Acheson Warns of Russians, Urges Arms Aid for Europe

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson warned congress yesterday the danger of a Russian armed attack on western Europe still is very real and will be "greatly increased" if the United States fails to back up the Atlantic pact with the $1,450,000,000 arms aid program.

He also pledged that no American troops will be sent abroad under the military aid plan, except for small technical advisory missions.

He admitted that the arms shipments would not make western Europe strong enough to defeat a full-scale attack by Russia, which he said is now maintaining "the largest peacetime military force in the history of the world."

Acheson said the program may be only the beginning; that the United States may have to continue sending arms aid to Europe for many years.

He predicted that if the United States makes an effective start now toward helping free nations rearm, Communist leaders will consider the chances for a quick victory in Europe a "gamble too hazardous to be tempting."

"The gangster mind likes to gamble only on sure things," he remarked.

His assurance troops won't be sent to Europe came in answer to a question by Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.).

"There is no provision, or plan, or contemplation of using American troops except in providing technical assistance," Acheson said.

The senate meanwhile unanimously approved an arrangement under which the foreign relations and armed services committees will hold joint hearings and take a joint vote on the arms program.

China Policy Due, Acheson Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary Acheson said yesterday the state department is making a "thorough survey" of the far eastern situation. He indicated future policy on China would be based on the results.

Acheson mentioned the survey during testimony before the house foreign affairs committee in support of the administration's $1,450,000,000 arms program for Europe.

He told committee members he hoped "in a very short time" to outline a far east policy.

Chinese Buy War Surplus in Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department yesterday announced the sale of $12,547,626 worth of surplus war material to Nationalist China for $119,247, or less than one percent of the original cost.

The sales were arranged during a period starting in May a year ago and extending through last Friday.

The department said they included ammunition and explosives, stored in the Marianas, Bonins and Ryukyus islands.

Police May Enforce New Parking Meter Ordinances Monday

Iowa City drivers should be prepared to put their pennies and nickels in new parking meters Monday, Mayor Preston Koser said last night.

City aldermen last night approved changes in two parking ordinance amendments, making Iowa avenue from Dubuque to Linn streets a two-hour parking zone. The amendments originally listed the block as a three-hour zone, but two-hour meters were installed.

Police will start enforcing the parking ordinance amendments after newspaper publication which will probably be Saturday, Koser said.

New meters were installed on seven downtown blocks.

In other action last night the council approved Madison street paving from Jefferson to Market streets.

Ned L. Ashton, consulting engineer, reported $251,834.81 final costs on the Benton street bridge.

Jensen Construction company will deposit a $5,000 check to guarantee removal of the old bridge, Ashton said.

Planning Committee Approves Addition To Women's Gym

Plans for building a new addition on the women's gymnasium were recently approved by the campus planning committee. Prof. Elizabeth Halsey, head of the women's physical education department, said yesterday.

The addition will be constructed on the west side of the gymnasium where an annex and Hobb house are now located. These buildings, which have been used by the physical education department, will be torn down.

Construction on the building will begin sometime next spring, Miss Halsey said. The addition will be approximately 148 by 72 feet.

It will include an exercise floor, classrooms, a camping laboratory, research laboratory for graduate work, shower and locker space, a corrective unit, offices and a crafts room.

The addition is being planned so that it will fit as a unit into a new building which is planned, Miss Halsey said.

Acheson Testifies on Arms Program

SECRETARY OF STATE Dean Acheson (left at head of table) testified yesterday before the house foreign affairs committee. He said the administration's $1,450,000,000 arms-for-Europe program is urgent for our own security. Seated to the right of Acheson is Rep. John Kee (D-W.Va.), chairman of the committee.

Steel Union Asks 30 Cents An Hour Package Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—President Philip Murray of the CIO steelworkers yesterday presented to the presidential fact-finders in the steel industry dispute a demand for a 30 cents an hour package.

The demand includes a 12½ cents an hour fourth round wage boost.

Then, in an angry outburst, Murray termed steel industry leaders "the most sanctimonious bunch of professional racketeers in this country."

He explained later he was not referring to the industry spokesmen present but to leaders of the industry in general who, he said, had subjected him to a "slandering mud-slinging attack."

Besides the fourth round wage increase, Murray asked 11.23 cents an hour for pensions and 6.27 cents for social insurance.

Murray said the steel industry was amassing profits of about a billion dollars a year and should grant the union's demand in the national interest.

He led off testimony before the three-man board which the President named to avert an imminent strike by the 900,000 steel workers last July 16.

Lewis' Testimony Wanted in Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate banking committee yesterday asked John L. Lewis to testify at its inquiry into the three-day work week he ordered in the coal mines and other alleged "monopolistic" practices by his union.

A United Mine Workers spokesman said Lewis probably will announce later whether he will accept.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.), chairman of a subcommittee conducting the investigation, wrote the UMW president that his group would be "glad" to hear from Lewis himself or from any UMW representative.

SUI to Confer 850 Degrees at Largest Summer Graduation

The largest summer commencement in the history of SUI will be held Aug. 10, with approximately 850 persons receiving their degrees.

The previous record was set last summer when 709 degrees were conferred.

The ceremonies will begin at 8 p.m. in the fieldhouse and candidates will begin moving inside as soon as the academic procession is formed about 7:40.

According to Prof. F.G. Higbee, director of convocations, there will be no commencement speaker. The charge to the candidates will be delivered by President Virgil M. Hancher.

