Protests Open Hearing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) yesterday bitterly protested the raising of secrecy bars in the congressional airing of his "incredible mismanagement" charges against the atomic energy commission.

The Iowan, chief critic of AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal, demanded a one-day delay in public hearings to thresh out the problem — but with only partial success.

Senator McMahon, chairman of the senate-house atomic investigating committee, turned down the delay request but agreed to a closed-door session of the committee Monday afternoon to hear Hickenlooper's objections.

Hickenlooper, bitter over a 9-to-8 committee decision Friday requiring him to present his evidence against the commission's loyalty review program behind closed doors, had said earlier: "No progress can be made in this investigation if the curtain of secrecy is rung down every time embarrassing evidence is offered."

Hickenlooper coupled his protest against hearing secrecy with another rap at the AEC. He said he considers as unwarranted, security classifications applied by the AEC to records and documents which have "direct bearing upon my proof."

He complained that a "substantial part" of these papers have been classified "confidential" and "top secret."

Condon Calls FBI Report 'Malicious,' Demands Apology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the national bureau of standards, demanded last night that J. Edgar Hoover apologize to Mrs. Condon because her name was mentioned in an FBI "data slip" produced at the Judith Coplon espionage trial.

Hoover, director of the FBI, had no comment.

The man with whose name Mrs. Condon was identified, meanwhile, as a recent suicide. He was Morton E. Kent, 48-year-old Harvard graduate and former government employe. According to the FBI report, he tried last year to contact a Bulgarian suspected of being an agent for the Russian intelligence service.

Dr. Condon branded as a "malicious accusation" a statement in the report that his wife gave Kent an address for a Bulgarian tabbed by the FBI as an espionage suspect.

He declared that Mrs. Condon gave Kent the address of a man he wanted to contact for business purposes.

In or Out, Kids All Have a Good Time at New City Pool

SPLASHING WATER TO THEIR HEART'S CONTENT, Iowa City's younger set had a gala time yesterday afternoon when the new city park swimming pool opened. Many of the boys above lined up outside the main entrance an hour before opening time, but the wait was repaid by fun in the water. Girls? They were there too, but a little reluctant to get in a picture with all those boys. This is the first time Iowa City has had a swimming pool since the "Big Dipper" was closed over 10 years ago.

Alderman to Hear Protests on Project

Iowa City aldermen will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the City hall council chamber to hear proposed Capitol street improvement, City Clerk George Dohrer said yesterday.

The project, outlined by City Engineer Fred Gartzke at the May 23 council meeting, would cost $12,644. Property owners would be assessed $9,821 and the city would pay $2,823 of the costs.

Improvements presented by Gartzke included widening Capitol street to 50 feet from Prenziss to Lafayette streets and removing center islands.

The city council had asked Gartzke for plans and cost estimates because they are considering making Capitol street the connecting improved roadway from Burlington street to South Riverside drive by way of the Benton street bridge.

John Deere Workers Approve New Contract

OTTUMWA (AP) — Members of the United Auto Workers union local 78 (CIO) at the John Deere plant here yesterday approved the contract provisions offered by management.

The approval was voted at a mass meeting. Union officials did not announce the vote but said the contract was approved "by a majority."

Western Bloc to Try German Trade Talks

PARIS, (UP)—America, Britain and France decided yesterday to make a final effort next week to get a limited agreement with Russia on re-establishing East and West German trade.

The west will present Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky with a detailed proposal in mid-week which is expected to win his approval.

Western observers warned that such an agreement, if reached, would be a compromise. It probably would be temporary and not fully satisfactory to the west, they said.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman decided to try to return to the question of East-West German trade before the conference ends at the Quai D'Orsay.

Western sources emphasized Acheson, Bevin and Schuman did not expect anything miraculous from their plan. But when the point of no-progress is reached on the last item on their agenda, they will propose a return to item one — a political and economic unification of Germany.

Otherwise, the western powers were prepared to write off the Big Four foreign ministers conference as another failure to come to terms with the Soviet union on the future of Germany.

At Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's request, the council did not sit yesterday, but will meet at 3 p.m. today. The west then will hear Vishinsky's reply to its scornful rejection of his proposal that an early peace treaty be concluded with Germany.

Southern Mobsters Slug Grandmother

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (AP) — Hooded mobsters slugged an ill, 42-year-old grandmother Friday night after accusing her of "dancing in the nude" and threatened a cafe operator for allegedly "running a disorderly place," the victims said yesterday.

Circuit Solicitor Emmett Perry immediately called for "an end to this lawlessness in Jefferson county."

Both victims of the midnight marauders were dragged from their homes and forced to watch cross-burnings, the traditional "warning" ritual of the Ku Klux Klan. The woman, Mrs. Hugh McDanald, said she snatched the masks off several of her attackers and believes she would recognize them.

Members of the mob threatened to "lash me, string me up and burn me at the stake" if they paid her a second visit, Mrs. McDanald said.

Solicitor Perry said he would call the grand jury, just recessed, back in special session.

White Issues Three Informations; Names King, Schlesselman

County Attorney Jack C. White said yesterday that he has filed three informations against two Swisher men in Johnson county district court in connection with the raid on the Ranch Supper club in Cou Falls last Saturday night.

Two of the informations charge C.R. Schlesselman, operator of the club, with the illegal possession of gambling devices and maintaining a liquor nuisance through illegal possession of intoxicating liquors.

The third information charges T.W. King with the recording and registering of bets on race horses.

Warrants for the arrest of the two men have been issued by the clerk of the district court. County Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy will serve the warrants and take the two men into custody.

The date for the arraignment of Schlesselman and King has not been set, White said.

Articles confiscated at the raid by four agents from the Iowa criminal investigation bureau have been turned over to Sheriff Murphy.

They include 101 bottles of liquor, eight slot machines, a telegraphic quotation ticker, a microphone and sound system, a blackjack table, punch boards and racing bet slips.

A forfeiture hearing on these items will be held in the Iowa City police court Friday. The purpose of this hearing will be to give the club owner or anyone concerned in the matter opportunity to show cause why the articles should not be forfeited to the county authorities.

Russ Have Atom Bomb, Says German Educator

MUNICH, GERMANY (AP) — A Soviet zone German professor told a Communist audience here Friday that the Soviet Union definitely has the atomic bomb.

The German news agency Dena reported that Prof. Victor Klemperer, professor of romance languages at Halle University, made the statement to a meeting of the cultural committee of the Bavarian Communist party.

Big Farm Groups Snub Demo Rally

DES MOINES (AP) — The nation's biggest farm organization stood officially aloof yesterday from a 16-state Democratic farm rally but party leaders predicted "thousands" of dirt farmers would come to hear Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan defend the administration price support plan.

The two-day Midwest conference opening here today will combine a party pitch for the 1950 farm vote with a get-together of the Democrats' top brass to talk over further strategy for next year's campaign. Party chiefs called it the "big" Democratic meeting of 1949.

