The Weather

Showers and cooler central and eastern Iowa today. Saturday fair and cool. High today 60-65; low 38-45. Thursday's high 69; low 62.

Big Weekend Crowd Expected

Transportation officials today are preparing to handle the third consecutive weekend of overflow crowds in Iowa City. Weather permitting, 50,000 persons are expected to flock to the Iowa-Northwestern football game here Saturday. If these figures hold true, it will be the largest crowd at the stadium this year. Two special trains are being added to the regular Rock Island railroad schedule. One will arrive from Des Moines and the other is scheduled from the Tri-Cities area. The Iowa City Flying Service expects nearly 90 private planes, most of them from Chicago, to land here Saturday. However, officials there pointed out this estimate also hinges upon weather conditions. Phil Spelman, Union bus depot agent, anticipates the arrival of several chartered buses, but the actual number involved will not be known until Saturday noon. The Cedar Rapids to Iowa City railway company is adding four extra runs to its schedule Saturday morning. One of these sections will carry two cars. In addition many private cars are expected to invade Iowa City streets and police and highway patrolmen will be on hand once again to direct the all-day flow of traffic.

Yugoslavia Wins Council Seat Despite Russian Protests in UN

NEW YORK (AP) - The United Nations overrode Russian protests Thursday and elected Yugoslavia to a security council seat that the Soviet Union coveted for satellite Czechoslovakia. Two-thirds of the nations in effect gave a vote of confidence to Marshal Tito's regime, and rebuked the Cominform. The vote was Yugoslavia 39, Czechoslovakia 19. It deepened the east-west rift and left Russia to make good on her prediction that "painful consequences" to the UN would follow election of Yugoslavia. What those consequences may be probably will not be clear until the reorganized security council meets in January, with Yugoslavia taking the seat now held by the Soviet Union. Three security council seats are changed every year by vote of all nations in the General Assembly. U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson said he sees little danger of a rift in the UN because Czechoslovakia lost out. In London, a spokesman for the Czechoslovak embassy said there was no prospect of pro-Soviet Communist nations in the UN walking out as a result of the election. He added: "No doubt this is what many western countries would like us to do." American support was a big factor in Yugoslavia's victory. It was a calculated support aimed at strengthening Tito in his struggle with Moscow. The vote came less than a day after Yugoslavia declared that Russia had moved troops into neighboring Cominform countries, toward the Yugoslav frontier. The voting provoked a re-faceted outburst from Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister. Speaking in Russian, he said: "The Soviet Union delegation declares with full determination that Yugoslavia shall not, cannot, be considered as a representative of the eastern European countries, and that the introduction of Yugoslavia to the security council shall be considered by the Soviet Union delegation as a new violation of the (UN) charter, undermining the very foundations of cooperation in the United Nations." Russia contended she and associated nations have the right to designate the eastern European delegation to the council. Their choice was Czechoslovakia.

More Rain Expected Today and Saturday, Mercury to Hit 60's

Scattered showers may dampen the Iowa gridiron Saturday when the Hawks play Northwestern here. Intermittent rains have been falling in Iowa City since early Wednesday, and weather bureau officials expect them to continue at least through today. Iowa City received its largest rainfall of the season Thursday morning with the moisture amounting to .31 of an inch according to Civil Aeronautics authorities at the local airport. Temperatures stayed up Thursday with the mercury hovering in the mid-sixties. The high was a sticky 68 while the low touched 62. Today's low will be about 55 with the high again in the 60's. Elsewhere in the state, colder weather, with temperatures as low as 35 degrees is expected.

But Baby! This is California!

CALIFORNIA WEATHER cooled off some Wednesday night with temperatures dropping into the 30's in many southern California areas. Jack Andres (above), a Los Angeles waiter, figures there's only one way to get warm. The weather bureau promised some relief Thursday, but Andres decided that was too long to wait.

Second Son Born To Dorothy Lamour

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Dorothy Lamour, actress wife of advertising executive William Ross Howard III, gave birth Thursday night to a seven-pound two-and-a-half ounce son, her second, at Good Samaritan hospital. The son will be named Richard Thomson Howard after her husband's grandfather. Her physician, Dr. Raymond McBurney, said Miss Lamour was doing fine. The Howards have one other son, Riddley, 3 1/2.

'Emergency Report' May Solve Problem Of Where to Park

The critical campus parking problem may soon be solved. An "emergency report" dealing with the on-campus parking problem soon will be submitted to the campus planning committee by the sub-committee on parking, committee member James Jordan, SUI information service director, said Thursday. Jordan said the five-man committee has met three times. From these meetings, a list of recommendations has been drawn up, to be incorporated in the emergency report. The report, if accepted and acted upon, will attempt to provide immediate relief for the campus parking space shortage, he added. A "long-range report" will follow the emergency report and deal with a permanent settlement for the problem, Jordan explained. At present, there are 281 campus spaces. It has been indicated about twice that number are needed. Sub-committee members besides Jordan are Prof. A.K. Miller, geology department, chairman; R.J. Phillips, physical plant supervisor; Dean Walter Goetsch, director of the office of student affairs, and Prof. Richard Holcomb of the public affairs department in the extension division.

Businessman Made Premier of France

PARIS (AP) - Rene Mayer, a moderate political leader with a background of business experience, was confirmed Thursday night as the new premier of France. The national assembly gave Mayer, a member of the Radical Socialist party, 341 votes. This was 31 more than he needed to get the nod from the assembly for the complex job of trying to solve France's pressing wage-price problems.

Soviets Draw New Blast from Acheson

NEW YORK (AP) - Secretary of State Dean Acheson Thursday night branded Russia "the aggressively imperialist power of our times." The Soviet Union, he said, is trying to "extend its dominion" wherever it is able and to spread "confusion and disintegration" in those parts of the world beyond its grasp. Acheson discussed foreign policy problems in a speech at the Alfred E. Smith Memorial foundation dinner here. Acheson appealed for popular understanding on great foreign policy issues. He said it is the American citizens, "acting directly through public opinion and through the congress, who decide the contours of our policies and whether those policies shall go forward or waver and stop." The state department, he said, must be close to the people, giving them the facts they need to form their judgments. "It must not be afraid to tell the truth when that is painful and unpleasant, as it was in the China white paper," Acheson said. "It must not be afraid to recommend and fight for courses which are hard and long when any other course would be a deception and a fraud."

Princess' Warning Gets Varied Replies

LONDON (AP) - Specialists on British marriage problems split up Thursday over Princess Elizabeth's attack against evils of divorce. Britain's Marriage Reform committee deplored a warning by Princess Elizabeth to the Mothers' union Tuesday that divorce threatens the stability of British family life. "We have observed the statement with regret," said R.S.W. Pollard, chairman of the committee of sociologists and lawyers seeking to liberalize British divorce laws. "But the marriage guidance council, whose 100 branches throughout England attempt to build happy marriages, defended the Royal speaker. "Very welcome," said A.J. Brayshaw, its generally secretary. He said what Princess Elizabeth told the Mothers' union was "very much to the point, and we would like to hear more speakers like her." Buckingham Palace declined comment.

SUI Student Gets Bid to West Point

Roger Frisbie, AI, Cherokee Thursday was announced as principal appointee to the U.S. military academy at West Point by Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Iowa). Frisbie, 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Frisbie of Cherokee. He is at present a private first class in the Iowa City national guard and is enrolled in the first year basic ROTC here. "If I am accepted after the entrance exams I plan to enter the academy," Frisbie said. Craig Eugene Mahaffy, 20, the son of Mrs. Madolin Mahaffy of 907 E. Davenport street was named first alternate. Mahaffy enlisted June 11, 1948, for three years in the army air corps as a paratrooper. He is now stationed at the military prep-school airforce base at Newburgh, N.Y.

Used Cars Checked For Safety Defects

More than 45 percent of automobiles on Iowa City used car lots have safety defects, a highway patrol inspection showed Thursday. But most of the defects were only minor. Patrolman J.L. Smith reported. He said local used car dealers were "doing a pretty good job" of complying with the state law. Patrolman Smith and Highway Patrolman Virgil Johnston made the inspection at the direction of the state department of public safety. They checked 82 cars and put faulty equipment tickets on 27 of them. A state law makes it a misdemeanor to sell or offer for sale any motor vehicle not meeting safety standards. Concern over the number of unroadworthy used cars involved in accidents prompted the inspections which will continue this week in Iowa City and Johnson county.

Vishinsky Casts Ballot in Council Seat Vote

CASTING HIS BALLOT for a security council seat is Russia's Andrei Vishinsky (center). Following him, ballot in hand, is Warren Austin, U.S. delegate. The voting took place Thursday at the United Nations general assembly. Despite last minute protest of Vishinsky, Yugoslavia won the security council seat over Soviet-sponsored Czechoslovakia. The vote was 39 to 19.

Pep Rally to Hear Senior Hawkeyes

At 6:45 p.m. today the whistle in the engineering building will blow to remind all SUI students of the Iowa - Northwestern game pep rally at the bandshell south of the Iowa Union. Highlights of the program will be presentation of the football team seniors to the crowd and a dance by members of SUI's Scottish Highlanders. The SUI pep band under the direction of Assistant Band Director Arnold Oehlson will play at the meeting, and the SUI cheerleaders will lead cheers and furnish tumbling and trampoline stunts, Jones said. Tailfeathers President E.K. Jones said the rally will officially begin at 7:15 p.m. with Murray Kniffen, A4, Rock Rapids, as master of ceremonies.