Music will be provided by a special commencement orchestra directed by Prof. William Gower of the music department.

William Coder, director of the veteran's service office, will be master of ceremonies and Prof. M. Willard Lampe, head of the school of religion, will be chaplain.

New Benton Street Bridge Opens to Traffic

The new $250,000 Benton street bridge is open to traffic today following formal opening ceremonies at 2 p.m. yesterday.

Helen Arlene Wolfe, North Liberty, Johnson county's 1949 dairy queen, cut a white ribbon which signalled traffic to proceed across the bridge.

The first vehicles over the river span after its opening included four cars of city officials and businessmen, the fire department's aerial ladder truck, pumper truck and panel emergency truck.

Dean F.M. Dawson, SUI college of engineering, said before the ribbon-cutting ceremony that the bridge is a "natural" in the development of the southwest part of the city — "a great area for growth."

He pointed out no structure is better than the maintenance given to it and asked that the city give proper care to the bridge.

An all-welded five-span, continuous steel deck girder bridge, it was singled out for its "unusual design" in an article in a recent edition of "Engineering Record," Dawson said.

Ned L. Ashton, bridge designer, said the new bridge represents all the progress made in bridge construction in the half century since the building of the old Benton bridge in 1902.

J.J. Swaner, former state highway commission member, presided at the ceremony. He was introduced by Mayor Preston Koser.

Other speakers included James Callahan, first ward alderman; Roland M. Smith, chamber of commerce president; G.G. Jensen, senior member of Jensen Construction company, and LeRoy Mercer, senator in the Iowa legislature.

Truman Selects Clark To Succeed Murphy

... And the Sack Wasn't Even Full

Have you found $3,570 in your tobacco sack lately? If so, it may be the life savings of a local man which was lost in an SUI rest room.

The money was in a partly-filled Bull Durham sack, and consisted of three $1,000 bills, one $500, one $50 and one $20 bill.

Detective Harland Sprinkle said the money was marked and the serial numbers known. He said a reward is offered and the finder need have no fear of arrest if the money is returned to the police.

McGrath Asked To Take Over Cabinet Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman announced yesterday the selection of Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark for the supreme court and Sen. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island for Clark's cabinet post.

Clark indicated he would take the new post; McGrath said he wanted the weekend to think it over.

If McGrath accepts he will have to resign from the senate. He also most likely will have to give up the chairmanship of the Democratic National committee.

William M. Boyle Jr., Kansas City, Mo., paid executive vice chairman of the national committee since April 21, probably will be a main contender for the chairmanship in that event. Republicans will pick a new chairman here Aug. 4.

Earlier in the conference Mr. Truman had read a formal statement about recent secret meetings on atomic energy. The statement appeared to be a pledge that he will not give the British the latest-atom bomb know-how without the consent of congress. There have been reports that the British want the data.

The President said present agreements between the United States, Britain and Canada providing for cooperation in exchanging atomic information and on raw material supplies are "limited in scope and duration."

During a lull in the interview, a reporter asked quietly whether the President was near a decision on the court vacancy created by the death July 19 of Frank Murphy of Michigan, himself a former attorney general.

As the surprised reporters lifted pencils to notebooks, he announced he had offered the justiceship to Clark at a morning interview and had asked McGrath to accept the attorney generalship.

Since Justice Murphy was a Catholic, speculation had been that a Catholic probably would be named as his successor. When asked about this Mr. Truman said religious faith had nothing to do with the appointment of Clark, who is a Presbyterian.

U.S. Lifts Rent Controls From University Housing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Housing Administrator Tighe E. Woods yesterday exempted from federal rent control all housing accommodations used for education or charitable purposes.

The order, effective immediately, applies to such housing as apartment buildings owned by a university where rooms are rented to students and faculty members and their families.

Eleanor Defended in Schools Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Roman Catholic member of congress, Rep. Andrews Jacobs (D-Ind.), last night defended Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who has been denounced by Francis Cardinal Spellman, Catholic archbishop of New York, for her stand on federal aid to education.

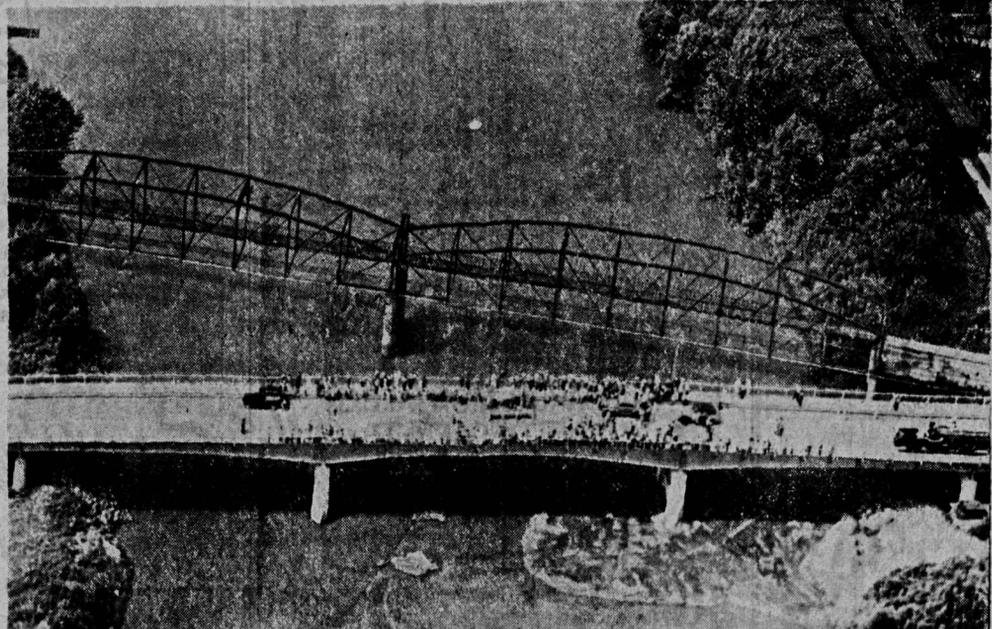

The issue, whether federal money for helping public schools should also go to parochial and private schools, has created a bitter controversy.