Neither the American Farm Bureau federation nor the National Grange planned to send official representatives to the rally, and a farm bureau spokesman said his organization would "stand pat" on its opposition to the Brannan plan. The Grange has not taken a stand on the plan.

However, leaders of the National Farmers' union were expected to attend the meeting in full force, and the farm bureau spokesman said Federation representatives probably would sit in unofficially.

President Requests Arms For Europe

No 'Lost' Weekend for This Guy

ATHENS, OHIO (AP)—Events have been moving rapidly for Edward E. Droney, 23, of Youngstown, a student at Ohio university.

Today Droney will receive his bachelor of science degree at commencement exercises.

Friday night his wife gave birth to their first child.

Yesterday, as he sat in his apartment, the building was struck by lightning, but he was unharmed and there was little damage. Said Droney: "This has been quite a weekend."

Asks Help For Needy

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — President Truman yesterday called for re-arming of Europe, said trimming funds for helping Europe would be "false economy" and disclosed he soon would ask congress to help needy areas of the world.

The President spoke at the dedication of a war memorial park here in connection with the annual reunion of the 35th division, with which he served in the first world war. Mr. Truman had attached sufficient significance to the address to label it in advance as a "very important" foreign policy statement.

It was broadcast by the major radio networks and beamed overseas.

Earlier, the white-suited President marched 15 blocks — the full route — in the annual reunion parade of the 35th. He was flanked by Secretary of Defense Johnson (in shirt sleeves), Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas and Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, presidential military aide.

A crowd estimated by Police Chief Marvin Potts at 100,000 thronged the streets under a boiling sun to greet Mr. Truman. He rewarded them with smiles and a wave of his hat or prized walking stick.

Before the parade, the President had breakfast with former buddies of Battery D, 129th field artillery, which he commanded in the first world war. At the breakfast, Col. J. Monroe Johnson, a member of the Interstate Commerce commission, proposed that Mr. Truman be a candidate for another term. The President warned that the suggestion might be suspected by newsmen as a "plant."

In his address, the President said, in referring to the European Cooperation Administration program:

There are voices which claim that because our policy has been successful so far, we can now afford to relax. There are some who want to slash the aid we are giving to the economic recovery of other nations; there are some who want to reject the measures that are necessary for defense against aggression; there are some who wish to abandon our efforts toward the revival of world trades.

"These are the same voices that misled us in the 1920's. They are misguided by short-run considerations. They refuse to face the plain facts. They try to convince us that we cannot afford to pay the price of peace."

Mr. Truman then said:

"If we were to falter now and cut down our aid, the momentum of recovery would be destroyed. The people of these countries would be thrown into confusion and their advance toward economic self reliance would be blocked."

Mr. Truman also announced in his address that he soon will send to congress proposed legislation designed to build up undeveloped regions of the world.

Rail Strike Near End; Trade Treaty Drafted

BERLIN, SUNDAY (AP)—A Soviet-American agreement last night signalled the end of the Berlin rail strike.

Early today it was announced that representatives of the four occupation powers had hammered out the first draft of a trade treaty for all Germany.

Prompt union acceptance of the agreement negotiated by the Americans with the Russian-controlled management of the Berlin railroad was predicted for today by strike leaders.

This would break a 22-day economic stranglehold on the city and open the floodgates for 150,000 tons of supplies tied up in what amounted to a "little blockade."

The economics and transport authorities of the American, Russian, British and French military governments worked out the first draft of a trade treaty to meet the Monday deadline for agreement fixed by the council of ministers in Paris. This was done at a six-hour meeting.

The conferees adjourned at 1:30 a.m. with the announcement they needed another session to complete their work. They will meet again at noon today. The session ended amicably, but members of the delegations refused to discuss details of the economic problems involved in the treaty.

The agreement is designed to revive commerce between east and west zones despite the obstacles of two currencies. It is necessary that the crippling transportation strike be ended, however, before trade can be resumed.

Leaders of the anti-Communist rail union, the UGO, said the 14,000 strikers would formally accept today a set of peace terms backed up by a solid western guarantee and that traffic would move as soon as snarls accumulated in three weeks of chaos.

Federal Indictment Based on 'Foolish' Assumption—Tucker

CHICAGO (AP) — Preston Tucker said yesterday that a federal indictment against him is based on a "foolish" assumption that he would conspire to wreck his life's ambition of mass-producing a rear-engine car.

Tucker said he is ready to defend himself as president of the Tucker corporation against the indictment, charging him and seven present or past associates with mail fraud and violation of securities regulations.

"I believe the mail fraud charge is a catch-all designed to get a conviction at all costs," Tucker said. "As far as violating the Securities and Exchange Commission act are considered, we have honored the law."

It is the SEC who has dishonored it, Tucker added, but he did not amplify that charge. However, he asserted that the SEC, as well as the FBI, the grand jury, "and others" have continually interrupted his efforts to establish his business.

"This automobile represents my life's work and it is foolish to assume that I would conspire to destroy my own ideals," Tucker said. "I have a clear conscience, a marvelous car, and the will to fight to success."

Hang Fifteen War Criminals in Japan

TOKYO, JAPAN (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters yesterday announced the execution of 15 Japanese war criminals, including two who were convicted of ordering the infamous Bataan death march.

The announcement did not say when the hangings took place. It said only that the Japanese government had been notified of the hanging of 15 war criminals at Sugamo prison.

Executed for their roles on Bataan were Maj. Gen. Yoshitaka Kawane and Col. Karataro Hirano. They were found guilty last June of ordering the march in which an estimated 10,000 Americans and Filipinos died.

Nine in First Lower Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP)—The New York Yankees blasted Bob Feller and Sam Zoldak, his successor, for nine runs in the first inning, and went on to defeat the Cleveland Indians yesterday, 12-7.

A crowd of 61,523, of which 31,308 were paid admissions, saw 13 Yankees go to bat in the first inning. They rocked Rapid Robert for five hits before he retired in favor of Zoldak. It was the second straight for the Yanks over the Indians, after a four game losing streak.

Feller pitched to eight batters and retired one. The most damaging blow was a bases-loaded double by Yogi Berra. Phil Rizuto, who opened with a single, later added a triple with the bases full against Zoldak.

REYNOLDS later added a triple with the bases full against Zoldak. Only four of the nine runs were earned as two errors by Mickey Vernon and another by Joe Gordon aided in the scoring.

Allie Reynolds, who had not started since Memorial day, could not go the distance and was yanked after a run and loading the bases in the ninth with none out. Joe Page replaced him and stifled the threat, although the Indians picked up two more runs on a hit batsman and infield out.

Joe Gordon smashed his ninth homer of the season with one on in the Cleveland sixth and Hank Bauer hit his second as a Yankee with one aboard in the seventh. It was Feller's sixth loss against one victory.

Iowa City Golfer 14th In National Open Meet

Ellsworth Vines, professional golfer who lists his home as Iowa City, finished in a five-way tie for 14th place in the 49th annual National Open golf championships yesterday.

