Ralph Jarrett Criminal Trial Opens Docket

Two Forfeit Bonds Of $2,500 and $500

Two men forfeited bonds and the criminal trial of Ralph Jarrett of Iowa City began yesterday in the Johnson county district court.

Robert Eddy of Chicago failed to appear for trial on a burglary charge, forfeiting a $2,500 bond. Indicted Oct. 4 by a grand jury, he was charged with entering the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house at 303 N. Riverside drive July 9 with intent to commit larceny.

Eddy became classified as a fugitive immediately and the sheriff notified the bondsmen they had 10 days in which to show cause why a judgment should not be entered for the amount of the bond. If Eddy surrenders or is returned within 60 days, the court may set aside the judgment but isn't required to do so.

Carl Paintin of Oxford forfeited a $500 bond when he failed to appear yesterday to stand trial on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

A jury of eight men and four women began trial of Jarrett at 2:40 p.m. yesterday on a grand jury indictment charging him with assault with intent to commit great bodily injury.

Indicted After Fight Jarrett was indicted Oct. 4 after he was involved in a fight at the Mexi-Hot restaurant at the corner of Maiden lane and Benton street, Aug. 8.

Several men were involved in the early morning fight. Jarrett is charged with knifing James P. Montgomery of Iowa City in the stomach.

Early in the trial yesterday, Defense Counsel Scott and In-galls Swisher indicated they would attempt to prove Jarrett acted only in self-defense.

Montgomery was the state's first witness as he told the jury that Jarrett knifed him after a brief fight in the restaurant. However, Montgomery said he didn't know he was stabbed until "I saw my guts hanging out."

The court adjourned at 4:45 p.m. and will convene at 9 a.m. today.

Excuses Jurors

After picking the jury for Jarrett's trial yesterday, Judge Harold D. Evans excused the petit jurors permanently. He said there probably would be no further criminal cases during the November term of court.

Iowa City Home Damaged by Fire

Fire of undetermined origin caused extensive damage to the home of Mrs. Rachael Stalkfleet, 1019 E. Market street, at about 3:00 p.m. yesterday.

Fire Chief J. J. Clark said the fire was in the walls and ceiling of the house and broke through the roof.

"Extensive damage was done to the walls and roof of the rear section of the house," Clark said. There was also considerable smoke and water damage to the front part of the house, he added.

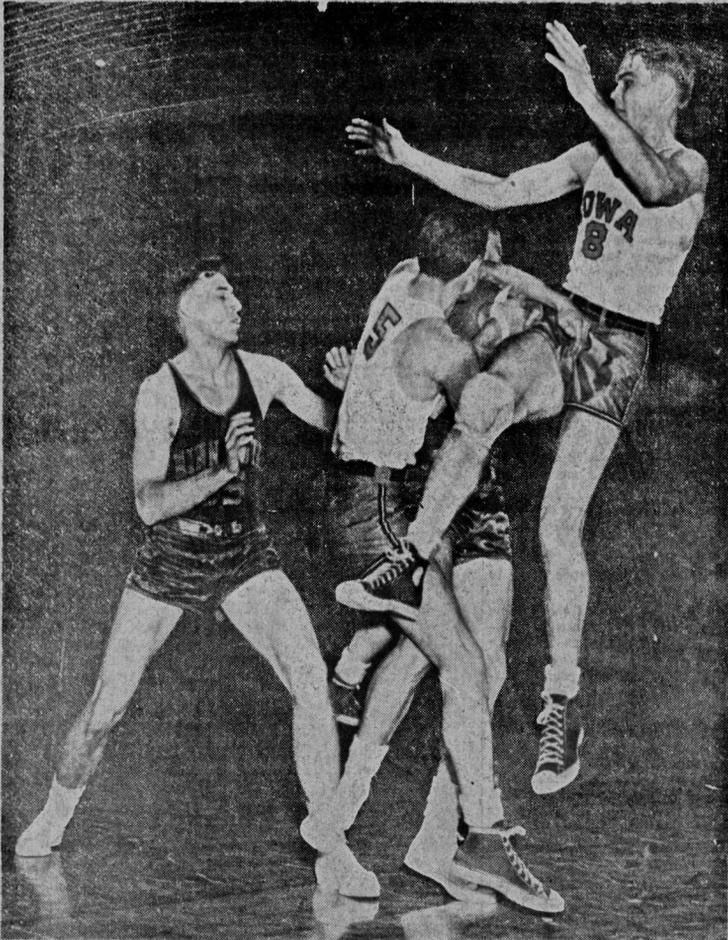

Mrs. Stalkfleet had taken two of her children, Linda, 10, and Marilyn, 12, to the Children's hospital for physical examinations and was not at home at the time of the fire.

Rocoe Grove, 1122 Rochester, discovered the fire and reported it to a neighbor of Mrs. Stalkfleet who called the fire department. No estimate of the damage has been made.

MAY URGE EDUCATION BILL WASHINGTON (AP)—Passage of a bill for federal aid to education may be recommended by the senate labor committee today, Senator Hill (D-Ala) said yesterday.

Rebound Scramble Ends in Tangle of Legs

Banking Heir Mysteriously Shot

Killed While On Jeep Ride

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Grenville Baker, heir to New York banking millions, was mysteriously shot to death at the family plantation early yesterday. A coroner's jury found that he died from a bullet fired by "a party or parties unknown."

Baker, 27-year-old onetime "Prince Charming" of eastern society was killed during a jeep ride along a dark plantation trail with a young divorcee waitress as his companion.

The jeep turned over and Baker at first was thought to be an accident victim. But investigators found a bullet hole in his head and a coroner's inquiry was organized.

For three hours, the six-man jury heard testimony from Baker's companions on a night-spot tour Sunday evening, including the waitress or "carhop," before returning a verdict.

The "party of parties unknown" finding was more or less an open verdict which ruled out neither murder nor suicide, State Attorney William D. Hopkins explained. However, Sheriff Frank Stoutamayer ordered all witnesses released.

A spokesman for the family, Plantation Overseer Jack Goode, asserted, however, that the family believed Baker was killed by accidental discharge of a pistol as the jeep crashed.

Rita, Aly Khan Plan Marriage

CANNES, FRANCE (AP)—Prince Aly Khan announced yesterday that he will get a divorce and marry movie glamor queen Rita Hayworth. He added that his bride-to-be will "not necessarily" adopt the Moslem religion.

Prince Aly explained that his second marriage, like his first, would be performed both by civil and religious ceremonies and that any children would be brought up as Moslems. Miss Hayworth is a Roman Catholic.

When and where the wedding will take place, who is the plaintiff in the divorce case and where the suit was filed remained unanswered questions.

But Aly, scion of fabulous wealth and heir apparent to the religious leadership of millions of

Truman, Taft Have Winning Grins

CINCINNATI (UP)—President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.) yesterday won by a smile.

The political opposites were listed among the 10 men with top-notch smiles by Mrs. Esther E. Sweeney, director of community services of the American Social Hygiene association.

The expert on smiles said President Truman's was "cocksure," while the Ohio senator's was "boyish" and one that would bring "radiant happiness" to any home.

