Report Negotiations For SUI-ISC Game

Negotiations are underway between SUI and Iowa State for resumption of football relations between the schools, the Iowa State Daily Student reported Tuesday.

The Daily Student said the results of the discussions will be released by Dec. 3 to Cardinal Guild, Iowa State student governing body.

Airforce Says C-54 Missing In Northwest

PORTLAND, ORE. (AP) — The airforce Tuesday night said a C-54 cargo plane with six men aboard was presumed down in the Pacific northwest after the pilot's last radio message said, "I am confused," and the plane's gas-line limit had expired.

The C-54 was on a round-trip navigational flight from McChord field, Wash., to Portland airport to practice instrument approach over the Woodland, Wash., range marker, approximately 40 miles north of Portland.

A heavy drizzle and fog Tuesday afternoon grounded search planes of the air rescue and Oregon national guard after they went aloft for brief flights.

Search began after radio contact with the Portland airport was broken off suddenly at 2:50 p.m. (Iowa time), 20 minutes before the C-54 was due over the Portland range station.

A ground party of Washington state troops checked residents in the Woodland, Wash., area for reports of a crash or low flying aircraft.

The plane's fuel deadline was first set at five hours and later lifted to eight hours. At 9 p.m., hope that the C-54 would return was officially given up.

At 12:50 p.m., the plane radioed that it was over Toledo, Wash., range marker, flying through intermittent rain and fog. The pilot said, "I am confused," and radio contact was broken.

Calendar for 1950-51 Approved by Board

The SUI calendar for 1950-51 was officially approved Tuesday by President Virgil Hancher and the board of deans, Calendar Committee Chairman Rudolph Kuever, dean of the college of pharmacy, announced.

The calendar had been submitted earlier to the president's office by the committee which included Registrar Ted McCarroll and Deans Carlyle F. Jacobsen, Elmer T. Peterson, Harvey H. Davis, Bruce E. Mahan and Kuever.

Tuesday's action made Alumni day on the Saturday following spring commencement on Friday a continuing feature of the graduation weekend, Robert Noble, executive assistant of alumni activities, said. Before 1949, commencement and Alumni day were both held on Saturday.

The change was made at the request of the alumni board to help relieve extremely congested housing and eating facilities at commencement time, Noble said.

The Alumni day change was the only change in the calendar, Kuever said.

Chambers Testifies At New Hiss Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Whittaker Chambers testified Tuesday that before the war Henry Julian Wadleigh handed over to him brief cases bulging with state documents in the shadow of the nation's capitol dome.

Chambers told the second perjury trial of Alger Hiss that he got the documents from Wadleigh at the rate of 10 to 25 a month for two years.

Chambers has described himself as being at that time a courier for a Communist prewar spy ring, pumping secrets from men high in government ranks.

Wadleigh, who spent 10 years in the trade agreements section of the state department, has admitted passing secrets to Chambers. But he said he never took them from any state department desk except his own.

Hiss' defense attorney indicated at the opening of his retrial that Wadleigh — not Hiss — was the source of Chambers' famed pumpkin papers.

Wadleigh has said he could have given Chambers the pumpkin papers but doubted that he did.

The Daily Student quoted John Edenburn, guild president, as saying the announcement came from Athletic Director Louis Menze after the guild threatened to take action if negotiations between the schools broke down.

"Nothing to Say" Menze, contacted by The Associated Press, said, "I have nothing to say now."

The Daily Student said the action subject to a guild vote Dec. 6 may include:

1. Contact of the Iowa student governing body in regard to promotion of athletic relations, specifically an Iowa State - Iowa football game.

2. Release of a guild poll taken recently to test student reaction to the idea of a game.

The Daily Student said the results of the poll were held back after adopting the suggestion of one of its members. The newspaper said it was understood that the athletic department felt publishing the poll now would impair negotiations between the schools.

The poll, the paper said, is believed to show "overwhelming support of the resumption of athletic relations between the schools by the Iowa State student body."

The Daily Student said the athletic council is "rumored" to have voted for resuming relations with Iowa.

Blommers Comments
In Iowa City Prof. Paul Blommers, head of SUI's board in control of athletics, said the board has never discussed resumption of football relations between Iowa and Iowa State.

"As far as I know," Blommers said, "there have been no negotiations as yet. I don't know what would be done from an Iowa standpoint if the problem came before the board."

Blommers said there is a possibility Paul Brechler, SUI director of athletics, had conferred with Menze. Brechler was out of town Tuesday.

However, Blommers pointed out that any final decision by Iowa to resume football relations with Iowa State would come from the athletic board.

Hawks Lost, 31-6
The last football game between the schools was in 1934, when Iowa State won, 31-6.

A resumption of the rivalry would be impossible before 1953 since Iowa's schedule is filled until that date.

We Ain't Interested

It is not in the best interests of the State University of Iowa that Iowa-Iowa State football relations be resumed.

Despite student clamor on the Iowa State campus, it probably is not in the best interests of Iowa State, either.

The series is impractical on several counts. It could engender bitter feelings between the schools; it would be financially unsound; it would put Iowa in an unfavorable position, and no high-ranking official of either school has ever encouraged the series.

Agitation for the series is largely the product of overly enthusiastic alumni who do not remember the stage the rivalry reached in the early '20's.

Iowa played Iowa State several times about 30 years ago in a series that was punctuated by frequent outbursts from fans and players.

A two-year contract was signed for 1933 and 1934. After the 1934 game the series was discontinued. One of the reasons behind the discontinuance was the harsh feelings that came out of the annual game.

SUI now has a policy of playing no Iowa school in any sport. It is a policy which we regard as a sound one. Were one exception to be made, it would be difficult on occasions to refuse other Iowa schools dates on our schedules.

