Claims AEC Payrolls Hid FBI Suspects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) accused the atomic energy commission yesterday of keeping FBI loyalty suspects "under cover" on AEC payrolls for over 10 months.

Ferguson fired the accusations point-blank at AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal at a stormy hearing of a senate appropriations subcommittee.

The senate investigation was touched off by a disclosure that a Communist, Hans Freistadt, had been granted a fellowship under the AEC's multi-million-dollar student aid program.

Three Doubted

Lilienthal acknowledged that questions have been raised about the loyalty of "maybe as many as three" of the 500 persons who have been awarded AEC scholarships. His own appointment to head the nation's atomic development program was bitterly attacked in the senate before he finally was confirmed.

Lilienthal has been answering senators' pointed questions for two days. He was called in connection with the atomic commission's request for $1,080,000,000 operating money next year.

Under questioning by Senator Wherry (R-Neb), the AEC chairman confirmed that a young Boston medical student researcher, Dr. Isidor S. Edelman, holds a $3,750-a-year atomic fellowship although he has been denied clearance for secret work on security grounds.

Edelman to Testify

The committee promptly announced it will call Edelman to testify Tuesday.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn) announced that Edelman will also be asked to appear Monday afternoon before the senate-house atomic energy committee.

Lilienthal said Edelman is not working on atomic secrets, and has denied that he is a Communist.

But he went on to say that an FBI check had turned up "dodgy information" about Edelman—which he refused to divulge—and it was decided that Edelman should not be allowed to work where he would have contact with AEC employees who do have access to secrets.

SOMETHING NEW for big airplanes is now being tested by Boeing aircraft engineers at Seattle. The new gadget, shown here on a 164,000-pound B-50 bomber, is a tractor-tread landing gear. The gear, which is retractable, consists of an endless rubber belt which rotates around grooved drums. The new gear would be used for operating the bomber from unimproved airfields.

West Rejects Russian Bid for Greek Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Russian feeler for a big power conference to settle the Greek civil war was firmly rejected yesterday by the United States and Britain.

Moscow was told in effect: Call off your Balkan satellites which have been helping the Greek guerrillas and we'll talk business—within the United Nations.

The U.S. state department coldly charged that Russia has been "lending encouragement to the illegal operations which have disturbed the peace."

Britain told the Soviets there won't be any negotiations "behind the back of the Greek government."

"There is one condition for peace—that the rebels lay down their arms."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, set off a flurry of possible peace in Greece by announcing that Russia had presented a conditional settlement plan to the U.S. and Britain.

London, followed quickly by Washington, put out the western versions of the informal and somewhat vague talks on which the Tass account was founded.

The American statement made it clear that as long as Greece's northern neighbors keep helping the guerrillas, the United States is going to keep pouring in help to the Athens government.

North Rhine-Westphalia was the eighth of the 11 states which make up the occupation zones of the United States, Britain and France, to endorse the charter. Approval by two-thirds of the states was required to make the constitution effective.

Genuine Effort

"We would, however, welcome a bona fide effort by the Soviet Union to remove the threat to the peace and security of the Greek people," the state department said.

The British foreign office said that during Russia's informal feeler talks in New York Hector McNeil, the British minister of state, had told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that "the hostilities would soon cease if the northern neighbors of Greece stopped giving aid and shelter to the rebels."

Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state, took part in the conversation for this country. He got even more specific, telling Gromyko that the main issue was the illegal activities of Albania and Bulgaria.

A portion of the bill provides funds for work on the Coralville dam.

The senate immediately rejected a proposed 10 percent cut by a vote of 48 to 29. Sens. Homer Ferguson, (R-Mich) and Style Bridges, (R-N.H.) sponsored the plan for a 10 percent cut.

Both proposals called for sending the bill back to the appropriations committee with instructions that total be trimmed by the specified percentage.

Douglas said the bill had "the same old bologna" that used to be called "the pork barrel."

