Jury Indicts Harry Bridges On 2 Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Bridges, head of CIO longshoremen, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday.

The indictment accused him of conspiracy to obstruct and defeat the naturalization laws, and of perjury.

Two other men were indicted with the left-wing longshore leader. They were Henry Schmidt and J.R. Robertson, both officials of the union. Bail was set at $5,000 each.

The three were charged in one count with conspiracy to defraud the United States by obstructing and defeating the proper administration of the naturalization laws between June and October, 1945.

Perjury
A second count charged Bridges with perjury. It accused him, on Sept. 17, 1945, at his naturalization hearing, of swearing falsely that he was not a member of the Communist party.

A third count charged Schmidt and Robertson with perjury, alleging that they, as witnesses in the hearing, swore falsely, knowing it to be false, that Bridges was not a member of the Communist party.

Schmidt is a member of the longshore coast labor relations committee. Robertson is first vice-president of the international longshoremen workers union.

An official ILWU statement last night said "the administration had ordered the indictment of Bridges, adding:

"Mr. Bridges had been a severe critic of the failure of the administration to deliver its election promises, being particularly critical at the recent meeting of the national CIO executive board."

Bridges underwent a deportation hearing in 1939. After this two-month session the hearing officer, Dean James M. Landis of the Harvard law school, ruled that the evidence had failed to establish that Bridges was, at that time, a member of or affiliated with the Communist party.

Second Hearing
A second hearing was held in 1941 before Judge Charles B. Sears of New York. Sears recommended that Bridges be deported on the ground he "has been affiliated" with Communists. However, the U.S. supreme court in a 5-3 decision held there was no evidence to support this.

Yesterday's indictment hinged on Bridges' naturalization proceedings in 1945. In obtaining naturalization, candidates swear they do not belong and never have belonged to any organization seeking the forcible overthrow of the government.

A person proved to have sworn falsely can have his citizenship cancelled and be deported. Bridges is a native of Australia.

Nationalists Fighting To Protect Retreat

SHANGHAI (THURSDAY) (AP)—Shanghai's Communist conquerors fought yesterday for Soochow creek bridges covering the last Nationalist escape route from the city. They ran into stubborn hold-out pockets.

A small Nationalist rear guard still held the bridges. The Roily creek separates the heart of the city from the northern district and Woosung, the lone government escape port 10 miles north.

This little band of Nationalists, aided by snipers in nearby buildings, was making a determined delaying action to cover the northward retreat of the government garrison.

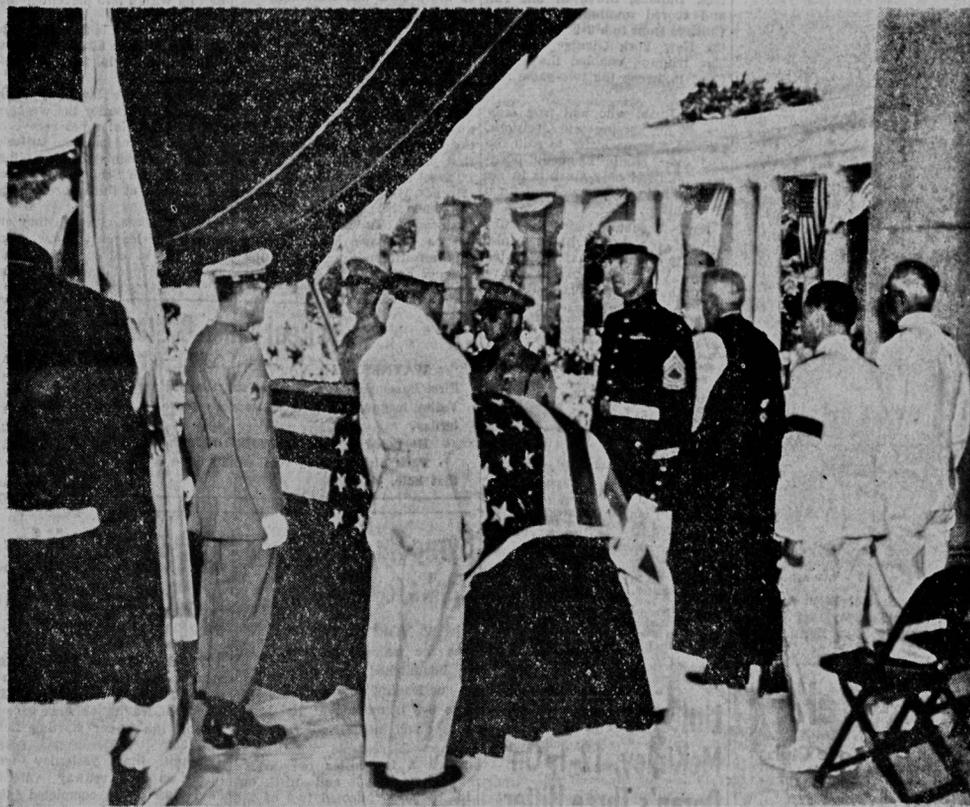

All through the first night of Communist rule over the world's fourth largest city, Communist guns had pounded Woosung and the Nationalist escape routes down the Whangpoo river to the sea.

The whole northern horizon was alive with flame. The beaten Nationalists apparently were blowing up fuel, bomb and ammunition dumps as they pulled out.

Saturday Is Poppy Day, Mayor Says

Mayor Preston Koser yesterday proclaimed Saturday as Poppy Day and asked Iowa Citizens to buy the flowers in honor of war dead. Purchases will also assist sick or injured veterans, he said.

During Poppy Day, American Legion auxiliary members will sell poppies on the streets. Every person who buys a flower helps hospitalized war veterans, the mayor said.

Lilienthal Flares Back at Critics

Funeral, Interment Bring End to Story Of James Forrestal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A great state funeral and burial in the national military cemetery yesterday ended the tragic story of James Forrestal.

Gathered in the amphitheater at Arlington to pay last tribute were President Truman and his official family, the nation's military commanders and friends of the former financier who became the country's first secretary of defense.

