Dean Goetsch —

The flag that flies at half mast over Old Capitol today marks a sudden and tragic ending to the career of a man who played an important role in the lives of students and faculty of this university.

The death of Dean Walter R. Goetsch will be mourned by the entire university family.

The very nature of Dean Goetsch's job was a difficult one. Being disciplinarian for 10,000 students is an unenviable post, but Dean Goetsch conducted his office with integrity.

Out of his office, hub of extra-curricular student activities, came a policy of fairness that was seldom matched.

The saddened air that hung over the campus Monday was a tribute to a man who earned the respect of all who came in contact with him.

The university has lost one of its brightest lights. The students have lost a real friend.

Subversive Song and Dance? —

Mrs. Hester McCullough, Greenwich, Conn. housewife, testified last week that she "thought it was a good idea" to damage the reputations of Larry Adler, harmonica player, and Paul Draper, dancer. The testimony was heard in connection with a $200,000 libel suit the entertainers filed against Mrs. McCullough.

The Greenwich housewife has stopped at nothing to bankrupt Adler and Draper.

In December, 1948, Adler and Draper were scheduled to give a concert in Greenwich sponsored by the local concert association.

Mrs. McCullough protested she said she had read enough to know that Adler and Draper were "sympathetic to and probably members of Communist party fronts."

The association pooh-poohed her. Mrs. McCullough then called up Red-baiting Igor Cassini of Hearst's New York Journal-American and gave him the story.

Cassini said she would furnish her with information that Adler and Draper "supported eight or nine Communist front organizations."

Fortified with the list, Mrs. McCullough sent a letter to the Greenwich concert association. Said she, "... I deeply resent having any money from a community project in this town going into the hands of those unsympathetic to our democracy."

Columnist Cassini printed the letter, so did the Greenwich Times. The concert association called in Draper and Adler. Did they believe in overthrowing the government by force? "No," they said. Did they believe in making changes by a majority vote? "Yes," they said.

That was enough for the association. The concert was held and Draper and Adler filed a $200,000 libel suit against Mrs. McCullough on the grounds she harmed their professional careers by terming them pro-Communists.

To many it appeared that rather than being victims of slander, Adler and Draper were persecuting a patriotic, helpless little woman. Actually Mrs. McCullough is the wife of an associate editor of Time magazine.

Her only defense is to prove her charges are true. The evidence presented so far by her attorneys is shaky.

Draper and Adler admitted they had played for organizations listed as subversive by the attorney general. But they insisted they were connected with the organizations before they were listed as subversive.

As of now, it appears Mrs. McCullough bit off more than she can chew.

Chiang Kai-Shek Asks U.S. Aid for Formosa

TAIPEI, FORMOSA (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek called Monday for sanctions against Russia and asked the United States for aid to match Soviet help to the Chinese Communists.

With U.S. support, Chiang said, the Nationalists could defend their island base of Formosa, eventually recapture the mainland and halt the spread of international communism in southeast Asia.

Chiang, in a two-hour conference with visiting American newspapermen, said these factors would prevent the outbreak of a third world war in the far east.

China has called Russia an "aggressor nation" in the United Nations; Russia has walked out of many UN groups in protest against the presence of Nationalist delegates. Chiang said Monday the UN would be taking a "big step" in approving a "just" resolution against Russia in the UN China case—a resolution calling for sanctions.

He said free countries should "do all they can to fight against the aggressive action of any aggressor country and give all help to countries already fighting aggression, thereby fulfilling the obligations of the United Nations charter."

"In view of the fact the Soviet Russians are giving assistance to the Chinese Reds," he said, "any U.S. military aid should match the military assistance the Russians are giving the Chinese Communists. We do not expect more from the United States than the So-

GOP Farm Council Announces Program

DES MOINES (AP)—A seven-point farm program, developed by the Iowa Republican farm council, was made public Saturday.

The Republican Veterans League of Iowa which called the 38-member committee together last January to study the farm problem, released it.

The program includes proposals for a bipartisan agriculture board to govern policy making powers over agriculture and a long-range program of balanced exports of private capital to underdeveloped countries in the form of a capital export insurance program.

Campus Politics . . .

TO THE EDITOR: I herewith wish to take my one and only shot at critics of campus political groups. I want to reply to an objection often leveled at the very basis of the existence of these groups. I have been a member of one of the groups for three years so I do not speak without some experience.

The most consistent criticism is that the groups "do not do anything." Well what is considered — by most groups, at least — to be the prime objective of a campus political group? It is without doubt that of political education.

By that term, I mean the stimulation of interest and participation in politics by the students of the university in order to help provide our country with an intelligent electorate and enlightened leadership. Thus, this prime objective of political groups is a close ally to the end objective of a college education itself — that of developing well-rounded citizens.

I am not trying to show that this will be accomplished in a campus group but it is certainly a step in the right direction. Many students who are sympathetic to one group or another do not participate since the group "doesn't do anything" and thus no profit can be realized.

Interpreting the News — Pakistan Seeks U.S. Support

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The success or failure of projects being carried forward by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru back in India may have important bearing on the outcome of the current visit of Pakistan's Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan in the United States.

