Hess Denies Inheriting Large Amount in Grandfather's Will

Geoffrey L. Hess, former SUI student who was sued Thursday for $12,500 for injuries he allegedly inflicted on Robert Seydel, 618 E. Jefferson street, Friday denied that his inheritance from the late Lincoln Hess is "anywhere near" the amount quoted by Atty. Clair Hamilton.

Hamilton, representing Seydel, said Thursday Hess is the heir by will to one-third of the property in the estate of his deceased grandfather which is valued at about $45,000.

Hess claimed he couldn't specify the exact amount of his inheritance, but said it was "way under" Hamilton's estimate.

Hess has been charged with assault with intent to maim Seydel, 18, at the D & L restaurant, 10 N. Dubuque street, last Sunday. Witnesses said Hess shattered a water glass on the counter and slashed Seydel at least twice in the face with jagged edges.

Hess was freed by police Sunday on $2,500 bond, posted by his attorney, William J. Hayek. The 28-year-old former student also waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the Johnson county grand jury, which convenes in May.

Hamilton Thursday requested a writ of attachment against Hess' Iowa City property for the amount of Seydel's suit.

Disciplinary Committee
Hess, an SUI freshman, withdrew his registration from SUI Tuesday, M.L. Huit, counselor for men in the Office of Student Affairs, said Hess would have to meet with a disciplinary committee or the dean of students before he could be readmitted.

Hess said he talked with Huit Friday concerning his status but was unable to see Dean of Students Walter R. Goetsch. Hess said he doubted the "disciplinary order" would be revoked.

The accused youth added he plans to stay in Iowa City until the grand jury convenes in May.

Army Service
Hess said he was born in Guatemala. He came to Iowa City to live in August, although he said he had been here before on visits to his grandfather.

He said he served in the U.S. army for a year and a half, with the coast artillery and army intelligence. He was stationed in the Panama canal zone and was discharged with a staff sergeant's rating, he said.

Hess said Friday that his father was a graduate of SUI's college of engineering, and that his mother is now in England.

U.S. Shuts Down Czech Chicago Consul General
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States hit back Friday at an anti-American campaign in Communist Czechoslovakia with an order closing down the Czech consulate general in Chicago.

The newest development in the American tit-for-tat policy toward the Soviet bloc was in retaliation for Czechoslovakia's shutdown of the U.S. information service.

At a news conference Friday afternoon, Secretary of State Dean Acheson said Czechoslovakia's "quarrel is with the truth" rather than with the U.S. information service or the "Voice of America" radio.

Party Chairmen Ask For Full Attendance At Local Caucuses

Johnson county's Democratic and Republican chairmen Friday requested full attendance at the precinct caucuses to be held by the two parties Thursday and Friday nights respectively.

The caucuses represent a first step toward selecting delegates to the two state conventions this summer, at which some key state or national candidates for the fall election may be selected.

Both Democratic Chairman Edward W. Lucas and Republican Chairman William F. Morrison emphasized the importance of precinct caucuses to the success of representative government.

Demos Meet Thursday
Democratic caucuses for nine Iowa City precincts and 22 rural precincts will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the county courthouse at Iowa City, Lucas said.

Morrison said individual Republican caucuses will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the various Iowa City precinct polling places and in the rural townships.

The Democratic caucuses will select delegates to the state convention.

Morrison said the Republican caucuses are designed to select candidates for precinct committeemen and committee women for the June 5 primary election ballot.

To Choose Delegates
The Republican caucuses also will choose delegates to the Republican county convention to be held in Iowa City June 30.

Morrison said Friday he has decided to increase the apportionment of delegates for the county convention. The former ratio of one delegate to every 50 votes cast for the Republican candidate at the last general election now will be one delegate for every 25 votes cast, he said.

Lattimore Denounces Budenz Testimony
WASHINGTON (AP)—Owen Lattimore Friday derided charges that he was a member of a Communist cell and scoffed at Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) as a man whose knowledge is limited to "what he has learned from Charlie Chan movies."

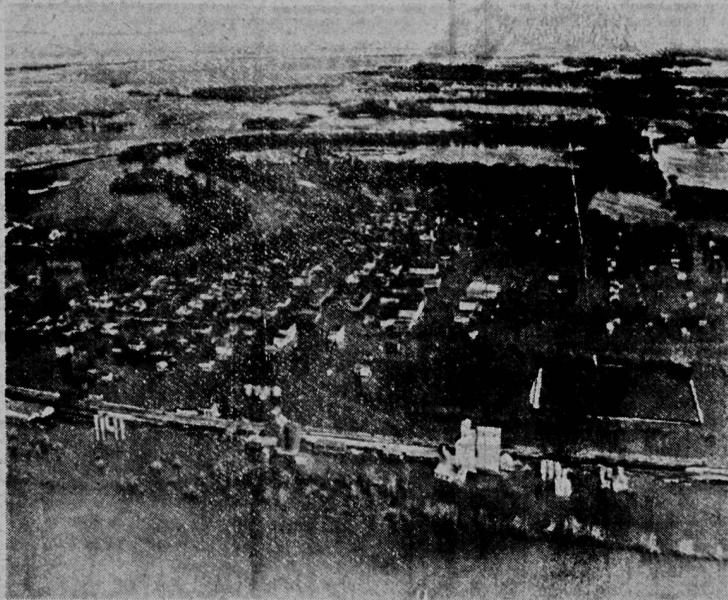

Cited by McCarthy as the No. 1 Soviet spy in the United States, Lattimore directed some of his sharpest barbs at former Communist Leader Louis Budenz, who swore before a senate investigating committee Thursday that Lattimore helped direct an American-hatched Red plot to betray China to the Communists.

Lattimore, a professor at Johns Hopkins university and onetime state department consultant on far east affairs, told newsmen that Budenz' testimony was "gossip and hearsay."

Although his main target is Lattimore, McCarthy has carried on a running attack for the last two months against the state department, which handles the navy's policing activities.

This is the first time Rowe has sought election to public office. He is married and the father of four children.

CONFERENCE CHANGED
WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House press conference, which has been held in the White House since the days of Woodrow Wilson, will not be held there any more. The conferences will be held in a big room in the old state department, next door to the executive mansion.

