GOP Leaders to Participate In SUI Party Days Tuesday

SUI students will get an elephant's eye view of the GOP Tuesday when national, state and local Republican leaders gather here for the second half of Iowa Political Party days.

Republican Party day, follow-up to Democratic Party day May 9, will feature as speakers Rep. Hugh D. Scott (R-Pa.), former Republican national committee chairman, and Iowa's Republican Gov. William S. Beardsley.

Aided by other GOP political leaders, they will explain the structure, functions and objectives of the party and offer students working opportunities in the Republican election campaign this summer.

First Held Here
SUI's Party day program, the first held here on campus, is designed to "encourage students to participate actively in the party of their choice as effective citizens," according to Prof. Robert F. Ray, director of the SUI institute of public affairs.

Party days are co-sponsored by the institute and the state central committees of the two major parties.

Tuesday's program officially will open at 2 p.m. in the house chamber of Old Capitol, with welcoming messages from President Virgil M. Hancher and Student Council Pres. Jack Whitesell, Li, Davenport.

Prof. William J. Petersen, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Iowa, then will trace some significant events in the history of the Republican party.

Describe GOP Activities
Robert K. Goodwin, Republican state central committee chairman, will describe the makeup and activities of the party in Iowa and cite problems met by party workers from the precinct caucus all the way up to the national convention.

State Finance Chairman James S. Schramm, Burlington, former Des Moines county Republican central committee chairman, will explain "What the Republican Party Stands For." Schramm conducted the Mediapolis Forum for Farmers last summer which stimulated a series of state forums resulting in a national meeting in Sioux City.

"Opportunities for Young Women" in the party will be discussed by Mrs. Kathryn Metz, Lamoni, Decatur county state representative, Mrs. Metz, magazine writer and newspaper editor, was one of three women members of the house of representatives in the 53rd Iowa general assembly.

Youngest County Chairman
Linn County Chairman Ted Birdsall, Cedar Rapids, who at 26 is one of the youngest Iowa Republican county chairmen, will outline opportunities for young men with the GOP.

During the afternoon session, Mrs. Metz, Goodwin, Schramm and Birdsall will participate in a panel discussion and forum in which students may question them on political matters.

Rep. Scott, now serving his fourth Congressional term, will speak on "How to Get From Behind the Eight - Ball: A Guided Tour" at the evening session in the Iowa Union, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The subject of Gov. Beardsley's talk at the evening meeting has not yet been announced.

Author of Book
Scott, who served in the navy and merchant marine during World War II, is the author of the book "How to Get into Politics," a practical manual which explains party organization and effective political work.

The Republican state central committee will hold an open house at the Hotel Jefferson Tuesday from 5 to 6:30 p.m., aimed at helping SUI students meet party workers and candidates. Party members from all parts of the state are invited.

'Golfer' Crosby Takes Slow Boat to Dover

LONDON (AP) — Bing Crosby arrived in England from Paris Saturday, so far behind schedule that whatever chance he had of winning the British amateur golf tournament were fading fast.

Crosby, reported "mysteriously missing" by Paris reporters, stepped off a channel steamer at Dover Saturday, threw his golf clubs in one Rolls Royce, climbed in another and headed north in the general direction of Scotland and St. Andrew golf course.

Young Iowa Citizens Get Lowdown on Bridges

ARMED FORCES DAY DREW A VARIETY of spectators Saturday to the R.O.T.C. displays on the south side of the campus. Capt. Charles Hickman of the military science department and Sgt. Orville Russell explain construction of model Bailey bridge to Thomas Brown, 318 E. Jefferson street, and two youngsters. The model was built by Russell and was part of the display of the engineering section of the R.O.T.C. The Bailey bridge is constructed during warfare from the friendly side of a river where normal crossing facilities are not available.

Military Men Stress Defense

Harvester, CIO Dicker on Pension

CHICAGO (AP) — International Harvester company announced Saturday that it has reached tentative agreement with the CIO United Automobile Workers on a pension, health and welfare plan patterned after the Chrysler settlement.

The company said it reached agreement with nine UAW-CIO locals representing 21,000 employees at eight farm equipment plants. The agreement must be approved by international officers of the union before it can be signed.

The plan would provide pensions of $100 a month for employees 65 years of age with 20 years service. The pensions would be administered by a joint board of company and union representatives.

Military experts said Saturday that American is widening her atomic weapons leadership, and is developing defenses against the possibility of attack with deadly germs.

Speaking in observance of the first Armed Forces Day, Paul H. Griffith, assistant secretary of defense, said at Kansas City, Mo., that officials are convinced an earlier start and greater knowledge is enabling the United States to widen its advantage in atomic energy.

And from the little - publicized field of research in chemical warfare, the army's chief of that division brought this measure of assurance in event germ warfare should be launched by an enemy: "We are prepared to deal with biological weapons. Defense measures now in effect or in preparation should prevent disastrous damage."

The speaker was Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, head of the army chemical corps. In military stations throughout the world, the four services got together to "report to the people" on the power that this nation has ready to discourage aggressors.