Liaquat Ali, like Nehru before him, is here to interest the United States in the future of his new country. He is receiving great attention from officials who created some pique in Pakistan a while back by inviting Nehru and temporarily ignoring Liaquat Ali.

Pakistan, as an agricultural country, is doing very well, producing a surplus which helps buy the other things she needs. But she wants to be independent of more heavily industrialized India. One factor in the Moslem demand for separation from India was the fact that the Hindus, vastly different culturally, were the business men of India, insofar as the business men were not British.

Liaquat Ali hopes to interest American capital first in hydroelectric development, which must be the basis for textile and other industries. Pakistan has very little coal or oil.

One of his first appeals has been for arms. He says India got the lion's share of arms when the country was divided, and he needs U.S. help. Unlike India, which seems to remain neutral in the cold war, Liaquat Ali indicates strongly that Pakistan will stand firmly with the western powers if she is made capable of self defense.

He faces two difficulties, one minor and one major. The minor hurdle is that he is hoisting a new war in international affairs, relatively young in the business compared with his sponsor and associate, the late Mahomed Ali Jinnah.

The major hurdle, both regarding arms and economic aid, however, lies in the relationship between India and Pakistan. Only a few months ago the two members of the British commonwealth seemed on the verge of war. The Hindu Marajahah of Kashmir, ruling 4-million people of whom three-fourths are Moslems, sought to cast the province's lot with India in the relocation of princely states which followed liberation from British rule. There was a rebellion in Kashmir, and Pakistan threw in troops to support it. India threw in troops to support the Marajahah's decision.

Strenuous efforts by the United Nations finally resulted in acceptance of a plebiscite plan. Liaquat Ali and Nehru got together in one of the most hopeful conferences Asia has seen recently. They adopted a plan for the handling of minorities on both sides. But the world is still nervous about how it may work out. Both men are sincere and both greatly respected by their peoples, but the issues between Moslem and Hindu run deep, and there are extremists on both sides who are very difficult to control.

On the arms matter, Pakistan, pending greater stability of the whole great subcontinent, may find herself in a position closely similar to that of Israel. Israel wants American arms, too, to offset those being shipped by the British to the Arabs under agreements which antedate the present middle eastern situation. The U.S. has not exactly refused Israeli requests, but she is just not finding it convenient to accede.

While Liaquat Ali is over here, then, Nehru is going about at home, trying to sell their pacification plan to both countries. Thursday he asked the cooperation of the Indian and Pakistan editors association, asking them to soft pedal on nationalism and support cooperation.

The relations of both India and Pakistan with the United States depend heavily on how these efforts work out.

Archbishop Praises Stand on Euthanasia

NEW YORK (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, commended the World Medical Association Monday for its stand against euthanasia.

In a prepared statement, the Archbishop said the world had "impetuously awaited such a pronouncement of moral and ethical principles by the medical profession ever since its reputation was besmirched by the assertions of euthanasiaists that many physicians were seriously mercy-killing."

The resolution, passed by the association's legislative council meeting in Copenhagen, Denmark, branded mercy killing as "contrary to public interest and to medical and ethical principles as well as to the natural and civil rights."

No Mushrooms

HAMBURG, IOWA (AP)—It's time for picking mushrooms in Fremont county but there are no mushrooms to pick. Hunters said they spotted cars from 19 counties and three states in this area last weekend.

The visitors were searching for sponge mushrooms which usually are to be found in the county at this time of year. But old time hunters said there were no mushrooms to be had.

Flappers Stage Comeback In Modern Fashion Revival

The flapper of the madcap twenties has staged a comeback. The woman of today is destined to Charleston her way through the year if spring styles of short hair, dangling earrings, doe eyes, a sheath dress and airy sandals are any indication.

Today's styles are modifications of the ones popular in the twenties. While the hair is worn short, it is seldom shingled. Earrings may dangle and doe eyes, fashionable among the movie stars of the jazz age, may grace many a face but the 1950 "look" is only vaguely similar to that of three decades ago.

Knee-High Waists? The sheath dress, so popular in the "oh-you-kid" days, has returned, but is slimmer and trimmer. The sheath dress shows few indications that the waist line will descend to a position near the wearer's knees, even though the hem line is shorter than has been seen for many a season.

Replacing the black dress standby is the little red dress, preferably of red chiffon. The gay twenties look is achieved among daytime dresses by the return of the middy blouse.

A new look of ease extends from the top of the 1950 flapper's well-brushed head to the toes of her spring pumps. Shoulders in the 1950 clothes point downward and are completely boneless.

Shorter Skirts Suits and dresses have dropped shoulders and big sleeves. Many dresses will have melon, lantern or kimono sleeves or none at all. The sleeveless blouses are especially adaptable to wear under suits.

Skirts are shorter this season with street length set at about 14 inches from the floor. They are also either narrow with any fullness comouflaged in pleats and tucks.

Another way to achieve a look of ease is through a device known as separates — the mix 'em and match 'em variety.

Unusual Combinations Some unusual combinations have been initiated. Sheer fabrics have been combined with heavy ones, rugged with delicate materials, and stiff materials with soft ones.

Cotton, formerly considered only for sport clothes, is now appearing on the dressiest occasions.

