Government Warns A-Bomb Could Paralyze Any U.S. City

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government warned American cities Saturday night that a single atomic bomb could knock out any one of them.

It told them that one A-bomb could:

1. Lay waste the heart of a target city, killing or injuring hundreds of thousands of persons. A city should expect at least 40,000 to 50,000 burn casualties alone.
2. Cause casualties "in numbers that would swamp normally available facilities, even in the improbable circumstance that facilities were not appreciably damaged."
3. Set off a conflagration which would add to the chaos caused by the bomb burst itself. Even if no "fire storm" developed, as it did at Hiroshima. Fires riving the damage area could trap casualties inside and prevent rescuers from reaching them.

Dispersion of Facilities

In a report on "medical aspects of atomic weapons," the government recommended planning for "dispersion of (medical) facilities" and "organization of emergency work over wide areas so that outside help can come to the rescue of bombed areas."

The report was prepared by the atomic energy commission and the defense department for the national security resources board. It was sent to the governors of all states and territories and to the District of Columbia commissioners "for guidance in the development of state and local plans for civil defense."

First in Series

The report, subtitled "The Effects of an Atomic Bomb Burst Upon People," is the first in a series "prepared for use in the board's program of coordinating the nation's civil defense planning."

The AEC is at work on other reports dealing with damage caused by the air-blast from an atomic explosion, construction of buildings to resist such effects, and detection and measurement of radioactive contamination.

Minnesota Novelist Cancels SUI Visit

Robert Penn Warren, Pulitzer prize-winning novelist who was to be at SUI this week, had to cancel his visit here, it was announced Saturday.

Warren was to confer with creative writing students here Monday and give a public lecture on "Writing Fiction" that night at Shaeffer Hall.

Prof. Paul Engle, head of the SUI creative writing program, said the author had to cancel his visit indefinitely, but he may be able to come here later this month.

Warren's book "All the King's Men," won a Pulitzer prize in 1947, and was recently made into a movie which was voted one of the 10 best of 1949. He is director of the creative writing program at the University of Minnesota and has authored many short stories, books and poems.

FARM PRICES LEVEL OFF

AMES (AP) — The price of farm land in Iowa is leveling off and now averages $177 an acre as the result of an average increase of a dollar an acre during 1949.

Dancing Girls

College Students Offer To Take Egyptians

CHICAGO (AP) — Three college students offered Saturday to take over responsibility of 12 Egyptian dancing girls that have got Christopher Janus in dutch with his wife and the Egyptian government.

Janus, a Chicago importer, announced this week that he had inherited one-third of the estate of a rich uncle, T. Z. Aristophorus of Cairo. The inheritance included a plantation which has the 12 "authentic" dancing girls, he said.

His problem, he said, was what to do with the girls. He wanted to bring them to the United States as dancers but said his wife coldly vetoed the idea.

Indignant Denial

The Egyptian embassy Friday issued an indignant denial that Janus and his brother, George, a Washington, D.C., artist, had inherited the beauties along with their share of the estate.

The story, the embassy said, was part of other "recently maliciously inspired stories about Egypt as it implies the existence of slavery in Egypt."

Christopher Janus said he disliked to disagree, but that he's sure he owns the girls.

"Anybody who knows conditions in Egypt knows they very nearly approach slavery," he said. "Actually, it's a feudal state."

Saturday he received a letter from three students who attend Creighton university in Omaha. They identified themselves as: James Welch, a junior, from Logan, Iowa, Thomas E. Brown, a sophomore, from Denison, Iowa, and Albert Charles Heese, a junior, from Waring, Iowa.

Volunteer Assistance

"Realizing your quandary," their letter said, "we eagerly volunteer our assistance in this, your hour of extreme need. Due to our financial situations, however, your cooperation will be necessary for successful termination of the transaction."

"If you will just send the girls to Omaha, you recently acquired responsibilities, namely the 12 dancing girls, will be discharged."

They signed themselves Ali Baba Brown, Ali Can Heese and Chief Sultan Welch.

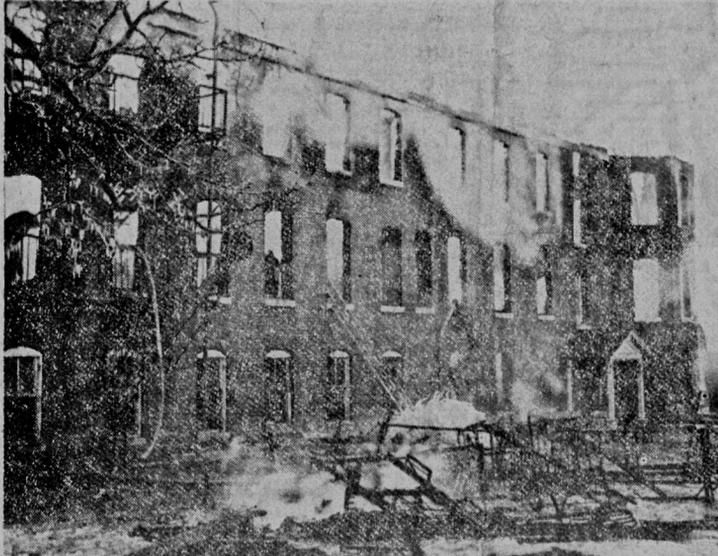

Janus said he couldn't accept their offer.

"It wouldn't be appropriate," he said. "Their mothers might object."

Boys Hand Over Film Carrier to Policemen

Two Iowa City youths Saturday night brought to police headquarters a metal film carrier they said they found last September in the East College street parking lot.

The carrier was loaded with two reels of movie film and carried the Twentieth-Century Fox film company's name, police said. No one had reported it lost, they added.

Floods Hit Midwest and South; Record Frosts Bite California

Soldiers and guardsmen were mobilized Saturday for flood fighting in the midwest, and an unexpected blast of cold heaped fresh damage on the California rains, already have driven more than 4,000 persons from their homes in the midwest and south.

Although the crisis still is to come for several cities, waters are receding in some areas and at least 1,000 persons have returned to their dwellings.

Slow Runoff

A wave of cold, clear air bore down on the midwest from Canada, easing the flood threat momentarily, but forecasters said it would be short-lived. The freeze is expected to slow the runoff of ground waters into swollen rivers and streams.

Eight hundred soldiers were ordered to leave Fort Knox, Ky., Saturday for Vincennes, Ind., where the crest of the rampaging Wabash river is expected the middle of the week. The city's national guard unit was ordered to be ready to assist them. Officials in the city of 18,000 said the situation was serious but not alarming.

Snow Hits Northeast

Meanwhile, a heavy snow storm ended a long spell of summer-January weather in the northeast and a bright sun began melting away an icy mantle that coated much of the southeast.

The California freeze was the worst on record in some spots. Crop damage was heavy, especially in high areas where growers did not anticipate it.

Sen. Taft Demands Discipline of Lewis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) demanded Saturday that President Truman use emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley law against John L. Lewis to force full production of coal.

Lewis' United Mine Workers have been digging coal only three days a week since Dec. 5. Because of dwindling fuel stocks, the interstate commerce commission has ordered railroads to withdraw from passenger traffic some 500 coal-burning locomotives at midnight Saturday.

Taft said Mr. Truman should make use now of Taft-Hartley provisions authorizing 80-day injunctions against strikes imperiling the national health and safety. The Ohioan said the peril point was near.

New A-Bomb Blast In Russia Claimed

LONDON (AP) — Kenneth de Courcy, magazine editor, said Saturday night an atomic explosion occurred in Soviet Siberia at midnight (Siberian time), just as he had predicted last Thursday.

De Courcy telephoned to The Associated Press a statement which he said was copyrighted by "Intelligence Digest," a monthly magazine which he publishes.

He said the explosion was verified by "an advanced method of detection of which the Russians are believed to have no knowledge."

Aldermen May Take Action on Acquisition Of New Parking Lot

City aldermen may take action Monday night leading to the city's acquisition of a third off-street parking lot, Mayor Preston Koser said Saturday.

The city's governing body Dec. 27 asked the mayor to inquire and report to the council on the possibility of buying property in the 300 block on East College street.

The lot under consideration is between the city library and one of the present parking lots. The other free city parking lot is at the corner of Burlington and Gilbert streets.

Ready in Time

Mayor Koser said his report should be ready in time for Monday's meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the council chamber.

Concerning other business pending Monday night, Alderman Charles T. Smith, chairman of the council streets and alleys committee, said he wasn't sure whether his committee would recommend further action on the city's purchase of three dump trucks.

The council Dec. 27 approved the city's purchase of the three trucks for street department use. The city paid three local firms $8,282 for the vehicles after bids were submitted Dec. 12.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of city officials last week followed criticism of the purchase on the basis that five bids submitted earlier were not considered.

The council is currently busy with the task of revising the city code which has stood without revision since 1936. Although special sessions on the code will be held frequently, Mayor Koser said no action is expected on the revision Monday night.

Spangler Appeals For 'Advice, Help'

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — Iowa's Republican national committee called upon all members of his party Saturday for "advice and help" in formulating a re-statement of GOP policy.

Committee member Harrison E. Spangler of Cedar Rapids, who has been under fire from several sources, began his printed "Open Letter to the Republicans of Iowa" by saying:

"We are entering the new year, the campaign year of 1950. We do so in a spirit of good will, tolerance and with malice towards none."

Spangler, a member of a national GOP committee charged with formulating the restatement of policy, has rejected several requests by various Iowa Republican sources that he resign. Some have criticized him for what they called lack of activity.

Copies of Spangler's letter were sent to all Iowa Sunday newspapers, the three major news services, and all Republican organizations in Iowa.

"As a member of the (policy committee) I am filled with a deep sense of responsibility," the letter said. "I need the advice and help of Republicans generally."