Nationalists Flee North Port; Peiping Loss Seems Certain

NANKING (AP)—The Chinese Nationalists fled by sea from the northern port of Tangku yesterday amid indications that Peiping was destined quickly to surrender or fall to the encircling Communists.

In central China, the government deployed troops estimated at 150,000 along a 300-mile Yangtze river front for the defense of Nanking and Shanghai.

Foreign military observers said the effort looked hopeless and that 60,000 of the troops were in what looked like suicidal positions some 30 miles north of Nanking.

It was learned authoritatively that Tangku, port for Communist-conquered Tientsin 27 miles to the west, was abandoned during the night.

The Chinese navy used small craft of all sorts to move the 35,000-man garrison across Taku bar and out to sea where they awaited arrival of larger transports for the flight south.

(The Communists shortly afterward broadcast that they had taken Tangku after the nationalists fled.

(The broadcast concluded: "The liberation of Peiping and all north China is at hand.")

Spencer Moosa, AP correspondent in Peiping, reported that a committee of prominent citizens was going out Monday to meet the Communists and seek peace. He said an escort and transportation across the narrow no-mans-land outside the walls were provided by the government's commander, Gen. Fu Tso-Yi.

Skoog, Gophers Roll Over Hawks, 61-45

Minnesota Ace Nets 26 Points

By BUCK TURNBULL Sports Editor

Iowa fans learned last night how it feels to see a basketball player of the Murray Wier variety of just one short year ago rumble on a one-man stampede and thunder over your own team.

A silver-haired, clever forward named Meyer "Whitey" Skoog gave 14,000 Hawkeye rooters a brilliant exhibition of how the hardwood game is supposed to be played. He led Minnesota to a 61 to 45 victory over Iowa's game but outclassed Hawks in the Gophers' first win here in six years.

The 22-year-old sophomore phenomenon from Brainerd, Minn., calmly flipped in 26 points, swishing the amazing total of 11 field goals in 19 shots. The victory, besides conserving the Gophers' undefeated string of 12 straight, put them atop the Big Nine heap with a 4-0 record.

Last night Skoog played the role of a true all-American basketball player. It was his all-around ability, combined with a shooting eye par excellence, which sent Iowa supporters away from the fieldhouse thinking of suitable adjectives for the three-year Navy veteran.

Iowa was definitely prepared to give the Gophers a battle in the early stages of the game, but made the sad mistake of trying to hit from long range against a Minnesota team which hounds the defensive backboard for rebounds.

McIntyre Gets Rebounds Sky-scraping Jim McIntyre, 6-foot, 10-inch Gopher center, was the key man in the rebounding department along with Forward Bud Grant. McIntyre, however, stepped down from his starring pedestal while Skoog went rampant.

Big Jim poked in 15 points and Grant followed him in the scoring column with 10.

Rivaling this Minnesota onslaught, Iowa did shove one player into the limelight. He was Don Hays, the 6-foot, 5-inch center from Des Moines. Hays did a commendable job on the taller McIntyre and tossed into the limelight. Hawkeye fans welcomed the Gophers with resounding cheers, and showed no hostility against any of their players.

After the first three minutes of the contest the Hawks held a startling 9-3 advantage. Minnesota took over its first lead in the game after 6 minutes, 15 seconds at 10-9 and then surged into a 25-17 halftime margin.

Hays Scoring Hays opened the evening's scoring with a tip-in shot, but it looked as though McIntyre might have had a finger in on that two-pointer. Both Hays and McIntyre

Visit Creates Good Will

Minnesota Students Cheer, Sing Corn Song, Watch Their Team Beat Hawkeyes

By REYNOLD HERTEL

A noisy but friendly bunch of University of Minnesota students here last night made SUI's good will gesture mutual.

With cheering and handshaking they achieved success in both their reasons for coming to Iowa City as SUI's guests.

1. They saw their team, led by their hero, Forward Whitey Skoog, trounce Iowa, 61-45.

2. Their actions seemed to show representative SUI students who entertained them that the Minnesota student body feels no hostility toward Iowa students.

Mutual Good Will The mutual sense of good will which the visit of the 50 Gopher students appeared to crystallize was "a definite step in the right direction," Evan L. Hultman, SUI's chief host, and Alan Upin, head of the Minnesota delegation, concurred.

This agreement between the two leaders boosted the original purpose of SUI's invitation to Minnesota — to promote better relations between the two schools and to restore an atmosphere of friendship and sportsmanship.

Upin explained that the reported bad feeling between the two schools seems to be a "grudge" that newspapers have stirred up. He thanked Hultman for the "very fine invitation" and assured him of the good faith of the Minnesota student body in sending them as representatives.

"They sure went all out for us down here," one Minnesota student said, and the rest of the delegation backed him with action to show their appreciation for the SUI gesture.

Sang Corn Song The visiting students showed their "we - have - nothing - against Iowa" attitude the moment they crowded through a fieldhouse door about 7:35 p.m. The Iowa band was playing the "Iowa Corn Song." The Minnesotans answered by singing lustily, "We're from Iowa, Iowa . . ." until they neared the section reserved for them.

Once seated, the visiting students rocked the lower south stands with their cheers for Skoog and his teammates. "That kid's our hero up there," one enthusiast asserted. "He's practically the whole team tonight, isn't he?"

The Minnesota delegation gave the loudest expression of their intended good will to the 14,000 fans in the fieldhouse when they answered "Yeh, rah, rah, Iowa" to the Iowa fans' welcoming yell shortly before the tipoff.

Many in the Minnesota group admired the school spirit here. As Hawkeye fans stomped their approval to a late rally by their team, one Minnesotan declared, "I have never seen such school spirit."

"Everything clicked according to schedule in our trip to Iowa City," Upin said. They left Minneapolis by chartered bus at 10 a.m. yesterday and arrived here at 7:07 p.m.

Met at Union A Student Council reception committee met them at the Iowa Union and ushered them to the game. Afterward, they were entertained by about 15 SUI students at a special social in the union.

The group spent the night in SUI fraternities and sororities and will leave on their return trip about 8 a.m. this morning.

FIFTY GOOD-WILL MINISTERS FROM the Minnesota campus were entertained at the Iowa Union after the basketball game last night. The group of Gopher students are shown above talking with Curly Hultman (right, in I sweater), president of the SUI student council. Dancing, coffee and doughnuts were on the agenda at the Union. Stories were evidently a part of the program also (note co-ed in right center).

were in the air attempting to rebound the sphere when it plunked through the Iowa hoop.

Skoog tied the count at 2-all with a push shot after one minute of action. Tony Guzowski dropped in a long set shot 20 seconds later, followed another 20 seconds later by Floyd Magnusson's lay-up. Guard Harold Olson pushed in a free throw for Minnesota to set the score at 6-3, Iowa, with only two minutes gone.

Olson then fouled Iowa's Charlie Mason while the little Muscatine forward was in the act of shooting. Charlie dipped in his first charity try and the Gophers, with worried expressions of uncertainty, called time out.

Mason missed his second foul shot, but at the three-minute mark Guzowski canned another of his long set shots to send the fans into one solid minute of thunderous cheering.