Engineers Plan Annual Student, Faculty Picnic The Associated Students of Engineering plan to hold their annual engineering students and faculty members picnic Saturday at 2 p.m. on Charles Showers farm, two miles south of Iowa City.

Bees said there will be no charge for refreshments, and called on all engineers to turn out to make the picnic a success.

Students Learn Research Techniques in Home Cooking

By JEAN SMITH

The recipe that is a hit is more than a chance. In the advanced foods course offered by the SUI home economics department, this theory provides the basis for critical testing of various recipes.

The 15 women in the course are aided by Prof. Margaret J. Brennan who helps them track down the misplaced ingredient.

Before the final four week laboratory session they study the experimental factors which affect foods and the standards for judging the quality of foods.

Women Try Own Ideas After the preparatory study is done, each woman tries out some particular interest of her own. She briefs herself on the problems involved in her selected recipe and then prepares it.

"Some of the problems the women select are recipes which have been in the family for years," Miss Brennan said. "Often times the recipe is a so-called 'good recipe' but there's still room for improvement," she explained.

One Variable The experimenters vary one ingredient of the recipe at a time. A score card is then drawn up and the result of each experiment with product variables is noted by a committee of judges which each student chooses to be her taste-judging panel.

Some of the qualities the judges look for are "appearance, flavor and smell" as each product is varied, as well as cost and ease of combining.

After completing her problem, the taster makes up her final product, tests it, looks up references, writes up the particular problems involved and reports on her findings to the rest of the class.

Learning Research Methods The whole operation is particularly interesting to the members of the class because they know it's their own experiment, Miss Brennan said. "And they're learning how to attack something as it is done in research."

Two women are working on cake recipes which have been in the family for years. They are trying out the newer methods of modifying the baking temperature and standardizing the ingredients.

A "no-knead bread" is being tested by a student whose father runs a bakery. She wants to develop a recipe on the same basis as the one used by her father, only in a smaller quantity.

Learn Causes of Failures Miss Brennan said the program may help the three wives in the class keep house more easily. "The potential instructors in the class should be better teachers because when unexpected accidents happen in foods courses they will know what causes them," she added.

It is particularly good background training for recipe testing in a commercial laboratory, Miss Brennan added. The students learn how research is done and if they are sufficiently interested in recipe testing, it will provide a good basis for working or teaching in an industrial corporation.

"Finally, the students will be able to appreciate and understand what research is, because the same methods often are used when solving any scientific problem," she concluded.

Homemakers Begin Buying A La Carte For Bedroom Sets

Homemakers have begun a buying trend away from old-fashioned five and seven piece bedroom suites toward buying bedroom furnishings a la carte.

Furniture manufacturers say that the growing popularity of headboard beds is responsible for the trend.

Headboard beds are preferred because of their decorative aspects and the fact that elimination of a bed frame means an extra 230 square inches of floor space.

Another advantage is that the buyer can add as many or as few storage pieces and other furnishings as they need, rather than having to take a "package."

Designers are making headboards functional, with shelves for books, radio, a telephone and other necessary gadgets — also extra bedding storage space. Custom models can even be built with refrigeration units.

However, the gadgets and conveniences of the headboard are not nearly so important as the comfort of the bed, itself. The chief function of a bed still is to provide the proper foundation for the most restful sleep possible.

Headboard beds are here to stay whether they are equipped with gadgets or merely decorative, and they're one more example of the practical home furnishings trend.

Hanchers Schedule Mother's Day Tea

President and Mrs. Virgil M. Hancher will welcome students and parents Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. at the President's Mother's day tea.

An annual event of the Mortar Board sponsored Mother's day weekend, the tea is being planned this year by Joan Tripp, A4, Spencer.

In the receiving line will be President and Mrs. Hancher and Joelle Hansen, A4, Storm Lake, president of the 1949-50 chapter of Mortar Board.

The new members of Mortar

Board, who will be "tapped" at a ceremony on the west approach to Old Capitol Saturday afternoon, will assist 1949-50 members as hostesses. Students are urged to bring parents and guests to the Sunday afternoon reception.

School of Religion Marks 25th Anniversary

Four of the nine living founders of the SUI school of religion were present Monday when the 25th anniversary of the founding of the school was marked at a special luncheon meeting.

They were Prof. Otto Vogel, head baseball coach at SUI, Prof. Chester Phillips, retiring dean of the SUI college of commerce, Thomas Farrell, 710 Summit street, treasurer of the school of religion board of trustees, and Rabbi Eugene Mannheim, Des Moines, the newly-elected first vice-president of the board.

The plan under which the school operates was adopted 25 years ago this week.

Featured speakers at the banquet included President Virgil M. Hancher; Frank C. Waples, Cedar Rapids, newly-elected president of the board; Robert Lappen, Des Moines; the Rev. Alfred Nickless, Davenport, and the Rev. C.H. Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's church here.

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school, said that those present at the luncheon "engaged in a moment of silent prayer in recognition of the tragic death of SUI Dean of Students Walter R. Goetsch, a member of the board who had been expected to attend Monday's meetings."

One hundred seventy-five persons from all parts of the state attended the luncheon held in the River room of the Iowa Union. The luncheon, attended by friends and trustees of the school of religion, preceded a business meeting held in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Board members elected at the business meeting included Waples, president of the board; Rabbi Mannheim, first vice-president; Arthur Poe, Cedar Rapids, second vice-president; Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the SUI extension division, secretary; and Farrell, cashier of the First National bank here, treasurer.

