Larson's No-Free-Game Edict Hits Local Pinball Machines

Police Chief E. J. Ruppert said Friday night that establishments in the Iowa City business district had been notified that free games could no longer legally be given on pinball machines.

Ruppert said his orders had come from Johnson County Atty. Jack C. White, who had been notified of the ruling by Atty. Gen. Robert Larson.

White was unavailable for comment, but Ruppert said all establishments having the machines will be given a "reasonable amount of time" to have them changed mechanically so free games will not be given.

Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy said Friday that county establishments had not been notified of the pinball machine ruling, but that they would receive orders in the near future.

An Iowa City owner and distributor of pinball machines, who declined the use of his name, said Friday that one of his employees had been changing machines in the city during the day.

J.F. (Doug) Fairbanks, owner of the D and L restaurant, said he understood that machines in his establishment had been changed Friday morning so free games could not be won.

Leonard Myers, owner of the Depot Lunch, 114 Wright street, said he had unplugged the machines in his establishment.

"As far as I'm concerned, they'll stay down until everything is settled legally," Myers said. "I want to stay within the boundaries of the law," he said, "and comply and cooperate with officials."

A number of Iowa City establishments Friday night reported their pinball machines had been fixed so free games could not be won, and many others said they had disconnected machines until the mechanical changes could be made in compliance with Larson's ruling.

Larson's crackdown on pinball machine operators here is part of the state-wide follow-up of a similar step in Polk county last month, and of a general anti-gambling crusade inaugurated in September.

Local and county officials throughout the state have been ordered by Larson to stop illegal liquor sales and gambling. Several persons in Johnson county already have been fined for illegal possession of liquor and gambling devices.

Chiang to Organize Chinese Guerrillas

TAIPEH, FORMOSA (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek stayed behind on the mainland Friday organizing guerrilla warfare while the Nationalist government and cabinet began functioning in this new capital on the island bastion off China's southeast coast.

The island faces grave economic problems in playing host to the refugee government.

Dispatches from Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Mossa in the former capital of Chengtu and from Hong Kong indicated that all was not yet lost to the Nationalists in Yunnan province of southwest China.

Lewis Gains More Soft Coal Contracts, Hard Coal Holds Out

(From the Wire Services) WASHINGTON (AP) — John L. Lewis said Friday he has signed contracts with additional soft coal companies producing 1,822,100 tons of coal annually.

Lewis is asking anthracite coal operators to raise the pay of 78,000 hard coal miners from $13.50 to $14.45 a day and to double company payments to the union welfare fund, it was revealed at contract negotiations Friday.

Since he began his tactics of seeking contracts with individual companies, Lewis has announced signing agreements with companies producing an annual tonnage of 9,162,900. Approximately 600-million tons of soft coal are produced every year.

Lewis said companies signed are in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Lewis said all the soft coal mines which have signed agreed to "the basic bituminous coal wage agreement" — meaning they agreed to his demand for a $15 daily wage and 35 cent a ton royalty payment for the miners' welfare and retirement fund.

Miners working under the new agreement work a full five-day week, as against the three-day work week for the big holdout companies.

Ralph Taggart, chairman of the hard coal operators' negotiation committee, said the anthracite business already has dropped off materially because of its price and that the three-day work week ordered by Lewis was hurting the industry severely. He said the union had threatened to continue the shortened week until money demands are met.

Hard coal miners now work only seven hours a day and make about $1.93 an hour or $13.50 a day. Their new demands are for a 95-cent to $1 an hour increase and doubling of the welfare fund from 20 cents to 40 cents a ton.

All World Watches Australian Election

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (SATURDAY) — Australia's 5-million voters went to the polls today with world wide attention focused on their choice between British-type socialism and an opposition pledged to free enterprise.

Upward of 95 percent of the nation's voters were expected to cast ballots in Australia's most publicized election. The eight-year-old labor government is pitting its future against a combined opposition of the Liberal and Country parties.

Season's First Snow Brings Out Tots, Sleds

IT'S TOUGH SLEDDING right now for Randy Ray (left) and David Minnis, but if the light snows that started Friday continues there will soon be plenty of ice and snow for sledding, skating . . . and shoveling. Friday was the first real evidence of winter in Iowa City. Most motorists, students and shoppers disliked the cold and snow, but Randy, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ray, 115 Quonset park, and David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Minnis, 118 Quonset park, enjoyed the brief blizzard.

Snow Changes Dreams to Shivers

Iowa City's songsters can cease their vocal dreams — a "White Christmas" here is practically assured.

A thin blanket of snow covered the ground Friday and freezing temperatures forecast for at least another five days practically insures its stay. The snow was light but driving winds made it reach mild blizzard proportions.

Iowa City traffic officials warned motorists to take extreme caution in driving as many of the streets here are slippery with packed snow. Hills are especially dangerous and local police fear a number of accidents unless slow driving is maintained.

Visibility Friday was fair on the highways but the swirling snow created a new hazard for motorists. Highway patrolmen re-echoed local officers' pleas for caution.

Pedestrians and class-bound SUI students were finding the footing slippery on sidewalks and steps. While the snow was creating new cleaning problems for housewives here, school children were experimenting with the season's first snowballs.

Two businesses gained impetus from the weather change as the overshoe and hot chocolate trade zoomed.

More snow is forecast for Iowa City today and a continuation of the icy temperatures is in prospect. Friday's low was 8 degrees and the high struggled to a meager 28. Southeast winds of 18 miles an hour blew throughout the day.

Board Denies Parole For Former General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers Friday was refused his application for parole from Lorton, (Va.) reformatory.