Nature Draws a Design as Red River Floods

MINNESOTA'S FAMOUS RED RIVER was playing a sour note when this aerial photo was snapped showing the river's rampaging waters as they completely engulfed the small village of Oslo. The northwestern Minnesota town with a population of 400 was flooded in nearly every section by the river's highest waters in half a century. The Red winds a twisting pattern through the trees in the background.

Democrats to Test Farm Plan Strength In Senatorial Race

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa will be the testing ground for the Democratic administration Brannan farm plan, by the Democrats themselves.

That was assured by the announcement last week of former Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel that he will be a candidate in the June 5 primary election for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator.

The 60-year-old Harlan auctioneer said his campaign would be based on opposition to the controversial farm plan of U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan.

Kraschel said he preferred going forward with the basic farm plan inaugurated by the Roosevelt administration in 1933, with a bi-partisan board to direct the program.

Previously entered in the race was Albert J. Loveland, Janesville farmer, former Iowa production and marketing administration committee chairman, and former U.S. undersecretary of agriculture.

When he announced his candidacy early in March Loveland said his strong point would be advocacy of the farm plan authored by his former chief. Some of his now six opponents called him the administration candidate.

While President Truman is wrestling across the state early next month he may make a bid for support for the Brannan plan, in informal speeches from the rear of his train. The farm vote is conceded to be a major factor in Truman's victory in Iowa in 1948, one of the few times a Democratic presidential nominee has carried Iowa.

Kraschel pointed up the forthcoming test on the Brannan plan when he said in making his announcement: "My being in the campaign gives the members of our party an opportunity to have a free choice on this particular issue (Brannan plan)."

Iowa was a pivotal state in the 1948 presidential election because the administration wanted a clear Democratic majority in congress.

800 Couples Sway To Beneke's Band At Tri-Dorm Dance

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP)—Federal agencies swung into action Friday night to help flood-stricken communities and families in North Dakota.

They joined the Red Cross, already providing emergency food and lodging for thousands of homeless persons in North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota, in combatting the effects of the area's worst floods in decades.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation at Washington late Friday declared all of North Dakota a disaster area and said RFC loans will be made available for repairing flood damage.

Meanwhile, in Minneapolis, Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Nelson said he has alerted Minnesota's national guard for immediate movement into flood-stricken parts of the state should the situation warrant it.

Nelson, Minnesota's adjutant general, who just returned from a survey of the flood area, said, however, that he believes no such emergency measure necessary at the moment.

Iowa Citian Begins 10 Year Sentence

Oscar Anderson, 63-year-old former Iowa City steeplejack, was taken to the state penitentiary at Fort Madison Friday morning to start serving sentences totaling 10 years.

Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy accompanied Anderson, who Wednesday morning pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve five years each for assault with intent to commit manslaughter and for carrying a concealed weapon.

The former steeplejack was charged with the shooting of Clifford Kelly in the Strand cafe April 22, 1948. Kelly was paralyzed below the waist as a result of the shooting.

Anderson's guilty plea in district court Wednesday ended two years of litigation in the court. The state had originally charged assault with intent to murder.

NEW AMBASSADOR NAMED
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman was reported Friday to have chosen Stanley Woodward, a close friend and state department official, as the new ambassador to Canada.

Jury Convicts Ex-Wife in Georgia Shooting

ATHENS, GA. (AP)—Attractive 45-year-old Mrs. Kathleen Merry Drewry was sentenced Friday night to two to four years in prison for the pistol shooting of her ex-husband's sweetheart.

The jury which received the case late Friday afternoon found her guilty of assault with intent to kill. The jury of 12 men deliberated only four hours.

Mrs. Drewry, who pleaded that she was driven insane by the double love life of scholarly, 45-year-old University of Georgia Journalism Dean John E. Drewry, burst into tears at the verdict.

Wielding an old family pistol with both hands, Mrs. Drewry fired five shots last Dec. 23 into the dean and Miss Thurmond.

Mrs. Drewry had unfolded a lurid story of the dean's "abnormal sexual demands" on her before their divorce last summer. Then she told of intimate relations with the educator after the divorce, and charged him with a "sordid love affair" with 26-year-old Miriam Thurmond, his bride of a month.

The dean and his second wife indignantly denied all of Mrs. Drewry's charges of intimacies before their marriage.

Her conviction Friday night was for shooting Miss Thurmond. She faces a second count of assault with intent to kill the dean.

Women spectators at her three-day trial, the spiciest in the history of this quiet college town, also began crying.

Mrs. Drewry's attorneys immediately filed a motion for a new trial and the judge set July 8 for a hearing, releasing the dean's ex-wife on $5,000 bond.

U.S. Airforce C-54 Crashes In Japan, 35 Believed Killed

TOKYO (SATURDAY) (UP)—A U.S. airforce C-54 plane carrying 35 persons crashed into a mountainside and burned 60 miles south of Tokyo Friday night and all aboard were believed to have been killed.

An official here said the passengers were believed to have included several members of an allied headquarters trade mission which had been scheduled to return to Tokyo Friday night from Manila after negotiating a Japanese-Philippines trade agreement.

Officials said the plane carried 27 military and civilian passengers and eight crew members. All of them were believed to be Americans.

In Manila, the Philippine foreign office confirmed that four members of an allied supreme command (SCAP) mission that negotiated a trade agreement there were believed to have been on the plane.

An early announcement by the airforce said the plane crashed on Shining God mountain, near Sacred Mountain Fuji, 75 miles south of here.

Later, however, the Japanese national police said the plane's wreckage had been found on Hirugatake mountain in the Tanigawa range about 60 miles south of Tokyo.

A U.S. headquarters official said there was a possibility that one member of the party did not board the plane when it left Clark field, Manila, Friday.

An airforce spokesman said the plane was en route from the Philippines to Tokyo by way of Okinawa. In its last report at 11:08 p.m., the plane radioed that it was over the island of Shima, 40 miles south of the Japanese coastline.

Academy President Tells of Scientists' Social Responsibility
Scientists share the responsibility of informing the public of the ways in which science affects the daily lives of laymen.

That was the message of Prof. J.W. Culbertson, president of the Iowa Academy of Science, in the opening address of the academy's Friday.