In Washington, President Truman reviewed a parade after proclaiming that America's armed might is created only for peace and to give pause to those in the world who only understand "the fist."

In Berlin, the day was celebrated by 70,000 uniformed members of the armed forces. In a number of places in western Germany parades and demonstrations were held. In Moscow, American military attaches were hosts at the embassy.

Prince Phillip Granted Command of Warship

LONDON (AP) — King George gave his sailor son-in-law command of his first ship Saturday. The Admiralty said the Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Elizabeth's husband, will take over the frigate H.M.S. Magpie shortly after he becomes a father for the second time. Princess Elizabeth expects her second child in late July.

The admiralty said the duke, Prince Phillip, will take command of the 1,430-ton Magpie in August.

Probe of Federal Employees' Morals Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospective congressional inquiry into federal employment on sexual pervers appeared likely Saturday to be handled by a committee on which Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin is the senior Republican.

McCarthy has coupled his charges of Communism in the state department — already the subject of a separate senate investigation — with contentions that the agency also has a lot of homosexuals on its payroll. The department has denied it.

To Be Referred Monday
A proposed new inquiry would go into the extent of homosexuality in all government departments and agencies. A resolution providing for such an investigation is expected to be referred to a senate committee Monday by Vice President Barkley.

Barkley was reported ready to designate the senate's expenditures committee in line with a recommendation by Senator Hill (D-Ala.), who introduced the resolution.

55 Miners Die In Ruhr Blast

ROTHAUSEN - DAHLBUSCH, GERMANY (AP) — Fifty-five miners were killed and 39 were injured Saturday in a coal-dust explosion followed by a raging fire in a 3,508 foot deep Ruhr coal mine near here.

It was western Germany's second worst mine disaster since the war. Rescue workers brought the 54th body from the shaft last night. Another man died of injuries after he was removed.

The workers said many of the bodies were charred beyond recognition. They believed many were killed outright by the blast before they were enveloped by the flames.

The fire, which raged for hours after the explosion, was extinguished late Saturday night. Rescue workers continued to search for other possible victims, as hundreds of men, women and children waited in the pouring rain outside the coal yard gates for news of the fate of relatives.

Red River Crest Shows First Drop

WINNIPEG, MAN. (AP) — The Red river, whose rampaging waters have flooded nearly a fifth of greater Winnipeg, Saturday showed its first drop — a half inch. Experts hoped it was the beginning of a gradual draining off. The flood level stood at 30.2 feet.

Although the water still was at record height for the century, hopes were spurred by bright sunshine and a forecast that threatened rainstorms from the United States would not materialize. Officials said the "situation looks good."

Most experts seemed to feel that the worst was over. There remains the long wait for the muddy waters to return to their banks. It probably will be mid-June before things are back to normal.

22 Stevedores Missing In Jersey Seaport Blast

An Understandable Feeling

SWANSEA, WALES (AP) — His neighbors said it was a miracle when William Daniel suddenly recovered his hearing after 10 years in an asylum for deaf mutes.

Daniel obtained a job. But Saturday he threw away his money and jumped into a river. Fished out, he said he didn't like the sounds he heard in his new life.

Police charged him with attempted suicide.

Bond Drive to Show Liberty Bell Replica

Persons who would like to hear the true tone of the original Liberty Bell will have that opportunity Tuesday when an exact replica minus the famous crack, comes to town as the symbol of a savings bond drive.

The federal treasury department is sponsoring an "Independence Drive" May 15 through July 4 to sell series F, G, and E savings bonds. The national series E sales goal is $650-million.

Johnston county's drive quota is $447,168 total for all types. Iowa's goal for bonds of the three types is $30-million.

Bell Cast in France
The bell coming to Iowa City is one of 52 which were made in Ancey, France by the combined efforts of a few French bell founders and the bellmaster of Princeton university.

Materials for the bells were donated by six American copper companies. The bells were made with identical measurements of the same copper alloy as the original, and are supposed to produce the same true tone.

The bell, mounted on a truck donated by an American auto manufacturing company, will be escorted into town by a detachment from the local National Guard reconnaissance company and the police.

The National Guard will raise the national colors and post a color guard near the bell while it is displayed at the intersection of Washington and Clinton streets Tuesday.

Bell to Remain Overnight
The bell is scheduled to arrive about 3 p.m. and will remain overnight. It will be on view from arrival until sundown.

Prof. H.J. Thornton, history, and Tom Martin, U.S representative from Iowa's first congressional district, will be featured speakers at a ceremony. At least one of

Coast Guard Opens Inquiry

SOUTH AMBOY, N.J. — Rescue workers moved cautiously along the shell-littered waterfront Saturday in search of some trace of 22 men still missing in the South Amboy munitions disaster. The workers carried mine detectors.

A coast guard hearing disclosed Saturday that two boxes of dynamite and 10 boxes of mines blew up in the explosion that shattered this port city and apparently killed 27 persons.

Four bodies were in the morgue and 22 stevedores were missing and presumed dead. It was possible, however, that two unidentified bodies were those of persons on the missing list. Police said 352 were injured, five critically. Property damage was estimated at $20-million.