In several sports, possibly football in some years, Iowa does not rank as the state's top power. Strictly on a competitive basis, Iowa would have no legitimate reason to turn down schedule requests of several schools.

We feel the eventual result might be a neglect of our conference interests were Iowa to add a heavy state schedule.

Iowa plays in the toughest football conference in the nation. Each year the Hawks play six or seven loop games. It is necessary for them to be "up" for almost every game.

An Iowa State game would take on minor importance in the eyes of the Iowa football team. Yet, Iowa State would be pointing for the intra-state game every year. Iowa, then, would be put in an uncomfortable position.

For another thing, the series would be bad financially speaking. Iowa State has a football stadium that seats less than half as many customers as the majority of the Big Ten stadiums.

Football fans mean tickets, and tickets mean money. Money is at least one of the yardsticks used in measuring the success of a football season.

Next year Iowa has scheduled non-conference games against Miami, Southern California and Notre Dame. All three games will bring money into Iowa's athletic coffers.

If the series were to be resumed, Iowa would have little to gain from a prestige standpoint. The Hawkeyes would be expected to win every game. If they would win, no one would be surprised; if they lost, their stock would be lowered considerably.

Probably the reason that we haven't heard any official word on the series is that high-ranking athletic officials have weighed the evidence and have decided that there would be no point in stirring up ill relations between the schools.

We agree with them.

Provoe Pleads Innocent To Charge of Treason

NEW YORK (AP) — John David Provoe, 26th American to be charged with treason in World War II, pleaded innocent Tuesday and said he had been in jail 2-1/2 years "without counsel or hearing."

The 36-year-old former army staff sergeant was brought before Federal Judge Gregory F. Noonan under an indictment charging him with 12 acts of treason.

One charge is that after the Japanese seized Corregidor he caused the death of Capt. Burton C. Thomson by reporting Thomson as "anti-Japanese and uncooperative."

The judge set Dec. 6 for trial and Provoe meanwhile will be examined by psychiatrists.

Council Overrules Objections to Tax For Local Paving

The Iowa City council Tuesday night adopted a resolution overruling all objections to special assessments levied against property owners for paving improvements recently completed on local streets.

City Atty. W. H. Bartley said he and council representatives would meet soon with the objectors' attorneys to arrange compromise settlements with the protesting property owners.

The resulting settlements would then be recommended to the council for approval, Bartley said.

The many petitions filed recently in City hall claim the assessments are in violation of the code of Iowa, which states property owners cannot be assessed an amount exceeding 25 percent of the property's value.

Tuesday night Mayor Preston Koser invited any protestors in the audience to voice their objections orally. No one did. Five attorneys representing protesting property owners were at the meeting, but did not address the council.

A report from the parking and public safety committee was presented recommending installation of a "one-side parking" sign on Grove street and on Riverside drive between Grove street and Park road, just south of City park.

At last week's meeting, the council decided to have the sign removed pending further investigation. This action followed a complaint from the Rev. Leonard J. Brugman, pastor of the Catholic student center, located south of the restricted area.

The council committee also recommended cancellation of plans for a new traffic signal at the intersection of Capitol and Burlington streets.

It also advocated discontinuing operation of the traffic signal at the west end of the Burlington street bridge for a 60-day trial period.

Before adjourning to Dec. 12, the council granted the Iowa conservation commission the right to erect signs which would direct visitors to "Plum Grove," home of Iowa's first governor, Robert Lucas, on Kirkwood avenue.

Opera Star Rescheduled To Present Recital Here

Donald Dickson, Metropolitan opera baritone, will present his recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 7. Prof. C.B. Righter, manager of the university concert series, said Tuesday.

Dickson was forced to cancel his concert scheduled for Nov. 9 because of a bronchitis attack, but he now is able to perform, Righter said.

No-Cut Ruling in Effect Today, After Vacation

SUI's no-cut ruling will be in effect today until 12:30 p.m. and from 12:30 p.m. Monday, when classes will be resumed after the Thanksgiving recess, until 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

All undergraduate students who miss classes during a no-cut period before classes are dismissed or after they are resumed following an official SUI holiday or vacation are penalized by the addition of one semester hour academic credit to their degree requirements.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Institute of Life Insurance reported Tuesday that Iowa families received $14,820,000 in life insurance death benefit payments the first nine months of this year.

Boy, 11, Only Survivor Of Air Crash Fatal To 34

OSLO, NORWAY (AP) — An 11-year-old Jewish refugee boy emerged Tuesday as the sole survivor of a plane wreck that brought death to 34 persons — 27 other children and seven adults.

He is Isaac Allal, 11. His two brothers and a sister were among the dead. All 28 children were being flown from Tunisia to Norway for six months rest and rehabilitation when their Dutch transport plane lost its bearings and crashed Sunday night.

Search parties found the wreckage on a densely wooded hillside

30 miles southwest of Oslo. The twin-engine DC-3 transport, object of a four-nation sea, air and land search, was carrying four Dutch crewmen and three nurses in addition to the children.

A police officer in charge of operations at the scene said 31 bodies had been recovered, 26 of them children. The other three bodies are believed to be under the wreckage.

Sitting in Chair
Isaac was sitting in his chair at the very tail of the plane when a party of home guardsmen, headed by Toralf Hagen, reached the scene more than 42 hours after the crash.

He blinked and told his rescuers in halting French that he felt "not bad."

Though able to walk, he was hustled on a stretcher to an ambulance and taken to the hospital at Drammen, 10 miles away.

There the chief physician described his injuries as a scratched nose, a swollen wrist and slight burns.

"It is almost a miracle," said the doctor. Though suffering no apparent shock, it was hours before the boy told his name.

Asked if he knew where he was, Allal replied, "Yes, I am in Norway. No?"

The plane, of the Aero-Holland company, had touched the treetops on a hill in the dark and crashed to earth, plowing a 200-foot wide furrow through great pine trees before it rammed its nose into a stony ridge and turned over.