Culbertson, head of the Cornell college chemistry department, said it is vitally important to take a definite interest in the social implications of scientific work.

SUI's contribution is the famed Marengo Experiment, conducted by the college of education and scientists here.

Scientific inquiry into social relations are essential if scientists are to express themselves intelligently on social, political and economic questions, Culbertson said, suggesting that scientists even enter the field of politics.

Prof. Alfred E. Emerson, University of Chicago zoology department, said an understanding of the harmonious living of the lowly insect will aid science to better understand humans as social beings.

The conference continues today with the academy meeting in eight sections, representing different fields of science.

California Regents Drop Loyalty Oath

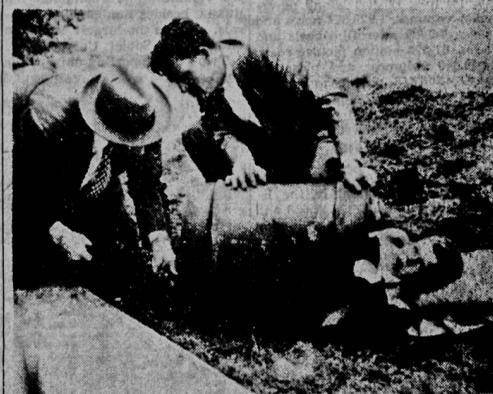

DAVIS, CALIF. (AP)—Regents of the University of California voted 21 to 1 Friday to discard the controversial special loyalty oath for university employees and accept a compromise proposal drafted by the council of the California Alumni association.

The alumni council, representing 36,000 graduates of the state university, simultaneously submitted the proposal of the academic senate and was assured in advance that it would be accepted by that body.

The lone dissenting vote Friday was cast by Regent Lawrence M. Gianhini, head of the Bank of America, who called the compromise "a victory for communism" and said he was prepared to resign from the board of regents if the proposal was approved.

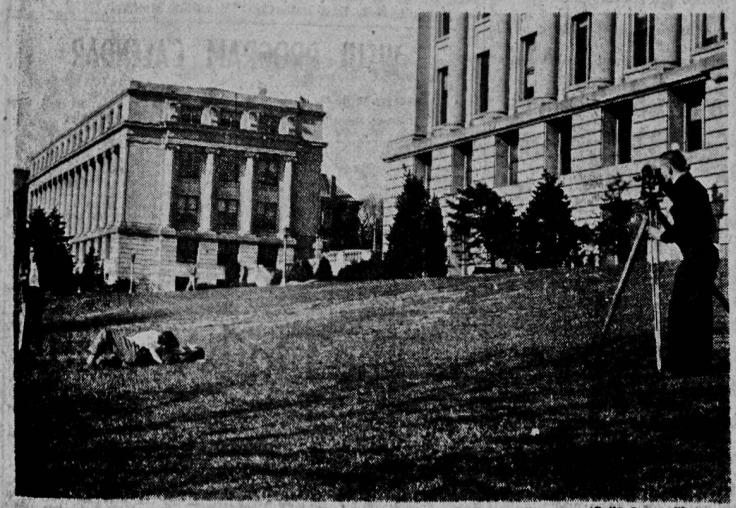

He added he planned to form "a group of 20th century vigilantes to uncover and expose communism in all its sordid aspects."

'I Shoulda Stood in Bed'

OH TO BE SKINNY AGAIN. Five-year-old Barrick Wilson, Jr. of Kansas City went on a strict reducing diet Friday after being freed from this trap Thursday afternoon. Playing in a garage he found a 30 gallon oil drum and tried it for size. It fit. In fact it fit so well firemen and deputy sheriffs had to be called to aid in the rescue. The boy was eventually freed by his grandfather Lewis Wilson (left) and a neighbor Ralph Renne (center) who used a chisel to open the bottom of the drum and then pushed young Barrick loose.

'You Too Can Take a Survey'

(Daily Iowan Photo)

NEITHER ENGINEERS NOR A RECORD LOW TEMPERATURE Friday could interfere with two SUI students who were struck early by spring fever. An afternoon sun took some of the bite out of the record low of 23 degrees above zero for April 21 in Iowa City. The annual spring scene of students basking in the sun during out-of-class hours began to appear on the campus. Friday's low broke the 25-degree record which was established in 1907. Despite the new low, however, the mercury rose steadily during the day to a reading of 59 degrees at 5 p.m. The skies were cloudless throughout the day to a "summer preview." U.S. weather forecasters predicted about the same formula for today with temperatures not quite so low. A possible high of 60 degrees was predicted, with a low for tonight about 35 degrees.

Different Colored Horses -

(As far as we know, the following conversation never took place. Mr. Smith is a composite of millions of American taxpayers and voters. His 10-year-old son Johnny could be any man's son with a penchant for asking embarrassing questions.)

JOHNNY: Daddy, what is a budget?
SMITH: Why son, that's something that shows how much money a person spends and how much he has that he can spend.
JOHNNY: Do you and Mommy have a budget?

SMITH: Certainly, everybody has a budget of some kind.
JOHNNY: What did the man on the radio mean when he said the country's budget wasn't balanced?

SMITH: He meant that the government is spending more money than it takes in. That's what they call an unbalanced budget.

JOHNNY: Gee, that's pretty good if it can do that, isn't it?

SMITH: Absolutely not! I believe in a balanced budget. If you spend more money than you take in you go into debt, and it has to be paid sometime. Every budget should be balanced.

JOHNNY: But then why isn't the country's budget balanced? Don't other people know that too?

SMITH: Oh, that bunch of fatheads in Washington think they can keep on getting money out of us taxpayers forever. They pay millions and millions of dollars every year to the farmers to grow things they just throw away anyway. The farmers think the rest of the people owe them a living.

JOHNNY: Yeh, I guess that's right. But Daddy, I thought you were always complaining because the government doesn't give the soldiers a—uh—bonus, or something.

SMITH: Well, sure, but that's different. We earned it when we fought in the war. We gave up a lot for our country.

JOHNNY: Gee, I guess that's right. But are the farmers the only reason the budget isn't balanced?

SMITH: No, that's only part of the reason. Most of the money is spent to keep the army and navy strong. You see, Russia has atomic bombs and we want to be sure we have more than they have.