'Ike' Tells Top Brass To Stop 'Name Calling'

General Clark Would Dismiss All Unity Foes

WASHINGTON (AP) - General of the army Dwight D. Eisenhower told the nation's quarreling military chiefs Thursday that a unified America "can lick the world"—and he counseled them to stop "name calling." Setbacks must be expected in unification as in war, Eisenhower said. Top army admirals have accused the army and air force of "ganging up" under the unified defense setup to deprive the navy of its offensive power. Generals in turn have lashed back at the navy leadership. Testifying with Eisenhower before the house armed services committee Thursday, Gen. Mark Clark urged the "ruthless elimination" from the nation's military establishment of those who do not believe in unification of the armed forces. With tempers growing ever shorter in the house hearings, Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) turned his fire against Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. Vinson accused the civilian defense chief of putting the cart before the horse in working out military budget requirements in an "arbitrary" manner dangerous to national defense. Referring to Johnson's economy campaign, Vinson hinted that the secretary was evading budget-making orders from congress based on national defense requirements. "I think the congress is going to have to take the reins in its own hands and decide defense needs," Vinson announced at the end of the day's session. Vinson has indicated in no uncertain terms that Johnson, who is scheduled to testify today, is in for some sharp questions about "head cracking" at the Pentagon. The chairman has repeatedly denounced what he termed attempts by "bureaucrats" to "make a record" and stage "a grandstand play." General Eisenhower, wartime commander-in-chief of the victorious allied forces in Europe and now president of Columbia university, drew an overflow crowd as he appeared to testify on invitation from Chairman Vinson. Eisenhower spoke frankly and crisply, without notes or prepared statement. In summary, he advised both the lawmakers and the feuding services not to "panic" at the first sign of trouble. "We are expecting perfection too quickly, gentlemen," he said. Taking no sides in the bitter inter-service row that has flamed out from capitol hill during the past two weeks, Eisenhower said the admirals and the generals who have testified at cross purposes against each other are "all distinguished Americans."

A WAY TO 'LICK THE WORLD' says Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (right) is with a "unified America." He told the house armed services committee Thursday that he believed unification would work "from this moment on." Eisenhower, president of Columbia university and former army chief of staff, called on quarreling services and congress to give unification a chance. Gen. J. Lawton Collins (left), army's present top leader, preceded Eisenhower on the stand.

Membership Drops In SUI Fraternities

This year's fraternity membership at SUI has decreased in comparison with preceding years. Graham Marshall, director of fraternity business service, said Thursday. Last year's average of 65 members and pledges per fraternity has dropped to about 60, according to the total recorded Oct. 1. Fraternity housing is still a problem, in spite of the decrease, Marshall said. Out of 975 fraternity members and pledges, only about 650 can be accommodated in the chapter houses.

University Play Tickets Sold Out for Weekend

Tickets for tonight's and Saturday night's performances of "You Can't Take It With You" were completely sold out by Wednesday afternoon, according to a report from the University theater ticket office, room 8A Schaeffer hall. Seats are still available for every night next week.

Compelled to Testify, Indicted Man Claims

Kenneth Smith, Lone Tree, filed motion in Johnson county district court Thursday to have grand jury indictments against him dismissed on grounds he testified before the grand jury under compulsion. The grand jury indicted Smith about three weeks ago on charges of illegal possession of gambling devices and intoxicating liquors. Smith was accused of having in his possession, July 13, whiskey, slot machines and punch boards. Smith was arraigned before District Judge James P. Gaffney Oct. 12 and was allowed until Monday to file a written pleading to the charges. Judge Gaffney postponed the pleading until Thursday. In the motion for dismissal, Smith said he appeared before the grand jury in response to a subpoena and that he was required to give testimony to the grand jury and to the county attorney concerning alleged liquor and gambling law violations. The testimony tended to prove the charges against him, Smith said. Smith also claims that minutes of all testimony taken before the grand jury were not returned as required by law. He claims he is immune from prosecution and that the charges against him should be dismissed. Judge Gaffney took the case under advisement. He indicated there is some question as to whether a person can be legally subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury on charges of illegal possession of liquor and gambling devices.

State Official Seeks Compromise in Rift In Lone Tree School

The Lone Tree rift between school superintendent and school board may be settled before the scheduled hearing Tuesday night. Charles Martin, executive secretary of the Iowa State Education association, Thursday said hearings of that type "are not good" for any person or group concerned. Martin said at least one person from the association headquarters in Des Moines would "make an impartial investigation with an idea toward working out a compromise." Supt. P.D. Burkhalter was suspended Saturday by the school board for "mismanagement." Burkhalter's denial of the charges was heard Sunday at a meeting of a group of citizens from Lone Tree and the surrounding area. The school board and a committee factoring Burkhalter's reinstatement met Tuesday night with their respective attorneys, but no action was taken.

Need Higher Taxes Next Year: Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Truman, saying he is unhappy about deficit spending, made it plain Thursday he will ask congress for higher taxes next year. He told his weekly news conference that he will recommend ways to prevent the government operating in the red, and if there is any other way to do it than by increasing taxes he would like to know it. Republicans and some Democrats immediately responded with a call for a reduction in expenditures rather than a tax raise. Questioned about the prospective $5-billion deficit for the year ending next June 30, the President said it was not his fault. He added that the Republican 80th congress passed a rich man's tax cut bill and there are what he called fixed charges of $35-billion in the budget which must be met. He did not elaborate on what he included in the fixed charges.

Chinese Communists Close in on Kweilin

HONG KONG (FRIDAY AP) - Chinese Communist troops today were believed nearing Kweilin, headquarters for Nationalist Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi's last-dict defense in southwest China. The hint came from an announcement that the China National Aviation Corp. was pulling out of Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi province 250 miles northwest of Canton. Tickets for tonight's and Saturday night's performances of "You Can't Take It With You" were completely sold out by Wednesday afternoon, according to a report from the University theater ticket office, room 8A Schaeffer hall. Seats are still available for every night next week.

Never Turn Your Back on the Cats, Harry

By GIL PEARLMAN

SIT BACK and try to relax. Smoking will be allowed if it makes you feel more at ease. Please take a sheet of paper in your right or left hand, depending upon which hand you prefer to write with.

If you don't have a pencil may be you can borrow one from the person sitting, standing or leaning on a parking meter next to you. Today, scholars, we are going to have a short quiz. One question, to be exact.

Question: What is the oldest problem known to man?

If you need three guesses, you will automatically be put into the hermit class. If you answer international relations, better you shouldn't read further.

If, however, you answer WOMEN, you couldn't be more correct, even if this were an essay type examination. You will receive an 'A plus' and may now sit back in agony realizing the validity of your answer.

Ever since Adam and Eve, historians have accredited the downfall of man to a snake and an apple. Is there no justice?

I ask you, did a cobra cut the curly locks of Sampson and sap him of his strength? Did an apple cause the total destruction of Anthony? A tomato, yes, but an apple, no!

THIS WHOLE TREND of thought is brought about by the fact that I have just talked with my brother, who called me long distance to inform me I couldn't borrow another dime.

After talking to him I remembered his younger years wherein, for some reason or another, he grew very bitter toward the fairer sex.

Please note, it is the bitterness of my brother's young manhood that is reflected in the above and following lines — not mine. Personally, I think womanhood is a great institution and is here to stay.

As a matter of fact, my brother became so disillusioned he even wrote a poem. He is now married and no longer bitter, just broke. Upon taking the sacred vows, he thought he destroyed the poem, but I, little devil that I am, saved it to print when the opportunity presented itself.

HERE FOLLOWS a dedication to history, in verse. The young, ever egotistical male, disappointed in love . . .

EXPERIENCED
What makes a woman so selfish and small,
What makes a woman give none and take all?
I know the reasons, but why should I tell,
To find the real answers, my soul I did sell.

My advice to a young man with courage and fight,
Is to love a good dog, they bark and then bite.
But a woman is true and sincere to your face,
While behind your back she plans your disgrace.

She will swear to be faithful and vow to be true,
And confides life isn't worth living except for you.
But she meets other fellows whose faces are new,
And the next you see her, you won't quite do.

You've been a swell fellow and she would like to be friends,
And to do you a favor, she would go to all ends.
But man has found out and at last he is wise,
Woman are just trouble in a painted disguise.

Don't let them fool you, they are all the same,
They play you for a sucker, to them it's a game,
They're not on the level, and they never will be,
I'm a man of experience, you can take it from me.

CLIENT DOESN'T CHEAT
CHICAGO — The attorney for one of the defendants in the government mail fraud case against Preston Tucker declared Wednesday that his client was an honest man because he didn't cheat on his golf score.

'Walking Women' Squabble

The case of the "walking women" at Bowling Green university demonstrates collegiate fervor at its bubbling best.

The controversy centers about a Bowling Green regulation which prohibits coeds from riding in automobiles and buses. Faculty members of that university seem determined to keep the girls away from vehicles of any type. The student demonstration that was staged Tuesday indicates that the student body opposes the measure just as firmly.

Time was when student demonstrations were concerted with winning football games, or getting free days from school. In the past couple years, though, "freedom" has been the cause of a great many mass meetings of students.

At City College of New York last year the students shouted against a Communist movement that was allegedly sweeping that campus.