Heard in Three States
Six hundred tons of explosives had roared into the air in one terrifying rumble that was heard in three states. The explosives were being loaded from freight cars onto barges to be shipped to a ship waiting out in lower New York bay.

All the 22 missing men had been at work on the loading operation on the South Amboy waterfront. Their foreman, who had walked away from the site just before the pier rose up in one spout of black smoke and flame, said he turned and suddenly could find no one.

Doesn't Suspect Sabotage
The foreman, Austin Stottle of South Amboy, was the principal witness Saturday afternoon before an official coast guard board of inquiry. He told them he saw nothing unusual about the area just before the blast and had no reason to suspect sabotage.

Coast Guard Commander L.T. Jones asked Stottle if some small boat could have slipped quietly into the loading area or if suspicious persons had been sighted at the scene. Stottle said "no."

Truman Hits Claim Of Rubber Stamping

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman Saturday night hit at critics who say he wants a "rubber stamp" congress.

Speaking informally before the Democratic women's national council, the President said when he was in the senate he was called a rubber stamp senator.

He defined such a senator or congressman as "a man who is elected on the platform of the party and who tries to carry out that platform in cooperation with the President of the United States — that's all he is."

While he did not say so directly, the President was obviously referring to such critics as Senator Robert Taft (R-Ohio) who accused him of seeking a "rubber stamp" congress through his criticism of "obstructionists."

The President also termed demagogues those who attack the administration as being full of bureaucrats and unnecessary people.

Museum Worker Weds Japan's Princess Taka

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's No. 2 princess was married to a $20-a-month museum attendant Saturday in austere but dramatic Shinto rites.

Princess Taka, 20, whose formal name is Kazuko, gave up her title and all royal privileges as the emperor's second daughter in wedding Toshimichi Takatsukasa, 26.

Emperor Hirohito was among about 30 members of the immediate families who witnessed the private ceremony in the residence of his brother, Prince Takamatsu. So far as is known, it was the first time in history that a Japanese emperor has attended the wedding of one of his children.

No Frugal Future
The bridegroom works at the Railway museum, and plans to be back on the job Monday, but the newlyweds will not have to live quite as frugally as all this sounds.

The groom's father is Nobusuke Takatsukasa, who is chief priest of the Meiji shrine and was a prince until such titles were abolished for all except the royal family.

Gifts From Government
The Japanese government appropriated the equivalent of $13,500 for the wedding and gave the princess two acres of ground for a home and funds worth $100,000.

Thousands of Japanese stood in the rain along the route from the royal palace to Takamatsu's house to get a glimpse of the wedding party.

PVT. HARGROVE DIVORCED
EL PASO, TEXAS (AP) — Marion Hargrove, author of the World War II book, "See Here, Private Hargrove," was divorced May 11 in Juarez, Mexico.

Princess Weds

HIROHITO'S DAUGHTER Saturday wedded a $20-a-month museum attendant and joined the ranks of the Japanese commoners. Twenty-year-old, former Princess Taka is shown in her wedding garb as she posed for photographers in Tokyo May 18. Taka, in wedding the museum attendant, renounced all claim to royalty.

No 'Third Man', HE —

Sinatra 'Explodes' over Love Triangle Tale

LONDON (AP) — Frank Sinatra stamped his foot in rage Saturday and exploded furiously that the reported romantic triangle involving himself, Ava Gardner and a Spanish bullfighter was "a vicious lie."

Sinatra arrived from Paris and left 90 minutes later for New York. In that 90 minutes he: Blasted the Spanish press for inventing the triangle. Blushed furiously. Said people never heard of Spain except when persons like himself visit the country.

Said he would come back to Europe soon, possibly in July. Denied that he and Ava had quarreled on the last night of his visit to her and that he had telephoned her every night from Paris to make amends. Stamped his foot angrily and said it was "all lies, every word of it."

Said his sore throat is much better. Reporters met Sinatra at the airport and asked was it really true — was there really a triangle involving Miss Gardner and parttime bullfighter Mario Cabre in which Sinatra was the third person?

Spanish newspapers were responsible for the whole affair, he replied. "The only time you ever heard of Spain is when someone like myself goes there . . . as for this young bullfighter . . . I never met him."

In Tossa de Mar, Spain, where Ava is making a picture with Cabre, Cabre commented Saturday in sorrow that he had remained in seclusion during Sinatra's visit there and "now all Spain thinks I am a coward."

Cabre said if he had it to do all over again he would face Sinatra man to man — as had been romantically predicted in the Spanish press.

But of the triangle, Sinatra said: "Why should Ava be the butt of this sort of vicious gossip? We are just very, very dear friends — nothing more, nothing less."

"Ava was given a very bad shock by this business," he said. "She has come off very badly. It's all a great shame. She's a wonderful person and she's done nothing to deserve this kind of treatment."

But dispatches from Tossa de Mar indicated Ava wasn't too broken up by the reports. Nightly she has been dining with Cabre along the white Mediterranean shore — after Sinatra left, that is.