The trustee class of 1951 was voted to succeed themselves in the class of 1953. The trustee board has three classes so the entire membership of the board will not retire in any one year.

The class of 1953 includes C.R. Sheaffer, Fort Madison, president of the Sheaffer Pen company; the Rev. C.W. Brashares, Iowa Methodist Bishop, Des Moines, and Farrell.

Others in the class are the Rev. H.K. Galloway, Cedar Rapids; Lappen; Rev. Nickless; Frank A. O'Connor, Dubuque; Richard H. Plock; Burlington, and Rabbi Mannheim.

Prof. Eugene A. Gilmore of the SUI college of law, Dr. Arthur Steinler, former head of the orthopedics department of University hospitals; Prof. George Stewart of the SUI physics department, and Prof. Harrison Thornton of the SUI history department.

Herbert Horton, Des Moines, president of the Iowa Des Moines National bank, was elected to assume the position of the late Dean Emeritus Carl E. Seashore in the class of 1951.

Sam Morrison, 515 N. Dubuque street, was elected to assume the position of the late Rev. E. L. Haines in the class of 1951.

'Safer' Drivers Sought by U.S.

Uncle Sam is double-checking the "safety-mindedness" of the future drivers of federal government cars and trucks.

N.J. Oganovic, eighth region director of the U.S. civil service commission, in St. Paul, Minn., stated plans to improve the screening of drivers of government vehicles in a letter to Iowa federal agencies and those in other midwestern states.

He announced that federal "road test" examiners will be called to a training conference after July 1 to insure the best administration of road test programs.

No drivers are appointed from a civil service list without a check of available accident and arrest records of police and motor vehicle authorities, he said.

Probe of NY Crime Hits National Scale

NEW YORK (AP) — A locally-launched probe of organized crime mushroomed Monday into a nationwide inquiry into reputed kingdoms of the underworld.

An army of federal agents joined New York City authorities in the vastly widened investigation covering activities of purported racketeers from coast-to-coast.

Aid of 93 federal prosecutors throughout the country also was enlisted.

Key to the scope of the probe was a roster of 150 names of the nation's purported bigtime underworld chiefs. It was supplied by the U.S. justice department, which ordered the special federal crime hunt.

Includes Costello

The list included Gambler Frank Costello of New York, Joe Adonis of New Jersey, Mickey Cohen of Los Angeles, Ralph Capone of the Chicago area and Anthony "Little Augie" Garfano of New York and Florida.

The original investigation was sparked by a police raid on the luxurious Manhattan offices of nationwide Bookie Frank Erickson, admitted operator of a multi-million-dollar illegal gambling business.

A truckload of his alleged betting records were seized. A Manhattan grand jury has been quizzing his New York customers.

Nationwide Ramifications

As this phase of the probe continued, the justice department ordered its crack agents to begin digging into nationwide ramifications of the racketeers trade.

The federal team included operatives of the FBI, the secret service, the narcotics bureau, alcohol tax unit and staffs of two U.S. attorneys.

Their inquiry was aimed at the whole field of organized crime — gambling, bootlegging, frauds, income tax evasion, counterfeiting, dope traffic and possible national alliances in the crime world.

Two U.S. attorneys — Irving H. Saypol, of the southern district of New York, and J. Vincent Keogh, of the eastern district — said complete records on the alleged racketeers would be assembled to provide an integrated picture of their operations.

SUI Professor Readies Guide to Pronunciation

Prof. Arthur Barnes, head of the SUI school of journalism's radio sequence, is working on a supplement to his "Pronunciation Guide of Iowa Public Officials," issued in 1948.

Barnes said he hopes to get the proper pronunciation of about 100 new names added to the original booklet by June 1, in time for the Iowa primary elections.

New SUI Movie Shown at Hillcrest Dorm

"Letter to An Old Grad," a technicolor movie aimed at showing the working processes of the SUI alumni office, was shown for the first time on the campus Monday night in the north lounge of Hillcrest, men's dormitory.

Loren Hickerson, alumni secretary, said the movie was shown at Hillcrest in tribute to the Hillcrest chorus which furnished a part of the background music for the movie.

The 12 minute movie, filmed on the SUI campus, portrays a letter written to an old graduate. Hickerson narrates the movie as it swings around the campus in a pictorial letter telling the "Old Grad" that there are a few changes on campus — but for the most part, it is the same campus he knew not so many years back.

Hickerson said the purpose of the movie is to show students unfamiliar with the alumni office a pictorial view of the functions of the office.

The movie will be used widely for SUI alumni clubs, community groups and student groups.

Hickerson will leave Wednesday on an eastern tour to show the movie to alumni clubs in Washington, D.C., New York City and Rochester, N.Y.

New Angle on Sex Appeal

Depends on Look in Eyes — Not Cheesecake, Low Necklines, Cameraman Says

HOLLYWOOD — Sex appeal means cheesecake and low-cut necklines? A movie still photographer blasted that Hollywood idea of allure Sunday. He said sex appeal depends on what you're thinking.