Neighboring Iowa State college put on a show last Thursday night which resulted in a day of no classes "if Iowa State wins its Homecoming game." Iowa State won and classes were dismissed.

It might be that the Bowling Green students are taking their freedom—or lack of it—too seriously. If they really want to allow their coeds to ride in cars, drink 3.2 beer in their student union and have a free newspaper, they could go about getting the freedoms with less hullabaloo.

You Can't Win —

The weatherman has been reaching deep into his bag of tricks lately and coming up with some surprise mixtures of the elements. The tricks have caused no little concern among those persons who are faced with the questions, "What should I do with my raincoat today? Wear it or hope the sun will shine?"

No matter how a person decides to battle the weather, he seems to guess wrong. It looks as though there's no way to defeat the autumn hazard.

Dust and Ashes —

An article in the Sept. 20 issue of the Women's Home Companion tells that over 50 percent of the children who enter high school drop out before graduation. This is an alarming statement. If the facts are true, and they seem to be substantiated by accurate statistics, we are wasting half the money taxpayers give the government for education.

At this rate, we are only paying lip service to a tradition of free education for teen-agers.

The article undertakes to point out why so many pupils do not reach the state of graduation from our high schools. And the reasons are so varied they make the head swim. Any college student today who expects to send his family to public schools someday in the future would do well to think over the situation.

Most alarming is the fact that the pull to leave is not what drags teen-agers from high school. The statement is made that the urge to stay is weaker than the urge to go. There's just nothing to make them want to stay in school, according to the article.

Money problems are seldom the core of the conflicts presented. Nor is it a desire of independence. The problems of adjustment to different school situations seem to be most important.

Education in general has received more attention in the past four years than ever before. The pitiful state of teachers' salaries has received wide publicity since the war ended. Something has been done to remedy the trouble in many places.

Universities have overhauled their curricula since the war to fit the needs of an expanding older student body than most had ever experienced. Education is receiving the attention it deserves in the scheme of things.

But there may be a larger problem if we can accept the magazine article. It is this: while we're revamping the college setup, what about the educational system of the high schools and grade schools. Revamping should begin at the bottom of the educational ladder.

There's a definite problem still existing in our educational setup. A case in point is the controversy now in Lone Tree, where half the town supports an embattled superintendent and the rest seek his removal.

Lone Tree's case needs careful study before any action is taken. Perhaps the Lone Tree problem when it reaches an equitable solution will point the way to better understanding of all our educational problems.

A Matter of Geography

Interpreting the News — Our Support of Yugoslavia Stirs Up Bitter UN Fight

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
(UP) Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United Nations appeared Thursday to be on the verge of taking sides with Titoism in its conflict with Stalinism.

For that, in effect, will be the result if Yugoslavia is elected to the security council over Czechoslovakia, as was being predicted at Lake Success.

For the west it means a choice between two unpalatable candidates for the eastern Europe seat.

But Russia will take it as public condemnation of her actions in one of the most embarrassing disputes which has ever threatened the ranks of international communism.

Naturally, then, it has stirred up one of the bitterest fights in UN history.

Nothing since the dispute over the Berlin problem at Paris last year has aroused so much speculation that Russia might withdraw from the peace organization. Calmer elements discount this. But it lurks behind the scenes of all discussion at Lake Success.

Andrej Vishinsky, at one of his rare press conferences, put up a measured technical argument in favor of what he called a long-standing gentlemen's agreement that the non-permanent members of the council should be chosen on a regional or geopolitical basis, the candidates chosen by their own groups to be accepted by other delegations.

He cited the fact that Russia supported Argentina, the Latin-American choice, two years ago, despite strained relations between the two countries. He claims that since Yugoslavia is running independently, she has no claim to the seat.

The United States says the gentlemen's agreement envisioned representation for the Communist states of eastern Europe, that Yugoslavia is a Communist state, and that the fact she is no longer a member of the Soviet bloc has nothing to do with her qualifications.

The truth lying in between, of course, is that the argument is merely a part of the cold war. Britain has been expected to support Czechoslovakia in violation of the American concept, however, because any variation from the regional selection system might some day threaten a British commonwealth candidate. Vishinsky said he doubted the British would go through with it; that his information was she would eventually support Yugoslavia.

There is no question that the "bloc acceptance" system has operated in previous elections at the UN as Vishinsky says. One of the most consistent plays, aside from the Anglo-American cooperation, has been the log-rolling between the Arabs and the Latin-Americans.

Their "you vote for our man and we'll vote for yours" system actually constitutes a controlling power, since between them they have 30 percent of the votes and without them no one can get the two thirds needed.

Britain and the United States would have been glad if Yugoslavia had not run. It caused an unwelcome disagreement between the two partners, and Russia's announcement that she will never consider Yugoslavia's election legal is forewarning of the "painful consequences" with which Vishinsky threatened the UN.

But the U.S., according to Lake Success reports which are not verified, is not only going to vote for Yugoslavia but has told her diplomatic corps abroad to let other governments know how we stand, a polite form of pressure.

Last minute estimates at Lake Success were that Yugoslavia would come into the assembly meeting with between 30 and 35 votes, with 40 needed for election. Czechoslovakia was credited with 12 to 14, and the best Russian bloc estimate did not exceed 18.

Other scattered votes are expected on the first ballot, and one source predicted after a survey that Yugoslavia would be elected on the third ballot.

Future 'Hazy' for — Atom-Powered Planes

— Professor Agrees
By PHIL BLUMER

Airplanes faster than the speed of sound — ships, planes and submarines — capable of traveling immense distances without refueling — scientists say these are the possibilities if atomic energy can be harnessed to power man's machines.

The U.S. atomic energy commission (AEC) is working on the problem. Since the end of the war, some of the nation's top scientists have been trying to overcome the obstacles now in the way of such an undertaking.

PROF. JAMES A. JACOBS, SUI director of research in nuclear physics, said recently: "My own feeling is that atomic power is practical for large ships and may be developed fairly soon for use in remotely controlled aircraft.

"But because of shielding problems it may be a very long time before we have atomic-powered airplanes carrying people.

"Even in case of ships it may not be economical to use atomic power. Coal would probably be cheaper.

"In naval warfare, the advantage of not having to refuel for long periods may offset the extra costs of using atomic power."

Andrew Kalitinsky, chief engineer of the AEC's atomic aircraft project, said in 1948 that an atom-powered airplane, if it could be built, might be at once bigger, faster and longer-ranged than any aircraft now in existence.

Some scientists acquainted with the project, however, say that atom-powered aircraft may never be built.

THE PROBLEMS to be faced in building such a machine are very great. Last summer the AEC revealed that preliminary investigations of the project may take at least two or three more years.

However, if the scientists of the AEC's nuclear engine powered-aircraft project decide that the whole thing is feasible, actual construction of the plane will probably follow certain presently-known lines.

The atom-powered aircraft would be either propeller or jet driven.

In either case, it is assumed that the source of energy to drive the jets or the propellers would be a controlled nuclear reaction carried on in an atomic pile.

Reactions in the pile produce great amounts of heat. Conversion of this heat energy into kinetic energy necessary to drive the airplane would probably follow much the same pattern as it does in steam-driven present-day ships.

HEAT FROM the pile would be used to vaporize water or some other substance such as mercury. These substances, when vaporized, expand many times.

This expansion would produce pressures which could drive the blades of a turbine, which would in turn drive a propeller.

In a jet driven plane, air would be drawn from the atmosphere into a chamber where it would be heated by the atomic pile.

Rushing out a jet at the rear of the plane, the heated air would drive the machine forward in much the same manner as a conventional jet plane.

Among the problems which scientists will have to overcome to produce an atom-powered plane will be:

1. The huge size. The shielding necessary to protect passengers and crews from deadly radiation would alone weigh many tons. In addition, the heat transferring mechanism would weigh very much more.
2. The problem of transferring vast quantities of heat from the relatively small area of the atomic pile to the propelling device.

Both of these problems would also exist for submarines and small surface ships as well as for planes. However, here the problem is less critical because of the greater size of the machines.

Albanian King Plans Return

CAIRO (UP)—King Ahmed Zog of Albania, who has lived here in exile for three years, Thursday said the Stalin-Tito cold war is only "a family quarrel." He predicted the trend of world politics would make it possible for him to return to his Balkan throne "in the near future."

"Yugoslavia finds itself presently encircled by member states of the Cominform," Zog said. "A cold war is declared against her, but I am of the opinion it is so far a family quarrel."

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, Zog also predicted that free and democratic peoples eventually would help Albania free herself from communism.

"A deadly struggle has been going on for four years in Albania between the free man attached to his ancestral traditions and the robot man who is subjugated to a power imposed by a minority," he said. "The whole nation is being bled to its last drop in this ideological carnage."

Zog said he would be glad to have the opportunity of visiting America "as soon as possible."

He fled from Tirana, capital of Albania, on April 8, 1939, as Mussolini's troops entered the country. His wife, Queen Geraldine, also left although she had borne a son only three days previously.

Zog has insisted upon retaining all the protocol of his court in exile. He is attended by eight aide-de-camps, two of whom are always on duty. It is estimated here that Zog spends $500,000 a year.

Veria Michales Dean, research director of the foreign policy association, addressed opening sessions of the Minnesota educational association's western division convention. The two-day gathering was expected to attract almost 1,500 teachers and educators.