The reports indicated Cabre wasn't too worried either. He said in an interview: "I still love her but the battle is neither won nor lost yet. The answer lies in the future and in the heart of Ava. In the heart of all women there comes a day when they really don't know what they want."

Bullfighter Takes a Lesson

(AP Wirephoto)

SCREEN ACTRESS AVA GARDNER conducts an English lesson for Mario Cabre, Spanish bullfighter turned actor, between scenes of the movie they are making on location at Gerona, Spain. Mario is brushing up on the language in preparation for a visit to England soon. Among his interests outside the bull ring, Mario claimed last week that he was "profoundly in love" with Miss Gardner and upset over a visit paid her by Crooner Frank Sinatra. Ava's leading man in the film is English star James Mason.

Governor Slams ROTC Picketers

MADISON, WIS. (AP) — Gov. Oscar Rennebohm Saturday night blasted a handful of Wisconsin students who picketed a federal inspection of ROTC students.

His attack came in a speech to the reserve officers association convention following an armed forces parade.

"You reserve officers here tonight are ready to sacrifice your all in the defense of our country. And 20 people have the guts to go out with signs," he said.

Rennebohm referred to a demonstration of students who paraded with anti-ROTC, anti-war signs before amazed federal officials at the annual ROTC inspection two weeks ago.

Kids Break Jail: Twice

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (AP) — Four children from seven to 10 years of age escaped the city's juvenile home early Saturday, turned loose all dogs and cats in the municipal animal shelter, were recaptured and broke loose again.

SUI Engineer Says People Should Finance New Roads

By RUEBEN MEHLING

If Iowa ever expects to put its highway system into top shape it will do better to go to its own people for the needed funds, rather than asking for increased federal aid, according to Prof. John J. O'Mara of the SUI civil engineering department.

O'Mara believes that asking more and more money from the federal government to build up and repair our "inadequate and antiquated highway system" is simply avoiding the issue of taking the problem to the people.

He said the majority of the voters want good highways. They will support increases in gas taxes, license fees, and bond issues at the state and local levels if they are acquainted with the facts.

The job of the state highway engineers is to acquaint the people with the problem and seek their support, O'Mara said.

In this week's issue of Engineering News Record, a national engineering publication, O'Mara gives three specific reasons why he thinks asking for more federal highway aid is "one of the major incongruities of all time."

First, the federal government is already in debt to the extent of $260 - billion. Second, most state governments are free of debt, many actually have surpluses. Third, local governments are in as good financial conditions as the states.

O'Mara asks fellow engineers to quit plugging for federal aid and get their support at state and local levels by carrying this fight to the general public.

He pointed out that the state will get about $100-million for road work in 1950. About half of this comes from the federal government, the rest is raised by state, county and local license fees, gas taxes and property taxes.

Of this seemingly large amount, over half is earmarked for counties and cities. O'Mara estimated that the actual construction budget for primary state roads would not exceed $20-million.

O'Mara said it costs about $150,000 a mile to construct a modern two-lane highway and about $30,000 a mile to widen and resurface an "antiquated road."

About 130 miles of new highway that can be constructed with the amount to be received this year. Yet the Bureau of Public Roads — which dispenses the federal funds — showed that Iowa had 858 miles of new highway programmed as of March, 1950.

Construction for 397 miles of highway in Iowa is already under way, and plans have been approved for 138 additional miles.

O'Mara asks, "How can engineers and level-headed leaders support a policy which advocates further federal subsidies when the national government is now operating at a deficit budget?"

"Asking the government, may be easier than asking the people, but it is not wiser."

Sexy Laugh

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Gallop complained Saturday that he can't find a woman with a sexy laugh.

He said he had listened all over the country for a giggle with oomph, but there wasn't a single one to be heard.

Gallop, a television star with a sinister laugh, and an eerie smile to go along with it, started looking for a laugh with sex appeal simply because he has never heard one.

Years of Research
After several years of straining his eardrums on research he says he still hasn't.

"Who've you got who looks sexy and sounds sexy?" he asked. "No one."

There's Betty Hutton, for instance. She's a bundle of charm when her mouth is closed, but when she laughs, it's like all the fire sirens in New York City are sounding at once, Gallop said.

"Fay Emerson is pretty sexy in those low-cut gowns, but her laugh isn't," he added. "Garbo's laugh used to be pretty good in the low registers, but she doesn't laugh for the public anymore."

Plenty of Charm, No Smile
"Hollywood has plenty of charmers, like Claudette Colbert, Myrna Loy, and Hedy Lamar, but they hardly ever smile."

About the most famous feminine laughs Gallop could think of were the babyish gurgle of Fanny Brice in her role of "Baby Snooks," the suburban "kitten-on-the-keys" giggle of Billie Burke, Eve Arden's "refined-type belly laugh," and the whining laugh of actress Zazu Pitts.

Soft, Seductive Laugh
No one has what he would call a soft, seductive laugh that makes a man want to take a girl in his arms.

"A laugh is part of a person's personality," Gallop said. "An important part of it. I'm beginning to wonder how many girls really have sex appeal if they can't get it across with a laugh."

