Coplon Admits Inquiries for Visiting Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judith Coplon conceded under cross-examination yesterday that she inquired repeatedly about visiting Russia in the spring of 1948, a year before the FBI seized her for allegedly stealing government secrets intending to aid Moscow.

But she swore it was just curiosity, not a desire to live with the Soviets.

Miss Coplon made the disclosure of the possible Russian venture as her two-months-old espionage trial moved toward the end. The verdict in the case is expected next week.

Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley Jr. told newsmen he expects to wind up his cross-examination after about two more hours.

Kelley questioned Miss Coplon at length about her acknowledged desire to see what went on "behind the Soviet iron curtain," as she put it.

Under questioning, Miss Coplon said yesterday she did inquire about the possibility of visiting Russia "in an objective sense to see what it was like and not because I was in love with the country."

Then, catching the implication of Kelley's questions, she said quickly that a curiosity to see what Russia is like was different than going to live there.

Miss Coplon said she discussed the idea with William E. Foley, her chief when she worked in the justice department, but Foley advised her against it.

In her third successive day under cross-examination, Miss Coplon again showed the strain of her ordeal by repeatedly crying out that the government is not giving her a fair chance to defend herself.

"I feel that I'm kept in a strait-jacket," she said angrily at one point.

Seeks Delay on Hawaiian Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Butler (R - Neb) recommended yesterday that congress abandon consideration of statehood for Hawaii until "the menace of lawless communism" in the islands is put down.

He spoke out against the background of a longshoremen's strike which tied up virtually all sea commerce to the territory since May 1. The strike was called by the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union to enforce demands for a wage increase.

In an official report to the senate on a one-man investigation he conducted last year, Butler declared that Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU, is "the unseen Communist dictator of the territory of Hawaii."

"My visit to Hawaii, supported by many interviews on the islands, leaves me with the deep conviction that international revolutionary communism at present has a firm grip on the economic, political and social life of the territory of Hawaii," Butler declared.

Tuition Fees Due By 5 P.M. Today

Students still have until 5 p.m. today to pay their tuition fees at the office of the treasurer in University hall.

An assessment will be made for late fee payment after today. Payment is not being conducted alphabetically.

All holders of assistantships, scholarships, or appointments, graduate or undergraduate, must complete their registration by signing their rebate vouchers at the treasurer's office. This group includes veterans using public laws 16 and 348.

Fees must be paid in full before registration is complete, Registrar Ted McCarrel said.

Cracked Cylinder Strands Plane Passengers in Iowa City

STRANDED AT THE AIRPORT, Mrs. U. K. Reese, Cedar Rapids, was one of 11 passengers on a United Airlines' Mainliner that developed engine trouble several minutes after leaving the Iowa City airport yesterday afternoon. The plane returned here to land with only one engine running. Mrs. Reese planned to try again today to fly to Boston. Insert shows Edwin Mill, Iowa City mechanic, checking the left engine of the craft while First Officer Ralph Larsen, left, watches. The engine had a cracked cylinder. The plane was to be grounded until mechanics arrived from Chicago with parts needed to repair the engine. R. D. McWilliams, station manager said. Prof. John E. Briggs, of the SUI political science department, was a passenger on the plane. He was enroute to Washington, D.C. Briggs was expected to leave by train this morning for Washington. Three of the plane's passengers chartered a private plane here and were flown to Chicago. Other passengers and the crew went on to Chicago by train.

Hiss Denies Giving Data to Chambers

NEW YORK (AP)—Point by point, Alger Hiss yesterday denied the charges that he sold out his state department office to a Soviet spy ring.

Whittaker Chambers has testified that, as a former spy ring courier, he got secrets from Hiss for the ring.

Hiss denied Chambers' accusations and denied he even had seen him since Jan. 1, 1937. As a result, a New York grand jury indicted Hiss on two counts of perjury.

Defense Attorney Lloyd Stryker pointed to 42 government exhibits, data slips of state department information which Chambers said he got from Hiss.

"Did you ever furnish, transmit or deliver to Whittaker Chambers?" Stryker asked.

"I did not, Mr. Stryker," the witness said.

Stryker asked if the statements Hiss made to the grand jury and for which he was indicted for perjury were true.

"They were and they are," Hiss said.

Atom Plant Guards Claim Security Lax

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional investigators yesterday received a report that guards at the Great Hanford, Wash., atomic plant are "appalled by the security laxness which has existed for some time and still exists."

The assertion was laid before the senate-house atomic "watch-dog" committee in the form of a letter written by Merle E. Smith Jr., president of the Hanford Guards union local No. 21.

An official of the Hanford plant sharply disagreed with Smith.

Coincidentally with this development, Chairman McMahon (D-Omn.) disclosed that the FBI has been called in to investigate what he termed an "inventory discrepancy" at the Oakridge, Tenn., atomic plant.

McMahon previously said the discrepancy might turn out to be a mere bookkeeping error.

Democratic Leaders Map Labor Strategy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic leaders adopted complicated new strategy yesterday in a bid for support of liberal senators in their effort to keep Taft-Hartley injunctions out of the new administration labor bill.

There were indications that they already had picked up some strength and that the final test between injunctions and plant seizure as a means of coping with national emergency strikes would be extremely close.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas, who has been predicting a close vote all along, said the new strategy will give liberal senators a chance to vote separately on the two methods instead of voting to substitute plant seizure for injunctions.

The new strategy was adopted after the senate, by a vote of 77 to 9, rejected a proposal by Sen. Wayne Morse, (R-Ore) which would have required the president to hand congress recommendations for handling emergency strikes.

If his recommendations included seizure, he could have taken over the plants in 10 days unless the proposal was vetoed by congress before then. The maximum period of seizure would have been 80 days.

Lucas said President Truman was not aware of the shift in strategy. But he said the President "obviously would approve because it is in line with his labor philosophies."

Czech Labor Paper Attacks Archbishop

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (AP)—Government-sponsored agencies loosed new attacks on Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran and his bishops yesterday and warned they were liable to prosecution for "subversive" activities.

The labor union newspaper Prace said that Catholic church leaders had used "open threats and pressure" in the last few days on priests who approved the government's new Catholic Action organization.