At this point, however, the Gophers squirmed back into the game. A push shot by Grant and two set-ups by Skoog tied the score at 9-all after five minutes.

Gophers Go Ahead When six minutes had gone by Grant counted a free throw and Minnesota took the lead and never relinquished the advantage.

After seven minutes Skoog missed a shot — one of the few times this happened — but big McIntyre was there to bang in the rebound. The Gophers were in complete control by this time. With Skoog adding eight more points before the period ended, Minnesota left the floor for the intermission safely ahead, 25-17.

The Hawks were not a serious threat in the final half. Coach Pops Harrison tried varied line-ups in a vain attempt to stem the one-sided Gopher avalanche but the guy named Skoog simply refused to give Iowa any chance for a comeback.

After Minnesota had gone ahead, 50-34, the Hawks did sneak back to 51-40 and touch the fans off with ideas of a late spurge. A little more than five minutes were left in the game.

But any splurging thoughts were quickly squelched. McIntyre stepped up on his tiptoes to drop in a lay-up; Skoog dunked in a one-handed push; Skoog followed at the 17-minute mark with his 26th point on a free throw; Grant also counted a free toss, and McIntyre gave the Gophers a 19-point 59-40 lead, with a little less than a minute to go, on another lay-up.

Talk of Skoog As the crowd filed out of the fieldhouse, not talking about the ball game but only of Skoog, the Hawks reduced the final margin to 16 points, 61-45.

Skoog, of course, had one of the warmest nights of his career. Even at that he was miraculous. He scored 6 of 12 field goal tries in the first half and 5 of 7 in the final canto for a .576 percentage. That kind of shooting can't be beat.

Minnesota as a team shot .365 percent on 23 baskets in 63 tries. The Hawks hit 17 of 87 shots for 19 percent.

Scuttled by Skoog!

Ohio State Rallies to Nip Badgers, 57-54

Indiana Coasts Over Riveters Easily, 56-42

BLOOMINGTON, IND. (AP)—Indiana ran up a 19-point lead in the first half and romped to a 56-42 basketball victory over Purdue last night before 10,000 Western conference fans.

The result left the teams with identical Big Nine records of two victories and two defeats.

Bill Tosheff, Indiana's sophomore spot shooter, scored 15 points in a first period drive that gave I.U. its 34-15 margin at the half. He finished with eight field goals and two free throws for 18 points.

The entire Purdue team made only two more fielders than Tosheff but Andy Butchko of the losers put together three goals and eight free throws for 14 points.

The first of Tosheff's seven baskets in the first half put Indiana ahead, 4-2, and the Hoosiers quickly ran their margin to 11-4. Purdue went scoreless for five minutes late in the opening period while Indiana built up its big advantage.

Purdue had defeated Indiana in their last three hardwood meetings with substantially the same lineup it used last night. Along with Tosheff's long shots, Indiana used a sparkling fast break to snap the Boilermaker string.

Eight points was the closest Purdue came to the Hoosiers in the second half and frequent Indiana fouling produced the mild threat.

Irish Still Seeking First Win of 1949

St. Pat's fights for its seventh win of the season tonight when the Irish play host to St. Paul's of Burlington.

Earlier in the season, when St. Pat's was minus four first stringers, the Shamrocks dropped their first game with St. Paul's by a margin of 15 points.

Tonight the Irish are hoping to turn the tide of defeats which have plagued them since their last victory in December.

Badgers 'Consider' Williamson, Coach At Lafayette College

MADISON, WIS.—Ivan Williamson, head football coach at Lafayette college, was interviewed last night by the University of Wisconsin athletic board as a candidate for Badger football coach.

Williamson, who flew here from New York, said they discussed the "general coaching situation at Wisconsin and some of my coaching ideas."

Prof. William B. Sarles, chairman of the board, said that Williamson was "highly recommended" by football coaching experts across the country.

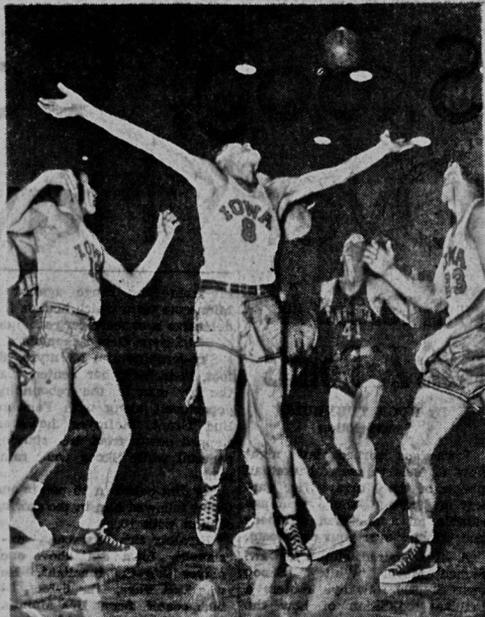

"He has been one of the candidates considered for the job since the middle of December," Sarles said. "However, no offer has been made. It was just a get-acquainted meeting."

Williamson, who received all-Big Ten honors at end when he captained Michigan in 1932, was line coach at Yale from 1934 to 1942 when he entered the navy. He returned to the same position at Yale in 1945 and went to Lafayette two years later.

His Lafayette team had a 6-3 record in 1947 and lost only to Army and Rutgers in nine games last season.

Harry Stuhldreher resigned as Wisconsin coach at the end of last season, but continued as athletic director.

Bucks Make up Seven Points At End; Raidiger Scores 23

MADISON, WIS. (UP)—Ohio State won one for their stricken star Forward Dick Schnittker last night, rallying in the closing minutes to overcome a seven point deficit and beat Wisconsin, 57-54, in a Big Nine conference game.

Schnittker, leading scorer of the Buckeye quintet, was stricken with a strep infection at Iowa City Saturday and was in the university hospitals at Iowa City for treatment.

His mates played last night as though Dandy Dick was sparking them all the way. With less than four minutes to play the Buckeyes trailed at 48-41, but they came up with some great plays to knock off the Badgers.

Big Bob Raidiger, Ohio State center, dumped in a rebound to start the closing rally. Wisconsin came back with three quick points but then Jim Remington and Raidiger threw in the eight points in a hurry to put the Buckeyes in the lead which they were able to hold.

Wisconsin narrowed the margin to one point twice in the final minute, but Raidiger and Ted Jacobs, Schnittker's replacement, scored on sleeper plays to ice the victory.

Raidiger took up the scoring slack caused by Schnittker's absence and blasted 23 counters, 12 of them in the second period rally. Bob Donham, regular forward, followed Raidiger with 17 points.

For Wisconsin, lanky Don Rehfeldt, who tallied 27 points against Indiana Saturday, came through with 17 to lead his mates. He tallied 14 points in the last half. Burly Forward Fred Schneider scored 14 for the Badgers in the first half, but made only one field goal in the final 20 minutes.

Ramblers Collect 2 Wins at Ft. Madison

St. Mary's high returned last night from a successful weekend at Ft. Madison, where they added two victories over Ft. Madison high schools.

