Blackout at SUI When Cables Fail

The explosion of an underground hydraulic cable set fire to two electric cables at 11:15 a.m. yesterday, forcing the University hospitals to fall back on emergency equipment for almost five hours.

The fire also shut off power to radio station WSUI, Hillcrest and the Quadrangle for about seven hours.

The breaks in the electric circuits were found in the underground conduits at the foot of the Burlington street bridge near the intersection of Grand avenue and Riverside drive.

The cause of the explosion was not known, but it could have resulted from overloading. R. J. Phillips, superintendent of the SUI physical plant said. The cables, he said, shorted after the fire burned off the insulation.

One cable, supplying the hospital, fine arts building, law Commons and the University theater, was repaired about 4:10 p.m. The other cable, supplying the radio station and the two men's dormitories, was repaired about 6:15 p.m.

At the hospital the sudden blackout necessitated immediate use of an emergency lighting system in the operating rooms, the hand pumping of two artificial respirators and ingenuity to keep the ninth largest state-general hospital in the country in operation.

Elevators stopped, food was carried in the seven-story building by hand, patients were admitted on stretchers and carried up stairways, the audible paging system was out of order as well as the patient-to-nurse buzzer systems.

Immediate emergency procedures were instituted and manpower was substituted for electrical power throughout the 900 bed hospital.

Two polio patients, Donna Reuter, Dakota City and John Rourke, Eldora, who were in the electrically operated iron lung, were attended by personnel, who operated the respirator by the hand pump during the five hour shutdown.

A housekeeping employe was stalled for approximately 45 minutes in one of the elevators until Emil Ruppert, hospital electrician, came to the rescue. Ruppert succeeded in directing the employe from the outside on the intricacies of opening the elevator door. He used a flashlight to point out the emergency mechanism to the stranded employe.

Nurses constantly checked patients' rooms after the patient-to-nurse "buzzer call" system went out of operation. Graduate and student nurses who were off duty volunteered their services.

Visitors were escorted by secretaries and hostesses to the patients' rooms and auxiliary lanterns were used to light "strategic" places throughout the hospital.

"Though the electrical failure presented many emergency situations no crisis developed," University hospital officials said. "This is undoubtedly due to the wonderful ingenuity and ability of all personnel," they added.

The University has no emergency power unit covering the entire hospital in case of a power failure. Such a unit is now being planned by the university, and is hoped to be installed in the near future.

Landlords' Leader Collapses in Office From Overexertion

TULSA (AP)—The Rev. Wallace J. Murphy, leader of the Tulsa landlords' revolt, collapsed yesterday at his office.

Murphy was removed to his home and his wife, after consulting with a physician, announced that Murphy's condition was "serious." The fight against rent control, however, will be continued "even from a sick bed," she said.

The doctor said that Murphy is suffering from angina pectoris, a heart ailment, brought on by gall bladder trouble and cirrhosis of the liver. The heart attack was induced, he revealed, by over-exertion.

Murphy, who describes himself as "above middle age," returned to his office only Thursday after eight weeks at home following a heart attack.

A few hours before his collapse Murphy said he had been "swamped" by calls from landlords, tenants, reporters and photographers who have swarmed over the office of the association since the "Tulsa plan" was announced.

Overnight the eviction proposal has taken the national spotlight and only yesterday drew comment from President Truman who said he didn't believe the landlords could get away with mass eviction.

Murphy, executive secretary of the Tulsa Property Owners association, had said he didn't understand President Truman's remarks about the landlord rebellion against federal rent control. "The only thing I would like to know," Murphy said, "is what he means."

Tables Turned on Property Owners

KANSAS CITY, MO. (AP)—The rent went up 1,000 percent on the Kansas City Property Owners' association yesterday.

The group, planning a mass meeting to act on a recommendation that it join in the "Tulsa plan" to battle rent control extension, was informed that the Unitarian church where it meets had just raised the rent from $10 per meeting to $100.

The letter, sent by the Rev. Lester Mondale to Edward A. Moyle, president of the landlords' group, pointed out that the hall had been made available to the landlords for several years at cost.

"Now," he wrote, "because of circumstances beyond our control, we find ourselves compelled to boost the price of the hall for each future session of the property owners association to $100."

The Wind Blew; Snow, Sleet, Rain Flew

CEILING ZERO, visibility zero was the report from the Iowa City airport at the height of the snow storm last night. A student is shown here bucking winds which raged up to 25 miles per hour as he rounds the corner of University hall and passes an evergreen tree encrusted with ice from the sleet and freezing rain which fell earlier.

Winter's Worst Storm Hits Here

Stricken Areas Get Aid from Congress As New Storm Hits

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Moving with record speed, congress yesterday voted a $500,000 relief fund for the snowbound west and set to work immediately on another measure which may boost the storm chest another $3,000,000.

While clear weather speeded rescue operations in parts of the stricken area, there was a new blizzard in Nebraska, sleet storms elsewhere, and flood threats along the Ohio river.

The national wool grower's association estimated that half of the nation's sheep population are in critical condition because of storms and shortage of feed. That number, the association said, are snowbound from the Dakotas and Kansas westward.

Winter struck these new blows: The new blizzard swept into snow-plagued Nebraska, where the army is working with 57 bulldozers and 29 weasels to cut through old drifts. The storm struck just as the airforce arranged to send 24 cargo planes to its Kearney, Neb., base to carry supplies into the area and drop hay to starving livestock.

The snow intensified the hazards facing snowbound cattle and farmers. Poor visibility slowed operations of the Nevada haylift by the big airforce flying boxcars. However, by early afternoon the hay loaded planes were back on schedule dropping feed to stranded cattle and sheep in that state.

In Utah, which the national wool growers association termed the major "catastrophe area" new storms slowed the delivery of supplies. However, trucked supplies got to virtually all herds during a lull in the bad weather the two preceding days.

Heavy snows of four to eight inches moved in on western Kansas and portions of Iowa, Wisconsin, upper Michigan and extreme southeastern Minnesota.

General flood warnings were issued for a 171 mile stretch of the big Ohio river past Cincinnati and new sleet storms slowed highway traffic to a crawl from Texas to lower Michigan.

The U.S. weather bureau at Cincinnati forecast that the Ohio river will reach or top flood stages between Parkersburg, W. Va., and Portsmouth, O., by this weekend. The river is expected to exceed flood stage at Cincinnati by Friday afternoon or night.

Although flood stage would merely result in the inundation of lowland areas, a continuation of rain in the area was forecast. The Red Cross said its disaster committee was "prepared to go into action," if necessary.

Scott himself joined in the bitter criticism of Dewey's conduct of last year's campaign. Members described it as a "sweetness and light" drive of which most of them said they hadn't approved.

In victory, Scott described himself as a fighter. He promised, after he was given a formal unanimous vote of confidence, to make the Republicans proud of him.