The wartime head of purchasing for the airforce is serving a 20-month to five-year sentence for inducing a former business associate to lie to a senate investigating committee. The committee was digging into Meyer's private business ventures at the time he was buying for the airforce.

The District of Columbia parole board announced it had denied Meyers' parole petition but gave no reason.

It said the denial was "without prejudice to his right to re-submit his application after Nov. 1, 1950."

Local Land Owners Object to Rezoning On E. Court Street

A petition signed by 32 Iowa Citizens was filed at city hall Friday protesting a proposal to change certain property in the 1900 block on East Court street from class A residential district to class B district.

The protest came from property owners in the East Court street neighborhood who object to any lessening of building restrictions which might result from the change.

Henry Hamilton, Cedar Rapids, Nov. 22 petitioned the local city council to rezone the district so he could build an apartment house there. Hamilton's request was referred to the zoning and planning commission at that time.

Directed to the mayor, council and zoning and planning commission, Friday's petition listed five reasons why rezoning the property would be inadvisable:

1. They (property owners) purchased their property knowing it was in a class A area and feeling they would be protected by restrictions imposed by the zoning ordinance.
2. Spot rezoning is bad rezoning and tends to depreciate property values.
3. Increased traffic would cause serious traffic problems in and near the local high school.
4. The garbage problem in a residential district of this type would be seriously increased.
5. The property owners feel entitled to protection of their property rights, and granting the rezoning request would be an invasion of these property rights.

City Clerk George J. Dohrer said the matter would come before the local council at their Monday night meeting.

AIRLINES PIRACY

LONDON (AP) — Four passengers on a Romanian commercial plane Friday killed the plane's soldier escort and forced the pilot to land at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, the Tanjug news agency said. The plane carried 19 passengers, five crewmen and the soldier.

T(oo) L(ate), C(an)on — We Know!

Paging Steve Canyon. It seems that Canyon, a comic strip hero, has been puzzled these past weeks by a tiresome cryptic reference to "T. L. C." Steve should get in touch with one of the SUI's student nurses, who know "T. L. C." as a standard prescription for patients, though it's not in any of the medical dictionaries. It's meaning? Why, "tender, loving care," of course.

UN Places Jerusalem Under International Rule

NEW YORK (AP) — The UN assembly voted decisively Friday night to put Jerusalem under supreme international rule of the United Nations.

Israel and Hashemite Jordan, with armed forces actually in possession of the city in separate sectors, both opposed the plan and said they would fight against it.

The vote on the whole resolution was 38 to 14, with 7 abstentions. This was well above the two-thirds margin required for approval. Loud cheers greeted the vote at 7:15 p.m. (Iowa time).

The United States and Britain took a leading by this vote. Both pointed out to the assembly that the U.N. has no police force to carry out the decision and it might eventually cost far more than the $40-million annually required to run the U.N. itself.

The Soviet Union was on the winning side of a vote for one of the rare times in the U.N. history. But U.N. observers pointed out that this did not mean a Soviet victory over the west in a head-on collision. They said the decision resulted mainly from a combination of Latin American and Arab votes.

Latin American countries are strongly Catholic, and Pope Pius XII appealed for internationalization of Jerusalem to protect the holy places.

After the vote, Moshe Sharett, Israeli foreign minister, issued this statement: "This is a dark day for the United Nations. It has fallen victim to incredible light-mindedness. It has no way of implementing its decision. Those who sponsored the resolution have charged themselves with grave responsibility for the moral authority of the U.N."

In the closing debate, Sharett gave the assembly a report quoting King Abdullah of Hashemite Jordan as saying Jerusalem would be internationalized only over the king's dead body.

A Swedish-Netherlands resolution for progressive demilitarization of Jerusalem and internationalization of only the holy places was not acted on. The assembly adjourned at 7:17 p.m. until today. It still must approve the annual U.N. budget before final adjournment, expected some time after tomorrow noon.

Official's Husband Ranks As 'Visitor'

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK (AP) — Danish protocol officers said Friday they finally had settled the difficult protocol problems involving the husband of Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, U.S. ambassador to the Danish royal court.

She will be the fifth ranking envoy in Copenhagen, but her husband, John, will be only "a distinguished foreign visitor."

Mrs. Anderson, America's first woman ambassador, and her husband sailed Friday for Denmark and took along two rooms of furniture from the family's Red Wing, Minn., farm "to remind us of home."

Wife Declares Plans to Seek Congress Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prison gates closed behind Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) Friday night as he began to serve his six to 18 months sentence for cheating the government by padding his congressional payroll.

The New Jersey legislator entered the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn., after a train and automobile trip from Washington. He was sentenced here Friday forenoon.

Thomas' last word to newsmen before donning prison garb centered on his wife's announcement earlier that she would seek his seat in congress.

Asked what he thought of his wife's chances, Thomas told reporters: "I think she'll win."

Even as Thomas was led away from the federal courtroom this morning, Mrs. Thomas announced her candidacy and said she would carry on the "struggle against subversive influences" which he conducted as chairman of the house un-American activities committee during the Republican-controlled 80th congress. "As his wife," she said, "I can do no less."

In addition to his prison sentence, Thomas was ordered to pay a $10,000 fine.

Thomas announced he will resign his house seat, but will remain a congressman for the first three and a half weeks he is in prison. This will entitle him to draw upwards of $1,000 more pay. He made his resignation effective next Jan. 5.

The sentencing of the bald 54-year-old lawmaker, who had padded the government payroll with non-working employees and then collected more than $8,000 for himself, was brief and to the point. The whole trial took only six minutes.

William H. Collins, Thomas' lawyer, talked only a minute. He referred to Thomas' serious stomach ailment, saying that Thomas "is broken in body and in spirit."

Collins asked for probation on the grounds that his client already has suffered enough.