Ford Strike Peace Talks Near Failure

DETROIT (AP) — Peace talks between the Ford Motor company and the CIO united auto workers in the 18-day-old Ford strike stood on the verge of collapse yesterday.

Threatening the talks on the very day the federal government put a mediator on the scene was a heated dispute over starting time for negotiations on a new union contract to replace the one which expired next July 15.

The company, with 102,000 production workers idle in the 18-day-old strike, refused to agree to contract talks during the strike, specifically not before June 1.

Contract Talks

The union demanded that Ford agree to begin contract talks by next Monday. Otherwise, UAW President Walter Reuther threatened to pull the union negotiating team out of the strike talks.

Further, Reuther declared in a statement that the union would file unfair labor practice charges against Ford if the company doesn't open contract discussions by Monday.

Approximately 65,000 Ford workers at the company's Rouge and Lincoln-Mercury plants here walked out May 5, charging that Ford had stepped up the speed of assembly lines to the detriment of workers' health and safety. The company denied the charge.

No Statement

After more than five hours of discussion yesterday, negotiators took a recess until today at 10 a.m. There was no statement by either side as the meeting broke up.

In the liveliest session since direct peace negotiations opened 10 days ago, each side pointed the blame for possible break-off of peace relations at the other.

John S. Bugas, Ford vice-president, declared that if the strike talks are broken off "it will be strictly the union's responsibility."

Reuther replied that responsibility for such a threatened end to the peace talks "rests squarely on the shoulders of the company."

CANNES, FRANCE (AP) — Riviera fisherman decided yesterday to poll their luck and send Moslem Prince Aly Khan the finest fish they catch on the eve of his wedding to Rita Hayworth May 27. They are now making great catches of sardines and anchovies.

The court room was silent as Rutledge described the fatal fight.

Earlier yesterday the young doctor had told the jury the whole tragedy arose out of Hattman's "forcible seduction" of Mrs. Rutledge. He declared he loves his wife and has loved her always since their marriage in 1946.

Rutledge's voice frequently faltered and broke when he testified that his wife Sydney confessed that the young engineer was forcibly intimate with her after she became ill from drinks last July 31.

The jury of 9 men and 3 women listened closely as the doctor took the stand for the first time at the end of the third week of his murder trial.

PO 'Insight' Saves Bonus Application

DES MOINES (AP) — State bonus board officials said yesterday one Iowa veteran has the efficiency of the U.S. post office department to thank for getting his bonus application to the right place.

Officials said they received an application yesterday with nothing on the envelope except an Iowa City postmark. The remainder of the envelope was blank.

Board officials said the application form was folded in such a way that post office employees could tell what it was by holding it up to the light.

Says Hattman Swung at Him, Pulled a Knife

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — The story of a violent hotel room battle fought "in self-defense to save my own life" was told yesterday by Dr. Robert C. Rutledge Jr., of St. Louis before a tense courtroom.

He said Byron C. Hattman, for whose death last Dec. 14 he is charged with murder, came at him with a knife before the struggle reached its tragic climax.

With his attorney he re-enacted his version of the struggle during which Hattman was fatally stabbed.

Dr. Rutledge said he came to Cedar Rapids to try and get Hattman off. He testified Hattman had seduced Mrs. Rutledge against her will and demanded $2,000 to leave her alone.

Unarmed

The doctor said he went into Hattman's hotel room — 729 of the Roosevelt hotel — unarmed and with no thought of a fight.

He said he told Hattman he couldn't "raise the money you want, not at this time" and Hattman called him a dirty name and remarked "your ---- of a wife can get it."

Then, Dr. Rutledge said, Hattman swung at him and a bloody fight began.

They fought for time, he continued, and then Hattman drew a knife and "I thought he was going to kill me."

The 28-year-old pediatrician said Hattman told him, "I've got you now."