Morning Breeze
In a bronze casket, with a cool morning breeze ruffling the edges of a flag draped over it, lay the 57-year old "little gray man" who, his mind crushed by overwhelming burdens, killed himself last Sunday in a leap from a high window of Bethesda, Md., naval hospital.

The Right Reverend Wallace E. Conkling, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago and an old friend of the Forrestal family, read the services.

He asked the Lord to grant this man peace.

Caisson
A gun caisson, drawn by six grey horses, carried Forrestal the last half-mile up the hill from the cemetery gate to the amphitheater.

A saluting battery, concealed in a little valley, counted off the minutes as the cortege climbed to the funeral place—19 guns thudding distantly in the clear morning air.

The casket was borne onto the stage of the amphitheater, placed above the banked mass of floors at the platform's foot. At the center was the navy emblem, done in roses and carnations, for the man who was secretary of navy before he was chief of all the armed forces.

To the Grave
When the government had finished with its formal tribute, the caisson took the casket again, bearing it back down the hill to a spot in a grove of oaks where the grave stood ready.

There the family—Mrs. Forrestal, the sons Peter and Michael, the brother Henry, a few intimate friends—bade their farewell. The bishop read the burial commitment.

A marine squad fired the volley. A marine corps bugler sounded taps. And from a distance came the haunting, sorrowing notes of the "echo taps," played by another bugler out of sight beyond a knoll.

Asks Full Report on Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the atomic energy commission flared back at congressional criticism yesterday and demanded a quick verdict on what he called charges that the atomic program is "virtually a failure."

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.) of the senate-house atomic energy committee promptly announced that public hearings into the charges will start this morning.

None of Lilienthal's critics, in either the senate or house, has charged that the AEC program is "a failure" — in those words. But Lilienthal, obviously stung by what he termed "broad and grave charges" levelled against his stewardship, sent off a bitter letter to McMahon in which he declared:

"A full, complete and speedy report on the charges that the United States atomic energy program is virtually a failure is a matter urgently necessary.

"The charges by Senator Hickenlooper of 'incredible mismanagement, 'misplaced emphasis' and 'maladministration' involve nothing less than the security of this nation and the peace of the world."

But Lilienthal hastened to say that in his own opinion, far from being a failure, the record of atomic development is "a proud one." Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), former chairman of the joint atomic committee, demanded last weekend that President Truman fire Lilienthal on grounds of "gross" mismanagement. Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) has also suggested that Lilienthal resign.

Then yesterday Democratic Chairman McCarran (Nev.) of the senate judiciary committee joined in calling for the AEC chairman's ouster.

But Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) pleaded against haste or snap judgment in rating Lilienthal's administration of the atomic program.

"I am certainly not going to join in indicting him before getting all the facts in the case," Kefauver said.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A rabbit family sent the tenth airforce into temporary retreat on Schoen field yesterday.

In the midst of plane traffic on a taxi strip, the nest of Papa and Mama rabbit and their offspring was discovered by Staff Sgt. Robert Brisso, a flight line mechanic of Norfolk, Neb.

It didn't look good for the rabbits until Sgt. Brisso got permission to post a red flag. Now the planes that come to the tenth's headquarters at Fort Benjamin Harrison take a slight detour.

Ford Working on Counter Proposal

DETROIT (AP)—Negotiations in the 20-day Ford strike were recessed late yesterday to give management a chance to prepare a counter arbitration proposal, a union spokesman reported.

The Ford Motor company and CIO united auto workers representatives agreed to meet again this afternoon.

After two hours of bargaining yesterday, "definite progress" in settlement of the dispute was reported by Arthur C. Viat, regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation service.

Viat was optimistic as he emerged from the conference room.

Surgeons Remove Eye Of Victor Reuther; Ask Aid from FBI

DETROIT (AP)—Surgeons yesterday removed the right eye of Victor Reuther, 37-year-old CIO united auto workers official and brother of UAW President Walter Reuther, who was shot and seriously wounded Tuesday by an unknown assailant.

Reuther's general condition was reported as "satisfactory" at Henry Ford hospital following the operation. Dr. James Olson said he had "abandoned hope of saving the eye" because a great deal of tissue was destroyed.

Meantime, FBI intervention to solve the attempted slaying of Victor and Walter Reuther was asked by CIO President Philip Murray. Walter is a victim of a would-be assassin under similar circumstances a year ago.

Murray asked Attorney General Tom Clark to act. Following his request, CIO General Counsel Arthur Goldberg and Joseph Rauh, a UAW attorney, visited Clark and reported afterwards the attorney general took the matter "under consideration."

U. S. Is Firm On Russ Reparations

Acheson Says No Surplus In West Germany

PARIS (AP)—The United States told Russia last night she could not expect any reparations at the present time if there was a merger of eastern and western Germany.

Britain said she would not agree to any proposal which took from the Germans the powers of self-government conferred by the three western powers.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky stood firm on his proposals to unify Germany by reviving the four-power allied control council. He said suggestions to extend the Bonn constitution to the eastern zone was a western attempt to take all Germany.

Basic Agreements
Last night U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman laid down what the basic agreements must be before there is any agreement on the machinery for governing Germany.

Acheson devoted his answer largely to the economic side.

He said there was no possibility of achieving unity of Germany until there was more light on the economic conditions of east Germany.

"What has been done in the Soviet zone?" he asked. "Information has been called for that was never provided."

He said the western powers, especially the United States, had poured millions of dollars into Germany to avert starvation and aid economic recovery and that west Germany still had a deficit economy.

No Surplus
"This means there is no surplus in German economy as far as the west is concerned," he said. "There is no surplus for reparations. There is nothing that can be skimmed over without destroying much that has to be accomplished."

He then reviewed reports that the Russians had seized ownership of vast east Germany factory combines and put them to producing for Russia. He said some industries had been taken over 100 percent by the Russians.

He declared the west must see an accurate record of what these seizures had done to the German economy in the event of any merger of east and west Germany.

He had locked Miss Gendron in a telephone booth.

Mystery Is Found In Spring Cleaning
HARTLAND, WIS. (AP)—Spring housecleaning at the Erick Anderson home near here normally means just turning out a lot of hard work.