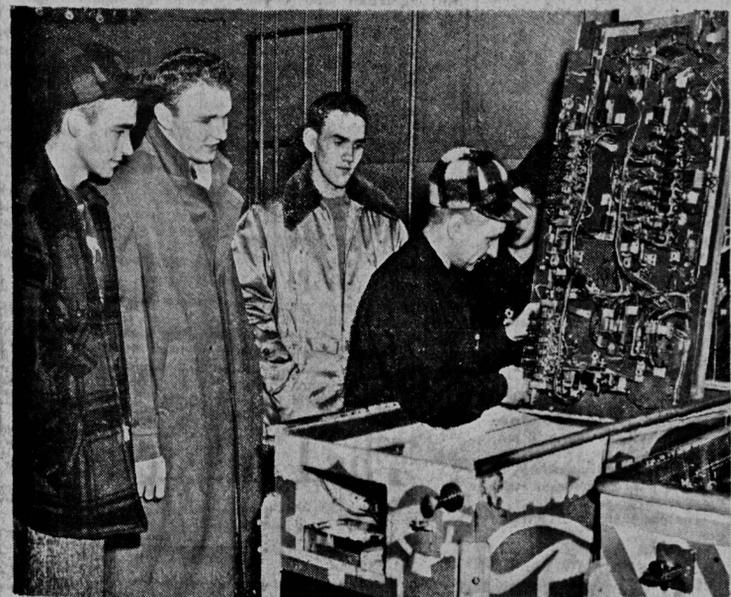

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff said he knew Thomas had a good record in World War I.

"There is no doubt he did much good work as head of the un-American activities committee," Holtzoff added.

But, the judge continued, as chairman of so important a committee Thomas "had a duty to set an example of upright living." Under the terms of the sentence, Thomas will not be eligible for parole until he has served at least six months.

He also must satisfy the government amount of the $10,000 fine before he is released, although if he pleads poverty and takes the pauper's oath, he could serve an additional 30 days in place of the fine.

Machine 'Tilted,' No More Free Games

THE PINBALL MACHINE CRACKDOWN received the swift attention of most Iowa City establishments Friday. Machines all over town were adjusted to comply with Atty. Gen. Robert Larson's ban on "free play" machines. No pinball machines will give free games. The pinball crackdown is part of Larson's statewide crackdown on gambling and illegal liquor sales.

Medical Dean's Estate Valued at $114,566.12

Dr. Mayo H. Soley, late dean of the SUI college of medicine, left an estate of $114,566.12, according to an inventory recently filed with the Johnson county clerk of court.

The will of Dean Soley, who committed suicide here last June 21, provided that most of his estate be set up in trusts for the widow, Karolina Jump Soley, and three children, ages 6, 4, and 1 1/2 years.

A.O. Luff, Iowa City, is attorney for the estate here and Mrs. Soley was appointed executrix. According to a court order last July, Mrs. Soley receives $500 monthly widow's allowance for the support of herself and the children, the sum to be paid during the administration of the estate, not over 12 months.

At that time, Mrs. Soley was also awarded Dr. Soley's earnings during the 90 days before his death, a 1937 Packard coupe and household and personal property.

Listed among items in the inventory of the estate were: About $85,000 listed for Dr. Soley as a beneficiary under the will of the late Charles A. Mayo, pertaining to Dr. Soley's one-sixth share in annual income from a $380,000 trust and one-third share in the remainder on the death of Grace E.M. Soley, now 71.

Half the value of a $21,000 home in Iowa City.

A final salary check from the SUI medical service plan, amounting to $12,750 after withholding tax deduction.

Half a joint savings account of $1,761.10 in the Bank of California, $1,075 payable to the estate by the Provident Mutual Life Insurance company.

Final salary checks for June and July, 1948, totaling $2,142.80 after taxes.

Half a joint checking account of $235 in the First National Bank in Iowa City. The dean's share of household goods and value of professional equipment and library were estimated at $2,100. Debts were put at $2,100.

An Absurd Conclusion —

People who live dangerously had a big chunk of happiness taken from them Friday when Atty. Gen. Robert Larson ordered a "no-free-play" ban on pinball machines.

The pleasure of pitting man against machine is apparently gone forever. No longer will a person be able to test his skill against the intricacies of the pinball machine.

Yet if the machines are robbed on the "free play" bait, they will probably wither and die from disuse. The only incentive for playing a machine came with the thrilling challenge of "being smarter than the machine."

Now, no such incentive remains. If the attorney general's crackdown on gambling is carried to its absurd conclusion, all types of things will be judged illegal.

Isn't there an element of chance involved when a person goes to a movie? He puts out half a dollar and runs the risk of seeing a lousy movie.

When a person slips a nickel into a parking meter he takes a chance. Sometimes the meters aren't in proper working order and the person risks getting a ticket because the meter doesn't register his payment of the parking fee.

When Larson launched his anti-gambling crusade several months ago it was fairly clear what he was trying to do. He intended to carry out his duties as attorney general in a conscientious fashion, which meant stamping out liquor, vice, the bar sales and slot machine play.

But he failed to discern an issue of morals in the play of pinball machines where no cash prizes are offered. The only reward is additional time on the machine at no additional cost.

Sure, there's chance involved. Sure, chance and gambling are often synonymous. This latest move, however, carries the drive into the area of the ridiculous.

Harry Truman, elected chief executive of our country, apparently holds a different view toward gambling.

When the President stepped from his plane at Key West, Fla., last week, he approached a high ranking navy officer and asked, "Tell me what the temperature is right this minute. It's 81, isn't it?" Nodding toward his daughter, Margaret, he continued, "She owes me one dollar if it's 80 or over." Mr. Truman lost the bet.