"I've made this fight," he said, "because I think the Republican party and the country needed a demonstration of courage and I think I've given it to you."

Scott set back the old guard of the party committee, defeating an ouster movement led by such members as Carroll Reece of Tennessee, former chairman, Harrison Spangler of Iowa, another former chairman, Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, Werner Schroeder of Illinois and Ralph F. Gates of Indiana.

They had put their weight behind Roy E. Dunn of Minnesota, 62 year old farmer, as a candidate against Scott. When Faries' motion carried after nearly five hours of bitter debate, Dunn's name was not even brought up.

Last minute efforts to compromise the fight failed to get anywhere. Scott's friends insisted that they wouldn't compromise on the chairmanship, although they were willing to talk turkey about other matters.

Snow, Sleet Stall Traffic In Iowa City

The weather man threw the book at Iowa City last night. Rain, sleet, snow and the promise of near cold wave conditions were included in the weather fare he offered.

The worst storm of the winter howled over Iowa last night, according to a weather bureau report. The storm is also the most widespread of the winter.

Bus service in and out of Iowa City was almost at a stand-still. Buses were long overdue and some were not expected to arrive at all. Freezing rain has iced highways from north Texas to Iowa.

Air Travel Stopped
 Bad weather has stopped all commercial air travel from Iowa City. The Iowa City municipal airport is closed to all types of air traffic.

The highway patrol reported road conditions bad in all parts of the state. "They're snow covered and slippery all over," the patrol said. "Snow ranges from two to six inches."

Snow to End
 An accumulation of four to eight inches of new snow was forecast by the weather bureau last night. However, snow fall was expected to end this morning.

The end of the snow storm is to be followed by near "cold-wave" temperatures tonight. Predicted high today 10 above in the northwest and 20 above here. Tomorrow's low, 15 below in the northwest and six in this area.

Street Drifting
 High winds were causing considerable drifting of the heavy snowfall last night.

Street department men were busy sanding intersections in the business district late yesterday. Meanwhile owners or employes were chipping and shoveling the ice and snow that covered walks in front of business places trying to keep ahead of the increasing snow fall.

Automobile traffic slowed markedly because of the icy condition of the streets and the film of ice that formed on windshields. Cars parked along the curbs wore blankets, newspapers and cardboard squares over windshields to keep off the icy covering.

Driving Lesson
 At the height of the sleet storm yesterday, an SUI professor opened the door of his car, got in, started the engine and shifted gears.

The wheels spun round and round. The car didn't move an inch. "Parked next to him was a truck. The burly driver yelled, 'Hey! Need help?'"

"No thank you," the small white-haired professor said politely. Getting out of the car he opened the car trunk, pulled out a shovel and bucket of sand. He carefully spread a few grains of sand under the back wheels.

An astonished grin passed over the truck driver's face as the professor backed out and drove calmly away.

People Puzzled by—Flashes Of Fire

Did you see lights in the western sky last night?

About five thirty, homework bound Iowa Citizens began watching a display of lights and speculating on its origin.

Some thought it was arcs from the Cranford lighting up the sleet-filled sky, but persons in the western part of Iowa City decided it was the Coralville power plant making the bright flashes. The power plant said it wasn't.

Some others suggested lightning, but there was no lightning reported from storm areas west of here and there was no accompanying thunder.

The CAA weather office suggested it might be the airport beacon because the light sometimes appeared green, but the lights appeared farther west than the airport.

From a description of the lights, C. C. Wylie, professor of astronomy, was unable to give a satisfactory explanation of the occurrence. "I have seen lightning and heard thunder in a fairly heavy snowstorm," said Wylie, "but the absence of thunder makes lightning unlikely."

Apparently no one else had a satisfactory explanation except that nature has gone all out to entertain the humans.

Ignition Service Good, Electric Wiring Poor
 A electrical fire burned a small hole in the roof of the Pyramid Services garage, 220 S. Clinton street, last night when a wire shorted on a neon sign reading "Ignition Service."

Firemen under Iowa City Fire Department Chief J.J. Clark put out the small blaze which caused slight damage.

Peace Hopes Sag, Mobs Flee Nanking

NANKING (AP)—Evident breakdown of Chinese government efforts to make a surrender deal with the Communists turned the flight from Nanking into a panic last night.

It was learned reliably, however, that U.S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart would stay in this Communist-menaced capital, on instructions from Washington.

Only a small party led by Minister Lewis Clark is due to join the government in its transfer to Canton. (The government has reported it expects to be functioning in Canton by Feb. 5.)

In Shanghai the commander of the U.S. western Pacific fleet said some marines soon would be withdrawn from China, but emphasized that enough would remain to meet any emergency.

 BERN, SWITZERLAND (AP)—A Swiss trade delegation to London has been authorized to buy some $11,500,000 worth of British planes and military equipment, it was reported yesterday.

GOP Chairman Scott Receives 54 to 50 Vote of Confidence

OMAHA (AP)—Hugh D. Scott, Jr., held on to his chairmanship of a kicking, scratching Republican National committee yesterday by a slim margin of four votes.

After a day of political infighting seldom equaled by the staid old GOP, the 48 year old Pennsylvania congressman won a 54 to 50 vote of confidence.

The action came on a motion of McIntyre Faries, California committeeman, to table a resolution by Jacob France, Maryland, which would have declared the chairmanship vacant.

Scott thus won a fight pitched by avowed critics of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the 1948 GOP presidential nominee.

But in doing it, Scott put himself on record flatly as saying that Dewey "should not, could not and will not" become a candidate for a third presidential nomination.

In New York, Gov. Dewey declined to comment either on Scott's victory or on Scott's remarks about Dewey and a third presidential nomination.

Scott himself joined in the bitter criticism of Dewey's conduct of last year's campaign. Members described it as a "sweetness and light" drive of which most of them said they hadn't approved.

In victory, Scott described himself as a fighter. He promised, after he was given a formal unanimous vote of confidence, to make the Republicans proud of him.

Last minute efforts to compromise the fight failed to get anywhere. Scott's friends insisted that they wouldn't compromise on the chairmanship, although they were willing to talk turkey about other matters.

Two Iowa City Republicans voiced their disapproval of the confirmation of Hugh Scott Jr., as chairman of the GOP national committee, yesterday.

In the opinion of Attorney William F. Morrison, the entire GOP national committee should be replaced. "That includes Iowa Committeeman Harrison E. Spangler," he added.

James P. Goodwin, chairman of the campus Young Republican league, said that Scott's confirmation was "not encouraging."

"It appears the party is slowly strangulating itself by ignoring the younger and more liberal elements who can do much to restore the confidence of the people," Goodwin added.

Pessimism Settles Over Rhodes Talk

RHODES (AP)—An atmosphere of deepest pessimism settled over the Israel-Egypt armistice negotiations last night and sources close to Palestine Mediator Ralph J. Bunche intimated they might be on the brink of collapse.