Jacobs did not mention Cardinal Spellman by name in a talk prepared for broadcast, but said, "The inflammatory language used toward her will bring no good to either my church or my country. I regret it exceedingly."

Ribbon Cutting, Dedication Speeches Open Benton Street Bridge

CUTTING A WHITE RIBBON yesterday marked the official opening of the new Benton street bridge. Helen Arlene Wolfe (right), North Liberty, dairy queen, cut the ribbon. Mrs. Edith Frederickson (left), mayor's secretary, caught the ribbon before it fluttered away. Among the first vehicles to cross the bridge were four cars of city officials and businessmen.

OPENED TO TRAFFIC YESTERDAY, the new Benton street bridge (foreground) represents half a century of progress in bridge designing and building from the time the old bridge (background) was built. This aerial view from an Iowa City Flying service plane shows the crowd of about 200 persons present for the dedication and opening of Iowa City's newest bridge across the Iowa river. The all-welded five-span, continuous steel deck girder structure will link the southwest and southeast parts of the city.

Rightists Appeased In French Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—Premier Henri Queuille yesterday quelled a right-wing "revolt" in cabinet ranks, apparently assuring his record-breaking moderate regime at least three more months of power.

At an emergency cabinet session yesterday, the small, quiet premier persuaded four right-wing officials to withdraw resignations which would have wrecked the 10-month-old coalition cabinet.

The national assembly is scheduled to adjourn today until October, and there was little likelihood of a new cabinet crisis arising during the summer recess.

Yanks Repulse Cleveland, 3-2

Increase Lead To Four Tilts

NEW YORK (AP) — Allie Reynolds and Joe Page teamed up yesterday to turn back Cleveland 3-2 and raise the American league lead of the Yankees over the surging Indians back to four full games.

A sweltering crowd of 45,951 saw a tense game climaxed by a sparkling ninth inning double play that saved the day for Reynolds and brought him his eleventh victory of the season against one defeat. Page, in his familiar relief role, forced Pinch — Hitter Early Wynn to fly to Rightfielder Cliff Mapes whose sharp peg caught Roberto Avila going into third after the catch.

Reynolds started the Yankees to victory with a triple into the right field corner in the fifth that scored Snuffy Stirrweiss, who had also tripled off Bob Lemon. Reynolds scored on Phil Rizzuto's grounder, making it 2-2. Stirrweiss' double in the sixth brought in Bobby Brown with the winning run.

The Indians, now in second place, took the first game of the series from the Yankees. The second was rained out. Despite the defeat, the 1948 world champions who at one time were in seventh place, now have a record of 35 victories in their last 50 games.

Cleveland's two runs were scored in the third. With Thurman Tucker on first on a fielder's choice, Larry Doby doubled, sending Tucker to third. Then Joe Gordon, an ex-Yankee, singled sharply to left, scoring both runners.

The master-minding of Indian Manager Lou Boudreau and Yankee Manager Casey Stengel reached almost ludicrous proportions in the electric ninth inning.

Boudreau opened things up with a single. He took himself out and put in Avila as a pinch runner. Pinch-Hitter Hal Peck drew a base on balls. Reynolds pitched two strikes to Catcher Jim Hegan, where upon Boudreau sent in Wynn as pinch hitter for Hegan. Wynn, a switch batter, took up a left handed batting stance. So Stengel sent in lefty Joe Page for Reynolds and dispatched Mapes to right field and Hank Bauer to left.

After all this commotion Wynn, batting right handed, popped to Mapes to start the dramatic double play for the Yankees. SUI Student to Face Iowa Open Favorite DAVENPORT (AP) — Mrs. R.H. Staats, Davenport, shot brilliant golf yesterday to oust defending Champion Mary Louise Cordingley, Des Moines, in the quarter-finals of the Iowa women's golf tournament.

Mrs. Staats, tourney medalist, will face youthful Corky Major, SUI student from Ottumwa, in today's semi-final round. The Davenport veteran and Ottumwa miss both fired par rounds for the 12 holes of their matches at the country club course yesterday.

Mrs. Staats posted a 37 for the first nine holes, while Miss Cordingley, well off the game that brought her the 1948 title, turned in a nine-hole 46, and lost the match 7 and 6.

Miss Major won her quarter-final duel by the same margin over Mrs. Dave Bonella, also of Ottumwa.

Harbert, Mangrum Lead Western Open Tourney

ST. PAUL, MINN. (AP) — The golfing wrecking crew took over the Keller public course yesterday, and when they were through two of their number were tied for the lead in the Western open tourney with 675, five strokes under par.

Tied at that figure were Chick Harbert, Detroit, and Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago. And right behind them with under-par cards were 24 other contestants. Eleven more matched par of 72 for the 6,557-yard course.