About the same time the President bet two of his aides that he could lose more weight than they could. The wager was set at a dollar a pound. Results of that bet are still unknown.

The President also indulged in a little horse-shoe pitching during his holiday from Washington. He and Rear Adm. Robert L. Dennison beat Clark Clifford and Dr. John R. Steelman, 21-9. Certainly there was an element of chance involved in that game.

It may soon be unlawful for Truman to say "I bet it'll rain tomorrow."

The statement will have to be re-worded to, "According to a scientific application of the law of probability, there is likelihood tomorrow of some precipitation which may take the form of rain or snow."

An Echo From the Past —

Resentment — slow and gradual until recently but now gathering momentum — against the deficit spending policy of both the New Deal and the Fair Deal may prove to be the downfall of the Democrats' 20-year rule.

An old dog — Sen. Harry Byrd (D-Va) — tried some new tricks Thursday when he urged the President to slash $2-billion off the amount of last year's budget and make it do for the coming fiscal year.

Last year's budget was in the neighborhood of $32-billion, which is about $5.5-billion less than the expected budget for the coming fiscal year.

Byrd's proposal to make the next budget figure $36-billion is an echo of a past performance. Byrd should be remembered as the southern senator who headed a committee in the days of FDR to slash government spending — particularly FDR's deficit spending policy.

Byrd also should be remembered as one who moaned when the New Deal ordered shortage and grain destroyed to stop a surplus the New Deal termed unhealthy in a nation where economic ill arose from over-production.

Byrd also should be remembered as a States Rights whose moans about the Fair Deal led off many a southern politician to support South Carolina's J. Strom Thurmond as a States Rights candidate for president in 1948.

When Byrd's machine came up for re-election this fall, his political opponents — and there were many — tired unsuccessfully to unseat it. Byrd's victory against his foes was lauded as a temporary triumph for the still wandering States Righters.

Although many of the States Righters have returned to the flock, attracted by President Truman's forget-and-forgive attitude, recent murmurings make it none too sure the States Righters are done with their attempts to split the Democrats in order to toss out the civil rights program.

Ex-State Secretary Jimmy Byrnes was a recent example. Byrnes seemed to favor forming a new party of some of the Republicans who don't like civil rights along with the wanderers who hilted because of civil rights.

This split — if it is forthcoming — could well mean the kind of a division that split the Republicans into losing the 1948 battle for a GOP president.

Truman carried the nation because of two reasons in 1948. Henry Wallace polled less than was expected after his vigorous campaign, and the Republicans were split over a one-time loser who was sure he would win.

Watch the south to see if it can gather more dissenters from the policy of deficit spending. This attack is another chink the Democrats will have to close if they are to remain winners.

This Modern Age —

The march of progress took another stride when television was perfected to its present point. However, the march hasn't been without its stumbles.

In London, England last week a man was convicted of beating his father-in-law to death with the butt end of a television aerial.

Everyone Tries to Get Into the Act

Would Be New Political Situation if He Won —

Insiders Predict Truman Will Run in 1952

By Central Press

WASHINGTON — Regardless of how many people might be surprised, including perhaps President Truman himself at this stage, the close associates of the chief executive are growing increasingly frank about saying that they fully expect to see Harry Truman as the Democratic standard bearer again.

Whether Truman would be considered as running for a third term probably depends on your political leanings, since he would have served only one full term pursuant to his own personal triumph about a year ago, and the unfinished portion of Franklin D. Roosevelt's fourth.

There is no clear-cut historical precedent as to whether a vice-president who succeeds to the presidency is a third-termer if he runs for a second full hitch at the White House. If Theodore Roosevelt had succeeded as the Progressive candidate in 1912 he would have done so.

Calvin Coolidge adroitly sidestepped a brewing controversy over the point when he voiced his enigmatic "I do not choose to run." Many Coolidge followers think that the word "choose" had hidden implications, and to this day blame a turning point in history on "the indecent haste" of a hen-aggressive Herbert Hoover's supporters to count Coolidge out.

Even if the proposed amendment to the constitution barring a third term for any president eventually musters the support of the required 36 states — which seems unlikely now since only 21 have O.K.'ed it so far — it cannot apply to Truman.

THE GOP CONGRESS which in March, 1947, voted the necessary two-thirds majorities in both houses to send the proposition to the state legislatures, gallantly limned whoever might be occupying the White House when it would be finally adopted. Unless it passes before March, 1954, it lies automatically.

Truman's recent statements are not much help in revealing his intentions, if indeed he actually has made up his mind yet. Last June he quipped to a friend who suggested that he might be "drafted" to run again in 1952, "Are you crazy?"

However, last summer he made a political speech to some visiting Girl Scouts in which he promised to do a favor for them that would require him to be an occupant of the White House beyond 1952. He quickly dodged any attempt to pin him down to whether it was a revealing slip of the tongue or an off-hand remark with no significance.

In a good-natured exchange with Al Jolson, the singer, Truman recently warned the actor not to retire lest "it might kill you." Al quickly asked if the same did not apply to Truman in the job of president, and it seemed to be a wistful chief executive who suggested that "people" might not "want" him again, and he "might be looking for a job" in 1952.

SINCE MOST of the current prognosticators of another candidacy for Truman are not among the political but instead are mainly the so-called career men in the executive offices encourage, the forecast has had more than ordinary weight.

Many are holdovers from the Roosevelt administrations, and they like to compare the two men. Truman still is learning his job and is an apt pupil, they report. Because he is not such an individual star as Roosevelt, they find him a better "team player."

IN AT LEAST one class on this campus there's never a dull moment. There are occasionally times when a few of the more innocent or timid drop their eyes and refuse to join the laughter brought out by the frequently off-color remarks or jokes of the instructor.

