Night-Long Search Ends With Chris Safe

By MARY QUALLEY

Two voices won't be forgotten by those who searched for little Christopher Griffith in the penetrating cold of early morning Thursday.

A mother's voice pleading from a sound truck, "Chris, please, Chris, wake up."

And finally the voice of 2½-year-old Chris weakly calling, "Mommy—"

It was 2:45 a.m. For more than seven hours men and women armed with flashlights, tramped across Finkbine golf course looking for Christopher Griffith, son of Dr. and Mrs. J.E. Griffith Jr., 103 Finkbine park. Griffith is a pediatrician at the SUI Children's hospital.

Small Chris was last seen about 7 p.m. near the sixth hole. He probably started to take a walk along the fringe of Finkbine park, as he and his mother had often done.

Across the tracks of the Rock Island railroad and back of the stadium he rambled until he stumbled exhausted in a clump of bushes near a fence at the far west end of the golf course.

Police joined more than 200 persons who gathered on the sixth green to begin combing the stadium, golfcourse and wooded area between Finkbine and University hospitals.

A hush fell over the group when one man said, "I'm so cold. I think I'll go back for some more clothes." If a grown man needed a heavier coat, what about a little boy?

One person described the eerie sounds in the dense grove. "The tops of the trees were filled with some sort of birds. When we called for Chris, the birds began flapping their wings so that they brushed the limbs of the trees. It sounded like rain. And everywhere was pitch black. We were so glad Chris wasn't in there."

Lights were concentrated on the excavations where the new veteran's hospital is under construction. Some feared that Chris had tumbled there.

Several weary fathers returned to their beds about midnight, only to get up again and rejoin the search. "You can't sleep when you think it could have been your kid out there some place," one said.

For most of the men, it was an eight-hour ordeal, with only an occasional breather to gulp some coffee, get some fresh flashlight batteries from the police and decide where to look next.

About midnight, it was learned that a LaCrosse, Wis., man had a trained bloodhound. Griffith talked to him by phone and learned that it would be five hours before he could get the dog to Iowa City. An English bloodhound owned by Roy Winders, 141 Koser street, was brought to the scene about 1:30. The dog dutifully followed the scent of the small boy over the frozen ground.

Students from Stadium park, Newton park, Temple park, North park and Riverdale walked in hushed groups of 30 or 40.

Flashlights probed here and there as the groups carefully broke the ice on the small pools of water scattered over the golf course. Small feet stumble so easily.

One woman told of crawling at least 25 yards along a ditch and into a culvert, where the passage became so narrow she could go no further. "I kept calling 'Chris,'" she said.

A false alarm raised the hopes of searchers when someone found small footprints — that did not lead to Chris.

A firetruck followed the anxious groups until it bogged down in a spot that had once been a sand trap.

In the Griffith home, Chris' baby sister, seven-month-old Jane, slept through the excitement. She didn't hear the sound truck poking her mother's voice into the chilly darkness.

As the night wore on, searchers called friends to join the hunt. Mrs. Griffith told a friend that strangers swarmed to their trailer, all wanting to know where they should look — what they could do.

"A wonderful community spirit," was the way one woman summed it up.

About 2:45 a.m., four men heard Chris call "Mommy" and found him curled up in the long grass among the bushes that kept him warmer than the thoroughly chilled searchers.

The four, Joe Dolezal, assistant police chief, Robert Smith, 1129 E. Burlington street; Wayne DeLaney, 130 Stadium park; and Thomas Hughes, 131 Stadium park, picked up the sleepy boy.

Dressed in red corduroy trousers and a partly lined jacket, Chris was carried to his mother amid shouts of "They've found him — Chris is all right."

Doors flew open and anxious figures tumbled from the gray trailers, as they heard the whoops of joy ring across the golf course.

GI Benefits in Housing Bill Sent to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The house Thursday approved a bill for a $4-billion expansion of the federal housing program, including some special benefits for ex-GI's. There was no opposition.

This compromise to a much fought over proposal now goes to the senate where quick approval is expected. Administration leaders say President Truman will sign the bill, although it's far short of what he asked for.

New GI Loan Program
Here are some of the main provisions of the bill:

A new $150-million program of direct loans to ex-GI's.

Special considerations for veteran housing co-operatives.

An additional $2.25-billion of mortgage insurance authority for the federal housing administration (FHA). The FHA encourages home construction by insuring mortgages.

Another $500-million of FHA mortgage insurance for apartment dwellings, to cover applications received before this program expired March 1.

A $250-million mortgage program to cover low cost houses in so-called distant suburban areas.

No Federal Subsidies
Most of these programs involve no federal subsidies. The government — that is, the taxpayers — loses money only if the mortgages it guarantees go sour on a large scale.

Missing from the bill is its most controversial part.

Mr. Truman had wanted $2-billion set aside for a co-operative home building program for middle income families. The contention was that public housing helped low income groups, that private industry provided homes for those in the higher brackets, but that the middle income people had been caught in a housing squeeze.

White Submits Name In 1950 Attorney Race

County Atty. Jack C. White Thursday announced he will run for the Democratic nomination to his office in the June 5 primary election.

White, who has held the office since 1944, will be seeking his fourth term.

He is a former president of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce and has been a leader in the activities of the Iowa Young Democrats. He helped form the Dad's club and the Optimist club, of which he is president.

Former Pendergast Underling Assassinated

PENDERGAST POLITICS CLAIMED ANOTHER VICTIM THURSDAY, according to Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo.), when Charles Binaggio, Kansas City political boss, was shot and killed in his political headquarters. Binaggio, former minion of the late Tom Pendergast's once-powerful political machine. He recently was a witness before a federal grand jury investigating underworld activities. Binaggio's body, with four bullet holes in the head, was found slumped in a chair at a desk in the first district Democratic club rooms on Truman road. His top muscle-man, ex-convict Charles Gargotta, also died in the shooting. (See other picture on page 5)

Political Skulduggery Charged in Slaying

Young Demos Elect Drake Law Student As Iowa President

DES MOINES (AP) — Lex Hawkins, 24-year-old Drake law school senior, Thursday was elected president of the Young Democrats of Iowa at the organization's annual convention.

Other officers named included: first vice-president, Edda Wirts, Iowa Falls; second vice-president, R. Bruce Hughes, Sioux City; third vice-president, Bill Pappas, Mason City; secretary, Leonard Hudson, Des Moines; and treasurer, Audrey Moreland, Tipton.

A special committee was named and was instructed to submit at the next convention a proposal to increase relative voting strength of small towns and rural areas.

The Young Democrats in resolutions asked repeal of "punitive provisions" of the Taft-Hartley act; passage of civil rights legislation, the Brannan plan, government health insurance and expansion of the social security system.