"It's the expression in the eyes that gives a star's photo sex appeal," explained Scotty Welbourne, who's been shooting photos of top stars for nearly 20 years.

"And the expression comes from the thoughts. It's good to have the body and the face, but without the expression from the thought, you're lost."

Thus, down the years, when movie queens from Jane Wyman to Lauren Bacall have come to take for publicity, billboards, advertising and such, he doesn't just use the take-a-deep-breath-and-hold-it-technique. He tells them he wants a sexy shot — and they start thinking.

"And, boy, can I tell when they've had a fight with their husbands," he said.

"When the new starlets first come in to be photographed, such as at Warners' where I worked for 18 years, they're young and haven't anything to think about. Later on, when they get married, they don't have to be told to think about romance any more for a glamour photo — they do it naturally."

Welbourne names Marlene Dietrich as the No. 1 "sex appeal thinker."

"She can turn that expression off or on at the snap of a finger," said the photographer. "She knows all the answers."

No. 2 is Ingrid Bergman. Welbourne won a French prize for "The Most Provocative Movie Still of 1949" for a picture he took of her to advertise "Arch of Triumph." It showed Ingrid, who played a loose lady in the movie, leaning against a lamp post.

"I told her I wanted her to look like she was waiting for a man with a romantic thought," he said. "It took just a minute, and turned out to be a wonderful shot."

The other queens on his eyes-have-it list are: Ida Lupino, Ann Sheridan and Lana Turner. He photographed stills of Lana for her first movie. "She's always had it, even without thinking," he said.

Currently Welbourne is the still photographer for an independent production, "Sound of Fury," starring Irish Actress Kathleen Ryan. "She knew what to think about, too," said the photographer.

AFL Agrees to Discuss Merger with CIO

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The AFL said again Monday it is willing to meet with the CIO and draw up plans for permanent merger of both organizations.

But Pres. William Green of the AFL made it clear in a letter to Pres. Philip Murray of the CIO that unity must be on "a permanent and organic basis" and "not merely upon a tentative and cooperative basis."

Green's letter, disclosed at a news conference that followed a closed session of the AFL's executive council, replied to Murray's written request for establishment of a labor unity committee.

The CIO chairman also asked John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, the International Association of Machinists, and the four independent railroad brotherhoods to join the "unity" effort.

Specifically, Murray asked the AFL and the other unions to set up a group that would provide joint cooperation on economic, legislative and political problems.

Green said the AFL's executive council "doubts seriously that the method and procedure suggested and proposed in your letter would accomplish the mutually desired objective: organic unity in the labor forces of America."

But, Green wrote, the AFL was willing to try. "The executive council has, by unanimous decision, authorized and directed me to advise you and your organization that we are prepared to select a committee to meet a like committee of the CIO and engage in a conference looking toward an early and successful realization of unity upon a permanent and secure basis between our respective organizations," the AFL president wrote.

Murray, in Atlantic City, N.J., for the opening today of the CIO, united steelworkers convention, said "I wouldn't want to comment until I read his (Green's) letter."

This is not the first time that Murray sought cooperation between CIO and AFL. In 1947 committees of the two powerful labor groups — AFL 8-million-strong; the CIO 6-million — failed to reach agreement.

Green insisted on complete organic unity — merger of the two groups into one union.

Murray wanted only functional unity, arguing that the two groups should first cooperate within a committee before final merger.

In effect, Green's letter to Murray Monday restates the old AFL principal of permanent unity — or nothing.

At a separate meeting for the Pennsylvania branch of the AFL, Sen. Francis J. Myers (D-Pa) set the pattern for the Democrats' 1950 political strategy by hailing the deeds of the Democratic-controlled 81st congress as "a miracle."

Myers called the Republican party a "party of slogans and promises," the Democrats a party of "pledges and performances."

The 81st congress, he said, "has accounted for itself well."

"Quietly, unnoticed," Myers declared, "a miracle is taking place. Despite all the delaying tactics and despite all the noise, plank after plank in the Democratic party platform of 1948 is being nailed into place as part of the structure of our national life."

Injured in Fall

Edgar X. Boyles, Iowa City abstractor, was injured Monday when the ladder he had climbed to reach highly placed file drawers slipped to the floor in the Johnson county courthouse. He suffered painful bruises on his legs and feet. The abstractor was examining files about eight feet above the floor in the county clerk's office.

Workers began taking the census April 1.

The information gathered here will be sent to the district census office in Davenport. Kanak said he did not know how long it would be before statistics on the Iowa City population and other information would be returned.

Nurses' Deans to Give Breakfast at Convention

A special SUI breakfast will be given by Dean Myrtle E. Kitchell of the SUI college of nursing for all SUI graduates, staff members and student nurses now attending the 16th bi-ennial nursing convention.

The convention opened Sunday in San Francisco.

Superintendent of Nurses Mildred Shaffer is attending from Oakdale sanatorium.

SUI senior nursing students at the convention are Kathleen Proudfoot, Runnels; Meris Gordon, Postville; Nancy Strack, Grundy Center; Mrs. Jayne Dy-sart Wayland, Iowa City, and Jessie Morris, Rockwell City.

Juniors attending from SUI are Betty Jean Plaisance, and Norma Lorack, Nichols.

