Bridge Project Sidelined Until 1951 by State

Mayor Preston Koser Friday termed as "disappointing" a notice from the state highway commission that the Burlington street bridge and the adjoining intersection cannot possibly be overhauled this year or next.

"Anyone can see that intersection is one of the worst bottlenecks in the state," Koser commented. "It was built for the Model-T age and can't accommodate today's traffic, especially in a university town with many athletic events."

"Not in 1950" F. R. White, chief engineer for the commission, gave notice that the group could not "undertake the project in 1950" in answer to City Atty. W. H. Bartley's query as to the highway commission's progress on plans for revamping.

White's letter did not state when the project would be started, but did say "there is no possibility of a beginning next year."

Since last spring local city officials have been working on a plan to widen the bridge to 48 feet, give it four-lane traffic and open up the Riverside drive intersection to allow a smooth flow of traffic.

Last summer Mayor Koser was assured in Washington, D.C., that the federal government would bear 50 percent of the project's cost — estimated at near $500,000.

Consult Stage Agencies Since traffic from two federal highways travels over the bridge and intersection, state and federal agencies were consulted for engineering and financial assistance.

But work does not start on the project until the state highway commission is ready to proceed. SUI Prof. Ned L. Ashton, consulting engineer, drew up preliminary plans for the work last spring. State engineers were sent here to draw up more plans after a special traffic survey showed that the intersection was a serious traffic bottleneck.

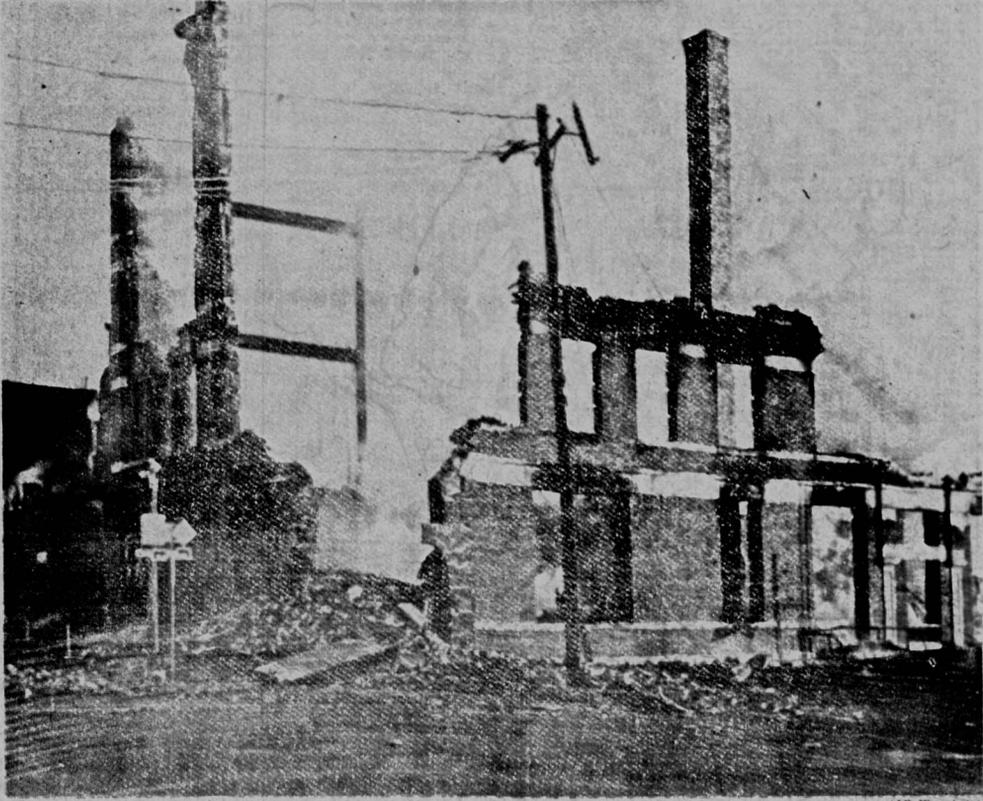

It was generally understood that satisfactory progress was being made on the project until Friday's notification of delay at least until 1951.

Senator Gillette Grants Delay of A & P Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Iowa) agreed Friday to allow more time for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company to gather data for a senate hearing on food prices.

Gillette, chairman of a senate agriculture subcommittee which is investigating the recent upsurge in coffee prices, earlier expressed shock at the refusal of A&P President David T. Bofinger to appear in Capitol Hill next Monday as requested.

Bofinger said he would be glad to appear later.

Hotel Left a Shell by All-Night Fire in Oklahoma

ONLY THE SMOULDERING SHELL of the four-story Loraine hotel remained after an all-night fire destroyed it and other business buildings in a quarter of downtown Sapulpa, Okla., early Friday morning. Fifty-three guests were in the hotel when the fire alarm came, and most of them made their way to safety. Fire Chief Bill Collier said some might have been trapped on the upper floors and their fate not known until the ruins are searched. Damage was estimated at $1-million.

Urges GOP Try Coalition Party

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — A new political party composed of old-line Republican and southern Democrats to end the 17-year famine of the GOP was proposed Friday by Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio).