Fell to Floor

The knife changed hands as they grappled, he said, and at one point they both fell to the floor. He said Hattman's fatal knife wound was accidental or inflicted by Hattman himself. He said he left the room believing the young engineer was only stunned.

The men, described by the state patrol as "highly dangerous," had been brought from the state prison at Reidsville for work on a farm operated state hospital for the insane at Milledgeville. All were serving long terms.

Prison officials and police rounded up a posse of about 50 men. The state patrol ordered all available officers and men on duty, and threw up roadblocks on all highways and roads leading out of Milledgeville.

Reports indicated the escapees were frantically changing their course from time to time in an effort to shake off pursuing officers.

Court Quiet

The court room was silent as Rutledge described the fatal fight.

Earlier yesterday the young doctor had told the jury the whole tragedy arose out of Hattman's "forcible seduction" of Mrs. Rutledge. He declared he loves his wife and has loved her always since their marriage in 1946.

MALLARD (AP) — Firemen from seven towns last night were fighting to save this town's business district after fire swept through three buildings and threatened others.

For Iowa Ace

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
MINNEAPOLIS — Iowa's Jack Bruner hurled a four-hit shutout for his fifth Big Nine victory in as many starts to give the Hawkeyes a 2-0 win over Minnesota last night.

The frigid weather and drizzle which fell early in the game didn't seem to bother Lefty Bruner as he fanned 15 Gophers while walking only four. It was a personal strikeout record for Bruner, topping his 13 strikeouts at Purdue this year.

Jack Dittmer figured in both the Hawkeye runs as he scored the first after singling, and drove in the second on a booming triple with John Sullivan on base. Dittmer also collected another single in four trips.

The Hawks got seven hits off Minnesota Starter Oje Henning before he was pulled for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Bruner got in trouble in three innings when walks and hits put two men on base but he bore down to strike the Gophers out or make them hit into field outs.

In the ninth the Gophers threatened when the lead off man doubled. Bruner fanned two Gophers but walked the next man to put the tying run on base. Then the southpaw ace came through with fast ones to strike out the next man and end the game.

Either Wes Denner or Hooks Hoeksema will pitch for the Hawkeyes today in the second game of the series starting at 10:30 a.m.

Indiana Tames 'Cats With 4-2 Decision

EVANSTON, ILL. (P) — Indiana kept its faint hopes for a Big Nine baseball title alive yesterday by downing Northwestern, 4-2.

The victory was the Hoosiers' sixth in nine games. Northwestern has won only twice in nine starts.

A three-run outburst in the seventh won the game for Indiana. Gene Ring's triple after a walk and an error chased two runs across. Don Ritter's bunt single scored Ring.

Ring was the game's top hitter with a triple and two singles in five times at bat. Ritter, the conference's leading batter, was held to one for five.

Brown Only Hawk to Qualify For Big Nine Championships

(Special to The Daily Iowan)

EVANSTON, ILL.—Keith Brown, Iowa's half miler, was the only Hawk to gain a qualifying berth in yesterday's preliminaries of the 49th annual Western conference track and field championships here at Northwestern's Dyche stadium.

Two other top Hawkeye possibilities failed to qualify when they were forced to the sidelines with strained muscles.

Minnesota and Indiana each qualified 13 men for today's 14 event finals. The Gophers have never won a Big Nine outdoor track title, while Indiana entered the championships as probable favorites for the title.

At the peak of the cruse, Brown began making his move. Still stepping with comparative ease, he moved into third place and sprinted across the finish line in that position to land himself in today's finals. His time for the 880 was 1:56.5.

Jack Simpson was the first Hawk to feel the jinx of old man injury. He pulled out of the starting blocks and managed to finish the race, although he said he had severe pain in his leg.

Hurdlers Russ Merkel, also a victim of muscle strain, was over the first barrier before the leg that has hampered him for the past few weeks forced him out of a probable qualifying spot.