"As long as the U.S. and Britain act on the theory that they are entitled to special treatment in world affairs because they are great powers, they must not be surprised to find Russia following the same course," Mrs. Dean said.

There is a widespread preconception that "Russia is not a great power on the same plane" as the other two nations, she said.

Presiding over the conference was Edward W. Bechtel, Fergus Falls high school principal.

Expert Says Russia Wants Top Status

MOORHEAD, MINN. (UP)—Russia's actions in international affairs reflect her determination to be rated as a great world power with the United States and Britain, a foreign affairs expert said Thursday.

Education Continues After College Days —

AAUW Members Explain Association

It's education and more education even after college for members of the American Association of University Women.

This was the opinion of three members of the organization who discussed their work Thursday morning over WSUI's weekly women's feature, "Club Camera."

The association's purpose is practical educational work and the maintenance of high standards of education," declared Mrs. Huston.

The local branch carries out the aim of continuing education after college through the organization of study groups. The six groups and their chairmen are: international relations, Mrs. John Ut-hoff; education, Mrs. Otto Bowling; social studies, Mrs. Robert Michaelson; drama, Mrs. William McManus; creative writing, Mrs. Howard Cook; and music, Mrs. W.W. Morris.

The three representatives added that these study groups also serve as action centers. "They promote legislation where they feel it necessary," Mrs. White pointed out. "For example, during the past session of the Iowa legislature, the study groups backed teachers' pensions and school district reorganization. The programs are studied by the branches, but the action is taken by individual members."

"The association, national in character, numbers over 100,000 members," Mrs. Huston said. The Iowa City branch, organized in 1925, is one of nearly 2,000 in the country and has over 200 members.

Members are required to have an academic degree from a college or university approved by the American Association of University Women. "The approval is based essentially on a broad liberal education program offered by the schools and adequate facilities for women students and women faculty members," Mrs. Huston explained.

The Iowa City branch meets once a month for a general meeting with the next one scheduled for Nov. 19. Tradition dictates that it be a luncheon event. Programs are of a general character, Mrs. Huston said, but they usually relate to education with important people in education circles as speakers.

Study groups meet once a month, Mrs. White added, and the drama group seems to attract the largest membership.

A fellowship program, including national, international, and study grant awards, is sponsored by the AAUW. "These fellowships cover a great range," Mrs. White said, "and may be highly academic, professional or practical."

The total fellowship awards last year amounted to nearly $118,000, Mrs. Huston pointed out. She added that the fellowships are an international undertaking with local groups contributing money. "The policy of this branch is to contribute at least one dollar per member," she said.

The association is one of eight member organizations on the Iowa Council for Better Education in Des Moines.

Ada Stofflet Joins SUI Library Staff

Ada Stofflet, new SUI library employee, arrived in Iowa City this week to begin work as a member of the library's cataloging department.

Miss Stofflet has just returned to Iowa after vacationing for two months in England and continental Europe.

She spent most of the summer in England, she said, and visited several interesting libraries there and in Scotland. She also traveled with a mobile library unit, or van, in rural England.

Miss Stofflet's home is in Cedar Rapids, but she plans to live in Iowa City if she can find housing facilities, she said.

She is a graduate of Coe college, and received her library training at the University of Wisconsin.

Before her training at Wisconsin, Miss Stofflet worked for the federal security agency in Washington, D.C. as an analyst on state unemployment problem.

SUI Students Tell of Europe At Panel Talk

Four SUI students who spent last summer in Europe related their experiences at a panel discussion, "Europe Through SUI-Eyes," Thursday afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

The panel discussion, sponsored by the Information First program of the University Women's Association, featured Mary Louise Anneberg, A3, Carroll; H. Rand Peterson, A3, Harlan; Mary McMahon, A4, Manning, and Larry Fryer, C4, Des Moines.

Prof. John Haefner of the social studies department at University high school was leader of the discussion.

The four students agreed that in the Scandinavian countries—Belgium, Holland and France, there still exists an extreme hatred of Germany.

One of Miss Anneberg's impressions was "The biggest shock I encountered," she narrated, when she "saw nothing but rubble where there was formerly a large city" in Germany.

Petersen said that the Germans prefer life in the Western zone. "However," he said, "they are politically listless and have no faith in their economy."

Miss McMahon said that the English are "much friendlier" than she had expected. "Possibly people in cities are more reserved, but that would be true in an American city, too." She was a guest for a week in an English home, where she was "royally treated", she reported.

In answer to a question concerning English opinion of the socialization of industries, Fryer and Petersen said that many people in England oppose the program of the labor government.

"The conservative party is all set to change back to the old system of capitalism as soon as they get into power," Petersen asserted.

Right now many Europeans are confused, especially in Germany," one member of the panel summed up. "They can't decide which looks better—communism or democracy."

C of C to Discuss New Office Plans

Proposed plans for the new chamber of commerce offices in the Iowa apartment building probably will be considered by the chamber's board of directors at a meeting this morning, Secretary Robert Gage said Thursday.

The board will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the assembly room of the company, 211 E. Washington street.

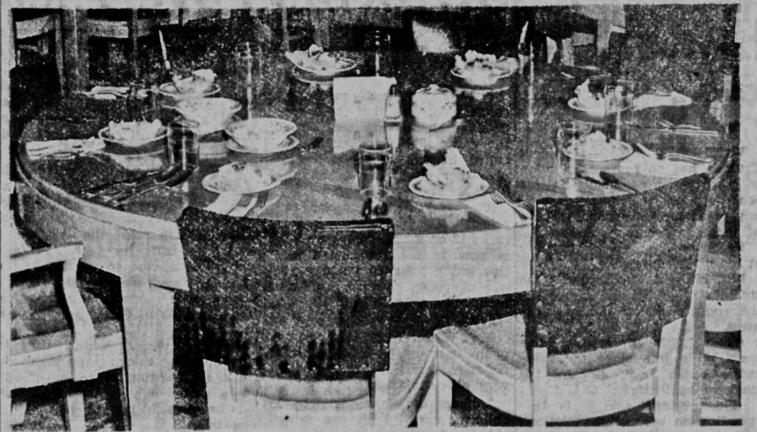

Besides discussing the plans and furnishings of the ground office on South Linn street, the board is expected to act on other miscellaneous business, including the approval of several committees.

SUI Students Attend Fraternity Conference

Two SUI students represented the Alpha Xi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, at the annual north-central district conference held in Detroit Oct. 13-15.

They were George Wylie, G, Iowa City, and Kenneth Tyler, C4, Villisca.

Currier Girls Served Colorful Salads

(Daily Iowan Photo)

RED POMEGRANATES added a dash of color to one of the salads served this week in Currier hall, SUI women's dormitory. Sliced bananas and pineapple made up the rest of the salad which was served on a lettuce leaf. Currier dietitians try to vary their salad menus, and make them more appealing through the use of color and tasty dressings, according to Helen Goodenow, director of dining service at Currier hall. In the picture a table is set up as coeds see it upon entering the Currier dining room.

Dorm Dietitian Gives Salad Hints

Arrangement and color are highly important in salad making.

"Every salad is a picture. The outside is the frame, and the ingredients that make up the design need to be artistic," said Helen Goodenow, director of dining service at Currier hall, SUI women's dormitory.

Miss Goodenow, who with three other dietitians plans the menu for approximately 656 girls and 213 employees at Currier every day, said that dressings and color give salads their appeal.

Dietitians at Currier have lived in dormitories and are aware of the problems in serving girls, Miss Goodenow said.

"We know they like salads, and that they tend to watch calories somewhat, so we give them as many different kinds as possible with the foods that are in season," she added.

"Some girls come to a dormitory with preconceived ideas about the type of food which will be served. Dormitory menus offer a greater variety of food than women are used to in their homes, so the chances that coeds will not like certain dishes is highly possible," the Currier dietitian said.

"But they learn to like a greater variety of foods, and that's an advantage," she added.

Persons in charge of planning advance menus take their clues from the leftovers, Miss Goodenow, said. If a salad is untouched or partly eaten by many girls, it is analyzed. The dietitians try to discover what element within the salad was disliked. Then it is not repeated.

Miss Goodenow, who has been at Currier for almost seven years, said that an observer rarely can tell what day of the week it was, merely by inspecting a menu. If a correct guess is made, it is due to chance or the fact that a certain dish—chili for example—is faster to serve on a football game day.

"We try to think of as many different salad combinations as we can," Miss Goodenow said.

For color, oranges, pomegranates, apricots and other colorful canned and fresh fruits are used. Unusual techniques such as leaving bright red peelings on the apple; are employed, too. If the lettuce in a salad isn't colorful, various types of greens are added for more appeal.

"Fruit salads and fruit plates are very popular with the girls," Miss Goodenow said. "We often serve them, especially in the spring and summertime. For these we have no recipes, but are continually searching for new ideas," she added.

"A salad that seems to be more of a dessert is a favorite with the girls," Miss Goodenow commented. No specific fruits make up the salad, but they are varied according to the season. This dessert-salad consists of whipped cream, marshmallows, and various types of mixed fruits, served on a lettuce leaf.

Gelatin salads are popular, too, Miss Goodenow commented. One favorite is an orange gelatin base with sliced peaches and pecan halves included in the mold. "Nuts add a decorative touch to most dishes," Miss Goodenow said.