Almost abandoning hope of agreement, UN officials wondered which side would take the initiative in an expected breakup and thereby risk the criticism of the security council.

"We are planning to leave for Israel soon," an Israeli source said. "We can not lose more time here."

Star, PM's Successor, To Suspend Publication

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Star will suspend publication today — seven months after it first appeared as the successor to Marshall Field's newspaper PM.

Bartley Crum, publisher, and Joseph Barnes, editor, who took over PM last April and changed its name in June, said the newspaper was being suspended because it was not "on a self-supporting basis."

Big Nine, National Ratings Hinge On Gopher-Illini Clash Tomorrow

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

Maury Kent Has Hand in Rose Bowl Win—

In a round about sort of way, Northwestern can thank the ingenuity of the University of Iowa's observant head football scout, Maury Kent, for bringing the Wildcats that thrilling 20-14 victory over California in the Rose bowl last New Year's Day.

No, Maury wasn't at the traditional Pasadena gridiron spectacle. In fact, he was confined to the University hospitals here over the holidays with pneumonia.

But the touchdown which spelled the triumph for Northwestern, Halfback Ed Tunnell's 43-yard run in the waning minutes of the game, is just one of the many tributes you can pay to the keen football mind of Maury Kent.

Very seldom does a scout ever receive praise for his essential work, that of reviewing an opponent's strategy in other games and reporting same to the head coach of his own institution. In his capacity, Maury is one of the top scouts in the country. Iowa coaches and players will testify to this.

The story of "the" play which shook Tunnell loose and shattered California dreams, began last fall while Kent was touring the Big Nine circuit, compiling the data which Dr. Eddie Anderson used to tutor his Hawkeyes on weaknesses of future foes.

During one of his out of town jaunts Maury ran into an old Northwestern friend. Both had coached at NU many years back and naturally had to swap some more recent news.

It was then that "the" play came into the Big Nine. Maury's friend, now a scout for the Philadelphia Eagles, told him of a play the Chicago Bears had used very successfully against both the Chicago Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers. He drew a hasty diagram on an envelope and gave it to Maury.

Back in Iowa City Kent began to test this play with the Iowa varsity. It was no good. The Hawkeyes, as you'll remember, did not have a speedy halfback to make it click.

"The" play, which relies on the element of surprise as its main asset, is nothing more than a direct pass from the center to the halfback instead of the usual T-formation procedure of center to quarterback to halfback. Speed and quick blocking are a necessity.

Rather than let it die a quick death, Maury kept working out the formation with the freshman team. The results were very satisfactory.

Then Maury took to the road again, this time meeting Waldo Fisher, Northwestern assistant coach. Out came the diagram and swapping of tidbits. Fisher liked it.

He went back to Evanston and huddled with Coach Bob Voigts. Voigts liked it. So Fisher began experimenting—on the guinea pig fresh again—and then shocked the varsity in a later scrimmage by using the direct pass to surprise the big boys.

"The" play was so successful that it immediately entered the repertoire of regular Wildcat formations. It was used only once during the regular season when Northwestern met Illinois at Evanston. Apparently it was not a rousing success at that time.

Old game fortune had a better use for it. With Northwestern trailing, 14-13, in the fourth quarter of the Rose bowl game, some sort of a surprise package was needed. The Wildcats had moved from inside their own 15-yard line to the California 43. Time was running out. Only three minutes remained to play.

The rest is old stuff. "The" play was called. California didn't know who had the ball and Tunnell sped down the sidelines for 43 yards and the touchdown. Thus, the Big Nine insured its third straight triumph since the start of the Western conference-Pacific Coast conference pact.

"The version used by the Chicago Bears," says Kent, "differed in a few details. They had an end playing wide, but basically it was the same. I am pleased that in this direct and far-fetched way I may have had a hand in Northwestern's victory. But I wish it had not been against Pappy Waldorf."

Maury was an assistant coach during the Waldorf regime at Northwestern. A graduate of SUI in 1908, he was on the Northwestern staff for 20 years before coming to Iowa in 1944.

Mat Hopes Rest with 5 Sophs

Five ambitious sophomores will be eager to show Coach Mike Howard what they have learned Feb. 5, when the Hawkeyes open the Big Nine wrestling schedule here against Northwestern.

In the season's opener Iowa was tied by Wheaton college, team that had tripped up Wisconsin a few days before.

Northwestern used five sophomores in defeating Illinois State Normal and Chicago university. The same crew dropped a decision to Indiana.

Hawkeye sophomores on the eight-man wrestling outfit are Eddie Steinhoff, 136-pound class; George Telsa, 155; Ralph Thomas, 165; Bob Lage, 175 and Heavyweight "Junebug" Perrin.

Iowa will be unable to use Olympic Alternate Joe Scarpello, 175-pounder, because the second semester does not officially open until three days after the Feb. 5 engagement. The same ruling affects Delmer Lanphier. Both wrestlers were ineligible during the fall semester.

Because of the mid-year commencement in the fieldhouse Feb. 5, the meet will begin at 7:30 p.m., instead of the previously scheduled 2:30 p.m.

Recruits in the Wildcat lineup include Tom Hanson, 145; Bob Manning, 155; Nick Stevens, 165; Herb Kohsarian, 175, and Tom Rasozis, heavyweight.

30,000 Fans Seek Tickets

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — Unbeaten Minnesota, the Big Nine's most accurate team, and Illinois, the league's "shootingest" club, would be meeting before 30,000 fans here Saturday night if Huff gym had rubber walls.

Athletic Director Doug Mills yesterday estimated that at least that many fans are seeking tickets to the conference season's pivotal contest. Huff gym seats a 7,000-capacity.

The scalping price is reported to be two ducats for $30. The battle — only meeting of the season between the two teams — has national as well as conference prestige at stake.

Gophers Rank 5th
Minnesota's brilliant Gophers are undefeated in 13 starts, including five league tilts, ranking fifth in the Associated Press national-wide college cage poll.

Illinois is rated sixth in the AP poll with a 12-1 record, including three straight conference wins. The only Illini setback was a 60-50 non-loop loss to DePaul of Chicago in their third game of the season.

The Gophers and Illini play different basketball styles. Minnesota's deliberate ball-control attack has been described by Coach Bud Foster of Wisconsin as "dull-uninteresting basketball."

But the Gophers have treated fans to some remarkable sharp-shooting. Averaging only 56 field goal attempts per game in conference play, Minnesota has connected on 336 percent of its shots.

Take Most Shots
Illinois, on the other hand, has whopped it up for an average of 80 field goal tries, the most in the conference, but has hit only 243 percent.

The Illini figure to be the first opponent with enough center manpower to give Minnesota's 6-foot, 9-inch Jim McIntyre a rough time. Working at the Illini pivot will be the seasoned duo of 6-foot, 7-inch Fred Green, and the sharper shooting Wally Osterkorn, nearly 6-5.