But it's my guess that there's not another 50-minute period in any of their schedules that passes more quickly.

THE INSTRUCTOR has the knack of having the whole class on the verge of revolt frequently because of his seemingly arbitrary assertions, and a few moments later having them laughing so loudly at his antics and quips that he has to wait before continuing his lecture.

His remarks or comments are unpredictable and the few attempts so far by class members to match his wit have proved futile. He simply keeps adding the last word.

His most unexpected performance came Thursday after he had started a list of grades circulating among the members of the class. Before releasing the list he had emphasized that he wanted it to move rapidly — that the students weren't to make detailed studies of everybody's grade.

I HEARD A young girl telling friends the other day that she dreaded facing her family Christmas after receiving two delinquent notices.

She shouldn't feel too badly about it, though, because she can attribute the low grades to a number of things.

She can, for instance, tell her folks that her instructors are inferior, or that she was too busy studying other courses or that the course was just too difficult.

But I heard the other day of a Currier coed who will probably have a hard time convincing Mom and Dad that she has any excuse for a delinquent slip she received.

This girl will have to tell her folks she got a delinquent in one of her physical education courses, and they will probably ask:

"Which phys. ed. course was it?" "Imagine their confusion when the girl answers: "The one that's called 'Relaxation.'"

NEXT STOP NEW YORK BALTIMORE (AP) — Baseball's minor league brethren headed home Friday with St. Petersburg, Fla. their official 1950 convention site. The major moguls turned toward New York and another hectic week.

Businessman Urges Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert B. Patrick, vice-president of the Bankers Life company, Des Moines, Friday urged an immediate hike in federal taxes to pay for any new public programs so the taxpayers can judge if they are worth their cost.

The insurance company executive told a joint congressional economic subcommittee the government should not finance costly plans, like those now in effect for agriculture and housing, unless they are essential to national economic stability.

He also called for stable federal budgets and tax rates that would encourage private investors.

Patrick testified following the appearance by Oliver M. Whipple, financial vice-president of the Mutual Life insurance company, of New York. Whipple said high costs and the element of risk made it "difficult if not impossible" for insurance companies or other big investment institutions to supply the capital needed for small or new businesses.

He said this need might be met by "some type of organization through which the risks involved may be pooled or shared by many investors."

Question of Reich Army Poses Big Allied Problem

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR. AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Recent discussion of the possibility of eventual German rearmament to aid in the defense of western Europe has created a furor in Germany itself.

The Bonn government has taken cognizance by saying that it would be willing — if pressed by the allies, of course — to form an army and place it under a general international command such as envisioned under the Atlantic pact.

Many German newspapers, on the other hand, are crying that it is merely a plan to use Germans as mercenaries and cannon fodder in case of war with Russia.

Most of the Germans profess, of course, to be opposed to militarism. Dr. Ulrich Noack, who hasn't yet been classified as Nazi or Communist but whose views are not far off the Communist line, is leading a movement of some consequence which advocates unification of an unarmed Germany as a neutral buffer between east and west.

But the right to maintain an army is of course a part of national sovereignty and pride if nothing else. Many Germans are still capable — avidly capable — of playing coy on the subject in the hope of reviving armed strength which they will then gamble on finding a way to use for Germany selfish interests and the advancement of their own power.

The whole discussion is premature, since German rearmament must in any

Deer, Baseball in — 1949's Freak Accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — You may have seen circus animals and trained seals do their stuff.

But — ever hear of a pickpocket automobile, a hitch-hiking deer, or a baseball bat that practiced medicine without a license?

These daffy doings highlight a 1949 parade of freak accidents compiled by the National Safety Council.

The larceny-minded auto went to work on W.T. Taylor in Sacramento, Calif. When Taylor walked too close, the moving car ripped off his coat pocket — wallet and all — and kept on going with the loot. The wallet contained $102.

In Connecticut, Clark Pounell of Unionville was blissfully riding his motorcycle along a country road. Suddenly a deer stepped into the road. Pounell swerved; the deer swerved. An instant later the deer was riding on his handlebars.

The next instant Pounell, deer and motorcycle were sprawled along the roadside. The deer picked himself up, let go a kick that connected with the seat of Pounell's pants and trotted back into the woods.

Bob Akers and his nose spent a busy afternoon at a University of Cincinnati softball game. First a grounder hit and broke Bob's nose. Bob retired in pain to the bench. The youth at the plate slugged the ball so hard his bat broke. A piece of bat sailed against Bob's aching nose. At the hospital, doctors said the second blow had knocked his nose back in shape.

Bridegroom James Inman in Kampsville, Ill., wanted to start married life right. He carried his bride across the threshold, but slipped and broke his ankle.

In Chicago, Warren Oakes' triumph in a gin rummy game was short lived. He played the winning card so vigorously he broke his wrist.

Methodist Student Center To Be Built Next Spring

Methodist students will be looking forward to next spring when ground-breaking ceremonies are being planned for their new student center. The Rev. Robert Sanks, Methodist minister to students, said Friday the official board of the Iowa City Methodist church took action Thursday evening to make this possible. The official board voted in agreement with the Iowa Board of the Wesley foundation, co-sponsor of the project, that bids for the construction should be let with view to beginning work next spring. The new student center will be of a brick and stone construction on the same location as the present building. The old building will be either moved or razed in the spring. The new building will extend east 100 feet and be connected with the Wesley house which faces Market street. It will provide a chapel, office space, a lounge, library, music room and recreation room in addition to an auditorium, dining hall, kitchen, work rooms and an assembly hall with adjoining class rooms, Sanks said. The architect for the new building is Edward F. Jansson, Chicago member of the inter-denominational board of architecture. The center is one of three currently being planned by the state Wesley foundation board. Others are at Iowa State college and Iowa State Teachers college.