"Both tossed and perfection vegetable salads seem to have just about average popularity. Once in a while we combine fruits with vegetables for either color or texture, but it's unusual," the Currier dietitian added. "We do a lot with salad dressings at Currier because they're part of the appeal," she explained.

ed. One of the favorites is a mayonnaise and chili salad dressing combination.

An ordinary mayonnaise base is used and chili sauce is added until the dressing tastes and looks right. "This goes well with tossed vegetable salads and with head lettuce," she added.

"Any salad is appealing if you use color, design, and tasty dressings," Miss Goodenow concluded.

Truman Says He Won't Enter Strike Fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman has no present intention of intervening personally in the coal or steel strikes, nor has any plans for government seizure of those industries.

He made that clear Thursday at his news conference.

But, he said, the sooner those strikes are ended the better for the country, labor and management.

About 1,000,000 workers have been made idle since the mine strike began Sept. 19 and the steel walkout started Oct. 1.

The president said he is depending on current conciliation efforts to spur the parties into settling the strikes "directly among themselves."

Coal talks at White Sulphur Springs and Bluefield, W. Va., tented through another day without results.

An expected summons from Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching did not come Thursday. The coal operators and union negotiators had about decided they would be called back to Washington for more conciliation—or for some other reason.

Ching, however, was in New York trying to get U.S. STEEL officials back at the bargaining table with Philip Murray, head of the striking steelworkers.

After his talks with U.S. STEEL had been in progress for six hours, Ching sent word to reporters that the conference would continue. But he gave no indication whether any progress had been made toward settling the strike.

No open steel negotiations were under way. Murray was in Pittsburgh, after a barnstorming tour to explain his version of the strike issues and prospects for a union victory.

SUI Kids Love Their 'Classes'

SUI has a class this semester where "students" major in blocks, dolls and listening to nursery rhymes.

Now before such practice is condemned, note that these prospective scholars are members of the class of 1965. They are enrolled in one of the most cooperative groups now active at SUI, the "playschool."

This recreation spot for preschool children, located in barracks 12 on E. Bloomington street, is now in its fourth and most flourishing year of keeping college couples' children occupied while the parents are studying or making a living.

Mrs. Walter Knox is supervisor of the unit and, with Mrs. Donald Kearney, forms the nucleus of a very efficient "faculty."

Mothers of the more than 70 children enrolled in the school aid in directing the play at scheduled times.

"The idea is to help the children get along independent of parents and to give the parents a place to leave their children while they attend classes or work," Mrs. Knox said.

The abundance of equipment, contributed almost entirely by the parents, affords the children a full play schedule. Play and story-telling are sandwiched between refreshment periods during the day.

Mrs. Knox said the system works in shifts for both adults and children. One group, the two and three-year-olds, holds sessions in the morning, while the five-year-olds meet in the afternoon.

Activity varies widely from clay modeling, coloring and wood-work on the inside, to out-of-doors games where the rugged lads are already making like Big Ten threats.

These young football players couldn't pick a better place to practice, because right next door, with a press box view of the proceedings, lives Paul Brechler, SUI athletic director.

The playschool was begun soon after the war by a group of veterans and their wives who wanted a place to leave their children during the day.

From its beginning in church basements, the playschool has grown until this year, SUI granted the school a barracks one block south of Currier Hall.

All the parents pitched in to decorate the place. A council of the parents governs the school, and each parent has certain duties to perform in the operation.

Some outside groups have contributed to the playschool, but for the most part it has been the work of the parents, according to Mrs. Knox.

And so while Dad is away studying Hamlet and finding out just what is rotten in the state of Denmark, or while Ma is hanging out the wash, Junior is learning and playing at the school, under careful supervision.

Graduate Students Contribute to Fall Literary Quarterly

The writing of three SUI graduates will be in the fall issue of "Western Review," a literary quarterly magazine.

Prof. Ray B. West Jr., editor of the publication, said a story by James McConkey, Lakewood, Ohio; several poems by Robert Shelly, St. Louis, Mo., and a book review by Alwyn Berland, Chicago, will be in the magazine.

The November issue of the "Western Review" will be the first printed at SUI. West, an associate professor of English here, founded the magazine in 1937, and has published it in Salt Lake City and Lawrence, Kan.

Several other SUI graduate students, connected with the writer's workshop program, will aid West in editing and preparing material for publication. Prof. Paul Engle, director of the writer's workshop, will serve as advisory editor.

West said the quarterly is a literary magazine for short stories, poems, articles, and book reviews and criticisms. Much of the writing is done by little-known young writers.

West teaches a course in theory and form of modern fiction at SUI. He received his Ph.D. here in 1945, and has taught in the English departments of the Universities of Utah, Montana and Kansas.

He said the "Western Review" is one of the oldest American literary quarters. It was known as "The Rocky Mountain Review" when printed in Utah.

At SUI the quarterly will have a new and enlarged format, designed by Carroll Coleman, typography expert in the school of journalism.

'You Can't Take It With You'

By VINCE BRANN

Between the two of them, Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman possess one of the liveliest gifts for comedy in the present-day American theater.

One of the best examples of this gift is "You Can't Take It With You," which opened the twenty-ninth season at the University theater Thursday night.

In all respects, it is hilarious from start to finish, pausing only now and then for some sound philosophy or for a love scene which is necessary to any such play's success.

For most of the evening, however, it is a happy journey through an utterly insane household. Even to list half of the lunacies would be impossible; perhaps the only rock of wisdom and control is Grandpa Vanderhof, who is smart enough to let meritment have its fling.

The current performance is a tribute to all concerned. Prof. Harold C. Crain, the director, has produced a beautifully knit presentation that hardly allows the audience time for a deep breath between laughs.

This calls for nearly perfect timing on the part of the entire cast, especially with so much activity on one stage. Not once did the timing appear to falter; by the time the second act came to its end, there was more than a faint hint of the Ringling Brothers main tent.

To keep it all moving in the right direction is a monumental task, and it is a genuine pleasure

John Anderson is, by this time, not a stranger to the local theater's stage. His performance in the role of "Grandpa" is a smooth, easy-going job that never once lets down. In fact, he seems even more in his element than in "Our Town," a play in which he was also outstanding.

Grandpa is surrounded by his daughter and son-in-law, together with their children and what appears to be an endless number of hangers-on who dropped in and never left.

Sylvia Girsh as "Essie," the ballet-truck daughter, and Madge Martin as "Penny," the pixilated mother, are outstanding in some of the plays funniest scenes. Richard Shull and Jeanne Bolan are also prominent as two Czarist Russians waiting for better times back home.

Mention should be made, too, of Douglas Wells and Francis Arley in the romantic leads. In such a play as this, the straight roles — that is, the "normal" people — have a difficult time of it; they must hold their own against the antics of so many others. Wells and Miss Arley, however, make their presence known in fine fashion.

The rest of the cast is on a par with those mentioned above. Indeed, this is probably one of the best comedy casts in recent seasons. They have been surrounded by a colorful set and, more important, by a good play.

Midwest Engineers To Hold Convention Here in November

Engineering teachers from colleges and universities in six mid-western states will meet in Iowa City for a two-day engineering education convention on Nov. 4 and 5.

The group represents the north mid-west section of the American Society for Engineering Educators. The section meets annually at one of seven member schools in the six-state area.

Prof. C. J. Posey, 1949 chairman of the section, has announced the program which includes inspection trips, a dinner, a business meeting and division meetings for seven major engineering fields. Posey is acting head of the SUI civil engineering department.

Noted educators in each division are scheduled to present subjects ranging from technical papers and demonstrations to course-evaluation studies and improved teaching techniques.

Prof. Hew Roberts, SUI college of education, will address the group at a dinner at 7 p.m., Nov. 4, in the Iowa Union. Roberts' topic will be "Engineers as People."

The section's six-state area includes Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and three schools in North and South Dakota.

Committee chairmen for each of six engineering divisions are customarily elected from the host school. SUI college of engineering faculty members who are committee chairmen elected at the 1948 convention in Houghton, Mich., include:

Prof. E. B. Kurtz, electrical engineering division; Prof. E. C. Lundquist, mechanical engineering division, Prof. John S. McNow, mathematics and mechanics division.

Prof. Edward M. Mielnik, mineral technology division; Prof. Philip F. Morgan, civil engineering division, and Prof. James O. Osburn, chemical engineering division.

A seventh division, engineering drawing, will be reactivated with an open house and informal conference scheduled by the SUI engineering drawing department under the direction of Prof. F. G. Higbee.

The north mid-west section is one of 16 similar sections into which the national society is divided. Prof. F. M. Dawson, SUI college of engineering dean, helped organize the section in the early '30s when he was on the staff at the University of Wisconsin.

Hawk Book Covers Idea of SUI Grad

Noticed the yellow Hawke covers on many of the books around the campus?

An enterprising SUI alumnus is president of the company which produces these covers.

Wilton Lutwack, a 1938 SUI graduate, is in the top position of the Colad company, Inc., Buffalo, N.Y., which supplies the book covers to an Iowa City book store where Lutwack was employed while in college.

A journalism major at SUI, he is a member of the Sigma Delta Chi professional fraternity.

Since leaving SUI, Lutwack has been in advertising and sales promotion work.

Local Woman Charges Cruelty in Divorce Suit

Ruth Jane Davenport, Iowa City, filed suit for divorce from Robert Elmer Davenport in district court Thursday.