A near record attendance of about 8,000 nurses, representing 200,000 professional registered member nurses in the United States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, was expected by the convention committee.

The six-day convention — primarily a working meeting — is sponsored jointly by the American Nurses' association, the National League of Nursing Education and the National Organization for Public Health Nursing.

The nurses expect to act on a proposed code for professional nursing, a proposed change in the structure of national nursing organizations, and whether the American Nursing association headquarters shall be moved from New York to Chicago.

Delegates also hope to discuss planning and conducting national research to measure expanded post-war nursing service needs of the public.

Psychiatric nurses at the bi-ennial planned an informal luncheon to discuss the need for a council of psychiatric and mental health nurses within the over-all structure of nursing organizations.

Consideration of such a council arose from the answers to a recent questionnaire survey developed and distributed by a group of psychiatric nurses.

Responses to the survey showed psychiatric nurses throughout the United States to be "interested in the future of psychiatric nursing in relation to the evolving structures of the nursing organizations," according to Prof. Tudor.

Other matters expected to be considered by the convention include the role of collective action in determining the nurses' economic status, and full participation of Negro nurses in professional activities and membership in nursing organizations.

Each of the three sponsoring organizations will elect new officers and directors during the convention.

Theme of the bi-ennial, ending Friday, is "Health — a Unifying World Influence: Nursing Accepts its Role."

Journalism School To Judge Contest

The SUI school of journalism has been asked to serve as judge for the "Public Service" contest of the Tennessee Press Association for 1950.

Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the school, said Monday: "The contest is held each year to honor the newspapers that have accomplished most in promoting the welfare of the community, as evidenced by an editorial alertness to the needs and progress for community and county improvements."

Contest awards are sponsored partly by the University of Tennessee and the Tennessee Press association.

ANOTHER WAR VICTIM
METZ, FRANCE (AP) — World War II claimed another victim Monday, the fifth anniversary of V-E day. Marc Ory, 11, found a grenade while walking through the woods near Metz. He threw it to the ground and was fatally wounded by the explosion.

Nursing Professor to Hold Seattle Workshop

Prof. Amy Frances Brown of the SUI college of nursing will conduct a workshop on evaluation in nursing May 15 through 19 at the University of Washington school of nursing in Seattle.

Miss Brown, coordinator of medical and surgical nursing at SUI, will be assisted in the workshop by University of Washington faculty members.

Expected to attend the five-day workshop are nurses engaged in education in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

Basic concepts of evaluation, techniques used in evaluation and evaluation of the performance of hospital personnel will be the key points of the workshop, Miss Brown said.

She also will hold work sessions on the integrated course in medical and surgical nursing, the current trend in schools of nursing. Miss Brown outlined the plan in her textbook, "Clinical Instruction," in 1945.

The workshop will also feature group sessions on the use of anecdotal records, rating scales, pre- and post - experience tests and other techniques, performance in motor skills and evaluation of certain specific skills.

Miss Brown will travel north to Seattle for the workshop after attending the 16th bi-ennial nursing convention Monday through Friday in San Francisco.

On May 20, she will meet with the nursing faculty of the University of Oregon. Among topics discussed will be the integrated course in medical and surgical nursing.

Supreme Court Upholds Rule To Require Non-Red Oaths

WASHINGTON (AP)—The supreme court Monday upheld the Taft-Hartley act provision which requires union officials to file non-Communist oaths if their unions are to use machinery of the national labor relations board.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson said the majority concluded the section "does not unduly infringe freedom protected by the first amendment" to the constitution. That is the free speech amendment.

By filing the oath, unions gain the law's protection of vital bargaining rights.

Black Dissents
The vote was generally interpreted as 5-1 with Justice Hugo Black dissenting.

Black, in a bitter dissent, said the majority decision rejects a fundamental constitutional principle that "beliefs are inviolate" and he added:

"Whether religious, political or both, test oaths are implacable foes of free thought. By approving their imposition, this court has injected compromise into a field where the first amendment forbids compromise."

Clearly in the majority were Vinson and Justices Felix Frankfurter, Stanley Reed and Harold Burton. Justice Robert Jackson agreed with the majority in a large part and dissented in part. Four justices took no part in the case.

Four Opinions
Four separate opinions were handed down in the case. They would fill four full pages in an average newspaper.

The first ruling on the much disputed provision of the 1948 labor act came on two appeals filed by the CIO united steelworkers and the CIO American communications association.

National officers of both unions have filed non-Communist affidavits with the NLRB. They did so after starting the legal actions on which the high court acted Monday.

Unions File Affidavits
Both national and local officers of most other unions have filed such affidavits, although a few holdouts remain. The NLRB has turned the affidavits of some 70 persons over to the justice department and asked that it investigate whether perjury was involved.

Jackson agreed that congress acted within its rights in requiring union officials to swear they are not members of the Communist party or affiliated with it.

But Jackson said he regards as unconstitutional another portion which requires a union official to take an oath "that he does believe in" any organization which advocates forcible overthrow of this government.

Other Decisions
In other decisions the court ruled that a state may legally ban picketing which is aimed at such things as compelling an employer to coerce his workers into joining a union and forcing an employer to hire Negro clerks in the same proportion as Negro customers bear to his total clientele.