"These are, of course, illegal, anti-state, anti-popular and punishable methods," Prace said.

Complaining that church officials prevented an agreement with the state, Prace said:

"The high church hierarchy, instead of listening to the voice of its believers, used all its authority to make this action impossible."

Church sources said that Archbishop Josef Matocha, of Olomouc, the country's second ranking Catholic archbishop, has received the same treatment as that given here to Archbishop Beran.

Archbishop Matocha's office has been put under police control.

Prosecution Rests Robert Noble Case

SOUTH BEND (AP)—The state rested its reckless homicide case against Robert D. Noble, Iowa City, yesterday and court was recessed until 9 a.m. (Iowa time) Monday.

Mary Lentine, Mishawaka, Ind., the state's final witness, testified she was a passenger in Noble's car the night of Oct. 25, 1947, when the state contends it struck a group of students near the Notre Dame campus and killed two of them.

The accident occurred after the Iowa-Notre Dame football game. Noble is an official of the SUI Alumni association.

The night of the accident, she testified, Noble approached a group of which she was a member in a tavern. They talked and had several drinks, she related after which the party loaded into two cars and drove toward the Notre Dame campus.

Miss Lentine testified Noble bumped the other car from behind while both were traveling toward the campus before Noble stopped at a traffic signal. She said the accident occurred as Noble was driving at a high speed trying to overtake the other automobile.

Last night Edward J. "Buddy" Beckwith, 27, Morrison, was arrested by a posse of four men. Grundy County Sheriff John A. Meyer said Beckwith was found lying on his stomach in a muddy corn field a little more than an hour after the state highway patrol had broadcast a pickup alarm for him.

The sheriff said Beckwith was taken to the county jail at Grundy Center. There he refused to talk at all, the officer said, except to request that he be allowed to stay with his mother last night.

It was to his widowed mother, Mrs. E.M. Beckwith, to whom the sheriff said Beckwith earlier said he committed the slaying.

Tucker, Six Aides Enter Innocent Plea

CHICAGO (AP)—Preston Tucker Sr., and six associates in his ill-starred automobile manufacturing venture pleaded innocent in federal court yesterday to charges of mail fraud, conspiracy and irregularities in the issuance of stock.

Tucker's attorney asked for an immediate trial, but was cut short by objections from U.S. Attorney Otto Kerner Jr.

Tucker and seven others were indicted June 10 on charges resulting from their efforts to finance the Tucker corp., which has used up about $26-million in an unsuccessful effort to mass produce a "revolutionary" rear-drive automobile.

Iowa Board of Education Studies Faculty Matters

Faculty appointments and resignations at SUI were among matters discussed here yesterday at a meeting of the Iowa state board of education, according to the office of President Virgil M. Hancher.

Subcommittees of the board met yesterday, and the full board will meet at 9 a.m. today. No announcements of major decisions are expected until the entire board has convened.

Acheson Asserts Russia Thrown On Defensive

Not a Music Lover in the Crowd

COMPTON, CALIF. (AP)—Bar proprietor Willie Jackson's protests that he didn't know there was a curfew on juke boxes went unheeded yesterday as he was jailed for keeping the music box going at 2:20 a.m.

Officers G.W. Vann and J.W. Alston booked him on charges of disturbing the peace. Neighbors cheered as Jackson was led to the pokey.

Lewis Offers No Strike Bait During Coal Talks

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.VA.—(AP)—John L. Lewis dangled the bait of "no strike" before three-fourths of the soft coal industry Thursday, hinting that operators who do not join in contract talks here might be shut down next month.

The United Mine Workers' chief never mentioned strike. But he and operators from the north, west and part of the south, representing nearly 250-million tons of annual bituminous coal production, sent out blanket invitations to the scattering of employers not in the conference to join in the talks.

No invitation went to the Southern Coal Producers association, which is negotiating with Lewis' lieutenants at Bluefield, W. Va. Some segments of this group have withdrawn from negotiations there, obviously meant to isolate the southern group, producing about 100-million tons a year, because it tried to push Lewis into a separate agreement.

The current contract expires June 30. The miners have a 10-day vacation lasting until July 5. After that, any groups without a contract are threatened with a walkout.

But the operators in the White Sulphur Springs meeting are confident they won't be struck on July 5. They point to the fact that Lewis notified them on June 14 the contract would expire shortly and asked them to meet him.

Under the Taft-Hartley act, a party wanting to terminate a contract is required to give the other party 60 days' notice.

In the opinion of the northern operators, Lewis does not intend to shut down their mines before August 14 — 60 days from the date of his notice.

Lewis offered little help to the northern operators in forming this opinion. But, on the other hand, he did nothing to stop them from making public statements on the subject.

G-Men May Investigate Alabama's Night Riders

WASHINGTON (AP)—The FBI has completed a preliminary investigation of Alabama's hooded mobs and a decision is pending on whether the G-men will go south to track down the night riders, it was disclosed yesterday.

At the same time, the justice department ordered a lawyer who has been working on the case to cooperate closely with a house judiciary subcommittee which is conducting a separate investigation.

West Fails to Find Key to Rail Strike

BERLIN (AP)—The western powers tried again yesterday to find a solution to the tangled Berlin rail strike and failed.

After a three-hour meeting of the U.S., British and French commanders, a spokesman said "no decisions were reached and nothing was agreed upon worthy of an announcement."

The strike of west Berlin's railway workers has bottled up freight shipments in the four-power city since May 21. It was called to stress union demands for full payment of wages in west marks, f.b security and union recognition.

Says Russians Afraid to Give Germans Voice

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has been thrown on the defensive in Europe and is now afraid to give the Germans a voice in their own affairs, Secretary of State Dean Acheson asserted yesterday.

Reporting to a news conference on the recent Paris big four meeting, he said the Soviet's fearful refusal to relax the Communist army's grip on eastern Germany proves that firm U.S. policies, such as the Marshall Recovery plan and the north Atlantic defense pact, have put western Europe's Communists in retreat.

He met reporters soon after warning a closed session of the house foreign affairs committee that it would be "tragic" if congress fails to press the advantage by not acting at this session on both the Atlantic pact and a $1.45-billion arms-aid-to-Europe program to back it up.