She charged cruel and inhuman treatment and asked for costs of the divorce action.

Benton Bridge Span Razed by Workmen

Demolition of the old Benton street bridge continued Thursday as workmen finished tearing down the structure's east span.

The E. V. Jensen company, Des Moines, has the contract for the structure's removal after having replaced it with a new bridge, completed last July.

Allen company workers Thursday used a derrick to build a sand foundation under the bridge's west span, in preparation for demolition of that section.

After the span is dynamited to the river level, it will be torn apart and salvaged, workmen said.

ARTHUR DALEY, New York baseball authority, has statistics to prove how seldom ball players' spring holdouts result in better contracts from the management. One of the few times the player won out was when Hi Myers, of the old Brooklyn Dodgers, out-foxed Prexy Charles Ebbets.

The letterhead on which Myers wrote that his proffered contract was inadequate bore the flamboyant heading "Myers' Championship Stock Farm." Ebbets didn't know that the stationery had been printed specially for the occasion, and that Myers' elaborate holdings consisted of one spavined horse, one cow, and a couple of chickens. "This fellow must be independently rich," thought Ebbets. "I better right down to his farm and placate him."

Now it was Myers' turn to grow panicky. But when Ebbets arrived he saw a fine herd of fat cattle in the north pasture, and dozens of sleek horses in another. Obviously, Myers' Stock Farm was flourishing. Ebbets gave him the raise he demanded and departed. Myers spent the next two days returning cows and horses to friendly neighbors within a radius of fifty miles who had come to his rescue when the need was greatest.

Author-Critic To Open SUI Speech Series

"Seeing Things" is the topic chosen by John Mason Brown, author, lecturer and critic, who will speak in the main lounge of the Iowa Union 8 p.m. Monday at the first of SUI's 1949 - 50 lecture series.

An associate editor of The Saturday Review of Literature, Brown has written numerous books including the current best-seller "Seeing More Things," a compilation of his weekly editorials.

In addition he has his own television program "Critic at Large." Brown originally gained fame as New York's leading drama critic, and still holds this position, recently being elected president of the Drama Critics circle for the fourth consecutive year.

During the war, he was given the unusual job of Admiral Kirk's flagship, of broadcasting to the men below decks a running account of each battle as seen from the admiral's bridge.

These talks comprised much of Brown's two war books, "To All Hands" and "Many a Watchful Night."

Born in Louisville in 1900, Brown was educated at Harvard where he was a member with Thomas Wolfe and Philip Barry of the famous 47 workshop headed by Prof. George Pierce Baker.

In 1923 he went abroad to spend a year studying the European theater. Returning to this country in 1924 he joined the staff of Theatre Arts as associate editor, went to the New York Post as drama critic in 1929 and moved on to the World Telegram in 1940.

While his interest during these years centered on criticism, he traveled the length and breadth of the United States and Europe many times.

He has taught at Harvard, Yale, Columbia and the University of Montana.

Brown appeared at SUI in 1947 when his lecture was described as being well-received and entertaining.

Students must present ID cards at the main desk of the Iowa Union to obtain tickets for the lecture, open to the public.

Wandering Church Bell's Fate Unknown

By BOB HENNESSY

A century ago, Iowa Citizens were laughing about Hummer's bell, the church bell that wouldn't stay put.

The Rev. Michael Hummer, for whom the bell was named, bought it in 1848 for the First Presbyterian church in Iowa City.

Hummer had gone on an eastern trip, according to an account in the History of Johnson county (1882), to raise funds for establishing a Presbyterian college or seminary at West Point in Lee county.

On his trip he bought the bell for the church which was then under construction in Iowa City.

When he returned, his congregation was very happy with the new addition for the steeple, but not so happy with the unorthodox "spiritualistic ideas" which his pastor had acquired on his trip.

Some of the presbytery even accused him of bad faith in the matter of funds. Hummer had been paying his own salary on the trip from the donations he received for the proposed college, and some of the members thought he had withheld an excessive sum.

As result of an inquiry into the matter, Hummer was expelled from the ministry.

However, on the basis of claims against the church for back salary, he wanted to take his bell in part payment. The congregation had never paid for the bell, but it was reluctant to part with it.

Hummer, a man of action, pulled up in front of the church one day with a buggy and a friend to help him take the controversial bell down from the steeple.

A crowd gathered to watch the proceedings. Hummer had lowered the bell to the ground and was unfastening some ropes from the steeple, when a group of pranksters removed the ladder and spirited the bell away.

Hummer was apoplectic, but his shouted threats were of no avail. The ladder was not replaced until his pride and joy had disappeared in a bouncing buggy headed for the hinterlands.

The pranksters, determined Hummer would not take their church's bell, backed their buggy into the Iowa river north of Iowa City, and dropped the bell to the bottom.

Hummer finally gave up his search after several days' investigation produced no trace of his beloved bell, and left Iowa City.

The bell's next journey, this time to Salt Lake City, started on April 15, 1850. A group of California - bound gold hunters took it with them and sold it to the Mormons.

They didn't take the clapper, for some reason, and for many years it lay in an Iowa City basement.

Eighteen years later, in 1868, an Iowa Citizen returning from California saw Hummer's bell in Salt Lake City and told the Rev. S.M. Osmond, then pastor of the Presbyterian church in Iowa City, where the bell could be found.

Osmond wrote to Brigham Young, asking for the bell's return. Young agreed to sent it on receipt of shipping costs.

Apparently the Iowa City church never ordered it sent back, for the bell stayed in Salt Lake City.

No one seems to know just what did finally happen to Hummer's clapperless bell. Maybe the Mormons sank it in the great Salt lake.

Hawkeyes End Heavy Sessions As Northwestern Game Nears

Faske's Running Sparks Practice

Iowa's Hawkeyes ran through final heavy drills Thursday afternoon in preparation for their assignment against Northwestern here Saturday.

Just who will replace the injured Ralph Woodard still is not known. It's a toss-up between Bud Kaisershot or Jerry Long. Long got the most attention in Thursday's practice.

Jerry Faske, who sparked the Hawks' second half comeback against Indiana, has moved into the first string backfield along with Glenn Drahn at quarterback, Don Commaek at left half and Bill Reichardt at fullback. Faske has been hampered most of the season with a bruised hip.

Although Earl Banks is not scheduled to start at his guard slot, he is expected to be in the lineup for defensive duty.

Tackle Hubert Johnston will not be in shape to be in the game at kick-off time, but is expected to see some action, too.

The Northwestern ground attack threat is Fullback Gaspar Perricone. The top Wildcat runner rolled up 90-yards in nine trips in their victory over highly rated Michigan, Saturday.

Northwestern sharpened up its offense for Iowa in practice Thursday.

The squad of 35 men leaves today for Iowa City and planned a light workout after arrival.

Joe Zurzaley, Left End, was the only player missing on the trip.

The visitors boast a double aerial threat in the personages of Don Burson and Dick Flowers. Burson, the first string quarterback who hit, five out of eight passes Saturday, has connected 15 times in 28 attempts during the season. Meanwhile Flowers has 15 completions to his credit, but in two less tries than Burson's 28.

It has become almost "automatic" Eddie Nemeth, guard, whose three successful kicks after touchdowns enabled the Wildcats to edge Michigan, 21-20. He has a record of seven conversions in eight attempts for the season. The lone miss was against Purdue in the opening game of the season.

From the office of Business Manager Frank Havlicek comes word that tickets will be available up to game-time. They can be purchased at the fieldhouse up to 11 a.m. Saturday and after that on sale at the stadium.

SHARPENING UP HIS KICKING TOE is Eddie Nemeth, right, of East Chicago, Ind., Northwestern guard. He'll do what kicking the Wildcats do against Iowa Saturday. 36 players Thursday for Ohio State's Saturday game with Wisconsin at Madison.

The squad finished preparations for the game Thursday with a light practice session. It left Thursday night for a light workout in Janesville, Wis., Friday, and will arrive in Madison early Saturday.

Joe Zurzaley, sophomore Fullback, was not included on the traveling team, but Center Jack Lininger and Fullback Pete Perrini will make the trip. The latter pair are expected to see only limited action because of injuries.

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan football Coach Bennie Oosterbaan said Thursday that Halfback Bob Van Summer, will replace injured Leo Kocesi in the starting lineup against Minnesota Saturday.

Kocesi, who suffered a back injury in scrimmage, was in uniform as the Wolverines tapered off drills in preparation for the Gophers. But he was expected to see only "very limited" action.

End Harry Allis spent most of the practice kicking extra points. Allis' one miss last week against Northwestern prevented the Wolverines from gaining a tie.

LAFAYETTE (AP) — Purdue's Boilermakers held an extended but comparatively light drill Thursday on both offensive and defensive tactics to be employed in the Homecoming game against Illinois here Saturday.

Coach Stu Holcomb avoided contact work, hoping to have his squad in top physical shape for the invasion of the favored Illini.

He indicated he would stand pat on his number one offensive backfield of halfbacks Harry Szulborski and Norbert Adams, Fullback John Kerestes and alternating Quarterbacks Kenny Gorgal and Bob Hartman.

PURPLE ACES WIN

EVANSVILLE, IND. (AP) — The Evansville Purple Aces eked out a battling 13-6 football win over Murray State of Kentucky here Thursday night to run their string to six straight for the season. Evansville had two touchdowns called back and stopped Murray State's Throughbreds three times in the last period inside their five-yard line.