He named Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia university, and James F. Byrnes, former Truman cabinet member, as two men he would like to have help bring about the coalition. Byrnes is a South Carolina Democrat.

Bricker, the 1944 vice-presidential nominee of the Republican party and long-standing aspirant to the presidency, said the Republican party might have to discard its name to form the coalition aimed at stopping what he called a trend toward a "welfare state."

Actually, what Bricker proposes is a permanent alignment of the factions that effectively stopped President Truman's civil rights program in the 81st congress and slowed down other administration measures.

"The all important question is whether we are going to spend ourselves into a different form of government," Bricker declared. "We did not have a clear cut test of this in either the last national election or the one before it."

Voters must be permitted to cast their ballots on issues as well as candidates, the junior Ohio senator said. He added that they have not been able to do so because of frequent jumping of party lines by both Republicans and Democrats.

Bricker said he had not broached the proposal to Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio, Republican policy leader in the senate, or other party officials. His suggestion was made to newspapermen as doubt existed in Washington as to whether Republicans could agree on a platform for the 1950 congressional elections.

Might Get Southerners Conservative southern Democrats could be persuaded to form a coalition party with regular Republicans despite divergent views on civil rights, Bricker believes. The solution, he said, might be a program that does not emphasize minority group differences.

Former Secretary of State Byrnes, who also served in the senate and on the supreme court, recently attacked the administration for drifting toward "statism." Eisenhower followed a similar tact Thursday in deploring "the drift away from the simplicity of our early days."

Eisenhower, in a speech in New York, castigated high-spending "liberals" and said many people were sacrificing their independence for the "illusion called security."

Plane Crash Kills Twenty Brazilians

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL (AP) — A plane crash in a rain storm killed 20 Brazilians Thursday. Only two aboard survived. They were Mrs. Lina Machado and her two-year old son, Eribello.

The plane, a REAL (Royal) Air Line DC-3 was bound inland from this Atlantic port 200 miles southwest of the capital, Rio De Janeiro.

Apparently groping through overcast for an emergency landing, it plowed into the earth near Ribeirao, not far from the Parana-apanema river. Pilot Carlos da Rocha, his three fellow crew members and 16 passengers perished.

Among those who died were Mrs. Machado's husband, Antonio, and another son. The boy who lived through the crash was first identified as her daughter. Both the mother and son were hospitalized at Ribeirao, a town of about 10,000. The extent of their injuries was not ascertained here. The accident also took the lives of two deaf mute children, 10 and 14 years old, on their way home from a school for a vacation.

'New Approach' Written By CIO Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The CIO united steelworkers Friday wrote an agreement containing "an entirely new approach" to settle the labor-management warfare rocking the nation's economy.

As the bitter dispute in the coal industry continued unabated and trouble brewed in the electrical goods business, the USW announced a contract with a big fabricating company pledging "collective action in the pursuit of common well being."

CROMMELIN TALKS AGAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Capt. John G. Crommelin, who blew the lid off inter-service disputes, charged Friday night that unification policies "smack a little too much of Hitler's regime."

WARD NEAR FREEDOM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angus Ward, American consul general in Mukden, Manchuria, Friday was just a few days from freedom unless the Chinese Communists pull another cat-and-mouse trick on him.

CR Darkened Again By Power Failure

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — The second power failure in four days plunged Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown and Boone into darkness for a time late Friday.

The failure was the result of a short circuit in the main plant of the Iowa Electric Light and Power company of Cedar Rapids. A workman, John W. Dorton, 35, of Cedar Rapids, was burned but not seriously. He was taken to a hospital for treatment.

The failure at Marshalltown came in the midst of an operation at a hospital. The operation was delayed for 45 minutes for lack of light.

The breakdown in the Cedar Rapids plant, which is the main source of power for Iowa electric light and power lines through central Iowa, occurred about 4:10 p.m.

The power went off at Marshalltown about an hour later, when auxiliary generators failed to carry the added load caused by the Cedar Rapids failure.

Power failed at Boone for the same reason. It was restored there about an hour later.

Partial service was restored in Marshalltown by 6:20 p.m., but company officials asked the people to use as little power as possible. Full service was restored by 7 p.m.

Lights came on in parts of downtown Cedar Rapids about an hour after power went off, but the rest of the downtown area and most residential sections remained without lights.

VA Names Board To Handle Appeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration Friday set up appeals machinery for schools that are dissatisfied with the contracts and tuition that VA provides for the training of former servicemen.

The VA said the new procedures will go into effect Dec. 16. Carl R. Gray Jr., veterans administrator, appointed Charles Manfred Thompson, 72, dean emeritus of the University of Illinois college of commerce and business administration as chairman of the three man veterans' tuition appeals board.

Gray said acceptances have not yet been received from the two other board members. He said they will be announced as soon as acceptances are received. Gray said each school making an appeal must first show that all administrative means of settling the tuition dispute have been exhausted.

Says Lend-Lease Planes Took Notes To Russia

Rattled Door Rattles the Rattler

Police investigating a burglar alarm at the Kresge store, 121 E. Washington street, Friday about midnight found Night Watchman Robert Sock, 833 N. Johnson street, hunting for the key to turn off the alarm.