This year it turned up a mystery. A suspicious-looking hole in the bedroom ceiling led to investigation, and a similar one was found in an exterior wall. Anderson said it's a bullet hole, all right, but no one knows how or when the shot was fired. And he says they can't find the bullet, either.

Whitey's Courage Drained Away

NEW YORK (AP)—He howled his head off when the suction of the water going out of the bathtub pulled his leg into the drain pipe and caught it there.

The rest of the family and neighbors couldn't pull him free. Six members of a police emergency squad took over. They cut the drain pipe, turned the bathtub upside down and pulled.

Out came the leg of Whitey, a small Spitz dog belonging to 13-year-old Richard Marino. By the way of thanks, Whitey shook himself and showered water over the assemblage.

Hattman Landlady in Final State Testimony

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—The late Byron C. Hattman's landlady yesterday gave testimony in support of the state's contention that Dr. Robert C. Rutledge Jr., hounded the man he is accused of slaying.

This testimony came as the state neared the end of its rebuttal and announced it would rest its case today. The jury was expected to begin deliberations probably Friday night after defense rebuttal testimony, final summations, and instructions from District Judge J.E. Heiserman. This is the fourth week of the murder trial.

Soviets Immobilize Berlin Rail Traffic; 38 Trains Stopped
BERLIN (THURSDAY) (AP)—Russia suddenly clamped a virtual railroad blockade on Berlin last night by withdrawing crews from key switching points and paralyzing rail traffic to the west.

By early today 38 trains including two American army passenger and mail trains and one British train en route to the capital were immobilized.

In a second move the Russians resumed plane maneuvers dangerously close to the Allied air lines.

Striking Berlin railroad men offered to man the switches so allied traffic could move, but the Russians turned down the offer.

It was believed the Russians pulled switch crews from their jobs in retaliation for the action of the western Allies Tuesday in ordering Soviet-zone police and troops from stations of the strike-bound Berlin elevated railroad.

Overheard Call
She said that on the last of the calls she heard Hattman say in effect:

"Don't call our house any more. If you want any information call my lawyer."

Hattman's attorney told the jury Tuesday a man who said he was Rutledge called him Aug. 20. He said "Rutledge" told him Hattman had been forcibly intimate with his wife July 31 and asked $250 for an operation for her. He said "Rutledge" withdrew the request a day later.

The 28-year-old St. Louis children's specialist is accused of fatally knifing Hattman in a Cedar Rapids hotel room fight last Dec. 14. The state claims Rutledge tried to extort money from the young engineer. The defense contends Rutledge was trying to "pay Hattman off and get him out of their lives."

Convicted
The defense cross-examined Mrs. Steinke closely. She said that after hearing Rutledge testify at the trial she was convinced from his voice and manner that he was the one who called Hattman.

Rutledge had testified he called Hattman at home only once. He said this was the day after Mrs. Rutledge on Aug. 11 confessed her affair with Hattman.

The defense failed to shake Mrs. Steinke's assertion that she was sure it was Rutledge who had telephoned Hattman several times.

Earlier the jury heard two more Emerson plant associates of Hattman and Mrs. Rutledge testify for the state.

Juanita Lewis, 27, and Ray Strother, both of St. Louis, said the defendant's tall blond wife was attentive to Hattman after last July 31.

Cubs Defeat Giants, 3-2 Behind Rush

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Edwards, recently acquired from the Cleveland Indians, drove in one run and scored another to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the New York Giants yesterday. The triumph enabled the lowly Cubs to sweep the two-game series.

Bob Rush, who had won only one of his six previous decisions, pitched a seven hitter to gain the nod over Monte Kennedy. Kennedy allowed only six hits in six innings before he bowed out for a pinch-hitter.

Emil Verban opened the Cubs half of the fifth with a triple. With two out, Edwards doubled to send Verban in with what proved to be the winning run.

Iowa Faces Weakest Hitters

By NEAL BLACK (Iowan Sports Editor)
The Iowa baseball team will not only be meeting the last place Big Ten club in team standings but the weakest hitting club in the circuit when Northwestern comes to town for the final series of the season this weekend.

The Hawkeyes will be shooting for their first conference title since 1939 or their first tie since 1942, when they shared the crown with Michigan. It will take two Iowa victories over the Wildcats this weekend, two losses by Purdue and a loss by Indiana to put the Hawkeyes into undisputed first place.

Iowa's ace southpaw, Jack Bruner, who was injured slightly when hit by a batted ball in practice Tuesday is expected to be in shape to go for his sixth conference victory in the opener Friday.

Currently leading the league's hurlers, Bruner took treatments for a bruised ankle yesterday as the Hawkeyes prepared for this last must series.

According to statistics released yesterday by the Western conference, Iowa is second in team batting with a .275 percentage behind Ohio State.

Northwestern is the only club in the league hitting at less than a .200 clip. The Wildcat figure is .183.

The rest of the Hawkeyes should be in good shape for the weekend series. Keith Kafer has recovered from an injured back he suffered in the Wisconsin series and either he or George Schamberger will get the nod at third base for the Hawkeyes.

The Wildcats, although they are trailing the league with two wins and eight losses, could be tough. They've dropped three games by WAYNESBORO, VA. (AP)—The record book didn't cover it, but First Baseman P.I. Griggs, of the Waynesboro Generals, Class D Valley league, felt he ought to get some kind of distinction yesterday.

He poled a home run THROUGH the right field fence. Park officials said they would have to do something about that hole.

Baseball is an unpredictable game anywhere it's played and, although good crowds have turned out for most of the Iowa games, 4,000 or 5,000 fans could be squeezed into the bleachers without too much trouble and the support they could give the Hawks would certainly help push them into that conference lead.

Hawkeye Bob Smith has moved into the top spot in conference hitting with a .500 percentage. Smith has gone four for eight while appearing in five conference games. Five other Hawkeyes are hitting .300 or better. Murland Moran has a .343 average with 12 hits in 35 at bats. John Tedore is hitting .333 and Jack Dittmer, helped by a four for seven Minnesota series, is batting at a .325 clip. Ed Browne and Bruner have .300 averages.