Defending champion Ohio State had eight qualifiers, Purdue had seven, Michigan and Illinois had six each, followed by Wisconsin with five, Northwestern with four and Iowa's one.

Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann was clocked in the half mile

Projectors and Cameras Are Reduced;

Cuts Effective Immediately

Largest Decline Is 17½%

Eastman Kodak Co. announced price cuts averaging about 12½% on several of its still and movie cameras and projectors. The reductions, as high as 17½% on some items, are effective immediately.

Typical cuts are 40 cents on a $3.15 camera and $3.50 on a $26.50 projector. The prices include the excise tax of 25%.

James E. McGhee, vice-president and general sales manager, said:

"We are making these price reductions even though the average increase in prices of our equipment since 1939 has been below national average increases. We feel that by making these reductions now, at the start of the most active picture-taking season, we can benefit consumers during the coming summer months."

Mr. McGhee said the company will be able to meet demand for Eastman films, papers and chemicals.

The main products affected, with the old and new prices and the amount of the reduction, (prices include 25% excise tax) follow:

Simple Menus for Hot Weather

By BARBARA BLOXOM

With warm days here and warmer ones ahead, homemakers are beginning to think in terms of simple menus that mean less time spent in the kitchen.

A hot weather favorite with Mrs. Philip F. Morgan, 409 Brown street, is a casserole de luxe. Almost a meal in itself, the casserole can be prepared in the morning and later reheated. Mrs. Morgan suggests that allowing the casserole to stand until supper time improves the flavor.

and brown 1 1-2 pounds pork steak, and 1 1-2 pounds veal steak,

Add 1 cup rich chicken broth or 1 can of condensed chicken soup, 1-2 pound medium-cooked noodles, 2 small green peppers (chopped), 1 can golden bantam cream-style corn, and 3-8 pounds of American cheese, grated.

Salt and pepper to taste and place in casserole. Cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter, and bake one hour in 350 degree oven. The recipe serves six generously.

During wartime food scarcities, Mrs. Morgan discovered the recipe was a real meat stretcher.

CAPE CODDERS are a hardy lot. Old Jeb Sawyer of Eastport, for instance was still working eight hours a day at the fishing wharf when he reached his hundredth birthday. The company thought it high time he retired on a pension, but Sawyer didn't like the idea at all. "Ding bust it," he exploded, "when I took this job in 1870, the manager gave me his solemn word that it was PERMANENT."

Charles Boyer and Irving Hoffman crossed together on the Queen Elizabeth and introduced a game that promises to become a fixture in the A-deck bar. Several passengers would order highballs. Boyer then lined the drunks up atop the bar and drew a chalk-line a foot away. Then the race began. The vibrations of the ship made the glasses jiggle forward. The first across the line cost its owner a round of drinks.

In January, Virginia was allowed to get out of bed for a short time each day and now she has received the privileges of taking her own bath, washing

Airline Official Talks to Group

Passenger and meal service on United Airlines' planes have been "considerably improved" by using quality control methods to eliminate errors, a United Airlines representative told members of the American Society for Quality Control meeting at SUI yesterday morning.

Speaking to about 20 members of the SUI section of the society in studio B of the electrical engineering building, Dale L. Lobinger said fewer planes are taking off with empty seats or being oversold since quality control has been used to find the errors in service.

After using quality control methods to keep track of errors, it is possible to take steps to "minimize" them, he explained.

In the same way, it is now possible to determine accurately the number of meals that will be required for all passengers during the day, he declared.

Holcomb has written another book, "Armed Robbery," which will be used at the 13th short course which will be held here June 20 to 24.

A book written by Prof. Richard L. Holcomb, SUI extension division, is now the guidebook for training police in Japan.

About 100,000 copies of "Police Patrol" have been translated into Japanese and are being used throughout the country under the administration of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Illustrated by Robert Gadbois, A4, Kankakee, Ill., the book was used at the 12th annual peace officers short course at SUI last year.