Sock told police and Assistant Manager David U. Ribble, 712 Walnut Street, the alarm had been touched off as he tried the door in making his rounds.

NYU Picks Hancher For Elector Board

The appointment of SUI's President Virgil M. Hancher to the College of Electors of the New York university Hall of Fame has been announced by the Hall's director, Ralph W. Sockman.

The appointment of the president, who is now en route to the Indian-American Relations conference in New Delhi, was announced with 48 others, including Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia university; Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, United Nations mediator in Palestine; Ohio Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft and Chief Justice of the U.S. Fred M. Vinson.

Attorney to Advise Drop of Myers Case

County Atty. Jack C. White said Friday he would recommend dismissal of the state's case against Donald L. Myers, SUI electronics technician, who stood trial on a reckless driving charge Thursday morning.

Justice of the Peace C.J. Hutchinson had ordered a new trial for next Thursday, when the jury failed to reach a verdict.

But White said he would request today or Monday that Myers not be tried any further because "the jury did not agree, and therefore there appears to be some doubt as to whether he (Myers) is guilty."

The attorney said he told Myers of his proposed recommendation Friday.

The charge was filed against Myers Sept. 20 by Ivan Schmidt, North Liberty tavern proprietor, who was called in as a witness Thursday.

The issue stemmed from an incident at Shannon's Inn, North Liberty, some time after Myers had instigated raids investigating alleged violations of gambling and liquor laws.

Myers claimed he was chased back to Iowa City, after a visit to the Inn, by three cars containing Schmidt and four other men. Schmidt said in his testimony he followed Myers to see where he was going.

460 Couples Attend Iowa Winter Formal

Four-hundred and sixty dancing couples moved around the main ballroom of the Iowa Union Friday night to the music of Jimmy Dorsey's 15-piece band.

The danceable music of Dorsey's band hit its stride early in the Winter Formal's program when the band struck up "Charlie Boy" and "Johnson Rag."

Dancers pronounced the other melodies a "goodly sprinkling of dancing tunes."

Dorsey, who admitted before the dance that he'd "rather play for college crowds than any other group because of the genuine enthusiasm of college kids," played before a backdrop of Christmas decorations.

Newly erected was an 18-foot Christmas evergreen, decorated Friday afternoon. Fires kindled in the hearths seemed only to further the festive spirit.

Possible Development Of A-Bomb Booster

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-shot possibility exists that the United States has developed a "booster bomb" in the atomic field — one in which an orthodox bomb would touch off another explosive up to 1,000 times more powerful.

There is no official ground for this speculation, but published theory about "super" bombs and the known capabilities of already developed A-bombs employing either uranium or plutonium, justify this reasoning.

BARKLEY PREDICTS VICTORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice-President Alben W. Barkley kicked off the Democratic drive for victory in the 1950 elections Friday with a prediction the Democrats will win that election and others for many years to come.

Ex-Army Man Found Papers With Baggage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former army officer said Friday night Russian couriers carried secret documents from the United States to Russia in lend-lease planes during the war.

Russia was an ally of this country and Great Britain during that conflict.

Interviewed by Fulton Lewis on the radio (MBS), the man identified himself as G. Racey Jordan of New York. He said he was a captain assigned at Great Falls, Mont., in January, 1943, when United States planes were flown from there to Fairbanks, Alaska, and thence to Moscow.

Became Suspicious He became suspicious, he said, when Russian officers leaving on the planes carried "ever increasing amounts of baggage." He made a search, Jordan said, which uncovered state department documents, blueprints and maps, engineering drawings and scientific data.

In one suitcase, he said, "there was a letter on White House stationery which impressed me because it had the name Harry Hopkins printed in the upper left hand corner. I jotted down part of the message—it said: 'had a hell of a time getting these away from Groves.' And it was signed with the initials HH."

Harry Hopkins, who was high in government circles for several years during the time Franklin D. Roosevelt was president, died several years ago.

There was no confirmation Friday night from any official source of the story told by Jordan. However, Lewis said he and his staff had been checking the story for two months.

Searched Suitcases Jordan said he made a search of some of the rope bound suitcases over the protests of the Russians.

"They were screaming about diplomatic immunity and I said that so far as I was concerned there was no diplomatic immunity on the stuff, and one by one I began breaking the wax seals and ripping the ropes off and opening them up," Jordan said.

Lewis asked Jordan to tell what he saw in the suitcases destined for Moscow.

"Well, for one thing," Jordan said, "there was a tremendous quantity of state department documents — carbon or photostatic copies of them — and on each one of them a piece had been cut out of the top and bottom of the page, where the stamp secret or confidential or restricted was always placed."

Dinner Ceremony To Inaugurate New College of Nursing

The SUI college of nursing will be inaugurated today after a half-century service as a school of nursing.

Lucile Petry, assistant surgeon general of the U.S. public health service, will be guest of honor and speaker at a dinner at Iowa Memorial Union at 7 p.m., commemorating the occasion. Over 275 persons are expected to attend.

Dean-elect Myrtle Kitchell and faculty of the new college of nursing will be honored by the SUI nurses' alumnae association at a reception in the Westlawn parlors today from 4 to 6 p.m.

Tours of the SUI medical facilities will be conducted at 1 and 2 p.m. starting from Westlawn.