CLAMP DOWN ON REDS

FRANKFURT, GERMANY (AP) — The United States and Britain Friday clamped sharp restrictions on the movements of Soviet military missions in western Germany in reprisal for withdrawal of free travel passes from the American and British missions at Potsdam in the Russian zone.

"Television is a natural in Mexico," according to Luis F. Figueroa, assistant to the company president, Romulo O'Farrill. Figueroa is a New York engineer who has been working here for the past year and a half to get things going.

THIS WAS a pioneer job of proportions and in addition to designing the studios, making engineering arrangements for equipment, he has been in charge of programming, publicity, and has written the laws on television which are now being enacted by the communications ministry.

Figueroa reports that advertisers are already clamoring for time. With more than 60 percent of the nation's buying power concentrated into a single area which will be served by the first station, others are expected to climb on the bandwagon even before it has started rolling.

Elated over the business possibilities of television the company is also concerned with proper use and intends to devote much of its time to programs of an educational nature.

Television will be a graphic medium of information for the millions of illiterates and will be a powerful instrument in campaigns for better health.

Although it is expected that one more operating license will be granted in 1950, for the time being the Television de Mexico has a clear field. The station will operate on channel four with a power of five kilowatts.

OPERATING time will be from two to three in the afternoon—Mexico's traditional lunch hour. And, in addition to remote broadcasts which will be made during the afternoon, it will be continuous from 7 to 11 o'clock.

About 50 percent of the time will consist of filmed shows.

Filling time and screen is no problem at all with the educational events planned and outdoor activities which will be screened as a boon to sports-minded Mexico. Besides the first screened bull fight, there will be "beisbol" and "futbol," swimming meets and soccer. The colorful fiestas and celebrations of Mexico will also be incorporated into the programming.

Television is the answer to every dream for communication in Mexico. Despite the popularity of soap opera in Spanish, radio has never been the dominant factor in home life in this country that it became in the United States.

For all of their romanticism, the Mexicans have a Missouri-like determination to be shown. Many of them, hampered from reading newspapers because of lack of money or lack of knowledge, will become looker-listeners. Far from being a competitor, TV is expected to provide a shot in the arm for the Mexican film industry.

Yes Sir, They'll Make Fine Traffic Cops

What It Has Is Good, But —

U.S. Far Behind in War Aircraft Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — If war came suddenly the United States would have to fight for at least a year and a half with the air power it has now.

What it has now is good — there just isn't enough of it. So says General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air chief of staff.

Getting enough demands four big elements of production: men, machines, material and time.

Time — the one that can't be bought, borrowed, made or improvised — has been stressed in four major reports recommending higher levels of peacetime production of military airplanes.

The studies were begun in January, 1945, by the air coordinating committee, representing all interested military and civil agencies. Later ones were made by presidential, congressional and private groups.

None of the proposed minimum levels has yet been approached.

The air force now has a total of about 17,000 planes, of which 3,100 are of combat type in active service. The navy has a total of 13,500 planes, with 2,200 combat type in service.

The aircraft industry, with 170,000 employees, is about three times pre-war size and less than one tenth its wartime peak. It has dropped to below 15th place.

Size of the industry is important in plans for emergency expansion. Experience has shown that aircraft production can be tripled in one year and tripled again in a second year — if men, machines and material are available.

That means today's production rate of 150 combat planes per month could be boosted to 450 per month by May 1951 and to 1,350 per month — approximately the Pearl Harbor level — by May 1952. Numbers-wise the nation would be two years behind Pearl Harbor if war began tomorrow.

Aircraft production usually is stated in airplane pounds. The airframe is the empty shell without engines, landing gear or equipment. It represents less than half the cost of jet warfare.

It requires about twice as many man-hours to build a pound of airplane today as during the war. And the average weight of airframe is twice that of World War II types. So an equal number of workers would turn out only one fourth the number of planes built in wartime.

Almost everything about present day planes weighs more — and costs more.

A World War I light bomber had about 50 pounds of instruments. A jet light bomber has 1,970 pounds of instruments.

But there are no more light bombers in production. The bomber called "medium" in this jet age is nine times the weight of a wartime "medium," three times the weight of a wartime "heavy," and half again as hefty as a wartime "very heavy."

The real problem in expanding current production lies in the scarce materials upon which jet engines depend, upon the mass of engineering — a modern jet bomber requires 85 acres of blueprints — and the terrific assembly of electronic and other delicate equipment used for gun-laying, bombing, navigation and meeting the problems of great speed and altitude.

Top officials have said that in case of unanticipated war, it would take 18 months or more to push production high enough to overcome combat losses and show a gain in overall strength. Industry officials say no planes would come out of a plant the first year.

Here is a quick picture of the major elements in warplane production expansion:

1. Materials are likely to be the most dangerous bottleneck. Many items the United States must import.

2. Manpower is important, but industry leaders feel it need not be a dangerous problem. They would stabilize employment through wage and other controls and prevent drafting of key men by more careful screening.

3. Machine tools can be a critical difficulty unless plans are followed up with action. They have become more complex as airplanes have become more complex. Some 60,000 machine tools from World War II have been stored. Industry leaders feel they should be maintained constantly — or, better, set up in plants and used at least occasionally.