The front end was wrecked, but the tail was almost intact. The dead were thrown right and left. Fire licked at the wreckage, but did not spread into a consuming blaze.

Just over the hill, little more than a mile away, was the farm of Niclavy Grude. But amazingly not a member of the family heard the crash.

Two Brothers, Sister
So little Isaac sat amid the bodies, among them his brothers, Victor-Haim and Daniel, and his sister, Rachel, until the rescuers arrived.

The plane, chartered by the American Joint Distribution committee to ferry underfed Jewish refugee children from Tunisia to Norway for rehabilitation before emigration to Israel, had been missing since 6 p.m. Sunday, when it had been approaching Oslo to land.

The plane never appeared. The search began when a flash of light and explosion was observed southwest of Oslo.

Besides the children, the plane carried the four Dutch crew — Chief Pilot I. Frouws, Second Pilot A. Van der Touw, Navigator M. Westenberg and Mechanic K. Stukje — and three nurses, including Annelise Schwartz Jensen, a Norwegian; a Swiss, and a man from Tunisia.

Man Denies Abducting Girl, 7, in Minnesota

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN. (AP) — Raymond Francis Dempsey, 25, an unemployed cook, physician, night denied that he ever saw or laid his hands on a seven-year-old girl who identified him "positively" as her abductor.

Vivian Shannon told authorities from her hospital bed that Dempsey was the man who forced her into his car here Monday night and carried her into a woods where he tried to strangle her. A doctor said the girl "undoubtedly" was sexually molested.

Crandic Schedules Two Extra Trains

Two trains have been added to the regular schedule of the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railway for this afternoon, officials of the line said Tuesday.

In addition to the six regular runs listed at their depot here, extras will leave Iowa City at 12:30 and 2 p.m.

The special arrangements were made to accommodate many SUI students leaving today for Thanksgiving vacation.

A special westbound United Airlines Mainliner will leave the Iowa City airport for Des Moines at 3 p.m. today, B.D. McWilliams, local station manager, said Tuesday. Students may transfer at Des Moines for points west, he said.

Reservations probably will be available by calling the airport before noon today. All seats are taken on the regular flight scheduled to take off at 3:15, and seats on the eastbound plane have been sold out for three weeks.

Reservations for Christmas vacation are going fast, McWilliams added.

New Light Poles Reach Iowa City

Light poles for Iowa City's new downtown streetlighting system arrived here Tuesday and installation of the poles should begin by next week, City Engineer Fred Gartzke said.

Although the poles have not yet been unloaded from the railroad car, Gartzke said he thought the entire order of 74 posts was in the shipment.

Electric company officials said the lamps and globes should follow "any day now." The officials had previously expressed concern over the possible delay in shipment of the poles due to the recent steel strike.

The Heinz Electric company and the Haegg Construction company, both of Cedar Rapids, have been busy the past few weeks laying conduit for the new lighting system.

Thanksgiving, 1949

By GIL PEARLMAN

I HAVE no idea whether or not the other rooming houses in Iowa City are filled to capacity with "coffee addicts" or, if you prefer, "caffeine fiends."

But I do know about the house on Fairchild street (no relation to the house on 92nd street). I know about it because I live there. I live there because I couldn't find a room elsewhere.

THERE ARE eight gentlemen. I use the term like I don't know what it means, who live there. Really seven, since one of them only comes in to sleep between the hours of 2 a.m. and 7 a.m., and then I don't think he would even do that if there were flophouses in the business district.

What I know is that any one of them will suffer any hardship to secure a cup of hot, stimulating, "good to the last drop" liquid, about 20 times daily.

I WONDER WHAT it is about coffee that is so magical and makes everyone unable to live without it? I wonder because I am included in this impulsive group that worships the house that Maxwell built.

The moment that someone shouts, "How about coffee?" card games are broken up, the latest issue of Esquire is thrown on the floor, radios are immediately turned off and the "Faithful Seven" have their coats on and are outdoors before the landlady can plead with us not to slam the front door.

IF THIS ONLY happened once or twice an evening I would not have the inquiry as to the motivation that I do. But more often than not, this happens once or twice every 45 minutes.

Take for example two of the most confirmed addicts, Norm and DC, who goes by those initials since his parents were extremely occupied people and couldn't spare the time to decide on a proper name.

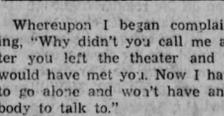

ONE NIGHT, I was sitting at my desk, a two-by-four foot piece of plywood balanced on a leg from a discarded endtable, when the two of them walked in after spending a couple of hours at cinematic recreation. They saw a movie.

I was highly disappointed since the call of the caffeine had just hit me. There was no one else around and I didn't want to make the pilgrimage by my lonesome.

SO, I asked them, in hopes of a negative reply, "I suppose you guys just had coffee after the talk?"

Just as I expected, Norm said, "Yeah," and DC said "Yes." (DC is a graduate student.)

"Not only did we have coffee after the movie," continued DC, "but we had coffee before the movie and we went out between features for more delightful cups of matured Ovaltine."

Whereupon I began complaining, "Why didn't you call me after you left the theater and I would have met you. Now I have to go alone and won't have anybody to talk to."

"WHILE YOU'VE been standing there boozing about having to go alone," commented Norm, "I don't recall anybody asking us to join them."

"But," I was being diplomatic, "you just said that you had three helpings during the past two hours, didn't you?" They both nodded. "Well then, you wouldn't want to go again would you, huh, fellows, huh?"

"Yeah" and "Yes" were heard through the gust of wind and these two fugitives from "freshly-sealed containers" were seated in a booth at our favorite beanery by the time I took a jacket from the closet.