The SUI school of nursing was founded in 1898 with seven students. A total of 263 students enrolled in the school this fall.

COLOR PICTURES OF EARTH

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — The airforce fired an Aerobee rocket about 60 miles up into the sky Friday and from it took first color pictures of the earth. Maj. D.M. Brown of Holloman airforce base said the rocket was in the air for 15 minutes and attained a speed of 4,300 miles an hour.

Mao and Tito: Parts of the Same Pattern? —

We may be seeing the appearance of a pattern in behavior between Marshal Joseph Tito in Yugoslavia and China's Communist leader Mao Tse-tung. If such a pattern is beginning to appear, it's a hard one to distinguish for sure, like telling which parent a newborn boy looks like.

Both leaders started out to take over their respective countries with a dictatorship which differed only in name from the existing one. Tito has succeeded in losing the Moscow price tag which he wore when he took the reins of leadership.

Mao Tse-tung hasn't reached the stage of Tito by a long way, and the question is: does he have the power and organization necessary to follow the Moscow party line until he is ready to strike out on his own, or will he succumb to interparty domination and lose his grip on the new China?

There is another way to put the question: will Moscow permit Mao ever to gain enough power to take over China, or has the Kremlin learned a lesson from Tito's opportunistic behavior?

The answers to these questions are not ones you can think out over a pipe and coffee. The answers lie in careful watching and continual, contradictory interpretation of every move Mao makes for the next few years. The answer may take even a score of years to prove itself either way.

Reason: any comparison between the Occidental and Oriental mind by the Occidental is necessarily faulty. Western minds just can't break down their traditional cultural patterns to get at the difference between Orient and Occident.

Chinese culture and civilization, it must be remembered, was well-advanced centuries before anyone thought to question the story that the earth was flat.

Western minds are worried over the new acceptance of communism in China. They regard it as evidence of our losing the ideological war between capitalism and free enterprise as opposed to socialism and government operation of business.

The fact is that communism in China is not the same thing as communism as advocated by western Communists — even Communists in iron curtain countries. Theodore White and Annalee Jacoby, war correspondents in Chungking during World War II, have pointed up this fact most adequately in their book, "Thunder Out of China."

At first communism in China meant a type of agrarian reform that would have given the Chinese peasants a new kind of life, a chance to enjoy their harvest without being taxed to death.

What communism in China means now, only the Chinese can say — and even they aren't really sure, if we can take the words of Chinese students at SUI. They're puzzled about the way Russian so-called efficiency experts are trying to re-make the national economy.

They wonder what effect Russia's brand of communism will have on their strife-torn nation. They wonder how soon Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalist brethren like Acting President Li Tsung-jen will be eliminated from the political scene.

People all over the world are wondering what will happen to the current leader, Mao. Is he an opportunist who will use Moscow as Tito did and then break away with his own brand of communism when he feels the time is ripe? Is he a cat's paw who will be used by Moscow until the time is ripe for him to be eliminated in a blood purge on trumped up charges?

Who can answer these questions now? No one — with any certainty.

An Interesting About-Face —

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, who has put on a pretty healthy campaign to woo the farmers with his generous parity program, got quite a jolt last week at a meeting of the National Grange.

Farmers called the plan "an internal cancer that would ultimately destroy our free enterprise system."

The blast continued when three of the nation's major farm groups condemned the program.

Yeah, But Has He Got a Vocalist? —

SUI students, evidently seeking recreation in other ways than shuffling to the music of the nation's "great" bands, are posing a problem to local band bookers.

Why get 'em, seem to run the sentiments, if they're going to play to themselves.

However, we have a feeling that SUI students would turn out in droves if a certain musician were asked to provide the beat for an evening.

gram. If government generosity continues, "it would then become a race to see which party would promise most."

The farmers' stand reflects an interesting point of view. Many critics of the Democratic party have said that nobody could ever whip Santa Claus at the polls. The farmers' sentiments seem to be a pleasant about-face.

Maybe Santa Claus can be whipped.

We're thinking about "Snappy" of Kalmar-zoo, Mich. He doesn't know many tunes, and he leans towards the sentimental ballads, but he does pretty well — for a horse.

In Case of War, U.S. Could Feel Pinch —

Science Probes for Methods of Getting Oil

By PHIL BLUMER

Oil — probably the most essential raw material in our economy — could be one of our biggest headaches in case of another war.

As far as top-grade deposits of crude oil go, the United States seems to be definitely on the road toward a "have-not" classification in the international economy.

According to W.C. Schroeder, chief of the office of synthetic fuels of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, we face a shortage of oil as early as 1955.

From that time on, the best estimates now available indicate, the shortage will grow more and more acute.

Will the United States be forced back into gasoline and fuel oil rationing? Not necessarily, says Schroeder.

He gives these possible solutions to the future shortages arising from increased per capita consumption, increased population and dwindling U.S. reserves:

1. The greater use of imports. Oil is now imported from the Near East, Canada, and Central and South America. The biggest of these reserves, in Arabia, could not be counted on in case of war because of its great distance from the United States.

2. The use of synthetic liquid fuels. Fuels and lubricating oils of good quality can be made from certain "oil shales." Coal can also be converted into oils by treating it chemically with hydrogen.