"I shall discuss the problem personally with as many as I can. As to others, I earnestly ask that you send me your views and convictions."

Fire Kills 38 Women At Davenport Hospital

Window Bars In Mental Ward Block Rescue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAVENPORT (AP) — Fire which struck while the patients slept roared through the psychiatric ward of one of Iowa's major hospitals early Saturday and snuffed out the lives of at least 38 women.

Coroner C.H. Wildman said that 37 bodies had been recovered. The 38th victim was Miss Margaret Woebler, 92, who was carried out of the ward Saturday morning. She died of shock Saturday night.

Wildman said that hospital records were inaccurate and that there was a possibility that other persons were in the building. He said the intense heat of the fire probably destroyed completely any other bodies that might have been in the building.

'Flaming Hell'

Screams of women patients in St. Elizabeth's mental ward building of the 300-bed Mercy hospital sounded the alarm as they awakened to find themselves trapped in a "flaming hell."

Within two hours only the charred shell of the building remained.

Fire Chief Lester Schick said, "I doubt if we ever find out what caused the fire."

He made the statement in the presence of two deputy state fire marshals after a joint, preliminary investigation of the blaze. The probe which began within a few hours after the fire broke out early Saturday, was expected to continue several days. They said they planned to talk to patients and hospital officials today.

Schick said the fire started in a room on the east side of the building and spread into the hall, up a dumb waiter shaft, and then spread - eagled over the top of the building.

Barred windows prevented firemen from reaching many of the victims and they perished in their rooms.

Led Women to Safety

Policeman Richard Fea, who broke through a window, found a knot of aged women in a flame-surrounded room and led them to an escape ladder.

All of the dead were women. All except Mrs. Anna Neal, 52-year-old nurse's aid, were patients.

Three men escaped, two by leaping from windows.

St. Elizabeth's ward is one of five hospital buildings operated by the Catholic order, Sisters of Mercy, on a two block tract in the northwest sector of this Mississippi river city of 70,000.

Businessmen Ask Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Committee for Economic Development (CED) said Saturday that tax cuts totaling $2,250,000,000 are feasible this year.

The planning organization of businessmen, in a policy statement, took a stand squarely opposite that of President Truman.

Mr. Truman has asked a "moderate" tax boost. On Monday he will present a budget message for the fiscal year starting July 1 which, on the basis of forecasts, will show a deficit not important less than this year's $5.5-billion gap.

CED proposed a billion-dollar cut in excise taxes, a billion-dollar reduction in the double tax on corporation earnings, and possible other adjustments not itemized.

It offered a simultaneous program for federal cost cuts, including veterans' outlays, foreign aid, housing aid and national defense.

By contrast, the President is expected to offer a budget, based on present business activity and present taxes, showing: spending, $42-billion plus; income, $38-billion minus. Result: a deficit not far from $5-billion.

The President says a "moderate" tax boost can start the country on the "quickest and safest way" to a balanced budget.

But CED held that more spending cuts in government are an urgent need, along with a revision of the tax system, to "make it fairer and less restrictive of efficiency and progress."

Stockholders of Student Co-op To Vote on Break-Up Proposal

A proposal to break up the married students co-op store will come up for a vote Wednesday night when stockholders of the grocery store corporation will hold its annual meeting.

In a circular letter distributed to stockholders, the store's board of directors said the volume of business has been steadily declining.

Operated in Red

Mrs. Joan Simpson, wife of track star Jack Simpson, C4, Sac City, manager of the co-op, said the store has been operating in the red for over a year.

(Various reports estimate the store's deficit at about $3,000. The books are now in the hands of accountants and a report will be submitted to the board Tuesday and relayed to the stockholders Wednesday night.)

Mrs. Simpson said she believed business had slumped because of competition from local super markets and the fact that state bonuses allowed veterans to buy cars. Cars, she explained, make shopping in town a simpler matter.

Convenience Advantage

Consequently, co-op prices, she said, now run about the same as town grocery prices. Thus the incentive to shop in the store located near Riverdale village has been removed. Convenience is the only remaining advantage.

The store was originally opened Jan. 27, 1947, by a group of Hawkeye village veterans who believed a store operating on a co-operative basis could buck high prices.

Shares were sold at $25 each to over 230 married students who bought the privilege to shop in the converted limestone skating lodge just east of the lagoon near Riverdale.

A dividend was declared on the first year's profits, but it was then decided to discontinue dividends and let the stockholders profit in the form of lower prices.

Peak number of stockholders was 340 last summer. Mrs. Simpson said there are now 239 stockholders in the corporation.

Reactions Vary

Reactions to the circular letter vary. Those without cars and those who are located near the co-op - residents of Riverdale, Quonset, story downtown courthouse.

Kenneth Smith Fined $300 in Court Here

Kenneth Smith, Lone Tree, pleaded guilty in district court Saturday to illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, and was fined $300 and costs. Judge Harold D. Evans suspended a 90 day jail sentence and paroled Smith on good behavior.

Smith was indicted by the Johnson county grand jury early last fall on charges of illegal possession of gambling devices and intoxicating liquors.

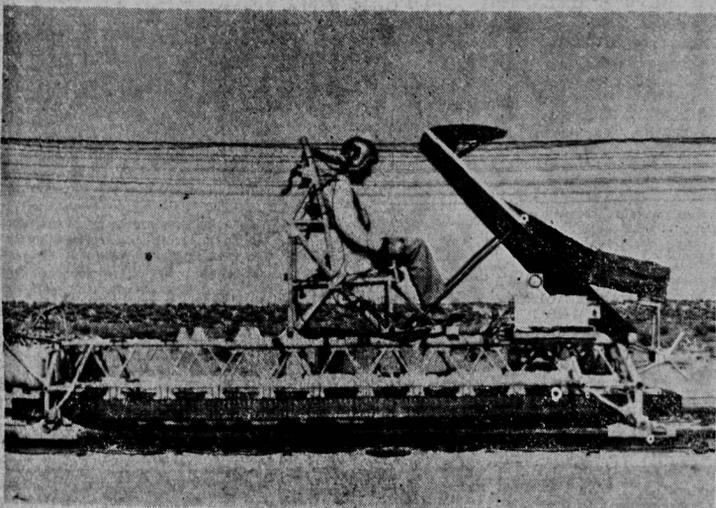

He pleaded guilty to the gambling charge last November when District Judge James P. Gaffney ordered the liquor charge continued to the present court term.

Evans ordered the liquor, seized by officials July 13 with slot machines and punchboards, be distributed to the hospitals as provided by law or destroyed by the sheriff.

Ten Prisoners Escape From Jail in Cincinnati

THIS ROCKET-PROPELLED railway vehicle is being used by the airforce at Hawthorne, Calif., to find out how much deceleration shock the human body can endure. The vehicle attains a speed of 150 m.p.h., then is braked to 75 m.p.h. in one-fifth of a second. Test results will help in developing crash protection equipment for plane crews. The test rider is strapped to a seat with a huge windshield protecting him from air flow.

By GIL PEARLMAN

WHERE WERE you when the year 1949 became the year 1950? I believe it is customary for this change to take place at midnight between Dec. 31 and Jan. 1.

If you sent your answers in individually I suppose I could classify them under different heads such as: a movie, a party, a dance, a club, "my grandmother's" and "I haven't the slightest idea."

WHERE WAS I? Amidst the gaiety and frivolity yours truly was on a rough, unpaved country road - traveling in a car through a heavy, heavy fog.

The fog I am speaking of was strictly a result of climatic conditions. We couldn't see the hood on the car and it was necessary to roll down the windows to see the sides of the road. This way we were able to greet the new year in by living dangerously.

IT ALL happened, in mathematical, equational form, something like this:

In the center of the state of Iowa there is a point, Des Moines

Twenty-eight miles, straight west, there is another point, a little hamlet called Earlham. My problem was to get from the first point to the second point to call for a young lady who, in a moment of madness, agreed to help me celebrate New Year's Eve.

THE SECOND problem, then was to return from the second point to the first point, as quickly as possible, to partake in a party that had been arranged. This of course, eventually, except for the "quickly as possible."

It was the distance between these two points that was the root of all the evil. The road to Earlham is bumpier than the one to success, with more curves than Ava Gardner, with the assistance of the fog, it took over three hours to make the round trip of 56 miles.

ACTUALLY (I know this sounds unbelievable) it was all my fault. The young lady offered to have her brother bring her into Des Moines, but I had to be a big shot a wheel, and exclaimed, "Now, don't do that. I'll come up and get you."

"I'll come up and get you." How do you like that? Big deal, huh? How did little of never-owned-more-than-a-tricycle me think I was going to get up to Earlham and back? Rent a motor scooter?

AFTER discovering that all the motor scooter rental establishments were closed, I begged one of my friends (one with an auto, to take his date and the three of us would make the trip to Earlham, return and enjoy the serenity of a nice quiet party.

The trip proved itself into a journey. A journey that would involve for honors with Byrd's expedition to the Arctic. When we started out, though, the fog wasn't so bad. We could almost see the windshield wipers.

WE WERE going west on highway 6 and my friend stopped three times to ask how we could reach our destination. Three times he got the identical answer, "Earlham. Wal, you go through Adel. See? Three miles past Adel there's a place called the Triangle. See? There, you turn left onto a dirt road. You can't miss it... see?"

How little did they know. Maybe they couldn't miss it, but they underestimated the combined talents of my friend and I for sensing directions. We missed it, not once, but three or four times. I mean, if you're going to miss something, miss it right.

FINALE: The quartet finally reached Des Moines at 12:30 a.m. Did we pull a fast one, though? We all set our watches back 15 minutes so we could properly greet the entrance of the new year.