JOHNNY: I see, sort of like when Mommy bought a fur coat 'cause Mrs. Jones down the street had one, huh? But how can they spend more money than they have? Where do they get the money?

SMITH: Well, one way is to borrow it, but then they have to pay interest.

JOHNNY: Sure, I know what interest is. That's what you have to pay every year because you borrowed money to build the house, isn't it?

SMITH: Well, yes. And then another way the government can spend more money than they have is by ordering lots of stuff now and hoping they can pay for it later.

JOHNNY: That's the way you and Mommy bought our new refrigerator, wasn't it, Daddy?

SMITH: Sort of like that, but then that didn't cost as much money.

JOHNNY: Daddy, is yours and Mommy's budget balanced?

SMITH: Well, as a matter of fact, no. We just have too many expenses, it seems.
JOHNNY: But Daddy, didn't you say every budget ought to be balanced?

SMITH: Definitely. Absolutely. But that's different.

Fables and Flying Saucers -

Paul Bunyan had called us to his cabin overlooking a valley up in the north woods to straighten out what he said was a false rumor that had spread throughout the country.

"Of course you have heard of the dismal sauger?" he said.

Yes, we replied, of course we remembered the fearsome sauger, and we remembered how the sauger and the hodag, the two most-feared beasts of the north woods, had fought to the death one dark night long ago.

"Well," said Paul, "it appears the sauger wasn't really killed. And in the past few years it has got crossed with a culture. Their offspring are overrunning the valley out here, and keep threatening to fly out into the outside world. You can see the havoc such a creature might create."

We shuddered and nodded assent.

"So I worked out a method to keep them from flying out of the valley. Whenever one of the big, slow beasts starts to fly up this way, I throw a whirling buzz-saw blade at it, just like a discus, and slice it right in two.

"The first one tried to escape in June, 1947, and in trying to hit it I sent several saw blades flying out over Mt. Rainier into the Pacific Ocean.

"Next day," Paul continued, "a cub reporter from one of the west coast papers came here to investigate. I told him not to worry; that I was keeping the flying saucers under control with my supply of saw blades.

"I didn't think any more about it until I saw a paper the other day, on one of my few trips to town. Apparently the reporter got the story all mixed up and called the buzz-saw blades flying saucers. To add to the confusion the paper even misspelled it so it came out 'flying saucer'.

"Now everybody knows there aren't any flying saucers. So I want you to tell people the flying saucers are under control and not to worry about a few buzz-saw blades that miss their mark and go sailing out over the country.

Well, that's Paul's story and he stuck to it. And who are you to doubt the word of Paul Bunyan of the north woods?

State Medical Bill Amounts to $3-Billion For U.S. Taxpayers

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States this year is spending nearly three billion tax dollars for various forms of state medicine. Nearly two billion of this is federal money, more than one billion is from state funds.

Those entitled to some part of this medical care total about one-sixth of the nation's population, if the new census lives up to the 150-million forecast. Active military forces are not included.

The great bulk of this state medicine is for 18,250,000 veterans. They are entitled to full care if they have service disabilities. Otherwise they can enter vet hospitals only if there are vacant beds and provided they swear they cannot pay the cost of private hospital care. They are entitled to treatment outside hospitals.

The remaining six to seven million fall into special classes. There are two million federal employees, entitled to industrial accident care. Four hundred thousand are Indians, with some Eskimos and Aleuts, who come in as government wards.

Presumably they are entitled to full care, but the regulations are not well-defined.

Nearly three-quarters of a million are the mental cases, feeble-minded and epileptics, who are cared for by states in state hospitals. There are also, in the state and federal dollar, children and aged.

There are 40 federal agencies which give some medical assistance to employees. Large federal services are the marine hospitals and other U.S. public health service activities.

Doctors working full time for federal or state pay total nearly 8,000. That is one-twentieth of the nation's active physicians. These state doctors do not furnish all the medical care for tax dollars.

Any veteran can receive treatment by a home town doctor, who is a private practitioner, provided authorization is given by the regional director having jurisdiction in that veteran's case. The veterans administration employs about 4,200 physicians of whom about 3,000 are in veterans hospitals. About 1,100 provide out-patient service and about 100 are stationed in the general office.

The veterans administration in 1949 paid $16.5 million to private doctors. About 75,000 private doctors have indicated willingness to take part in the veterans program outside VA hospitals.

The federal medical expense totals include building costs. They include numerous small items of aid to states. Whether this year's federal medical bills will be two billion or considerably less is in dispute. The Hoover report sets a billion-and-a-half.

The emphasis is not on the size of this year's federal - state medicine bill, but on the fact that it has increased about ten-fold in about ten years.

INSURANCE CHECKS ISSUED

Interpreting the News - Truman Seeks 'Truth Crusade'

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR. AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

President Truman has made a detailed appeal for mobilization of the nation's press in the cold war following its general inclusion in Secretary of State Dean Acheson's program for the "total diplomacy."

The President, addressing the American society of newspaper editors, makes clear his belief that, in addition to unifying the American people behind a bipartisan foreign policy, the American press can make its echoes heard abroad.

The things he says about the importance of doing so are the things we have heard all along. That America has truth on her side, and that a careful presentation of it will eventually penetrate to confused and misled people everywhere.

On the government's part, the President announced a new and intensified campaign by the U.S. information service, conducted in connection with diplomatic outposts abroad, and through the radio.

The importance of this program is attested by the efforts of Russia and her satellites to stop it. Russia has resorted to an extensive effort to jam the incoming radio broadcasts, at heavy expense both in money, equipment, and the sacrifice of some of her own broadcasting facilities.

There has been a pressure campaign against the U.S. information offices in every Communist-controlled country, Czechoslovakia being the latest to issue a "cease and desist."

All of this goes to prove the effectiveness of even the comparatively small effort which is now being made. I have told before in this column of watching the Germans flock into the British library amid the heaps of bomb ruins in Essen.

People in every Communist country where these little lamps burn on the road to liberty have braved official suspicion and even arrest to obtain information about the outside. But gradually, like western diplomatic representatives themselves, the offices are being frozen out. The totalitarian states cannot stand the glare.

In asking for the conscious support of the American press in this program the President overlooks one of the major problems. That is an adequate presentation of American policy by the government itself.