If Illinois can slow up McIntyre, who has averaged slightly more than 14 points per game in five league contests, the big worry will be the sensational Gopher sophomore, Whitey Skoog, who has a 17-point average and leads the league in points with 85.

Thrilly on Skoog?
However, should the Illini succeed in blocking McIntyre off the boards, Skoog's efficiency may be lessened considerably. McIntyre's ability to pluck rebounds away from shorter rival has been Minnesota's chief factor in hogging the ball.

Illini Burdette Thrilly, 6-2 190-pounder, may get the assignment of guarding Skoog, who stands a fraction under 6 feet and weighs 180.

Kirk Leads Tourney
MIAMI, FLA. (AP) — Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, medalist in the 17th annual Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament with a three-under-par 73, continued her blistering pace yesterday as she led the way into the quarter finals.

The written offer was for a minimum guarantee of $250,000 or a privilege of 40 percent of the gate receipts less all taxes. It proposed that Louis get 45 percent of the radio income, 45 percent of movie rights, and 50 percent of television rights.

Plunkett's letter said Louis would get $50,000 on signing the contract and $50,000 within 90 days. Plunkett said his letter as written in reply to Gibson's letter which said Louis might fight the winner of the Ezzard Charles-Joe Maxim bout in Cincinnati Feb. 28.

However, Louis has said that he doesn't consider Maxim a worthy opponent and that Lee Savold and Charles are the outstanding contenders for his title.

Iowa-Purdue Meet To Drown Records

Pool records may fall when the Iowa swimming team meets Purdue in the fieldhouse tank Feb. 7, Coach Dave Armbruster said yesterday.

The new 75-foot course will be used for the first time in an intercollegiate meet. Marks set in eight varsity-freshmen events Jan. 15 are expected to drop from the books.

Captain Wally Ris of Iowa and Keith Carter, Purdue, both Olympic team members, will try to break the world record of :49.7 in the 100-yard free style event. Ris swam the course in :52 Jan. 15, while Carter has hit :50.7.

Carter, who came in second in the Olympic breast stroke, will oppose Bowen Stafforth in the 200-yard event. Stafforth swam 2:27.7 in the January meet.

Louis Offered $250,000 for Chicago Bout

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis yesterday was given an offer of $250,000 minimum or 40 percent of the gate receipts for a title defense in Chicago next June.

The offer was in letter on the stationery of the Democratic party of Cook county and signed by Joseph T. Plunkett, chairman of the committee's special events program.

Truman Gibson, Louis' attorney, and Harry Mendel, Louis' public relations man, flew here from Florida to examine the proposal. Mendel said he would return to Tampa, Fla., Friday to present it to Louis and Marshall Miles, Louis' manager.

The written offer was for a minimum guarantee of $250,000 or a privilege of 40 percent of the gate receipts less all taxes. It proposed that Louis get 45 percent of the radio income, 45 percent of movie rights, and 50 percent of television rights.

Blackout Fails to Dim Fieldhouse Practice

All sports at the fieldhouse were "blacked out" yesterday when an electric power cable blew up.

All activities continued in the semi-gloom, however, until late in the afternoon. It wasn't until the athletes tried to dress that real trouble started: nobody could see to work the combination to his locker!

Card Owner Steps Down

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fred M. Saigh, Jr., became president and majority stockholder of the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday by buying out his partner, former Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan.

Hannegan told a news conference he was selling his interest in the far-flung Cardinal organization and stepping down as its president for reasons of health.

The 43-year-old Saigh announced plans for streamlining the organization by delegating more authority to employees. He said he planned no changes in personnel.

Saigh disclosed that he now owns about 90 percent of the Cardinal stock.

Unofficial estimates of the amount Hannegan received ranged from $1-million to $2-million.

Fourteen months ago they bought the club from Sam Breadon for a reported sum of $4,000,000, with Saigh becoming vice president and treasurer.

Saigh, an attorney who attended Bradley and Northwestern universities, has acquired large property holdings in downtown St. Louis during the past few years.

Saigh said that when he and Hannegan bought the Cardinals from Breadon in November, 1947, he considered it only from the standpoint of a good investment. "I have changed my mind about that," he said.

In answer to a question, Saigh said he will keep Eddie Dyer as Cardinal manager.

Morrison Resigns As Temple Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ray Morrison, Temple football coach for the last nine years, resigned yesterday in a move that caught university athletic officials by surprise.

"We had no inkling Morrison would resign," said a university spokesman.

Fraternity Men Offer Blood Brothers to Aid Sick Girl's Battle

By DICK PUETZ
Three-hundred-and-three fraternity men have volunteered blood donations for nine-year old Janice Hansel, of Edgewood, who is fighting to regain her health at University hospitals.

The girl with curly, brown hair who is suffering from a blood disease has had over 40 transfusions in the last six months.

The Interfraternity council learned of her plight and voted unanimously Saturday night to solicit blood donations among their members to aid the stricken child.

Hospital authorities said 10 to 12 pints of blood have been placed in the university blood bank through friends and relatives of Janice, but "more is quite necessary," they said.

The wan-faced girl, who has been in and out of hospitals for the last two and one-half years, cheerfully said she is looking forward to her birthday party this Sunday.

Janice said she was hoping "for a dolly; a dolly that lies down and says 'mama' and closes its eyes and has curly hair." As a second choice, Janice explained she wanted an electric stove to make "potato soup."

She described carefully how one has to dice the potatoes, "use just the right amount of onions and flavors," and carefully test the finished product with a fork!

She insists her birthday is Sunday, despite hospital records stating it is Jan. 31.

"It's the same as President Roosevelt's," she said, "because I sent him a birthday letter and since then he sent me a birthday letter too, until he died."

Sitting upright in her bed, surrounded by gifts of flowers and candy, Janice bashfully admitted that she just painted her toenails red to match a red "Mickey Mouse" watch her mother gave her for Christmas.

When asked if she could tell the time, she laughed, "Oh sure, I've known how to do that for a long time."

Janice came to University hospitals July 22, 1948 and was able to go home for Christmas. On Jan. 13 she was admitted again. She proudly displayed two "100" mathematics papers she received that day in her "school work." Janice takes lessons from teachers of the Perkins school.

Janice wishes she could read better "because I've got all these books, but the words are too big." Heaped at the foot of her bed were puzzles, paper dolls whose dresses have long since wrinkled and the unread children's books.

The little girl is plucky and wants nothing more than to have "a real birthday party." She doesn't like ice cream but prefers "coke."

Arrangements for blood transfusions for Janice by fraternity men will be made immediately,

Joe Poulter, Ed, Interfraternity council president, said.

Each man will contribute about one pint of blood which will be placed in the hospital blood bank.