His score of 294 earned $125 in prize money, awards that ranged from $2,000 for first to $71.43 for 34th place. Two golfers in the top 34 finishers received gold medals instead of money.

Munger's 3-Hitter Halts Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals broke the Phillies winning streak at four and raised their string of triumphs to 15 in the last eighteen games as they defeated the Phils, 6-2 here yesterday in the second game of the series.

Brilliant three-hit hurling by George Munger coupled with a 10-hit attack on Hank Borowy, including home runs by Martin Marion and Nippy Jones, each with a man on base, gave the Red Birds their triumph. It was Munger's second triumph over the Phils this year, and his fourth triumph of the season. Borowy's defeat was his second at the hands of the Cards. He has won five and lost three, add 6 point sums.

Nats Fight Back to 'Steal' 9-8 Triumph

DETROIT (AP)—The Washington Senators literally stole a ball game from the Detroit Tigers yesterday as the Senators posted a 9-8 victory after being seven runs behind in the sixth inning.

Third Baseman Sherry Robertson climaxed the Senators' uphill battle when he stole home with the winning run with two out in the seventh.

Six home runs, four of them by the Senators, punctuated the free-hitting game in which nine pitchers saw action. Freddie Hutchinson, the Tigers' starter, had a two-hitter and an 8-1 lead going into the sixth inning and looked like an easy winner.

But the Senators scored five runs in the sixth, including two-run homers by Clyde Volmer, his second of the day, and Ed Stewart.

They got another in the seventh, making it 8-7. That set the stage for Robertson's steal.

Two Homers By Campanella

BROOKLYN (AP)—Mauling three southpaw hurlers for a dozen hits including two home runs by Roy Campanella and one by Pee-wee Reese, the Brooklyn Dodgers ran their winning streak to six straight yesterday with an 11-3 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

The victory, coupled with Boston's defeat by the Chicago Cubs, widened the Dodgers first place lead in the National league to a game and a half. Don Newsome, Giant right-hander, held the Reds to five hits for his third victory without a defeat. He fanned nine and walked two. Two of the Reds' runs resulted from homers by Jimmy Bloodworth and Pinch-Hitter Danny Litwhiler. Frank Baumholtz' first inning triple, and a ground out, accounted for the other.

Campanella's first homer came in the fifth off Ken Raffensberger. It followed a single by Duke Snider and broke up a 1-1 tie. Reese made it 4-1 with his eighth homer of the season.

The Dodgers knocked Raffensberger out in the sixth, adding two more tallies. They chased Kent Peterson with four more in the seventh. Reese, who is on an 11 game hitting streak, collected two or more safeties for the ninth straight day.

It was the Dodgers' seventh victory in eight games with the Reds.

Cubs Belt Bickford, Tumble Boston, 5-2

BOSTON (AP)—The lowly Chicago Cubs pounded Vernon Bickford for 11 of their 15 hits to break his five - game winning streak yesterday with a 5-2 decision over the Boston Braves.

Although he needed some help from Emil Kush in the ninth, Walt Dubiel gained his third win of the season for the Cubs. Dubiel also was the last chucker to out-duel Bickford here on May 3.

The Cubs clinched matter in the seventh by scoring thrice on Emil Verban's triple, Herman Reich's double and singles by Dubiel and Phil Cavarretta.

Irish Top Purdue To Gain in NCAA

LAFAYETTE, IND. (AP)—Notre Dame broke up an air - tight pitching duel between Irish hurler Walter Mahannah and Purdue Pitcher Mel Henson yesterday to win an NCAA district playoff game, 1-0.

Both Mahannah and Henson had given up one hit each until the ninth inning. Then two Notre Dame singles and a Purdue error produced the only run. Mahannah retired the Boilermakers in the last of the ninth for a brilliant mound performance.

Irish clutch hitter Don Grieve batted out a pinch single in the ninth to win the game.

The victory sent Notre Dame into the finals of the district four NCAA finals against Western Michigan at South Bend Monday.

Giants Edge Pirates To End Five-Game Losing Streak, 4-3

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants ended their five-game losing streak the hard way yesterday, scoring all their runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 3-0 deficit, and defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3.

The Pirates did not give up without a struggle, however. They put men on second and third with nobody out in the top of the ninth, but Relief Pitcher Hank Behrman disposed of the next three men without allowing a runner to cross the plate.

Bobby Thomson smashed an inside-the-park homer with a man on base to account for two of the Giants' runs.

Capot Beats Ponder In Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (AP)—Capot, a dead-game colt carrying the sills of Greentree Stable, charged to a stirring victory yesterday in the 81st running of the $75,000 added Belmont Stakes, third jewel in Turf's "triple crown."

Capot's victory gave him two rounds on the turf's famed diadem and merited the colt ranking as the best of his division. But he had to do it the hard way yesterday, fighting off separate challenges by two hard runners, Palestinian and Ponder.

Palestinian, owned by Isidor Beiber, ran with Capot all the way along the gruelling mile and one-half marathon route, but had to settle for third place. Ponder, the Kentucky Derby winner, uncorkeed one of his patented stretch runs to finish second, a half length behind the winner. Palestinian was another half length behind Ponder.

National Open To Middlecoff

CHICAGO (AP)—Young Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., won the 49th National Open golf championship with a 72 - hole score of 286 yesterday as an old-time jinx rose up to haunt Samuel Jackson Snead, who finished a stroke behind.

The slamming man from White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., hard luck loser in three previous tournaments, was still on the course when Middlecoff, a pro of less than three years, came in with a heartbreaking afternoon 75.

Following two brilliant sub-par rounds, this gave the rangy Tennesseean a two-over-par total for his four trips around Medinah's treacherous 6,981-yard, par 71 course.

"Well, I muffed it," he said dejectedly as he looked on the board to see that Snead, finishing with a rush after trailing six strokes going into the last round, needed only par in for the last three holes.

Snead played 16 in par and then needed only two pars in for the tie. One birdie and a par would have given him the championship to lay beside the Masters and PGA crowns he already holds.

But on the 193-yard lake hole 17th, Snead ran into an old and despised chum — his open bugaboo.

After laying his tee shot on the fringe of the green, he took three costly taps at the ball and there was another championship gone out the window. His first putt was six feet past and then he rimmed the cup with his next try — but the ball stayed out.

On the 18th — on which he needed a desperate birdie to tie — Snead was down the middle with his drive but was wide of the carpet on his six-foot approach. He had to struggle for a par four that gave him a 70 for a total of 287.

Wagon Ride to Mt. Vernon Proved — Grid Hawks 'Rough' in '83

By KEN CARTER

One of SUI's first football players was among the graduates attending Iowa's Alumni day yesterday.

Charles H. Clarke, '84, Babson Park, Fla., reminisced of sports and SUI in general as it was 65 years ago when he took his degree in civil engineering.

Football games in those days, Clark said, were played on the slope west of Old Capitol.

Two oak trees served as goal posts, and uniforms consisted of red - flannel jumpers, "tough pants," and heavy shoes.

"We were a pretty rugged outfit," the old pigskin - carrier stated.