4. Plant space is the bright spot. The industry now has some 70-million square feet of space, compared with a war peak of 170-million square feet. In addition, some important war-built plants in standby status or used by other industries could be restored to duty quickly.

5. The industry is in fair financial shape after heavy losses immediately after the war. Financing arrangements such as the revolving credit pool of wartime would be necessary to handle heavy inventories.

6. Engines and accessories could be a serious bottleneck because of the drastic changes made since V-J day. This country has no combat experience with jet engines, but the record of piston engines shows that five years after one has gone into service it still may be undergoing as many as 300 changes a month.

Hundred Year Mark —

Makers Fete Panama Hats

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If you wear a Panama hat this summer, you're helping the hat makers celebrate a centennial.

It isn't really the birthday of the Panama. It does mark a hundred years from the time that particular type of vegetable hat was discovered by disappointed California '49ers returning east by way of Panama.

(It should be explained here that hat men call anything a vegetable hat that is made from natural materials. A Panama is a vegetable hat because it is woven from the fibers of the Toquilla palm which is a species of stemless screw pine.)

The gold rush boys bought their lightweight hats in Panama on the way back home. Pretty soon they were all the rage and it got to be part of the costume of the aristocracy, particularly the southern planters.

A man was as vain about his $100 Panama as a girl is now with her first platinum blue mink coat. Although it has had its ups and downs the Panama has been a perennial favorite ever since.

In a way this is ironic because Panama hats are not made in Panama, but in Ecuador. Also they are not woven under water, no matter what tourist tales you hear, and they have been around much longer than a mere one hundred years.

An Ecuadorian named Francisco Delgado is reputed to have woven the first Panama in 1630, which was 320 years ago, but the Panama hat people give him only a passing salute because 320 years isn't a very good round anniversary number.

Through the years, there have been modest changes in the Panama hat industry and they are now made in a variety of sizes, shapes and even colors. Some still are made in the traditional style, with a center ridge in the crown which originally was made by folding it for baling and export.

The fiber is woven while damp. To do this, the Indians work in shaded sheds, preferably during a rainfall or in the early morning humidity. Moisture makes the fiber pliant.

Depending on how fancy the weave is — and the money they expect to get out of it — a Panama can take from one day to three months to weave. The finished Panamas are taken to the nearest town on certain fair days when a commission merchant comes along.

Most weavers can't read or write, so the commission merchant indicates what kind of hats he wants by giving them pieces of broken fiber showing the size, and presenting samples of weaving. There are some six different types of weave, with classy Spanish names. It wasn't until the 1930's that they started making loose weaves which allow for air circulation around the top of the head.

The Student Council walked into a maze of charges and counter-charges dealing with the removal of race and religion questions from university applications May 11.

For the first time, the council members found themselves working under the strain of an audience. About 135 persons came to the house chamber in old Capitol that night and many of them voiced their opinions on the issue.

Push Removal
The YMCA and Young Progressives of SUI advocated the removal of the questions saying the questions represent a means of discriminating against minority groups.

Dean Dewey Stuit of the liberal arts college gave the university side of the story by describing how the questions are important in the counseling work here.

He denied the questions were used to discriminate against anyone in housing or admissions.

Evidence Lacking
Even the strongest proponents of the plan could not present any evidence of discrimination on campus which could be traced to these questions.

The issue boiled down to whether the council could say it believed in eliminating discrimination and not back the removing of the questions.

As the vote turned out, most of the members did not think they could, at least in front of an audience.

Position to Fill
One job the Student Council must do before the school year ends is to find a good replacement for the public relations chief, Bud Landon.

Landon began an important bit of work with the public relations staff this year. His worth to the council cannot be over-estimated.

Whoever is chosen for his job, will find a very large pair of shoes to be filled.

Senate Okays Truman Reorganization Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate Friday suddenly halted its slaughter of President Truman's reorganization plans and upheld one abolishing the maritime commission.

Duties of the commission would be switched to the commerce department where a new three-member maritime board and a maritime administration would be created.

It was the sixth plan the senate has considered among the 21 which Mr. Truman submitted in March reshaping administrative setups. The senate killed the other five.

The remaining 16 plans become law unless house or senate, by a full majority, vote disapproval of one or more of them by next Tuesday. Thus the maritime change will go into effect automatically unless the house should vote against it.

Late Friday the senate agreed to defer until Monday and Tuesday consideration of five more of the plans.

FBI Agents to Question Fuchs on Spy Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant FBI Director Hugh H. Clegg and Special Agent Robert J. Lamp here have arrived in London to question Dr. Klaus E. J. Fuchs, German-born scientist convicted of slipping atomic secrets to Russia, it was disclosed Friday.

The disclosure was made in a terse announcement by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. He did not elaborate.

Mexico's First TV Station to Open

MEXICO CITY — Directions are a problem in Mexico City. However, everyone can tell you where television is. "Right around the esquina." And "esquina" is the way the Mexicans describe corners.

Also, everyone wants to get into at least one of the acts which will be sent out from the studios in the National Lottery building where the first television station station begins operation this month.