Mrs. Hansel, contacted in Edgewood, said: "It's wonderful of those boys to do this and it takes a great load off my mind."

Panacea Committee To Seek Students For Cast, Crews

The Panacea committee next week will extend an invitation to all students interested in working in their 1949 production, "Olympic '49."

Students may obtain application blanks at a special table set up by the committee in the field-house during registration, Feb. 7 and 8, Panacea Chairman Joyce Bahr said yesterday. The forms will acquaint the committee with the applicants' special interests and experience, she explained.

Miss Bahr emphasized that applicants do not necessarily have to be singers to try out for parts in the cast.

Student help is needed for lighting, costuming and building sets. Stage hands also are needed, she said. There will be openings for assistant directors, a prompter and a stage manager, Miss Bahr added.

The Panacea show is an annual student-produced musical comedy sponsored jointly by the Student Council, Mortar board, women's honorary fraternity, and Omicron Delta Kappa, men's honorary fraternity.

Breaks September 1947 Record—

Market Basket Index Drops to All-Time Low

The Daily Iowan market basket index edged downward to a new low this week but food prices in general remained steady.

This week's index is $16.41, while last week's figure stood at $16.46. Today's figure is the lowest recorded since The Daily Iowan food price survey began in September, 1947.

The index is an estimate of the amount a student family of three will spend in one week. It is computed on 24 items in seven local grocery stores.

Prices on flour, chocolate, shortening, pork and beans and peas are slightly lower this week and no items showed an increase.

Grocers in Iowa City reported business somewhat "slow" yesterday but none forecast any marked price changes in grocery items.

Some local butchers predicted yesterday that beef prices will rise in the near future because of the blizzards on the western ranges. They believe that the storms and subsequent food shortages are destroying "on the hoof" beef to such an extent that future beef prices will rise.

Dad's Benefit Game Expected to Windup City Pool Campaign

Indications point to a successful end for the Community Dad's drive to raise $12,500 for the swimming pool fund.

Advance ticket sales for the benefit basketball game have been "very good," William H. Grandrath, publicity chairman for the drive, said yesterday.

The game, to be played at City high gymnasium at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 6, is between the Moose Lodge teams of Iowa City and Michigan City, Ind.

Both teams are state champions in Moose competition. Last year's game, played at Michigan City, ended in a one point loss for the Iowa City quintet.

All receipts from the game, except for necessary expenses, will go into the pool fund. The Dads are confident that the $725 needed to complete the $12,500 total will be forthcoming.

Tickets for the game can be purchased from the following places: Kenny's Cigar store; Racine's; Wilson's Sporting Goods store; Donnelly's; The Moose Lodge; "Doc" Mighell's Home Oil Co; Wayne Putnam Jr., president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; all War Dads members; Community Dads members, and all members of the Moose basketball team.

Ticket prices are $1.00 for adults and fifty cents for all school children. These prices include tax.

Jaycees Schedule Party At Mayflower Tuesday

The Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold a men's party Feb. 1 at the Mayflower inn, 1110 N. Dubuque street, in place of their regular bi-monthly meeting, Jaycee President Wayne E. Putnam said yesterday.

The next business meeting of the group will be Feb. 15, Putnam said.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN Lynn Farnol was a neophyte in the advertising business, his boss tipped him off to a unique opportunity to make a little side money. A man at a nearby farm had taken ill, and a substitute was required post haste. Lynn volunteered, and did nobly until he was asked to auction off a persnickety goat.

He phoned his boss, and beseeched, "How do I describe this creature? I never saw the likes of it. It has a gray coat, a mean and nasty look, gray whiskers, and smells to high heaven." "Holy mackerel," shouted the boss. "Don't auction that. That's the farmer!"

An opinionated English author, lecturing in Pittsburgh, thundered, "I was born an Englishman, I have lived an Englishman, I hope I shall die an Englishman." A voice from the auditorium, in an unmistakable accent, called out, "Mon, hae ye no ambition?" Copyright, 1949, by Bennett Cerf. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Mrs. Cross Gives Candy Recipe Young Jerry Loves Her 'Betty's Fudge'

If you have a passion for light creamy chocolate fudge, Mrs. Jean Cross, 116 Riverside park, has a recipe that's bound to please.

Mrs. Cross, a graduate student in the college of education, obtained the recipe from her younger sister. She appropriately calls it "Betty's fudge." It's a favorite with her son, Jerry, 5, and was once just as popular with her husband, an officer in the army airforce who was killed in service.

Betty's fudge recipe follows: 2 cups granulated sugar, 1 cup of milk, 2 1/2 tbs. corn syrup, 1 1/2 ounces (or squares) of chocolate, 2 tbs. butter.

Mix the above ingredients and then let boil until it reaches 112 degrees C. or 234 degrees F. (It's better if you don't stir more than absolutely necessary, advised Mrs. Cross, and be sure it really reaches the 112 or 234 degrees, depending on type of candy thermometer you have.)

Now pour the fudge on a marble slab. Do not scrape the pan. Let it cool until a fingerprint remains slightly visible when you touch the fudge. Pour a teaspoon of vanilla on top of the fudge and work with a putty knife until the shine disappears. The putty knife works better than a spatula because it is stiffer and sturdier, Mrs. Cross said.

Mrs. Cross hasn't a marble slab like her sister uses so she beats the fudge while it is still in the pan or uses an electric mixer. In either case the fudge should be allowed to cool before beating.

Nuts may be added if so desired.

WAITING IMPATIENTLY TO SAMPLE THE RESULTS is Jerry Cross, 5, candy connoisseur. To save time and work, Mrs. Cross let her electric mixer beat the fudge. This recipe makes a big plate of candy, but Jerry, who knows good fudge when he tastes it, promises none of it will go to waste.

SUI Band Auditions Slated Next Week

Mid-year auditions for the concert and varsity bands have been extended by Prof. C. B. Righter, SUI director of bands. Auditions will be held next week Monday through Friday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The auditions will be held in room 15 in the music building. There are vacancies to be filled in most sections of the bands, Righter said. Some of the less common instruments, such as oboes and bassoons, can be provided for qualifying students by the music department.

These mid-year auditions are being held so that students previously too busy or not fully oriented may have an opportunity to participate in these activities, Righter explained.

Launch Book Drive To Help Students In Foreign Schools

With "A Book—or More—from Every Student" as the theme, the Student Christian council has launched a campus-wide book drive to collect books for students in foreign countries.

The campaign, which ends Feb. 5, is being conducted by the council's World Student Service committee. The committee is part of an international organization of the World Student Service fund. Boxes and barrels have been placed in libraries, housing units, student church centers and the Iowa Union, Chairman Anne Gilson said yesterday.

Miss Gilson said textbooks are one of the chief scarcities in war devatated countries.

Books collected by the committee will be taken to a St. Louis church world service center between semesters. There the books will be crated and waterproofed for shipment abroad.