The first intercollegiate game was with Cornell college in 1883, according to Clarke. The team was loaded into a wagon for the trip to Mt. Vernon.

"We must have started in the middle of the night to make it, in time," he said.

Who won? "We licked the heck out of them," Clarke answered.

There was a lot more kicking involved in football in the early days, Clarke stated. "We elder fellows have noticed the boys now don't kick nearly as much as then," he said.

Now retired in Florida after a career in newspaper advertising, the 88-year-old graduate is still an outdoor enthusiast. "The outside is my greatest hobby," he said.

Iowa Loses DiMarco But the Decision Was Fair

When the Big Ten ruled Al DiMarco ineligible for further football competition and then shortly afterwards voted Don Rehfeldt, Wisconsin's high scoring basketball center, one more year of competition the cry of "no fair" was heard from football fans in Iowa City.

Why should the star of Iowa's 1948 grid team be denied another year when Rehfeldt, Big Ten scoring champion last basketball season, would be free to spearhead Wisconsin's cage team for another season? Aren't the cases almost alike?

The last question is the one that tripped the fans. To all appearances the cases are alike, but in reality they aren't. Still, both had cases, the decisions were fair and nobody is beefing. Iowa now is searching for a quarterback replacement for Mason City A.

Where the situations differ is that DiMarco would be starting his sixth year of college football were he eligible to play this fall, while Rehfeldt will be playing his third full season of basketball at Wisconsin.

Back before Uncle Sam beckoned, DiMarco enrolled at Creighton university in Omaha and played one season of football, under the wartime ruling that freshman were eligible. After one year he entered the service, during which time he was a V-12 trainee stationed at Bowling Green university in Bowling Green, Ohio.

Bowling Green was just about to abandon the athletic ship with the draft and enlistments draining manpower, but when the V-12 units began arriving the civilian coach saw 6-foot possibilities roaming around and decided to continue an athletic program.

With the assurance that his playing would not affect his eligibility after the war, DiMarco played football, in fact he played two seasons at the Ohio school. As a member, in the service you sometimes agreed to things that weren't necessarily agreeable.

The rest is recent history. DiMarco enrolled at Iowa and played the '47 season, then in the '48 season became one of the outstanding passers in the conference, setting several all-time Iowa records.

Add 'em up and it comes out five seasons. The Big Ten never questioned the extra year and DiMarco and Iowa weren't trying to pull a fast one. DiMarco's promises from Bowling Green didn't stand up at the Western conference meeting so instead of one year of wartime freshman eligibility and two years at Iowa, DiMarco and Iowa were informed that the count stood at five years—one under the wartime rule, two at Bowling Green and two at Iowa.

On the other hand, Rehfeldt enrolled at Wisconsin and under the familiar wartime rule played one semester of basketball for the Badgers before entering the service.

When he returned from the service Big Ten found he couldn't enter Wisconsin in the middle of the term, as could be done at many schools at that time, Iowa included.

So rather than do nothing Rehfeldt entered DePaul university in Chicago, where at the time there was no basketball team. With talent handy an unofficial team was organized and several games played. The team did not play under school colors, or have a school coach. No admission to the games was charged.

In February of the next year Rehfeldt went back to Madison and played out the remainder of the schedule. Then last year the big fellow paced the conference scorers, even though on a second division club.

The Big Ten committee, in deciding the eligibility case, decided that the first semester at Wisconsin and the few weeks after Feb. 1 would be equal to one year. The informal team at DePaul was discounted. It adds up to three years, counting his unplayed remaining year.

The fact is, had another year of eligibility never been considered for DiMarco, the actual number of years of competition never would have been open to question. Actually we should be glad that aerial Al got to play two years at Iowa instead of complaining because he can't be here another season, as much as everyone would like to have him play.

Big Ten baseball players who play with or against professional performers are no longer in danger of losing their amateur standing, as long as they are not paid for their services, of course.

The change to permit college players to compete in better competition during the summer months was made at the last meeting of the conference rules committee. Along with that, the rule prohibiting college players from playing more than 35 summer games was abolished.

It's a step in the right direction, anyway. It's almost sure to improve the quality of Big Ten baseball.

Mrs. Richard E. Rust

Nancy Shuttleworth Weds Richard Rust

Two university students, the former Miss Nancy Kayley Shuttleworth and Richard Eno Rust, exchanged wedding vows yesterday afternoon in a ceremony held at the Trinity Episcopal church.

A reception held at the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house honored the couple following the ceremony.

The bride, a daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Frank Kayley Shuttleworth of New York City, wore a bridal gown of sheer voile over traditional white satin. The wedding veil was made from the bridal gown of the bride's paternal grandmother. The bridal bouquet was of white roses fashioned in a colonial bouquet.

Attending as maids of honor were the bride's sisters, Margaret Shuttleworth and Carol Shuttleworth. Their gowns were of poppy yellow and sea foam green.

Rodney Rust served as best man for his brother, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville W. Rust of Cedar Rapids. Ushers were Glenn F. Cray, Jr., of Burlington and Patrick McPartland of Cedar Rapids.

The couple will spend the summer in California, but will return to Iowa City to make their home while they continue their studies at SU.

The bride will graduate from the university next June and is affiliated with Kappa Gamma, social sorority. The bridegroom, a member of Sigma Chi, social fraternity, and Alpha Kappa Kappa, medical fraternity, will complete his studies in the college of medicine in 1952.

William T. Swenson SUI Alumnus Fills VA Counselor Job

William T. Swenson, 1926 SUI graduate and a former track coach here, has assumed duties as chief of the SUI veterans guidance center until the office closes June 30.

Swenson was track coach here from 1931 to 1942 and personnel officer at the pre-flight school from 1942 to 1945. He has been chief of the VA office at Council Bluffs since May 1946.

Iowa City's center is one of seven in the state being closed, according to E. E. Beaver, retraining guidance center chief. A counselor will remain here, however, and a center at Cedar Rapids will be retained.

Established October 10, 1945, the local organization counseled 4,074 men as of May 31, 1949, Beaver said. Services were available to veterans attending school under public law 16 and 346.

Besides counseling and supervising duties at SUI, the center also supervised the training of veterans in the Iowa City area. Personnel included Beaver and Training Specialists M. L. Morris and E. J. Osgood. Swenson, S. B. Waldon and E. Haase are replacing them until the office closes.

Child Conference To Be Held Here

An exhibit illustrating how teachers are being trained to teach children the beginnings of human behavior and emotional development will be featured at the Iowa conference of Child Development and Parent Education at wpa waune 22-23.

The exhibit will be displayed in the zoology building.

All conferees will have an opportunity to examine the materials for primary and intermediate teachers as well as those in special fields, according to Prof. Ralph H. Ojemann of educational psychology and parent education. Ojemann is in charge of the exhibit.

The exhibit also will illustrate how a child's thinking and behavior toward others change, and how he learns to take increasing responsibility for his own development. These are the results of some of the studies made at the Iowa Child Welfare Research station.