Canada Fire Burns Out After Destroying One-Third of Town

RIMOUSKI, QUE. (AP) — A fire which destroyed more than one third of this town finally was put out Monday.

Nine hundred were made homeless by the two-day blaze. Damage was estimated at $10-million. No deaths were reported.

The army announced it would dynamite burned buildings which might collapse.

Troops rushed in to help fight the fire, guarded against looting after the last flames had been extinguished. But Brig. Gen. Jean Allard, commander of the eastern Quebec military area, said there had already been some thefts.

Allard said the fire began when live electric wires blew across a lumber pile.

The fire, which began Saturday and burned throughout Sunday, was quenched only after 300 soldiers joined fire-fighters from a dozen surrounding communities.

Every available building was being used to house the homeless, including the city hall, a veterans affairs building and a skating rink.

Provincial Premier Maurice Duplessis in Quebec ordered officials of his city to aid the residents of this town of 15,000.

Farouk's Marriage Expected Next Year

LONDON (AP) — A Cairo dispatch indicated Monday that King Farouk of Egypt will definitely marry beautiful 17-year-old Narriman Sadek next year.

For months the Egyptian censors have forbidden any mention of the king's reported romance.

Monday, however, they passed a United Press Cairo dispatch which said that the independent weekly newspaper, Rosa Al Youssef, to be published today, would contain "revelations about the royal marriage."

The independent newspaper, however, will say that both the girl and her family have agreed to her marriage to Farouk.

It will deny foreign press reports that the king's sisters and certain Egyptian politicians, including former Premier Hussein Sirry Pasha, are opposed to the marriage.

Narriman formerly was engaged to Zaki Hachem, an Egyptian employee of the United Nations.

Engagement Ring Ruled Man's Until Knot Tied

MEADVILLE, PA. (AP) — The fiancée doesn't own her engagement ring until the knot is tied, a judge held Monday.

Judge Herbert A. Mook of the Crawford county court ruled an engagement ring is not an outright gift but "a conditional gift."

He ordered a $450 ring returned to H. Kenneth Peden, Franklin, Pa., whose fiancée — Miss Elsie Erwin — died before their scheduled wedding. The dead woman's sister had refused to give up the ring. She lost one trial and had sought a new one, which Judge Mook refused to grant.

TO PRAY FOR BOY
PORT HURON, MICH. (AP) — This city of 40,000 will observe an hour of prayer today for a 2½-year-old boy who disappeared from his backyard a week ago and may have been kidnapped. No trace has been found of little Brian Marshall, foster son of one of Port Huron's most prominent families.

lough, in ceremonies following the speech.

His comment — "I can't eat all that" — was supported by the fact that half the cake remained on the Ottumwa platform when the train headed west at 11:45 a.m.

Most impressive ritual performed by the Chief Executive at Ottumwa was the lighting of the Iowa State college Veishea torch, to be borne by Ottumwa Athlete Dor. Ferguson and 149 other trackmen from Des Moines to Ames for a campus festival.

Mrs. Truman and Margaret sat on the platform with the President and spoke a few words over the microphone when introduced by him. Mrs. Truman wore a green dress and Margaret a red suit with a pink fur piece. They each received presents and red rose corsages.

The entire company stood and sang while six bands blared a "Happy Birthday to You" for "the man from Missouri."

During part of Mr. Truman's speech, a gust of wind swept water from an overhead canopy upon several platform dignitaries, including Mrs. Truman and Margaret. The President escaped the shower.

From Ottumwa, the Truman train sped to Creston and Pacific Junction where, in a drizzling rain, the Chief Executive garnered more cakes and presents and made brief speeches.

Late Monday afternoon, in his Lincoln, Neb., speech, the first of nine major transcontinental talks, Mr. Truman stumped for the much-debated Brannan farm plan, urging its enactment as an assurance of "peace and prosperity for ourselves and the world."

In hard-hitting vocabulary, the President lambasted his "muddling, name-calling opposition" which, he said, assailed all past farm plans as "communitarian" and rigged to "enslave the farmer."

"The plain fact is that the production payment plan (Brannan plan) is the best plan yet proposed for getting an abundant production of perishable crops consumed without knocking the bottom out of the farmer's income," he declared.

Washington reporters on the Truman train told this reporter the "non-political" aspects of the trip likely would disappear when the President began to "bear down" on the later stages.

"The first leg of a Presidential trip is always the tamest," one reporter said. "However, I guess you could allow the President his theory that he's not politicking, because no Washington issues or personalities are directly involved."

The President's behavior while entrained on a nation-wide tour was described as "somewhat reserved but very friendly."

Sunday night, the first night out of Washington, Mr. Truman took a Cook's tour of the train, and stopped to talk with newspapermen for "a long time."

He refused an offered drink, however, declaring that Mrs. Truman insisted they eat supper at 7 p.m. and the hour was fast approaching.

"She won't mind if you're a little late, will she," Mr. Truman was asked.

The President wore a domestic grin. "Are you kidding?" he laughed.