Other members of the SUI faculty appearing on the program were F.M. Dawson of the engineering department, Prof. Allen T. Craig of the mathematics department and Prof. F.R. Kennedy of the college of law.

W. Kardell of the Kinroth & Son manufacturing company will speak on quality control in a small shop at the final session of the conference this morning.

Nurses, Patients Enjoy Modernized Hospital

No 'Snake Pit' at SUI Hospital

Mentally Ill Treated in 'Homey' Atmosphere

A tour through Psychopathic hospital here will convince any skeptic that high standards can be maintained in the care and treatment of the mentally ill.

Contrary to impressions conveyed in the movie, "Snake Pit," the Psychopathic hospital provides a pleasant, restful environment, conducive to the recuperation of disturbed minds.

Living rooms, "day rooms" as Miss Gwen Tudor, superintendent of nursing, called them, have recently been redecorated with grey beige rugs, new leatherette chairs and couches, green drapes with a tinge of red duplicated in duobonnet colored lamps, masonite end tables and new ash tray and card table sets.

The modern, home-like decorations of the living rooms, "wards" and sun porches are but part of the plans Miss Tudor and Dr. Wilbur R. Miller, director of the Psychopathic hospital, have developed during the last four years.

Iron bars on the windows have been removed and inconspicuous "detention screens" are now used. The "seclusion room," usually a "padded cell" in most mental institutions, is so attractive that patients often request to use it when they wish to be quiet, Miss Tudor said.

Patients spend leisure time listening to the new radio and phonograph combination in the living room, playing the piano or reading books from the hospital's library.

Under supervision, patients may spend part of their time on sun porches or in the modern occupational therapy rooms where they work with brass, wood, cloth and clay on hobbies which interest them.

Planned activities in the hospital's program include swimming, softball, basketball, volleyball, walks, social dancing with instruction, puzzles, card games, parties and moving pictures.

With modern methods and equipment, such as the electric shock therapy, insulin treatments and psychotherapy, plus the participation of personnel with patients, treatment for the mentally ill attains a completeness seldom realized in most mental institutions.

Eyewitness Sees Korea Border War

Recent dispatches from Korea have told of intermittent fighting along the 38th parallel dividing north and south Korea. For an authentic report, Frank H. Bartholomew made the trip into the mountains to view the situation firsthand. In the following dispatch he reports that a state of undeclared war exists along the frontier.

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW
NEAR THE 38TH PARALLEL, KOREA — An average of several lives a day are being lost in Korea's undeclared but vicious border warfare along the 38th parallel.

Communists from the north keep attacking across the 200-mile front and are turned back by South Korean troops equipped and trained by the Americans.

We have just pulled back from a frontline trench on the mountainside from which we observed the activities in a Communist observation post across a 200-yard ravine.

To reach this point we travelled along 20-miles of the most troublesome sector on the mountainous borderline. From here we could get the closest view of the enemy. The Communist and south Korean trench lines here approach each other most closely.

We found American-trained and equipped south Korean troops in continuous patrol on full alert, and hand grenades.

The American position in this explosive situation would seem the most vulnerable in the far east. There are thousands of American troops in areas less than 50 miles to the south. It is hard to see how they could obey orders not to become involved if the Communists brought the war to them.

Our party in clued myself; United Press Correspondent Gerald Noyzick; Charles Wilson (Willie) Dewing, press representative of the Korean Republic, and William Surh, Korean engineer and newspaper owner.

We left Seoul before dawn for a 140-mile jeep trip over rock-strewn roads to view this border area, where full scale battles recently developed.

Interim raiding between the battles averages at least a few lives every day.

We arrived at the banks of the broad in Jim river at the first daylight, stopping behind an American reconnaissance unit, composed of a radio transmitting truck and a repair jeep under Sgt. Stephan Kunstek, Pottsville, Pa.