Michael J. Flach Accepts Fellowship

Michael Flach, G. Prague, Czechoslovakia, who received his MA in sociology here Friday, has accepted a one-year tuition fellowship to the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Medford, Mass.

Flach is the 1948 winner of the SUI Bose award, presented by the International club to the foreign student who has done the most toward fostering international understanding. He received his bachelor's degree from SUI in 1948.

At Fletcher, Flach will work toward a Ph.D. in international relations. The school is run jointly by Tufts college and Harvard university and carries a maximum of 50 students as its enrollment.

Wayne Harger Honored By Wall Street Journal

Wayne E. Harger, C4, Cedar Rapids, was presented with the Wall Street Journal's first student achievement award Friday in the college of commerce office.

The financial daily's award was given to Harger on the basis of his selection as the outstanding commerce student doing finance work.

Pins and Needles Produce Top Fashions

dresses made by Kathy McTigue, A2, Des Moines, (left) and Jackie Raetz, A4, Oskaloosa. Kathy's sun dress is navy blue with a white bolero and Jackie's dress is two piece, also navy blue.

Home Made Creations

Clothing Class Accents Newest Trends In Adopting Colorful Popular Designs

Students literally on pins and needles for the entire past semester were those who were members of the university's clothing classes in the department of home economics.

These fashion-wise misses produced fashions that could easily vie with some of the creations featured in top fashion magazines and many of the ensembles were self designed.

Keynotes of these fashion plates accented some of the newest trends in spring and summer fashions. Pleated necklines, bertha drop shoulders, plunging necklines, winged cuffs, and swirl skirts were some of the most popular features adopted by these student designers.

Tops among the fashions was the pajama outfit modeled by Margaret Goodnow, A3, Iowa City. Her combination of pajamas and robe of cotton polka dot print will be ideal for summer. Her matching sluffs top off the outfit. With an eye to the future, Margaret, not only made full length, but she also made another pair of shortie length.

Kathleen McTigue, A2, Des Moines, and Jackie Raetz, A4 Oskaloosa, designed and made dresses that will really be on the fashion parade this summer.

Bolero jackets prove to hold their own in the style modeled by Kathy. The white butcher linen jacket offsets a stylish sundress of any butcher linen.

Two-piece summer dresses will receive an extra vote of popularity this summer. Jackie models an outfit of navy blue butcher linen which can be worn as a suit for an occasion. The skirt is styled to wear with a light summer blouse too.

Simplicity and style are the keynotes of the royal blue rayon crepe dress constructed by Mrs. C.M. Linkleton, A2, Cedar Rapids. The smartest feature shown on this model dress is the sun burst of pleats on the bustle of the frock.

MUSIC ASSOCIATION

Mrs. H.J. Thornton and Mrs. William Meardon were named co-chairmen of the Iowa City Civic Music association's fall membership drive at a meeting Friday night.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday in the Johnson county clerk's office to Janusz Zawondy and Lorraine Blachley, both of Iowa City; Maynard A. Hill, Ames, and Jean Jones, Marshalltown; Leon W. Gessman and Mary Ann Mason, both of Iowa City; Thomas Charles Goodner, Shenandoah, and Phyllis Marie Evans, Corning; John H. Varner and Shirley Rosetta Raner, both of Des Moines and to Walter R. Copeland, Logan, and Myrna Mae Costigan, Elkport.

MRS. C. M. LINKLETON, A2, Cedar Rapids, models a dress she made in a clothing class in the department of home economics. It is a royal blue rayon crepe, with a sun burst of pleats on the bustle.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A MAN who had been very poor all his life made a fortune almost overnight and began to splurge in every direction at the same time. One of his greatest joys consisted in inviting old cronies up to see his sumptuous new estate.

"Come up and see the grounds," he boasted to one of them. "I will show you my three swimming pools."

"Three swimming pools," echoed the friend. "Isn't that a bit excessive?"

"Not at all," the host assured him. "One has cold water, one has hot water, and one has no water at all."

"One with cold water I can understand," conceded the guest. "I can even see a reason for one with hot water. But what's the idea of a swimming pool with no water at all?"

The host shook his head sadly. "You'd be surprised, Joe," he confessed, "how many of my old friends can't swim."

President Virgil Hancher Sounds Warning to USC Graduates in Commencement Address: Preserve 'Health' of American Universities

President Virgil M. Hancher, delivering the 66th annual commencement address at the University of Southern California, yesterday told 4,600 graduates that the universities of the world stand in grave peril.

Hancher received an honorary degree of doctor of laws from USC during the exercises.

Excerpts of Hancher's commencement address follow:

I RECALL an occasion on which a famous English economist at the beginning of an address to the members of the Economic Club of Chicago expressed the hope that it would not be inappropriate to address them on the subject of Economics. I trust that it will not be inappropriate for me today to address this university audience, and particularly this graduating class, on the subject of universities.

YOU ARE the product of a university. Although universities are among the most significant of the institutions that make possible our twentieth century civilization, they are, I venture to say, among the least understood. Because you will leave here today as university graduates to take your places in society, inevitably you will be the interpreters of universities to that society.

THE URGENCY of correct interpretation and understanding cannot be exaggerated, because universities throughout the world are in a time of crisis. In the USSR and its satellite countries and in China, universities as agencies for the discovery and transmission of truth and learning — as we define those terms in the Western tradition — have disappeared or are threatened with inevitable disaster.

Only in South America, in the Scandinavian countries, in the nations of the Commonwealth, and in the United States do universities appear to retain a semblance of their former functions and influences. And a closer examination will show that in many countries even that semblance is more apparent than real. Let us turn to the universities of our own country to see the factors that tend to place them, too, in a state of crisis.

UNIVERSITIES, as they have developed in this country, are complex institutions composed of a varying number of professional, technological and graduate colleges, schools and departments clustered around an undergraduate school or college of the liberal arts and sciences. While there are wide variations in the growth and development of universities and in their size and quality, it seems a safe generalization to say that their similarities are greater and more numerous than their differences in all respects save those having to do with their sources of control and their sources of funds.

THAT THE so-called private universities face great difficulties is a matter of general knowledge. War and its inflationary aftermath have caused educational costs to increase a terrifying rate. At the same time endowment incomes have declined, and charges for tuitions and fees have mounted to the point of diminishing returns. Moreover, there is danger that education at the university level may become the privilege of the rich and the well-to-do.

NOW in such a setting it may be thought that the publicly supported university is indeed the favorite of fortune; but this, I submit, is a superficial deduction from the facts. The publicly supported university also faces difficult problems. Few things in the last twenty-five years of our national life have been more spectacular than the increasing demands for public funds, and the generosity with which public funds have been appropriated. But the demand has increased faster than the supply — and competition is the result.

for aid to dependent children, and for the social services in all their manifold aspects.

IN THE midst of these new multiplying claims of these new services, there is danger of forgetting the significance of the older, long-established departments, agencies, and institutions, among them the state universities, which have served the states for many generations. If they are properly evaluated, the institutions of higher learning will be adequately supported.