"This drive is the chief way in which students and faculty members in this country can share their wealth and service with students and faculties in other countries," Ralph Schloming, YMCA executive secretary, said yesterday.

The drive is an interfaith activity and Jewish, Catholic and Protestant groups are participating, he said.

The YMCA Boosters, The YWCA Live Y'ers, the Interfraternity council and the Panhellenic association are aiding in the drive.

Committee members are Sue Gronna, A3; Jack Thomson, A3; June Marken, A1; Peace Penningroth, A3, and Rosemary Rutt, A1.

5 Democratic Candidates File For February Primary Election

Five Democratic candidates for the February primary election filed affidavits yesterday in the city clerk's office. Four of them are incumbents. They are Mayor Preston Koser, 117 N. Van Buren street; Alderman-at-large Clark F. Mighell, 622 Iowa avenue; Alderman-at-large Frank Fryauf Jr., 4 1/2 S. Dubuque street, and Police Judge Emil G. Trott, 630 N. Van Buren street.

Milo Novy, 519 N. Johnson street, filed for city treasurer. He is assistant cashier at the Iowa State Bank & Trust Co. and was a candidate for treasurer in 1945. This action brings to 12 the total number of candidates who have filed.

There are 11 elective offices to be filled in the March general election. If both parties put up a full slate of candidates, there will be 22 persons running for city offices. However, Iowa City has a closed (party) primary and voters must choose one of the two parties in order to vote.

So far, the Republican party has only three candidates who have filed. Carl E. Redenbaugh filed for mayor, Eugene T. Larew for second ward alderman and Edwin Morley for fifth ward alderman.

City officials said yesterday they expect the Republicans to put up a full slate by the five o'clock deadline tonight.

Iowa Snow Greets—

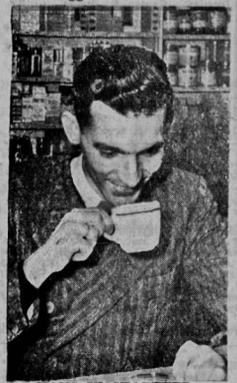

German Scholar

By PAUL MAHANEY

A blinding snow storm greeted Hans Umstaetter last night when he arrived at SUI where he will study under the sponsorship of Interfaith Scholarship Fund committee.

Umstaetter, a student from Germany, had other troubles too when he arrived last night—he was lost, temporarily at least.

Richard Sweitzer, foreign students counselor, and a representative from the Interfaith Scholarship Fund committee were waiting for him to arrive on the Rock Island Rocket, due in at 5:50 p. m. A freight train derailment near Kellogg forced the Rocket to bypass Iowa City and its passengers were transferred to a bus in Davenport to finish the trip.

When the bus got to Iowa City one of the passengers told Hans they were in the center of the city, and he got off several blocks from the railroad station where he was expected.

While the two men waiting for him searched the station, Hans found a policeman who took him to the police station. There he met a Daily Iowan reporter who brought him in and halted the frantic search.

Twenty-nine-year-old Hans plans to concentrate on history during the year he will be on campus. His study here is sponsored and financed by the Interfaith Scholarship Fund committee.

Hans is under agreement to teach at least five years in Germany after he leaves here and he plans to continue teaching as his career. His father is a teacher and his wife's family have been teachers for about the last eight generations.

He is interested mainly in history, but he also wants to teach literature and German and foreign languages. He has studied a year at the University of Heidelberg.

Hans was chosen from one of the eight teacher institutes in Wuertemberg-Baden by the Land German Student Exchange commission. He had to meet such qualifications as knowledge of English, scholastic ability and personality.

He arrived in New York Monday and started his trip to Iowa on Wednesday. During his stay in New York he toured Rockefeller Center, the Manhattan and Washington bridges, the city court and other places of interest to a new arrival.

He hopes to travel while he is in America so he can meet Americans, learn the language better (he speaks almost perfect literal English now) and see the country

All County Schools To Share Aid Fund

All Johnson county schools will share in the $81,447.10 general aid fund granted by the state department of public instruction for expenses during the 1948-1949 school year, County Superintendent Frank J. Snider said yesterday.

The grant is part of the one-million dollar fund appropriated by the state legislature for general aid to education.

Snider also said $7,801.53 was granted to the county for supplemental aid to schools. Thirty-nine school districts will share in the supplemental aid fund.

The state department of public instruction also granted $13,300.32 to this county for school transportation costs. This amount will be divided among rural school districts to pay for bus and private car transportation, Snider said.

Mother of Triplets Goes Home; Babies Remain in Hospital

Mrs. William E. Brecht, the mother of triplets born in Mercy hospital Jan. 19, was released from the hospital yesterday afternoon and returned to her Coralville home.

The triplets will remain in the hospital until they are able to take normal nourishment from a bottle, she explained.

"Mike" has already regained his full birth weight of two pounds and 6 ounces and the girls are also gaining, she said. Hospital officials reported that the babies are "doing fine."

Before leaving the hospital, Mrs. Brecht was given the opportunity to hold her babies for the first time. "It was a big thrill," she related.

The oldest son, Denny, was very excited when he returned from school and found his mother home at last.

"It's absolutely wonderful to be home again," Mrs. Brecht said, "even though everyone was just grand to me while I was in the hospital."

The Pythian Sisters are holding a money shower for the triplets in the Coralville gas and electric assembly room, 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Mrs. Brecht said that her doctor, Dr. Pauline Moore, told her that she was able to attend the shower.

Although attendance at the shower has been limited, contributions from the public will be accepted by the Pythian Sisters.

'Prices' Trouble Local Post Office

Charles J. Price, 29, 1329 Kirkwood avenue, and Charles Price, 29, Tiffin, think seven years is long enough for the postoffice department to get it straight.

In 1941 they were both in the 133rd regiment of the 34th Infantry stationed at Camp Claiborne, La., and their mail got mixed.

C.J. (Chuck) is now a cookie and cracker salesman in the Iowa City area and "Charley," a Tiffin tavern operator, is one of his customers.

"We met for the first time when I called on him to open an account," Chuck said. "Now he's getting my mail again even though the address is right."

"I got his bank statement once too. But the best part of it is—three months ago when Charley became a father—all my customers asked me for cigars!"

so he will be better equipped to teach about America.

Hans is married, but he had to leave his wife in Germany. He said she is going to stay with his parents.

When he landed in New York, he was met by a representative of a committee on friendly relations toward foreign students who gave him $75 for train fare and expenses to Iowa City.

Hans crossed the ocean on the transport, "Ernie Pyle." The trip lasted 12 days and many of the passengers became seasick because the ship rolled and pitched a lot, he said. It was built to handle cargo and the load of passengers was too light.

By BILL McBRIDE

WEDNESDAY MORNING I finally got around to making a call which has been on my calendar for some time. The Veterans play school up at 67 Central park was my destination.