3. The use of "tidelands oil." Deposits of oil lie offshore in the Caribbean sea and the Pacific ocean. But drilling for these is an expensive and difficult task.

4. Better recovery methods. By the use of better methods, more oil can be recovered from a given well.

To free the United States from dependence on overseas oil imports, much research has been concentrated on the making of oil from oil shale, coal and natural gas.

Reserves of natural gas are limited, but reserves of coal and oil shale are huge. The United States has half the proven reserves of coal in the world. Extensive deposits of oil shale exist in many states.

An experimental plant at Rifle, Col., is now producing oil from shale. Each ton of the mineral there yields about 30 gallons of oil, according to Schroeder.

The rock is taken from the shafts of the mine by power machinery after it has been loosened by blasting and drilling. At the treatment plant it is heated to high temperatures and vapors given off are collected in condensers.

It is then treated to remove harmful impurities and refined to make it usable in Diesel engines, stoves or automobiles.

A pilot plant for the manufacture of oil from coal is now in production at Louisiana, Mo., a town on the Mississippi river about 200 miles south of Iowa City.

In this plant the bureau of mines, together with the Bechtel corporation of California, is experimentally producing 200 to 300 gallons of gasoline and oil daily from coal.

Here coal is crushed, dried and pulverized, and then made into a heavy paste with the addition of a heavy oil. In cylinders of chrome steel, each weighing about 100 tons, hydrogen is combined with the coal under high temperatures and pressures up to 10,000 pounds per square inch.

Gasoline and oil vapors are then distilled off and collected.

Both soft coals and lignite may all be processed in this manner. After refining, the gasoline thus produced is suitable for automobiles.

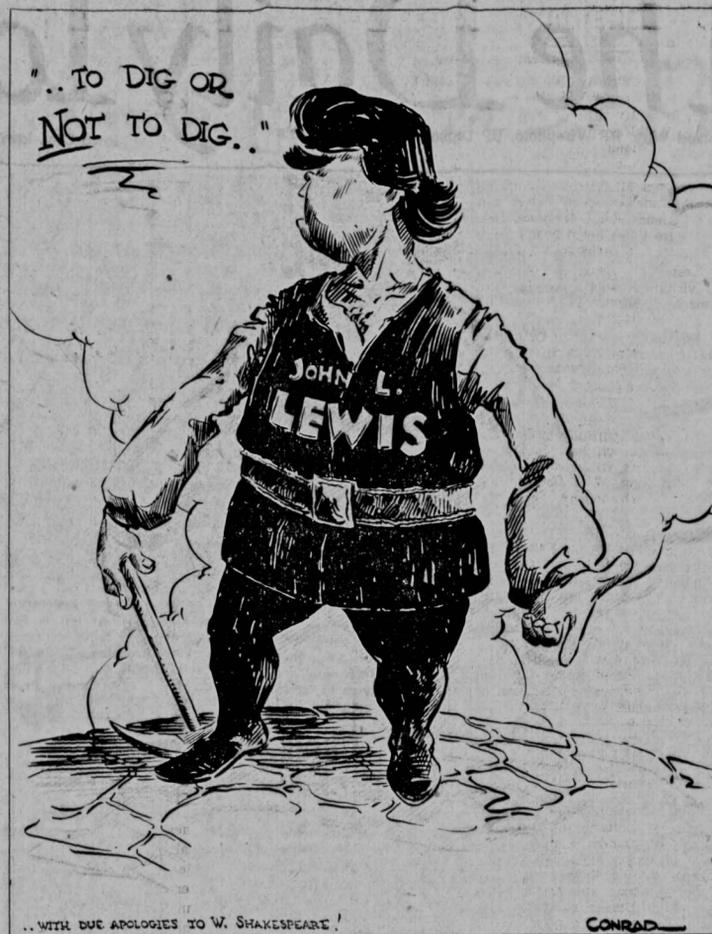

Costs of gasoline and oil produced synthetically will probably be greater than that of ordinary crude oils, but development of these methods is being done in anticipation of the day when the supply of ordinary crudes will no longer be sufficient for our needs.

Even without another war, it probably won't be long until a shortage of oil develops.

The newly-elected Nationalist party promises to review government spending, try to cut living costs, encourage free enterprise, but not to interfere with long-standing social benefits.

It received a larger majority in parliament than had been enjoyed by the outgoing Labor government.

That is the Question!

Barkley Ridicules 'Statism' Charges

NEW YORK — Vice President Alben W. Barkley Friday night ridiculed the Republican cry of "statism" against President Harry Truman's program as an attempt to "scare" voters away from the Democratic party.

He told an enthusiastic audience at a $100-a-plate party fund-raising dinner that it won't work, in 1950 nor in the future.

The 72-year-old "Veep" interrupted his honeymoon to come to New York and make the major speech at a lavish dinner sponsored by the Democratic National committee to launch the 1950 campaign for control of congress.

He said the government has grown under Democratic administrations because it was what the people want and need to protect themselves from "selfish and predatory" interests.

"It is my candid judgment," he said, "that the American people in 1950, and 1952, and throughout the years of the future will confirm overwhelmingly their satisfaction with the contribution we are making to the general welfare of our own people and to the peace of the world."