Cards Sweep Philly Series, 10-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The conquering Cardinals made it three straight over the Philadelphia Phillies yesterday, with a 16-hit assault that ran the score to 10-2 while the Phils stumbled through with five errors.

Ken Heintzelman, the Phils' star lefthander who nearly always is bad medicine for St. Louis, lasted only two innings and broke his string of nine straight victories.

Al Brazle let Philadelphia down with seven well scattered hits.

Third Baseman Willie Jones made three of the Philadelphia errors.

Thus the Cardinals maintained their game-and-a-half lead over Brooklyn, which also won in Chicago yesterday, and so both are in winning form for the big Dodger-Cardinal series here this weekend.

Joe Turnesa Impressive In Junior Golf Tourney

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Turnesa, 17-year-old nephew of National amateur golf Champion Willie Turnesa, posted two impressive victories yesterday in the USGA junior golf tournament.

Young Turnesa put away Richard S. Edwards of Atlanta, 4 and 2, in the second round, then came back to gain a 1-up victory over Philip Jones of Westerly, R.I., in the third round.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers stayed close on the heels of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, taking the odd game of the three-game series from the Chicago Cubs, 7-1.

Gene Hermanski's grand slam homer in the sixth inning off Bob Rush broke up a 1-1 tie and paved the way for the Dodgers' triumph. Jackie Robinson and Duke Snider also hit homers for Brooklyn. They came in succession off Walt Dubiel in the seventh inning. Snider's was his 14th and Robinson's 11th.

Rush, the loser, yielded a run in the first inning.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The New York Giants blew a five run lead yesterday but bounced back and defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-6, on the strength of Sid Gordon's 20th home run of the season with a man on in the sixth inning.

The Giants hopped on Murry Dickson for five runs in the first three innings, but the Pirates struck back in their half of the third and chased Larry Jansen with a four-hit five run blast. The Pirates took the lead with two runs in the fifth.

Willard Marshall doubled with two down in the sixth and Gordon followed with his belt over the left field wall. The Giants added another run in the ninth.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Boston slugged out an 11-2 win over the hapless Cincinnati Reds yesterday, as Warren Spahn coasted to his 12th mound victory of the season. He gave up six hits.

Bob Elliott, Alvin Dark, Elbie Fletcher, and rookie Catcher Del Crandall hit for the circuit. Also pummeling three local hurlers was Ed Sauer, who got five safeties in as many times at bat to spearhead the Braves 16-hit attack.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox made a clean sweep of their series with the Chicago White Sox yesterday as Ellis Kinder raked up his 11th victory of the season with a 6-1 verdict in blistering heat before a thin crowd of 5,651 paying customers.

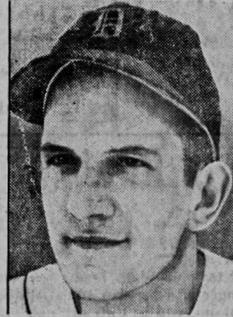

Howie Judson, who was charged with his 12th loss against a single victory, pitched effectively for Chicago until he suddenly lost his control in the fourth.

With one away, he walked three batters in a row and "Zeke" Zarella chased two of them home with a clean single to right. Ted Williams accounted for the third score with his 26th homer in the fifth and the Red Sox racked up three more in the seventh.

The last fame spurge was highlighted by a grand slam home run by Pitcher T. Zzy Trout. The score was knotted at 6-6 at the end of the eighth.

Three runs were forced across by Joe Haynes and Al Gettel with bases on balls before Trout scored his homer.

Yale's Jim Fuchs Better World Shot Put Mark

OSLO, NORWAY (AP) — James Fuchs of Yale bettered the world shot put record last night as the United States edged within six points of Scandinavia in the "Little Olympics."

Track experts here figured the powerful Americans would have little trouble in winning the three-night competition. The points now stand 164 1-2 to 158 1-2 in favor of the home squad.

Fuchs threw the 16-pound shot 17.79 meters or 58 feet 4 27-64 inches. The listed world record of 57 feet 1 inch (17.40 meters) was set here in Oslo in 1934 by Jack Torrance of the United States.

Summer Art Exhibit —

Holes Impart Sculptor's Ideas

(Second of a Series)
BY CARL BRAHCE

If most persons found a small pebble with a hole in it, they would probably look at it curiously and then throw it away.

But if the noted English sculptor, Henry Moore, found it he would most likely study it carefully. For, as anyone could see who looked at his bronze "Family Group" in the SUI art building, holes are an important part of his sculpture.

Moore became interested in stones with holes in them because he was interested in natural objects such as pebbles, rocks, bones and trees.

A sculptor who worked in stone, Moore wanted to find out what kind of forms and shapes nature produced on stones, or nature's way of working stone.

As an engineer uses an arch, he began using holes in his sculptures. The hole connects one side to another, making the sculpture more three-dimensional.

But Moore also uses holes to produce different shapes and so express ideas. A hole can itself have as much shape-meaning as a solid mass, he has said.

In "Family Group" there are three large holes in the base on which the figures are sitting. They match the open hollows in the figures and keep a balance in the structure. Otherwise, the bottom part of the sculpture would be too heavy, like a long car that only has windows on one side.

By studying natural objects, Moore has found that there are universal shapes to which everybody responds, though he may not be aware of them. Thus, when a person sees rounded forms, he automatically thinks of fruitfulness and maturity.

His findings are seen in his sculpture. We find in "Family Group" that there is a curved bump on the woman's head but not the man's.

