supreme commander for the allied powers, Perlman said, and as such he takes orders from the Far Eastern commission comprising 11 nations.

"That," commented Justice Douglas, "is a rather startling statement."

"Why," pursued Douglas, "cannot MacArthur release these Japanese when he as their jailer is an American citizen? Although he acts for 11 nations he's still an American. So far as he acts as an American, can't he be controlled by American courts?"

Perlman replied: "Your processes can't reach him, as supreme commander. In that capacity he is not acting under any American law or under the U.S. constitution. His only right to hold the prisoners comes from the commission—not from the American government."

A little later Perlman added further that, "I think it's MacArthur's duty to obey the commission. He has agreed to obey it. He has no other master."

Justice Frankfurter suggested that while MacArthur might obey an order from an American court, the other ten nations might refuse to follow his lead and the prisoners would still be held to face their sentences.

The arguments were on appeals by seven Japanese wartime officials convicted by the international military tribunal at Tokyo. Two of the seven were sentenced to death and the others got jail terms. Outcome of the case will affect 18 other Japanese also convicted. These include former Premier Tojo, who also was sentenced to the gallows.

The Japanese asked the supreme court to rule that the military tribunal was illegally set up by General MacArthur. They also asked the court to order their release.

Five attorneys for the Japanese argued before the nine justices the second day of the hearing.

Air Service Available For Mailing Late Gifts

Postmaster W.J. Barrow yesterday reminded Christmas mailers that airmail and air parcel post services are available.

Letters and parcels which would not reach their destinations by Christmas if they were sent by regular mail might arrive in time if sent by air, he said.

Christmas Spirit at Parties

EXPRESSIONS OF EXTREME INTEREST cover the faces of these handicapped children as they watch Judy Hills tap through a fast dance routine. This picture was taken Thursday night during the Christmas party for the 11 pupils in the Hospital-School for Severely Handicapped Children. Appearing on the program with Miss Hills were Leo Corimiglia, accordionist; Dr. Robert Bickford, marician; and Dor Graham, who read the poem, "Night Before Christmas." Then came Santa Claus with his pack full of gifts. The party was given for the handicapped children by the Iowa City Jaycees.

EVERYTHING FROM A YO-YO TO AN ALL-DAY SUCKER turned up at the military department's informal Christmas party yesterday afternoon. Members of the department and office workers drew names and then bought each other something—mostly "joke gifts." Capt. Albert J. Brey (left) receives a toy steam shovel from head of the department, Col. W. W. Jenna (right). The colonel himself received a toy truck to Sgt. Clarence F. Taylor. A department member from Wyoming received spurs and a western novel, while Sgt. Lewis H. Moreland, recent father of twins, was awarded twin teething rings.

Santa Claus

His Presence Shown By Xmas Spirit

Chicago (UP)—Santa Claus was abroad in the land bringing cheer eight days early.

He hadn't donned his red costume and big black belt yet, but needy children and the sick, convicts and orphans knew he had been around.

A little girl in New York City sent $1 to a newspaper with a note that she had made and sold some cookies to help the needy.

The fund-raising campaigns bought clothing, food and toys for the poor, and in Memphis a seven-year-old boy donated $2.63 in pennies, nickles and dimes from his savings to help out.

Several states planned Christmas pardons for deserving convicts and in some cities minor offenders were allowed to go free over the holidays.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall at Washington announced Christmas clemency for 450 army and air force prisoners—those who have good records and whose sentences would expire before next March 1. In Detroit, however, judges decided to sentence down-and-outers to jail over Christmas so they'll at least have a good meal.

Magistrates in Chicago and St. Louis said that no rent evictions would be carried out over the holidays.

San Francisco firemen vied with each other to see which firehouse would wear the best Christmas dress, and in Washington an ornament maker donated special eight-inch balls for President Truman's big tree.

Citizens of Topeka, Kans., remembered the "forgotten" inmates of the state mental hospital and assembled more than 1,000 gifts for them.

Los Angeles county Supervisor John Ford was collecting new and used ties to give to residents of the county poor farm, and comedian Bob Hope said he would fly to Berlin for the holidays to entertain American soldiers.

New England's flying Santa, historian Edward Rowe Snow, was off on his annual tour of coast guard stations from Calais, Me., to Block Island, R. I. distributing gifts.

Fifteen SUI Students Honored by National Scholastic Society

Fifteen SUI liberal arts freshmen, including one Iowa City man, were recently initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, freshman scholastic honor society for men.