The American people themselves don't know, with regard to many facets of policy, what it's all about. Policy is frequently apparent in vague outline before it is announced, and later concrete efforts to explain come as "old stuff" and never overtake the vagueness.

Much policy has been a reaction to Russian pressure, coming about gradually, so that few understand how it got that way. I'll bet you fifty dollars to a doubt that not one American in a hundred — perhaps not one in a thousand — knows what the idea of "European integration" is. But they get angry because the Europeans don't come across if the U.S. paying the bills, asks them to.

There has been some improvement in this respect recently. But if American newspapers are to do the job the President asks, there has to be more frankness and more clarity, and better explanations of it at the top, on the everyday steps.

Meat Packing Firm Increases Production Of Hormone Drug

CHICAGO (AP) — Armour and company reported Friday that it is now able to produce ACTH, the rare "miracle" hormone drug, as fast as hospitals and clinics can learn to use it safely.

Armour President F.W. Specht, addressing the University of Chicago cancer research foundation, said that the meat-packing firm has stepped up production of the drug 30 times its original rate.

ACTH, formerly extremely scarce, has been credited with "dramatic" relief in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever and other stubborn diseases.

Three groups of doctors reported in the journal of the American Medical Association that ACTH was beneficial in the treatment of certain severe eye diseases, but of little or no value in polio cases.

Doctors at Henry Ford hospital, Detroit, said persons suffering from acute inflammatory cases of the eye "responded abruptly and favorably" when treated with ACTH. However, the AMA commented that results were preliminary and that further research was needed.

Specht said that ACTH, because of its powerful action was still limited to clinical research, but that Armour hoped within a few months to make the drug available to a "large number of hospitals for the most critical cases."

Iowa City Resident Gets 33-Day Term On 2 Traffic Counts

Clyde J. Albrecht, 24, who gave his address as 319 Iowa avenue, Friday in police court was sentenced by Judge Emil G. Trott to 33 days in jail for two traffic violations.

Albrecht was found guilty of reckless driving and fined $77.50, but chose 23 days in jail. He also was found guilty of driving a vehicle while his driver's license was revoked, and sentenced to 10 days in jail.

His license was revoked May 30, 1949, when he was found guilty of reckless driving, police said.

Ed Rinda, 1902 Morningside drive, filed the information against Albrecht and was congratulated for his courage and dutiful action by the judge.

"If more citizens followed Mr. Rinda's example, there would soon be fewer traffic violations," Trott said.

Raymond R. Berkey, 619 E. Burlington street was fined $22.50 and Robert K. Wolf, Cedar Rapids, was fined $17.50. Both fines were for speeding within the city limits.

Congressional Library Has 150th Birthday

WASHINGTON — When President John Adams picked up his pen on April 24, 1800, and signed a bill that provided $5,000 for the purchase of books necessary for the use of congress and for fitting up suitable reading quarters in the new Capitol under construction in Washington, that act created the Library of Congress.

Men who sponsored the bill during the last months that congress met in Philadelphia before moving to the new national capital along the Potomac, would probably be the most surprised today at results which their small beginning produced during the next century and a half.

The immensity of the Library of Congress today and the range of its services all over the nation and to many parts of the world amaze many Americans. Consequently, this is a good time to see what manner of library this is that starts its sesquicentennial celebration on Monday, April 24, and claims to be the largest library in the world.

Contents of the Library of Congress have grown to 27,560,873 pieces, according to a recent report by Dr. Luther H. Evans, librarian of congress.

Statistically minded folk will revel in the breakdown: 8,689,639 volumes and pamphlets, 14,320,000 manuscripts, 128,556 bound newspaper volumes, 1,928,574 maps and views, 76,809 microfilm reels and strips, 81,278 motion picture reels, 1,819,000 volumes and pieces of music, 305,848 phonograph records, 1,063,231 photographic prints, negatives and slides, 579,298 fine prints, and 668,732 photostats, broadsides, posters and miscellanea.

PUBLIC investment in the library has totaled $117,717,628 and annual maintenance of the library today costs each citizen about five cents.

The library's two buildings just east of the Capitol are the largest in the world devoted exclusively to library use. Their construction cost $15,130,656. They are built on 13 3-4 beautifully landscaped acres. They contain 250 miles of steel shelving and have capacity for expansion.

Books and documents are exchanged with numerous foreign countries, thus making an invaluable contribution to international understanding. The library received last year, for example, about 24,365 volumes from countries in western Europe.

for books with research value found in 713 libraries of the United States and Canada. This is regarded as "the most useful and most used bibliographical apparatus of its kind in existence."

Thousands of volumes with embossed types for the blind and "talking books" bring joys and instruction to thousands of blind persons all over the nation. The library cooperates with 55 lending agencies in all the states and territories.

The 11,320,000 manuscripts and the library's rare book room provide a working laboratory for numerous writers and scholars.

Special departments of the library bring together research facilities of great value. The Law Library is now believed to be the largest in the United States. The library's Hispanic Foundation prepares a "Handbook of Latin American Studies."

THE 2-million volumes and map sheets in the Map Division give the library the largest cartographic collection in the world. The 1,825,000 volumes and pieces of music and musical literature is also regarded as the world's most comprehensive collection.

The library has the largest collection of books on the Orient outside of China and Japan. Its 265,000 volumes and pamphlets on Russia, besides numerous periodicals, provide the largest collection outside the Soviet Union.

Two self-supporting units of the library are the photoduplication service and the recording laboratory. The most modern camera equipment can make up to 16,530,000 exposures a year. The recording laboratory possesses the best devices for capturing and reproducing sound.

The United States copyright office, of course, is in the library of congress, and the copyright process is the main source of acquisitions for the library.

THE LIBRARY'S large and efficient staff helps searchers find the information they desire. While congress, the White House, and other government agencies get top priorities for services, the library is also open to the adult public.

Week-end readers increased so greatly last year that additional rooms had to be opened for them, in addition to the large reading room.

Rarely are enough tickets available for the concerts and lectures in the library's Coolidge auditorium.

Americans everywhere have benefited in war and peace because the Library of Congress for 150 years has helped make information available to statesmen, journalists, authors, lecturers, and the general public—the people who make up America and who realize that our form of government requires that accurate information be made available to the people as a basis for our thinking and our decisions.