Dean Goetsch Killed in Crash

DEAN WALTER R. GOETSCH SLUMPED behind a twisted steering wheel in the front seat of his car Monday morning after the crash which took his life and injured two of his children. The 38-year-old SUI dean of students was killed when his car crashed into a semi-trailer truck on the wet pavement between Iowa City and Coralville at about 8:30 a.m. Dean Goetsch died instantly of a fractured skull, crushed chest and ruptured spleen, according to a county coroner's report. Senate Splits on FEPC Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate plunged into its long-awaited FEPC fight Monday with southerners attacking the administration bill as a "monstrosity" and supporters claiming it will guarantee equal job rights for all.

Few fireworks marked the first full day of debate on the measure — most controversial of President Truman's civil rights proposals. It would set up a fair employment practices commission (FEPC) with court backing to end job discrimination on grounds of race, religion, or national origin.

Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah), of the senate labor committee led off for the administration. He hailed the bill as a means of "launching an old established right, the right of an equal place in our democracy for all its citizens in the getting and holding of a job."

Sen. Irving Ives (R-NY) followed by asserting the measure followed a "middle course" between too strong and too weak a program. He said a similar law in New York state has materially lessened job discrimination without imposing penalties on anyone.

Then Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.), rose and opened what will be called a Dixie filibuster when the debate has gone on for several days.

Russell called the bill a "legislative monstrosity." He said it would alter the whole philosophy of American government by creating an army of "thought police" and seeking to jail citizens for a "mental attitude."

In a speech lasting two hours and 16 minutes, he charged the FEPC issue was merely a bid for votes of racial minorities. He claimed it would give preferred status to minorities because businessmen would fear prosecution unless they discriminated against "the ordinary, cording to County Coroner George D. Callahan.

Clarence Briskey of the Briskey Cabinet shop, 223 S. Capitol street, was working about a block and a half from the scene of the accident when he heard the crash. Briskey said he drove to the accident site and saw that Jean Goetsch had been moved off the highway by Dick Westfall, a saw-mill worker. Briskey rushed her to University hospitals in his car without investigating the wreckage.

Richard later was taken to the hospitals in an ambulance. "Transferred to a stretcher, he cried, 'Where's my daddy? Where's my daddy?'"

Dean Goetsch was born June 3, 1911, in Wausau. He attended grade school there and the Concordia high school in River Forest, Ill.

He attended Concordia Junior college in River Forest and received his B.A. degree from Valparaiso university in Valparaiso, Ind. He received his M.A. degree from the University of Chicago and his Ph.D. degree from SUI in 1936.

In July 1937, he married Charlotte Stankewitz. Three children, Lydia Jean, Richard and Robert, were born to the couple.

Dean Goetsch acted as registrar and director of teacher training at Penn college, Cleveland, Ohio, from 1936 to 1940, when he became dean of the liberal arts college there.

In 1946 he was made an associate professor in the SUI liberal arts advisory office, and was appointed dean of students four years later.

Numerous Achievements
Among his achievements are contributions to "School and Society," "Journal of Higher Education," the Ohio State University Educational Research bulletin, the Bulletin of American Association of Collegiate Registrars, and the "Lutheran School Journal."

Dean Goetsch was affiliated with the Lutheran church, National Education association, Phi Delta Kappa, education fraternity, Phi Gamma Mu, social science fraternity, the Triangle club, and the Lutheran Academy for Scholarship.

His war service consisted of being the civilian in charge of the 53rd college training detachment of the army airforce at Penn college.

Besides the two children who were riding with him, Dean Goetsch is survived by his wife and another child, Robert, 2,

Chinese Reds to Release 2 Airmen Held 7 Months

HONG KONG (UP)—Two American fliers are being released after almost seven months detention by the Communists, Peking radio announced Monday.

The men were William C. Smith, Long Beach, Calif., a navy chief construction electrician, and Elmer C. Bender of Cincinnati and Chicago, a Marine Corps master sergeant.

Both men were members of U.S. Naval headquarters at Tsingtao and had been missing since Oct. 19, 1948, after taking off in a small L-5 liaison plane for a routine training flight. The Communists confiscated the plane.

U.S. Demands Release
The U.S. government had been bombarding the Communist authorities with notes demanding release of the prisoners ever since they disappeared. Mrs. Bender even sent a personal appeal to Communist leaders in Peking.

The state department has sent many notes demanding their release and finally turned over negotiations to the British when the United States decided to withdraw its diplomatic mission from Red China.

Say 'Prisoners Confess'
Bender and Smith at first refused to reveal the motive for this unlawful flight but finally, influenced by our magnanimous policy toward prisoners, began to confess," the broadcast said.

Peking said the Americans admitted being sent out by a "Major Lantz" to scout out the railway into Manchuria and that after they confessed and repented they were being released and deported "in line with the magnanimous policy of the Chinese People's Liberation army toward prisoners."

The broadcast said the confession proved that the "aim of this U.S. imperialist airplane flight was to invade our territorial air will for the purpose of carrying out planned military reconnaissance to help the Kuomintang (Nationalist) brigands."

It warned that any such actions in the future "by American imperialists will be dealt with ruthlessly by the Chinese people."

Twister Hits Red Oak
RED OAK (AP) — A small tornado struck the Red Oak area Monday night, severely damaging the airport and leaving the town without electric power.

The twister struck at 7:25 p.m. The main hangar at the airport was demolished, and parts of it were picked up a mile and a half away. A number of airplanes were severely damaged.