SEE WHAT I mean? The whole theory. Pardon me, but if today's offering seems underdeveloped it's because I have to quit before reaching the logical conclusions. The boys want to go for coffee.

'Count Your Many Blessings' —

Approximately 150-million Americans, ranging in status from the southern share-cropper to the Park Avenue socialite, will pause tomorrow to give thanks. We say pause and give thanks, because that is what the Pilgrims intended when they set aside that first bleak day back in 1621. But how many of us today, as we hurry with last-minute preparations for the trip back home, stop and take stock of the things we have to be thankful for? We have a tendency to think, instead, of the things that we do not have, the "green grass" that lies on the other side of the fence. "I haven't a car," "I didn't get the grade I expected," "I wish I had a million dollars," are the sentiments most frequently expressed. We complain because we missed breakfast this morning, while thousands of Chinese die yearly for lack of food. Some little annoyance keeps us awake one night, and we shout to the house top: Across the Atlantic thousands tramp the open country seeking a pile of straw to crawl into for the night. Good health, friends, three meals a day, a home and family, education, freedom from government prosecution, these things we take for granted. We don't realize their significance because most of us have never had to do without them. It's a great thing to be able to pack your suitcase and leave the classroom grind for a few days—to get home and eat turkey and cranberry sauce, and sleep long hours, and see our family and friends, and be able to sit back and "let the rest of the world go by." But it seems only fitting and just that we at the same time should take stock of the things that have come our way. If we'd all take a good long look at ourselves before we wave good-bye to Iowa City, chance are an old familiar hymn would be on our lips as we travel homeward—"Count your many blessings, name them one by one."

Austerity vs. Progress —

A report by the British Information Service this month lauds the effort Britain has made to restore world trade by removing some of the trade restrictions between nations with whom she trades. Facts brought out in the report seem to substantiate the claim. Britain has taken a much needed initiative to get trade restrictions removed. These same restrictions are in large part responsible for the economic woes of the world today. And they are probably in large part responsible for the slow start the economic cooperation administration has been making in Europe. The Marshall plan really is working, but its progress has been slow if it is to succeed by 1952. Now if Britain's plans to liberalize world trade are to succeed, the only thing the British Laborites need to do is stay in power until the British man-in-the-street can see the apparent progress by the withdrawal of austerity provisions. This is where the shoe pinches tightest on the British government foot. No concerted plans are evident, only the mutterings in the brown closet by the dissatisfied.

To the Coaches —

The football coach is full of woes. Conceding games to other Joes. The more he thinks His team will win The sicker. His Friday grin. The more he thinks The cut-throat poor

The Englishman believes his country is being pulled out of its economic hole, but he can see little evidence close to home, little lessening of austerity provisions. He still draws his belt tight to make up for what he can't buy from the market place. Practically the only evidence that exists to show the danger the Laborites are in is the apparent uneasiness of the Laborites themselves. First the government officials declared themselves confident the program was being accepted by the people. Then, little by little, the Conservatives sparkplugged by Winston Churchill, began to pile up the votes against the Laborites. The Laborites still have a majority. They aren't in any apparent immediate danger of losing the controls despite the Conservatives' gains. The significant fact, however, lies in the British leaders' unwillingness to call a general election now where only a few months ago, talk was rife about a general election early in 1950. Losing out so near to success would be a shame, for if we can believe the statement the government releases, the austerity program is doing well.

The more he tries To act cocksure, A chronic hypocrite The coach is Who seldom on The truth encroaches. The public, though, Forgives such sinning Particularly When he's winning.

Wendell Willkie's Son Gives Ideas on Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are talking about an idea put forward by the late Wendell Willkie's son, 29-year-old Philip H. Willkie, an Indiana state legislator. Young Willkie appealed to those who want to go along with some of the administration's social welfare programs but hesitate because of the great cost. It was during a discussion of "liberal" programs on a radio forum (Town meeting). He proposed that such programs be patterned along the basic lines of the Federal Reserve act and the law creating the New York port authority.

Shah of Iran Seeks Payment for War Aid

By J.M. ROBERTS JR. AP Foreign Affairs Analyst The Shah of Iran is engaging in an refreshing young man. No devious oriental approach for him. He thinks his country's position is important to the west, that it is due more than it is getting for its help in the war, and he has come to the United States to ask for it in return he offers to pay—paying—with returns from Iran's vast oil fields and with profitable opportunities for American investors. Iran has two big projects under way. First comes enlargement and modernization of the army, to protect the territorial integrity promised by the Big Three at Yalta but threatened ever since the war by Russia. Iran was turned into an allied military base during the war, operated jointly by Britain, America and Russia, for the purpose of shipping to Russia about one-fifth of all the war materials she had to use against the Germans. The present Shah's father was forced from his throne under accusations that he was pro-German. He had started a vast development program for the country which fell to pieces during the war years. He was particularly interested in agricultural production. When he started in 1928 Iran produced 7,000 bales of cotton annually. When he was ousted in 1941 production was up to 50,000 bales. During the war it dropped to 12,000. The same thing happened to the whole Iranian economy. The young Shah has something when he claims that the war cost Iran heavily. "We are not bargaining for the help we were privileged to extend to other areas," he says. "But just remember how important is the security and prosperity of our country to consolidate freedom and the other aims dear to democratic countries." He means, of course, that he must have the military and economic strength to withstand pressure from the Soviet Union, which considers the Iranian oil fields a natural part of its own, and take a strictly practical and nineteenth-century view of the rights of legations as against underdeveloped areas. The Kremlin has complained in all apparent innocence that the United States fails to understand its interest in Iran. The Big Three also promised economic aid to Iran after the war. The young Shah has launched an ambitious program involving the expenditure of $653-million—a large sum for Iran—on agriculture, factories, housing, roads, health and education. The program is directed by his brother, designed to put the country's 17-million people beyond the appeal of communism. Russia, of course, would be glad to develop Iran and, after her own fashion which is unacceptable both to Iran and the west, keep her Tehran prom-ises. Some people think she will eventually insist on doing so, by force if necessary. In the meantime, the odds are that the young Shah will get the preventive he came for—money.