Sunday night the Ramblers won a 32-21 verdict over St. Joseph's, with Paul Flannery leading the scoring attack by netting 13 points. Previously the St. Joe Jayhawks had been the only five to defeat the highly regarded St. Paul's of Burlington, winner up until that time of eleven straight.

Last night the Ramblers picked up their second win at the expense of Ft. Madison's Central Catholic high, topping the Centrals, 40-35. Again Guard Paul Flannery paced the scoring, hitting for 20 points.

St. Mary's was pushed all the way Sunday night, against a club that was supposed to be the easier of the two Ft. Madison quintets. At halftime the score read 17-17, but steady play by Flannery and his mates kept the slim lead intact.

Bob, 'Maggie' Also Shine on Diamond

(This is the fourth in a series of sketches of University of Iowa Varsity basketball players.)

Floyd Magnusson

Magnusson is a 23-year-old, veteran forward from Ft. Dodge. He is an economics major and wants to become a coach.

Generally called "Maggie" by his friends, he played football, basketball and baseball while in high school. He was an all-state cager his junior and senior year.

He first came to SUIT in 1943 but his education was interrupted, being called into the service. He spent 27 months in the Navy at Great Lakes and at Notre Dame under the V-5 program.

He played two games for the Irish that year and his eligibility was questioned by the Big Nine officials last spring. The officials decided that his play at Notre Dame did not constitute a season and voted him eligible for the 1948-49 campaign.

"My most exciting experience was scoring 37 points against Paton in the 1943 sectional tournament," he said.

MAGNUSSON

Bob Schulz

A product of Davenport high school of the early 1940's, he played with Jack Spencer, Iowa stalwart the past four seasons.

Schulz played football and baseball for the Blue Devils as well as being an all-state basketball player in 1944.

He was a member of the state high school championship diamond club in 1944. The Davenport quintets of 1942 and 43 were second and fourth in the state tournament respectively.

Last year he proved his worth as a guard in the game with Wisconsin. Pops Harrison assigned him to guard the Badger's high-scoring forward, Bob Cook.

Schulz stuck closer to Cook than a stamp on an envelope. As the result, Cook bucketed only three points while Schulz was in the game and five for the contest.

Schulz's floor play and rebounding ability will be a great asset to the Old Gold this season. As a ball handler, he is one of the cleverest in the Big Nine.

He was a corporal in the infantry and special services during the war. Schulz played service ball with the Camp Walters, Tex. cage squad.

He is majoring in physical education and hopes to receive a coaching job upon graduation. He is a senior this year.

Fighting Irish Play Spartans, Tarheels, SMU on 1949 Card

SOUTH BEND, IND. (AP)—Despite reports that teams about the nation were getting afraid to play them, Notre Dame's Fighting Irish came up yesterday with their usual coast-to-coast suicide football schedule for 1949—a 10 game bill without a breather on it.

Highlight of the campaign is expected to be the game in New York's Yankee stadium on Nov. 12 against the tough North Carolina Tarheels, bring the Irish back before the legion of subway alumni for the first time since 1945 when they played Army.

If the two-year series with North Carolina works out as successfully as expected, Notre Dame may return to the stadium annually in the future, although as yet it has no 1950 date there.

The only opponents the Irish have not met previously on the gridiron are Southern Methodist and North Carolina.

The schedule:
Sept. 24 — Indiana at Notre Dame
Oct. 1 — Washington at Seattle, Wash.
Oct. 8 — Purdue at Lafayette, Ind.
Oct. 15 — Tulane at Notre Dame
Oct. 22 — Open
Oct. 29 — Navy at Baltimore
Nov. 5 — Michigan State at Lansing, Mich.
Nov. 12 — North Carolina at New York
Nov. 19 — Iowa at Notre Dame
Nov. 26 — Southern California at N.D.
Dec. 3 — Southern Methodist at Dallas

Pro Football Circuits 'May' Join Forces

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—A 13-club major professional football league, fashioned from the entire National Football league and five All-America conference clubs, appeared brewing yesterday as the erstwhile rival circuits prepared for meetings here.

Although the present National line-up includes 10 members, two senior circuit members, the Los Angeles Rams and transplanted

Boston Yanks, reportedly might join forces with the AAC's Los Angeles Dons and Buffalo Bills respectively. The AAC's Cleveland, San Francisco and Baltimore Colts, plus the eight other NFL clubs, would round out the remodeled pro front.

Such a combination was purely speculative, however, because both leagues were maneuvering warily towards resumption of "peace" talks which were stalemated at Philadelphia last month.

While a 13-club merged circuit appears unwieldy and is frowned upon by the NFL, it probably would be demanded by the AAC to accommodate the Baltimore Colts.

The All-America owners were scheduled to meet "secretly" today at the office of Benjamin F. Lindheimer, Los Angeles' Don owner and Chicago sportsman.

At this session, the AAC "haves"—Cleveland, San Francisco, Baltimore, Buffalo and Los Angeles—will decide whether to string along another year with the "have-nots"—Chicago, New York and Brooklyn—or hook up with the NFL.

The NFL, presumably with an ear cocked to any further approach from the AAC, will open its annual schedule-making and rules-revision meeting Wednesday night.

Thus far, neither league specifically has stated that there is any connection between the two sessions which will be at neighboring hotels, but the AAC switched its meeting here from New York.

It is regarded as significant, however, that Owner George Marshall of the NFL Washington Redskins, previously vigorously opposed to merger, has changed his tune.

If rumors jell into facts, the combined league ostensibly would include:

The Los Angeles Dons-Rams and Boston Yanks-Buffalo Bills; the Cleveland Browns, San Francisco 49'ers and Baltimore Colts, as undiluted. All-America representatives; and the Chicago Bears and Cardinals, champion Philadelphia Eagles, Detroit Lions, Green Bay Packers, Washington Redskins, New York Giants and Pittsburgh Steelers as National league holdovers.

Other rumors bruited the possible resignation of Jonas Ingram as All-America commissioner, and perhaps the naming of new coaches to succeed Turk Edwards of the Redskins and Jimmy Conzelman of the Cardinals.

4 Minnesota's Gophers Come To Hawkeye-Land

BIG JIM MCINTYRE obliges the younger set with his autograph following his talk in the Church of the Nazarene Sunday night. The six foot ten inch all-American center described the "two teams of life—God's team and Satan's team" before a congregation of about 300 persons. McIntyre, who is shunning professional basketball offers for the service of God in the ministry said money, publicity and success don't count when you meet God. "You go alone—with your record."

A FRIENDLY GREETING was extended by Evan Hultman (right), president of the SUI Student Council, to the Minnesota fans who came here last night to witness the basketball game with the Hawkeyes. Hultman is pictured as he shook hands with Al Upin, president of the Minnesota "Rooster" club. The Minnesota group arrived here about 7:00 p.m. in a chartered bus from Cedar Rapids. Thirty-four students travelled in the bus and other members of the group came here in cars.

GOPHER COACH Ozzie Cowles points something out on the playing floor to his Minnesota reserves during the heat of battle at the Iowa-Minnesota game. Cowles doesn't look as jubilant as he might have as his Gophers won, 61-45.

HAWKEYE COACH "Pops" Harrison chews his nails as his Hawks go down to defeat. In the right foreground is Floyd Magnusson and next to him on the Iowa bench is Guard Tom Parker.