I drove most of the way and then, after parking the car, followed a red tasseled cap and muffer. The red tasseled cap was pulling a fur coat along behind which had a mother in it.

When we arrived at 67 Central park, the mother, the red tasseled cap and I stepped into a room full of little people.

RED TASSEL turned out to be a little boy called Michael. After meeting Mrs. Rutenbeck, the director; Mrs. Chesney, an assistant and Mrs. MacQueen, the nurse, I decided to follow Michael and see what A Day at the Play School is like.

At 8:30 a. m. with squadrons of little people ranging from two to three and one-half years old holding noisy conferences about the distribution of toys, A Day at the Play School can be likened to many things.

THE FIRST thing Michael did after bidding his mother goodbye was to race around to the toy storage department and check out a red (the boy loves that color) plastic convertible.

I could tell right away that he had a bad manifold because his motor made so much noise. The little people's world has a different set of values than ours.

Michael drove right in front of a pretty little blonde and honked his horn loudly, but she didn't even turn her head.

THE FELLOW who was really popular didn't have an automobile at all. Several three-year-old girls, including the blonde, stood in mute admiration of dexterity with which their hero handled himself with an ironing board and iron.

As Michael rumbled around and honked his horn, this fellow was content to slay away ironing the same towel over and over again.

Women are fickle, however, and they soon left to investigate a ruckus evolving from a collision between a fire truck and a dairy wagon.

Conversation between little people is a strange thing. There was considerable talk Wednesday morning about tied and untied shoestrings.

There was a group discussion (some of which I didn't quite comprehend) about the pulling of a wagon in a circle. In case you aren't aware of it, there are several schools of thought on how a wagon should be pulled in a circle.

One radical in the crowd thought it should be pulled in a straight line, disregarding the circle idea altogether. He was promptly ostracized by the rest of the group.

FROM FIRST impressions of little people you'd think they didn't have a worry in the world. The truth of the matter is, they have just as many worries as big people, but they don't last as long.

One little girl, while rocking merrily on a letter-totter affair, told her friends about the worries her socks had caused. . . they were wearing out.

Four minutes later she stopped worrying about the short life of her socks and started fretting about whether or not a kleenex should be used for more than one nose wiping.

ONLY ONE of the little people paid any attention to me. She too would have ignored my presence except for the fact that an emergency arose.

She was a very pretty child with long curly locks, and she approached me shyly, holding her dolly out for my inspection. I couldn't understand what she said, but gathered there was something out of kilter with the little girl dolly.

The doll wore a blue dress and had blue eyes and was a pretty good doll so far as I could tell. In dressing it, however, my little friend had trouble with the underdrawers. Both legs were in the same hole.

After all it was a little girl dolly. . . that dolly is probably still hamstrung with its own underdrawers. I got my hat off the fire truck and left.

CURRIER GRADS HONORED Currier's graduating seniors were given a banquet Wednesday night by Currier's social board. Dorothy Meyers, Currier council president, gave a short talk. Among those honored was Lucille Townsend, council vice-president.

Russ May Settle At Austria Parley

Communists Demonstrate in Rome In Austria, There Were Few Takers

As part of their current peace offensive, the Soviets may be ready to make the Danube more blue and less red.

Russian willingness to participate in the London conference on Austria starting Feb. 7 is based more on military and political strategy than on a sudden desire to love the Austrians and leave them.

The Red army has remained in eastern Austria since it was considered good strategy to encircle Czechoslovakia. With the Czechs safely in the Soviet orbit, that reason no longer exists.

Up to now the Soviets could not afford to move out of Austria for another even more important reason. With their position in Hungary and Romania not secured until recently, their only excuse to keep troops in those two countries was the need for a supply line to their occupation forces in Austria.

Firm Soviet entrenchment in the former little entente countries will allow them to withdraw the supply lines and the troops that the lines were meant for.

Observers strongly believe that Austrian hatred for the Red army, and the subsequent mirror of that hate in the insignificant vote for the Austrian Communist party, will cause the Russians to reverse their previous stand and agree to pull out.

The line used by the Soviet representatives in the past was a two-pronged demand for extensive reparations payments and for support of Tito's claims for Carnia.

Tito has deserted the Soviets' love nest, and Russia's demands for giving up German assets in their occupation zone have now been reduced to $150-million. The new figure is not considered by correspondents in Vienna to be a serious obstacle. These observers believe that occupation costs, if continued at the present rate, would not make it profitable for the occupying powers to remain.

It is expected that the Soviets will not offer serious roadblocks to an agreement at London next month. The pincer around Czechoslovakia — Russia's military reason for remaining in Austria — is not needed anymore. Tito may be punished by losing complete Soviet support for his claims. Communism is king in eastern Europe.

Originally the Soviets had viewed Austria as a possible breeding ground for communism in central Europe. However, their ruthless occupation policy has so aroused the people that any favorable response to future Soviet plans in Austria seems very unlikely.

It looks as if the time has come for the Soviets to go home from Vienna — and no one seems to know this better than the Soviets.

FD RATHER BE RIGHT The Issue Is Confused

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

President Truman's inaugural speech continues to trouble the commentators. They are still wrestling with it, more than a week after the event. It was a peculiar speech. It didn't settle any argument, and it started a dozen.

What happened, I think, is that Mr. Truman slipped into his old habit of conciliating the opposition. It seems to me he was bothered by the talk that our policy toward Russia was softening, and he set out to show, in spades, that this wasn't so. He tried to please and disarm his critics, and to a certain extent he succeeded.

But, as almost always happens when the conciliatory mood is upon him, the President was at his thinnest and least persuasive.

FOR THE fact is that our relations with Russia have been changing. That is not because we have in any way become softer toward them, or they softer toward us. Our relations are changing because of the realities of the situation, and one of the realities is that peace is a very good thing. There is a change from the high points of heat of a year ago; partly the change is organic, and partly the softening is an atmospheric effect, induced by the passage of time, if nothing else.

What the President did, as he often does when he rakes one of these out-of-the-opposition moves, was to create a great uncertainty. We have a definite day-to-day program for countering Russian danger, but the President came very near knocking that program askew in his inaugural speech.

In part that program calls for giving economic aid to the nations of Western Europe, in the hope that they can stand on their own feet by 1952. But, as a number of observers have pointed out, by the unqualified nature of his remarks against Russia, the President has virtually wiped out the sharp outlines of the Marshall plan, and reduced it to formlessness, indefiniteness, and everlastingness. Now once again we have the uneasy feeling that there is an unmeasurable hole in our purse.

In fact the President so over-reassured the congregation on the score of his antagonism toward Russia, that he almost scared it. When he followed his unqualified promises of assistance with his tremendous scheme for almost unlimited American

General Douglas MacArthur didn't win any nominations here at home, but his party in Japan racked up a big parliamentary majority.