The group said of Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), Bourke E. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), and Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Neb) that "like the Communists, they seek to weaken the hand of our state department and destroy our bi-partisan foreign policy at a time when the risk of deadly war is so great."

Barkley Blasts GOP For Socialist Charge

DES MOINES (AP) — Vice President Alben W. Barkley declared Thursday night he has a firm belief in the loyalty of government employees "whether they are Democrats or Republicans."

He also defended Democratic administration policy against Republican criticism that they are socialist. He delivered the principal address at the annual Iowa Democratic Jackson Day dinner. The vice president planned to leave on his return trip to Washington by train later Thursday night.

State Chairman Jake More announced the attendance was approximately 1,550. He said this was the most successful of all the party's $25 a plate fund-raising dinners. The crowd taxed all of the dining facilities of the Fort Des Moines hotel mezzanine floor, and the overflow was served downstairs.

Barkley dwelt only briefly on the senate's investigation of charges by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) that Communists infest the state department.

Recall Proposed ...

MADISON, WIS. (AP) — A group of politically-minded University of Wisconsin students called on "every organization in the state" Thursday night to help them force the recall of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The campus charter of Students for Democratic Action admitted they can't hope to get the necessary 316,536 signatures without a lot of help from other groups.

Eighteen SDA members voted to start the movement Wednesday night because of McCarthy's attacks upon the state department.

"We feel McCarthy has been a greater aid to Soviet foreign policy than any Communist in the country," said Joe Farber, Madison, sparkplug of the recall drive.

If the drive succeeds, McCarthy would have to go before the voters at a special election. Other candidates could run against him and the winner would get his senate seat.

Girls Confess $1-Million Rock Island Blaze

ROCK ISLAND (AP) — Two 14-year-old girls confessed Thursday that they set a $1-million school fire — one of the most spectacular blazes in Quad cities history — so they could "miss a few days of school."

The girls, Patricia Flaherty and Gay Jean Grant, were caught Wednesday night after they bet a group of boys 25 cents that they could set a similar fire in another school.

The boys raced to police when they found the girls had made good on their bet by setting fire to the Lincoln grade school.

The earlier fire occurred last Dec. 11 and destroyed the Central Junior high school, where the girls were students, with a loss of $1-million.

Firemen battled two hours to control the flames while a large crowd gathered. Patricia and Gay said they joined the crowd to watch the fire.

Police said they readily admitted their guilt. They were charged

Minnesota Council Outlaws Corsages

DULUTH, MINN. (AP) — The student council of the University of Minnesota Duluth branch informed campus coeds Thursday they would have to stop wearing corsages at formal student dances.

The reason is that men students — many of them ex-GI's with tight budgets — simply can't afford to buy that sort of thing, an editorial in the "Statesman," official school paper, said.

In the future, girls who do wear corsages to the dances must leave them at a check room and pick them up when they leave for the evening, the council ruled.

The coeds promptly began circulating petitions protesting the ban. They plan to present their case to the student council next Tuesday.

All in a Day's Work

PUEBLO, COLO. (AP) — Sidelights of the census.

Lattimore Cleared 'Completely' By FBI Files Says Tydings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Millard E. Tydings (D-Md) said Thursday FBI records clear Owen Lattimore "completely" of Communist spy charges preferred by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Tydings, chairman of a senate investigating committee, said furthermore that four members of the committee hold the same opinion after inspecting a "complete summary" of FBI files on Lattimore, far eastern expert.

The fifth member, Sen. Bourke E. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), who was out of town when the committee visited FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, will view the records next week.

'Tydings Lying'
Hardly had Tydings made his announcement when McCarthy told reporters that "either Tydings hasn't seen the files, or he is lying. There is no other alternative."

The chairman has referred to a summary prepared for the committee by Hoover from the FBI files on the accused Johns Hopkins university professor.

McCarthy said he didn't know what Hoover had compiled for the committee "but I know what is in the files."

'Tool of Fanatics'
In reply to McCarthy's statement, Tydings said: "I'll let my reputation for accuracy stand... it is significant that no member of the committee contradicted the statement when I made it in the presence of the committee."

Tydings told reporters that Hoover and Atty. General McGrath agree with his estimate of the information on Lattimore.

Lattimore told the committee, and McCarthy to his face, that McCarthy is a contemptible liar, the tool of discredited fanatics, and a violator of senatorial responsibility who ought to resign.

McCarthy Contemptible Liar ...

Truman Asks Boost In Jobless Benefits; Calls Need 'Urgent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman asked congress Thursday to authorize bigger jobless benefits to more people for a longer time.

He sent a special message saying that unemployment compensation checks ought to:

Run up to $30 a week on a uniform scale over the nation, plus additional money for dependents.

4.5-Million Jobless
Be forthcoming, if needed, for 26 weeks.

Be made available to an additional 4.5-million persons not covered by present law.

He cited an average of nearly 4.5-million jobless in the first quarter of this year as evidence that the need for action is "urgent."

All this would cost more money, of course, with higher unemployment tax rates necessary in some instances. However, Truman said the overall increase in cost would be moderate.

Federal - State Program
The jobless insurance program is a joint federal - state venture. The federal government issues the funds for the administration of the program and each state administers its own unemployment insurance law, collecting taxes from employers, determining who is eligible for the benefits, and saying how big they shall be paid.

Although the state laws must meet certain requirements before the state is eligible to obtain the administrative funds, the size and duration of the benefits vary widely.

'Heap o' Bills' in the Red —

The treasury deficit that the Truman administration has built up has assumed gigantic proportions. Everyone recognizes the fact, but there has been little done about it.

It's always difficult for us laymen to imagine a billion dollars. Stacks of dollar bills a mile high would approach a billion dollars—give or take several thousand feet. That's a heap o' bills, but when a person attempts to visualize the government's spending it's downright impossible to see it.

That's probably why most of us are willing to gloss over the fact that the government will wind up the current fiscal year about $6.8-billion in the red.

In this fiscal year alone, the government will run through about $43-billion. This figure is more than $8-billion above last year's amount.

Through it all, President Truman has maintained that the deficits were caused by the 80th congress's refusal to increase personal income taxes.

However, in 1948, the last year before income tax receipts on personal taxes were taken, $21-billion was received. In the 1949 tax receipts totaled nearly $19-billion. At the same time corporate taxes for 1949 increased $1.5-billion.

With a little mental arithmetic we can see that there was a drop of $775-million drop in tax receipts. The deficit can't all be blamed on the drop in taxes, then.

Mr. Truman's tactic of pointing the finger of blame at congress smacks suspiciously of the "give 'em hell" routine he went through during the 1948 presidential campaign.

With congressional elections peering around the corner, it might be that the tempo in the mud-slinging will pick up and this spending routine is part of the plan.