THE FIFTY LONELY GOPHER fans among the mob at the Iowa fieldhouse for the game aren't cheering too vigorously at this point early in the battle. The issue was still in doubt but one Minnesota rooster is whipping it up as the fifty Gopher student guests watch the Big Nine battle.

THE STARTING LINEUPS and the coaches line up after being introduced before the opening whistle of the Hawkeye-Gopher game. The Hawks with their coach "Pops" Harrison are on the left while the visiting Gophers and Coach Ozzie Cowles are in the spot light on the right. A part of the crowd of 14,000 can be seen in the background.

AT A SOCIAL HOUR in the Iowa Union after the game, the Minnesota fans were entertained by representatives of SUI organizations. Coffee and doughnuts were served also. Donna Heise (left) and Phyllis Frey, both students at the University of Minnesota, are pictured as they were served.

Art Museums Exhibiting IC Woman's Handiwork; Conducting Experiments with Iowa Clay

By MARY HEALY

"Pottery - making," says Mrs. George Mowry, "is not a hobby but an occupation."

Mrs. Mowry, 305 Sunset avenue, has a national reputation as a pottery-maker, having won many awards in ceramic exhibitions.

At the 13th National Ceramic exhibition, sponsored by the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts, a lead-lined white and brown flecked bowl entered by Mrs. Mowry was chosen to be displayed at museums throughout the country. The bowl is now being exhibited at the Boston

Museum of Fine Arts. A vase made last year is still going around the circuit of museums, she said.

The Springfield, Mo., art museum purchased a covered dish and a bowl from Mrs. Mowry for their own collection.

Wins First Prize A group entered last September at the California state fair won first prize. A large turquoise punch bowl, white mat bottle, green cookie jar, cream pitcher and sugar bowl were included in the group. Mrs. Mowry entered blue mat set for cream and sugar in the Arts and Crafts exhibition at Panama, Calif., and won an award for them.

ALL THESE PIECES OF POTTERY, including the lamp base, were made by Mrs. Mowry. Mrs. Mowry displays some of her favorite pieces, a squared flask and stopper, white jug, brown and white flecked bowl, wide-based vase, and two-piece cookie jar. Pigments added to the glazes produced many of the unusual colors found on work in her collection.

Mrs. Mowry has conducted many experiments with clays and glazes. She uses Iowa clay which "has faults but is very interesting to work with." The clays have "impurities which show up in the work."

Glazes are used on pottery for sanitary purposes and for waterproofing. Mrs. Mowry explained. Highly decorative colors and designs adorn many of her works. Intricate leaf designs with two colors in the glaze, and squared pieces are some of the more unusual in her private collection. "The claymen in Iowa have been exceptionally nice to me," she said.

Pieces of her work purchased by Marshall Field and company of Chicago, were on display in their store over the Christmas holidays.

All of Mrs. Mowry's work is done in the basement workroom of her home. There she has many pieces of equipment, including a potter's wheel and a kiln.

There's a Need for Traffic Control-

Capitol and Madison streets should not be overlooked in Iowa City's traffic control program. Within a period of 16 days, traffic accidents occurred at the intersections of Capitol and Prentiss streets, Capitol and Court streets and Court and Madison streets. These streets are in a three-block area.

Three accidents within such a short period and in a particular vicinity seems to demand some attention. Apparently some type of traffic regulation is needed.

South Capitol and south Madison are comparatively short streets. South Capitol begins at Washington street and runs only seven blocks south to a block south of Lafayette. Madison runs north and south through Davenport to Lafayette. But both streets are heavily traversed.

South Capitol is especially busy, with commercial vehicles making up a large part of the traffic. A Daily Iowan observer checked the amount of commercial traffic passing the intersection of Capitol and Court street. During a period between 11 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. approximately two commercial vehicles passed the intersection every 60 seconds.

The completion of the Benton street bridge this summer will undoubtedly add to the traffic on Capitol street. Capitol is at the foot of the east end of the bridge. Cars will most likely turn off the bridge into Capitol to get into the downtown area. Cars going cross town probably will turn off Capitol and take Madison to avoid the business district because it goes through to Davenport in the north end of town.

The answer to the traffic hazards on Capitol and Madison streets seems to be to make them through streets, with stop signs at the corners of streets intersecting.

Fortunately no one was seriously injured in the three accidents mentioned, and only two persons involved needed medical attention. But this does not lessen the apparent need or traffic control on these streets. We shouldn't wait for serious injury or death to move us to action.

TO THE EDITOR:

The political ban has been lifted. Naught but obituaries remain to be said.

The ban lived its final months literally at war with the world. Everywhere persons overflowing with righteous wrath (and also some publicity seekers) rose against the "undemocratic" political ban.

All this with hardly a soul stopping for one moment to consider or pay respect to a principle of free government which was protected by the ban. Frequently people blinded by a righteous desire to protect democracy, trample unthinkingly in their eagerness over every principle of free government. Such was the case here.

So long as this planet has driven through space there was never a single totalitarian government not born and perpetuated by the seduction of state property and institutions to political ends.

The constant thought of would-be strong-men is how to put the property and institutions of the nation in the service of his ambitions. Although political encroachment is often slow moving and hard to detect, yet, where a people makes its policy that state institutions shall be divorced from the ambitions of politicians as far as humanly possible in every respect, then encroachment is difficult.

The soundest conceivable policy in the defense of democracy is to nail down once and for all time the principle that no state property will ever under any but the most inescapable occasions be placed at the disposal of those who wish to gain political control of the government.

The ban attempted to do that. A single admission that state property is the proper tool of power seekers (no matter how innocent they may seem), opens the door to serious abuse. Adolf Hitler could quickly point that out.

This is not to say that the mere lifting of the ban will bring automatic and swift catastrophe upon us. This is only to submit that the fall of the ban means, not a victory, but a defeat of free government.

Many persons on our campus who surely ought to be familiar with at least the most salient requirements of free government have unanimously refused to see that state institutions in a democracy must make it their first policy never to admit that theirs is the legitimate arena or device for the gaining or maintaining of political power.

Few men can look upon history of the ending of the ban without instantly knowing that democracy does indeed carry within itself the seeds of its own destruction.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

They Too Can Lose...

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

SMALL DETAIL: The French don't seem to be doing too well in Indo-China, and are rather frantically trying to get Bao Dai, the former Emperor of Annam, to bail them out by setting up a nationalist movement of his own. And now neutral military observers for the United Nations report that the Dutch are having trouble in Indonesia, that guerrilla bands are sweeping freely through central Java, destroying bridges and roads. All railroads are blocked and even the large towns are now said to be unsafe for the Dutch. It's the old story - the imperialists have overlooked the one small detail they generally do overlook, and that is that they can lose.

It is the mistake that is almost always made when, in arrogance or vainglory, one seeks to take arms against a popular movement. It is the mistake the British have made and are making in the middle east, and it is akin to the mistake that Chiang Kai-Shek made in China.