U.S. Voices Objections to World —

'Kid Glove' Treatment of Soviets Is Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — All during the war, and for some time afterwards, the U.S. treated Russia to a sort of diplomatic "coddling." But for about 10 months now, Washington has been showing the world it is fed up trying to kid-glove the Soviets into playing ball. Now Moscow must live up to all of its treaty promises in reasonable time or Washington announces — publicly — that it hasn't. Previously the U.S., and other major powers, kept queries going to Moscow — but in the secret diplomatic pouch.

WASHINGTON has at times waited for months on end before making it public that Moscow has fallen down on an international pledge. Now it doesn't. It tells the world through the press, and fast. State department spokesmen explain that since Dean Acheson took over as secretary the over-all attempt has been to make the Russians understand that a promise is sacred among civilized people and that words mean nothing if actions don't follow. Go back to the Dumbarton Oaks conference in 1944. The Russians asked that all 16 Soviet republics get separate votes in the new United Nations. President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill were shocked. They envisioned an organization in which each nation would have just one vote regardless of size. But they were anxious that Russia join the UN and at Yalta in early 1945, they bargained until Russia was cut down to three votes, for the Soviet Union, Byelorussia and the Ukraine. The Soviets are still the only nation with more than one vote in the UN. Russia joined UNRRA, the world agency set up to give postwar relief, pledged to no discrimination. But for six months Russia refused UNRRA the right to send help into Poland. Washington officials failed to tell the press for some time about this tangle and thereby granted Moscow a sort of helpful screen behind which to operate. BUT THAT SORT of thing has changed. Here are some of this year's highlights that tell the story: Start with the note Stalin sent last January to a newspaper reporter in which he said he would be willing to meet President Truman somewhere behind the Iron curtain. He added he would like to talk over a "peace pact." Acheson pointed out at a press conference that President Truman had always been willing to see Stalin in Washington if the Russian really wanted to talk. At Potsdam, in July, 1945, Stalin had agreed that Berlin should be a sort of international city, occupied by the Big Four. Then on June 26, 1948, the Russians clanked down the iron curtain and forbade all rail and truck service into Berlin from the west. For 10 months American and British flyers flew supplies into the 2-million Berliners in the western zone. MOSCOW finally lifted the blockade on May 12 this year. Belief here is that Moscow was tired of letting Europe see by daily example how effective the Anglo-American airforce could be in a tight spot. In March the state department issued a review of American attempts to get an American-Russian exchange of students. Moscow had ignored most of the notes on the subject. The department expressed belief Moscow was afraid of a free exchange of ideas.

Professor Explains 'Dramatic Tragedy'

Don't rely on the dictionary to define "dramatic tragedy," Prof. Seymour Pitcher of the SUI English department told a large Humanities society lecture audience Monday night. That term has come to mean anything from a melodrama to a "goat song." Pitcher, speaking in the senate chamber of Old Capitol on "Definition of Tragedy" covered most of the controversial meanings of the term. In looking for an applicable definition for tragedy he traced the word back to early Greece where actors wore goat skins and "tragedia" meant goat song, and up to today when it often means swan song. The speaker said he would define a tragic drama as a "serious limitation of the actions and passions of man." Such a play just shows the possible misfortune of man, and is not an object lesson against crime and evil or an analysis of motivations. The characters involved may or may not deserve their fate, Pitcher added. Anyone can get hit with "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" or have a bad day against Minnesota. That is the tragedy of life and tragic drama.

Hostesses Plan Traditional Meal At Thanksgiving

Brides and homemakers who are entertaining at Thanksgiving dinner Thursday for the first time will learn, as successful hostesses have, that there is more to the feast than meets the eye.

Advanced planning, other than ordering the traditional turkey, is highly important for an impressive holiday dinner, one that's fun for the hostess as well as the guests she has invited to dine.

Planning

Good planning does away with last minute details that harry the amateur hostess and saves many anxious moments about Thursday's entertaining. The first step is planning a holiday dinner that's complete to the last detail.

The meal should be kept as simple as possible and include several dishes which may be partially or completely prepared sometime today. It's a good idea to dispense with the soup course and serve chilled fruit punch before Thanksgiving dinner.

The complete market list should be prepared, ordered and properly stored.

Of course there's more than food to think about in preparing the holiday meal. It's necessary to have a roaster the right size for the big bird, and one that will roast it to golden brown perfection.

Sparkling China

China, silver and crystal should be sparkling, the centerpiece decided upon and matching candles of the desired shape and size ready today. It's a big help if these are taken care of before the turkey and pumpkin pie are placed in the oven Thursday. Table linens, too, should be checked and ready to put on the table.

Such simple details insure a successful holiday dinner, and one that's "a feast for the eyes".

Dunlap Re-Elected To Scouting Post

Harry Dunlap Jr., Iowa City, has been re-elected chairman of the Johnson county district Boy Scout committee. Dunlap has held the job since summer when the former chairman, Dr. L. R. Borland, left Iowa City.

Raymond Culp, Coralville, has been recommended for the post of Johnson district commissioner by the committee. The local district is one of three in the Iowa River Valley council.

Present district committee members-at-large are William Grandrath, Lyle Trump, J.W. Helsencher, W. Clifford Wikel, George Lepic, Alan Graves, Glenn Jablonski and Dr. Stephen Ware.

Rev. Pollock to Speak At City High Program

PREPARING FOR THANKSGIVING ENTERTAINING ahead of time is Mrs. Earl E. Harper, 124 Marietta avenue. The wife of the Iowa Union director knows, as do other experienced hostesses, that entertaining will be a lot easier Thursday if she checks on linen, china and crystal and prepares a centerpiece before roasting the Thanksgiving bird. The embroidered cloth on Mrs. Harper's table is from Russia.