Last Sunday's elections saw the battle lines forming along a line typical of this day's ideological influence. The middle party weakened; and at the extremes the conservatives gained strength and the Communists gained nearly nine times their former number of seats.

As usual, both extremes took great pride in their respective showings. The most optimistic note, however, was sounded when nearly thirty million of the eligible forty million voters went to the polls.

Only a few days before, the Greek government set up a national unity cabinet. Gen.

Alexander Papagos was named supreme commander for all the Greek forces. He is not a newcomer to the scene of Greek strife — he had power before and instituted command over the civilians as well as the military. Looking at his record now, many observers say he forced thousands into the Communist camp by his high-handed arrest and search methods.

This new government will undoubtedly ask the western nations to give them absolute rule in carrying on the war against the guerrillas. The western powers let the middle groups decay and have fostered the fundamentals which have produced the new national unity. This same type of mitosis has been evidenced in other nations where the east and west have waved a wand and brought forth the extreme political oppositions.

The mood. So have some government labor experts who recently proposed an impartial cost analyzing body to help industry and labor find a safe middle ground in pension and welfare fund negotiations.

These officials cite the disagreements in setting up the United Mine Workers pension fund. Neither the union nor the coal industry could agree on the other's figures on the cost of the plan or how many would benefit.

It is felt that impartial government figures could serve as a basis for negotiations just as government cost of living figures have become the basis for past negotiations.

Many questions will have to be answered in the coming negotiations. Will industry be willing to grant welfare benefits in the face of a slackening boom? Will the unions' rank and file be willing to strike for such benefits in the face of increasing unemployment?

Arguments for maintaining workers' security will gradually replace cost of living arguments as America's 57-cent dollar increases a few cents in value during 1949.

Both of these powerful unions have caught

Extremes for Their Own Ends

General Douglas MacArthur didn't win any nominations here at home, but his party in Japan racked up a big parliamentary majority. Out of the Spiral, Onto the Defensive

The upcoming fourth round of wage-raise demands will be different from the last three. The steam is leaking out of the inflation balloon in more and more places and organized labor is shifting its strategy away from outright demands for wage increases. In the face of slowly leveling prices and gradually increasing unemployment, labor is no longer concerned with pacing a spiraling cost of living.

TO THE EDITOR:

One of the worst expressions of democratic free speech I have witnessed occurred at the Science and Social Philosophy club lecture on "Marxism and the International Situation" Tuesday evening.

If Professor Cobitz is so opposed to Communistic oppression of freedom, perhaps he might practice what he preaches and allow a free expression of both views of the situation at a public discussion.

I certainly don't believe that Mr. Maloff gave adequate, concise and concrete replies to the issues so well presented by Dr. Mosse. However, it seems to me that if Maloff felt that historical background was relevant to the understanding of the issue, he should have been given a fair opportunity to present his facts or views.

The inconsiderate rudeness on the part of the moderator was inexcusable. In fact, I think that Cobitz should make an attempt to understand the position of a moderator before he assumes the responsibility of such a position in the future. Not only did he present his own views, which were irrelevant, but he also gave a biased and somewhat inaccurate interpretation of the speakers, at times even of Mosse. His consistency at interrupting Maloff was irritating and a very good example of the very issue that both Mosse and Maloff were objecting to, i. e., the repression of freedom.

Personally, I feel that the discussion was inadequate in the sense that a political issue of this sort can hardly resolve itself in any direction when the speakers diverge into the various specific instances, for example, the situation in China or Czechoslovakia or Rumania or Italy. To balance mistakes or virtues of both sides does not lead to clear support or refutation of either view. It is a mere balance of powers, so to speak, if I may infringe on the "figment of Mosse's imagination." In short, neither of the speakers presented a very convincing platform. Maloff refused to take a very clear or expressive stand on any issue. Mosse insisted upon talking in circles and together they played fox and goose with the idea of imperialism in Germany. Maloff contemned the western powers for their imperialistic policies and Mosse condemned both the western and eastern powers for the same fault. They forgot that the subject under discussion was the implications of Marxism in the international situation rather than a debate between the righteousness of eastern and western powers. Mosse clearly implied that Russian policy allowed for no compromise regardless of moral implications and Maloff said, "That's not so," period. Cobitz kibitzed and the audience revelled in the duel of satirical slander. I do think that the Science and Social Philosophy club is a decided advantage to the University of Iowa campus and Mr. Gene Krause and Mr. Jerry McClosky deserve a vote of thanks for their initiative in instigating its organization and for the fine lectures they have had presented. Perhaps we can say of Tuesday night's discussion that it stimulates political consciousness, if nothing else.

No Dice, Truman Still Scores Polls

WASHINGTON, JAN. 27. — President Truman said yesterday he still has no confidence in public opinion polls even though one of them claims that 69 percent of the voters now approve his actions.

Both he and the Democratic National Chairman Howard J. McGrath scoffed at the pollsters before the election when they unanimously predicted Mr. Truman's defeat.

A reporter asked the President at his press conference yesterday whether he had changed his mind. The newsmen cited a recent Gallup poll which figured that 69 percent of the voters now favor Mr. Truman's actions.

The President said he never had any confidence in polls and preferred to base his decisions on what he considers right and wrong. He arrived at his decision, he said, after getting all the possible facts.

SUI Council Rearranges Committees

The Student Council last night rearranged its committee system in preparation for its second semester work.

At a regular meeting in Old Capitol, the group set its immediate goals for the spring semester in relation to its first semester successes and failures.

Summarizing the council's activities so far this school year, President Evan L. Hultman asserted, "We accomplished practically everything we set out to do."

He pointed to two notable council successes:

1. The "very successful" mutual goodwill mission of the visiting University of Minnesota students at the Iowa-Minnesota basketball game, Jan. 17.

2. The adoption of an SUI ring, recently approved by President Virgil M. Hancher and samples of which are now being made by the Balfour company.

He referred to one failure — the lack of interest in the recent council-sponsored liberal arts class officers election.

The council oriented its immediate action for the second semester toward stirring up student interest in the spring all-campus elections, obtaining an office to keep its data, revising its constitution which has slowed or hampered council operations at times and orienting an incoming freshmen group of from 200 to 300 men.

It made these committee revisions and additions:

1. Election committee — George McBurney, chairman; Dan Dillinger, Quadrangle representative; Robert Crumley, Town Men rep-

SUI Couples Need Housing

If you've got an extra roof, why not put it over somebody's head? Only half a dozen places in town are available for married students, Richard E. Sweitzer, counselor for married students, announced yesterday.

"The second semester demand for married students' housing greatly exceeds the supply," Sweitzer said. "We have a continuous list of requests for apartments, rooms with kitchen facilities, sleeping rooms—in fact, any type of housing."

Sweitzer requested townspeople to call the SUI office of student affairs if they have rooms available or know of any housing possibilities.