A few weeks ago, the ministry of communications issued the first station letters in Mexico — XHTV — to Television de Mexico, S.A.

The outfit has already established itself on the 13th and 14th floors of the National Lottery building and viewed from any angle at all their operation is no gamble — but a safe bet to succeed.

OFFICIALS GO OVER PLANS for Mexico's first TV studio to open this month.

New Cologne Substitutes As Summer Cooling Agent

Imagine bathing in a tub of ice cubes during the hot summer months!

That feeling can be reasonably substituted through the cooling effect of a new type cologne which is just being introduced.

More than a blend of citrus oils and alcohol, the basic characteristics of cologne, this new toiletry contains a high percentage of perfume oils plus a cooling agent. When applied to the body, it not only imparts a frost to the skin but a lasting floral fragrance which will trail you wherever you go.

Its main mission begins after the bath or shower as a brisk rubdown, followed with a flick of the talc in the same fragrance. Dabbed on the wrists, temples and arms during the day, it prolongs the feeling of coolness. It's a good idea also to keep your handkerchiefs freshened with it, so that whenever the heat is particularly stifling, you can sniff it as you would smelling salts, for a quick pick-up.

Before retiring, it is cooling to bathe the back of the neck with this unusual cologne and apply a dash to your pillow.

Ever plunge your ankles into a running brook in the country? This cologne, slapped on the ankles, will revive them in the same cooling, refreshing manner. Then shake a little talc in the same fragrance in your shoes to absorb perspiration.

The cologne is bottled by a well-known national company and since each bottle is shock-protected, it is convenient to tote to the beach and take away on vacations and weekends.

nsit Article Stresses Broad Education

Students of today would do well to avoid excessive specialization in their field while in college or university and seek a broader curriculum, Ronald Larson, E4, Chicago, wrote in the latest issue of Iowa Transit.

Larson pointed out that there is a need for people in specialized positions, but more opportunity lies before those with a broad university background. American universities are recognizing this fact, and many are broadening their professional curriculum from specialist fields into broadened areas, Larson said.

SUI the recent addition of subjects in the humanities, English and other subjects outside of the strict classification of engineering are increasing the liberal education of engineers.

It should only be the beginning of a general trend in educational policy, according to Larson, common criticism applicable to occupational fields is that today's education is "split into specialized fields in which chemists could not speak to lawyers."

The invention and development of new devices and methods must be accompanied by an equally intensified education in the humanities if the welfare of our citizens is to be preserved, Larson explained.

Larson said one of the chief arguments supporting this is that the men responsible for the development of such discoveries as the atomic bomb should be educated not only scientifically but also socially.

Phi Beta Kappa Initiation Scheduled for Monday

Hawkeyes Clinch

Shutout for Drahn, 3-0 Hoeksema Wins 2nd, 7-

By ALAN MOYER
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Iowa maintained its slim chance of winning the West conference baseball championship Saturday by sweeping a double-header from last-place Minnesota, 3-0, and 7-1. The two victories jumped the Hawkeyes into second place, replacing Ohio State.

Saturday morning at Madison, Wis., the Badgers took their second straight from Michigan, thus gaining a tie for first with the Wolverines. Ohio State defeated Notre Dame, 12-8, and dropped to fourth.

Michigan and Wisconsin have 7-3 league marks, Iowa 6-3 and Ohio State 5-3.

Glenn Drahn and Dick Hoeksema each hurled five - hitters at the Gophers. Drahn chalked up his shutout in the opener before 2,100 fans at the Iowa diamond in the most impressive style the righthander has shown all season. It was his third Big Ten win without a defeat. Hoeksema now has won three and lost two.

Hoeksema gave up a run in the top of the first inning in the second game but did not allow more than one hit an inning. His mates touched three Minnesota pitchers for 11 safe hits, including a seventh inning home run by Left Fielder Murland Moran.

Iowa tied up the nightcap in the bottom of the first when Bob Christoph reached first on an infield error, stole second and scored on Pinky Primrose's sharp single to left.

The Hawks knocked Starting Pitcher John Garbett from the mound in the fourth with four hits and two runs. Whitey Skoog, Gopher basketball star, came in and quickly ended the inning.

But in the fifth Iowa shelled Skoog for three runs and four hits, Ed Browne's single bringing in two of the runners.

IT WAS A BIG WEEKEND for Iowa sports as three varsity teams saw action at home. The Hawkeye baseball team swept a double-header from Minnesota, 3-0 and 7-1, but the tennis and track teams didn't fare so well. Northwestern beat the net team, 6-3, and the Gophers stunned the thinclads, 88½-43½. Upper left shows Don Lewis waiting to return one of Bill Ladin's lobbs before Ewing, 7-5, 4-6 and 2-6. In the upper right Minnesota's Jim Nielson crosses the finish line to hand Russ Merkel his first final meet loss in the high hurdles. Bottom — Murland Moran starts his slide into the plate after slamming a home run to center field in the seventh inning of the second game. Waiting for the throw is Dick Mykelbust while Merlin Kurt watches the play. Umpire Eorker Graham is ready to call the play.