Our joint forces were loaded on a primitive ferry propelled by three boatmen manipulating a stern oar. The boatmen told us they had heard shooting during the night at a village above the north bank.

Beyond this village we were overtaken by a south Korean armed patrol in a jeep. They told us they were searching for a Communist raiding party which had penetrated to the river crossing during the night.

This would be the deepest southward thrust ever accomplished by the Communist. The river crossing is 25-miles south of Kaesong, which was our first frontier objective.

The sign ordered every car to stop before going on toward north Korea. Our passes were sufficient, so we proceeded to Kaesong, a border city of 60,000.

Last week, on the hilly outskirts of this city, south Korean forces gave battle to an invading Communist force of 1,000 men. Kaesong is one and one half miles south of the 38th parallel.

The line runs across the tip of 6,000-foot pine mountain directly north of here. We found fully-armed troops everywhere in the town.

One howitzer crew was "zeroing in" on a steel-towered airplane beacon built exactly on the parallel during the Japanese occupation.

The preconception of the parallel as a straight line of demarcation is erroneous. The frontier zigzags according to the topography and seems to be wherever the opposing forces say it is.

There are wooden markers on the parallel, but south Korean troops usually stay 1,000 yards south of the line. Communist patrols appear to be crowding the line continuously.

Twenty miles west of Kaesong we joined another armed American reconnaissance patrol. We left our vehicles in front of a sandbagged military post and spread out, with two flanking scouts, to move ahead on foot.

We started climbing a draw through the foothills to the north, about 1,000 yards up we crossed through a cluster of stone farm buildings. Beyond was a mountain orchard in early blossom.

The biggest questionmark is the position of the remaining American troops in Korea in event such an international tidal wave rolled south across the parallel — to retreat or fight. Much could depend upon that answer.

Dangers — Clear and Present

The refusal of the atomic energy commission to grant study fellowships to avowed Communist students will now bring another argument to the panels debating academic freedom.

This is especially true when one considers the government's projected aids to education. The logical question is — will the federal government set up an investigating commission similar to Washington state's Canwell committee when federal aid begins to increase greatly?

In a recent issue of Saturday Review of Literature, Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. writes on the subject of academic freedom — viewing the matter with a somewhat legalistic and a somewhat idealistic eye.

His argument is, briefly, that communism should not be acted against unless it presents a "clear and present danger" to our nation and its institutions. This terminology is the basis for determining disloyalty in court, and represents in many respects a cool and unemotional study of political thought as opposed to planned conquest.

Schlesinger points out that the counsel for the University of Washington, with the approval of the administration, dropped all the charges against the three accused teachers other than that the respondents were members of the Communist party, USA.

This, he feels, was a bad move in the light of his own concept of "clear and present danger." About people in this position he says: "They are far more powerful in martyrdom than they were in freedom . . ."

Schlesinger continues . . . "If the existence of three party-line teachers on the University of Washington campus did, indeed, create a grave threat to the intellectual chastity of the undergraduates, it would be a devastating commentary on the effectiveness of the 700 non-Communist members of the faculty, not to mention the strength of the democratic idea itself . . ."

On the same plane of argument one is confronted with the situation where we are forced to deny citizens certain rights if they use those rights to further an ultimate extinction of certain rights.

That is a fine plane on which to argue. It is sensible to attempt to judge guilt on a basis of "clear and present danger."

But when the intelligent argument is confronted with action it often falls apart under emotional pressures. As was the case after World War I, we are undergoing a "Red-scare."

This point is very important in considering Schlesinger's statement that we must . . . "preserve the right to free discussion." This includes the right to hold loathsome ideas and it includes the right to expose and denounce those who hold such ideas, he says.

It is pretty doubtful that these ideas can be denounced sanely and intelligently. Just as it is hard for Russians to call a man a capitalist and not get high blood pressure, it is hard for Americans to call anyone a Communist and not have an emotional fit.