Expert 'Talks Turkey' For Holiday Dinners

Many housewives are finding that their Thanksgiving turkeys may be purchased in a new quick-frozen form this year.

Prof. Margaret Jane Brennan of the SUI department of home economics offers some suggestions for thawing and cooking frozen turkey.

The turkey may be thawed by placing it in the regular food compartment of the refrigerator for five to six hours per pound of the bird, she said. For rapid thawing it may be placed in cool running water until it is pliable enough to handle.

One Day Limit

Miss Brennan warned that poultry should not be kept for more than one day after it has been thawed.

Stuffing should be packed loosely because it expands while cooking.

"Basting is unnecessary if the turkey is left uncovered and is cooked in a moderate oven (325 degrees)," she said. "Some people wrap turkey in aluminum foil while roasting to keep it from drying out. The foil should then be removed the last half hour to let the bird brown. It is best to cook it breast downward until the last half hour, then reverse it."

Time Table

Miss Brennan suggested a time table for roasting according to poundage. A turkey weighing from eight to 10 pounds should be cooked 20 to 25 minutes per pound in a moderate oven. Those weighing more than 10 pounds should be roasted for 15 to 20 minutes.

"One more thing," Miss Brennan added. "Save the fun of carving the turkey until you get to the table. It's much nicer for the family to watch the process while their mouths are watering."

Janitors to Sponsor 'Custodian Capers'

Wagner, a veteran of 29 years of service at SUI, said "to my knowledge the 'Custodian Capers' is the only party of its kind at any college or university."

Music for the janitors and their families will be provided by Leo Cortimiglia. The program is being planned by James Van Soyoc, chief janitor, University hall.

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan and Minnesota dominate the 1949 all-Big Ten football team which includes three repeaters but lacks a unanimous choice by coaches who annually pick the honor lineup for The Associated Press.

...Iowans Honored

Although no Iowa players made the first all-Big Ten team seven Hawkeyes gained some recognition, six receiving honorable mention and one, Jack Dittmer, making the second team. The honorable mention players included Earl Banks, Bob McKenzie, Glenn Drahn, Jerry Faske, Bill Reichardt and Don Winslow.

Bowl bound after sharing the title with the Wolverines, was awarded two spots. Wisconsin, Illinois and Northwestern took one apiece. Indiana, Purdue and Iowa failed to gain recognition in the No. 1 lineup.

Three linemen represent Minnesota — End Bud Grant, Tackle Leo Nomellini and Center Clayton Tomnemaker.

Grant and Nomellini are holdovers from the 1948 honor team. Tomnemaker was a second team choice last year.

The third repeater is 33-year-old Al Wistert, Michigan's dependable tackle. Other Michigan men honored were Halfback Chuck Ortmann and Guard Lloyd Heneveld.

Ortmann and Wisconsin's Bob Wilson, converted from center to end this fall, came nearest to being unanimous choices, they won votes from all but one coach.

Blue Hawks Defeat Durant Five, 43-28

University high prided the lid off the 1949-50 basketball season in fine style Tuesday night as they raced past a small, but scrappy Durant five, 43-28.

Playing before the home crowd, the Blue Hawks gave the fans something to talk about as they jumped to a fast 11-0 lead. It wasn't until there were a little more than three minutes remaining in the first period that the Wildcats were able to sink a field goal.

After trailing by a 13-4 first quarter score, the Durant outfit came back to close the mark to 19-13 at halftime. By the end of the third frame it was 30-23, but the final canto was the one that proved fatal for the visitors.

Sinking only one free throw during the first five minutes, the Wildcats were forced to take many wild shots, only one of which went in.

Hawklets Win Opener, 41-19

In its first start of the year, City high's basketball team coasted to a 41-19 win over a weak Marengo quintet here Tuesday night.

It was the unpolished, ragged type of game that could be expected from a season's opener.

Starting out slowly, the Hawklets built up an 8-0 lead before Gerald Gerard could score for Marengo with 15 seconds left in the first quarter. Ken Hay then drove under the hoop to score the first of his five baskets for the evening.

This set the score, 10-2, at the quarter.

Second Quarter Slow The second period was some more of the same with the Tigers only able to count one basket, plus four free throws.

Hay's three baskets were the main factor for the 20-6 score at halftime.

Marengo rallied after the intermission and outscored the Little Hawks, 8-7, in the third period. It was the biggest quarter of the evening for the Tigers as Center Dick Hook sank two set shots and Bob Gunzenhauser one from the corner.

Tigers Tire Tiring in the fourth period after Jim Jacobs and Ronnie Ogden were forced from the game with five fouls, Coach Howard Moffitt's crew pulled farther into the lead.

The Hawklets next test will be Friday night when Independence meets them on the City high floor.

In the preliminary game the City high sophomores pasted the Marengo reserves, 35-16. Don Brennan counted 17 points for the Hawklets.

Morrison Scoring Champ

Another senior, Fullback Fred Morrison of Ohio State, took the scoring championship with 36 points on six touchdowns in six games.

Besides Karras' ball - carrying and Robertson's kickoff returns, the other new departmental records included:

Most passes caught — End Clifton Anderson, Indiana, 21, for 329 yards.

Halfback Tom Worthington of Northwestern was the punt return champion with an average of 19.9 on 12 hauls for 239 yards.

Dehydrated individual champions included Halfback Harry Szulborski of Purdue, and Michigan's Ortmann and End Harry Allis.

Szulborski, top running back last year, finished 18th in the rushing department this season. Ortmann, 1948 No. 1 passer, was third this year, while Allis, scoring leader with 40 points last year, this time failed to make the top eight in point-making.