Acheson also made a strong appeal to the committee for prompt action on a $150-million U.S. aid bill for Korea, which he described as an essential non-Communist outpost in the far east.

Picturing Korea's democratic government as a "symbol of hope" to the Chinese and other Asiatic peoples who have "fallen under the oppressive yoke of communism," he said U.S. aid is urgently needed to enable the country to remain free of Soviet domination.

Acheson also revealed that the administration is considering publication of a "white paper" defending its policy of holding off further aid to Nationalist China.

While he refused to describe the Paris meeting as a success, he said it registered modest gains in progress toward an Austrian treaty, and in relaxing tension in Germany by clearly establishing that the Berlin blockade is not to be reestablished.

Acheson said the chief value of the Paris meeting was that it proved that Russia has switched to defensive tactics in Europe, in the face of successful western policies of restoring economic strength and political stability.

The United States, Britain and France, he said, did not retreat an inch from those policies at Paris, but displayed their willingness to restore self-government to Germany as swiftly as possible under any system that guarantees basic human freedoms.

Rainstorm, 50 Mile Wind Down Trees, Wires in Iowa City

Winds reaching 50 miles per hour, driving rain and lightning brought down several trees and electric wires in Iowa City about 8:30 last night.

Police said trees were felled either by lightning or wind at 719 Third avenue, 328 North Center street and on Solon road.

Electric wires were knocked down and burned on Dodge street between Iowa avenue and Jefferson street and at Gilbert and Jefferson streets. Wires were also down at 119 Pearl street, 1018 Ridder street and at 322 North Clinton street.

A falling tree limb, which knocked down three electric wires at Jefferson and Gilbert streets, landed on the top of an auto owned by Frank Klueber, G. 153 Riverside park. The car was not damaged, police said.

Antenna Falls . . .

DECORAH (AP)—Heavy wind and rain struck Decorah last night, flooding streets curb deep and knocking the antenna tower of radio station KDEC to the ground.

The storm struck about 6 p.m., and reports of trees felled and other property damage came from all parts of the town.

Highway 52 was reported covered with running water several inches deep north of town.

Tommy Byrne Stops Detroit On 1-Hit

Lipon's Safety Only Base Hit

NEW YORK (AP)—The Yankees' Tommy Byrne came within a foot of pitching a no-hitter last night as New York humbled the Detroit Tigers, 12-0.

The lefthander hurled seven hitless innings before Shortstop Johnny Lipon laced out the Lone Tiger safety—a single that fell one foot fair inside the left field foul line.

Lipon caught hold of the first ball pitched in the eighth inning for his spoiler.

The Yankees' big bat noise was furnished by Tommy Henrich, who drove in five runs, two of them with his 15th home run in the first inning.

Byrne struck out 11 batters. He pitched a perfect game through the first six innings.

Falkenburg Advances In Wimbledon Meet

LONDON (AP)—Defending Champion Bob Falkenburg and Jaroslav Drobný nipped off a couple of threatened upsets in the fifth set yesterday to gain berths in the last 16 of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The six other seeded men stars, three of them Americans, survived a day of heat and thrills with straight set triumphs witnessed by more than 25,000 fans.

Falkenburg used his five inch height advantage and his devastating service to oust Josef Asboth, 31-year-old Hungarian who taught tennis to the Russians last winter.

Settling any doubts, the fourth-seeded Yank from Beverly Hills rocketed in a service ace for the match point to win 6-4, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

FRISCO NEAR TITLE
AUSTIN, TEX. (AP)—San Francisco university virtually clinched the team championship of the National Collegiate Tennis tournament yesterday as it ran its total to five points and placed both a single and doubles entry in the semi-finals.

Tricked by the Pick-Off Play

Charles, Jersey Joe $53,857 Richer Following Title Scrap

CHICAGO (AP)—Ezzard Charles, enriched by $53,857.30 and the NBA share of Joe Louis' vacated heavyweight crown, yesterday made plans to meet the winner of London's Sept. 6 Lee Savold-Bruce Woodcock fight for the undisputed crown.

Charles, wearing a slight patch over his left eye and an egg-sized mouse underneath the orb, appeared at a downtown hotel to accept the police gazette belt, designating him as world champ.

"I ain't doing nothing without the okay of the IBC (International Boxing Club) or Harry Markson (New York IBC boxing director)."

Mintz, the lord high executioner of the English language, was in superb form as he hepped between cameramen to greet his victorious "Tiger" from Cincinnati.

Charles, wearing a slight patch over his left eye and an egg-sized mouse underneath the orb, appeared at a downtown hotel to accept the police gazette belt, designating him as world champ.

"Jake has promised to give Savold the shot if he gets past Woodcock," said Jim Norris, a partner in the IBC. "If they could move up that September fight we might have the winner fight Charles late in September."

Walcott, who also received a 25 percent share of $53,857.30, exactly the same as Charles, will be used in the garden during the fall and winter, possibly against Joe Baksi.

Giant Miscues Aid Cards to 10-6 Win And Series Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made the most of six hits and four Giant errors yesterday to whip New York, 10-6. Seven of the Card runs were unearned.

The victory gave the Cards the series, three games to one, and kept them on the heels of the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers, who lead by half a game. Brooklyn beat Cincinnati, 7-2.

The Giants outdid St. Louis, 12-6, but unsure fielding and loose pitching in the clutches proved their undoing.

Ron Northey hit a home run with none on for the Cardinals in the second. Glenn Nelson poked one in the fourth to give St. Louis three unearned runs.

Sid Gordon and Joe LaFata homered for the Giants in the eighth.

Howie Pollet was the winning pitcher, although relieved by Red Mungler in the eighth. Clint Hartung, the start of a four-man pitching parade by the Giants, was the loser.

Red Sox' McDermott Wins 3-Hitter, 7-0

BOSTON (AP)—Rookie Left-hander Maurice McDermott pitched a three hit shutout last night in steering the Boston Red Sox to a 7-0 triumph over the St. Louis Browns. McDermott faced only 28 batters in winning his second major league victory. He walked two and struck out six. Four Boston double plays limited the Browns to one left on base.

Not a Brownie reached second against the slim left hander, who will be 21 years old August 29. McDermott has had a reputation for wildness but last night he needed only 108 pitches to notch his second decision in as many starts.