Kafer and Pinky Primrose are hitting .286 and Dale Erickson is meeting the ball at a .250 pace.

In team fielding the Hawkeyes are third with a .954 percentage on 18 errors in 10 games. Dittmer has played perfect ball at second to spark an infield which is one of the best in the league.

Byrne Hurls, Hits Yanks to 6-2 Win

NEW YORK —Tommy Byrne was the whole works yesterday as he pitched and batted the league leading New York Yankees to a 6-2 triumph over Hal Newhouser and the Detroit Tigers.

The 29-year-old lefthander hurled a five-hitter over the slumping Bengals and struck out 12. He also collected two of the Yankees' 15 hits, both of them doubles, and drove in four runs.

It was Byrne's third straight win, without a loss this season.

Chaperone 25 Years

'Grandmother' of 400 Recalls Old Days at SUI, Strict Hours for Women, Dancing Rules

By JEAN McFADDEN

Did you ever wonder what SUI campus life was like when your parents were worrying over their own grades?

Ada Culver, 309 S. Linn street, retired housemother of Alpha Xi Delta, can remember when full skirts and fly-away collars were in style—for the first time.

Back in 1915, when Miss Culver first took on the job of housemother to the 15 Alpha Xi Delta women on campus at that time, there were "a lot of silly regulations."

The women had to be in at 10 p.m. promptly, Miss Culver explained, while special dances on Friday or Saturday nights had to be over by 12 p.m. or 12:30 a.m. at the latest.

Dancing was absolutely prohibited on Sundays, she remembers. Miss Culver, whose bright black ty, Miss Culver first accepted the position as housemother when the women of Alpha Xi Delta were left without a chaperone and had to find one immediately or leave their house.

Miss Culver first refused their plea, but later accepted the job "temporarily" for "two weeks" until the girls could find another chaperone. At that time a woman in charge of a fraternity was a housemother; in sororities, she was called a chaperone.

Miss Culver found lots to do at the house. She liked the girls and the "two weeks" lasted until, after 25 years of service, illness forced her retirement in 1940.

One of her most treasured possessions is an Alpha Xi Delta sorority pin which the girls gave her when they initiated her into the sorority on her 20th anniversary as housemother.

Her girls have not forgotten Miss Culver. They remember her affectionately with letters and cards.

"Every Christmas I get so many cards — over a hundred," she remarked.

Some of the girls have named their children after Miss Culver. "Do you know, I have over 400 grandchildren and even some great grandchildren," Miss Culver proudly announced.

A big scrapbook full of pictures of her "grandchildren" is another of Miss Culver's prized possessions. In it she has placed all of the pictures of her girls' children. Before she retired, Miss Culver started two women's clubs which still meet regularly. One is the Alpha Xi Delta Mother's club for mothers of the women in the sorority and the other is the Chaperones club for housemothers of the sororities and fraternities on campus.

Miss Culver enjoys reminiscing about her experience as housemother and especially about all of the "lovely" girls she got to know.

"It's fun living with young girls," she remarked. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

The housemother, familiar with the ways of young people, knew what to expect. Sure enough, she stepped to the door and "there were all of my girls dancing their heads off."

Although Miss Culver didn't personally disapprove, she "marched all of the girls right back home."

Smoking was another taboo for sorority women in those days, the slender white-haired housemother remembers. Even the girls' dates had to put out their cigarettes before entering a sorority house, she said.

A lifelong resident of Iowa City, Miss Culver is now 75 years old.

New Issue of MS, Student Magazine, Comes Out Today

The new issue of MS, freshman literary magazine written by students taking Communications Skills, will be out today, Instructor John Ford said yesterday.

MS is published once each semester and is written entirely by students. An editorial committee of Communications Skills instructors sets in an advisory capacity only, Ford said.

The latest edition has 24 pages, about 10 more than December's issue. New additions are brief editorial notes about each contributor and illustrations.

MS contains short stories often reflecting personal views of the writers.

The magazine began as a bi-monthly page in The Daily Iowan in 1944. It became a four-page pamphlet in 1945, and then suspended publication during 1946. Last year interest in it revived, and it was presented in its current form to the student body.

The magazine is distributed to Communications Skills students to criticize and discuss in class. Ford described it as a "motivational device."

Of 177 universities recently surveyed, only three publish freshman magazines, Ford said.

Panacea Production Comes Out in Black, Profit Goes in Fund

In conjunction with the opening of the 1950 Panacea script contest Sunday, Joyce Bahr, 1948-49 chairman, yesterday said this year's musical comedy was the first to be a self-sustaining production.

A small profit was realized from the show "Olympic '49" primarily through the help of a student volunteer orchestra, she said. The preceding productions had used professional orchestras and had to be partially supported by the sponsoring organizations, she added.

This year's profit, small because of the moderately-priced tickets, will go into a fund to support next year's show, Miss Bahr said.

A policy set by this year's committee states that future profits will be divided, 60 percent to a revolving fund, while 40 percent may be used to benefit student activities, she said.

The Panacea contest is open to any student who wishes to submit a musical comedy script based on any subject. The winning script, which must not exceed two hours in length, will receive a cash award.

It's Bridle Month, Too Girl to Teach Horsemanship

BY BARBARA BLOXOM

June may be the month for bride and groom, but it's also a time for groom and bride — at least to Margaret Baker, A1, Evanston, Ill.

Margaret has been chosen to teach horsemanship at the Northwestern riding academy at Morton Groves, Ill. Her pupils will be members of the Summer Saddle club, some of whom are as young as six years old.

Students at the academy are taught by the instructor's club, an all-girl staff directed by Edward Hilliard, a well-known horseman among Chicago equestrians.

These assistant instructors are people Hilliard considers to be "advanced riders." Their job is to conduct the members on riding trails. One leader rides at the head of the group and another at the rear.

Besides just seeing that everything goes smoothly, Margaret will also help enforce safety regulations on the trail. One of the rules states that each pair of riders must be a "horse's length apart" from the next pair to avoid kicking.