Besides keeping the figures from being the same, which would make the sculpture less interesting to the eye, the bump expresses the woman's fertility and her rounded personality. In contrast, the simple structure of the male conveys force and authority.

This shows that Moore, like many modern artists, does not produce animal forms as they are, but recombinates or distorts them willfully. He believes that by exaggerating a thing he can better express the importance of his idea.

The bodies of the figures in "Family Group" are joined. This gives a sense of unity and of the close relationship that exists between the members of the family. If he had merely made the figures as persons sitting on a bench, the person who saw them would probably not get the idea that they were man and wife.

Before his sculpture can be understood, Moore's purpose and method must first be understood. His aim is to give a direct personal meaning to an original form. His art is a product of his imagination and his study of natural forms.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

ERSKINE CALDWELL tells about a moonshiner in the Georgia hills who was caught red-handed by a posse of revenue agents. The moonshiner, despite his 70 years and long gray beard, tore himself loose from the sheriff's grasp, and headed cross-country with the speed of a gazelle. The sheriff, a kindly and lazy-soul, marveled at the old boy's agility, and said, "Let 'em go."

Five days passed, however, and the moonshiner failed to return. Just as his relatives and neighbors were concluding that his unusual exertions had been the death of him, he stumbled home in a state of complete disrepair. "Where you been, Beauregard?" asked his partner. The moonshiner answered simply, "I been comin' back."

Fred Babcock, the Chicago socialite and literateur, explains the difference between a shmoo and a schmo. A shmoo, it seems, is the inspired creation of Al Capp; a schmo is a fellow who can get it for you retail.

AN INVITATION TO GAS HEAT USERS

YOU are invited to take advantage of the new Budget Plan of payment now available to customers whose homes are heated with gas.

This optional plan permits you to pay each month, from August through May, one-tenth of the estimated charges for gas and electricity used during that entire ten-month period, any difference between estimated and actual amounts to be adjusted in June.

Its purpose is to provide a convenient method of spreading evenly over a ten-month period the charges for gas and electric service used during the heating season — thereby eliminating the concentration of a large part of those charges during December, January and February.

If you would like to avail yourself of this plan, call us without delay. The necessary arrangements must be made in time for the first budget payment to apply on the August bill.

Is This Trip Necessary? —

Congressmen are probably casting envious glances at the U.S. joint chiefs of staff who will leave today for Europe to meet with the new allies in the north Atlantic pact.

Every year about this time, the lawmakers begin to get travel-minded and start thinking of far away places. Almost every summer finds scores of congressmen abroad investigating such questions as foreign aid, problems in the orient, statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, or the morale of the army wherever it may be stationed overseas.

And for the stay-at-homes there may be free inspection and investigating trips to national parks, and other popular summer resorts.

Most of these trips are not mere joy rides. Two years ago, for example, over 200 congressmen went to Europe to investigate conditions and familiarize themselves with postwar conditions abroad.

They came back with an understanding of the problems that were facing Europeans.

This year there have been signs that show that joy rides are being stifled. Speaker Sam Rayburn told members of the house that congressmen could go anywhere they please on investigating junkets, but if Uncle Sam was to be stuck for the bill, he would have to be convinced that the trip was important.

Amtorg: Soviet 'Inventors' —

Amtorg, Russia's official trading agency with offices in New York, has been funneling U.S. industrial processes and secrets to Russia for the past 25 years.

This statement was made before a senate subcommittee probing subversive aliens by the Russian-born president of the Institute of Foreign Trade.

Explaining the Soviet's technique, the witness said the agency's buyers pose as legitimate buyers of American products. All they buy, however, are samples. Meanwhile they demand blueprints and shop drawings with their purchases.

Once this is done, samples, specifications and purchases are created off to Russia. There American production techniques are copied to turn out imitations of American products — all in open violation of international patent rights.

This has been going on for so long such a large scale that most of Russia's industrial capacity since 1933 has been derived from its copy-cat tactics in the U.S. and other countries, the witness testified.

Before the war, Japan was known as the foremost nation for imitating instead of initiating. But their attempts at it were clumsy and ill-conceived. It became a standing joke.

On a broader scale, it seems that Amtorg fits into a larger pattern along with every Soviet consulate and with every news correspondent for Tass. Professing innocent motives, all have been exposed as naked espionage agents for the Soviets. It is as vital for the Soviet rulers to keep informed of world developments as it is for them to keep their people sealed off.

If congress tightens the laws against aliens, it may put a serious crimp in Soviet inventiveness. For, apparently, the Russians have to steal a device before they can claim credit for inventing it.

Button, Button —

Since the Chicago decision on rent controls, the future of the federal rent control law seems in doubt. No one knows what will happen when the matter reaches the supreme court. The high court is to rule on the provision which delegates federal authority to states.

Federal District Court Judge Elwyn Shaw in Chicago has declared the rent control measure unconstitutional. The issue is to face a final decision from the federal supreme court.

And herein is cause for wonder among Iowa Citizens where the decisions concern the fate of rent controls in Iowa City. As in every question, there are two sides which demand consideration. The group which demands that rent controls be lifted is composed mainly of city and county property owners who feel they aren't getting a fair deal when controls are off everything but rental property.

The opposing side is a hybrid organization composed of groups from both campus and city organizations. They are mainly people who live in rental housing and fear a squeeze where they'll be in the center if controls are lifted.