Of course, an important consideration is that the U. S. has embarked on a costly post-war project of world leadership. If the program is more expensive than administrators originally thought, it would seem more practical to let the public know, without using the situation as a vote-getting routine.

We hope the Republicans learned a lesson in the fall of 1948. They'd be silly to let Mr. Truman leave them with another bag to hold.

Where There's Smoke There's Fire —

The U. S. Federal Trade commission Wednesday ordered the makers of Camel and Old Gold cigarettes to stop their "false and misleading" advertising.

"False and misleading" advertising, according to the FTC, consisted of claiming that one cigarette could be less irritating than another—the commission said they all contain nicotine, tars, and resins irritating to the nose and throat.

Similar action, the commission said, against the makers of Lucky Strikes, Philip Morris and Pall Mall is now being considered.

If the orders are not followed, the companies are subject to $5,000 fines.

Whether or not these firms have been distributing ads with false claims will probably be settled by the courts, for the firms will undoubtedly appeal the order.

The old adage, "Where there's smoke there's fire," seems to be holding true for the cigarette industry—at least they've been under fire often lately.

Irritating or non-irritating, it is a cinch that tobacco smoke will continue to pass through millions of American throats. Mark Twain once said something about it being easy to quit smoking. He'd done it a hundred times, he said.

Temporary Taxes Still Toted —

The American Weekly recently published a full-page picture of a girl dressed, for the most part, in taxes.

She was wearing some modest jewelry on her arms and on her dress, and she carried a purse. She had used the customary make-up—powder, cleansing cream, lipstick, rouge and mascara. And she had washed her hair with a commercially-made shampoo.

In addition, she had a pack of cigarettes, a cigarette holder and a lighter.

The point of the picture was that she was a living, breathing example of the burden of the wartime excise taxes which are still in effect, long after the last shot was fired.

When congress passed the taxes, it was promised that they would be repealed as soon as hostilities ended. Hostility—toward the taxes—is far from ending.

New Look Lines —

Paris designers recently announced a new line of spring fashions for men—short-trousered lavender-colored tuxedos, tomato-red dinner jackets, ruffled shirts, and pointed shoes in assorted colors.

The new look for 1950, one designer said, consists of broad shoulders, absolutely no "tummy" and a very pinched-in waist. The designer, of course, was referring only to clothing style, not to men's shapes.

Despite changes in clothing styles, the new look for men probably will be exactly like the old—hunched shoulders, a paunch instead of a "tummy," and a pinched-in wallet.

CCC Benefits Pupils —

Surplus Food Provides Children's Meals

By THE CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON — Ralph Trigg is "Santa Claus" 364 days a year, yet American farmers, school children, old people and invalids — thousands of them — do not know this agricultural expert by either name.

However, the farmer knows he gets a present in support prices for his potatoes or other surpluses. The children know that good hot lunch comes from somewhere. And many old people and invalids in institutions are grateful for the program he administers.

Of course, over in the department of agriculture, Ralph Trigg has more high-flown titles for his two way job. He is president of the Commodity Credit corporation and head of the Production and Marketing administration.

This operation runs into billions of dollars. Also into more mountains of potatoes (and other commodities) than this administrative Santa Claus can give away.

The CCC has capital stock of $100-million and borrowing authority of $4.7-billion. With these funds, paid supports are given to the farmer when crop prices drop.

As PMA administrator, Trigg buys the crops and has charge of distributing those extra commodities and also of conservation, production and marketing.

SOME SIX MILLION American school children have grown chubby on supplementary foods issued for the school lunch program. Good teeth and sound bones have been built from Trigg's potatoes, dried eggs, apples, milk, concentrated orange juice and other foods.

What manner of man is this year-round Santa Claus?

He's a lot younger than that man who comes down the chimney on Dec. 25. He hails from New Mexico, not the North Pole. But even at 42 and without a white beard, Ralph Trigg is motivated by the Christmas spirit.

Trigg likes people. Born on a cotton and peanut farm, he worked his way through the University of New Mexico as a lumber yard helper. He found time to play varsity football, too.

His first experience in helping needy people came along with the job as state auditor for the relief administration of New Mexico. During the war he was personnel chief of Navy Ordnance.

At the moment, he's juggling a hot potato. Cartoonists and headlines ridicule the wholesale potato destruction resulting from confusion of conflicting farm opinion expressed in the Agricultural Act of 1949.

Probably the man most responsible for that act was former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, now the senator from New Mexico.

Present Secretary Charles Brannan has proposed another method of handling the price support problem but as yet it has not been tried. The potato mess may result in a trial run of the Brannan plan on one or two commodities.

However, Santa Claus Trigg is not concerned with that.

Russ Aid Chinese Reds: Nationalists

TAIPEI, FORMOSA (AP) — The Nationalists Wednesday asserted Russia was pouring planes and pilots into Red China and ordered the charges laid before the United Nations.

Foreign Minister George Yeh made the charges in a formal statement. He made no reference to earlier Nationalist assertions that Russian planes with Russian pilots shot down two Nationalist bay south of Shanghai.

Yeh declared, "Soviet fliers and fighters Sunday over Hangchow aircraft technicians, both military and civilian, have been arriving in increasing numbers at various cities in north and central China."

Interpreting the News —

McCloy Urges European Union

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

John J. McCloy, U.S. high commissioner in Germany, has warned western Europe that an effective union, including Germany, is important to continued American interest and support.

"Today the United States" is firmly committed to help Europe and has shown in many ways its hope for the development of a European community. Tomorrow that interest may decline from its present high level unless it is matched by the interest of others.

Returning to Europe after conferences with Washington officials, the high commissioner chose to make his statement in London, where there is a great wariness of European ties which might interfere with British commonwealth commitments.

McCloy's speech was followed immediately by a statement from Secretary Dean Acheson that the U.S. favors immediate steps to include Germany in a western European organization.

U.S. policy is to hold off the pressure of the Soviet Union, use Germany's industrial potential for the benefit of all Europe, but at the same time to prevent Germany from ever renewing her threat to European peace.

That's allied policy, too, but approached from different angles by the British and French according to their differing positions. Britain wants to avoid too much German commercial competition. France is less interested in that than in security from her old enemy. The U.S. is urgent about economic recovery.

France is represented as willing to go ahead with the integration of Germany into a western organization, but only if Britain stands at her side to make sure that Germany will not eventually walk the dog. Britain feels that she is less a European country than the center of the British commonwealth and that she cannot do anything to embarrass her freedom of action in that respect.

That the German problem is becoming increasingly pressing, however, is plain. The idea of making her a neutral buffer is being advanced by German rightists, particularly the brotherhood, an organization of former German officers.

Their idea seems to be to play east against west for their own benefit, and for the purpose of taking over Germany when the pressures have become too great for the Bonn government. The neutrality idea also is receiving warm Communist support.