Al (Zeke) Zarilla hit his fifth homer of the season for the Sox. St. Louis 000 000 000—0 3 1

It's Possible He Was Driving to a Tee Party

NASHVILLE, TENN. (AP)—Luke Morris, who works in the Belle Meade club golf shop, was talking to himself yesterday.

Here's why: "Gimme a dozen golf balls," a customer ordered. "Okay, shall I wrap 'em up?" Morris asked. "No," was the reply, "just tee 'em up, and I'll drive 'em home."

BAA May Fold
WASHINGTON (AP)—Basketball Association of America owners have decided to abandon it after next season if they continue to lose money, it was reported yesterday.

They said owners of the pro league's 12 teams agree the league "must show an overall profit this coming season (1949-50) — or else."

Hatten Hurls 6-Hitter At 'Cousin' Redlegs; Dodgers Keep Lead

CINCINNATI (AP)—Lefty Joe Hatten, who apparently can do no wrong when he takes the mound against Cincinnati, whipped the Redlegs for the third time of the season yesterday — this time by a 7-2 margin.

The triumph enabled the Dodgers to stay a half game ahead of the second place St. Louis Cardinals.

Hatten held the Reds to six hits, but nevertheless was behind, 1-0, until the sixth when Marv Rackley hit his first major league home run with Peeewe Reese aboard. That put Burt Shotton's crew in the van and they never were headed.

The Dodgers managed to touch three Red hurlers for only seven hits but they took advantage of eight walks.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A 14 hit batting attack, which included Sam Chapman's eighth homer of the year, carried the Philadelphia Athletics to an easy 11-4 decision over the Chicago White Sox last night as Rookie Southpaw Alex Kellner chalked up his tenth pitching triumph.

Chapman had three other hits, a double and two singles to pace the batting barrage against Howie Judson, who was charged with his ninth straight defeat, Chick Pieretti and Clyde Shoun. The Philadelphia outfielder drove in four runs.

Kellner served up three home run balls to Joe Tipton, twice, and Steve Souchock.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The scrappy Philadelphia Phillies pulled a triple play against the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday, then went on to slam out a 9-3 decision over the Pirates to give them three out of four of the series.

Braves' 15-Hit Attack Pounds Chicago, 12-5

CHICAGO (AP)—The Boston Braves pounded five Chicago Cubs hurlers for 15 hits here yesterday for a 12-5 triumph that split the four-game series.

Dutch Leonard was routed with a four-run blast in the first inning, in which the big blow was a three-run homer by Bob Elliott, his fourth of the season. The Braves were never headed thereafter. One of their other wallpaws was Elbie Fletcher's second homer of the season.

Warren Spahn went the route for the Braves, allowing eight hits for his ninth win. One of the blows off him was Hank Sauer's seventh homer with two mates aboard.

The defeat was the ninth for Leonard against only two victories.

Washington (AP)—Second Baseman Joe Gordon's leaping stab of Eddie Robinson's liner with the tying run on third base and two out in the ninth preserved a 4-3 victory for Cleveland over Washington last night before a crowd of 21,694.

Early Wynn was driven from the mound with one out in the ninth but received credit for the triumph, his fourth without a defeat.

Milk Products Pep Up Summer Season Meals

Vegetables, Salads Improved by Cream

June is National Dairy month and American housewives can pay tribute to versatile milk products by using them in warm weather meals.

Vegetables, fresh from the garden or grocer, perk up summer appetites when creamed. Cottage cheese is also a hot weather standby to dress up salads or luncheon plates.

Desserts, too, claim their share of this valuable product. Ice cream, puddings and fruits in cream are especially popular.

For breakfast, lunch, or dinner, milk should be served in some form. There's even a way to get its benefit in pastry and breads as in cream muffins, a good starter for any summer morning when served with fresh fruit preserves.

The ingredients needed for these muffins include:

- 1 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1-4 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1-2 cup light cream
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine (melted)

METHOD

Sift the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Beat eggs until thick; add cream and beat again to combine. Add slightly cooled melted butter or margarine. Next, mix the liquid ingredients with the dry ingredients and stir until the latter are moistened and the batter is stiff. Spoon into buttered muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot (400 degree F) oven until lightly browned, about 20 minutes. This recipe makes about 8 medium-sized muffins.

Wylie's Astronomy Works Twice Cited

Research work by Charles C. Wylie, professor of astronomy, has been referred to in a book published recently and in the current issue of an astronomy magazine.

"The Face of the Moon," by Ralph B. Baldwin, published by the University of Chicago press, refers several times to Wylie's work with the planets. This book is the most recent of the comparatively few that have been published on this subject.

The June issue of "Popular Astronomy" carries an article entitled "Climate in the Upper Mediterranean United States, and its Relation to Sunspots" by Franklin J. Ryder. The article refers to Wylie as having shown that there is a direct correlation between yield of corn in Iowa to sunspots.

U.S. Colleges Ought To Admit Foreign Students: Hitchcock

American colleges and universities should admit as many foreign students as they can, Prof. Orville Hitchcock of the SUI speech department said yesterday. He has just returned from a meeting sponsored by the American Council in Education held June 19-22 at Estes Park, Colo.

"It was agreed at the conference that colleges and universities should use all their resources in promoting international understanding," Hitchcock said.

"Foreign students should be invited to participate in more school programs, debates and student government so that they will get the flavor of American life," he said.

To further promote international understanding, school projects should enable American students to go abroad so they can better understand American and other cultures, Hitchcock said.

Conference members also agreed that universities and colleges should offer more extracurricular activities and instruction in courses that will teach American students more about other peoples and countries, he said.

Missionary 36 Years — Sees India Change

By BILL CHENG

Women in India are not so despised as they once were, Louisa Miller, retired missionary of the United Lutheran church, said here yesterday.

Christianity has helped to elevate the status of Indian women, she said. On her first visit to India 36 years ago, the practice of burning women alive with the bodies of their husbands was still prevalent. Today the In-

MISS MILLER

Miller said he was a great reformer who approved only the philanthropic work of foreign churches. Gandhi did not like to see Hindus drift away from Hinduism.

After the assassination of Gandhi, leaders of independent India realized Hinduism was not adequate for the new government. They have adapted the U.S. Constitution to suit the needs of forming a democratic secular government.