'Low Pressure' Dave Garroway

Television Star Tries to Be "Interesting" Not Roll Audience in Aisles

CHICAGO (AP) - If you see a guy taking a nap on your television screen, it's probably Dave Garroway.

The "very low - pressure" Garroway is experimenting with a new - style TV show, based on his belief that entertainment slanted toward a few persons in a living room must be different from that aimed at thousands in a movie house or radio studio.

The big, bespectacled radio and television star thinks insult-comedy and slapstick soon "will be as obsolete as a Mack Sennett custard pie."

"Two thousand people gathered together will laugh uproariously at a joke which couldn't drag a chuckle from an individual," he says.

Dave's weekly TV network show, for this reason, bars studio audiences.

Dave isn't a comedian, exactly. His "Garroway at Large" (telecast at 9 p.m. Iowa time) Sundays by NBC, is a melange of quiet anecdotes by Dave, songs and dances by the cast, and trick props which evoke chuckles but no belly laughs.

"I don't try to be funny," Garroway says, "just interesting."

Dave has been interesting ever since he started Chicago with a nightly disc jockey show back in 1946. His use of words was unique - and either fascinating or nauseating, according to his listeners' temperaments. But it got him listened to, even from 12 midnight to 1:30 a.m., when his "11:60 club" was broadcast.

Dave talked chummily to his audience, many of whom acquired glassy stares after being addressed as "Hi, Old Fabulous," or "Hey, Tiger."

His listeners have been "My Ancient," "Old Scrupulous," "My Lissome," "Old Delicate," "Old Doc," "Old Pungent," "Old Translucent," "Old Incandescent," "Old Fantastic," "Old Gossamer," "My Tawny," "My Penevolent," "Old Volcanic," "My Silken," and "Old Frugal," plus others too esoteric - another favorite Garroway word - to mention.

Dave's audience heard records described, then played, and then partly replayed after Dave pointed out snatches he favored.

Of one vocalist, for instance, he said, "listen how she holds that note - and then she forces her hands around its throat and sort of shakes it." Sure enough, she did - if the listeners were sympathetic. The others wanted to re-enact Garroway's description with Dave as stand - in for the note.

Another singer's voice was "rich and moist and has little golden filaments - the girl really puts velvet between your vertebrae doesn't she?"

Between records, Dave dished out advice, comment and purple prose.

This sort of stuff filled the air waves five nights a week, and mushroomed. Housewives who couldn't stay up until "11:60 p.m." got a chance to hear the garrulous one's lush verbiage on a five-day-a-week afternoon broadcast. Then came a network radio show, then a network television show, plus three others, left Garroway scarcely time to catch his breath.

Garroway has toned down much of the preciosity which first gained him attention. On television, he's affable and relaxed, and only occasionally cute.

He still signs off with the benevolent statement, "Peace," which has become a Garroway trademark. Even his Christmas cards had the single word in lower case letters in the middle of a plain white sheet. No name.

Garroway got into radio by accident. After graduation from Washington university in St. Louis in 1935, he got a job selling piston rings. In three months he didn't sell one. So he entered Harvard business school.

By accident, he met a friend who mentioned that NBC had openings for age boys in New York. Dave applied for a job at Radio City. He became a guide, then a guide trainer, and took the network announcer's course in his spare time.

In his first audition, he finished 23rd in a class of 24. But a few days later, he was hired by station KDKA in Pittsburgh. He remained there until 1940, when he joined WMAQ in Chicago.

In 1942 he joined the navy as an ensign and saw service aboard a mine sweeper and in Honolulu. He was discharged a lieutenant, and returned to WMAQ in 1945.

The 36-year-old, six-foot, two-inch Garroway lives alone on Chicago's near north side. His one venture into matrimony, to Adele Garroway of St. Louis, ended in divorce. He has a six-year-old daughter, Paris.

His pet hobby is automobiles, and he owns five of them - a Jaguar, Model T, Lincoln Continental, Swallow, and Rolls-Royce. The Jaguar, which once won the grand prix for the most beautiful sports car in America, is upholstered in natural alligator. The Lincoln Continental, which Dave has stripped down and rebuilt, is done in Harris Tweed. A good mechanic, Garroway does all the work on his vehicles, including the upholstery.

His great ambition is to save enough money to retire by 1955 and live in Hawaii. With an income of between $3,500 and $4,000 a week, and an option on a piece of Hawaiian land, he ought to make it.

Bob Christensen, L2, Atlantic: "Yes, prices are too high. I would like $2 would be about right like the name bands and go to about half of the dances."

Gewna Davenport, A1, Sturgis: "I think attendance would be better in general if tickets could be sold for less but as expensive as big bands are, I do not see how this could be done."

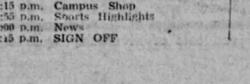

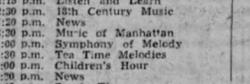

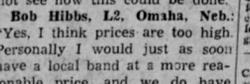

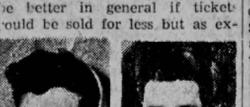

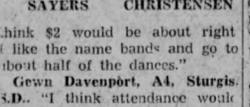

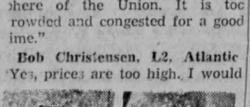

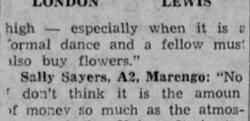

Bob Hibbs, L2, Omaha, Neb.: "Yes, I think prices are too high. Personally I would just as soon have a local band at a more reasonable price, and we do have some good local bands."

VA Employs 3,000 To Get Dividends Paid to 16-Million

WASHINGTON (AP) - "My insurance dividend will just sit for many months to come. Times have changed. Durable goods and an overnight splurge are out."

That's the way a lot of World War II veterans feel about the $2.8-billion "special dividend" payment which will start going out Jan. 16.

A survey by The Associated Press reveals, however, that many of the veterans have already tapped part or all of the dividend. They haven't yet received more than 200 letters written by veterans from all over the country showing that these items already have been purchased: a dental plate, furniture, a water heater, plumbing fixtures, television sets, record-playing units, a refrigerator, a snowsuit for daughter, an electric sweeper and other durables.

The Veterans Administration's special dividend task force of 3,000 workers is laboring feverishly to divvy the dividend on schedule. The treasury department estimates it as probably the largest single federal expenditure to individuals over a short period ever made. It is $600-million greater than last year's record tax refunds. It is bigger than our entire national income 100 years ago.

Almost 16-million veterans will get dividend checks. VA hopes to send the treasury department one million check vouchers a week. Treasury hopes to write checks fast enough to keep up.

At that rate the entire operation would be completed by the middle of May.

But the job won't be completed anywhere near that soon because almost 2-million veterans still have not applied for their dividends. Some may never apply as some world war one veterans never asked for their bonuses.

CRITIC'S CORNER

W. C. Fields: His Follies and Fortunes by Robert Taylor, Doubleday & Co., $3.00

When W.C. Fields died on Christmas morning of 1946, the world mourned him as the boisterous, drunk - nosed comic, who drank prodigiously, and talked out of the side of his mouth with a nasal twang. His death, to the movie colony, meant the passing of a strong individualist; a man who was genuinely erratic, consistently stubborn, and thoroughly a comic. But few in show business knew him well, and as is the case with most ungracious figures, little was known of his real character. Now, in Robert Lewis Taylor's "W.C. Fields: His Follies and Fortunes," we have a satisfying, if not complete picture of the unforgettable comedian.

The saying goes that the unhappiest people in the world make the best comics. If this is true, Fields' childhood was an excellent background for his career. His childhood was marked by poverty and frustration. At 12 he ran away from home, spending the first night of his flight in a hole in the ground. The hole in the ground was the first in a series of unconventional beds for Fields; the next few years he made his bed in barrels, boxes, toilet rooms, barns, jails and basements.

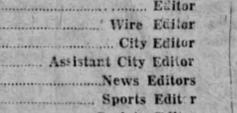

He also developed into an efficient thief - a role he enjoyed until death. Taylor tells of Fields' method in robbing immigrant Chinese laundrymen: He would wait until a noisy streetcar was passing the unfortunate Chinaman's shop, and then would dash in, clean out the till, and scamper off to a hiding place. The Chinaman's cries would go unheard because of the noise, and by the time a policeman was summoned and the story told in broken English, Fields would be quite out of reach.

It was in his childhood that Fields developed a terrific fear of poverty and hunger, a fear that had its ramifications later in life. During World War II, he cached good goods by the case because he feared a national famine.

These are only two of the many anecdotes Taylor has somehow gathered. Some, if judged out of context, would make Fields appear a sadist of the worst dimensions. Among the many that Taylor presents are those which appear funny, but actually were nothing more than the comedian lashing out against frustrations: Fields purposely getting Baby Leroy drunk on the set, because he was jealous of the child actor and wanted to discredit him; a perturbed Fields knocking Ed Wynn out on the stage by clubbing him on the head with a pool cue; Fields withholding the false teeth of his dwarf valet, when he had ordered a steak dinner; Fields planting dictaphones in various quarters of his house, so as to record his servants' conversations.

If these incidents seem repugnant, some of a non-violent character should be presented: Fields taking two Catholic priests on a tour of the mundane which included nightclubs and bars; Fields rounding up a coterie of his friends, which included Lionel and John Barrymore, Gene Fowler and John Decker, and taking them down to the recruiting center to enlist in World War II (he himself requested duty as a commando); Fields organizing a cheering section for a boxer named Claude Nesserole, who spent more time on the canvas than on his feet.

In Taylor's book we are treated to the wonderful words, names and expressions coined by Fields: "Circus Giganticus," "Drat," "Paiseley shawl," "swichel bucket," "Man-hasset," "Godfrey Daniel," "My Lit le Chickadee," "Egbert Souze," "A. Pismo Clam," "Larson E. Whipsnade," "Og Ogilbie," and others equally ridiculous.