Both sides have reportedly been conducting surveys to substantiate their opinions and have promised to present this evidence when they are ready to go before the local governing body to petition for their side.

And both sides have strong cards they can pull from their sleeves when they get ready for action. The decontrol body has an ace in the fact that the first community to be decontrolled in the state was the town of Lone Tree, 16 miles southeast of Iowa City.

Those who want to keep rent controls have as their ace Iowa City's transient population of students and the long waiting list for openings in married students housing.

The big question seems to be: button, button, who's got the button; or: which side is going to bat first?

Spheres of Anarchy —

Iowa City's current parking meter snarl leaves motorists with a perplexed feeling. According to the amendments to the parking meter ordinance passed by the city council Monday night, three-hour parking on Iowa avenue between Dubuque and Linn streets was made legal.

By the same ordinance, fines could be levied if a motorist overstayed his parking meter time. But the meters only provided time enough for two-hour parking. What if a motorist was fined and protested his time hadn't exceeded three hours — even though he'd only been able to pay for two hours?

Or consider this one: suppose a motorist paid his nickel before the amendments were published in the newspapers, then found he hadn't needed to pay and demanded the city return his money. Could the city keep the money or would they be bound to return the nickel?

Such entrancing little spheres of anarchy open up all kinds of possibilities. How about the case of the out-of-town driver? Maybe he's a traveling salesman, sterling citizen in his own community and mindful of the laws in the cities he visits.

If his car were ticketed between publication of the amendments and the time the city discovered the error in the installation, what would happen to the salesman? Would his dollar be returned (at a cost in administration and postage which might exceed the original fine)?

Would the department of internal revenue catch up with him in 10 years and fine him for deducting a parking ticket from his taxable income? The possibilities are endless and terrifying. Thank goodness the error has been discovered. We'd go crazy worrying about it.

Interpreting the News —

Arms Issue: A Tautology

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
(R) Foreign Affairs Analyst

On the same day President Truman was asking congress to approve the European military assistance program, the American assistance program, the American delegation at Lake Success was pressing its disarmament proposals in the UN.

It all seemed a little confusing. In the first place, everybody realizes that trying to put through an amendment in the conventional arms field before getting one on atomic bombs is trying to wag the dog by the tail. The President himself said as much only a few days ago.

The immediate issue is a proposal before the conventional arms commission for an arms census as a preliminary to seeking a limitations agreement. The general assembly asked the commission to do it, but Russia has refused to cooperate. Manuilsky, Soviet Ukrainian foreign minister, says it is nonsense to ask for information on shotguns and not on atomic bombs.

The President said disarmament would remain the realm of talk until an atomic agreement was reached.

There is no use fighting this thing any longer. We are living in a scientific age and we might just as well face it. For the past several years it has become more and more thought of as being uncivilized to walk.

The automobile has replaced shoe leather. There it is. That is the simple, but incontrovertible, fact. We, who must still depend on shoe leather, are becoming conditioned to the strange looks that are thrown our way from passing automobiles.

We are the last of the pedestrians. Mothers and fathers point us out to their children and say: "See, junior — those are pedestrians. There used to be a lot of them around."

Junior looks and his eyes pop. "Gee," he says. "They don't go very fast, do they?" "No, junior," the parents say. "They don't go very fast. But they like it. You see, they don't believe in progress."

That's a damn lie. It's not a case of not believing in progress. It's just a case of progress outdistancing the pocketbook.

And now television is heading this way. Guess that stuff is here to stay also. If that makes the radio obsolete, then I'm going to sue somebody. It took me long enough to acquire one, and I'm not going to just sit around and have someone tell me I'm behind the times.

That will certainly be something, though. Television in Iowa reached. For once they seem to be agreed. And for once Russia seems to be in an entirely reasonable position, if you take the situation as is, disregarding the fact that she herself blocked atomic agreement.

The arms commission is expected to turn the matter over to the security council next week, where Russia is expected to veto it. Then, it is understood, the United States will press for an airing before the general assembly in September.

Why? Some observers said Tuesday the United States and other anti-Communist nations were pressing for the census under general assembly instructions, that they once considered it a possible point of agreement with Russia on a step which might lead to some general agreement.

It did fall into UN routine and there was no obvious connection between it and the campaign for rearmament.

Others took it that Russia had started the disarmament talk three years ago, that everybody agreed it was a good thing, and that now Russia could be nailed to the mast for insincerity.

This business of keeping the record straight has long been a part of American policy. The United States was represented as making an important concession in agreeing to lay its conventional armament open to public view if everyone else would do likewise.

But Russia could hardly be blamed for feeling she was asked to reveal everything, while the United States held back on the one great weapon everybody is interested in.

I am not saying the United States is consciously trying to show Russia is insincere about disarmament at a time when such a showing would have an influence on congressional consideration of rearmament.

As I said, the disarmament discussion falls strictly within pre-arranged UN routine. I am thinking about the actual effect.

And that UN issues do rise and fall in public attention according to the timing of interest shown by the great powers.

New Barrel Candidate

Proposal Before Congress —

CVA Sought for Harnessing Power Potential

COLUMBIA RIVER VALLEY—Larger than France, its river system has 30 million kilowatt potential.

By THE CENTRAL PRESS
SEATTLE, WASH.—"If Southern California had the Columbia river," a Los Angeles newspaper once said in its columns, "We could give Detroit and Pittsburgh back to the Indians."

That newspaper, of course, envisaged a Columbia river fully developed — for irrigation and production of cheap electric power for new industries — and highly regulated to prevent floods and soil erosion, and conserve fisheries.