Hawkeyes Rank High In League Statistics

In addition to End Jack Dittmer's new Big 10 record for total yards gained on passes — 333 — caught this season six other Iowans finished high in official statistics. The record broke Dick Rifeburg's mark of 313 yards, set in 1948.

Bob McKenzie, Dittmer's running mate, ranked second in number of catches, 19, and in touchdowns, with three. He gained 277 yards in the process.

Halfback Duane Brandt was second in pass interceptions with five; Fullback Bill Reichardt was third in scoring with 28 points and Quarterback Chuck Dennist was fourth in punting, on an average of 39.6 yards for 24 punts.

Reichardt was fourth in kickoff returns, averaging 23.7 yards on nine tries. Jerry Faske was second in rushing average, netting 6.6 yards for 47 carries.

The Hawks averaged 23.8 passing attempts per game, snapping the old team mark of 23, also set by Iowa, in 1945. The 41 against Wisconsin was a new single game mark and Glenn Drahn, in tossing 31 of the 41 heaves in that game, broke the individual record.

Saner Win-Loss Attitude in East, Says Brechler

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern football fans are more sane in their attitude toward victories and defeats than are midwestern fans. Athletic Director Paul Brechler of Iowa told the touchdown club Tuesday.

"In the Midwest a coach must win every game or the alumni begin to fret," Brechler said. "But here in the east the fans, alumni and sometimes the athletics directors are more realistic. For instance, Lou Little at Columbia is as much respected this year after winning only two as he was after last year's good season."

Brechler said he felt the Big Ten was the best balanced circuit in the country.

"Not necessarily the best, but the best balanced league with the bottom club likely to knock off the leader."

Tuesday Brechler was to address the New York Iowa Alumni association.

7 Individual Big 10 Marks Broken in '49

CHICAGO (AP) — It's tough for a sophomore to make the football grade in the Big Ten, but this season two of them won two statistical titles and accounted for two of seven new individual records.

The most coveted crown went to Sophomore Johnny Karras of Illinois whose 732 yards not only led all conference ball-carriers, but also obliterated the record of 669 yards gained by Ohio State's Les Horvath in 1944.

Karras slashed away 109 times in seven league games for a sparkling 6.7 average per try, according to final league figures released Tuesday.

Robertson Top Punter

The other sophomore, Indiana Halfback Bobby Robertson, was the year's top punter with a 40.2 average on 32 kicks and also accounted for a new record when he returned 12 kickoffs. This feat was made possible as 178 points were scored against the winless Hoosiers in six games.

Only repeater as a statistical champion was Michigan's junior halfback, Chuck Ortmann, who retained the total offense title with 768 yards, 500 by passing and 268 by rushing. Ortmann shaded Karras in this department by 22 yards.

Senior Quarterback Don Burson of Northwestern was the Big Ten's best passer with 44 completions in 95 flips for 664 yards and five touchdowns.

Morrison Scoring Champ

Another senior, Fullback Fred Morrison of Ohio State, took the scoring championship with 36 points on six touchdowns in six games.

Flash Fire Kills Five Children In Farmhouse

ROCK FALLS, WIS. (AP)—A flash fire in a farmhouse Tuesday killed five persons, four of them children of Mr. and Mrs. John Berg and the other a grandchild. The parents, milking cows in the barn when the fire flashed through the eight-room frame house, tried frantically to rescue their children but were driven back by flames. Berg raised a ladder to a fiery window where his daughter, Maxine, 20, was screaming for help. As he clutched her arm the window collapsed and Maxine was lost.

A son, Harry, 9, leaped from an upstairs window and was taken to a hospital with burns and cuts.

The mother also was cut and burned when she tried to enter the house by the ground floor but met a wall of flames.

The victims were identified as Maxine, Donna Mae, 11, David, 8, and Jack, 6, all children of the Bergs, and Joanne Stai, 8, a granddaughter.

Older children of the Bergs are married and live elsewhere, but three other sons had left the house before the fire.

The parents were hysterical with grief as they watched flames consume their home in a few minutes before aid could arrive. An exploding oil stove was believed responsible.

Horse Shot After Collision with Car

An accident involving a horse-drawn wagon and an automobile about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday resulted in the horse being destroyed, the wagon demolished and about $100 damage to the automobile. Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy reported.

The accident occurred on highway 6 between Coralville and Iowa City when a car driven by James Cox, Oxford, was involved in a collision with a horse-drawn wagon driven by Zell Ross, Coralville farmer.

One of Ross's two horses was so badly injured that he had to be shot, Murphy said. Cox's car was following the wagon, headed east, and Cox claimed the sun interfered with his visibility, Murphy added.

WSUI-KSUI will not be on the air Thursday, Thanksgiving day. However, a special half-hour Thanksgiving broadcast will be presented today at 8 p.m. by Prof. Harrison Thornton of the SU history department.

Thornton said he would discuss the holiday's history and presidential Thanksgiving day proclamations.

The program will consist of compositions by Beethoven, an opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, and a one-hour record of the International Festival of Music and Drama, Edinburgh, Scotland.

Conrad's Cartoons To Go on Display

A selection of editorial cartoons by Paul Conrad, Daily Iowan staff cartoonist, will go on display Tuesday in the Iowa Union south lobby.

The work by Conrad, A4, Mason City, will be the Iowa Union's first "one-man show."

The group will include about 30 of the 100 editorial cartoons which have appeared in The Daily Iowan since June.

The exhibit will be sponsored by the Union board house and library committee, Chairman Felicia Hope, N4, Corning, said.

Three Earthquakes Jar Santiago, Cuba

SANTIAGO, CUBA (AP)—Three earth tremors shook Santiago Tuesday. No casualties were reported.

The first shock occurred at 1:15 p.m. (Iowa time). Two more were felt at 2:15 p.m. within a few seconds of each other.