Cage Season Begins With Stars - 'Lakers' In Chicago Classic

CHICAGO, ILL. — Four of the nation's finest basketball teams are at the starting gate awaiting the sport's biggest show — the tenth annual College All-Star classic at the Chicago stadium Wednesday night.

The card matches the Anderson, Ind., Duffey Packers against the Chicago Stags. Then the All-Stars, including 13 all-Americans from the 1949 intercollegiate field, will battle the Minneapolis Lakers, defending National Basketball Association champions.

Herb Wilkinson, Iowa all-American in the 1945-46 season, will be on the highly touted Lakers' roster. The Lakers will bank on the play of giant George Mikan for their second successive All-Star win.

The power-plus pivot players who will attempt to check Mikan's scoring include Kentucky's Alex Groza, Oklahoma A & M's Bob Harris, Utah's Vern Gardner, St. Louis' Ed McAuley, Loyola's Jack Kerris, Denver's Vince Boryla, and Hamline's Vern Mikkelson.

Besides all this power Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, who will coach the All-Stars with assistance of Loyola's Tom Hagerty, will have his foursome of Wonder Boys intact. Besides Groza, this star-studded group includes Ralph Beard, Wallace Jones and Cliff Barker.

Rupp has hinted from time to time during the All-Star practice sessions he will use this foursome as one unit. Thus the competition for the fifth spot opens and appears to be a dog fight between such outstanding players as Notre Dame's Leo Barnhorst, Yale's Tony Lavelli, Illinois' Dike Eddleman, and Colgate's Ernie Vandeweghe.

The All-Star squad also includes Johnny Wilson, sensational Negro athlete from Anderson, Indiana College. During the past three seasons Wilson was one of the nation's foremost scorers—getting 565 in 1948.

Hawklets, Franklin Battle for 2nd Place

City high and Franklin of Cedar Rapids will be fighting for the second-place spot in the Mississippi Valley conference when they tangle here tonight.

The Hawklets will be facing one of their toughest foes in the final home conference game, which should attract one of the largest crowds of the year.

Jack Lind and Jim Forward have been nominated to captain the Hawklets.

Coach Frank Bates' crew, after stressing defensive play most of the week, tapered off with a light signal drill Thursday afternoon.

Franklin has lost only to Davenport this year and its 106 points scored in conference play is tops in the offensive department.

In the words of Coach Emil Klumpar, "This is the best backfield I've ever coached."

Fullback Culver can run the 100-yard sprint in 10 flat and weighs 210-pounds. And in front of him is a line that scales an average of 185-pounds.

Two other Cedar Rapids clubs, Roosevelt and Wilson, square-off in the only other conference contest tonight.

Bloody Battle Lets Carolina Win, 27-13

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Quarterback Bo Hagan, although limping on a bad knee, fired South Carolina to a 27-13 victory over Clemson Thursday and the bad blood between the arch rivals was never worse.

Three players left the field feet-first and half a dozen others could barely leave the brutal, penalty-studded contest in the walking wounded category.

An over-capacity state fair crowd of 35,000 went crazy as Carolina blasted through Clemson's crumbling defenses in the fourth quarter for its two winning touchdowns. Then the entire Carolina squad grabbed grinning Coach Red Enright as the final gun sounded and carried him wildly off the field on its shoulders.

The Daily Iowans — Pick of the Top Games

With such games as Iowa — Northwestern, Minnesota — Michigan, and Ohio State — Wisconsin confronting us, we apprehensively present our selections of the top games of the week.

The unpredictability of college football has been frequently illustrated in this column during the past four weeks, but through difficulties and upsets, this corner has managed to maintain a fairly respectable 740 percentage for the season to date.

If our succeeding selections can continue on the same plane of accuracy, we will be content with the gridiron season.

Iowa over Northwestern — Iowa's Hawkeyes, possessors of two conference wins in three outings this season, enter Saturday's struggle with Northwestern's giant-topping Wildcats as distinct underdogs. However, we feel that there will be a natural emotional relaxation on the part of the Wildcats following their 21-20 conquest of highly regarded Michigan last week and that Iowa can parlay this into a victory.

Spirit alone can't carry the Hawks to triumph. They are going to have to devise an effective pass defense against the aerial thrusts of talented Don Burson and company if they are to achieve this upset victory.

Minnesota over Michigan — The Golden Gophers, racing headlong toward national championship recognition, shouldn't be derailed this Saturday by twice vanquished Michigan although the Wolves are still a power to be reckoned with in the Big Ten.

Minnesota's dream of the Western conference crown and trip to the Rose Bowl hinges on this game which should be the top contest of the week.

Ohio State over Wisconsin — Although decisively decided by Minnesota last week, we believe that the Buckeyes have enough ammunition for their offensive seige guns to shoot down the high flying Wisconsin Badgers. Wisconsin started football observers last Saturday with an overwhelming defeat of Navy and could repeat this performance against Ohio State.

Missouri over Iowa State — The Cyclones from Iowa State have been surprisingly strong this season but their potency isn't equal to that of Missouri who has faced and held its own with some of the best clubs in the nation.

Army over Columbia — From this vantage point, it doesn't seem as if anyone can halt the Cadets' march toward an undefeated season. Army will be attempting to advance another rung on the national ladder this week with a decisive win over Columbia.

California over Washington — California whipped its arch foe Southern California last week to remove, at least temporarily, any obstacle from the path leading to first place in the Pacific Coast conference. Washington is represented by a mediocre ball club this season and should fall victim to Lynn Waldorf's powerful Bears.

North Carolina over Louisiana State — This game has all the ingredients of a vicious battle between Charlie Justice led North Carolina and improving LSU. The Tigers from Louisiana posted a win over Rice who in turn spanked Southern Methodist last week and could upset the Tar Heels.

Other Selections:
Southern California over Oregon.
UCLA over Washington State.
Rice over Texas.
Kentucky over Southern Methodist.

Oklahoma over Nebraska.
Oklahoma A & M over Kansas.
Boston U. over New York U.
Navy over Pennsylvania.
Yale over Holy Cross.
Georgia Tech over Florida.
Tulane over Auburn.
Pittsburgh over Indiana.
Michigan State over Penn State.

Here's another informative report, submitted exclusively to Daily Iowan readers from our Eastern correspondent. He states that Ursinus should win by "a nose" over Swathmore this Saturday.

Irish, Iowa Harriers Meet Here Saturday

The three mile Hawkeye cross country course will again be buzzing with activity Saturday morning when the Hawks meet Notre Dame's distance squad. The meet is slated to begin at 10:30 a.m.

This will be the second outing for the Hawks this fall. In their first meet they downed the highly touted Illinois team, 25-31. Notre Dame has beaten Purdue, 20-38, and dropped a dual with Wisconsin, 18-42.

Iowa's sophomore studded team will be endeavoring to further their long course prominence against the Irish. Harriers for the Hawkeyes are Sophomores Earle Duggan of Davenport and Jack Davis of Iowa City. Bill Bye, junior, is another top notch runner for the Hawks. Other SUJ runners will be Ken Carmen, Cresco; Jack Copeland, Des Moines; John Collins, Chicago, Ill.; and Bill Snook, Freeport, Ill.

Duggan led the Hawk charges in the meet with the Illini by capturing second, but close behind was Davis in third position. The Iowans will be seeking revenge for a one point loss to the boys from South Bend in the '48 campaign.

Notre Dame's standouts are Jim Kittell, a veteran; Bennie Almaguer, sophomore; Bob Elver, and Tony DaMonio. Elvin (Doc) Handy, Iowa graduate and former Hawkeye weight man, is coach of Notre Dame.

The meet will begin at the north end of the cinder track east of the stadium. The course will extend over the golf links to Coralville and back to finish at the south end of the track.

West Liberty Host To U-High Gridders

University high will tangle with the defending champions, West Liberty, in an Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference battle at West Liberty tonight.

Coach Bob Weber will open with the same starting lineup which worked so effectively in last week's 33-0 rout of New London.

A sprained ankle which has not responded to treatment will keep Reserve Fullback Bernard Hebl on the sidelines, but elsewhere the Blue Hawk squad will be at full strength.

West Liberty, riddled by graduation last year, has lost four games this year and tied one. The Blue Hawks battled to one tie and dropped three close decisions prior to last week's victory over New London.

Game time is 7:30 at the West Liberty fair grounds.

Have You Heard This One? — Bill Carried President's Message in 1915 Race

By JOHN HOLWAY
While Woodrow Wilson was president, a great experiment took place. The railroads raced a sort of motorcycle pony express from Washington to California to see which could deliver a letter faster.

Bill Novotney, the motorcycle pioneer of Iowa City, was part of the "Excelsior" team of riders that took the letter from Rock Island to Victor, Iowa. The cross-country race was won by the trains in about eight days, but, Bill says, the cyclists had some extra handicaps to contend with.

One of their riders was doing fine until he came to Chicago where he got lost for eight hours. Even so, the riders still were in the race until another cycle spilled out in the middle of Wyoming and wasn't found for several hours.

Novotney, in his dash, sped the six miles of twisting dirt roads between Iowa City and Ladora in six and a half minutes, which would still be considered moving right along. But even in those days, Bill says, they had cycles that went up to 100 m.p.h.