Because the future of all universities is at stake in these troublesome times, I charge you to make the welfare of universities an object of your concern. Quite naturally and properly the welfare of your own great university will be your first concern, but, after that, the welfare of all universities must be your concern.

A FEW moments ago I referred to the fact that the increase of knowledge has brought problems with it—problems such as those arising from the development of the atomic bomb and the development of biological warfare. But it has also brought other problems, in that the very magnitude of our knowledge, the sheer mass of facts is so great that it is not accessible to the ordinary man, and often is beyond the range of information of even the wisest and most comprehending. That we are not in worse plight is due to the endeavors of the university in interpreting the ever expanding fields of knowledge.

WITH THE great increase in knowledge in our day, this necessarily means a community of specialists, but it also means a community in which the specialists must seek to understand the specialties of each other and to interpret them not only to their fellow scholars, but to those outside the University community as well.

terpret them not only to their fellow scholars, but to those outside the University community as well. The need for this interpretation is apparent in the issues presently confronting us in the control of atomic energy. How can we take effective political action unless the facts are correctly interpreted to us?

WISE MEN have remarked on the apparent futility of the action which digs gold out of deep veins in the earth, only to have it refined, cast into bars, and deposited once again deep in the earth beyond Fort Knox. The increase of knowledge can hardly be justified if, after the effort is over, the results are to be published in books and pamphlets which are themselves to be lost in the caverns of great libraries. The interpretation of knowledge is necessary in order that it be made accessible to those who are not specialists in the field—to those who may be able to find applications for it in distant fields unknown to the specialists who discovered it.

THE EFFECTIVE transmission and interpretation of knowledge provide hope that we may solve our problems, if we approach them with reason and good will. Reason and good will are not the most common attributes of our civilization. Passion and strife and conflict rank far above them in public attention. The sordid details of a triangular love affair, the trial of a murderer, the struggle for economic power, the licensed warfare of political parties obscure the fact that the correct answer to most private and public questions is to be found only when completely comprehensive knowledge is supplemented by reason and good will.

WITH THE accumulation of all the knowledge now available to us, with the ever-accelerating increase in knowledge, and with an appropriate interpretation of knowledge, past, present and still to come, we have at hand the means for fashioning a great society. It is characteristic of members of primitive societies to believe that they are pawns of an inexorable fate. To avoid famine, flood, or pestilence, they seek to placate their gods or to frustrate the workings of evil spirits. Modern man on the contrary seeks knowledge. He seeks to find the causes of flood, famine and pestilence, and to eradicate them. He seeks to harness the forces of nature and to make them work for him.

IN PRIMITIVE societies man stands in blind resignation in the presence of flood and famine and pestilence. At a later stage he seeks to alleviate the suffering that they bring. Later still he seeks to prevent their violence. Finally he seeks to control the forces of nature so that they become his servant and not his master. Thus man passes from fear and superstition, to understanding, and finally to foresight.

OUR PRESENT capacity to measure the future and to anticipate events is weak and unimpressive. We lack the social tools and the intellectual disciplines required for the exercise of foresight on any comprehensive scale. Even the wisest among us cannot foresee events with clarity and certainty beyond a very short time. Yet the capacity to foresee our future, to anticipate events and to control the direction of our development offers us our most valid hope for the future. It has a double aspect. It will enable us to anticipate evils and forestall them. It will enable us to devise and carry out programs of positive good.

Why do I lay such a charge upon you? Why — in the midst of the twentieth century in a country rich beyond the dreams of ancient Midases — should it be necessary to lay such a charge upon you? It is necessary because in this as in a hundred other aspects of our common life we have lost sight of the ideas and the instrumentalities without which our civilization could not exist. We take our good fortune for granted. We have forgotten to re-explore the underpinnings of our professed beliefs. We do not clearly know the things in which we believe or why we believe in them.

THEY SEEK not only to impart the subject matter of the professions, but to give what we Americans call the "know-how," the means to apply it with skill and precision. Thus the transmission of knowledge is one of the great functions of our modern universities. So important has this function become that without universities it seems probable that we would lack the skill and knowledge necessary to carry on our political, social and economic activities at their present level. If the quality of our universities declines, so must the quality of our civilization decline. Universities are indispensable to the maintenance of our civilization.

SOME TIME ago I was asked whether or no I believed that we were educating too many people. My answer was that we are not educating too many people unless we expect civilization to stop. And universities are one of the great instrumentalities of our advancing civilization. If we place your interest upon the most personal level, I believe that the very jobs you seek are dependent upon the health and prosperity of our universities, and surely as our civilization grows more complex, and as the need to understand and to direct its manifold activities grows more pressing, the indispensable role of universities will stand more clearly revealed than it does today.

FIRST, LET us consider universities as agencies for the transmission of knowledge. In this task, the university is one of many agencies — the home, the church, the school, the college, the library — which endeavor to supply the growing child with the facts and the techniques necessary for satisfactory living in a complex society. There are few things taught in a university that cannot be learned elsewhere. Formal education is designed to foreshorten human experience. It strives to bring each succeeding generation up-to-date with respect to all that is past, so that it may feel at home in the world. The same thing may be accomplished by other methods, but the merit of formal education is that it usually achieves the result by the quickest and most economical means. And the university is the capstone of the educational system.

IT IS the institution which not only provides the student with the higher liberal and scholarly studies, but it provides — and is now almost the exclusive agency for providing — the professional, specialized and technical education without which the work of the world could not be carried on. Medicine, law, dentistry, engineering, commerce, journalism and many other professional fields; physics, chemistry, psychology and many other specialized activities can hardly be undertaken without access to the great universities. In these areas the universities not only seek to transmit knowledge, but they also seek to give their students the capacity to use that knowledge effectively.

THEY SEEK not only to impart the subject matter of the professions, but to give what we Americans call the "know-how," the means to apply it with skill and precision. Thus the transmission of knowledge is one of the great functions of our modern universities. So important has this function become that without universities it seems probable that we would lack the skill and knowledge necessary to carry on our political, social and economic activities at their present level. If the quality of our universities declines, so must the quality of our civilization decline. Universities are indispensable to the maintenance of our civilization.

SOME TIME ago I was asked whether or no I believed that we were educating too many people. My answer was that we are not educating too many people unless we expect civilization to stop. And universities are one of the great instrumentalities of our advancing civilization. If we place your interest upon the most personal level, I believe that the very jobs you seek are dependent upon the health and prosperity of our universities, and surely as our civilization grows more complex, and as the need to understand and to direct its manifold activities grows more pressing, the indispensable role of universities will stand more clearly revealed than it does today.

Yet these great instrumentalities of our civilization — the universities — stand in grave peril today throughout the world. They stand in grave peril even in the United States. For the sake of yourselves, your children and your children's children, I charge you to make their health and vigor a matter of your first concern!