Doctors working full time for federal or state pay total nearly 8,000. That is one-twentieth of the nation's active physicians. These state doctors do not furnish all the medical care for tax dollars.

Any veteran can receive treatment by a home town doctor, who is a private practitioner, provided authorization is given by the regional director having jurisdiction in that veteran's case. The veterans administration employs about 4,200 physicians of whom about 3,000 are in veterans hospitals. About 1,100 provide out-patient service and about 100 are stationed in the general office.

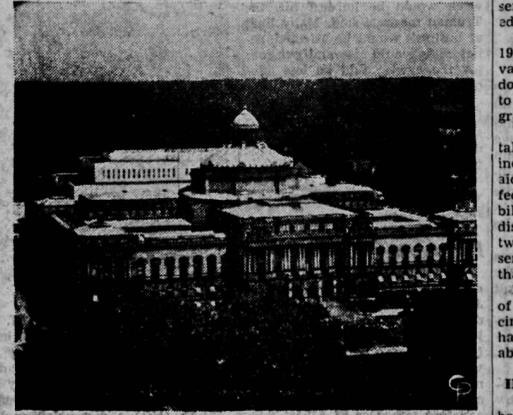

The veterans administration in 1949 paid $16.5 million to private doctors. About 75,000 private doctors have indicated willingness to take part in the veterans program outside VA hospitals.

The federal medical expense totals include building costs. They include numerous small items of aid to states. Whether this year's federal medical bills will be two billion or considerably less is in dispute. The Hoover report sets a billion-and-a-half.

The emphasis is not on the size of this year's federal - state medicine bill, but on the fact that it has increased about ten-fold in about ten years.

INSURANCE CHECKS ISSUED
WASHINGTON (AP) — Checks have been issued to more than 90 percent of the 14,500,000-plus veterans who have applied so far for GI life insurance refunds.

THE BIGGEST BRAIN reservoir in the world is the library of congress in Washington. The library celebrated its 150th birthday Monday. Public total investment in the library totals $117,717,628.

Veteran Hollywood Movie Actor Visits Iowa City

Played Doctor Role In 'Night Unto Night'

By TONY HUEBSCH

"That isn't Art Baker, the movie actor we just saw in the show, is it?"

"No, of course not."

"I'll bet you a quarter."

"It's a bet."

A middle-aged man with a deep suntan turned to the two girls talking at a nearby table in an Iowa City restaurant and said, "Better pay her the quarter."

Baker and the two girls had just come from the Iowa theater, where "Night Unto Night" was showing — one of 27 pictures in which Baker has played a supporting role.

The actor was in Iowa City Thursday night after visiting his daughter, a patient at the Oakdale sanatorium.

While waiting to catch a 10:45 train, he said he noticed "Night Unto Night" was here so he dropped in to see it to kill time.

"Seeing yourself on the screen is tough," he said. "You pick out all kinds of flaws."

"You ask yourself, 'Why do you move your head so much? Why so many flourishes when you light a cigarette?'"

Flaws are Small

Baker said he started criticizing himself when he saw his first picture, and by the 27th he was convinced he had become worse.

But it's only fair to Baker to say these flaws are little things most persons don't see.

Ethel Barrymore never saw one of her own pictures, Baker said. Baker is familiar to many movie-goers because he has been cast in many supporting parts.

"People don't know my name. It always comes on the screen after the word 'with,' when the audience is impatient for the show to start and doesn't notice names."

"But they always remember my white hair, dark eyes and tan face."

"It's common for someone to approach me in a New York restaurant and ask if I'm a certain Rotarian from Bangor, Me., or Dallas, Texas."

"When I say 'no,' they just nod their heads and say they have seen me before."

Baker, who was dressed in a light, spring suit, made fun of the difference between his movie roles and his radio roles.

"On my radio show — 'Art Baker and His Notebook' — I'm all sweetness. In the movies, I was always a heel until 'Night Unto Night.'"

He played a drunken politician in "The Farmer's Daughter" and a villain selling secrets to Russia in "Walk a Crooked Mile."

Ronald Reagan's Doctor

In "Night Unto Night" he was Ronald Reagan's doctor.

"Movies are funny," he commented. "Last week I received a wire to go to Hollywood to make some retakes on a picture filmed last summer."

MANY KNOW HIS FACE, but movie actor Art Baker's name is not so familiar. Baker was in Iowa City Thursday night after visiting his daughter, a patient at the Oakdale sanatorium. He stopped at a local theater to see one of his pictures, "Night Unto Night," and many were the whispers, "Is that the man who played Dr. Pool?" of dialogue."

He asked if there was a barbershop quartet society in Iowa City. He said he was searching for the best quartet in the west for his radio show (aired coast-to-coast over the American Broadcasting network).

The friendly, white-haired actor was full of pride when he spoke of his daughter, Virginia Shank (Shank is his real name), 29, who has been ill at the Oakdale sanatorium for ten years.

She has a terrific spirit in spite of her health, he said.

It was nearly train time, and as he got up to leave he smiled, shook hands with the reporter interviewing him and modestly remarked, "It's been nice talking to you."

Missionary to Tell Methodist Students Of Work in Africa

Darrell D. Randall, Lincoln, Neb., who has spent the last three years in missionary work in Africa, will speak to SUI Methodist students Sunday at 5 p.m. in Wesley house, 120 N. Dubuque street.

The Rev. Robert Sanks, Methodist student director, said Randall will tell of his experiences among the native peoples of interior Africa, especially those who have been "under the white man's care" in centuries — held colonial possessions.

Randall has made studies in the southern Congo, the central Congo, and the republic of Liberia. He spent most of his time, how-

He helped organize the "International club" in Johannesburg. The club is now a cultural center where representatives of different national and racial groups may meet and learn to understand each other on a non-political and non-denominational basis, Rev. Sanks said.

Many people in Johannesburg said that an "International club" could not exist there because of the "deep prejudices," but Randall helped make it possible, Rev.