Donald L. Krieg, 228 S. Summit street, was among the ten initiates.

Others included James R. Connor, Dubuque; Robert G. Griffith, Guthrie Center; Albert C. Haman, Laurens; Jack W. Marrs, Ames; Arthur A. McGivern, Cedar Rapids; Richard V. McNamara, Des Moines; Robert D. Rottman, Moscow; Arnold C. Schoenthaler, North English and Robert C. Wolford, Shenandoah.

Men from out-of-state were John W. Dinzole, Omaha; LeRoy G. Ferber, Bronx, N.Y.; Jack Hirsch, New York City; Harold Tulchin, Elizabeth, N.J., and Clyde E. Johnson, Fennimore, Wis.

Only freshmen with a 3.5 or better grade point average during either their first semester or first two semesters are eligible for membership. Prof. John E. Briggs is faculty advisor.

Following the initiation ceremonies, members were entertained at a banquet at the Jefferson hotel.

Director Walter R. Goetsch, office of student affairs, spoke on the value of a broad education.

Club President Phil S. Dandos, A2, Sioux City, presided, and Vice President William R. Eads, A2, Ida Grove, welcomed the new members. Harold Tulchin responded for new members.

He Saves Money by — Cutting His Own Cards

— From Catalogues

By CHARLES DONNELLY
Are you having Christmas card troubles too? Well, here's how you can solve them, and for only 50 cents and a mail order catalogue. This is the way it was done by Donald L. Morrison, a graduate commerce student, at SUI. Morrison estimates that there are at least 1,000 potential Christmas cards in any large mail order catalogue. He has been sending cards made from a catalogue to his friends for two years now. Morrison counts each page in a catalogue as a Christmas card in the raw. He begins his process by loosening the binding and taking the pages out without crimping the edges. Each page is folded twice to give the appearance of a regular greeting card. He prints the verse on them with a home-made linoleum block. The verse, crudely scrawled and misspelled in best Ozark tradition, says: "SEASON'S GREETINGS — I couldn't send a regular card, I didn't get 't town, but the cattylag was handy so I writ this greetin' down." Then on the inside is the greeting, "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Release More 'Pumpkin' Papers

Include Diplomats' Secret Notes to Hull

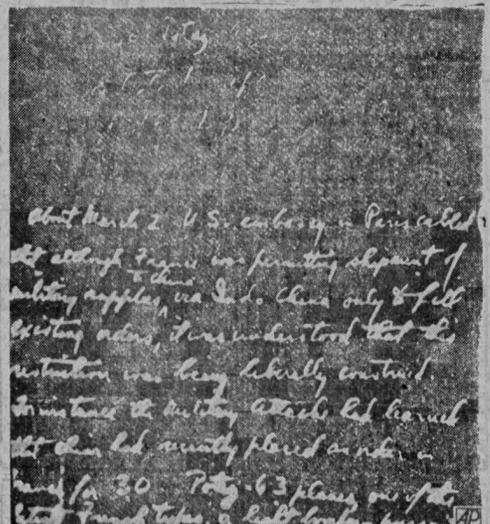

WASHINGTON (AP)—A "strictly confidential" note sent in 1938 to former Secretary of State Cordell Hull was among seven "Whittaker Chambers documents" made public yesterday by the house un-American activities committee.

Dated February 16, 1938 and transmitted in what is known as the "gray" code, it came from Herschel V. Johnson, then U.S. charge d'affaires at London. It told of an informal talk between Admiral Lord Chatfield of the British admiralty and Captain Russell Willson, U.S. naval attaché at London.

"Admiral Lord Chatfield," it read, "talked informally but at some length yesterday with Captain Willson concerning escalation under the London (naval strength) treaty. Based on this conversation it appears probable that the admiralty will favor for this year's programme raising the battleship limit to about 39,000 tons and making no change in cruiser limits. Captain Willson forwarded a full report by mail to the navy department in yesterday's pouch via Queen Mary." ("Escalation" was a technical term referring to increasing the limits on warships under naval treaties.)

The note was one of about 80 the committee has made public or will make public in its current spy probe. Seven more, constituting the final batch, are slated for release Sunday.

The committee says the papers, obtained from Chambers, confessed ex-Communist and star committee witness, were smuggled from state department sources and given to Chambers for relay to Russia. However, the committee has no evidence that the filched files ever were transmitted by Chambers. Committee members believe Chambers kept them until he turned them over to the committee Dec. 2.

ALGER HISS' HANDWRITING appears on the above photostated document, according to the un-American activities committee. The writing refers to a message from the U.S. embassy in Paris to the state department.