'He Framed Me,' Says Youth After Killing Sleeping Brother

OAKLAND, CALIF. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy, clubbed to death in his sleep early yesterday, was the victim of an older half-brother's revenge, Police Inspector Merle Longnecker reported. The victim was Edward Johansen. The killer, Longnecker said, was Joseph Johansen, 21, who claimed the younger boy "framed me" for breaking into a family food locker.

Joseph gave himself up to police after reading in newspapers that he was being sought in connection with the killing. He was held for investigation of murder. Joseph directed police to a pile of grass four blocks from the Johansen family home. They uncovered a bloody sledge hammer and a pair of gloves. Inspector Longnecker reported Joseph accused Edward and another brother, Donald, 17, of blaming him for breaking into a family food locker. Joseph said he crept into a cottage in the rear of the family home where the boys sleep and struck Edward on the head three times with the sledge, police reported. "He just groaned," Longnecker quoted him.

Jay 'Ding' Darling To Award Cartoon Collection to SUI

Cartoons, spanning the political, social and economic history of the United States for nearly half a century, are being turned over to SUI by Jay N. (Ding) Darling. Darling, twice a winner of Pulitzer prizes for his editorial cartooning, retired two months ago from the Des Moines Register after 49 years in the cartooning field. Over 17,000 cartoons have carried the "Ding" trademark. The collection that will be presented to SUI includes documents and correspondence which can be used in correlating records of the early history of natural resources of Iowa and the nation. The "Iowa Room" of the new SUI library, designed to hold records of Iowans who have distinguished themselves in all fields, will contain the Darling collection. Ralph E. Ellsworth, director of libraries, pointed out the importance of having Ding's cartoons in the new library. "Ding's untiring efforts for conservation will be remembered by Iowans and the nation, and there is something infinitely more inspiring in seeing the original cartoons and correspondence than the reprints," Ellsworth said. President Virgil M. Hancher, upon learning of Ding's contribution to SUI, said: "The State University of Iowa feels extremely honored in Mr. Darling's willingness to see his records, cartoon proofs, original drawings and correspondence in the custody of the university and its new library." Darling won the Pulitzer prize for cartooning in 1924 and 1934.

Drake Professor To Teach at SUI

Prof. Leland S. Forrest, Drake University school of law, will teach an eight - weeks summer course in civil procedure at SUI, Dean Mason Ladd, college of law, said yesterday. The "visiting professor" has been a member of the Drake faculty for many years, Dean Ladd said, and has had an extensive legal practice in Des Moines. Forrest received his A.B. at the University of Arkansas and his J.D. at the University of Michigan. He was formerly the assistant city attorney in Des Moines. The civil procedure course was formerly taught by Prof. Leo Levin, who left the SUI faculty this spring to teach at Northwestern university this summer and at the University of Pennsylvania next fall.

Johnson To Direct Y-Teen Discussion

Prof. Jack T. Johnson of the SUI political science department will direct a discussion on world citizenship at the Iowa "Y-Teens" summer conference at Grinnell college June 19-25. More than 300 high school girls from city and rural communities - in Iowa will attend the event, Mrs. A. D. Hensleigh, member of the YWCA state board, said, yesterday. The conference is sponsored by the state "Y" club. Several national and international "Y" leaders are also scheduled to attend the conference. The mornings of the conference will be devoted to discussions and the afternoons to swimming, horseback riding, tennis, badminton and arts and crafts.

Terror Strikes Colorado U. After 'Lovers Lane' Murder

BOULDER, COLO., (UP)—Students kept together in uneasy groups at Colorado university last night lest they fall prey to a maniacal killer at large after clubbing to death a young honor student.

The slaying of 19-year-old Roy G. Spore Jr. beside a rain-swollen campus creek three nights ago turned the sprawling mountainside university into a place of fear. Authorities admitted they find no clues to the mysterious attacker.

It was the second murder of a Colorado university student within seven months. An 18-year-old coed, Theresa Foster, was raped and slain in a nearby "lovers lane" last Nov. 9. A coroner's jury yesterday afternoon ruled that Spore met death by drowning "after receiving numerous blows by some blunt instrument delivered with felonious intent by an unknown person."

Sheriff Arthur Everson said several persons had been questioned following the discovery of Spore's body Friday. But he said as yet "we have no suspects."

Most of the student body of 8,600 completed their regular term Friday and lost no time in leaving the campus.

Some 3,000 students remained, mainly for commencement exercises—scheduled tomorrow. University officials cautioned them to double-date at all times as a protection against the night-time attacker who took the life of Spore and injured his co-ed companion.

The girl, Doris Ann Weaver, 18, of Twin Falls, Id., stumbled back to her dormitory Thursday night.

Business BRIEFS

The battle against summer heat has begun, but here's good relief. The A & W Rootbeer stand, Riverside drive just south of West Benton street, opened last night. The stand will have its formal opening Wednesday, co-managers Rick and Phyllis Bremer said.

The Bremers, a brother and sister team, had managed The Mug across from the Hydraulics laboratory for the past two summers. Now they own the new stand. They feature cold rootbeer, sandwiches, and ice cream products all delivered to your car if you like.

The Blackman Decorators, Inc. formally opened yesterday their new location, 624 S. Dubuque street. The business specializes in home decorations and features lines of floor coverings, shades, rugs, awnings, and wall tile. The new location has a 40 foot front. The firm had been at 321 S. Clinton for two years.

For those who like to dance here's a new spot to try. Smitty's Corner, owned by Kenneth Smith, Oxford, will open this week. It is six miles south of Iowa City on highway 218 and one mile east on highway 22. Smitty's Corner eventually will enlarge to include dining facilities in addition to dancing.

THIS WEEK'S music

BY DONALD KEY
Live music is becoming increasingly difficult to find these days with so many new gadgets and accommodations for listening to canned music.

This seems to be especially true during the summer months when the symphony and opera seasons are over. Few towns and cities can afford to sponsor summer music.

A great deal of credit should go to the musicians union for its effort to remedy this situation. Money from their recording fund has sponsored band and orchestras during the summer when it would have otherwise been impossible.

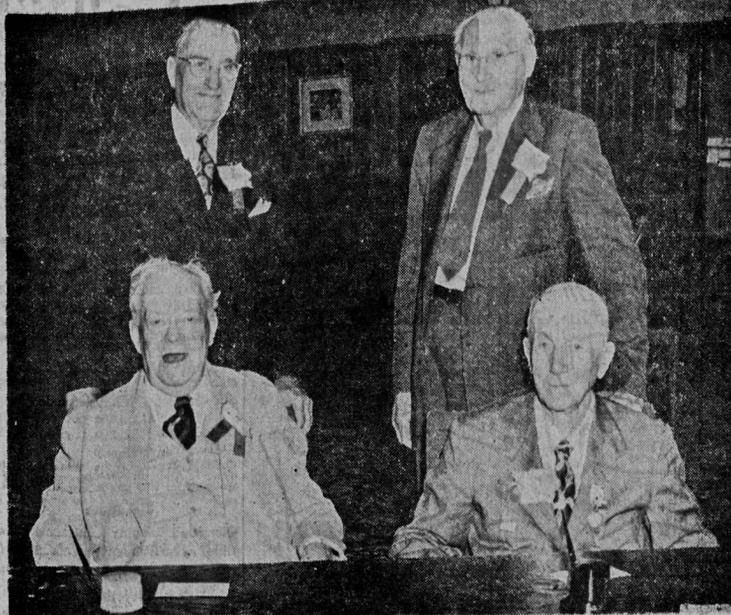

The musicians union in Iowa City will be presenting a carnival of bands next October under such sponsorship.