It is that type of Columbia river which the millions of citizens of the Pacific northwest are hoping will eventually evolve from the mighty stream which last year flooded its banks disastrously, taking 60 lives and causing more than $100-million in damage to homes, property and land.

That is why all eyes in this area will be intently watching every step of the proposed legislation for establishment of a Columbia valley administration, now before both houses of congress.

So far, the various phases of Columbia river development have been carried on more or less individually by numerous government agencies — among them the bureau of reclamation, United States army engineers, Bonneville power administration and the fish and wildlife service.

These agencies are co-ordinated, for advisory purposes only, in the Columbia basin inter-agency committee, which included representatives of each state government in the area.

A MAJOR general criticism of this arrangement is that it has not prevented development — slowing conflicts between the several agencies concerning methods of priorities of certain projects.

The national administration's CVA bills have all been introduced by Washington state congressmen — Reps. Hugh Mitchell and Henry Jackson, and Sens. Warren Magnuson and Harry Cain. Sixteen other senators joined Magnuson on his introduction.

Under the bill, existing powers and projects of the various agencies concerned with Columbia valley development — including Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams — would be co-ordinated under the CVA. It would be managed by three full-time directors, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the senate. Salary would be $17,500 a year for each.

The CVA stated purpose is "to assist to the greatest possible extent in achieving the full and unified conservation, development and use of the water, land, forest, mineral, fish and wildlife and other natural resources of the region; for the purpose of fostering and protecting commerce, strengthening the national defense, developing lands, preserving the property of the United States, and promoting the general welfare."

AN EXCEEDINGLY loud war of words, resembling nothing so much as old-fashioned political election mudslinging, is currently raging in the Pacific northwest as to the merits of the proposed plan.

Several state governors, private power interests, chambers of commerce and other groups like that the CVA bill, which is patterned somewhat after the Tennessee valley authority, would create a "super-state agency."

Working feverishly to get CVA in operation by 1951, if possible, are more than a million members of Pacific northwest "grass-roots" organizations — the Washington, Oregon and Idaho federations of labor, Oregon and Washington groups of the congress of industrial organizations and the Oregon, Idaho and Montana farmers unions.

These and other organizations are affiliated with the league of Columbia valley administrators with executive offices in Seattle under direction of Harold G. Hutton, a close friend of Congressman Mitchell.

Market Basket — Index Shows 11 Cents Drop

Three basic food items dropped a total of 13 cents this week to lower The Daily Iowan market basket index to $16.06, 11 cents below last week's total.

The total this week was the 9 cents away from the all-time market basket low of $15.97 set Feb. 11.

Pork chops, which only last week jumped 5 cents, slid back 9 cents to the July 14 price of 65 cents for a pound of center cuts. Other price slumps, according to market basket figures were oranges, and a one-pound can of Spicy, each 4 cents.

This was the first week oranges changed in price since June 10. Spry last week rose a penny over the July 14 price only to drop back this week.

Four items, however, went up this week, but not as drastically as items that went down in price.

Butter, "choice" round steak, and first grade bacon, for example, each rose a cent this week, market basket figures show. Eggs rose 2 cents a dozen for grade A's. The price rises this week totaled only 5 cents against three items with a 13 cent drop in price.

Comparing the national food cost picture with Iowa City, the lowest since April 29, and only Dun and Bradstreet wholesale food index this week rose 2 cents, the highest level since June 7, the agency reported.

The Dun and Bradstreet index is the total of the price per pound of 11 basic foods at wholesale.

Stutterers Find Talking Helps Overcome Defect

Stutterers talk "pretty fluently" among themselves, but with others or before a group, some words don't seem to come out, four stutterers agreed yesterday.

Dean Brown, G. Batavia, N.Y., Lorna Buenneke, Mason City, Tom Olson, Sioux City and Bruce Urquhart, Dayton, Ohio, all stutterers attending the SUI speech clinic, spoke before the Iowa City, Rotary club.

"The best thing is to go ahead and stutter — it takes a little longer, but it's fun," Brown said.

Through the speech clinic, they said they have learned to talk with determination and go on stuttering without fear or attempts to hide their defect.

"I talk with determination now," Urquhart said. "No matter what comes out, I let it roll."

They said stuttering usually begins when a child is from 3 to 5 years old. Because of reprimands by parents for failure to speak distinctly, the child develops a mental tension that blocks fluent speech, they said.

That tension carries over into the child's school years and later life, they added.

Miss Buenneke said a "so-called" speech teacher said her stuttering would be ended after six weeks in the 8th grade.

"Well, I'm a senior in high school and still stuttering," she said, "but I've improved very much. I keep stuttering and talking — it's much easier."

Eight 'Active' Polios Admitted to Hospitals

The total number of "active" polio patients being treated at University hospitals rose to 29 yesterday with the admission of eight new cases.

Three of the patients were listed in "serious" condition by hospital officials. They were Charles Schmal, 9, son of Clarence Schmal, Dubuque; David Patton, 3-year-old son of J.C. Patton, Hampton, and Sally Schnurr, 5, daughter of A.J. Schnurr, New Hampton.

Admitted in "fair" condition were Sandra Wagoner, 3, daughter of R.L. Wagoner, Iowa Falls; Dr. Don Penly, 35, Cedar Falls, and Francis Nisius, 16, son of Frank Nisius, Waterloo.