Some of the youths who scorned Christianity during her first years in India have become important government officials and have declared freedom of religion, Miss Miller said.

Much has yet to be done in India as only two percent of Hindus have become Christians, she added. "For this end we labor and strive because we have our hope set on God."

Born in Algona, Miss Miller was educated in Cedar Falls and Iowa City. While in Cedar Falls, she became a student volunteer to foreign mission work in India. In 36 years of overseas service, she has had four furloughs.

Stationed in Guntur, South India, for 36 years, the SUI graduate volunteered to take up foreign mission work in India in 1913. She had "little time in her life to enjoy the beautiful scenery of Iowa," she said.

Missionary schools for child widows—so called because their husbands die young—and for other Hindu girls have brought great changes in their lives, Miss Miller said.

The retired missionary described India of 30 years ago as "a country with 400-million population and almost as many Hindu idols as people."

"Three-thousand-year-old feudalism, slavery and the caste system made a man a god or a beast according to his birth," the missionary said. Untouchables and foreigners were classed as beasts in early days.

Occasionally some Hindu youths would gather with village children to shout "Gandhi Kee Jai" (Victory to Gandhi) in front of the Christian churches, Hindus had no respect for a foreign religion, Miss Miller said. Higher caste Hindus, however, told the foreign missionaries that if they would refrain from helping the "abominable untouchables," they (the Hindus) would accept Christianity, she explained.

But gradually the work of all denominations succeeded in converting a number of lower caste and higher caste Hindus.

Speaking of Gandhi, Miss

Benton to Organize Navy Research Unit

Prof. Arthur L. Benton of the SUI psychology department has been asked by the U.S. navy to organize a naval reserve research unit here, he said yesterday.

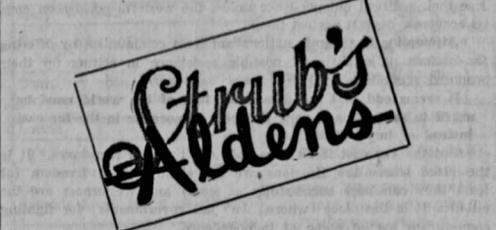

Benton, U.S. naval reserve commander, returned Wednesday from a scientific seminar held June 9-21 in Washington, D.C. The Office of Naval Research sponsored the seminar.

One hundred scientists throughout the country were invited to attend the meeting and see the latest developments in naval research, Benton said.

The navy has established a special naval research reserve organization which will consist of about 4,000 scientifically trained officers.

The purpose of the organization will be to aid the navy in its research and development work and to insure that scientists will be utilized in their proper fields in the event of an emergency, Benton said.

Present plans are to organize the SUI unit this summer or early fall, he said.

Try and Stop Me

When Somerset Maugham, the author of Of Human Bondage, The Razor's Edge, and dozens of other famous novels, visited Bombay, he was definitely neglected by the snobbish English colony. Finally, however, a dowager condescended to speak to him at a large reception.

"Mr. Maugham," she hazarded, "could you by any chance be related to Lord Maugham, the Lord Chancellor?"

"Yes," he said. "He's my brother." The dowager summoned her friends. "This Mr. Maugham," she informed them breathlessly, "is the brother of the Lord Chancellor!" Then with hardly a pause, she said to Mr. Maugham, "Will you come to lunch on Wednesday?"

Twelve-year-old Archibald Von Hoosingsman, scion of a distinguished Knickerbocker family, rubbed his posterior gingerly, and announced to Calvert, the butler, "I'll be eating off the mantelpiece this evening. My father has switched too, Calvert."

On the Far East Battle Line —

The big four "live-and-let-live" stalemate at Paris has assured a period of relative quiet on the western cold war front.

As expected, the east-west power struggle is now shifting to the far east. This week the western world — after years of indecision, blunder and retreat — launched a diplomatic offensive in the Pacific.

The French at long last took a positive step toward ending the civil war in Indo-China. This development and its significance is analyzed by J.M. Roberts elsewhere on the page.

In another move, the Dutch agreed with the Indonesians to withdraw their troops and restore the imprisoned republican government in the East Indies islands "about July 1". Dutch troops are scheduled to begin evacuating today.

The Dutch may find things sharply changed when the republican state of Indonesia is restored. Before they launched the December war last year, the Dutch were dealing with a nationalist movement which had put down a Communist revolt and was awaiting full independence.

After nearly six months as an outlaw movement, the republican government may return to power as a nationalist-Communist coalition. We can only hope such a coalition has not formed deep in the Java hills. If it has, the Dutch will be surrendering their colony not to a republic, but to a Communist state.

The French face the same dilemma in Indo-China. The only difference is that it's definitely too late to prevent a nationalist-Communist coalition there. Both exiled groups have fought shoulder to shoulder since 1945 until today the nationalist VietNam movement is led by Communists.

No, the west cannot take encouragement from its Pacific record V-J day. We can only hope it's not too late to salvage something in southeast Asia.

There are some bright spots spotted over the dismal scene. India is strong and growing stronger, all the time aspiring to be the leader among the new nations of the area. The Philippine republic is in fair shape despite a short-sighted U.S. policy in the Pacific which has pushed the development of Japan ahead of progress in such places as the Philippines.

Australia stands strong, eager to extend commercial and political influence over imperialism's Asiatic graveyard.

The west must map out a diplomatic strategy quickly if it is to keep the far east free of communism. Some suggested steps:

Abandoning the ideology of imperialism.
Helping the young far eastern nations gain political independence and, at the same time, guaranteeing them a fair place in the western commercial world. Nations like Burma and Siam may lose their political independence unless the western world soon ends its economic boycott against them.

Attempting to separate nationalism from communism by offering far eastern nationalists all possible assistance in setting up their proposed republics.

It seems odd that the democratic half of the world must be urged to save its own neck by being democratic in the far east instead of imperialistic.

But the far east is an area of oddities and paradoxes. It is the place where the Russians are the champions of freedom (at least they can pose successfully as such) and westerners are the villains. It is the place where we jail governments for fighting communism in the name of independence.

As events this week indicate, the west is beginning to take inventory in the far east. Sooner or later a line must be drawn south of China dividing Communist Asia from free Asia. The less vacuum we leave, the less distance the Communists will be able to cover by forfeit.