Cedar Rapids is organizing a summer band to give concerts on Sunday nights in a centrally located park. Such a program was carried out there last year and the concerts became so popular that a local radio station devoted a half hour broadcast to them.

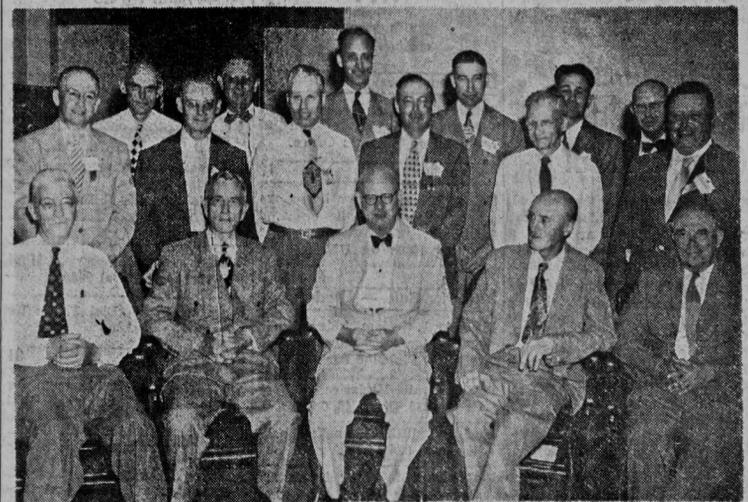

Musicians playing in these concerts are paid from the recording fund of the musicians union. The fund also has supplied music for veteran hospitals, teen-age dances and general hospitals throughout the country.

Summer music in Iowa City will be somewhat at a standstill until the university organizations get under way. The SUI orchestra and chorus are both planning a busy program, with the climax being a performance of Arthur Honegger's oratorio, "King David."

Old Grads Renew Acquaintances on Alumni Day

FOUR OCTOGENARIANS WERE AMONG THE OLDER "OLD GRADS" who registered for Alumni Day at the Iowa Union yesterday. Seated are (left to right) Judge W. Bollinger, 80, Davenport, and Dr. John F. Newell, 87, Hutchinson, Kan. Standing are (left to right) Dr. James F. Presnell, 82, Los Angeles, Calif., and Dr. L. W. Harding, 83, Lexington, Ky. Harding was a member of the class of '90; the others were in the class of '89.

SUI Alumni Return to Campus for Reunion

Yesterday was Alumni Day at SUI, and grads old and not so old flocked back to the Iowa campus for the happy reunion.

Hugs, hello's and handshakes were in evidence everywhere as old friends got together to talk of days past and affairs present. Individual classes held reunion luncheons at various spots around Iowa City, elected new class officers and counted noses of those present and spoke of others who missed the celebration.

University-sponsored tours and visits were held for alumni who wished to participate, and a representative exhibit of art pieces was displayed in the Iowa union and other campus buildings.

Special events of the day held at the union were the Silver Jubilee luncheon at 12:30 p.m., the all-alumni hour from 3-5 p.m., and the Golden Jubilee dinner at 8:30 p.m.

Hotels, dormitories, and homes of friends housed those spending the weekend in Iowa City. Some of the male graduates now can say they were once housed at Currier hall.

City Issues $33,450 In Building Permits

Building permits issued by the city engineer's office for the week ending Friday totaled $33,450. They included three residence and two remodeling projects.

Permits issued last week included:

Residence — Phillip W. Willis, 230 Hutchinson avenue, $15,000; Verna J. Shimon, East College street, $9,000, and Arlo Rogers, 713 Page street, $8,000.

Remodeling — Erich Funke, 505 Clark street, $1,000 and John Yordi, 714 N. Van Buren street, $150.

Goes to Police to Prove He's Sober—He Isn't

DAVENPORT — Wilbert Urmy, 49, faced a drunken driving charge last night due to his own suggestion and the co-operation of police.

Urmy was involved in an auto accident yesterday. He immediately hiked to police headquarters and demanded a blood test. "I'm not drunk," he told police.

The officers obliged. Results of the test indicated that Urmy was no judge of his own intoxication. He was ordered held to Scott county district court under $500 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

3 Students Involved In Auto Accidents

Two accidents yesterday morning resulted in damage estimated at $252.30 to the four cars involved, according to accident reports filed yesterday. No injuries were reported.

An estimated $100 damage was done to a car driven by Milton Gordon, A2, Council Bluffs. The grill and headlight of the Gordon machine was damaged, the report said.

Robert F. Crumley, C4, Iowa City, reported a smashed trunk lid and a bent bumper. He estimated $77.30 damage to his car.

James W. Springer, A2, Charles City, estimated $25 damage done to the taxicab he was driving as the result of an accident on Jefferson street near the Hotel Jefferson. He reported $50 damage done to the right side of the other car involved, driven by Nellie Vininorie, 415 E. Jefferson street.

SUI, City Officials Debate Over Tree

It was "woodman spare that tree" last night on Riverside drive between Melrose and Myrtle avenues while city and university officials dickered about who would remove a tree that fell across highway 218 about 7:30.

Finally a compromise was worked out, and while police rerouted traffic around the obstacle, university and city workmen cut up and removed the tree. Normal traffic was resumed about 9:30 p.m.

1,100 Pay to Swim In City's New Pool

Approximately 1,100 persons paid admission to swim in the new city park swimming pool on its opening day yesterday, Pool Manager William Boswell Jr. said last night.

First person in the pool after its 1 p.m. opening was 12-year-old Melvin Vevera, 1121 N. Dodge street. Early comers stood in a half-block long line to get in.

Seven Plays Picked For 11th Arts Show

Seven plays will be presented in SUI's 11th Annual Fine Arts festival June 15 through August 7, Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts, said yesterday.

The first play, "There's Always Juliet," by John Van Druten will be presented June 21-25. Other plays to be presented will be "The Merry Wives of Windsor" by William Shakespeare; "Jeb" by Robert Arday; "The Fatal Weakness" by George Kelly; "Berkley Square" by John Balderston; "Command Decision" by William Wister Haines and "The Young and Fair" by Richard Nash.

The first play will be presented from June 21 through 25, with others tentatively scheduled for June 28-July 2; July 5-8; July 12-16; July 19-23; July 26-30 and August 2-6.

EVELYN TIERNEY DIES
Evelyn Tierney, 30, Elma, died at 3:35 a.m. yesterday at University hospitals according to hospital officials. She was admitted to the hospitals May 19.