He challenged Republicans who raise the "statism" issue to spell out exactly which government activities they would curtail or abolish.

New Zealanders Prove You Do 'Shoot Santa'

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst New Zealanders, voting out their 14-year-old Socialist government and substituting one which favors free enterprise, have violated the old maxim that you don't shoot Santa Claus. The political ripples are traveling throughout the British empire.

Too much regulation of how they could buy and sell, of how much they should pay and get paid; too much government spending, too many taxes, too much government and too little private enterprise. These are the reasons given.

The issues had been sharply drawn between a complete welfare state and a brake on socialism. The people decided to apply the brakes.

Startled observers were quick to start searching the returns for clues to what might happen in Australia Dec. 10, where the election issues are the same, and in England herself later.

In New Zealand, much more than in Australia, England is still called "home," and affairs are prone to take similar courses. One factor in Labor's defeat may have been the recent adoption of the British pound and its subsequent devaluation. And that is to be a prime issue in Britain, too.

Many American soldiers who became enamored of the countries "down under" during the war and went back to seek their fortunes have either come back or reported back, greatly irked by the difficulty of trying to get businesses started under stacks of government regulations.

It was known prior to the election that New Zealanders were restless, and the possibility that Labor would lose there was considered more likely than in Australia. But most observers still

by JOE BROWN

ONCE BEFORE in this space, I told of how a certain little five-year-old boy in my neighborhood was giving me trouble.

At that time, he had been waiting every few days for me to drive along the gravel street in front of his home.

Instead of letting me pass as any well-meaning motorist should be allowed to, he would dash to the center of the street and stand there, daring me to hit him.

And then as it became greater and greater sport for him, he began having his little gang of cohorts waiting on either side of the street when I approached the spot.

The whole caboodle of them would let fly with a barrage of rocks if I dared enter their cross-fire.

My threat at the time was that I'd put a bug in Santa's ear if the little highwayman didn't cease molesting me.

FOR ALMOST two weeks now I've been passing there with no trouble and I thought it was all over. But this morning hostilities began again. He re-opened his war of nerves on me.

I casually glanced out the front window and, at first, thought nothing of seeing a little figure on his knees beside one of my tires.

But as I walked away from the window I stopped short. Something familiar about that figure... Oh, no! Not little Jesse James again!

Out the front door I dashed, shouting, "Hey, you little rascal! Get away from there!"

I stopped at the porch steps, expecting him to take off in flight. But I received no response. He didn't run and he didn't alibi.

Instead, he looked back over his shoulder at me with a stare cold enough to make Alan Ladd cringe. And then, very calmly and deliberately, he turned back to the tire.

THE CAR BEGAN settling earlier and nearer the ground, accompanied by a loud hissing.

That did it! I had been bad enough when he waited for me to block away. But I suppose he had been missing me each day I passed and I had been mistaken in taking his absence from the spot as an armistice.

Being the determined little character he was, I guess he had decided he'd seek out the enemy if the enemy wouldn't pass his house when he was ready to fight.

When I reached his side, he took the wooden match stick from the valve, straightened up and surveyed me very coolly.

"Aren't you ashamed? I asked. "No."

"What's the big idea of your letting the air out of my tires?" "Because I wanted to."

"That's no excuse. Suppose I came up to your house and let the air out of your dad's tires?"

"HE'D SOCK you in the nose." "Oh, you think so, huh?" "My daddy would knock you down."

"Oh, you think so, huh?" "My daddy is real big. He'll beat you up."

"Oh, you think so, huh?" "I'm going to tell him to beat you up."

"What's Santa going to bring you?" "My daddy's a Golden Gloves fighter."

"I'll bet Santa's going to bring you lots of nice toys, isn't he?" "Do you want to fight my daddy?"

"I'll tell Santa you've been a real good boy when I see him."

"I'm going to get my daddy right now."

"Say, how would you like to play a game. We'll let the air out of my tires. It's lots of fun."

I BORROWED my landlord's tire pump a while later. It didn't take long to pump them up. It was pretty cold, anyway, and it got me warmed up.

That little boy is a lovable kid. He's got a great sense of humor, too.

Michigan State Here Monday But It's Still Non-Conference

Spartans in Loop, Not in Standings

Iowa meets Michigan State Monday night in a game with a conference school that can't be counted in the Big Ten basketball standings.

The Spartans from East Lansing, making their second appearance here, are qualified members of the league but are not yet playing a conference schedule.

Rugged Competition
Although it won't figure as a league game, the contest probably has all other aspects of such a contest. The strong Spartans have a veteran team headed by Bill Rapchak, a forward, who holds Michigan State's scoring mark of 528 points in three years of play.

He is a one-handed shot specialist. Like his senior running mate at forward, Hugh Dawson and Guard Jim Snodgrass, Rapchak is a product of Indiana state prep basketball.

Michigan State, coached for the first year by Al Kircher, averages only 6-feet, 1-inch in height, but apparently is well set for speed.

The Spartans open the season tonight against Michigan at East Lansing.

Veterans and Sophs
Iowa and Michigan State probably have one feature in common for each will depend upon a combination of veterans and sophomores.