Taylor shows Fields as the raucous, thrashing, impossibly funny man that he was. But he also shows WHY. Fields was continually making up for childhood frustrations. He was repaying society for cruelties it had inflicted on him. A man of lesser character may have turned into a Hitler; Fields became a comic in the classic sense. A psychologist or psychiatrist would enjoy reading Taylor's book as a case history. The man who wants belly laughs can read it too. The more intelligent reader can have both his belly laughs and insight, for Taylor has not just compiled anecdotes, nor has he strained in analysis. He lets William Claude Fields' life speak for itself. His voice is raucous, but it comes from the heart.

IOWA CITY concert - goes are being provided with some excellent listening these days. Last Thursday they heard a recital by the New York City opera baritone Lawrence Winters and next Wednesday Tossy Spivakovsky, a Russian violinist whose reputation has been growing rapidly, will present a recital in the Iowa Union.

The program, which will open the University Concert series for this season, will include the well known "Sonata in D Minor, Opus 108, No. 3" by Johannes Brahms. This sonata, the last of three written by Brahms, is more lyric and intermezzo - like in style than many of the Brahms sonatas.

It was written later in the composer's life, after the four symphonies and even after his last orchestral composition, the double concerto for violin and cello.

Music in the sonata is similar to most later Brahms works. It is somewhat of a study in color - full of varied moods, special effects, with lyric themes, inventions and developments.

Probably the most difficult, technically, is the last movement, the "Presto Agitato," which is fast moving and provides some demanding double stops (sounding

THE "ROUMANIAN Dances" by the late Hungarian composer Bela Bartok, is listed on the Spivakovsky program as one of the closing numbers.

Although Bartok was a contemporary composer, he has already gained great recognition throughout the world, especially for violin compositions.

The later years of his life - he died in 1945 - were spent in collecting, arranging, and glorifying the folk songs of his native country.

NO VIOLIN recital seems to be complete without at least one contribution by Nicolo Paganini, who not only added many great works to violin repertoire but also influenced the technique and style of a great many later violinists.

He is represented on the Wednesday evening recital by his "Caprice No. 24" (for violin alone). Other numbers on the program include "Adagio" by Wolfgang A. Mozart, "Homage to a Chopin" by Karol Rathaus, "Etude" (posthumous) arranged by Spivakovsky, "Valse - Scherzo" by Peter Tschickowsky, and the dramatic "Chaconne" (for violin alone) by Johann S. Bach.

Rising Hemlines Influence Shoe Styles New Styles Recall 1920 'Flapper' Days

By ANN RUSSELL
New styles in footwear for women are rivaling last year's changes in hemlines. Since evening gowns as well as street-length dresses are following the "shrinking" trend in fashion, all eyes are focused on the styles in slippers.

The designers' gaze has turned back to the 1920's when flappers were tapering toes. But 1950 styles in slim-lined shoes differ from those Mother wore in one respect — they leave plenty of toe room.

For those big dances, heels are higher than ever, often boosted by platforms. Although some authorities have been predicting the end of platforms for some years, these styles still remain popular because of their height — giving comfort.

Some evening slippers feature jeweled studs or embroidery. Others are made entirely of wrap-around straps. Both of these features are products of the short evening gown era.

Our Pilgrim Fathers (and Mothers) knew a good thing when they saw the first Indian squaw wearing soft moccasins. Modern shoe designers have transformed this idea into the twin campus favorites — loafers and casuals. In addition, soft leathers and suedes are used in these styles.

Open Styling
An example of the trend toward open styling is the graceful "shell" loafer. Also there is a loafer with a pick-up back. All sorts of straps and handstitched details help make loafers and casuals dear to the hearts of college beauties.

Gone are the days of the shapeless, drab house slipper. Slippers now are utilitarian as well as attractive. Still popular are the combination sock — slippers as well as colorful booties. Added to these are dress — up slippers in rainbow hues with velvet, fur and jewel trimmings.

Even overshoes are coming into their own in the world of fashion. Keeping up with recent tendencies toward more colorful raincoats and umbrellas, boots and overshoes are being made in gay colors too.

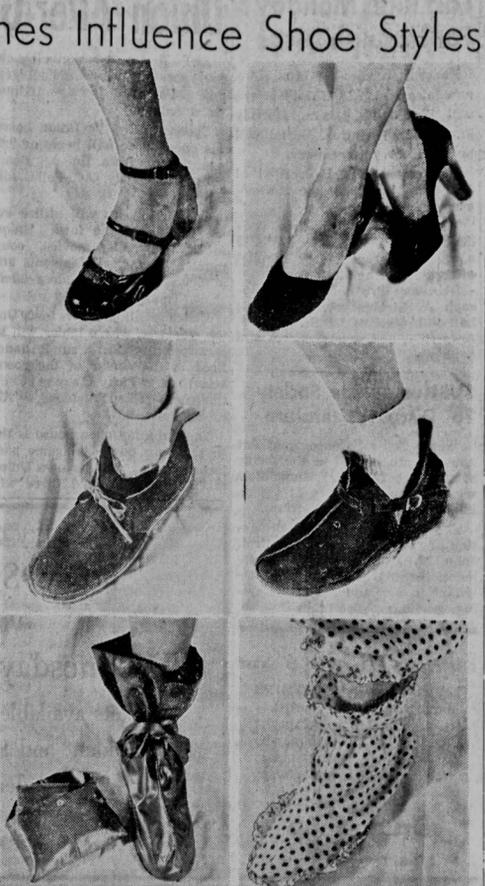

SUI Art Professor Exhibits Metal Craft

Prof. A. Raoul Delmare, SUI art department, has two hand-wrought silver works on display in the Metropolitan museum contemporary exhibit, New York City. Only five pieces are included in the contemporary section of the show, the art department reported Saturday.

Delmare, one of the nation's few highly skilled silversmiths, is the only delegate invited to attend all of the three annual silversmithing conferences. Sponsored by Handy and Harman, refiners and dealers in precious metals, the conferences were held in New York City during the past three summers.

A jury of judges chose Delmare's works the most outstanding in the 1947 session.

CANCEL HOME E. MEET
The January meeting of the SUI Home Economics club scheduled for Tuesday has been cancelled. Prof. Lula Smith, club sponsor, said Saturday. Lack of time for extra curricular activities at the end of the semester is the reason for the cancellation, she explained.

Faculty to Present Chamber Melodies

Monday's faculty music hour will feature three small groups playing chamber music at 8 p.m. in studio E of the engineering building.

A string quartet composed of instructors Marianne Fleece, violin, and Patricia Trachsel, viola; Stella Hopper, G, Boise, Idaho, violin, and Charles Becker, G, Sheridan, Wyo., cello, will play Mozart's "Quartet No. XII in G Major."

The four movements of this number are entitled "Allegro vivace assai," "Minuetto: Allegretto," "Andante cantabile" and "Molto allegro."

Prof. Norma Cross, piano; Instructor Dorothy White, flute, and Elbert Masmar, A4, Clarinda, clarinet, will play F. Schmitt's "Sonatine en Trio, opus 85." The four movements are "Assez anime," "Assez vite," "Tres lent" and "Anime."

Berezowski's "Suite, opus 11" will be played by Miss White, Masmar; Instructors Frank Malczewski, oboe; Paul Anderson, horn, and Margaret Ann Waggoner, G, Centerville, bassoon.

The three movements of the number are "Allegro con spirito," "Adagio molto sostenuto" and "Allegro con brio." The recital will be broadcast over WSUI.

Well-Fitted Shoes, Comfortable Styles Aid General Health

Since this is open season on New Year's resolutions, an excellent one to make is: to take better care of the feet.

By examining the way heels have been worn down, it is possible to tell whether or not more pressure has been placed on one foot or another. Placing the weight slightly on the outside of the foot protects it from the danger of arch troubles.

Bad posture often comes from improper walking on shoes. "Debutante's slouch" is a result of continued use of high-heeled shoes. The body compensates for the forward thrust given by heels by leaning backwards.

Experts on foot care do not ban high-heel footwear altogether, but they discourage their exclusive use. Frequent changes from high heels to low rest the feet. As the best all-around shoe, they recommend medium or low heeled shoes of the oxford type.

Specialists likewise frown on over-indulgence in "flats." To everybody but athletes, completely flat shoes worn all the time help break down the arches.

Shoe Sizes Important

Shoe sizes are extremely important for foot care. Today's shoes for women are made in 166 sizes and take into consideration foot shapes as different as faces. And there's a shoe style for every occupation imaginable.

If possible, new shoes should be bought towards evening since feet tend to swell during the day. Both feet should be measured, because one is liable to be somewhat larger than the other. Most important of all, remember it's never wise to buy a shoe that's too small.

Any disturbance of the feet is likely to show up in other parts of the body. Faults in walking or standing can often be traced back to improper footwear. Postural defects which began in the feet have caused a number of cases of headaches, back pains and other ills.

Scout Week Date Set for Feb. 6-12

Preliminary plans for Boy Scout week were discussed at a recent meeting of the Iowa River Valley Council Scout commissioners.

Boy Scout week is set for Feb. 6 to 12. Among ideas advanced at the meeting was a plan to have the commissioners visit each troop in this district, which includes Johnson, Iowa and Washington counties.

In other activity, the newly organized Coralville cub scouts have arranged their first meeting as an official troop for Jan. 19.

SUI Graduate Wed In Washington, D.C.

SUI graduate Lillian Eakes, Washington, D.C., and Harry C. Brock, also of Washington, were married Dec. 30 in the Columbia Heights Christian church, Washington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern L. Eakes, 516 S. Van Buren street. The bridegroom's parents live in Washington.