Work It Out or Pay It Out —

A cartoon like the one at the right of these columns is timely most any day in Iowa City. Even though Street Commissioner Willard Irvin's crews were out just a few weeks ago, the holes all over the city streets are beginning to yawn widely again.

Result: automobiles in Iowa City take a terrific pounding from the obstacle course streets they travel daily.

A veteran once remarked Madison street looked like a shell-pocked beach head to him.

The worst of the situation is there's no one you can lay the blame on. Commissioner Irvin works hard to keep Iowa City's streets in decent repair, but the task is more than he and his crews can handle.

More equipment has been purchased in the last year, which may help out on the street repair problem, but there's still the problem of figuring where to get the money to repair the streets even when you have the equipment.

Someone suggested once at a city council meeting it might be a good idea to let violators of traffic ordinances work out their fines by repairing streets.

That sounds a little silly in this day and age, but maybe you don't know your grandfathers worked out their road taxes that way. Money was scarce and when a man had a choice of paying out cash or a few days work, he did the natural thing — he used his time which was plentiful and saved his money because it was scarce.

Actually though, the playful suggestion at city council meeting hits close to the truth. Money from traffic violations of city ordinances goes into the general fund which is the source of supply for street repairs in Iowa City.

Most of the rest of the street repair fund comes from the liquor tax fund or similar funds not earmarked in the budget because their size cannot be determined in advance.

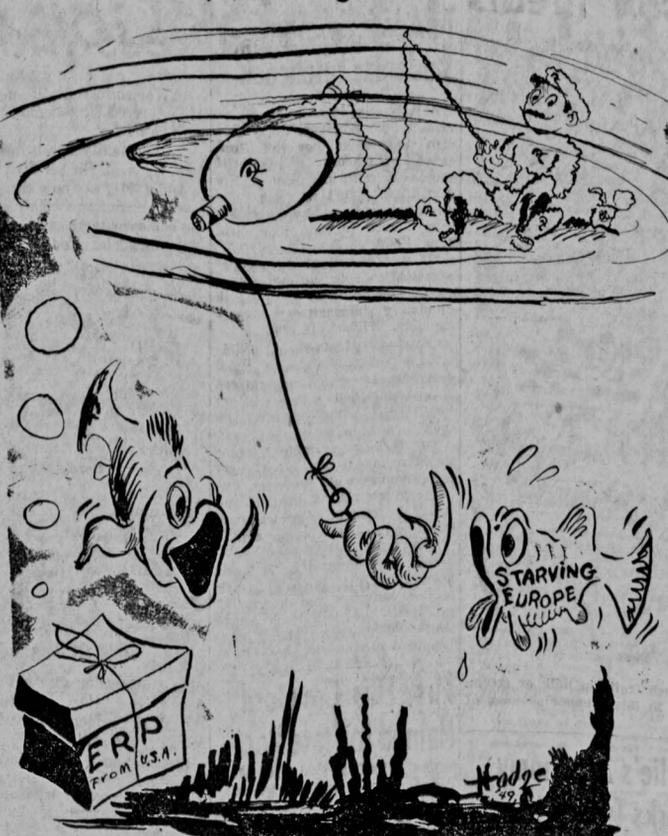

Maybe we'll see some changes in the street conditions by next winter. Aldermen have proposed improving Capitol street because traffic from the new Benton street will probably route itself over that street.

The paving program will probably come before the council soon, and that may mean some streets will be paved and others re-paved.

In the meantime, Commissioner Irvin must continue to devote most of his budget for repairs to maintaining the highways which thread through Iowa City.

After a snow storm in winter, highways 6 and 218 are the first cared for with highway 1 running a close third. That means streets like Dubuque, Dodge and Burlington are key arteries in the scheme and must come before the slippery hills just west of the main part of the business district or any of the residential district.

"Look, Less String and No Hook!"

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Still Likes Marshall Plan

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

I see that the editorialists are earnestly counseling the senate not to cut the next Marshall plan appropriation by $1-billion or by $740-million, or whatever. It sounds like the editorials of a full year ago.

But this is not a repetition of last year's fight. The pundits will be making a great mistake if they think it is. Much is changed in the Marshall plan picture, and the usual holler about keeping our role in the world, etc., is not going to be quite as persuasive as it was.

IN THE FIRST place, a recession has begun. In the second place, the current fight against the Marshall plan is being carried on more by the right than by the left, which makes it harder to beat down.

In the third place, it looks as if we shall have a budget deficit, raising the almost insuperable temptation to balance the books at the expense of Europeans, who don't vote here.

In the fourth place, almost nobody really believes any more that the Marshall plan is going to bring about a complete state of balance and recovery in western Europe, so the very strong argument about giving a lot in a hurry so as not to have to give any later is weakened.

IN OTHER WORDS basic difficulties and potential contradictions that were buried deep down in the Marshall plan setup (and that were easy to keep buried during a boom) are now coming to the surface.

The idea that we needed deliberately to weaken our own competitive position made sense at a time when every other country was stretched out flat on its destiny; maybe it still makes sense during an American recession, but this time you have to use figures, charts, and four-color diagrams to prove it.

Things are getting more complicated, a little thicker — statesmen, for example, who tell the people they cannot have new housing because we must economize, may find it increasingly difficult to speak loud and clear for full Marshall plan spending.

In many ways, this is the morning after, and we look upon the Marshall plan in the gray light of an unattractive dawn.

AND IT SEEMS to me all this is a kind of historic judgment on us because we once closed our eyes to certain facts. Let us go back into history for a moment to see exactly how we did this.

The original Marshall plan conception, if you remember, was based squarely on the idea of an expanded trade between western and eastern Europe.

Partly because it was found much easier to put the Marshall plan through congress on a note of fear of Russia, the original idea of east-west trade got lost in the shuffle.

More than one observer was pained, during the original debate, to see us throwing away the only perspective which could make the Marshall plan work, as the price of getting it passed. We passed it anyway, solemnly setting up a scheme for the recovery of half a world.

THAT WAS THE midnight enthusiasm of which this is the morning after. The Marshall plan, even with some of its main arteries severed, still did a lot of good. I was for it, still am for it, though Europe needed it, still think it needs it, with or without eastern trade.