So if the answer is to set up boards of inquiry, our only hope is that such boards will establish themselves on a cold and legal basis, perhaps even such as Schlesinger suggests; and that the historical emotionalism will not guide their actions.

There is not much indication yet that the federal government will actually tie non-Communist strings to aid to education; in fact these aid agencies protest that they don't want to dictate in any way.

National sanity, as well as vigilance, is the price of freedom.

The committee is investigating the appointment of Freistadt to a $1,600 fellowship for the study of nuclear physics — particularly in the light of his ready admission that he is a Communist.

Asked if he had ever heard anyone at a Communist meeting advocate the overthrow of the U.S. government by violence, he said,

"No. If anyone had made such a suggestion, I would move that he be expelled."

The young Communist drew raised eyebrows from several of the congressmen when he contended that the Communist constitution provides the "Ex-pulsion of any member engaging in espionage."

He said frankly he is anxious to continue his studies as a physicist "and some of my free time attempting to convince my friends and fellow students of the correctness of my political views."

One feels like pointing out to the GOP that there is also going to be a Republican problem. For if the Republicans block housing, they're not going to win-i-in. No, they're not. They're going to lo-o-o-e in the next election. Oh, yes, they will.

WHERE WERE WE? Oh, yes, we were talking about the Russian problem, and about the way our attempted solutions breed more problems. Let's trace out another line: You pick up last Monday's New York Times survey of business conditions around the country, and you see that among the rather few immediately encouraging trade factors, our aid-to-Europe program and our arms program stand rather high.

But that gives us a budget problem. See the representatives worrying, see the senators walking in circles? They now have to solve a budget problem. And how are they to do that?

EASY, SAYS Mr. Truman; we'll raise taxes by 4 billions. But that gives us a tax problem.

Raise taxes now, say businessmen, angrily, and we won't be responsible for the outcome.

All right, then we have to cut expenditures. Where'll we cut? Why, we have it, says the house Republican leadership, we'll postpone public housing! After all, if you don't have the money, we have to do without. We'll fight the administration's housing program, and try to balance the budget.

AND HERE the thing gets really thick and complicated, because what it means is that although we haven't yet solved the Russian problem, the problem is becoming the solution, for some of us. We begin to need the problem; we begin to search for answers in our difficulties, though of course, we don't find nearly as many of those as we do difficulties in our answers.

BUT THAT gives us a housing problem. How did we get way over here, when we started way over there? There must be a pattern underlying all this, somehow.

And if we don't build houses, we'll have a morale problem. People don't have good houses in which to live, they get discontented, and then they listen to Communist propaganda.

I admit it sounds silly to say that the largest anti-Communist budget in the history of human deficits can lead straight to increased opportunities for Communist propaganda, but, blast it, there's the chain of reasoning.

BREAK IT down if you can. I didn't invent it; it's in the situation.

Two to Attend 2nd Congress At U. of Illinois

Two delegates from the Student Council will represent SUI at the second national student congress at the University of Illinois Aug. 24 to Sept. 3. Student Council President Dick Dice said yesterday.

Sue Gronna, A3, Minot, N.D., and Dice will be the council's representatives.

Delegates from 1,600 colleges will attend.

U.S. Vice-President Alben W. Barkley and Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois promised they would address the congress if their schedules permit, Dice said.

The conference will be divided into four general fields — student life and student government, educational problems, international affairs and administration, finance and public relations.

Any SUI organization or individual student wishing to fill the five remaining places for delegates may do so by contacting Dale Bingham at X3185 before Monday noon, Dice said. If unable to contact Bingham they may call either Dice at 3976 or Joan Tripp at 3173, he said.

Famous Sculptor, Jacques Lipchitz, Addresses Artists

Jacques Lipchitz, internationally famous sculptor, yesterday told of his experiences as an artist before art teachers and students at an informal meeting in the Art building sculpture studio.