As the Atlantic pact members begin to set up their military "table of organization," the defense of western Germany becomes a prime factor. It has been put aside pending the first steps in other countries, and top allied officials constantly deny plans for rearming the Germans. But the question keeps popping up.

The lower house of the Dutch parliament voted only this week in favor of rearmament. Evidence of Russian rearmament of eastern Germany arrives almost daily.

More about the whole thing will be heard at the London conference next month.

Crusade Against KKK Gains Anti-Mask Law

CLAXTON, GA. (AP) — A country editor's crusade against the Ku Klux Klan paid off Thursday with an anti-mask ordinance for his city.

The Claxton city council passed the ordinance following editorials and stories in the Claxton Enterprise, a weekly paper published by Milton Beckerman.

A month ago, Beckerman fired at klansmen he said were trying to intimidate him. Following a Klan rally, several auto-loads of hooded men drove across Beckerman's lawn, horns blaring.

He said he fired to protect himself, but no one was hit.

But everyday for the past few months, a young lady, Miss H. in reality even, has continually dampened my good moods by telling me — "Man is charming, but terribly inadequate."

Now that this was "National Smile Week" too, Oh, horrors!

I've tried to argue with her, but I'm not succeeding. It seems I don't have the right outlook on life and something called, future. Does she realize in this erratic statement that such a general usage of 'man' includes 'woman' too?

Yoo hoo inadequacy! Here I am . . .

Varied Minor Problems Plague Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman's work is never done. If it isn't one thing, it's another. If it isn't black-eyed peas, for example, it's seal carcasses.

Rep. Lindley Beekworth (D-Tex.) is fretting over black-eyed peas. The seal carcass worry belongs to Rep. Paul Shafer (R-Mich.).

Seal carcasses present more of a refrigeration problem, we'll dispose of them first.

The western Michigan State college in Kalamazoo wanted a couple of seal carcasses for their zoology department.

Naturally, the professors wrote their congressmen.

Shafer, a congressman for 13 years, managed to remain cool and collected even in the face of this unusual request. He checked with the fish and wildlife service. Well, we taxpayers own some seal herds up in Alaska, and occasionally we do have a few seal carcasses to dispose of.

Would the congressman please indicate "whether you want a mature animal or one of the pups and whether a male or a female?"

The matter has been turned back to the Kalamazoo professors for their decision on size and sex.

The black-eyed pea situation hasn't such a happy ending.

Beekworth comes from black-eyed pea country, and he'd like to see the entire nation chomping away on same. He's been trying to convince the military people that black-eyed peas would be just the thing to include in the serviceman's diet.

Jewish 'Passover' Marks Deliverance From Egypt's Power

The observance of the Jewish festival week which began last Saturday and extends through Sunday celebrates the deliverance of Israel from Egyptian bondage.

On the first two nights of the holiday the service called seder is observed at which time the story is retold around the dinner table, according to Prof. Judah Goldin, of the school of religion.

"The whole purpose of this service, is to keep alive our concept of freedom which lies behind the story of redemption from the Egyptian," Prof. Goldin said.

At the seder the youngest child in the house is given a selection to read which consists of questions to be answered. The book that is used on this occasion is called Haggadah.

During this week a great deal of visiting is done among the families. Matzo, unleavened bread, is the only kind of bread eaten during the week.

His mother reported he was "all right" and was being kept at home for "observation."

Police reported the dog belonged to Mrs. Mary E. Douglas, 23 N. Lucas street. Mrs. Douglas was told to keep the dog tied up for 10 days, police said.

Spring is in the air and you will want to spend more time outdoors instead of laboring hours in the kitchen preparing meals.

Here's a good idea for a spring dinner that takes very little planning and yet is a delicious dish.

1-4 teaspoon pepper
3-4 teaspoon salt

Spread mashed potatoes over bottom and sides of greased baking dish (8x8x2 inches) or pie plate. Combine remaining ingredients in order given and mix well. Place corned beef mixture in potato shell, letting potatoes form border around edges. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 45 minutes. Serves six.

Prof. Bach to Attend Famous Easter Rites As Moravian Guest

Prof. Marcus Bach of the SUI school of religion will be a guest on Easter Sunday at the nationally famous Moravian sunrise service at Winston-Salem, N.C.

Bach said the service will be broadcast in a coast-to-coast hookup over the CBS radio network.

"The Moravian church differs very little from the Evangelical church. It is a Protestant group and adheres to the historical Protestant faith," Bach said.

The service consists of opening worship in front of the old Home Moravian church on Salem square. As darkness gives way to light they walk along the short block to God's Acre, the Moravian graveyard. And as the sun rises, they reaffirm their belief in a resurrected and eternally reigning Lord, Bach said.

"A statement that best expresses the spirit of the Moravian brethren is 'in essentials unity, in non-essentials liberty, and in all things charity,'" Bach said.

The Moravian faith goes back to the 15th century, he said. Two founders of the faith were John Huss and Jerme Prague, both from Bohemia.

Bach said, "The towns in Pennsylvania such as Bethlehem and Nazareth were at one time exclusively Moravian settlements. Traditional with the Moravians has been the Easter service."

"And the most significant and perhaps the most impressive sunrise service is the Winston, Salem, N.C. ceremony," Bach said.

Self-Polishing Wax Bad for Floors: Experts

Self-polishing waxes, time-savers for housewives, should never be used on hardwood floors, experts warn.

Women who would never mistreat wood floors with water and scrub brushes are still likely to forget that these waxes contain water. Continued use of them tend to make the flooring splinter.

Self-polishing wax shines floors in half the time of a regular wax without the added chore of buffing. It is recommended by flooring experts for rubber and asphalt tile floors and linoleum, but not wood.

Regular care is the secret of a beautiful floor. Proper care is simple and inexpensive. A waterless cleaner that leaves a protective wax film is best for hardwood floors.

Either petroleum type paste or liquid waxes are good, but liquids are easier to apply and shine.

After a floor is cleaned and waxed it requires little attention. Daily dusting with a dry mop is enough. It is better to use a mop rather than broom because the later's bristles wear down the wax coating.

Nicol had questioned the legality of the election before it was held. He claims it was invalid because Sparta voters have not been registered since the city's population passed the 5,000 mark in 1940.

If the governor fails to act, Nicol said he'd start a court suit challenging the vote's legality, on the grounds that state law required cities over 5,000 to register their voters.

Nicol, a write-in candidate, was defeated by incumbent Mayor H. H. Williams Tuesday.

Hawkeyes Down Arkansas Tech, 7-1

Make Clean Sweep Of Two-Game Play

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
RUSSELLVILLE, ARK. — Behind the five-hit hurling of Dick Orth, the Iowa Hawkeyes swept their two-game series with Arkansas Poly, 7-1, here Thursday.