While attending SUI, the bride was affiliated with Eta Sigma Phi, national honorary Greek and Latin society. She attended SUI's graduate college for one year. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The couple will reside in Washington where Mr. Brock is employed by the state department.

Campus Political Organizations To Hold 'Petition Signing Day'

Leaders of campus Republican and Democratic organizations made final plans Saturday for a joint project which seeks student approval and support of the Hoover Commission report.

They designated Tuesday as "campus petition signing day" when students could sign a statement urging congress to take immediate steps to reorganize federal agencies.

SUI authorities had granted permission for tables to be erected in the college of law building, University hall, Macbride hall, Shaeffer hall and the Iowa Union.

Representatives of the two political parties on campus are cooperating with Atty. Newman Toomey, who headed the junior chamber of commerce's city educational campaign which was climaxed by "petition signing day" Thursday.

Toomey explained that former president Herbert Hoover was asked by President Truman in July, 1947, to conduct a survey to find where federal government expenditures could be cut.

The commission report showed reorganization in the executive branch could save millions of dollars without eliminating any of the present services of the government.

Toomey also explained that employees of the government would not necessarily lose their jobs or take a cut in salary.

Employment Turnover Cited

Employment turnover in government jobs is so great, he said, that workers could simply be shifted from one agency to another. The report calls for increased salaries in return for more efficient work.

"The Hoover commission has brought to our attention the blisters and the contagious sores which blemish many phases of our government's operation today," Toomey said.

"We must recognize the causes of the existing diseases within government and apply the skillful surgery of the Hoover commission findings in an effort to cure them," he declared.

Urging students to sign the petitions which will be forwarded to congress, Toomey quoted Hoover as saying:

"If the people of this nation want a sound, efficiently operated government, then we must have a grass roots movement of the people insisting that their representatives in congress that they give their full support to the Hoover commission report."

Heart Attack Fatal To Burlington Man

Mr. F. W. Zeller, 78, Burlington, died Saturday noon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. D. Lorenz, 435 Grand avenue.

He had been ill several months and died following a heart attack.

In addition to Mrs. Lorenz, who is executive secretary of the SUI college of law, Mr. Zeller is survived by a son, O. E. Zeller of Des Moines.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

No Building Permits Issued First Week

No building permits were issued during the week ending Saturday, according to City Engineer Fred Gartzke.

As severe winter weather moved into Iowa City during the beginning of the new year, it marked the first week since the winter of 1948-49 that no permits to build were granted by the local office.

Records show that no permits went out during the corresponding week last year, but permits totaling $5,200 were issued during the first week in January, 1948.

Program Announced For Spivakovsky's Concert Wednesday

Manager of the University concert series Prof. C.B. Righter Saturday announced the program for Tossy Spivakovsky's violin concert to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Iowa Union lounge.

Spivakovsky will open the program with Mozart's "Adagio" with a cadenza written in by the artist. He will follow with Brahms' "Sonata in D minor, Op. 108, number 3."

The four movements of this are entitled "Allegro," "Adagio," "Un poco presto e con sentimento" and "Presto agitato." He will conclude the first half of the program with Bach's "Chaconne" for violin.

Karol Rathaus' "Homage a Chopin" will open the second half of the concert. It will be followed by Spivakovsky's arrangement of Chopin's "Etude" (Posthumous) and Paganini's "Caprice number 24" for solo violin.

Concluding the program will be Bartok's "Rumanian Dances" and "Valse-Scherzo" by Tschaiowsky.

Free student tickets for the concert will be available in the Union lobby at 8 a.m. Monday. Tickets at $1.50 each will go on sale Tuesday for the general public.

British Naval Units Shift to Hong Kong

HONG KONG — Additional British warships were reported en route to Hong Kong Saturday strengthening the belief the Royal navy may begin conveying merchant ships through the Nationalist blockade to Communist-held Shanghai.

A British naval spokesman said such action would depend on "high level decisions" reached in London. However, three warships recently were added to the fleet here and three more were being shifted here from Singapore.

The naval spokesman said any decision to convey merchant ships would be complicated by the fact the Nationalist gunboats have been operating within Chinese territorial waters, which British warships are not permitted to enter without specific permission.

Some observers advanced the possibility that British recognition of the Communist government might place the Nationalist gunboats in the position of "pirates."

New Religious Index Erected at Macbride

A new directory of Iowa City churches and student church groups has been erected near the south door of Macbride hall, Grace B. Hadley, project chairman said Saturday.

The directory of churches gives the denomination, name and location of the church and hours of regular Sunday services in addition to listing student organizations of Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths.

The list of student church groups gives the denomination name of student group and location of the student center.

The advisory council of the Student Christian council cooperated with Jewish and Catholic organizations in erecting the sign.

Machine Saves Bank Storage Space

INSERTING CHECKS FOR MICROFILMING. Mrs. Jack Bock, 511 S. Madison street operates the First National bank's two-purpose machine. The checks are photographed in this machine, and later, after development, the same machine can be used to view the negatives. The Iowa State Bank and Trust company's microfilming machine automatically indorses the checks, but another machine is necessary to view the negatives after development. About 3,000 checks can be photographed on a roll of film only four inches square and three-quarters inch thick when boxed.

Iowa City Banks Save Space, Protect Records on Microfilm

Iowa City banks for several years have employed the war-developed microfilming process in conserving space and protecting records against loss.

Although in use since 1928, the process of recording documents on small film attained its greatest popularity during the last war when thousands of tons of V-Mail were photographed on film for transport to and from troops overseas.

The First National bank and the Iowa State Bank and Trust company here microfilm all out-of-town checks they have honored before sending them to the banks on which they were written.

Handling of the checks in this manner eliminates much time and confusion when they are notified that an out-of-town bank failed to receive all the checks the Iowa City bank claimed to have sent.

In such instances, the local bank has more than a mere listing of figures representing checks — they have miniature negatives of the checks dispatched to the complaining bank.

This eliminates doubt on the part of either bank as to whether any of the figures on a list actually represent a check which was handled.

Union After-Game Party Set

SUI's first post-basketball game party of the 1949-50 school year will follow the Iowa - Indiana game Saturday.

Sponsored by the Union board, the open house will begin at 9:45 p.m. in the Iowa Union. Board Pres. Bill Tandy, A4, Pella, said Saturday.

The first party will utilize every facility of the Iowa Union, including dancing, movies, community singing, refreshments and a special half-hour student talent show, Tandy said.

Dancing will be in the Iowa Union cafeteria, where tables will be arranged around a small dance floor in the center of the room, according to Party Committee Chairman Mike Trueblood, A3, Sioux Falls, S.D.

The Saturday open house is the first of four post-game parties scheduled for the Iowa Union this spring. The final three will be held Jan. 21, Feb. 11 and March 4.

Post-game parties were originated by last year's Union board in answer to requests for additional social activities after SUI's home Big Ten basketball games, Tandy said.

More than 4,000 SUI students attended the Iowa Union's final open house last spring, he added.

Marion Resident Fined On Intoxication Charge

Lloyd May, Marion, was fined $300 in Johnson county district court Saturday after pleading guilty to a county attorney's information, charging him with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Forty SUI Drawings Picked For Midwest Touring Exhibit

Forty drawings by SUI students and graduates have been chosen for exhibition in 13 midwestern colleges and art center department announced Saturday.

The display is comprised of work by the life drawing workshop classes, and will appear first at the University of Denver, Denver.

Prof. James Lechay and Instructors Helen Carter Cox and Vincent Burns, all of the SUI art department, made the final selection of drawings for the exhibit.

Ballots cast by visitors at the recent SUI Art gallery display were used in selecting drawings for the touring show.

Present graduate students represented in the exhibit are Paul Running and Hayden Scott, both of Iowa City; Dan Wingren, Dallas, Tex.; Vincent Burns, Sioux City; Elizabeth Wilson and John Youngquist, both of Minneapolis. George McCullough, Los Angeles; James Walker and Merle Walker, both of Kirksville, Mo.; Elliot Elgart, Chelsea, Mass.; Richard Edwards, Cedar Rapids; James Hoffman, Racine, Wis.; and John Bashor, Topeka, Kan.

Also represented are George Marks, A4, Eldora; Sol Baumer, A4, Council Bluffs; Christian Aagaard, A4, Chicago; Kae Lynch, A3, Des Moines; Don Wilson, A3, East Lansing, Mich.

Len Everett, A4, Kirkwood, Ill.; Cal Gross, A4, Oelwein; Richard Savage, A3, St. Louis, Mo.; and George Weiss, A2, Dover, Ohio.

Gamma Alpha Chi's Initiate 6 Members At Hotel Ceremony

Active members of Gamma Alpha Chi, professional advertising fraternity for women, initiated one professional advertiser and five undergraduate women at a ceremony Friday afternoon in the Hotel Jefferson.

The initiation was held before the advertising banquet sponsored by Gamma Alpha Chi and Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity for men.

Norma Abbot, advertising manager of Sears-Roebuck and company, Iowa City, is the professional advertising executive initiated into the organization. A graduate of the University of Indiana, Miss Abbot formerly was advertising manager for a furniture store and a weekly newspaper in Indiana.

Other initiates are Donna Kendall, A4, Rock Island, Ill.; Carolyn Gordon, A4, Western Springs, Ill.; Greta Grossman, A3, University Heights, Ohio; Joan Patten, A3, Springfield, and Pat Hodgen, A3, Cherokee.

Special recognition was given at the banquet to eight new pledges of Gamma Alpha Chi. They are Flora Robinson, A4, Cedar Rapids; Beth Rochefort, G, Mt. Pleasant; Irene Seifert, A3, Amana; Barbara Petree, A3, Bettendorf; Ruth Buckingham, A3, Batavia; Charlotte Schoenfeld, A, Teaneck, N.J.; Shirley Wood, A3, Davenport, and Claire Ingels, A2, Manchester.