But the moment it became a closed-orbit plan, its ultimate objectives were vitiated, and that is why the news from western Europe, especially from Britain, is of gathering economic trouble. We can now learn the lesson, and work for a revival of east-west trade, showing ourselves knowing enough to seek out the line of greatest advantage, no matter how difficult or complex

Graduates in Engineering Short on Jobs

Iowa Industry Fails To Place All Men

DES MOINES (AP) — There isn't enough industry in Iowa to employ all of the engineer graduates of the state's institutions of higher learning, a professional engineer claims.

"Some of the record class of 281 candidates who have just taken the state board of engineering examiners' quarterly test will have to seek jobs in other states," Howard R. Green of Cedar Rapids, a board member, explained.

"But," he continued, "practically all states now will recognize an engineer who has been examined in Iowa without further examination."

About 75 percent of the candidates have jobs. Most of these will work in Iowa. But a sizable number of them will spread out to 20 other states and Alaska. There were no women in the class. The candidates will get their examination reports in about a week.

Green, president of a Cedar Rapids engineering company and former chairman of the state board, expressed pride in discussing the examining system in Iowa.

"Iowa is about the first state to recognize the value of giving a preliminary examination," he related. "This test is given while the candidate's college training is fresh in his mind."

"The recent graduate then is issued an engineer-in-training certificate. This qualifies him to take a professional job. After two years of experience he then takes a second test for a professional certificate."

"The 247 candidates who took the preliminary examination last week indicates the idea is taking hold. It was started about five years ago. And now it has been adopted by almost all other states and found satisfactory."

Green also expressed pride in the fact that the 281 who took the preliminary and second tests recently represents the largest class in the 30-year history of the board. Tests were given in 11 different fields of engineering.

Thirty-four sought second or professional certificates. The remainder were trying for the preliminary certificates. Those seeking preliminary certificates were graduates of SUI and Iowa State college.

A total of 220 of them took their tests in one day. They filled the statehouse senate and house chambers, the legislative press desks and eight of nine tables.

Green said the record class, twice as large as the previous high, was the result of "the cumulative effect of GI training. Most of the new graduates are pretty mature. A good many are married. They finished their education after leaving the service."

The Iowa board, Green said, is one of the oldest in the country. He said, "Wyoming was number one in giving women the right to vote and number one in giving professional engineer examinations."

Green said prior to giving the current quarterly tests half a dozen individuals from other states applied for authority to practice engineering in Iowa. Those who had been examined in their home states were granted registration in this state.

Basic Traynor

By NORM TRAYNOR

Was out enjoying the morning air the other day when who should come along but Dan Silvo. I didn't particularly want to run into him but I knew it was senseless to try to avoid Dan Silvo after he had seen me.

If you've never met Dan Silvo you, of course, don't know what I mean. But take it from me, if you ever have the choice of either meeting him or not, don't meet him.

Not that Dan Silvo is such a bad fellow — he really isn't but he's got some funny ways. Of course we all have funny ways but let's just say that Dan's ways are a lot funnier.

Not the kind that make you laugh — although Dan can be a comical guy at times — but the kind of ways that want to make you want to jump in the nearest store when you see him coming.

Now if you did run into the nearest store, you'd just be wasting your time because Dan would be right in after you. And the chances are that he'd get you for something before the day was over.

On this particular day I could almost tell by the way he walked toward me that he was angling for breakfast. Don't ask me how I could tell because it's something you can't express — you just sort of feel it.

Maybe it was the way he kept fixing his tie as he walked, or just the way he kept looking at the menu in the window of the restaurant. Dan loves to eat breakfast and he once told me that it was his favorite meal — that was right after I first met him and I don't believe it anymore.

I think that Dan loves to eat any meal as long as someone else picks up the check.

Well, I decided I'd be ready for him this time. Had already eaten so he couldn't pull that one on me again. Still don't know why I fell for that the first time but it must have been the way he did it.

I thought he was inviting me from the way he asked it. But that's how Dan is — you've got to keep your eye on him or he'll pull something without your even knowing it.

He's almost up to me now and he gives me the big smile. The way that guy smiles is enough to throw anyone off his guard but I'm on to him now so I just ignore the smile.

"Hello, Dan," I say, more out of politeness than anything else. He throws his arm around me and tells me how good I'm looking but I, naturally, don't act like I hear.

"Had breakfast yet?" he asks, and then I know that Dan is slipping because he never uses the same routine twice. I start to feel sorry for the guy because I figure his memory is going.

But I tell him quickly that I've already eaten and watch to see the expression on his face. He doesn't look too unhappy at all and I figure he's going to try something else.

"That's too bad," he says. "I owe you a couple a meals and wanted to pay you back."

I watch him as he heads for the restaurant and, sure enough, he goes in alone. If I had known that I'd have gone with him and forced myself to eat another breakfast. How can you figure a guy like that?

Winter Wheat Crop To Miss Prophecy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The nation's winter wheat crop this year will be inferior to last year's in quality and below June 1 government estimates in quantity, the Cargill Crop bulletin said yesterday.

Unfavorable weather and weed and rust development have struck at the quality of the crop, the trade publication reported. Rains also have slowed progress of the harvest in the southwest wheat belt.

"Just what the final returns will be this year is questionable, but it is apparent that winter wheat production will show a decrease from the June 1 government report," the bulletin said.

Cargill cited private estimates for a loss up to 200-million bushels. If accurate, the 1949 crop would be the smallest since 1945.

Weather caused "some reduction in yields and quality, and aggravated the weed and rust problem," Cargill said. Consequently, quality was expected to run below that of crops of the past few years.

AUTO ACCIDENT

An automobile belonging to Duane Caryl Spriesterbach, 904 Finkbine park, was involved in an accident with an unknown car Wednesday, police reported. Only the description and license number of the second auto were obtained, police said.

Market Basket Index — Five Items Drop Index 14 Cents

The Daily Iowan market basket index took another tumble this week, dropping 14 cents. Five items went down in price, 18 were steady and one price rose, to dip the index to $16.39. It was $16.53 last week.