Atmosphere at the academy is especially stimulating to riders when famous horsemen visit its grounds, Margaret said. Paul Sternholm, former Olympic rider, lectures at the academy and shows off his current "pupil." It takes Sternholm six years to train a horse to be what Margaret terms "completely schooled."

Margaret is not a born lover of horses, but now she wouldn't trade riding for anything in the world.

"Riding is more than a sport," she declares. "It's a science. It takes extremely accurate coordination and thinking. If you are playing tennis, it's all up to you — but in riding, it's both you and the horse."

Margaret's first-riding experience came when she was attending a camp when she was six. She had to take horseback riding and was "scared to death."

In high school, she consistently begged off when friends wanted to go riding. Finally she joined the high school Saddle club with some of her classmates, and fear gave way to pleasure.

After graduation, Margaret joined the academy newly-organized Summer Saddle club where she learned jumping and other fine points of horsemanship. Riding then surpassed tennis, bowling, and swimming on her list of favorite sports.

Although she plans to major in political science, Margaret feels that the summer job will have lasting values in terms of developing leadership, working with children, and having a chance to improve her riding ability.

List First Courses For Social Work

SUI's new school of social work will offer courses for the first time during the summer session, according to Prof. Wayne Vasey, director of the school.

Three courses totaling eight semester hours will be offered beginning June 15. A full 15-hour graduate curriculum will be offered next fall.

Vasey will teach courses in social security and public welfare organization during the summer session. Prof. Robert H. Talbert of the department of sociology will teach "methods of social research."

American Students

He said quite a few American students have taken part in the club's program this year. But he

Club Works to Bring 'World' to the Campus

BY SHUREI HIROZAWA

A Burma boy once thought Kipling's poem, "The Road to Mandalay," would read much better if it went "Get ye out, ye British soldiers, Get ye out from Burma's shore."

Today that same boy is leader of 170 International club members at SUI with ideas that are quite different from those of his youth in the land of pagodas.

Charles Kin, E4, Rangoon, Burma, has led the International club through another successful year after taking over its presidency from Michael Flach, G, Prague, Czechoslovakia, last fall.

A firm believer in international cooperation, he said he realized for the first time that all people were "human" after he left his native land and came in contact with different peoples in his travels.

The International club is the best place he knows to conduct experiments in international understanding, he said. "We are trying to bring the world to the campus," Kin added.

Kin's biggest ambition this year has been to get not only foreign students, but American students, to participate in the club's program.

"The foreign student comes to this country primarily for a degree, but to go home without having mixed with the American people is wasteful."

"There is less chance for bringing about international understanding if he goes home without making an attempt to understand American ways where there is plenty of opportunity," Kin explained.

American Students He said quite a few American students have taken part in the club's program this year. But he

Porter Likes 'Little Hoover' Commission

Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the SUI political science department, yesterday endorsed the Iowa "Little Hoover" commission and declared it "free of political partisanship."

Porter, who is preparing a paper of the "Little Hoover" commission for the November issue of the Iowa Law Review, said that in spite of possible "drastic proposals for merging governmental agencies and increasing the power of the governor by the commission, the legislation is for the good of Iowa and not for any political party."

The "Little Hoover," or more technically, the governmental reorganization commission, is based on the investigation of the federal governmental structure by former President Herbert Hoover. The Iowa "Little Hoover" commission was established by the last session of the Iowa legislature.

The legislators appropriated $30,000 for the investigation of Iowa governmental structure by a committee of nine, three from the senate, three from the house, and three to be appointed by the governor.

Porter explained that "it would be presumptuous" to say exactly what the functions of the "Little Hoover" commission will be in Iowa. He suggested that the commission "might" recommend mergers of overlapping governmental agencies, increasing the efficiency of other governmental agencies by coordinating their activities, and in general, a reduction of governmental expenditures.

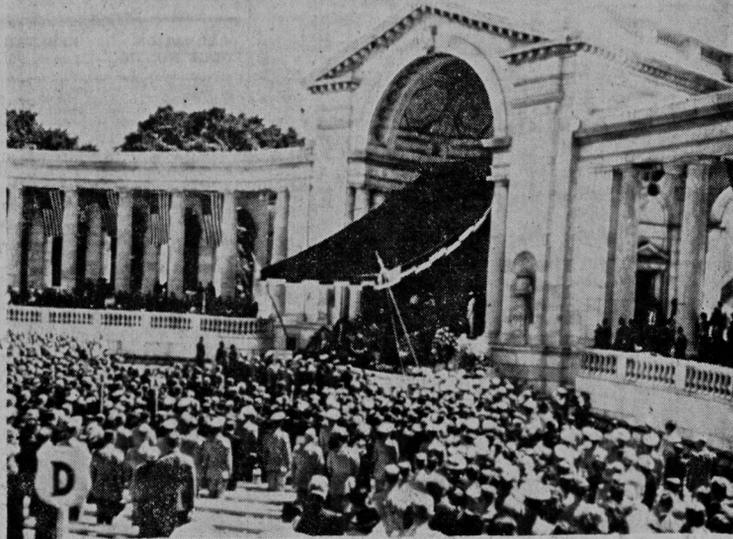

"The taxpayers of the state," Porter said, "will stand to benefit from the recommendations of the commission" in the form of more careful spending of governmental funds.

"But it should be made clear," the SUI political scientist said, "that the appointment of the commission and my endorsement of it does not imply incompetence of any state agencies."

The state of Iowa at present employs about 24,000 people who are paid a total wage of about $32-million from state, federal and local funds. Porter estimates that in Iowa there are between 60 and 65 governmental agencies.

The commission, Porter explained, can only make recommendations which will be presented to the next general legislature in 1951. Gov. William Beardley does not stand to benefit in a political way this term if the commission recommends greater power for the governor, Porter said.

Water Flows into New City Swimming Pool

Water flowed into the new City park swimming pool for the first time yesterday from several inlets along the sides of the pool.

The water ran into the pool by gravity since the pumps which will be used later on are not yet in operation, according to M.D. McCreedy, general contractor for the pool.