SUI to Accept Bids On Water Softening

Bids on a project aimed at decentralizing SUI's water-softening equipment will be accepted Jan. 18 in the university architect's office, SUI Engineer George Parizek said Friday.

The equipment, which converts hard water to water more adaptable to washday uses (soft water raises more suds and is easier on the skin) is now located in the power plant.

Watermains must be set aside to pipe the softened water to university buildings. Under the new system obsolete equipment will be junked, and the new equipment will be located in Currier hall, the chemistry building and the Quadrangle.

Human 'Guinea-Pig' Aid SUI Biochemist In Diet Acid Test

Six SUI students who volunteered last year as "guinea-pigs" in amino-acids research may be paying today to learn that their comfort in drinking the bad-tasting chemicals wasn't in vain.

A recent article in the Journal of Nutrition, written by Herb Baldwin, who received a degree from SUI in February 1949, and Prof. C. P. Berg, department of biochemistry, cusses the 36-day test.

The biochemists were able to draw definite conclusions from tests on the value of certain of tryptophan, an amino acid in the diet.

Amino acids are chemical "building blocks" which the body puts together to make protein — flesh, hair, fingernails, skin.

One of the difficulties experimenters had to overcome in the diet tests was the disagreeable taste of the chemicals. They solved it by giving the student guinea-pigs a lemonade chaser after every "shot" of amino acid.

The studies were made possible by a grant-in-aid from the Dow Chemical company, which also supplies most of the amino acids used in the tests.

Quarterly Magazine Carries Articles by Journalism Faculty

Four Iowa journalism faculty members had articles published in the December issue of Journalism Quarterly.

The leading story was a study by Instructor Walter Steigleman titled "Do Newspaper Headlines Really Promote Street Sales?" Steigleman cites evidence gathered from his studies which shows that headlines have little effect on the newspaper a reader buys.

Another article by an Iowa faculty member, Bernard Stern, associate in journalism, examines the effect on linotype operators of setting copy written all in capital letters as opposed to both capital and lower case letters.

His research was conducted in the SUI newspaper production laboratory with the aid of Instructors William Morrison and Henry Africa.

Prof. John Lund discussed "A Production Cost Factor" and Carroll Coleman contributed a book review to round out the list of Iowa faculty members' articles in the December issue.

Shows Technical Skill — But Lacks Content

By VINCE BRANN

There can be little doubt that Robert Flaherty's "Louisiana Story", which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater, is a technical triumph in the documentary field. It is an unusual movie, mixing the best travelogue techniques with a fine eye for pictorial beauty.

The motion picture camera has rarely recorded the thousand wonders of the bayou country as carefully and artfully. To shoot the hour-long film, Flaherty moved his entire group of technicians to the Petite Anse Bayou where a cast of willing alligators, racoons and oil drillers were waiting.

The camera approaches its task slowly, taking infinite pains to show us a formation of water bugs, a spider busy at its web, a curious and comic racoon playing in the water.

Finally we discover a Cayun boy through whose eyes most of the film is seen from then on. We meet his family briefly, and share their wonder at the mechanical monster which is to disturb the serenity of the bayou in its search for oil.

The interest builds smoothly for the first thirty minutes. Only then does "Louisiana Story" begin to wear thin. The "story," it appears, is to be the long-arduous drilling for oil. Unfortunately, it is not that exciting.

What happens, as a result, is that with all the technical equipment available, plus talented men behind the scenes, Flaherty has very little to say. Taken as an almost impressionistic study of the flora and fauna of the bayou, the film is an artistic success.

But since the film, is, at the same time, short on story content, it cannot truly be said to fulfill all the demands of the documentary.

Shows Technical Skill — But Lacks Content

By VINCE BRANN

No one, apparently, was more aware of this shortcoming than the film editor, who, having little sequence to follow, had a hard time creating any sense of continuity. He has made single episodes suffice and chained them together with a disconcerting series of wild life shots which, beautiful as they are, would be better as stills.

Senators to Fight Oleo Repeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen dairy state senators served notice Saturday that they will try to kill the oleo tax repeal bill by loading it down with "riders" for repeal of wartime excise taxes.

Indicating they would not try to filibuster the bill to death, the senators also announced after a strategy conference that they favor completing action on the oleo measure by next Friday.

They met in the office of Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), one of the dairy bloc senators fighting against senate approval of the house-passed bill. Wiley and Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Iowa), who also was present, are sponsoring a substitute to repeal the federal taxes on oleomargarine but forbid shipment of butter-colored oleo in interstate commerce.

"The consensus of the dairy supporters was that there be attached as an integral part of the Gillette-Wiley substitute an amendment for repeal of the nuisance wartime excise taxes," they said in a statement.

"It would be completely unfair," they added, "for the federal oleo taxes to be repealed unless simultaneously there were repealed the host of nuisance wartime levies which were established during the wartime and which have plagued American consumers."

The senators said they were willing to vote by next Friday on the bill, the substitute and all amendments. They said they were willing to take a final vote as soon as possible after "reasonable and appropriate debate without a filibuster."

Wiley did not say whether the group would support civil rights riders on the bill but conceded that other amendments would be offered.

Oleo opponents believe that a civil-rights amendment would kill the bill by provoking a southern filibuster. In the past, Dixie senators have managed to talk to death all such legislation.

Wolves Tumble Iowa

Clifton Nets 25 Points; Vollers, Calsbeek Cold

By ALAN MOYER
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Michigan's basketball team, operating before 8,000 home fans here at Yost fieldhouse, got off to winning ways in the Big Ten race Saturday night by soundly thumping Iowa, 66-46.

The Hawkeyes were only in the ball game for a portion of the first half. They threatened briefly in the second half with a flurry that brought them to within seven points but from then on it was strictly Michigan.

Its stars, Leo Vanderkuy and Mack Suprunowicz, took a back seat to forward Don McIntosh, a junior who decided to come out for the varsity this year when he got too good for the intramural league he was playing in. He rang up 21 points to lead his team's point production.

The win gave Iowa an 8-2 record for the year, but once again proved the huge difference between conference and non-conference opposition.

Clifton, the Bright Spot
The Wolverines brought their season's mark up to seven wins and three setbacks, even though playing on the home floor for only the third time this year.

Iowa's bright spot of the evening was sophomore Bob Clifton, the speed merchant guard from Boone. Playing by far his best game of the year, he tallied 25 points, his high for the season.

Bob Vollers and Frank Calsbeek, usually the big scorers for the Hawkeye cause, missed badly on the shots they did manage to get. Vollers finished with four, while Calsbeek made eight.

Iowa's shooting percentage explained its loss to a great degree. The Hawks had a poor 20 percent, compared to Michigan's 35 percent.

Michigan left the floor at half-time with a comfortable 35-21 edge.

Arrest 'em at Outset
In the opening half, the Hawks played an aggressive game for five minutes, after Clifton and Vollers had gotten the visitors off to a 4-0 lead. Then for four long minutes Iowa couldn't buy, beg or borrow a single point.

Calsbeek added a free throw to put Iowa into a brief 10-7 lead, then Vanderkuy netted a push shot and Suprunowicz, hitting with his brilliant turn around shot from the side, scored three quick baskets and shot his team into a 17-12 lead.

Clifton's push shot broke the Iowa dry spell after 11 minutes.

LEAPING TO SCORE is Michigan Center Leo Vanderkuy (28) in the first half of the Iowa-Michigan game Saturday night. The other Wolverine is Jim Skala (25). Identifiable Hawkeyes are Ev Cochran (19), Frank Calsbeek (11) and Bob Clifton (24). Michigan trounced the Iowans, 66-46, despite Clifton's 25-point shooting.

39 seconds of the half had elapsed. He added a free throw almost immediately but by that time McIntosh had tallied on a tip in and Vanderkuy had made the score 20-13 on a free toss.

Chuck Darling entered the Iowa lineup with eight minutes remaining and with Clifton hitting twice on jumping push shots, Iowa crept within three points, 20-17.

Suprunowicz lipped and hurt his ankle, leaving the game, but it didn't seem to bother the smooth working Wolverines, who then proceeded to move away from the erratic Hawkeyes.

Play Ragged
With seconds to go in the half, Harold Morrill, a 6-foot, 4 inch guard from Detroit, hit the basket with two push shots to boost the home advantage to the half-ending 35-21.

In the last two and a half minutes of the half Iowa was able to tally but one point, that on Clifton's free throw.

Play throughout the half was ragged at times on the part of both clubs. Iowa worked its plays to perfection, then missed the shots.

Clifton, with 14 points, led the scoring, and had it not been for his ability to hit the basket the Hawkeyes would have been much worse off than they were.

Michigan could not display the variety of offensive formations, but with Vanderkuy, Morrill and Suprunowicz making points the Wolverines did a more than adequate job with few plays.

In the second half both clubs were able to settle down, but the commanding lead Michigan built up in the opening 20 minutes was far too much for the Hawks to make up.

Brawner's Last Second Goal Lets Hawks Nip Bolis 44-43

(Special to the Daily Iowan)
CEDAR RAPIDS — Gene Brawner intercepted a pass and drove in for a lay up shot in the final three seconds to give Iowa City a thrilling 44-43 victory over Franklin here Saturday night.

The game, a Mississippi Valley conference contest, was a scorching all the way with the biggest thrills being packed into the final minute and a half. Franklin led at that point, 40-37.

Bill Fenton, Hawket forward then canned a lay up shot, was fouled and connected on the free toss. That tied it at 40-40.