The win gave Coach Otto Vogel's crew a record of four wins in five starts on their current southern tour.

Orth appeared in good form striking out seven hitters and became the third Hawkeye pitcher to go the distance this spring. Another left-hander, Dick Hoeksema was the first when he whipped Arkansas Teachers, 13-3, Monday. The following day, Glen Drahn tossed a three-hitter, but lost a 1-0 decision to the same team.

Arkansas Poly scored its lone tally in the fifth inning on a single, walk and an infield out.

Iowa's big inning came in the same frame with five runs scoring. Jack Dittmer doubled home two of the tallies after Rex Vana was hit by a pitched ball and Bob Christoph drew a pass. Right fielder George Hand cracked a triple to score Dittmer. Merlin Kurt, first-baseman, later singled and scored on an infield miscue for the fifth run of the inning.

Murland Moran was mainly responsible for the first two Hawkeye runs. In the first inning, he singled home Vana who had led off with a double. After singling again in the third frame, Moran crossed the plate on a double-steal.

Iowa continues its tour of Arkansas today when the Hawks move to Clarksville to open a two-game series with College of the Ozarks. Monday, they head back toward St. Louis to meet Concordia before returning to Iowa City Tuesday for their first home game against Notre Dame.

With two more hits Thursday, Jack Dittmer continued to pace the Hawkeye batters. Eight hits in 21 trips to the plate gives him a .380 batting average.

The mound corps, expected to be the big weakness of the 1950 Iowa team, has shown better form than was expected in early games. How it will stand the strain against Big Ten competition still has to be decided, however.

Northwestern Picks New Cage Mentor

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold G. Olson, for 24 years basketball coach at Ohio State, was appointed basketball coach at Northwestern Thursday succeeding Arthur (Dutch) Lomborg.

Olsen, who won five Big Ten basketball championships at Ohio State, left there in 1946 to become executive vice president and coach of the Chicago Stags in the Basketball Association of America, which he resigned a year ago.

Lomborg recently resigned to become athletic director at the University of Kansas. Lomborg's duties as assistant football coach will be filled by Robert P. Reihnen, Evanston Township high school football coach. The appointments of Olsen and Reihnen were announced by T.B. Payseur, Northwestern athletic director.

Olsen has been prominent in basketball circles for a quarter century. He originated the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball tournament and is former chairman of the NCAA basketball committee.

Stalcup to MSC...

Stalcup had a four year record at Missouri of 54 wins and 43 defeats. This last season his team won 14 and lost 10.

Stalcup is 39 years old and has fifteen years of coaching behind him. His overall record is 250 wins against 95 defeats.

Slammin' Sam Takes Up Sand Blasting

SLAMMIN' SAMMY SNEAD'S BLAST carries with it inches of the pin from a sand trap in the opening round of the 1950 Masters golf tournament at Augusta, Ga., Thursday. Defending champion, Snead had to be content with a 71 which was good enough for a third-place tie with Toney Penna of Cincinnati. Skee Riegel, who just recently joined the pro ranks, led the field by firing a 69, Thursday.

Riegel Takes Lead in Masters

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP) — Swagging Skee Riegel, who recently gave up the life of a nomadic golf amateur to join the ranks of the pros, outdid all the money-winning tourists Thursday in the opening round of the 14th Masters tournament.

Riegel, who now hails from Tulsa, Okla., fired a round of 33-36-69 early in the day and made it stand up as his more celebrated rivals battled the elements and the difficult Augusta National course on a chilly-windy day.

Playing as if he enjoyed every minute of the game, Riegel probably got some benefit of the weather as he took a one-stroke lead over the star-filled field. It was cloudy and chilly while he was playing, but the wind became even stronger and more biting as it blew the clouds away.

Four of the top-rank pros, including Jim Ferrier, who was paired with Riegel, and one younger player, shared second place one stroke behind. Besides Ferrier, they were two-time Masters winner Horton Smith of Detroit; Lawson Little, the Monterey, Calif., veteran; Gaily-garbed Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and 26-year-old Herchel Spears of Huntsville, Ala. Little said he played his "best round of golf," collecting an eagle three on the 15th hole.

Defending champion Sammy Snead, hampered by an aching back as well as the weather, had a 71 to share the next spot with Toney Penna of Cincinnati. Popular Johnny Palmer of Baden, N.C., was the only one who exactly matched par 36-36 — 72 for the tree-lined, rolling 6,900 yard course.

The sentimental favorite, Ben Hogan, still not fully recovered from his near-fatal automobile accident over a year ago, came in PAST WINNERS OF THE MASTERS GOLF TOURNAMENT lined up for an introduction to the gallery Wednesday at Augusta, Ga. First strokes in the 14th Masters journey were fired Thursday.

Dodgers, Red Sox Best Bets to Win This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Red Sox were established betting favorites Thursday to win the Major League baseball races.

In the first line released by New York oddsmakers, the Dodgers were made a 6 to 5 choice to repeat in the National League. The Red Sox, losers to the New York Yankees in a last day 1949 finish, were quoted at 7 to 5 to win the American League pennant.

The St. Louis Cardinals were rated second in the National and the Yankees second in the American, both at 2 1/2 to 1.

Globetrotters Troupe College All-Stars, 72-60

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Harlem Globetrotters mixed enough basketball with their clowning to defeat the College All-Stars, 72-60, in the fifth game of their "World Series" here Thursday night.

The victory, the third for the Globetrotters, was played to a capacity crowd of 9,700.

Erwin Robinson bucketed nine field goals and a free throw to pace the Globetrotter attack.

Don Rehfeld, University of Wisconsin ace, hit 21 points for the All-Stars.

Freshmen Awards

The names of eight freshman numeral winners in basketball were omitted from the story of Iowa sports awards Tuesday. The additional winners were: Robert Diehl, Iowa City; Leland Eschke, Gouverneur, N.Y.; John Fen-ton, Iowa City; Robert Gordon, Moline, Ill.; Gene Hettrick, Iowa City; Robert Hubbell, Rockford, Ill.; Richard Kennedy, Iowa City; and Richard Mau, Perry.

NCAA Officials Draft 6 Sanity Code Proposals

CHICAGO (AP) — Six undisclosed proposals for amendments of the controversial sanity code were drafted Thursday as National Collegiate Athletic association leaders ended a "meeting of mind on athletic practices throughout the country."

The proposals evolved from a two-day session between the NCAA's executive committee and representatives of 20 affiliated conferences.

Nature Not Revealed
NCAA President Hugh C. Willett of Southern California declined — at a news conference — to describe the nature of the proposals. But he said they ranged from "absolutely no change up to considerable additional aid for worthy athletes."

The proposals will be channeled to a three-man screening committee for submission to the NCAA's policy-making council in August and also will be reported to the NCAA's annual convention in Dallas next January.