Gus Schrader, who later became a famous auto racer, was one of the big name cyclists who came down to Iowa City for meets around 1915. And when the riders came in, they all stopped at the bicycle shop on Iowa avenue where Novotney worked.

Riding in those days, Bill says, was dangerous, but not as dangerous as it is today. There was more courtesy on the track then than now.

But the old time races had plenty of accidents for the customers. The wheels were the size of bicycle tires and depended on digging into the dirt for their grip. When they raced on hard tracks, skids on the light machines were pretty hard to stop.

Today Iowa City still has a number of cycling enthusiasts. Howard Amish of Riverside is one of the better competition riders, with prizes from meets all around the midwest.

Another one is Wayland "Jave" Savre, an engineering senior here. Jave was a 195-pound fullback at Osage high school about the time he took up cycling.

"There are more injuries," he says, "per football game than per motorcycle race."

Jave seems to be a walking contradiction to his own theory after suffering a broken collarbone in a race this summer. "So what," says Jave, "look at all the broken legs, stiff necks, sprung knees you get in every football game."

Jave says it never should have happened, anyway. Making a sharp turn, his peddle on the side of the frame hit the ground and lifted the rear wheel off the dirt, making it skid. So he calmly lifted his underside leg onto the handlebar and waited for cycle to crash over his side.

The doctor bandaged his chest and he was immediately back to watch the rest of the races.

Now, Jave says, he's got it all figured out. He simply starts his skid 100 feet before he has to start turning, then, by the time he has come to the bend, he is already pointing in the new direction and can just roar off.

NU's Defensive Halfback — Worthington Up to Old Tricks

Tom Worthington, Northwestern University's ace defensive halfback, is up to his old tricks again. After ranking as one of the Big Ten leaders in pass interceptions and punt returns for the past three years, the red head from Sayre, Pa., broke Michigan's heart last week as he returned a punt 55 yards for the clincher touchdown in a 21-20 triumph.

Worthington has made a practice of breaking up football games with such actions. Two years ago he intercepted a pass against Indiana and returned it 35 yards for the touchdown that enabled the Wildcats to win the game, 7-6.

In the same season he returned a punt 66 yards for a touchdown against UCLA that gave Northwestern a 27-26 victory in a thrill-packed intersectional game. It was one of the two TDs he scored against the Uclans, the other being on a 25 yard pass from Don Burson.

Last year he was the key man in Northwestern's brilliant pass defense that ranked No. 1 in the nation. He picked off five enemy passes during the regular season and snared three against California in the Rose Bowl.

Probably his outstanding heroics in Northwestern's march to the Rose Bowl last year was his catch of a touchdown pass from Burson that gave the Wildcats a 19-16 victory over Minnesota. It was one of three Wildcat touchdowns that came after the Gophers had amassed a 16-0 first quarter lead.

Already this season, Worthington has intercepted two enemy passes and has returned three punts for a total of 78 yards. The veteran halfback has also emerged as one of the leading punters in the Big Ten, with an average of 39.3 yards.

Durst Leaves Omaha As Cardinal Manager
OMAHA (AP) — Cedric Durst will not return next year as manager of the Omaha Cardinals of the class A Western league, President Robert Hall said Wednesday night. The Cardinals finished fifth in the six-team Western loop under Durst's direction last season.

Durst succeeded Ollie Vanek as manager last year, coming to Omaha from Rochester of the International league. Both clubs are members of the St. Louis Cardinal farm system.

Hall said the decision to obtain a new manager was made at this time to allow Durst to explore the field of other managerial positions. He may remain with the Cardinal organization, Hall added.

Market Basket Index —

Price Drop Hits 2-Year Low

The Daily Iowan's Market Basket Index returned to its month-long downward trend Thursday with a drop of 30 cents since last Friday.

Last week the index climbed slightly. This week's drop carried the index total to another record 2-year low, the third in four weeks.

The survey of 24 basic commodities, which takes into consideration the amount of each commodity a student family of three uses in one week, totaled $15.54 this week. It was 30 cents lower than last week, 4 cents lower than two weeks ago, and 37 cents lower than a month ago.

Nearly half of all the commodities surveyed showed a slight decrease from 1 to 5 cents each. Only one item, butter, showed any increase at all, and it rose only 1 cent.

The price of one pound of "choice" round steak slipped 5 cents, continuing a four weeks fluctuation. During that period it has fluctuated as much as 10 cents a week.

Oranges dropped 3 cents this week ago. Canned peaches, eggs and Gold Medal flour fell 2 cents each. Spry, white cane sugar, Quaker oats and Baker's week and 10 cents since two unweetened chocolate fell 1 cent each.

Sugar was lower this week than it had been since early last April, and butter was higher than it had been since the first week in March.

This week's index, compared with those of last week, follows:

	This Week	Last Week
1 lb. Iowa brand butter	4.07	3.66
1 doz. grade A eggs	.59	.61
1 lb. Hills Bros. coffee	.55	.55
1 doz. med. size oranges	.39	.43
1 lb. lbs. cobbler potatoes	.38	.39
No. 2 can Tenderloin peas	.18	.18
No. 2 can V.C. pork & beans	.18	.18
No. 2 can D. M. slic. peaches	.27	.28
1 can Campbell tomato soup	.11	.11
1 lb. Spry	.31	.32
1 lb. can red sockeye salmon	.69	.69
Large size Ivory flakes	.27	.27
1 lb. white cane sugar	.49	.50
19 lb. Gold Medal flour	.93	.95
Small box Quaker Oats	.16	.17
1 lb. pkg. Baker's yeast	.49	.49
2 lbs. Kraft Velveta cheese	.79	.79
1 lb. Armour lard	.19	.19
1 lb. ground beef	.49	.49
1 lb. "choice" round steak	.74	.79
1 lb. center cut pork chops	.69	.69
1 lb. 1st grade bacon	.69	.69
1 8-oz. loaf white bread	.17	.17
1 qt. grade A milk	.18	.18

Totals $15.54 $15.84

The Daily Iowan market basket index is not an added total of the price listed above. That is, the index figure takes into consideration both the costs of the items listed above and the amount of each item the student family of three uses in one week. The amount of each item the family of three uses in one week was based on a survey conducted in cooperation with the university bureau of economic and business research.

Nehru Predicts Rise To World Leadership For 'Growing' India

NEW YORK (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India said this week Asia demands, and some day will win, a leading role in world affairs and a fairer share of the world's good things.

Nehru made his statement in a speech to the Overseas Press Club of America, an organization of news correspondents who have served abroad.

The Indian statesman said his country "cannot escape" the role of leader in a resurgence of the Orient.

He said the rich and wealthy nations outside Asia should recognize that "any great movement takes place in the mind before it happens. One has occurred already in Asian minds."

Asia, he said, is determined to achieve equality with the rest of the world and to show her "growing vitality."

He invited questions from among the correspondents, and was asked how Americans can "cooperate with India."

Sticking tightly to his stand that India must never beg for help, he replied the most urgent need is food, especially wheat, of which "I understand there is a large surplus here." India also wants machinery and technical knowledge which it lacks the dollars to buy, he added.

His country, he said, will welcome foreign capital and is willing to assure investors reasonable opportunity for a fair profit and fair competitive terms. But he added, in reply to another question, India would insist that no "economic imperialism" be involved in the investments.

Asked "does the government of India intend to recognize the government of China," Nehru answered:

"The government of India has sent for its ambassador to China to confer on the subject. We can not afford to ignore realities."

Cave Club to Visit Dubuque Caverns

The SUJ cave exploring club, the Iowa City Grotto, will examine caves near Dubuque this Sunday, Grotto chairman Bill Petrie, G, said Thursday.

The club is a chapter of the National Speleological society. The "spelunkers" will visit commercialized Crystal Lake cave and several "wild" caverns not fixed up for tourist trade. They also plan to open one cave that has been sealed for several years.

Anyone interested in going on the Dubuque trip is welcome, Petrie said. The group will meet in front of the Geology building at 6 a.m. Sunday, and leave from there.

A meeting of Grotto members will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in room 206 Geology building to plan future activities. A trip to Missouri may be scheduled for Thanksgiving vacation. Petrie said there are many large "wild" caves in that state.

Patriotism Discussed By Peace Fellowship

Relationship of patriotism to world peace was discussed at the Wednesday night meeting of the World Peace Fellowship of the YMCA.

Chairman Merle Frey, C4, Monmouth, Ill., said the group will have a special meeting Tuesday in the YMCA rooms after the men's smoker.

Alfred Johnson of the American Friends Service committee will talk with members on the conflict of church and state in Poland and its implications for world peace.

Sunday at 8 p.m. is the date for the next regular meeting at the home of YMCA Executive Secretary Ralph Scholting, 915 Second avenue.

Des Moines Judges Can't Get Together

Six-Story Scaffold Almost Completed

Workmen Thursday had nearly completed the erection of steel scaffolding on the north and west elevations of the Iowa State Bank and Trust company building preparatory to a month's work replacing loose cornices.

Several weeks ago one of the heavy stone cornices fell six floors to the Clinton street sidewalk below, narrowly missing a parking meter and a parked automobile.

An investigation then showed other cornices along the Clinton street and Washington street sides were dangerously loose.

A steel scaffolding has been erected so workmen can remove all cornices and other overhanging masonry and erect a new brick parapet. A platform elevator has been built into the scaffolding to speed the work.

A heavy plank platform also has been built so pedestrians can walk safely under the scaffolding.