Ground beef, center cut pork chops and Ivory flakes dropped one cent this week. Red sockeye salmon fell three cents in price while sliced peaches dropped two cents to pace the current trend.

Tendersweet peas, with a one cent rise, was the only item to go up this week.

The erratic action of meat prices in the past weeks is slowing, merchants said. They indicated that after last week's levelling off, meats have continued to come down slightly.

However, most meats were generally steady this week, according to market basket figures. Because of a large hog production predicted for the coming year, some merchants thought pork prices would continue to drop, and would stay low.

A year ago today the market basket total was $17.47, over $1 more than this week. First grade bacon was 15 cents more; "choice" round steak, nine cents; and ground beef six cents more than this week.

charge, has requested his case be waived to the grand jury, Police Judge Emil G. Trott said yesterday.

Sovers was picked up on the Oakdale road at 1 a.m. yesterday morning by State Patrolman Joe L. Smith. He was released on a $500 bond.

Hearing on Sovers' case had originally been set for 5 p.m. this afternoon at police court.

Court Drops Assault Case Against Kiback

Charges of assault with intent to inflict bodily injury, brought against Stephen Joseph Kiback, Coralville, were dropped by request of complainant Gene Herdliska, 328 N. Dodge street, Police Judge Emil G. Trott said yesterday.

Kiback was involved in a disturbance June 6 at Haman's tavern, 209 E. College street, over the disappearance of a $10 bill. Herdliska, a bartender at the tavern, claimed that Kiback pulled a knife on him after being ordered to leave.

Judge Trott read Herdliska's request at a police court hearing set for Kiback yesterday afternoon. The court decided to dismiss the case at costs to the complainant. Neither Kiback nor Herdliska appeared at the hearing.

Costs were set at $7.50, $2 for each of three witnesses called yesterday and $1.50 for the court. A $500 cashier's check used as part of Kiback's bond was endorsed over to Frank F. Messer, attorney for the defendant.

350 Attend Soley Last Rites

More than 350 persons attended funeral services for Dr. Mayo H. Soley, who was dean of the SUI college of medicine, yesterday afternoon in Trinity Episcopal church.

Soley committed suicide Tuesday morning. About 100 persons stood at the rear of the sanctuary. All seats were filled.

The Rev. Harold F. McGee, rector of the church, officiated at the services and arrangements were made by the McGovern funeral home.

Pallbearers were George L. Horner, university architect, Dr. Nathan A. Womack, head of the department of surgery; Dr. William Bean, head of the department of internal medicine, and Paul R. Olson, professor in the college of commerce.

Others were Carlisle Jacobsen, executive dean, division of health sciences and services, and Dr. Wilbur Miller, medical director of the psychopathic hospital and head of the department of psychiatry.

Doctor Soley's body will be cremated, Funeral Director M. J. McGovern said. He said it has not been decided whether the ashes will be sent to Mauldin, Mass., Doctor Soley's birthplace where his parents still live, or to Mrs. Soley's former home in California.

Doctor Soley's wife found him dying in the garage of his home at 1036 Woodlawn avenue Tuesday morning after he had shot himself in the heart with a .22 caliber pistol, according to Johnson County Coroner George D. Callahan.

William W. Prybil Funeral Tomorrow

William W. Prybil, 65, died early yesterday morning at his farm home east of Iowa City.

Mr. Prybil, a retired farmer, was born in Iowa City and was a lifelong resident of Johnson county.

Surviving are his widow; two sons, William, of Iowa City, and Carl, of Oxford; three daughters, Mrs. John Stevens and Mrs. Robert Stevens, Iowa City, Mrs. Ray Frank, Sharon, and two brothers, George and Rudolph, both of Iowa City. Also surviving are 12 grandchildren.

Rotarians to Attend Scout Camp Dinner

Iowa City Rotary club members yesterday were invited to attend a 6:30 p.m. dinner tonight at the Rotary Boy Scout camp. Scout Executive Martin L. Hunter said.

Rotarians must make reservations for the dinner by noon today if they wish to attend, Hunter said.

Rotarians, parents and scouting friends also have been invited to a campfire program which will begin at 8:15 at the Scout camp. Camp Director Jack McDavid said yesterday.

Scouts will receive recognition of advancement earned at camp, but advancement must be approved by their home patrols. Camp emblems will be awarded to campers who earned them, McDavid said.

About 40 scouts have been in camp since it opened Sunday. They will leave tomorrow. Troops are from Iowa City, Coralville, Marengo, Kalona and Wellman.

Child Conferences Hear Final Talks

Two talks about children were heard by about 300 persons yesterday in Old Capitol during closing sessions of the SUI conference on child development and parent education.

Prof. Robert J. Havighurst, secretary of the committee on human development at the University of Chicago, spoke on "Moral Character in Adolescence" at the morning session.

"National Policies Relating to Children" was discussed by Katherine Bain, director of the division of research in child development, children's bureau, federal security agency, Washington, D.C.

REV. MCGEE TO SPEAK

The Rev. Harold F. McGee, rector of Trinity Episcopal church here, will speak on "The Gathering Storm" before the Masonic service club at the Masonic temple this noon.

Roberts Praises Work Of Marengo Experiment

The Marengo experiment is not an effort to make science but to show how science thinks, Prof. Hew Roberts of SUI's college of education, told the local Rotary club yesterday.

The experiment, in which Roberts participated, consisted of seven atomic science lectures for the layman delivered by SUI professors at Marengo last fall.

"The material has not been published because the Marengo experiment has not been completed," Roberts said.

He cited the need for education, thought and understanding in the atomic age and illustrated that the Marengo experiment was a start in that direction.

Roberts especially praised the work of two Iowans in atomic science work — W.W. Waymank, who was a member of the atomic energy commission and Robert Blakely, journalist, who wrote the first articles on the atom for the layman.

He also commended SUI Profs. George Glocker, Arthur Roberts and Joseph Routh for their lectures to the public at Marengo.

"The experiment was arranged so people could understand it and enjoy it," Roberts said. "They saw that science could be interesting."

"We wanted to know what worries adults," he said. "They worry about how to dispose of radioactive refuse — things of that nature are problems in the adult mind."

He indicated that the current atomic science lectures at SUI Tuesday night are aimed at people with more formal education.

In the fall such lectures will