Rounding out the starting five for Michigan State will be Center Ray Steffen, 6-feet, 4-inches, and Captain Bob Robbins at guard.

This will be Iowa's first reserved seat game. There is no limit on the sale of reserved seat tickets for this contest. However, no general admission tickets will be sold to the public.

Hawk J-V Cagers Meet Penn Monday

The Iowa junior varsity basketball team opens a tentative nine-game schedule Monday night meeting Penn college as a preliminary to the Iowa-Michigan State game here.

Wolverine, Spartan Cagers Meet Tonight

EAST LANSING, MICH. — Michigan State takes the lid off the 1949-50 basketball season tonight against a powerful Michigan five here.

Michigan, third-place team in the 1948-49 Western conference race, will start a team composed of four lettermen and one newcomer. The team will average close to the 6-foot, 3-inch mark.

Heading the Wolverines is Captain Mack Supranowicz, last year's team leader in scoring and one of the Big Ten's top scorers at forward. Supranowicz holds the all-time Michigan single game scoring mark of 28 points, set last year against Purdue.

Supranowicz's running mate at the forward post will be Don McIntosh. Leo VanderKuy will hold down the center post.

Hal Morrill will team with Charley Murray in the back court. The game will be the 56th in the long Spartan-Wolverine cage rivalry which dates back to 1909.

Bill Fenton Paces City High To 43-23 Win Over Anamosa

By LELAND OLSON

Starting out very slowly, City high's cagers finally caught fire in the third period and coasted to a 43-23 win over an out-classed Anamosa team here Friday night.

In the third quarter the Little Hawks scored 16 points, which matched their entire output of the first half.

Bill Fenton, who has had lot of trouble in acustoming his eye to the hoops after being the spark plug of the football team, snapped out of his slump. He racked up 14 points to lead the scoring parade.

St. Patrick's won its fifth game in seven outings, Friday night, downing Burlington Catholic, 57-49, in a high scoring basketball game at the Shamrock gym.

The two high school fives started almost even until midway in the third quarter when the Shamrocks began to make a fast break click. That spurt put them ahead at the end of the third quarter, 40-36.

The fourth quarter was all St. Pat's as the Shamrock defense tightened for the first time during the game.

In the last quarter the Shamrocks were able to garner only three field goals compared to a total of 18 for the first three quarters.

At the same time the Shamrocks were connecting for five buckets.

The Shamrocks were slow in getting started, trailing 6-0 after two minutes of play. However, by the end of the first quarter St. Pat's trailed by only four points, 11-7. St. Pat's moved ahead at half-time, 26-25.

Shamrock Center Jerry Cunningham took individual scoring honors in the game with 23 points. Earl Cooney, flashy St. Pat's guard, scored 16.

only field goal the visitors could muster. They could only get 11 shots at the basket.

The Little Hawks had plenty of trouble in finding the range of the hoops themselves. With less than two minutes remaining in the first quarter, Anamosa held a momentary 6-5 lead. A couple of drive-in shots by Fenton gave City high 9-6 lead at the quarter.

While holding the Blue Raiders to a pair of free throws in the second period, City high gathered three fielders plus a charity toss to set the score at 16-8 by half-time.

Lead, 32-13
In City high's big third quarter, Fenton, Gene Bravner, Jerry White and Bob Fry contributed to the scoring column from the field. Anamosa's Fred Kateson garnered a couple of baskets. This made the score, 32-13, going into the final quarter.

Coach Howard Moffitt substituted freely in the fourth quarter and ordered his men to stall out the

Stanford, Michigan Put on Army Card

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army Friday announced a 1950 football schedule which includes games with Stanford and Michigan. The election of End Dan Foldberg as captain of the team also was disclosed.

The Cadets, ranked fourth in the final Associated Press poll for 1949 and unbeaten in their last 20 contests, will visit the west coast for football for the second time in 60 years when they clash with Stanford at Palo Alto, Nov. 18.

The game may turn out to be one of the classics of the 1960 season. Stanford's young eleven finished this year with a 6-4-1 record. Army, of course, won all of its nine tilts.

On their last trip to the Pacific coast in 1929, the Cadets also played Stanford, losing 41-13 to the Indians in a post-season game.

Michigan will tangle with Army in New York's "game of the year" at the Yankee stadium, Oct. 14. The Cadets whipped Michigan, 11-7 at Ann Arbor this year.

Besides Stanford, Army has added two newcomers, to its schedule, Colgate and New Mexico.

The Army-Navy game will be played at Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, Dec. 2.

Paving Decision May Involve City in 35 Lawsuits: Bartley

A recent city council decision may open the door to as many as 35 lawsuits against the city, according to City Atty. William H. Bartley.

The council's decision Thursday night to refuse any compromise on objections to special paving assessments means any protesting Iowa City property owner will need to carry his case into district court for decision.

The objections were filed after the city in October levied assessments to help pay for paving improvements in sections of several local streets.

In their protest petitions, property owners claim the levies were in violation of the code of Iowa which says that property owners may not be assessed an amount exceeding 25 percent of the property's value.

Monday night the streets and alleys committee conferred with attorneys representing the objectors in an attempt to iron out the difficulties involved.