Chambers has named Alger Hiss, former state department official, as one of the sources of his departmental information in the late 1930's. Hiss was indicted on two perjury counts by a federal grand jury in New York late Wednesday. He has denied that he gave the papers to Chambers or had them copied for the ex-Communist, and has pleaded innocent.

Like the previous papers released, those given out yesterday were copies or photographs of originals which were returned to departmental files. All were dated in 1937 and 1938.

The committee has no meeting scheduled until next Monday. It plans then to start work on proposed anti-espionage legislation and to develop "leads" on the existence of a spy rings in this country now.

Another note to Hull came from Stuart Allen, U.S. consul at Chefoo, China, was dated February 14, 1938. It, too, was in "gray" code and told of Japanese marine movements and opposition of large bodies of armed Chinese to "Chinese authorities of the new regime."

A third "gray" code note to Hull came from Joseph C. Grew, ambassador to Tokyo. Dated February 17, 1938, it said Grew had been told by the British ambassador to Tokyo that large-scale smuggling of such things as sugar was in progress near Chinwangtao.

Addressed also to Hull and dated at Peiping on February 14, 1938, was a note from Frank P. Lockhart of the U.S. embassy staff in China.

It was in "gray" code and related reports of activities of Chinese irregulars, or guerrillas, and Japanese regular army troops.

A fifth note, signed merely "SKJ" and not otherwise identified, was dated February 11, 1938, and addressed to Secretary Hull and other top department officials. It merely called their attention to a consular report on Japanese industrial and economic plans in Manchuria. The consul's report was made public Thursday.

An undated memorandum from Charels F. Darlington, then chief of the division of trade agreements, dealt with German overtures in 1937 to adjust the Nazis' trade policies and enter into a trade agreement with the U.S. It represented the U.S. as being "ready to cooperate with the German government in seeking some temporary, or interim, solution, to their common problem."

Homebound Students Rush Libraries for Tests, Holiday Study

Circulation of books at SUI libraries was the heaviest of the season this week as homebound students prepared for last-minute tests and some holiday study.

Approximately 200 books were checked out of Reserve library between 1 and 2 p.m. yesterday in the first hour after the reserve shelves were opened for vacation circulation.

At Macbride hall circulation desk Thursday 591 books were checked out and indications were that even more would go out yesterday. At 4:30 p.m. 416 books had been checked out, about 200 of them renewals. Between 500 and 600 books were returned yesterday.

Out-going books average between 300 and 400 on normal days.

In addition to the students who stood three-deep before the circulation desks, the libraries have been crowded all week with scholars. Most of the 374 chairs in the reserve reading room has been occupied during library hours. Term papers and tests get credit for the increased library business.

Sell Extra Books At SUI Libraries

Extra copies of SUI library books went on sale to students this week at a cost of from 5 cents to $1 per copy. They are on a special shelf in Reserve library.

The books, — novels, texts, and other types of reading material — were made available through gifts, exchanges and discards. This is the first time they have been sold to students, Norman L. Kilpatrick, associate library director said yesterday.

Chief purpose of selling the books is to help students build up their own libraries by giving them the opportunity to acquire older editions of standard writers, Kilpatrick said.

So far about 40 students have purchased about 50 books. More duplicate copies will be placed on the shelf for sale from time to time, Kilpatrick said.

Prof. Ware Writes New EE Textbook

Prof. Lawrence A. Ware of SUI's college of engineering has written a new book, "Elements of Electromagnetic Waves," which is to be released this month.

This new text simplified the understanding of developments in the field of electromagnetic theory and interprets for the student in easily understood terms the various concepts of the subject.

Ware received an electrical engineering degree from SUI in 1935.

In 1942 he was co-author of a book, "Communications Circuits," with Prof. Henry R. Reed, formerly an SUI faculty member in electrical engineering.

AAA Sets Deadline for Federal Grain Purchase

The last day for farmers to complete loan or purchase agreements with the federal government on oats, soybeans, wheat, rye, barley and flax is Dec. 31, County AAA Chairman Ray E. Smalley reminded farmers yesterday.

Loans and purchase agreements on corn may be made until June 30, he said, but agreements on all other commodities must be signed and approved by the end of the year.

KEOKUK MAYOR ENTERTAINS

KEOKUK (AP)—Mayor Frank Wilmering yesterday entertained several hundred school children at his annual Christmas party, held in "appreciation of the good behavior of Keokuk children" during the year.

Greetings