McCreedy said the capacity of the new pool will be 721,000 gallons and several days will be required to fill it. The pool will be filled but once during the entire summer but the water will be changed constantly by a steady flow of water in and out of the pool.

J. Edgar Frame, community recreation director, said no official opening date for the pool had been determined. He said considerably more cleaning up must be done around the pool before it can be used.

Free swimming classes will be given at the pool this summer through the cooperation of the Johnson county chapter of the American Red Cross and the Iowa City playground commission.

The lessons will accommodate nearly 1,200 persons and will begin about June 20 if the pool is completed at an early date. Prof. M. Gladys Scott, chairman of water safety for the Red Cross, said yesterday.

Lessons will continue for six weeks with each student receiving 12 lessons.

The classes, open to anyone living in Johnson county, are primarily for children and youths of school age. However, two sections will be open to persons above school age.

Most of the classes are designed for beginners but some intermediate and advanced classes are planned, as well as life saving and water safety classes, Miss Scott said.

The Red Cross is providing instructors for the lessons and the management of the pool is granting free admission to persons registered for classes during the morning hours.

Four instructors, all qualified in Red Cross water safety, will give the lessons.

Miss Betty McCue will be in charge of the program and will also teach classes. Robert Haley, A4, will teach most of the boys' classes. Other instructors will be Miss Challie Thornton and Miss Laura Shields.

Application blanks for the swimming classes are available from the physical education instructors in Iowa City high schools. Blanks may also be obtained at the Red Cross office 15 1-2 S. Dubuque street. The Red Cross safety certificate should be presented with the application.

Because of the anticipated heavy demand for classes, the youngest age group eligible to enroll are students now completing the second grade in elementary school.

Swimmers will be assigned to classes according to the school grades they are now completing and according to their swimming ability, Miss Scott said.

Swimmers will be classified on the following basis: non-swimmer — one who doesn't know how to swim or float any stroke; beginner — one who can paddle about in shallow water but doesn't know any strokes well; low intermediate — one who can swim at least one stroke well but cannot take care of himself in deep water; high intermediate — one who can swim at least one stroke well and is accustomed to swimming in deep water; advanced — one who is completely at home in deep water and knows one or two strokes well.

Someone is always poking around in the invention area and coming up with a scheme to simplify the process of living by developing complicated machines which turn out to be more bother than a broken nose.

While leafing through a magazine the other night, I ran into a list of inventions and new developments in the gimmick field which lead me to believe that 1949 may be a good year to go into seclusion.

WE DON'T have a lawn to mow in or a window to throw it out of, but if we did, you can bet your bottom I wouldn't get involved with the latest wrinkle in sprinklers.

The old sprinklers were enough trouble, and they just stood still in one spot, but these new machines ride rough-shod all over the lawn under their own power, and I'm getting too old to run from a sprinkler.

Not only does this gadget roam around at will, but it also shuts itself off when it gets good and ready. Frankly, I can't think of anything worse than a lawnsprinkler with a mind of its own.

THE NEXT new item on the market is a stapler which staples buttons on children's clothes. Children are always getting breaks like that. What's the matter with inventing a stapler to staple buttons on men's clothes?

This isn't, however, the latest innovation in the staple department. Only recently, I read an article about the use of staples in preventing children's limbs from growing one longer than another. When it becomes apparent that a child has one leg growing longer than his other leg (or legs, as the case may be), the authorities simply staple the long leg into position, giving the other limb a chance to get into the act.

This may sound a little strong, but I have done business with some children who could stand to have both legs stapled to the floor, thus giving adults concerned in the case a chance to develop.

AND NOW they are teaching jet pilots how to fly lying on their stomachs. This is supposed to eliminate gravity pulls (that part isn't quite clear) and will enable pilots to stay in the air for many hours with a minimum of fatigue. I suppose they've already thought of the answer to my question, but how does... where does he... won't it be a little difficult to... won't the pilot have to...? Oh well, let the plumbers figure that one out.

"KEEP THE ends of eggs up, if you want them to stay fresh longer and keep their quality better." That certainly isn't an invention, although it is a new idea all right.

If keeping the large end of eggs up is going to keep eggs fresh longer, it seems to me we can carry the theory even farther by applying the principles of the idea to the hen which lays the egg.

Keep the large end of the hen up... hmmm?

THE SCIENTISTS have worked out something which they refer to as "polymyxin." This stuff is supposed to have a bright future as one of the more promising new antibiotics. We'll just have to take their word for it, because I know practically nothing about antibiotics... stupid old me.

There is some mention about it being good for bacterial dysentery, but we're not supposed to discuss those things in public.

(I've heard, however, that it's no worse than a bad cold.) Probably the most interesting new development is concentrated sheep's manure which is used to fertilize house plants.

I'm dying to learn how they go about concentrating a sheep. It's getting so a sheep has no dignity at all any more.

A STRONG WISH — SIOUX CITY (P) — Sioux City is moving a mountain. It's a mountain of manure covering a 12-acre area and ranging in depth from 20 to 35 feet. One of the country's busiest stockyards is located here.

Interpreting the News —

Russia Would Set Back Clock

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Russia would like to turn the German clock back to the days after Potsdam.

She wants to return to something like the old four-power control council. She wants to turn allied plans for German self-government into a system whereby the Germans would merely administer the council's policies through a central organization, as against the state organizations which existed before. She applies for membership in an international Ruhr control.

These were the highlights of Andrei Vishinsky's long-awaited policy statement in Paris.

They run counter to allied policy in almost every respect. They raise the question whether or not Russia's recent display of a more conciliatory mood may not be merely a series of gestures, after which they will renew their propaganda line that the west is responsible for continued division of the world into two camps. There might be a possibility that Russia would compromise for that.

But there is a factual situation to be balanced even before that could happen.

The high commission is planned as the result of a whole series of developments in western Germany — currency reform, establishment of democratic processes, drafting of a constitution and provision for free elections. The commission will begin to operate only when this series of events is complete — perhaps in July.

Allied diplomats take the stand that, in the light of experience, agreements and promises on Russia's part have no meaning except as policy.