Whether or not the council sees fit to accept or reject the proposals Willett said, the current meeting pledged to submit the findings to the annual convention. They may be placed before the convention in amendment form by their sponsors, Willett said.

Three Aims
Willett stressed that the six proposals culled from the commissioners all pointed towards three common aims. These are:

1. That athletes getting aid must be academically worthy both in college entrance and progress towards degree requirements;
2. There must be "positive and definite evidence aid recipients need assistance (no "across-the-board-grants"); and
3. All such aids must be administered by regular campus agencies.

Willett said the group was unable to arrange a vote on the proposals which were, he said, made in "rough note form." He also shied away from queries as to whether such a specific proposal was made as the southern bloc's known preference for free room and board for athletes. The present code restricts aid mainly to tuition only.

Moore Refuses Comment
Undoubtedly, the southern contingent's proposal was among the suggested amendments, although Bernie Moore, Southeastern conference commissioner, who said Wednesday he planned to make such recommendation, Thursday had no comment.

Close observers generally believe that the Dallas convention will wrap up enough of the recommendations to affect expanded aid.

The commissioners acted Wednesday and Thursday as a survey committee to activate the so-called Byrd resolution, Willett explained. The Byrd resolution, passed at the New York convention last January, called for a survey of athletic practices to determine the effectiveness of the present code.

Willett said the commissioners, well acquainted with regional problems of scholarship and campus and off-campus jobs for athletes, were able to do in round table discussion what would have required weeks and months of exploring on an individual basis.

Fans 'Herd' Wrong; BiNaggio, Not DiMaggio

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Post was swamped with phone calls Thursday from baseball fans who feared the great Joe DiMaggio had been gunned down by mobsters.

The Post telephone switchboard operator — a fan herself — was both frightened and bewildered. She said as far as she knew the DiMag was in St. Petersburg, Fla., with nothing more serious than a pulled calf muscle.

It developed that the reason for the big scare in the baseball world was the slaying in Kansas City of underworld figure Charles Binaggio.

Little Bob Bostwick — Uses Size to Advantage

— On Football Field

By JACK SQUIRE
The saying goes that a good big man is better than a good small one but it doesn't apply to Bob Bostwick, Iowa's pint-sized halfback.

At 5-foot-9-inches and 157 pounds, this mighty mite hardly is of gargantuan proportions yet more than one burly tackle has been sadly surprised by Bostwick's striking power.

Smallness in itself is no rarity even in the rugged Big Ten, but Bostwick radically departs from the conventional picture of the undersized back.

While most men of that limited poundage are of the slippery, scab-back variety, this former all-starer from Washington resembles a baby tank in action. More often than not, Bob will try to run over would-be tacklers, and surprisingly enough, frequently succeeds.

"I like body contact," said Bostwick in explaining his unorthodox tactics. "And don't think that being small is all a disadvantage.

"If nothing else, I have a psychological advantage over the big boys. It's only natural that a tackler thinks I'm going to be easy to handle so he kind of lets up. That's when I like to hit him with everything I have."

Bostwick should be held up as a brilliant example of what spirit overcome physical shortcomings.

He came to Iowa in 1947 and after a month on the freshman football team, aggravated a high school wrist injury which required his wearing a cast for six months. The mishap kept him out of spring practice that year.

Having seen such limited action in his freshman season, Bob was overlooked when invitations for the '48 varsity were extended. He reported on his own accord, however, and managed to stick on the squad, though never entering game competition.

Last season, the long arduous nights of practice finally paid off. It wasn't until mid-season that Bostwick got into his first college game, but by the end of the year, he was the number one left halfback, or close to it.

"Whatever success Bostwick has or will achieve will be because of his spirit and determination," Coach Leonard Raffensperger said. "It's awfully tough for a small man in this league and the only way he can make it is by working twice as hard as the next fellow."

Bob has never made any effort to increase his poundage. Rather, he concentrated on conditioning and building up speed.

"I've never fretted about my weight or size," he related, "because I've always felt that anybody who really wants to play can play no matter how big or small he is. In the end it all boils down to one thing — mental attitude."

Pickets Boo Greeting to Irish Prime Minister in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland, was "greeted" at Idlewild airport Thursday by some 300 jingle-chanting pickets with their Irish air.

As soon as the diplomat's plane pulled up on the runway, the pickets, some of whom had been waiting almost seven hours, rushed to the observation deck and began booing.

"If you wouldn't lose your pocket book, then keep your eye on Sir Basil Brooke," the "Loyal Irish" pickets chanted.

"There always will be an England while she can deal from the bottom."

Brooke, his wife, Lady Cynthia, and Chief Constable William Fanning of the Belfast police, the prime minister's bodyguard, arrived on a British overseas airways strato-cruiser at 1:35 p.m.

Brooke granted reporters a short interview while the special American airlines plane for his flight to Washington taxied up alongside the BOAC plane and his luggage was transferred. He was at the airport only 41 minutes before taking off for Washington.

The prime minister told reporters he was "not impressed" by the noisy reception.

The pickets were barred from the field but climbed on cars outside the fence to get a better view. They boomed and shouted: "Loyal Americans, buy America; don't buy British" as his luggage was loaded on the special plane.

Their boos reached a climax when the diplomat and his party walked the few yards between the two planes.

Some 35 city detectives, 40 uniformed policemen, several state department security officials and two men from Scotland Yard were on hand when Brooke arrived.

Brooke smiling and gracious, SUI's Economists Find Iowa Business Better During 1950

Iowa business activity in the first two months of 1950 was generally above the same period in 1949, according to SUI economists.

The only trend in the opposite direction, the economists reported, was the drop in the index of department store sales. In January, sales were averaging 4 percent lower than in early 1949.

The drop was attributed by the economists to lower prices rather than to lower selling volumes.

However, construction activity continues to boom. Contracts awarded for construction of all types early in 1950 were up 72 percent more than a corresponding period in 1949.

Business Digest
These findings were reported in the April issue of the SUI Business Digest.

Prices received by Iowa farmers have increased about 6 percent above the postwar low reached in December of last year.

The increase is due to higher prices being paid for hogs, cattle and calves, the Digest said.

However, non-farming employment has fallen below early 1949 levels. Mining and quarrying registers the sharpest drop — 16 percent.

Employment in the durable goods industries are 5 percent below last year's level. Wholesale and retail firms in February of this year were 3 percent above levels of a year ago.

SUI Soldiers Study Skills

MARTIAL LAW DOESN'T QUITE PREVAIL in all communication skills programs, but for Sgt. Walter Winborn, instructor at SUI's military department, it might just as well. Winborn, bivouacking in comm skills 1015, is one of seven military department members who attend various university classes in their spare time. These members, aiming at college degrees, future vocational or just "knowledge," are continuing the wartime zest for education among servicemen. Winborn took all the entrance examinations at SUI before enrolling for class instruction. He hopes the information will prove useful in the military classes he himself teaches at SUI.