Battling Pro Grid Loops Form 13-Team Merger

National League in Tact, Only 3 AAC Clubs Left

By HERB ALTSCHULL
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Professional football's four-year war was settled across a conference table Friday. The All-American conference merged into the National Football league.

Thus ended one of the most costly wars in the history of athletics. Losses to clubowners soared to upwards of two-million dollars in the protracted battle for players and attendance.

The new league is to be called the National-American football league—the NAF. It is to be made up of 13 teams: the complete 10-club NFL and three from the fledgling AAC.

Victory for NFL
Nobody said so at the hastily summoned news conference at which the report was flashed, but the merger unquestionably is a victory for the older NFL, which fought for four years to drive the AAC out of business.

Bert Bell, the chubby, affable Philadelphia main liner, remains at the helm of the new loop as commissioner. He signed for a new 10-year pact at an undisclosed salary. Bell had been commissioner of the NFL.

O.O. Kessing, commissioner of the AAC, resigns at the close of the current season. He tendered his resignation some weeks ago. If there is one man responsible for the merger, it is Horace Stoneham, ruddy-faced owner of the New York baseball Giants.

Stoneham is owner of the Polo Grounds, where two New York pro teams played in 1949 and lost a considerable amount of money. Bell and J. Arthur Friedlund, representing the AAC, told newsmen that Stoneham started the merger move by summoning Bell and Friedlund to New York last Friday.

Talked in New York
They talked for a while there and then came to Philadelphia two days ago. Round-the-clock conferences came to an end shortly after noon Friday and the two men, tired but jubilant, summoned reporters to break the news.

Bell, unshaved but beaming joined with the dapper Friedlund to announce the new league was conceived "not only in the interest of the public but also to assure the permanency of professional football."

These are the 13 teams in the NAF:
From the NFL: Philadelphia, New York Giants, New York Bulldogs, Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Detroit, Green Bay and Los Angeles.

From the AAC: San Francisco 49ers, Cleveland Browns, Baltimore Colts.

The league is to be split into the National and American divisions with the winners of the divisions meeting in a world football championship. Makeup of the divisions has not yet been determined.

The new league comes into being on Dec. 19, the day after the NFL championship game.

Now What Happens?
The complication in the merger is what will happen to the players on the three AAC teams liquidated in the move and to the college players already drafted by clubs in the two circuits for the 1950 season.

The AAC and NFL draft meetings were cancelled.

All of these players will be tossed into a giant pool when the NAF gets together at its first meeting, tentatively arranged for January.

It will take approval of 11 of the 13 teams for any player to be assigned to a new club.

Bell said that the only players who will not be affected by the formation of the new league are the 32 players on each of the rosters of the 13 teams in the new league.

Baskets Ring Player's Cash Registers

AT CURRY COLLEGE IN BOSTON, PLAYING BASKETBALL ENLARGES the players billfolds to an extent of $500 each. Coach Jack Valley (right) said that every member of the Curry college starting lineup gets a full athletic scholarship of $500 to pay all tuition with no jobs or duties except attending regular classes and playing basketball. The players, all former captains of their high school teams in the Boston area are (left to right) Tom Cain, Bill O'Brien, Ken Rycroft, Norman Furbush, and George Brawley.

Giants. The names of the six players were not disclosed.

In addition to the Yankees, the Buffalo Bills, Los Angeles Dons and Chicago Hornets of the AAC are going out of business. The Hornets are to be broken up completely, while the Dons merge with the Los Angeles Rams and the Bills with the Cleveland Browns.

James Breuil, owner of the Buffalo club of the AAC, has acquired what Bell and Friedlund said was "a substantial interest" in the Browns and has exclusive rights of that club to present exhibition games at Buffalo.

The committee, which will report their findings today, consists of Athletic Directors Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin, and Paul Brecher, Iowa, and Lou Keller, assistant athletic director at Minnesota.

"The basic problem, which has been before the conference for at least 26 years," said Fritz Crisler, Michigan athletic director, "is to what extent contact with the boys should be made. Should the boys select the college or should the college select the boys?"

Current Big 10 provisions prevent salesmanship unless contact is made with the athlete on the campus of the school interested in him. This is more stringent than the NCAA "sanity code" which permits off campus contact.

St. Pat's Wins 6th, Tip Dutchmen, 45-28

St. Patrick's racked up its sixth victory of the current campaign by whipping St. Mary's of Muscatine, 45-28, here Friday night. The Irish have lost two games.

The starting Shamrock five played with St. Mary's for three quarters, rolling up an impressive 34-13 count before Father Pasha, Shamrock coach, began substituting freely.

The Irish rolled up a quick 8-0 lead in the first four minutes of the game before the Muscatine crew was able to tally from the free throw lane.

St. Pat's kept the pace up with consistent scoring by the forward wall, composed of Forwards Earl Cooney and Tom Falls and Center Jerry Cunningham.

The Shamrocks led at the end of the first quarter, 14-3, and by half time were ahead, 22-7.

The Irish first stringers looked exceptionally good on defense against the Dutchmen. The Muscatine five made only one basket during the first half — that a long set shot by Forward Jim Pallischek.

Guard Al Streb played a brilliant game defensively for the Shamrocks breaking up many St. Mary's plays. Cooney led all scorers with 12 points.

BAYLOR COACH QUILTS
WACO, TEX. (AP) — Coach Bob Woodruff resigned Friday as Baylor university football coach. He said he could not accept a compromise settlement by the university athletic committee on differences between himself and Athletic Director Ralph R. Wolf.