For unification of Germany, then, and for re-entry of Russia into control collaboration, allied policy would require a series of steps in the Russian zone parallel to those for western Germany.

The Soviets would have to tear down the iron curtain between zones, establish truly democratic processes in their area, and send representatives to the central government who have been chosen in free elections supervised by all four powers.

The hand-picked "Peoples Congress" in east Germany would not be allowed to send hand-picked delegates to the federal assembly.

Nothing will be done to place Russia in a position to interfere with operation of the Marshall plan in Germany or with the Ruhr's contribution to European recovery.

Even the character of the high commission would be changed by Russian participation. Some of France's veto power might have to be abrogated to insure that Russia cannot again obstruct majority policies.

The chances that Russia will accept such terms seems to me to be more remote than that she will reverse her eastern European policy and establish democratic processes and free election machinery as the western powers got Stalin to promise at Yalta.

This is almost as remote as the chance that the allies would agree to return to any system of control like the one that failed so miserably after the Potsdam agreement.

It was a warm day, and the pleasantness of it slowed me down. My policy suddenly became that if I got there, all right, and if I didn't, just as good. Besides I was kept busy, recognizing things from last summer.

This can take a bit of time. I don't know why it should seem important that one is seeing again in the hot sun a stone wall that one saw in the hot sun last year, but it is.

Then there was a man lying flat on his face near the road. As I stopped, though, he turned, sat up and stretched. It was just spring. Stretching, he merged with the landscape, taking on familiarity, and I pushed on.

I TRIED the car radio, it said, in a deep voice, that Germany must be made stronger. That bit of news did seem strange, especially when you listened to it while passing three cows. Here we are, I thought, less than four years after the end of the war, talking about making Germany stronger.

Even if we really have to do just that, that doesn't take the strangeness away. It just means we live in a world in which we have to do strange things.

SO I SWITCHED the radio off, and found myself buying two buddleia bushes in a nursery garden. I don't quite know why. I like buddleia well enough, but if you had asked me ten minutes before what I wanted most in the world, I'd never have mentioned

Supreme Court Disappoints New Dealers; Justices Say They're Tying Up Loose Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supreme court that Presidents Roosevelt and Truman appointed has disappointed many new dealers.

They had hoped it would be as partial toward new deal theories and measures as the court of the mid-30s was against them. But many labor leaders now feel that the court, on the eve of another annual recess, has let them down.

It has upheld the right of states to ban the closed shop and to pass legislation which was even more restrictive toward labor unions than the Taft-Hartley act. It even upheld an injunction against peaceful picketing, although picketing is a privilege the court has repeatedly protected.

A so-called "liberal wing" has emerged — Justices Murphy, Black, Douglas and Rutledge. But all of these men joined in unanimous decisions in some of the labor cases. They divided on many other cases involving civil rights and other social issues.

The justices have in effect said in their opinions, however, that no one should be astonished or disappointed, that the court now is only tying together the loose ends left by its new deal revolution. Between 1937 and 1948 it reversed previous supreme court decisions in 30 cases — more reversals than it had ever delivered in so short a time.

Justice William O. Douglas gave his view of what has happened in a recent speech to the New York City Bar Association. At least some of his brethren on the high bench are known to agree with him.

In the 1920's and 1930's, he said, certain factions used to rush to the courts to get relief from legislation they didn't like. The courts often gave the relief, nullifying acts of state legislatures and congress.

In doing this, Douglas said, the courts were enforcing their own social or economic theories, in opposition to the acts of the people's elected representatives.

If the people don't like what legislative bodies do, they should go to the polls — not to the courts — said Douglas. He said that this was good old constitutional doctrine, ignored by the courts for some decades.

From the time of the 1937 revolution, Douglas continued, the general tendency of the court has been to give free rein to legislatures, regardless of whether the justices liked what they did. The court has checked them, he said, only when it believed their acts were clearly unconstitutional.

The present court seldom nullifies the acts of legislative bodies. It has not nullified an entire act of congress since 1936. It has invalidated a section of a congressional act in June 1946.

One effect of this has been an increasing trend this term to uphold the rights of states to tax and regulate business within the states. This is a return, in Douglas' view, to a constitutional decision of 1876 in the case of Munn versus Illinois. Decades of justices gradually whittled away the doctrine of that case and finally overthrew it, according to Douglas, because it did not coincide with their personal opinions.

Laymen and lawyers classing themselves as liberals have found solace in some decisions this term. The court has been increasingly insistent on strict interpretation of employer liability laws, thus giving a break to injured employees.

It is showing more and more interest in protecting the civil rights of prisoners, agreeing to review larger numbers of cases in which persons claim they have been illegally handled.

These abuses of prisoners are nothing new. The new thing is that the supreme court is letting local jurisdictions know that it will no longer tolerate such infringements of the bill of rights.

Decisions involving other types of civil rights have not been numerous this term. The most striking one came recently, when the two wings of the court divided sharply on their interpretations of the right of free speech.

The "liberal" wing won when Justice Reed joined them in a 5-4 decision which ruled unconstitutional a Chicago city ordinance. Arthur Termiello had been convicted of disorderly conduct under the ordinance for giving an inflammatory speech in Chicago Feb. 7, 1946, at a meeting of the Christian Veterans of America called by Gerald L.K. Smith.

The majority held that a man could not under the constitution be prosecuted for giving a speech that stirred up anger and created a disturbance.

A characteristic of the Roosevelt-Truman court that disturbs the legal profession is the increasing division of opinion among the justices. Experts say that no supreme court has ever split so consistently.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT Fire Horn Starts Trip

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

A horn goes off when there's a fire in my town. It makes a strange, hoarse noise, coming across green fields on a hot afternoon; it sounds like an animal that has gotten into something, and is outraged. I tried to telephone to learn where the fire was, but every number I asked for was busy. I suppose a lot of excitable people with nothing better to do than to find out about fires, had jammed the lines.

I GOT into the car to have a look at the blaze, hoping the roads wouldn't be crowded by the sensation-hungry, as they were the last time. After all, I'm a newspaperman, with a legitimate interest in fires and the international situation.