Hay Cans Long One
Franklin Guard Jack Prouty retaliated with a drive in shot to put the Thunderbolts back in front, 42-40, with a minute to go.

Ken Hay, Iowa City guard, then hit on a long set shot with 20 seconds left to again knot the count, 42-42, but he fouled Prouty seconds later and the Bolts' guard — coming through in the clutch — netted the free throw to give Franklin a one point margin. That set the stage for Brawner's game-saving interception and basket.

Iowa City, cold at the outset and unable to get close-in shots, trailed 13-4 late in the first quarter and 13-8 at the quarter.

Hot in Second Quarter
But the Hawks were just as hot in the second quarter as they had been cold in the first. They rang up 18 points while holding Franklin to five, all free throws. They led at the half, 26-18.

The third period of the "now-it's-your-turn-now-it's-mine" game was again all Franklin. The Bolts rallied to score 14 points. City high managed only four and fell behind, 36-30. Then came the fourth quarter rally which gave the Hawks their seventh victory in eight starts this season.

Iowa City also won its freshman-sophomore game, 55-23, behind the 21-point shooting of Jim Freeman.

Question: To Pay Or Not to Pay? —

It'll be weeks, maybe months, before the official divvy for the num's Eowl games will be mailed out, but even before many of the went out to do battle for dear old alma mater some of the schools' counting money.

The popular conception — and a true one for several of the post on promotions — is that the teams actually on the firing line actually lose out in the matter of "take-home pay." Those are the jols who are making the Bowl games real classics. The others are being Bowl contests into the ground.

To explain, it may be fine to see that the competing schools get the lion's share of the Bowl gate. A year ago statistics showed some of the teams getting next to nothing, while the promoters rode an ever growing gravy train. Something must be done, cried an alarmed officialdom. More reward must go to the contestants.

But look what happens when a competing school gets, say, $120,000 (Bowl a week ago) as its share. It's plowed right back into the nets all too familiar. Recruiting.

It would be silly to say the Big Ten and Pacific Coast conferences tily white, but we think they have the right idea in dividing the Bowl take into equal shares after expenses have been deducted. A share — this year in the neighborhood of $10,000 per school — be sent to each Big Ten member. Ohio State gets two shares for ing the guys who went out and won another one for the midwest, commissioner's office gets a share for the paper work required in ing a big time athletic conference.

The setup is practically the same in the PCC. But now let's look to outland. No division of the spoils there, instead the part of gold is ed for raiding parties to such states as, say, Pennsylvania or

That was why the Big Ten and Pacific Coast loops went into the Rose Bowl agreement — and that opinion has been backed by an Iowa athletic official. It's helping to keep college athletics amateur, within the liberal bounds of the Sanity Code, a document which although contested by the south, was not created to turn college conferences into Sunday school leagues.

Oh, sure, it caused a howl — with a drawl — when the agreement was reached. Every angle imaginable was presented to the reading and listening public. What hurt the south, though, was the loss of the chance to sign up players through Rose Bowl glory and cash.

Now the do-good policy of just a year ago is already back-firing. Criticism of Bowl games continues, but not nearly as loudly in the two biggest athletic conferences in the nation. There, last place as well as first place teams get something in return — an amount that makes them think of the game instead of how many players can be "purchased" with the loot. A rose, please, for the Big Ten and the PCC.

Tennessee scouts have even invaded their own territory now. Coach Bob Neyland has told his old pupil, Bobby Dodd — now coach at Georgia Tech — that in retaliation for a raiding party Dodd conducted in Nashville he is sending his men to Atlanta. His exact words: "If that's the way you want to play, we're coming into Atlanta and take some boys out of your town." No honor among thieves.

Jack Dittmer was one of two unanimous choices by the UCLA football team to an all-opponent squad. The other was Bob Celeri of California. . . . While still not too far from the subject of money, Kentucky Basketball Coach Adolph Rupp is hanging up collar sign marks of his own.

Last season, he says, his NCAA champs grossed $182,000 for the university. . . . that's not supposed to be a gross exaggeration, either.

Fesler Still Has 'em Guessing About Resigning at Ohio State

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — Wesley Fesler still has the folk guessing about when, and if, he's going to quit as Ohio State's grid coach.

Our guess, and it's just a guess, is that despite all the rumors, build-up and hullabaloo, Fesler will forget his business offers and remain at the Buckeye helm.

And that wouldn't be taking the easy way out for the two-time all-America, for Fesler knows as well as anyone that the Bucks — who lose 21 seniors — don't figure to be a powerhouse come next fall.

No Letter of Resignation
The resignation reports have been flying high for almost three weeks, but Fesler says he is no closer to making a decision than he was when the first rumor reared its head.

He told Paul Hornung of the Columbus Dispatch Saturday: "My situation hasn't changed one bit. I honestly don't know what will happen. I do know I definitely haven't written a letter of resignation. I haven't even given any thought to how I would word such a letter, when and if."

"Want Me to Stay"
Fesler emphasized: "When I know, you'll all know. Any announcement will be made public formally and above board. Anything else you may hear or read is strictly guessing and strictly untruth."

The Buckeye coach continued: "Everyone, from the president of the university on down, has made it very plain that they want me to stay."

Right there may be the thing to sway Fesler's decision. He was a two-time all-America at Ohio State, he has the interests of the university and its athletic program at heart, and now he can feel he has won a top-flight place in Ohio State's official family.

Surprising Cyclones Top Favored Colorado, 50-40
AMES (P) — Iowa State shocked favored Colorado, 50-40, Saturday night in the opening Big Seven conference basketball game for both teams.

Capt. Don Paulsen and little Don Ferguson led the Cyclones to their victory over one of the pre-season championship favorites. Paulsen topped the scoring with 14 points.

Notre Dame Five Finds Spartans Easy, 76-65
EAST LANSING, MICH. (P) — Notre Dame joined the growing list of teams to beat Michigan State in basketball by marking up an easy 76-65 victory here Saturday night.

So far, the luckless Spartans have won only a single game in 10 starts. The win gave Notre Dame a four-four won-lost record for the season.

Grimm 3-Year Pact Calls for $90,000

TULSA, OKLA. (P) — A three-year salary of $90,000 lured Charlie Grimm away from the Chicago Cubs to Texas, Dallas Club Owner Dick Burnett disclosed Saturday.

The oil-wealthy Burnett's confirmation that Grimm would manage his team starting this summer came as no surprise to the 55th annual meeting of Texas league barons.

The loop's executives had accepted as a foregone conclusion Grimm's acceptance of the Dallas job after quitting his $25,000-a-year post as vice-president of the Cubs. The Dallas boss said the $90,000 would be strictly on a cash basis involving no stock or bonus payments.

It was believed by veteran baseball men at the conference that on a yearly basis of $30,000 Grimm had become the highest paid minor league manager in history.

Rebel All-Stars Pound Yankees, 22-13

Tidwell's Passing Sparks Triumph
JACKSONVILLE, FLA. (P) — Travis Tidwell spun a football web of passes that carried his Rebel all-stars to a 22-13 victory over the Yankees in the Senior Bowl game Saturday.

Charlie Justice of North Carolina and Doak Walker of Southern Methodist lived up to their press notices, but Tidwell was even better.

The little Auburn quarterback who was named most valuable in the Southeastern conference got the same honor in this classy field of all-America and all-conference players from every section of the nation.

Tidwell tossed 19 times to connect on 13 for an amazing gain of 246 yards. End Art Weiner of North Carolina teamed with Tidwell to make a great combination. He fielded eight of those throws for 139 yards.

Both Lines Tough
The losing Yankees also had a great passing team in Paul Campbell, Texas quarterback, and Jim Owens, Oklahoma end. Campbell threw 27 times, hit on 18 for 147 yards.

Only 20,000 fans turned out to see the all-stars star. But they got a real show out of the 50 players. Besides the aerial fireworks, there was a demonstration of tough defensive line play by both walls.

Tackle Wade Walker of Oklahoma and Center Clayton Tomme-maker of Minnesota, both all-America, led a Yankee line that held the Rebels to 46 yards by rushing. The Yanks could run for only 63 against a Rebel line that was tough from end to end.

The pass defense looked mighty weak in comparison. But it wasn't that nearly so much as the accuracy with which Tidwell, Campbell and Eddie LeBaron of College of the Pacific could drop that ball in the right spot.

Key kick returns by Justice and Doak Walker added to the thrills. Walker started the Yanks off in their first score with a rumbuck for 57 yards.

Yankees Score First
Justice opened the way to two Rebel touchdowns. He went 26 to begin the first drive and 29 to start the last.

Tidwell threw to Herb Rich, Vanderbilt back, for a 55-yard play that scored the first Rebel six pointer. On fourth down he set one in the arms of John O'Quinn, Wake Forest end, for 13 yards and the second.

Another Tidwell to Rich toss covered most of 3 yards in the final touchdown march. Eddie Price, Tulane fullback, scored it with a one foot smacker.

Dick Sheffield, Tulane, booted two extra points and the Rebels picked up another pair when Jim Duncan, Wake Forest, blocked out of LeBaron's kicks.

FLOWING FOR THE FIRST TOUCHDOWN for the Yankees in Saturday's North-South Senior Bowl game is Halfback Lynn Chandris of Michigan State. Chandris (arrow) heads past Herb Rich of Vanderbilt (32) and Travis Tidwell of Auburn (11) for four yards and the score. The Rebel stars, led by Tidwell's passing, however, went on to down the Northerners, 22-13. The Auburn outshone Charlie Justice of North Carolina, who captained South, and Doak Walker of SMU, who was the Yankee captain.

Showman William A. Brady Dies at Park Avenue Home

NEW YORK (AP) — William A. Brady, 86, a top showman for half a century died Friday but — at his own request — his death didn't keep the show from going on.