It is especially fantastic that the west, with its own experience in resisting Hitler's occupation, should have felt that it could carry out the kind of forced pacification that even the Nazis could not bring off. Surely one would have thought that the west would have realized in our day that other methods are needed to produce lasting accord and respect between peoples. The leading characteristic of imperialism in our time is that it is made of straw.

The U.S. PLAN: The United States has informally presented a working plan for ending the Indonesian war, by the terms of which the Dutch would release the Indonesian leaders at once, give them control over their capital of Jogjakarta, and then, under United Nations supervision, gradually withdraw their troops and, finally, grant sovereignty to the islands as of April of next year. It seems a very good plan, but in it the most important step is the first step, the release of the Indonesian leaders.

For, in a sense, we cannot even discuss the rest of the plan until that is done. It would be improper for a western observer, half a world away, to decide, on his own, that the plan is satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

One must first hear a critique of it, by Indonesian leaders, before fully and finally deciding anything. That is what freedom means; you don't tell them, you ask them. You don't end with it, you start with it. And it is on this point that all of the so-called democratic plans of the Netherlands government for the future of Indonesia fall to the ground. For they refuse to release the leaders of the Indonesian Republic. Their plan for freedom starts with jail.

THE WEST AND THE WORLD: The Dutch are doing some interesting ideological gyrations, in their search for an argument. One Dutch spokesman has pointed out snappily, in response to criticisms on the detention of Indonesia's leaders, that the Russians don't give freedom to opposition political leaders at any time. That is true enough, and indefensible, but we had been under the impression that the west's task was to show that its methods were better than Russia's, not like them.

Another Dutch argument is that the Indonesian war is an "internal affair" of a member state of the United Nations. This claim will undoubtedly be most impressive to the billion human beings who live in Asia. One can just hear the peasants in the thatched huts and in the rice fields saying to each other: "That's a strong point the Dutch have there. Guess they got the law on us, fellows. It's wrong to be sore; just an internal affair of a member state." The kind of world you can build on these legal points can be blown over by a sneeze.

Once again it must be pointed out that the great immediate task of American diplomacy is to develop an agreement among all western nations regarding relations with the far east. This world has come too unstuck to be put back together again by military adventures and debaters' points.

Beer Flowed Under City Street

Oldtimers Discuss Brewery's Heyday

By ELFREDA KOLSCH
Part of a downtown Iowa City block is honeycombed with the underground tunnels of an old brewery where citizens rolled out the barrel in pre-prohibition days.

When Dad went to SUI he probably joined the thirsty campus crowd at the Union brewery to buy his beer for two-bits a gallon.

Even Grandpappy might have stopped at the Union brewery whose remnants are still found underneath the Economy Advertising company, 117 N. Linn street.

Tunnels ranging from 60 to 100 feet in length extend today from the corner of Linn and Market toward the St. Mary's church and the Weller Standard Service station, 130 N. Dubuque street.

Genial Ray Bywater, production manager for the Economy Advertising company, recently acted as chief guide on a tour through the brewery's lower extremities.

Duck with Bywater through a dilapidate door, follow him gingerly down a 25-foot ladder and you'll find yourself in the dark cobwebby remains of a cellar whose cracked and aging stone walls could probably unfold many a tale about the old days in Iowa City.

"What a swell spot for a tavern," Bywater exclaimed as he led the way down one of the tunnels with a flash light. "If this place led out to the street you'd get a full house down here every night."

Historical data on the Union brewery can be obtained from Otto Meyer, 521 E. Washington street, Firechief Jim Clark, 408 S. Dubuque street and Amil Gartzke, 1818 Morningside drive.

Old Iowa City family names like Hotz, Geiger and Graf start coming up when Meyer traces the ownership of the brewery.

"Back in the old days I could go across the street to one brewery, over the fence to another and caddy corner to a third," Meyer related with a smile.

He was referring respectively to the Union brewery built in 1863, the City brewery built in 1853 and the Western brewery built in 1873.

A trip to the Iowa State Historical library disclosed that the Union brewery was founded in 1857 by Simeon Hotz, an immigrant from Baden. It was later operated by Conrad Graf who married Hotz's daughter, Annie.

A biographical sketch of Graf written in 1885 and contained in the "History of Johnson County from 1836 to 1882" says this about the brewery:

"Main building 160 feet long by 50 feet wide and a three story brick building with a cellar under the entire building, with a brewing capacity of 50 barrels a day, property worth $50,000. Being heated by steam. He employs on an average of 10 men."

Meyer relates that Pearson's drug and Unrath grocery store occupied their respective places of business way back when the Union was turning out beer. Hullups Hall, Iowa City's most popular dance place, was just down the street about the present Self-Serve grocery. A German bakery operated by Louis Baschnagel was in Don's place. And an Iowa Citizen known to all as just "Pretzel Mary" turned out big husky pretzels to go with Union's beer.

Firechief Jim Clark, an engineer for the Union brewery from 1906 to 1912, recalled with ease the prices charged for beer.

One dollar would buy two dozen pints, one dozen quarts or a four gallon keg, Clark said. Twenty-five cents was knocked off in each case for employes. Barrels sold to other saloons for $6.

The brewmaster and foreman of the Union brewery was 82-year-old Amil Gartzke, whose eyes still twinkle when he talks about his beer-making days. Gartzke holds a college diploma in beer making from Hanke's Brew school in Milwaukee. He got it in 1900 after a year's study there in chemistry, bacteriology and math—all taught in German.

The former beermaster shuns the beer made nowadays. He calls it "hurry up beer," claiming that it isn't aged enough.

When Gartzke turned out a batch of beer at the Union brewery it meant 24 hours on continuous work for him with many heating and cooling processes involved.

Before the beer recipe was put to use, malt barley soaked in water was spread on a cement floor for several days, Gartzke said. It was part of his task to turn the barley each day with a shovel to prevent combustion.

After the spreading process, Gartzke faced that long stretch for drying the malt, heating it to kill growth, steeping it in a vat, drawing it off in a mash tank, boiling it in a kettle with hops, running it over a cooler and fermenting it with yeast added. The beer was then ready for storage and aging.

Strangely enough, two troublesome factors for early brewmasters were penicillium and vitamin B1, Gartzke said.

Penicillium mold, called "pencil shimnel" by the German brewmaster, was destroyed because it spoiled the beer, he said. Vitamin B1 which foamed up in one of the boiling process was allowed to run down the drain.

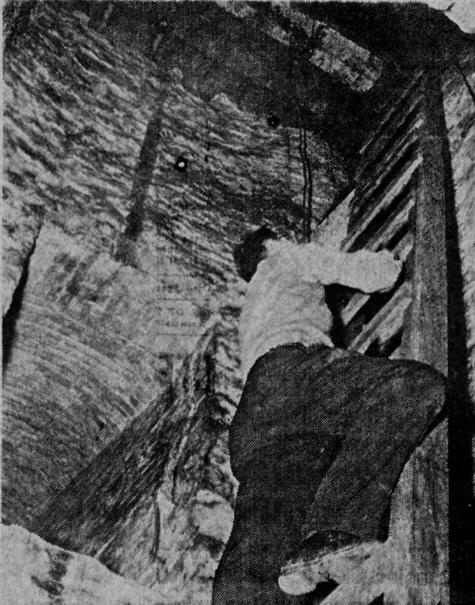

"We children used to catch that yeast foam which boiled off the tubs and eat it," Miss Irma Gartzke, the brewmaster's daughter, added. "Maybe that's why we were always so healthy."