I NEVER did get to the fire. It was a warm day, and the pleasantness of it slowed me down. My policy suddenly became that if I got there, all right, and if I didn't, just as good. Besides I was kept busy, recognizing things from last summer.

This can take a bit of time. I don't know why it should seem important that one is seeing again in the hot sun a stone wall that one saw in the hot sun last year, but it is.

Toilet Water To Fill Pool For Rita, Aly

CANNES, FRANCE (AP) — Two hundred gallons of toilet water will be dumped into Prince Aly Khan's swimming pool here tomorrow, the day on which beautiful Rita Hayworth becomes his princess.

Plans to perfume the plunge at Aly's fabulous Chateau de L'Horizon provided the final detail in preparations for a marriage that even Hollywood would have a hard time trying to duplicate for sheer splendor.

The scenario already included yachts, racy limousines and a Communist mayor whose politics have been overwhelmed by love to provide the happy ending.

There was even a villain — the French ministry of justice, which decreed that Rita and her prince must forsake his Riviera villa for a provincial town hall where a civil ceremony will make them man and wife. The couple had asked in vain for permission to wed at home.

Steps will be taken to see that no guests fall into the sweet-scented pool despite free-flowing drinks at the reception following the ceremony. A special guard will be posted around the pool to prevent accidents.

Trial End Near, Rutledges Hold Hands

AS THE STATE ENDED rebuttal testimony yesterday the murder trial of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge Jr., now in its fourth week, drew nearer its conclusion. And during a recess yesterday Dr. Rutledge held hands with his attractive wife, Sydney. (Story on Page 1)

Advisor Prepares Larger Bulletin for Foreign Applicants

A new bulletin written by Richard E. Sweitzer will soon be available for prospective foreign students interested in attending SUI.

Sweitzer, advisor to foreign students, said the previous one-page bulletin did not convey specific information in certain areas.

Although it answered questions about registering, expenses, financial aids and housing, Sweitzer believed foreign students should be advised about clothing, customs and the type of food the students should expect.

Sweitzer's bulletin also contains details about the university's location, the differences of the American school system to systems in other countries and a definition of American colleges and universities.

Sweitzer stressed the fact that foreign students must be able to read and write English.

Miss Myrtle Keeley, office of the registrar, said that over 2,000 foreign students apply for admittance to the university each year, but only 170 enrolled this year. She explained that the number is set down by restrictions on out of state undergraduate students.

Lewis Raises Threat of Coal Strike, Snarls Contract Talks

BLUEFIELD, W.VA. (UP)—John L. Lewis yesterday threw the new soft coal contract talks with southern producers into an almost hopeless snarl and raised the threat of another nationwide strike early in July.

The blunt-talking United Mine workers' president told the opening session of a joint conference with the Southern Coal Producers association that he came here only because the "infamous" Taft-Hartley law forced him to attend.

At the same time, he issued instructions to his miners to "save your money and tighten your belts" for a long struggle to improve their working conditions.

Association President Joseph E. Moody countered with a public statement saying the southern producers want to sign a new agreement before the UMW's present contract expires June 30 and thus "avoid any strike or work stoppage which would be disastrous to the operators, miners and the public generally."

Lewis plunged the committee on rules and credentials into an angry dispute by demanding that the association produce its by-laws and a company-by-company listing of all coal producers.

He then got Moody to agree to delay a further meeting of the joint conference until 3 p.m. (Iowa time) today.

The UMW chieftan doubted if contract talks with other segments of the coal industry, with the possible exception of "captive" mines owned by the U.S. Steel Corp., could be held in the near future.

Lewis has asked U.S. Steel to negotiate with him before he signs up commercial operators in the northern and eastern regions.

President Harry M. Moses of the H.C. Frick Coke Co., U.S. Steel's operating subsidiary, reluctantly agreed to Lewis' stipulation last night.

Clues Found after Victor Reuther Shooting

Farmhand Charged With Theft of Saw

Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy yesterday reported the arrest of Charles Ralph Nixon, formerly of Clinton, charged with the theft of a power saw and two sets of wrenches from the Joseph Novotny farm north of North Liberty May 12.

Nixon was arrested at his home near Thomson, Ill., by Sheriff Murphy and Ray Connor of the Iowa bureau of criminal investigation. He is being held in the Mt. Carroll, Ill., jail awaiting filing of extradition papers.

When arrested, Nixon was riding a tractor which had been reported stolen from a farm near Anamosa. The power saw and two boxes of wrenches which had been stolen from a machine shed on Novotny's farm May 12 were found on Nixon's farm.

Concert Provides —

Unusual Listening

— By Iowa Composers

By DONALD KEY

Symphonies of two Iowa composers and a rollicking musical suite of another Iowan provided an evening of unusual listening for a large audience in the Iowa Union last night.

It was the sixth and last formal concert of the SUI symphony orchestra for this season, and Prof. Philip G. Clapp can well be proud of his organization for this final performance.

Thomas Turner's "Symphony - John Brown" opened the concert, and immediately set the mood for pleasant listening. His work is extremely impressionistic, but, unlike many modern numbers, it is not cold or hard to grasp at a first listening.

Instead, it is warm and melodious, with shifting rhythmic patterns which give the music a well rounded effect.

The number is so original that it is difficult to compare it to any other composition. However, the quick harmonic changes which Turner used so frequently, were somewhat Frank-like in character. This did not detract from the musical enjoyment but added to it.

Equally enjoyable was the "Symphony No. 2" by Roger Goeb. Rhythm was a major feature in this number. Sometimes it was Spanish in character, sometimes jazzy, and occasionally there were as many as three rhythms going at a time.

Some unusual but pleasing effects such as high string tremolos, fife (piccolo) and drum sequence, saxophone quartet parts and syncopated bass drum accents were used in this work.

Both Turner and Goeb were present at the concert and both acknowledged the enthusiastic applause of the audience and orchestra.

"Southern Iowa Suite," by Robert Barkley, brought forth many laughs from the listeners. It is frivolous music intended to entertain and it did just that last night.