Brady, one of the theater's outstanding producers, manager of many leading stars and sports figures, had been ill for some time with a heart ailment.

He died about noon Friday at his Park Avenue home.

But 24 hours later reports were being released that he was "seriously ill."

Saturday night his grief-stricken wife, 70-year-old film and stage veteran Grace George, went on as usual in her starring role in "The Velvet Glove," a new play at the Booth theater.

Again Saturday night Miss George played her part as usual. "Miss George thought an immediate announcement of her husband's death might prevent her from playing," said Stanley Glick, general manager of the play. "And she did not wish to stop any performance, in conformance with his (Brady's) wishes."

Glickie said that a week ago Brady, then seriously ill, had told him: "Whatever happens, I don't want anything to interfere with her playing."

A solemn requiem mass will be heard at 10 a.m. (CST) Monday at St. Malachy's church. He will be buried Monday at Sleepy Hollow cemetery, North Tarrytown, N.Y.

Brady produced a stream of popular plays since 1888. He had produced 250 plays in New York. He managed such stars as Douglas Fairbanks, Laurette Taylor, Tallulah Bankhead, his daughter, Alice Brady, and Grace George, his second wife. He also managed such sport champions as James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries.

He built two theaters in New York, and leased and managed many other theaters here and in Chicago.

His granddaughter, Barbara Brady, also is in "The Velvet Glove" in which Brady's widow shares top billing with Walter Hampden.

Predict $5-Billion Needed to End ERP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul G. Hoffman predicted Saturday that another $5-billion of American aid would wind up the Marshall plan and set Europe well on the road to recovery by mid-1952.

The economic aid chief made that forecast to 15 prominent American editors who are leaving New York today, at their own expense, to see the Marshall plan in action in Britain, France, Italy and Western Germany.

Hoffman said $10-billion already has been appropriated for the European Recovery program and that the job could be finished by June 30, 1952, for a total outlay of $15-billion. That would be $2-billion less than was expected when the project began in the summer of 1948.

He indicated during a 2½-hour talk with the editors that the aid program will require slightly more than $3-billion in the 1951 fiscal year, starting next July 1, and about $2-billion for fiscal 1952.

When Snow Falls — Toss Away The Shovel

By BILL TREVOR

If John C. Proudfit, E4, Runnels, is right, Iowa City can look forward to less snow and fewer backaches in a few years.

In an article in the January issue of Transit, SUI student engineering magazine, Proudfit pictures increased use of imbedded heat pipes for snow removal.

Fundamentally, the system is simple. Iron pipes are imbedded 15 to 18 inches apart a couple inches below the surface of a concrete walk or driveway.

During, or after, a snowfall, a heated mixture of water and antifreeze is pumped through these pipes. The pipes heat the concrete. The heated concrete melts the snow and evaporates the water, eliminating the danger of ice forming.

"The pipes," Proudfit said, "are never drained or refilled because they are sealed to prevent evaporation. . . . Operation is as easy as turning on a light switch."

For those who find it hard to handle light switches, two types of automatic starters have been developed.

One type is a mechanism so delicately balanced that the mere weight of the snow falling on a small plate closes a switch that starts the pump.

The other uses an electric eye. In this a reflector focuses a beam of light on the electric eye. When the snow has covered the reflector it breaks the beam of light. Then a relay system closes the pump switch.

Proudfit doesn't recommend ripping up a good walk or drive to install the system. But, he does predict the increase of their installation as new houses are built, or old walks and drives need replacement.

An example of the system Proudfit said, may be seen in front of the Larew Plumbing and heating company at 227 E. Washington street.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE, editor of the famous old New York World, is generally considered the all-time long distance, non-stop talking champion of the country, but John Wheeler swears that Hurry-Up Yost, Michigan's immortal football coach, had Swope lashed to the mast. To prove his point, he cites an evening at Grantland Rice's house.

Swope made the mistake of clearing his throat. Yost seized the opening and went on talking uninterruptedly for three hours.

By confining his remarks exclusively to football, which is one of the few subjects of which Swope himself admits he knows nothing, Yost kept him completely silent for the unprecedented stretch of two hours and nineteen minutes. Finally Swope could stand it no longer, and rose to leave, though he usually stayed hours longer. Fate had one further indignity to bestow upon him however.

That very morning, he had purchased a nobby new fedora at a Fifth Avenue haberdashery. As he was twirling it in his hands, glancing at the victorious Mr. Yost, that gentleman had just reached a description of the longest kick he ever had witnessed. "Eckersall grabbed the ball like this," he declared excitedly, and seizing the new Swope chapau, he neatly booted it into a bowl of whipped cream on the dining room table. Swope rescued it—and believe it or not—stamped out without saying another word.

Wisconsin Fraternity Initiates First Negro

MADISON, WIS. (AP) — Weather Sykes, 23-year-old senior from Chicago, Saturday was initiated as the first Negro student to be a member of an all-white social fraternity at the University of Wisconsin.

Members of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity said they had approached Sykes last spring and has pledged him only after long discussions among themselves.

They wrote a letter to the fraternity's national headquarters informing it of their decision.

Headquarters passed a resolution during the Christmas vacation saying no undergraduate "should be denied membership because of race, creed or color," Fraternity President Artie Hillman said.

Sykes was initiated along with six other pledges. Instead of the usual tasks for pledges, Hillman said, the pledges were sent to the Salvation Army and a local hospital for any help they could give.

Federal Aid To Iowa Tops $26 Million

KANSAS CITY, MO. (AP)—Iowa received $26,268,310 during the 1948-49 fiscal year representing the federal government's investment in health, education and social welfare in that state, the Federal Security agency reported Saturday.

During the same period, Nebraska received $12,956,708 as its share in the various FSA programs in which it participated.

The figures were released by James W. Doarn, director of the FSA regional office here. The figures included payments under the Federal Old - Age and Survivors Insurance program.

These investments, Doarn said, do not tell the whole story in terms either of people or money since they do not take account of certain nation-wide FSA services which benefit every citizen.

"These services," he explained, "are food and drug regulation, service to the state's educational system, supervision of federal credit unions and public health services operated directly by the Public Health service such as quarantine and epidemic control."

The report said 97,617 Iowans and 48,662 Nebraskans benefited directly from federal funds.

State Cooperates

"These citizens," Doarn said, "received individual benefits or services during the past year through Federal Security agency programs operating in their own communities, most of them with the cooperation of both state and national governments."

Only four of the major programs under the FSA are administered entirely by the federal government. These are old - age and survivors insurance, food and drug regulation, federal credit unions and federal employees' compensation. The state and local communities contribute in the other programs.

FSA Breakdown

The FSA summary showed this breakdown of the amounts spent: for maternal and child health, crippled children's and child welfare programs, $367,500 in Iowa and $231,300 in Nebraska; for aid to dependent children, $1,753,000 in Iowa and $1,313,000 in Nebraska; for old age assistance, $15,020,000 in Iowa and $7,203,000 in Nebraska; for aid to blind, $403,000 in Iowa and $174,000 in Nebraska; for old age and survivors insurance, $7,125,000 in Iowa and $962,000 in Nebraska; for general health programs, $187,000 in Iowa and $111,000 in Nebraska.

For prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, $48,000 in Iowa and $45,000 in Nebraska; for control of venereal disease, $88,000 in Iowa and $78,000 in Nebraska; for hospital survey and construction, $73,000 in Iowa and $60,000 in Nebraska; for cancer control $50,000 in Iowa and $34,000 in Nebraska; mental health $60,000 in Iowa and $23,000 in Nebraska; medical research grants to hospitals, universities and other institutions, $76,000 in Iowa and $32,000 in Nebraska; teaching, traineeships and fellowships, $54,000 in Iowa and $38,000 in Nebraska; vocational rehabilitation, $201,259 in Iowa and $147,501 in Nebraska; vocational education, $567,582 in Iowa and $304,890 in Nebraska; land grant colleges, $96,969 in Iowa and $85,017 in Nebraska; compensation for injured federal employees, $96,000 in Iowa and $95,000 in Nebraska.

Fight Participant Treated for Cuts

Tom Kettles, Iowa City, was treated at University hospitals Friday night for a serious head cut resulting from a fight, police said.

Police were called at 10:06 p.m. Friday to the home of Walter F. Kadera, 32 1-2 N. Lucas street, where the fight occurred. Kettles apparently was struck by a bottle, police said.

Charges of assault filed against Kettles were dropped when the complaining witness failed to appear in Iowa City police court Saturday morning.

Wife Asks Divorce, Claims Mate Has Married 16 Times

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—A separate maintenance suit filed Saturday in district court may end the marrying days of much-married James F. Williams, 67, Cedar Rapids.

His wife, the former Mrs. Louise Parker, filed a petition asking for separate maintenance from Williams, who has been married 16 times.

Mrs. Williams charged her husband had "kicked her out of bed" several times and had told her to "get out and stay out."

Earlier, Williams filed a divorce suit charging cruel and inhuman treatment, and that action still is pending.

Mrs. Williams, now at her Cleveland, Ohio, home, also asked the court to order Williams to provide money for her return so she can appear in court. A hearing was set Jan. 16 on her request for $35 a week temporary alimony.

Mrs. Williams, 62, charged her husband "forcibly ejected" her when she left for Cleveland Nov. 15. She denied the charges of cruel and inhuman treatment.

"I tried, at all times to please him," she said, "never refusing to prepare his meals or mend his clothing or do any other wifely duty that should be done."

If Mrs. Williams wins her suit it will end the "marry-go-round" of her husband, who said he had married one woman four times, another twice, and 10 others once in search of a "good housekeeper."

Williams married Mrs. Parker in 1946 after an eight months courtship by mail.