Hoosiers Rally In 8th, Down Iowa, 5-4

Indiana Tallies 4 Runs in 8th

By HOBERT DUNCAN
A four run rally in the first of the eighth inning gave Indiana a 5-4 victory over Iowa Friday afternoon in the home conference opener for the Hawkeyes before 3,200 fans.

Dick Hoeksema, who had limited the Hoosiers to one run and four hits in the first seven innings, yielded four straight singles and the game winning double by Catcher John Gorkis in the eighth.

Looping Hit
Gorkis' looping hit into shallow left field drove in Gene Ring and Lou Watson who had both singled.

Iowa had what appeared to be a secure 4-1 lead going into the eighth. The Hawkeyes scored

Christoph advanced to second on Dittmer's hit, moved to third on an outfield fly and scored when McGee failed to touch first on a ball fielded by the first baseman.

Dittmer scored the third Iowa run in the fifth on an error, a single by Murland Moran, and an infield ground out. Merlin Kurt scored the last Hawkeye run in the bottom of the sixth inning on Sullivan's line single to center field.

Weber Wins

Bert Weber relieved McGee for Indiana to start the seventh inning and receive credit for the victory. He granted Iowa two hits and no walks in his three inning stint on the mound.

Hoeksema retired the Indiana side in order in four innings and was in serious trouble only in the disastrous eighth. He struck out five Hoosiers and issued two walks, one intentionally to Harry Ritter in the eighth.

Indiana scored its only other run of the game in the third inning. Dittmer, who didn't commit an error in conference play last season, booted Gorkis' ground ball to start the inning. McGee sacrificed Gorkis to second from where he scored on Woody Litz' single.

Defensive Play
Sullivan turned in the defensive play of Friday's game with a diving stab of Litz' line drive in the top of the ninth inning. Sullivan led Iowa hitters with three hits and a walk in three official trips to the plate.

Rush Hurls 2-0 Win Past Cards' Brecheen

CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Rush, hurling his way out of repeated jams in the early innings, outduelled Harry "The Cat" Brecheen to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in their home opener before 22,137 Friday.

Brecheen, who had previously won 27 out of 34 decisions from the Cubs, found his charm had run out. He allowed only three hits. But two were triples by Hal Jeffcoat and Wayne Terwilliger that led to runs.

Jeffcoat tallied while Brecheen was throwing out Hank Sauer in the fourth and Preston Ward's long fly christed Terwilliger in the sixth.

Only five Cubs reached the base lines, two via walks. In contrast nine Cardinals got on base on four hits, four walks and one error.

Only two ever reached third base. St. Louis' 000-000-000-0-0-0-0 Brecheen (6-1) and Garagiola; Rush (15-9) and Owen.

Tigers Clip Chisox To Remain Unbeaten

DETROIT (AP)—The unbeaten Detroit Tigers cashed in on a pair of homers Friday as they opened their home season by beating the Chicago White Sox, 4-1, before a chilled crowd of 44,642 fans.

The White Sox grabbed a one run lead in the fourth inning and hung on until Outfielder Johnny Groth tied the game at 1-1 in the seventh with a 360-foot homer into the left centerfield bleachers.

The Tigers broke the game wide open in the bottom of the eighth as Vic Werz tagged Pitcher Homer Haefner for a three-run homer into the right field stand.

Pitcher Virgil Trucks, who gave up only five hits, opened with a double.

Two away, the White Sox elected to walk George Klett to get Werz. The balding Tiger outfielder banged the 2-2 pitch for the four-bagger that broke up the ball.

Chicago 000-100-000 1-0-0
Haefner (6-1) and Salkeld; Trucks (9-0) and Swift. Home runs — Groth (1st), Werz (1st).

Working Girls' Imagination Too Much for 1950 Science

By JOHN DURNIAK

Modern science, for all its magic, just can't fulfill a working girl's idea of seventh heaven.

More than a dozen SUI secretaries were asked during a recent informal poll: "What machines would you like to see invented to make your office work easier?"

A university physics professor (who for security reasons, will remain anonymous) processed the answers and commented on the scientific possibility of inventing special contrivances which would embody the secretaries' ideas.

Science, the professor concluded, can't quite measure up to a working girl's imagination.

The inventions requested and the professor's comments were as follows:

1. A typewriter that has a key on it which erases mistakes when punched.

Comment: "Easy. Made very cheaply, also. The eraser key is one with a small circle that cuts out mistakes. You might not be able to type over it, but it's the perfect eraser and that's what they asked for."

2. Chemically treated paper which will turn black when a typewriter hits it, thus eliminating the use of carbons.

Comment: "It can be done. One hold back is that any knick might produce a mark. A solution might be made as in photography which would stop chemical activity of the paper right after typing on it. Just dip it in and hang the letters out to dry."

3. An electric eye on an of-

to have a sense of smell. Train him to wag his tail after smelling odors. The tail breaks an electric eye beam and a bell rings."

4. A machine that folds letters, stuffs them into envelopes, seals them, and carts them out to the mail box.

Comment: "Such machines exist. Big offices use them."

5. A typewriter you can speak

into and get typed letters the way you want them.

Comment: "Impossible! Sounds do not stand for the same letters all the time. The word or group of letters 'ghoti' can be pronounced 'fish.' That is, if the 'gh' is sounded as in the word 'rough,' the 'o' sounded as in 'woman,' and the 'ti' sounded as in 'nation,' Ghoti, fish."

6. Smokeless cigars and Turkish cigarettes for bosses who smoke them.

Comment: "Easy. They have invented smokeless gun powder so smokeless cigars and cigarettes should be easy. It might make the boss a little sick, but we won't worry about that."

7. A device into which you can recite appointment times and the kind of appointment it is to be. A few minutes before the appointment time the device should sound off and remind the secretary, thus eliminating memo pads and forgetfulness.

Comment: "Easy. Rig up a dictograph with a roll that plays back what is recorded on it when a clock mechanism sets it off at a designated time. It would cost from $200 to $400 to produce."

Sixteen persons, including Henry C. Shull, member of the state board of education, will be initiated into the order of Coif Thursday, the SUI college of law announced Friday.

Shull will be initiated to honorary membership. The other 15 are graduating seniors or former students of the SUI law school.

Regular members of Coif are selected on the basis of scholastic standing during their three years in law school. They must be in the upper 10 percent of their class.