Then followed a special meeting of the committee, which includes Charles T. Smith, chairman; James Callahan and Frank Fryauf. This group studied the problem thoroughly and presented the following recommendation to the council:

"In considering the matter, the committee felt that the assessments had been arrived at by a formula that applied to all property owners within the assessment district, and that informal compromise of some assessments would be unfair to other objectors, and also to those owners who did not object.

"With the realization that many objectors may appeal to district court, it is the carefully considered recommendation of your committee that the council make no compromise of assessments."

The recommendation was approved unanimously by council vote.

After pointing out that "no one person could handle 35 lawsuits and do a good job," Bartley was authorized by the council to hire outside legal help to defend the lawsuits if necessary.

The recent issue logically led to consideration of future paving and how the costs of such improvements might be borne.

Bartley explained that "paving costs have risen sharply but the laws relating to paving have not kept pace with changing conditions."

"Everyone recognizes that as Iowa City grows it will be necessary and desirable to pave more streets," the city attorney continued. "No one would seriously suggest that all future paving requests should be rejected."

In a letter to the council, Bartley outlined two possible solutions to future paving costs:

Engineering Students Finish Check Test Of SUI Boiler Plant

SUI junior engineering students Thursday completed a non-stop 24-hour check test on the boiler plant at the SUI power plant. Boiler plant efficiencies will be determined from the data obtained.

Ali Cambel, instructor in mechanical engineering, said about 60 students took part in the test which got underway at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The students taking part were all enrolled in a power laboratory course.

Cambel said the students conducted the test in three-hour shifts - six or more men to a shift. Each student had an assigned station and was responsible for all data from his station.

The students, he said, obtained data on water feed into the boilers, coal consumption, control panel flue gas analysis and miscellaneous reports.

The plant's efficiencies will be computed during regular classroom computation periods and will be completed in two or three weeks.

Purpose of the 24-hour test, which is conducted every semester by power laboratory students, is to acquaint students with correct power plant testing procedures.

Cambel explained that most commercial power plants contract an outside firm for a similar check test every three or four months. The check test is recommended by the American Society for Mechanical Engineers.

Rush Begins Mail Clerks Advise Early Sending

The annual Christmas rush at the Iowa City post office was off to a good start Friday according to the clerks who have to weigh all the packages.

With three weeks left before Christmas, the clerks advise early mailing to insure delivery.

All packages going out of Iowa City should be mailed by Dec. 10. Local parcel post can wait until Dec. 15.

Christmas cards should be mailed a week before the holiday and must carry a two-cent stamp this year. Many people are buying three-cent stamps to get better service on their cards, the clerks said.

Any packages not mailed before Dec. 10 should be sent air parcel post and special delivery to arrive in time for Christmas, they said.

Mrs. Albert J. Vevera, 1006 N. Dodge street, told police Friday a small white fence was stolen from in front of her home sometime Thursday night.

The third theft, a red lantern stolen Thursday from a barricade in the business district, was reported by the Heinze Electric company of Cedar Rapids. The Heinze company is installing the new lighting in Iowa City.

Intercollegiate Speech Session Continues in Old Capitol Today

Tongues wagged feverishly Friday on the SUI campus as 165 speakers participated in the opening programs of the intercollegiate speech conference on world problems.

The two-day conference will wind up this afternoon at 3:15 p.m. when winners in five groups of speaking will be announced. The fifth post-war conference, sponsored by the SUI speech department, includes debate, discussion, public, after-dinner and extempore speaking.

Ninety-seven speech students from 18 colleges and universities and 68 SUI students are participating in the program, according to speech instructor Merrill Baker, conference director.

Prof. C. Addison Hickman of the college of commerce opened the conference Friday speaking on the instructions and analysis of the problem of nationalization of basic industries.

Four after-dinner speakers survived the preliminary round Friday. They are David Berlo, Missouri; William Paul, Oklahoma; Bert Tollefson, South Dakota, and Kenny Smith, Wichita.

Prof. E.C. Mabie, director of the speech department, will give the principal speech at a noon luncheon today in the Hotel Jefferson. After-dinner speaking finals will take place at the luncheon.

Today's program: 8:20 a.m. Discussion

Medical Conference Ends Here Friday

The SUI college of medicine five-day conference in otolaryngology closed Friday with discussions by six visiting ear, nose and throat specialists.

Otolaryngologists from all over the country had participated in the week-long conference. Thirty-five physicians attended the meetings, presented by the staff of the SUI department of otolaryngology, headed by Dr. D.M. Lierle.

Members of the department of otolaryngology who participated in the conference were Lierle, Drs. W.C. Huffman, C.M. Kos, T.R. Udegaff and S.N. Reger and Prof. Jacqueline Keaster.

Hills Couple Files New Trial Motion

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Frantz, Hills, filed a motion for a new trial in Johnson county district court Friday in objection to a $7,000 judgment against them Nov. 4.

Robert C. Marshall, former SUI student now living in Burlington, was awarded the judgment in a suit against the couple, resulting from the auto-accident death of Marshall's six-year-old son Oct. 22.

Marshall had claimed a car driven by Mrs. Frantz struck and killed the boy as he crossed a Burlington street intersection.

The Franzes claimed in their motion, that trial evidence failed to prove the negligence charged by Marshall.