Keg washing, too, attracted much attention from the younger set, Miss Gartzke said. Kegs were bounced up and down in a big wooden tub and placed on water sprinklers for rinsing.

A large saloon occupied the corner of the Economy Advertising company's building where a small press room is now, Meyers said. The saloon and brewery alike went out of the beer business with prohibition.

Numerous spitoons and sawdust covered floors gave atmosphere to the saloon where Iowa City and SUI men gathered for their over-the-mug sessions.

And the women, well . . . "If they did go in, they did it so no one would see them," Mrs. Meyer ventured.

DOWN TO THE BEER BREWING LEVEL goes Ray Bywater to take a look at the remains of one of Iowa City's old breweries founded in 1868. Crumbling walls, stale air, darkness and cobwebs are found in the tunnels which honeycomb the ground near the Linn and Market street corner. The opening at the left is one of the three levels of brewery cellars underneath the Economy Advertising company, 117 N. Linn.

Union brewery. Only two huge vats decaying with age remain in the tunnels.

Footsteps echo on the cobblestone floors. The air is damp and remains at a constant temperature throughout the year, Bywater said.

Death Ends Illness Of Mrs. McDonald

Mrs. Louise McDonald, 49, formerly of Pasadena, Calif., died yesterday at University hospitals.

She had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Gretchen Coulson, of Iowa City, since last fall. She became ill last summer.

The body is at Beckman's Funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

She is survived by her mother, Des Moines; her sister, Mrs. Des Coulson, and a niece, Mrs. M. Ashby Coulson, both of Iowa City; and a brother.

Symphony Program Names 4 Numbers By SUI Orchestra

The SUI symphony orchestra, directed by Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp, will present four selections in a concert tomorrow night at 8 in the Iowa Union.

On the program are Mendelssohn's "Overture to A Midsummer Night's Dream," the Mendelssohn "Violin Concerto," four numbers from Franck's "Psyche," and "Nazeppa" by Liszt.

The Mendelssohn overture is a selection from his incidental music to Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mendelssohn wrote the first draft of the overture at 17.

The Mendelssohn "Violin Concerto" will be presented by Marjanne Mikes, graduate student and lecturer in the music department.

This concert is a favorite with violinists and the public, Clapp said.

Franck's "Psyche" was originally written for chorus and orchestra. The orchestra will present four selections from the work: "The Slumber of Psyche," "Borne Away by Zephyrs," "The Gardens of Eros" and "Psyche and Eros."

The SUI music department has one of the few published editions of these numbers. The manuscript of "Psyche" in its complete form has been lost, Clapp said.

Liszt's "Nazeppa," one of 12 symphonic poems he wrote, is based on a Hungarian legend.

Free tickets to the concert should be secured in advance and are available at the Iowa Union main desk.

Prof. Knowler to Attend Chicago Conference

Prof. Lloyd Knowler, head of the mathematics department, will attend a national conference of the Society for Advancement of Management Friday at the Sheraton hotel, Chicago.

He will discuss "Quality Control; Greater Quality, Better Quality, Lower Cost."

Knowler, a fellow of the American Society of Quality Control, is one of the pioneers of the development of statistical control in industry in the middle west.

Top officials of the National Association of Manufacturers, the CIO and the National Security Resources Board will also join in a panel discussion about manpower mobilization Friday, according to Thomas A. Sullivan.

The conference will deal mainly with problems regarding manpower mobilization, labor relations and quality control.

Mayor Koser, 2 Councilmen, To Run Again

Mayor Preston Koser and two city councilmen yesterday announced they will seek re-election in the coming city election.

The councilmen — both Democrats — are Alderman W. H. Grandrath of the fifth ward and Alderman-at-Large Frank Fryauf.

Meanwhile, Iowa City Democrats will get the political ball rolling with a party caucus meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in the Johnson county courthouse.

It is expected that Aldermen James Callahan of the first ward and Charles Smith of the third ward will also announce their intentions to seek re-election for a third straight term within the next few days. Both are Democrats.

Fourth ward Alderman Max Hawkins said last week that he will definitely not run. Indications are that Alderman-at-Large Clark F. Mighell will also not seek re-election.

Ed Lucas, present city and Johnson county Democratic chairman, said yesterday that the caucus Friday will be open to all Iowa City Democrats.

Besides considering candidates for the primaries, Democrats at the meeting will also select delegates for the city convention to be held two weeks after the Feb. 28 primary. Precinct committees and committeewomen who make up the central party committee, will be nominated at the convention. They in turn will select the central committee chairman.

Lucas said that he won't seek to retain his city-chairman job since his duties as an attorney and county chairman are too demanding. Mentioned as a possibility to succeed Lucas is City-Solicitor Bill Bartley. Bartley is head of the Johnson County Young Democrats.

Highlanders to Play At Wyoming School

The Scottish Highlanders will perform at the Wyoming, Iowa, high school athletic banquet March 26. Pipe Major Bill Adamson said yesterday.

Sponsored by the Wyoming community club, the banquet will take place in the school auditorium. Adamson said "about 65" lassies will make the trip.

Wyoming is a Jones county town of about 800.

Adamson also announced that Beverly J. McNamee, Des Moines, had replaced Virginia Anderson as Highlander drum major.

Miss Anderson dropped her Highlander activities following her recent marriage, Adamson said.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

The feud between Harold Ross, brilliant but irascible editor of the New Yorker, and Raoul Fleischman, baking magnate who put up the capital that launched the magazine, is unending and famous. The late Russell Maloney, who was on the New Yorker staff for years, swore that when Fleischman and Ross passed each other in the hall, Ross would mutter, "Yeast," Fleischman would answer "Pest"—and never the brains did meet!

A New York lady, freshly arrived at the village of Truro, on Cape Cod, for a vacation, was endeavoring vainly to engage a taciturn native to conversation. Her bright remarks about the cottages, and dunes, and the views of the sea went unanswered. In desperation she hazarded, "What quaint, quaint people one sees around here." Unexpectedly the native replied, "You're absolutely right, ma'am," he said, "but, thank God, they all go home after Labor day."

The Way Grandmaw Made It

A DEMONSTRATION OF PIONEER HOMINY MAKING was part of classwork in the University Elementary school third grade yesterday. The two boys in charge of the project are Bill Pearson, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Pearson of 227 S. Johnson street, and Tom Miltner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miltner of 1142 E. Court street. Preparation of hominy is part of the social studies class work on pioneer life. A gas stove, although not pioneer equipment, was utilized by the class.

Youngsters Prepare Hominy

Do it as Project at University Grade School; Class Made Edible Apple Leather

Give the third graders at University Elementary school a barrel of ashes, a little water and some corn and they'll brew up a batch of hominy for you.

The class is learning the hominy-making process in their social studies course which centers this year around pioneer living. Their present unit is on pioneer foods. Maxine Fieg is instructor.