Leon Recker, 19, New Hampton, and Ralph Simon, 3-1-2, son of Ralph Simon, Farley.

Vicki Hall, 11 weeks, Ames; Beverly Flury, 1-1-2, Dubuque, and Ruth Paulsen, 2, Iowa Falls, were transferred to the "inactive" lists yesterday, officials said.

Mr. Westcott was born in Scott township July 4, 1874. He married Elizabeth G. Robertson in 1900. The couple moved to Iowa City five years ago.

Impersonates Officer; Gets 6 Months in Jail

Lyle Bud, charged here July 12 with feigning, has been sentenced to six months in the prison camp at Singfield, Mo., on a federal charge of illegally wearing an officer's uniform, police said.

Local authorities said a warrant for Budd's arrest will be sent and upon completion of his present term of confinement attempts will be made to return him here for trial.

Police Chief, Aides Indicted In Underworld Payoff Probe

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Retired Police Chief C.B. Horrall and four other officers were indicted yesterday at the climax of a sensational investigation of underworld payoffs.

The indictments were returned barely six hours after the death of Edward (Neddie) Herbert, 38, top aide to mobster Mickey Cohen whose charges touched off the grand jury probe. Herbert died at 8:50 a.m. (Iowa time) in Queen of the Angels hospital of shotgun wounds received last week when gangland gunmen ambushed Cohen and a party of his "boys."

Horrall, who retired because of illness June 28 at the height of the grand jury investigation of his department, was charged with one count of perjury.

Others named in the indictments were: Assistant Chief Joseph F. Reed, Capt. Cecil H. Wisdom, head of the personnel bureau, Lieut. Rudy Wellpot, in charge of the administrative vice squad, and C.V. Jackson, Wellpot's chief aide.

It also accused Wellpot and Jackson of bribery. Specifically, the jury accuses Wellpot and Jackson of accepting five bribes from a call house madam, and all five men of failing to tell the jury all they knew about police-prostitution ties.

Bail was set at $500 each for Horrall, Reed and Wisdom and $1,000 for Wellpot and Jackson.

One indictment accused Jackson of visiting vice queen Brenda Allen at least once a week during a two-month period to "collect bribes and engage in immoral relations." It said he collected $50 a week for each girl employed in Miss Allen's Hollywood callhouse and listed five specific occasions on which he and Wellpot collected a total of $800.

The jury accused Jackson of denying that he ever received anything but a $20 necktie from Miss Allen. He also contended he used the woman only as a source of underworld tips.

Another indictment accused Wellpot of falsely claiming that

Jackson had told him he was associating with Miss Allen to try to trap a big theft ring dealing in furs and jewelry.

Horrall, Reed and Wisdom all were charged with telling the jury under oath that they had been investigating the alleged vice-squad irregularities since February, 1948, and that the investigation was still in progress. The indictments stated that the police department's investigation actually had ended more than six months before the officers gave their testimony.

Cohen, recovering with three other victims of the ambush that proved Herbert's undoing, touched off the sensational police scandal last spring.

He testified at trial of one of his henchmen, Harold (Happy) Meltzer, that the charge against Meltzer was just a frame-up to get even with Cohen because he turned down an attempted shake-down by Wellpot and Jackson.

Cohen testified the officers tried to get $20,000 from him on the contention the money would be a campaign contribution for mayor Fletcher Bowron.

Fish Wins

Snaps Angler's Line After 23 Hours

CHARITON (P) — The story of a fisherman's 23-hour battle with a catfish that got away was told here yesterday.

An estimated 1,000 spectators at one time watched the struggle of Robert Dale with the fish. Weight of the fish was estimated from 60 to 100 pounds and its length at more than 5 feet.

Dale and his brother were crapping fishing from a boat in Haw Hill lake when the big one latched on. He was using a nine-foot bamboo fly rod with a 15-pound bait-casting line, light nylon leader and a yellow fly.

The fish grabbed the fly about 9 o'clock in the morning. Dale kept his line taut, his pole bent in the hope of wearing down the fish.

"That fish started out pulling us and the boat behind him," Dale said. "He circled the lake, went in and out of all the coves, crossed and recrossed the lake many times. The old fellow knew ever rock, stump and brushpile in the lake."

Mrs. Dale supplied the anglers with food as they stayed with the fish, riding around and around the lake. Spectators called encouragement from the shore. Some of them stayed up until 3 a.m., Dale said.

Finally, shortly after 8 the following morning, Dale's line snapped and the fish escaped. The fishermen went home to sleep 10 hours. Next day Dale went back and caught a mess of crappies.

Claim Six Men Flog Negroes

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UP)—A crudely hooded band of white men flogged four Negroes last Sunday night and at least one of the victims was also shot, it was reported yesterday.

The Rev. M.W. Jackson of Columbia, a Negro preacher, first reported the floggings. He said the victims told him that with each stroke of the lash the floggers would cry: "This is your civil rights."

Jackson's report was partially confirmed when one of the reported victims, Elliott Bates, turned up in Columbia hospital. Attendants said he was suffering from the effects of blows and bullet wounds in the hand and left leg.

Jackson said that all four Negroes were "shot and beaten" near the Sandy Bottoms community 25 miles from here. He identified the others as Johnny Bates, Harry Bates and Johnny Peterson.

The Negro minister said the flogging party also kicked a Negro woman, Elliott Bates' wife, and bludgeoned a small Negro girl with the butt of a pistol.

The band of about six floggers wore swatches of flimsy white material like that of window cur-