Employees abandoned the post office building fearing that it might collapse. It was badly damaged by the quake.

Hospitals to Dismantle Obsolete Amphitheater

University hospitals' old operating amphitheater, long used as a lecture room, will be dismantled sometime in December, SUI Architect George Horner said Tuesday.

Horner said the tower's high-ceilinged room will be separated into three floors, providing the hospitals with an additional 4,800 square feet of floor space.

Surprise Cake for Boy's Birthday

BREATHLESS BUT BLOWING at those eight candles with all his might is Daryl Newton of Iowa Falls. Daryl, who attends the SUI Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children, was surprised on his birthday Tuesday with this delicious-looking cake. The cake was made by home economics students here and contained a Swiss music box which played "Happy Birthday" when Daryl began cutting it. The SUI Home Economics Graduate club plans to make cakes for all the handicapped children that have birthdays at the hospital school.

Handicapped Child Celebrates With 'Musical Cake' at Party

We all like to be remembered on our birthdays, but children especially enjoy a cake, candles and a party.

The SUI home economics department had this in mind when they baked a big cake for Daryl Newton's eighth birthday Tuesday. Daryl is from Iowa Falls, and attends the SUI Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children.

The cake was a surprise at the Tuesday dinner at school. It was a big three-layer angel food with white icing, chocolate turkey decorations and a pumpkin-shaped candle centerpiece.

When Daryl saw his gaily decorated cake he was too breathless to blow out the eight candles all at once, and when he cut it—another surprise! The knife tripped a hidden lever and a little Swiss music box inside the cake played "Happy Birthday To You."

With the aid of Mrs. Bernard Lillick, recreation director at the school, Daryl cut the cake without hitting any more tines, and had enough pieces for all his friends at the hospital school.

This was the first birthday cake the SUI Home Economics department has made for the handicapped children, and they plan to continue the policy.

Students in the meal management class baked Daryl's cake on their own time and the Home Economics Graduate club will make others for all the children's future birthdays at the hospital school.

3 ROTC Students Get Army Awards

Three senior ROTC medical students have been awarded army internships of one year as first lieutenants in a hospital of their own choice, ROTC officials said Tuesday.

The men were chosen from 20 SUI applicants and are among 300 ROTC medical students awarded army internships this year throughout the nation.

Carlyle Moore, Terrill, and John Eckstein, Iowa City, will intern at Letterman General hospital in San Francisco, while Robert Ferguson, Hopkinton, will serve a year's internship at the Fitzsimons General hospital in Denver.

They will have the option of remaining in the army or going into civilian practice at the end of their internships, military department officials said.

Scouts' Camporee Led by Woolery

Arlo Woolery, Iowa City, directed a Boy Scout camporee last weekend at the Maplecrest river ranch between North English and South English.

Scouts from the three-county Iowa River Valley council took in the outing providing their own shelter and tents for the two-night camping trip. They learned cold weather camping methods and entertained themselves with contests and games.

Raymond Culp, Coralville, assisted Woolery in direction of the activity and Dr. Edward Swarthout, Wellman, was in charge of physical arrangements.

Iowa State Pledges Leave Dead Horse

AMES (AP)—It's a fact that Sigma Alpha Epsilon members saw about 50 pigeons flying around their house Tuesday morning.

But it's only Iowa State college campus rumor that a dead horse was in the living room.

Fraternity members said the pigeons were a prank played by pledges in their annual "walkout." They wouldn't discuss a dead horse seen by students in the back yard about noon.

The horse wasn't an apparition. A rendering plant worker said he picked up the dead horse at 1 p.m.

Brother Don Hansen said it was a "successful walkout." There was no word from the pledges—they hadn't returned by early evening.

Active Polio Cases Rise At University Hospitals

The number of active polio cases under treatment at University hospitals rose to 16 Tuesday as three patients were admitted to active polio wards.

Marcia Schroeder, 10, Watkins, was reported in "serious" condition by hospital officials.

Also admitted were Charlotte Phillips, 15, Centerville, and Mrs. Phyllis Evans, 21, Waterloo. Both were in "fair" condition, hospital officials said.

Bridges' Lawyer Gets Six Month Sentence for Contempt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Vincent Hallinan, chief attorney for Harry Bridges, was sentenced Tuesday to six months in jail for criminal contempt of court, after a bitter, heated exchange of words with Federal Judge George Harris.

Judge Harris at first ordered Hallinan into custody immediately. Later he granted a stay to allow Hallinan to continue to represent the west coast CIO longshore leader in his perjury trial.

The trial will be resumed at 10 a.m. today. Under his original order, Judge Harris had continued the case until Dec. 6 and told Bridges to get another lawyer. The stay, however, means that Hallinan will have to serve his

Article Describes Pioneer Magazine

An article on "The Midland"—an early and unusual magazine first edited in Iowa City—appears in the current issue of the Iowa Journal of History, State Historical society quarterly.

"The Midland" was one of the first periodicals to break away from European publication influences and was called a "little magazine."

The article was written by Lois T. Hartley, an English instructor at the University of Illinois.

sentence once the case goes to the jury.

The word battle brought a scathing denunciation of Hallinan's contemptuous attitude by the judge and a motion by the attorney that the judge disqualify himself in the proceedings.

Before Judge Harris granted the stay, he discussed the matter with Bridges, who is charged with perjury in denying in a naturalization hearing that he was a Communist. He asked the defendant his opinion about changing counsel.

"I don't think I will get a square deal," Bridges said.

Judge Harris took a brief recess to study the plea for a stay of execution. When he returned to the bench and announced his decision, he credited an urgent plea by Hallinan's associate,

James MacInnis with persuading him to let Hallinan finish out the trial. The contempt sentence climaxed one of the most bitter and unusual courtroom lectures and legal battles in federal court history here.