Villemain Decisions LaMotta
NEW YORK (UP) — Robert Villemain of France apparently clinched a shot at the middleweight title Friday night by winning an upset, unanimous 10-round decision over Champion Jake LaMotta before 9,599 in Madison Square Garden.

The chunky French ex-butcher boy not only proved himself the world's outstanding 160-pound centender by giving Bronx Jake one of the worst beatings of his career; but he also proved the ring officials had been quite wrong on March 25 when they awarded LaMotta a 12-round decision over him in the same Garden ring. Two of the officials were suspended indefinitely because of their outrageous decision.

There was no question about the winner of Friday night's non-title fight as the dark-haired Frenchman rode the "Bronx Bull" from going to gong and kept inside of Jake's hooking attack so that he could use Jake's face like a punching bag.

Villemain gave LaMotta such a thorough beating Friday night that the champion, making his first ring appearance since he wrestled the crown from the late Marcel Cerdan on June 16, looked more like a chump than a champ.

Rapid Robert—a bobbing and weaving bundle of energy for the full three minutes of every round in the sixth round, had him bleeding from the nose and mouth, and had his face reddened and swollen.

It was a popular victory. The fans, who had paid $33,476 to witness the bout, cheered Villemain lustily as he left the ring.

Have You Heard? — SUI Has 2 All-Koreans; One Went to 'Rice Bowl'

By JOHN HOLWAY
The Rice Bowl is still ahead, but have you ever heard of the Rice Bowl in Tokyo, better known as Nile Kinnick stadium? We've got a fellow at SUI who's played there — Dave DeProspero, letterman end for the Hawkeyes, who won the "bowl" bid as a member of the Korean all-stars in 1947.

Don't get excited, Dave is from West Virginia. He was in Korea with the army.

Another SUI man, Jim Winegarner of Des Moines, made the all-Korean team with Dave in 1947, but Jim passed up the bowl trip to get home a little earlier.

Incidentally, the Koreans that beat the Japan all-stars New Years day, 1948, were a crack outfit. Dave was end, and the other end was Glen Davis' brother, Ralph. In the backfield, they had two former all-Americans and Davis' Army understudy, Jim, a former Iowa State center, played guard.

Dave is an Olympic champ, too, believe it or not — in two sports, at that. He won the Korean Olympics as a diver and as a hurdler. Both led to air trips to Tokyo for the all-Pacific Olympics.

The Hawkeye says he really put his heart into athletics. After all, flying to Tokyo was a lot better than standing guard out in Korea. His contact lenses bothered him playing end this fall, Dave says, and he's planning to switch to guard next year, where "you play by feel."

The stands are rapidly filling up. Broad-shouldered I-men rush here and there. The public address system reads an announcement from the athletic department. The opposing players are doing 25 finger-tip push-ups.

And now we're ready for the finals in the all-university mixed doubles ping pong tourney.

No kidding, I dropped over to see the big game Thursday night, and it was a real thriller. Carol Tauber and Dean Norman won it over Juy Hemmye and Ken Parks, but there was plenty of sharp action and big league drama before the end.

Those girls are really nifty, too. When Judy slammed one, she left the floor with both feet. Carol's game was a lot of quick, low slaps close to the net.

The scoring went: 19-21, 22-20, 21-19 and 21-13. That third game was the thriller. Judy and Ken were leading, 18-9, and then Carol and Dean pulled up to 18-17! They went on to win.

The Union is thinking of bringing the men's singles in February out into the River room where they can accommodate more fans and can throw spot lights on the tables.

A mix-up at the cleaners last week-end switched tuxedos on Charlie Darling, 6-foot, 8-inch basketball center, and an SUI faculty member.

It wouldn't have been so bad, but the professor left town on a formal speaking tour without noticing the change.

Charlie went to his dance in a suit, but the professor has not been heard from. He was headed for Richmond, Va., and must have been quite surprised to open his bag the night of the banquet and discover Charlie's tux.

ST. MARY'S DOWNS Ft. Madison, 51-36
(Special to the Daily Iowan)
ST. MARY'S team of Iowa City won its second game of the year Friday night here against Catholic Central, 51-36.

The score was close until the closing minutes when the Ramblers put on a final scoring spurge to win by a comfortable margin. They now possess a season's record of two wins and six defeats. With the count knotted at 7-7 at the end of the first period, the home club forged into a 21-18 lead at half time.

Coach Francis Suplepp's boys charged back in the third quarter to score 18 points — as many as they could collect in the entire first half — to set the score at 36-28. Pushing back Maroon threats in the final quarter, St. Mary's coasted away to the final score of 51-36.

Suplepp started a revamped lineup of Bob Seydel and Bud Lenz at forwards; Leonard Milder moved into the pivot post from his old guard position; and Joe Rocca and Bob Suplepp, guards.

Lenz led the scoring attack with 18 points while Seydel picked up 12.

The Ramblers return home for their next game against St. Mary's of Muscatine, Wednesday night.

Montezuma Five To Test City High
Coach Howard Moffitt's Hawkeyes get their toughest test yet this year tonight when Montezuma invades City high gym.

It will be their final game before swinging into conference competition at Dubuque, Friday night.

Moffitt has concentrated most of the week on some kind of a defense to stop the towering Braves, who have a starting lineup averaging 6-feet, 2-inches.

A near-capacity crowd is expected to be on hand for the game scheduled for 8:15 p.m. The City high sophs tangle with the Montezuma reserves in the preliminary game at 6:45.

Snow Time Means Student Snow Jobs

Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow.

Enough snow will mean more odd-jobs for SUI students looking for part-time work.