ROTC Pulls Switch — Army Sheathes Swords

— Grabs Olive Branch

Seven members of SUI's military department, exchanging sword for olive branch, have given the authorization procedure, Hickman said he pays for the course himself.

Capt. Joseph Faimon, professor of air science and tactics, takes a special accounting course for engineers and pharmacists under the service plan. Faimon, an air force supply officer, was a pharmacist in civilian life.

Sgt. Frank Seider, also availing himself of education and information benefits, is enrolled in a beginning course in spoken Spanish, so he'll not be "caught short" if foreign duty claims him.

After taking courses in many other fields, Sgt. Glen Howard, also a military department instructor, signed up for an introductory psychology course because he had "very little knowledge" of the subject.

Near Degree
Howard, who needs only 40 hours credit for an SUI degree, hopes to finish here and receive a diploma under the GI bill.

Sgt. Walter Winborn lavishes his spare time on communications skills at SUI.

"I just wanted to know what the students had to go through," he said, after having taken a complete set of SUI entrance exams. "It probably will improve my knowledge of teaching."

The service information and education program, which defrays all or part of the cost for courses undertaken by military personnel, is fast becoming a permanent phase of military life, Van Horne said.

The program's appeal to servicemen generally diminishes once a war has ended, he added. However, both the army and air force have placed great emphasis on it following World War II.

Drunk Fish Fishy Story Holds In Traffic Rap

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — Police decided Thursday not to prosecute a traffic charge resulting from the drunk fish which needed sobering up.

A skeptical policeman wrote out a ticket for illegal parking Wednesday despite the "walking fish" sign in the window of the truck belonging to Paul Horn of Laurelville, Ohio.

Horn told officers at police headquarters this story: When he went to deliver tropical fish to a hotel aquarium, he found they had lost their sense of balance because of the rough ride in the tank truck. To sober them up, he put the fish in a net and "walked" them around in the aquarium.

He added that the fish died from lack of exercise because he had to rush to the police station to answer the traffic charge.

Archaeologists — Find Early 'Easter Eggs'

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian archaeologists scored early in the Easter egg hunt Thursday by uncovering two eggs which probably were hidden 5,000 years ago.

The discovery was made in unearthing ancient Egyptian tombs at Helwan, 15 miles south of Cairo. The tombs Wednesday yielded six bodies buried for at least 50 centuries.

Archaeologists Zaki Saad carefully picked up the pair of eggs from a casket containing the skeleton of a bird.

"I never heard of eggs being found before in such archaeological excavations," he said.

The eggs were not discolored and "looked like new." They were small, like all Egyptian hens eggs. The bird skeleton, however, resembled that of a Falcon.

Near the bird casket Zaki uncovered the bones of two dogs. Earlier he had found monkey graves. These were discovered close to the grave where archaeologists found a man's body wrapped in a piece of fiber matting, with grass rope wound around the matting to keep the body and the matting together.

The matting and the rope had remained intact for 5,000 years of burial in the sand.

In the same grave archaeologists found earthen jars filled with food. The contents long since had disintegrated but traces remained. These will be analyzed.

Campus Census Counts 3,000 Laggards

The SUI campus was deserted Thursday as most students were home, or homeward bound, for the Easter holiday.

A few stragglers were leaving late Thursday evening, but reports from housing units indicated the census for the long weekend would be under 3,000.

Quadrangle officials said about 200 men would stay there during the holiday.

Most fraternity and sorority houses were closed. Those few open had only one or two persons remaining in town.

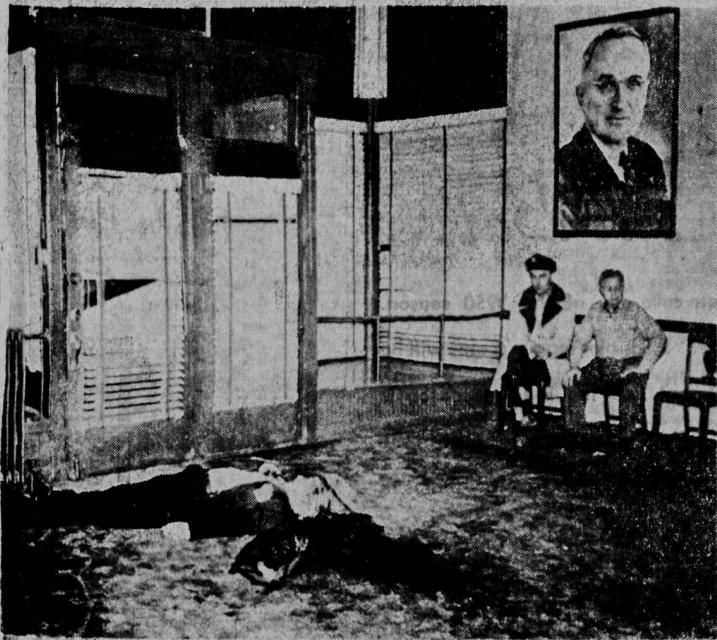

Forty women remained at Currier.

Rocket Authority Convinced Flying Saucers Really Exist

MONTVALE, N. J. (UP)—Willie Ley, one of the world's outstanding authorities on rockets and flight above the stratosphere, said Thursday he is firmly convinced that "flying saucers" have been winging across the U. S.

Ley, a founding member of the German rocket society from which Nazi Germany drew scientists to produce the rockets which bombarded Britain, said the "saucers" probably are U.S. military secrets.

"One thing I can say in a loud and clear voice," Ley said. "Flying saucers are not rocket propelled. If they are, they have the worst possible shape for speed and efficiency."

But, he said, it is entirely possible and probable that the U.S. has learned how to send them soaring over the nation in controlled flight.

"The answer whether discs can fly is simple," he said. "When I was a student, we used to make flat round paper discs sail through the air just by throwing them. Anyone can learn how to throw such a disc 100 feet or more," he said.

The problem facing engineers would be how to control and sustain the flight. One of the secrets, he said, could be that the discs do not really fly.

"I don't think the flying saucers which have been seen really fly in the sense that a bird or an airplane fly," he said. "I do think they fly only in the sense that a projectile fired from a gun flies."

He said although he has never seen a flying saucer, he is convinced there are such things because they are possible to build and because "a large number of honest witnesses have seen them."

"There are three possibilities," he said. "One is that they are a U.S. military secret.

"The second is that they are the secret of some foreign power, presumably enemy. They can't be stupid enough to test them over an enemy's territory. So that is discounted.