Last week the youngsters went downtown, got a barrel, set it up in the science room and lined the bottom with straw. Next they poured hard wood ashes into the barrel, added water and drained the resulting lye from the bottom of the barrel.

Yesterday they finished the hominy, soaking field corn in the lye to remove hulls and then washing off the lye solution. Two third graders, Tom Miltner and Bill Pearson, are in charge of hominy production and have appointed committees to work out the project.

Last week the class, with Patty Pendleton and Sydna Meer in charge, made apple leather, an edible product made by cooking apples to a mush and drying the mush.

Mary Caldwell and Florence Moore directed the class in making apple butter.

Currier Sweetheart Nominations Named

Elaine Jensen, Currier Sweetheart committee chairman, last night announced the names of 20 women nominated for the Currier Sweetheart title.

They are Jean Strong, A3; Janet Lauderdale, A4; Marjorie Buchanan, A3; Dorothy Brooks, A1; Mildred Pell, A4; Jane Pauls, A3; Marny McMinn; Frances Artley, A4; Elaine Jensen, A2; Jane Walker, A2.

Abbie Flynn, A3; Lois Olson, A3; Charlotte Stelck, A3; Shirley Anderson, A1; Mary Lou Rebes, A1; Lois Gardner, A1; Dorothy Davis, A1; Joan Smith, Jean Olson and Grace Marken.

Ten of the nominees will be selected by the Sweetheart committee for the contest finals. All Currier residents will select the queen and her attendants from among the 10.

Winners will be announced at the Currier Sweetheart dance, Feb. 11.

Smarty Party Set For Lady Scholars By Mortar Board

Every SUI graduate woman earning a 3.0 or higher grade point average this semester will receive an invitation to Mortar Board's 14th annual Smarty Party luncheon, March 12 in the Iowa Union, President Ginger McDonald, A4 of Lima, Ohio, said yesterday.

Invitations will be sent out during the latter part of February, she said.

The first Smarty Party was originated by SUI's chapter of the national honorary in 1936. A buffet dinner was served to 275 guests.

Since then nearly all Mortar Board chapters in the nation celebrate annually at luncheons or teas for the "female brains" on their campuses.

Usual theme of the luncheon program is a satirical take-off on "grinds, apple polisher and midnight oilers."

Carolyn Ladd, A4 of Iowa City, is program chairman for this year's 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the river room of the Iowa Union. An original skit will be featured.

Other chairmen for the event are:

Table decorations and program — Jackie Fitch, C4 of Clinton, and D.J. Meyers, A4 of Quincy, Ill.

Ticket sales — Valerie Dierks, A4 of Iowa City.

Publicity — Lucy Dean, A4 of Valparaiso, Ind.

Invitations — Jean Gallaher, A4 of Appleton, Wis.

Mortar Board members are selected each spring from the junior class on the basis of scholarship, activities and service to the university. White wool jackets with mortar board emblems are symbolic attire worn by members to their weekly meetings.

Other senior women Mortar Board members include Jean Gavronski of Centerville, Janet Lauderdale of Toledo, and Clair Stoltenberg McKenzie of Iowa City. Helen Reich is advisor.

Farm Bureau Schedules West Branch Program

Tau Beta Pi—

Revises Teacher Rating Form

Tau Beta Pi has revised its instruction rating sheet for this year.

For several years the engineering honorary fraternity has sponsored a program to rate instructors in the college of engineering. The ratings are made by all students in engineering.

The new form has clarified questions, is shorter in length and requires more pointed answers.

The questionnaire checks the professors under six major headings — tests, lectures, technical knowledge, assignments, personality and consideration of students.

A typical question is "length" under the heading "assignment." The answers are "1. Much too much. 2. Too Long. 3. Reasonable. 4. Too short."

Tau Beta Pi member Mark Meier, E4, said 3,500 forms have been printed to be distributed just before test week.

Meier said the results are confidential and that a copy of the findings is sent to each instructor along with a letter explaining the method and Tau Beta Pi's purpose.

Prof. Edward Parker of the department of civil engineering commented on the rating sheet, "It might have its use, but I do not think that students are qualified to judge their instructors with competency."

Prof. E.B. Kurtz, head of the electrical engineering department, said, "It is difficult to judge the validity of the ratings because of the student turnover each year on the staff that compiles the survey."

Meier said instructors could deny the use of the questionnaire in their classes if they wished, but that no one had done so as yet.

JCC to Name Man of '48

Iowa City's "Outstanding Young Man of 1948" will be named tonight at a dinner meeting of the Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Jefferson.

The winner of the title will receive a distinguished service key, a certificate and a cigar humidor.

An annual project of the Iowa City Jaycees, the naming of the outstanding young man is based on his achievement, leadership and service in the interest of civic progress.

A committee of seven judges, headed by SUI President Virgil Hancher, selected the winner from a list of 13 nominees suggested by local organizations and citizens.

Serving with Hancher as judges were Mayor Preston Koser; Dr. L.L. Dunnington, minister of the First Methodist church; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Carl H. Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's church; District Judge H.D. Evans; W.T. Hageboeck, publisher of the Iowa City Press-Citizen; and Robert H. Lind, 1948 president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

Motorist Charged With Drunkenness

William Everett Tompkins, route 2, was released on $1,000 bond yesterday after he was charged by police with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Tompkins waived preliminary hearing in police court and had his case bound over to the grand jury.

Highway Patrolman Harold D. Gear arrested Tompkins at 12:30 a.m. Sunday on Highway 218 one mile south of North Liberty.

Defense attorney is Edward L. O'Connor.

She's wearing our pin...

Dame Nature and International Harvester have been "going steady" for a long time

Just as undergraduates wear pins to indicate their membership in various college organizations, so do employees of International Harvester wear service pins to denote the number of years they have been with the Company. And just as students bestow their pins on favored young ladies, so have Harvester men, in effect, given their pins to Mother Nature.

Because for more than 100 years, the business which is now called International Harvester has been basically one of building an ever-increasing variety of machines to help in the production and conservation of food and raw materials, in the transportation of such articles, and in construction and power projects which change the face and harness the forces of nature.

So we think we are very much in the role of Mother Nature's steady companion.

But proud as we may be of the machines we produce, we think an equally important contribution to the social good has been our development of methods for soil conservation.

Little was known about soil conservation when most colleges and universities were founded, or when the business which is today the International Harvester Company had its start in 1831. But today we all appreciate the need to guard our soil against the ravages of wind and water... and are learning how to do it.

The importance of soil conservation is indicated by the fact that soil scientists estimate that the productivity of 10,000 farms of 100 acres each is seriously impaired each year by lack of proper soil conservation methods. And that more than 700 million tons of surface soil are carried each year by the Mississippi River alone, into the Gulf of Mexico.

It is a source of great satisfaction to International Harvester that it has been able through the years to make a substantial contribution to the progress of soil conservation. We have done this by building the machinery which makes modern conservation methods possible, and by cooperating with local and national governmental agencies engaged in this important work.

The basic soil conservation work on most farms can be handled by International Harvester's regular line of farm machines, powered by Farmall tractors.

Through continuing research, International Harvester will continue to seek better and better ways to conserve our soil. To continue to be a steady companion to Mother Nature.