Robert Ballantyne, director of the student aid and placement service, said Friday since the snow shoveling season has begun in Iowa City, students looking for part-time work should contact the office in room 111 University hall after each fresh snowfall if they want to work.

He also urged Iowa Citizens who, during the long cold white months ahead, may desire student help for snow shoveling to contact the office.

Students Advised To Claim Mid-Term Delinquent Reports

Several hundred liberal arts students have failed to call at the liberal arts advisory office in room 109 Schaeffer hall to claim mid-semester delinquent reports.

Prof. H.C. Harshbarger, executive-secretary of the liberal arts advisory committee, said Friday delinquent reports had been sent to proctors or other representatives at all organized housing units for distribution, but students living in off-campus housing quarters must inquire in person at the office for delinquent reports, he added.

"Students should come in and pick up their delinquent reports and then take the opportunity to consult with their instructors and advisors as to how they can improve their work in the course or courses in which they are weak," Harshbarger said.

Delinquent reports are distributed at the mid-point of each semester to all students in the college of liberal arts doing D or F work in any courses for which they are registered.

Two Women Killed In Monroe Collision

MONROE (P) — Two women were killed and four other persons were injured in a two-car collision on icy pavement four miles southeast of here Friday.

Dead were Mrs. David Grasman, 59, wife of the pastor of the Christian Reformed church of Newton and Mrs. Adrian Slings, 54, wife of the superintendent of the Dunlap Manufacturing company at Newton.

Injured were Rolland Alley, 5, severe concussion, internal injuries and broken arm, Rolland's mother, Mrs. Viola Alley, 30, possible broken leg and multiple cuts.

C.S. Warder, 58, of Eddyville, Mrs. Alley's father, broken leg and severe cuts and Warder's wife, Effie, 50, broken leg and cuts.

Cadets Consider Cute Colonel Candidates

University Chorus To Present Messiah

Handel's traditional Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah," will be presented by the University chorus and orchestra Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Iowa Union.

Prof. Herald Stark will direct the 220 voice chorus, 53 piece orchestra and nine soloists who will perform the Christmas oratorio.

Soprano soloists will be Marilyn Williams, G, Danville, and Szu-Tsung Gao, G, Shanghai, China; contraltos, Joan McNabb, A3, Seymour, and Dorothy Krebill, A3, Donnellson.

Tenor soloists will be Harry Bannon, G, Iowa City, and Harlan Buss, A4, Cedar Falls; basses, Harry Morrison, A3, Douds, and Fred Nordstrom, C4, Shenandoah.

Trumpet soloist will be John Beer, A4, Bellwood, Ill. "The Messiah," is presented at SUI every three or four years so that each new class can hear it at least once before graduating, Stark said. It was last presented here in 1946.

Greeting Cards Require 2-Cent Postage Stamps

To help the harried postal clerks during the Christmas rush, the federal post office has issued new orders concerning two-cent greeting cards.

Incorrectly addressed cards will not be forwarded beyond a 50 mile radius of the post office unless more postage is guaranteed by the sender.

Many cards are being sent with one and a half-cent stamps instead of the two-cents required. These cards will be destroyed unless they have a return address or are valuable.

Sigma Delta Tau Prom Scheduled for Tonight

The annual pledge prom of Sigma Delta Tau, social sorority, will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight tonight in the River room of the Iowa Union, according to Social Chairman Donna Schulman, A1, Oak Park, Ill.

Other committee chairmen are Leah Cohen and Doris Ban, both A1, Omaha, decorations; Marilyn Wintroub, A1, Omaha, pledge paper, and Betty Ann Dubansky, A1, Des Moines, food.

Council-Manager Petitions to Circulate Here

Petitions calling for a change to the council-manager form of city government here will be circulated in Iowa City, beginning next month, the local Council-Manager association decided Thursday night.

The association, headed by Atty. Clair Hamilton, is composed of Iowa Citizens in favor of adopting the system whereby the city's business is carried out by a trained manager under the advice of a council.

Iowa City now uses the mayor-council plan. The council is the policy-determining body in either case, but with the council-manager form, the administrative duties, such as answering citizens complaints, are handled by a manager trained for that capacity.

Mayor Preston Koser said Friday the success of any city government plan depends much upon the men who run it.

He cited Cedar Rapids as a case where the city is apparently having good results from the commission form. He also mentioned that many cities are satisfied with the mayor-council government plan.

The commission plan calls for a governing body each of which has charge of certain departments in the system. The commission takes the place of the council in the mayor-council form.

Firemen Do Inside Job For Locked-Out Woman

Firemen came to the rescue of Mrs. Fred Bickford, 603 E. Market street, about 9 a.m. Friday when she found herself locked out of her home. She stepped outside about 8:30 a.m. and the door slammed shut, locking her outside, firemen said.

Firemen removed a screen, crawled through a window and unlocked the door from the inside.

In another call, firemen reported no damage caused by a rubbish fire at 1:33 p.m. Friday at 1205 Woolf Avenue court.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A GENTLEMAN with an unwieldy box of flowers under his arm was about to board a Madison Avenue bus recently when Mignon Eberhart, the mystery writer, hailed him. She was sure she recognized him, but for the life of her she couldn't recall his name. He looked equally puzzled, but let the bus go by, and took her hand warmly.

There followed one of those animated, super-cordial exchanges of amenities that always feature the meeting of two people who aren't sure of each other's identity. Finally, the gentleman said, "It's been fine seeing you again, but I really must run." Just as she stepped on the bus, Miss Eberhart remembered, in a frightening flash, one, why his face was familiar, and two, that she had never met him in her life.

It was ex-President Herbert Hoover.

Vin McAllister swears there is a new employe at the Union League Club whose sole duty is to mopey around the reading lounge feeling the members to see if they're still warm.