"The third is that they are from some other planet. Even assuming that some planet has learned to use atomic energy in a different way from us, the size of the saucers would make their range insufficient to make a direct flight to any other planet. From observations scientists have made, we must discount the tales that small green men are piloting the saucers.

"That leaves only one of the possibilities. I believe the saucers are a military secret and there's not much that can be done about it."

Bride's Death Natural; GOP - Demos Unite to Save Foreign Policy

Not by Cold Tablets, Coroner's Jury Says

CHICAGO (AP)—A coroner's jury ruled Thursday in a case watched closely by medical circles that a young bride believed to have "swallowed an overdose of anti-histamine cold tablets died of natural causes.

The jury found that Mrs. Marjorie Covington, 28, Detroit, who died in her honeymoon hotel room here last Jan. 3, suffered "acute heart failure accompanied by purulent sinusitis."

A report by Dr. W. J. R. Camp, University of Illinois toxicologist, said that a chemical and biological analysis of the body showed no trace of anti-histamine poisoning.

The case had attracted widespread attention and James W. Skipper, of the food and drug administration here, attended the inquest as an observer. Mrs. Covington's death had stirred a dispute over whether the FDA was justified in approving sale of the cold tablets without a doctor's prescription.

At an earlier session of the inquest, Dr. Thomas A. Carter of the coroner's office testified that he found an empty 15-tablet bottle of cold pills in the victim's hotel room, and a 25-tablet bottle with eight pills missing. Mrs. Covington's husband testified that his bride had taken some of the pills.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican foreign affairs leaders and the Truman administration joined hands Thursday to try to pull U.S. bipartisan foreign policy out of the hole and get it set up again as a going concern.

The state department announced that John Foster Dulles, New York Republican lawyer and veteran of 40 years in international affairs, had accepted appointment as consultant to secretary of state Dean Acheson — at the request of Acheson and President Truman.

In New York Dulles said he had decided to take the assignment because of the urgent need for national unity in the face of a Russian "threat" as grave as "any we have ever faced in a shooting war."

In Key West, Fla., Mr. Truman's vacation headquarters, press secretary Charles Ross said the chief executive is still looking for a man to name another state department job with the title of ambassador — at — large. It was understood here that man might be either a Democrat or a Republican.

Cleared by Truman
Dulles was chosen for the top level consultant job after Acheson, by authorization of the president, had conferred with Sen. Arthur Berg of Michigan, the ranking Republican member of the senate foreign relations committee. The arrangements were also cleared with Sen. Tom Connally (D-Texas), the committee chairman.

Dulles told reporters in New York that before making his decision he had consulted Vandenberg, Sen. Irving Ives (R-NY), Sen. Alexander Smith (R-NJ), and Rep. Joseph Pheiffer (R-NY). All of them, he said, "concur in the course I am taking."

Holy Bandit

To Holdup Jobs Bible Pupil Confesses

LOS ANGELES — A confessed bandit who now is preparing for the ministry repaid his holdup victims Thursday plus 6 percent interest.

S.A. Witmer, president of the Ft. Wayne, Ind. Bible institute, wrote Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz that an institute student, Albert Luseumb, had confessed to two holdups here in 1946 shortly after his discharge from the armed service.

Witmer wrote that Luseumb held up a Pacific Electric bus in Tarzana, Cal., getting $5 and later robbed Robert Gray, a Tarzana feed store owner of $140. In both robberies, the youth carried an unloaded pistol.

In Witmer's letter were two postal money orders — one to Gray for $170.25 and the other to the Pacific Electric for $5.68, which included repayment of the loot and interest.

"In making this known to you," Witmer wrote the sheriff, "we and he realize the implications for him. We do, however, believe that his rehabilitation and voluntary confession deserve your consideration."

Biscailuz said he would consult with the police department and the district attorney's office to determine what action will be taken.

Iowa Peace Officers' SUI Short Course Set for July 10 to 14

The fourteenth annual peace officers' short study course will be held at SUI July 10 through July 14, according to Prof. Richard J. Holcomb, head of the SUI Institute of Public Affairs' bureau of safety instruction.

The purpose of the course, Holcomb said, is to give practical training to men engaged in law enforcement work in Iowa.

Forty — one hours of instruction will be presented in the course by men who have had long experience in law enforcement and instruction.

This year, four special classes will be offered in the course. They are basic investigation, advanced investigation, basic general police and advanced general police.

The basic classes are for officers new at police work or as a refresher course for other officers.

The advanced investigation class is limited to 25 men and will study, specifically, homicide investigation.

The advanced general police class will study road blocks, notable Iowa crimes, rescue work, mental illnesses and drownings.

The short course is sponsored by the Iowa department of public safety, the attorney general of Iowa, the Iowa Sheriffs' association, the Iowa Association of Chiefs of Police and the Iowa State Policeman's association.

Ex-Michigan Mayor Gets Prison Term

WASHINGTON (AP)—William W. Voisine, former mayor of Ecorse, Mich., was sentenced Thursday to serve from eight months to two years in prison for lying to a congressional subcommittee about his activities in the steel "gray" market.

Sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff, who commented that perjury is "a crime that saps the very vitals" of democratic institutions and is all the worse when committed by a "highly respected public official."

The 52-year-old Voisine, who is liable to a maximum sentence of five years, cannot apply for parole until he serves at least eight months. Holtzoff recommended that he serve his time in the Milan, Mich., federal prison.

Kraschel Won't Comment On Senate Bid Rumors
HARLAN (AP)—Nelson Kraschel, former governor of Iowa, said Wednesday night he had "no comment" on his decision concerning a bid for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. senate.

Kraschel said he would attend the Democratic $25 a plate Jackson day dinner in Des Moines tonight, but indicated he would announce his plans before the banquet.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IT OCCURS to me that I have been neglecting the kiddies lately. Here are a few stories to make up for it! There's the pupil, for instance, who was asked to discuss Lady Macbeth, and opined that she whispered to her ladies-in-waiting, "Girls, gather round and let me tell you all about my apparition."

A youngster at the Bronx Park Zoo was fascinated by the antlers on a herd of deer. When he spotted a doe in the enclosure, however, he yanked his mother's skirt and exclaimed, "Look at that one, mom! No fenders!"

Eight-year-old Randolph produced a ten-dollar bill at dinner one evening, and announced, "A man lost it on Park Avenue this afternoon." "How do you know it was a man?" asked the father. Randolph explained, "I saw him looking for it."

Mrs. Hunter, looking over the list of guests for her daughter's birthday picnic, was amazed to note that the name of little Emmy, best friend of the celebrant, was conspicuously absent. "We had a fight," explained the daughter, "so I didn't ask her." "That's outrageous," declared Mrs. Hunter. "You go over and invite Emmy this very minute." The daughter did as bidden, but reported cheerfully, "She says it's too late, mommy. She's already prayed for it to rain on the day of the picnic."