Lipchitz is one of three judges who will recommend 10 purchase prizes from the June sculptor show. Other judges are Lester D. Langman, director of the art department, and Robert Laurent, teacher of sculpture at the University of Indiana.

Langman described Lipchitz as "one of the few sculptors who sell enough to live on." Living in France most of his life, Lipchitz came to America in 1941.

Man Locked in Car To Visit City

A young man from Ashland, Ore., who has been locked in his car for three months, will be in Iowa City Monday on his tour through the United States.

Dave Hayes made a $25,000 bet with an Oregon rancher that he would stay locked in his car for 14 months. Last Feb. 19 Hayes climbed into the car and it was then welded shut, and the windows barred.

Hayes' car is not without comfort. It is equipped with a chemical toilet, collapsible bed, card table, typewriter, hot and cold water, and a two-way radio. It also has a hole in the floor, so Hayes can stand upright and get a little exercise.

Hayes and his unique 1948 Kaiser will at Eden Motors, 629 S. Riverside drive between 10 am and 1 p.m. Monday.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A series of tornadoes slashed victoriously across the sparsely-settled Oklahoma panhandle and southwestern Kansas late yesterday.

There were no immediate reports of dead or injured.

At least four of the black twisters struck the ground, causing considerable property damage. At least seven other tornado funnels were sighted but they did not hit the ground.

The heaviest damage was at Gage, Okla., where a twister demolished four planes, a hangar and an administration building at the CAA field.

Another tornado hit the village of Balko, Okla., and swirled on to rip up barns on the edge of nearby Beaver, a wheat center of 2,500 population.

About 36 miles southeast of Garden City, Kans., a twister damaged buildings on six farms. Further north, in west central Kansas, a fourth tornado started 15 miles southwest of Scott City and roared northeastward about 50 miles, damaging buildings on at least 11 farms.

20 Years of Study--Gets All 'A's

To Receive Ph.D. From Columbia U.

By CARL BURNS

Against what might have been great odds to many people, Mrs. Joel Branham, 35, wife of an SUI English instructor, is on the verge of a rare achievement in the field of education—completion of over 20 years of study without a grade below an "A".

Climax of her achievement will be in June when she receives her Ph.D. from Columbia university in New York. She left for New York this morning to make arrangements for publication of her Ph.D. dissertation on "Medieval Skepticism and its Relation to Chaucer."

A tiny, genial person, Mrs. Branham has been paralyzed from the waist down since the age of seven when she had polio, but through her work and her boundless zest for living she has turned a near tragedy into a seemingly small handicap.

"It hasn't been too bad," she said, smiling. "I've always done all my housework and shopping from my wheel chair, and have travelled alone many times. People have always been wonderful to me, especially in New York, in spite of its legendary unfriendliness," she said.

Mrs. Branham credited much of her success to the aid she received from the William Volker scholarships. She was aided by the Volker scholarships through all her study at the University of Kansas City and two of her years at Columbia.

While attending the University of Kansas City, she helped finance her way by working as assistant editor of Hy-Lites and News Flashes, two trade magazines published in Chicago.

She also ground out "over a hundred" short stories during these years and wrote continuity for a News Flashes comic strip.

She matriculated at Columbia University in the fall of 1941 after receiving her masters from the

In all her studies she has never received anything but an "A" grade. She has been handicapped by paralysis of her legs since the age of seven.

University of Kansas City in the spring of that year.

In New York she continued her writing, mostly in the ghost writing field. She wrote speeches for women club presidents, book reviews for members of women book clubs who were too busy to read books, and once did a week's columns for a syndicated New York columnist.

At Columbia she met Joel Branham, also an English student there. He received his masters degree from Columbia in the spring of 1947, came to SUI that fall, and returned to New York where they were married in the Columbia university chapel, Dec. 23, 1947.

After she received her Ph.D., Mrs. Branham hopes to get back to free lance writing to earn some money for what she said is "the only thing I've always wanted to do" — buy a car and learn to drive.