Those selected for initiation Thursday are Robert C. Reimer, L3, Schleswig; Instructor Milo Smith, college of commerce, Aberdeen, S.D.; Marvin C. Hayward, L3, Independence; Mary Ann Diehl, L3, Davenport; Instructor Richard G. Huber, college of law, Charles City.

Claire Ferguson, L3, Des Moines; William E. Wallace, L3, Williamsburg; Donald H. Sitz, L3, Davenport; William R. Ruther, L3, Clarence; Lynn E. Rhoads, L3, Des Moines.

Edward J. Hartman, L3, Guthrie Center; Benjamin W. Brown, Shenandoah; Gilbert R. Caldwell, L3, Davenport; Prof. John C. O'Byrne, Iowa City, and Shull.

Supreme Court Justices

The Coif initiation is part of the Supreme Court day activities on the SUI campus Thursday. Iowa supreme court justices will be in Iowa City for the day.

The initiation will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol, Dean Mason Ladd of the college of law said.

New initiates will be honored at a luncheon in the Iowa Union at noon.

Ladd said of Shull, "We picked a distinguished lawyer in Iowa. This is the first time anyone not on the Iowa Supreme court has been elected to honorary membership."

Shull is a member of the Shull and Marshall law firm of Sioux City. He has been on the board of education for a quarter of a century, Ladd said, the last decade of which he has been president.

Shull is a former president of the Iowa state bar association and is active with the American bar association.

According to the petition, Smith owed a balance of $187.24 on the goods.

The company is seeking repossession of the goods or $187.24 plus the $100 damages and court costs and attorney fees.

'Standing Table' Helps Tots Walk Again

"JUST MY SIZE," says Morris Menke, 6, St. Paul, Ia., as he steps into the standing table in the physical therapy gymnasium at University hospitals. Ralph Sirmen, 4, Farley (left) and Joyce Kirkbride, 4, Hampton, (right) also are helping their polio-stricken bodies to become accustomed to leg braces while standing.

Exercise Pool, Braces Aid Polio Cripples

By MARY QUALLEY

A step forward — that's the aim of polio - crippled youngsters learning to walk again in the physical therapy department of University hospitals.

When a child's legs are paralyzed by polio, he is like a baby who must learn standing balance before he can begin walking. William Jahne, chief physical therapist in the Children's hospital physical therapy department, said.

A useful device for teaching such a child balance is the standing table" which combines the gaining of confidence with playing.

In this device, the child is encased in the "box" up to slightly above the waist. He can turn around, but is supported by the sides of the box and has no fear of falling. "It is important to teach the kids to be unafraid," Jahne said.

Molding clay and toys are within easy reach of the child in the standing table, so that he can get the feel of doing something while standing. Squeezing and shaping the clay helps strengthen his hands.

When the patient's leg muscles are weak, braces are sometimes applied to protect the joints and guard against stretching the ligaments which might cause the leg to be deformed. In the standing table, the child becomes accustomed to standing while wearing braces.

After he has learned standing balance, the child will be taught to use crutches with the aid of the braces.

Between July, 1948 and July, 1949, 27,536 treatments were given in the four therapy rooms. Located in the Children's hospital, the department has a gymnasium, two treatment and massage rooms and a hydrotherapy room containing a small pool.

Pool Treatment

The pool is about 10 feet wide and 15 feet long and is used early in the treatment of polio cases. When a child has been very sick he feels weak and is afraid of falling, Therapist Lucy Greteman explained.

The buoyancy of the water gives him a sort of psychological as well as a physical uplift as he sees how easy it is to move in the pool, she said. Often a child who can scarcely move a leg or arm before he gets into the pool, finds he has a full range of motion when that part of the body is submerged in water.

The water is kept warm and is about three feet deep. The children go into the pool in groups of five or six because it is more enjoyable for them, Miss Greteman said. Therapists work with the patients individually while they are in the water.

Hot Packs Used

All of the polio patients are treated regularly with hot packs until all the spasm (unnatural contraction of the muscles) has disappeared from the back and limbs. Exercise to strengthen the weakened muscles is undertaken after the spasm leaves.

The patient lies on a table, and a blanket containing the hot towel, forming the hot pack, is placed on his back, arms and legs, and allowed to remain until almost cool.

The therapy department of the Children's hospital unit has treated 118 new polio cases since July, 1949. All but two of these persons were under sixteen years of age.

The physical therapy department is also a training ground for prospective therapists and for women physical education majors interested in corrective work.

Although polio patients number high in the total of treatments, there are numerous other types of disability, cerebral palsy, scoliosis (crooked spine), strains, sprains and back disorders.

Building Permit Hearing Set

An application for a $100,000 building permit that would allow Landco, Inc., to build a 17 - unit apartment house at 315 Ellis avenue will be referred to the Iowa City board of adjustment in a hearing Wednesday.

L.C.W. Clearman and Robert J. Knoepfer, local attorneys, represent the firm. Its plans also call for off - street parking space for 19 cars.

City Engineer Fred E. Gartzke said Friday that since the proposed apartment house would provide less than 2,000 square feet of space per family, a permit cannot be granted unless the board of adjustment approves the application.

The 2,000 - square - feet minimum is set up by the local zoning ordinance.

Wednesday's hearing will take place in the city hall council chambers.

Prof. Frederic G. Higbee of the SUI school of engineering is chairman of the board, which includes five members appointed for five-year terms by the mayor with the city council's approval.

The Weaker Sex

MADISON, WIS. (AP) — Female robins are better than males in fighting for their territorial rights in springtime. The robins set up territories, and battle invader robins. Females won 73 percent of the fights in their own territory, as against 68 percent of fights won by the males, says a study by Howard Young, former zoology student at the University of Wisconsin. Both sexes suffered many more defeats when encroaching on another robin's territory, he said. Males did a bit better than females in fighting on strange terrain.

SUI Professor Returns From Washington Talks

Prof. John S. McNowen, research engineer for the Iowa Institute of Hydraulic Research, returned Thursday from Washington, D.C., where he had been called for consultation with the staff of the bureau of public roads and a section of the airfield branch of the army engineering department.

McNowen said the discussions were about "plans for tests in airfield drainage, which will lead to a gradual improvement in methods of airfield design."