Hill Prince in Preakness

Win Over Middleground
BALTIMORE (AP) — Hill Prince and Eddie Arcaro ran away with the 74th Preakness Stakes Saturday for Virginia, whipping the Kentucky Derby champ — Middleground — by the bargain.

The powerful bay colt from the Old Dominion took the lead going into the backstretch of the ancient Pimlico race course. Those in the chilled crowd of 26,599 who had established him the odds-on favorite never had another worry.

Professor Helps Select 'Pictures for Home'

Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the SUI art department, is one of a three-man jury which selected four pictures from the Walker Art center exhibition of "Pictures for the Home," to be reproduced and distributed to the public at low cost.

The other judges were D. S. Deffenbacher, director of the Walker Art center, and Dwight Kirsch, director of the University of Nebraska art galleries.

The show at the Minneapolis gallery opens today and will last until July 2.

The exhibition consists of 44 contemporary American paintings which were assembled from museums, galleries and private collections throughout the country. As the title indicates, the pictures in the show have been chosen especially suitable for the home.

Visitors to the center are invited to cast their ballots for their four favorite pictures.

At the close of the show a grand prize of $100 will be given to the person whose choice matches most closely that of the experts. In addition there will be 20 other prizes.

Two Men Arraigned On Criminal Charges

Two men were arraigned on criminal charges Saturday morning in district court before Judge Harold D. Evans.

George G. Ayers, 22, Cedar Rapids, pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Sentence was $300 fine or 90 days in jail. His driver's license was suspended for 60 days.

Ayers was arrested by highway patrolmen May 7 on highway 218 near Iowa City. He was charged in a county attorney's information.

Kenneth Smith, operator of the Nibble Nook near Lone Tree, pleaded not guilty to a grand jury indictment charging illegal possession of intoxicating liquors.

He was held in the Johnson county jail after failing to post bond.

Doctor's Research Shows — Thiamin Requirement Lower Than Originally Thought

Young adults probably can get along on less thiamin, or vitamin B-1, than nutritionists had previously thought necessary, according to a two-year study recently completed at University hospitals.

The study was made by Kate Daum, associate professor and head of nutrition; Dr. W. W. Tuttle, professor of physiology, and other research workers. Results of the study appeared in the Journal of the American Dietetic association.

The Iowa study, although not conclusive, substantiated other investigation in the field, Dr. Daum said. Vitamin and mineral requirements are difficult to determine and must be studied over long periods of time, making conclusive study difficult.

Thiamin is essential to good health because it helps keep the digestive system in working condition and is required for normal growth. It is widely distributed in natural foods and therefore difficult to exclude completely from the diet for experimental purposes.

Adequate thiamin is consumed by most Iowans because of their broad food tastes and the garden vegetables and pork raised in the state, Dr. Daum said.

Enriched bread and flour, included in even the most limited diets, are leading sources of thiamin.

Vitamin loss can be avoided in food preparation, Dr. Daum emphasized, by preserving flavor, color and texture of fruits and vegetables in the cooking process.

Two Groups
Two groups of young adults participated in the SUI study. Both ate specially prepared food, one a low-thiamin diet and the other a balanced diet.

Tests Made
A diet containing a small but rigidly controlled amount of thiamin, but otherwise adequate and edible, was given the low-thiamin subjects.

Investigators were able to study the effects of low thiamin intake by varying the amount of thiamin given the group. Both groups were examined regularly and their muscular efficiency measured.

Physiologic reactions to the low thiamin intake were less marked than had been expected. None of the subjects suffered loss of appetite, body changes or eye and ear difficulties.

When thiamin intake was reduced below 0.25 to 0.30 milligrams per 1,000 calories of mixed diet, fatigue symptoms began to appear. This milligram count is considerably below the minimum previously believed necessary, the researchers said.

Doctor to Present Paper On Radiation Cataracts

Dr. P.J. Leinfelder, professor of ophthalmology in the SUI college of medicine, will attend a meeting of the American Ophthalmological society in Hot Springs, Va., May 31 through June 2.

He will read a paper on "Radiation Cataracts." Dr. Titus Evans, director of the SUI radiation laboratory, and Leinfelder have been conducting experiments in the development of cataracts after exposure to radio active energy. The paper will concern this work.

Research is financed by a $20,564 grant from the national research council.

Congregational Students Relax at Church Center

By CHARLES MICK

"Drop in and relax" is the standing invitation at the basement housed student center of the Congregational church, 30 N. Clinton street.

The "fireside room," with its pine-walled fireplace flanked by maple davenport, is the main section of the center.

The room is furnished with hardwood chairs, a radio-phonograph combination, coffee tables, lamps and well-filled magazine racks.

In the adjoining room is a large stage and a ping pong table. A third room in the center, called the "Browsing room," contains all the latest copies of church periodicals.

Little Chapel

Another feature of the center is the Little Chapel, which is directly across the hallway from the fireside room.

Grace Hadley, Congregational student director, said the Little Chapel has been the scene of many student weddings, and also serves the students as a place of prayer and meditation.

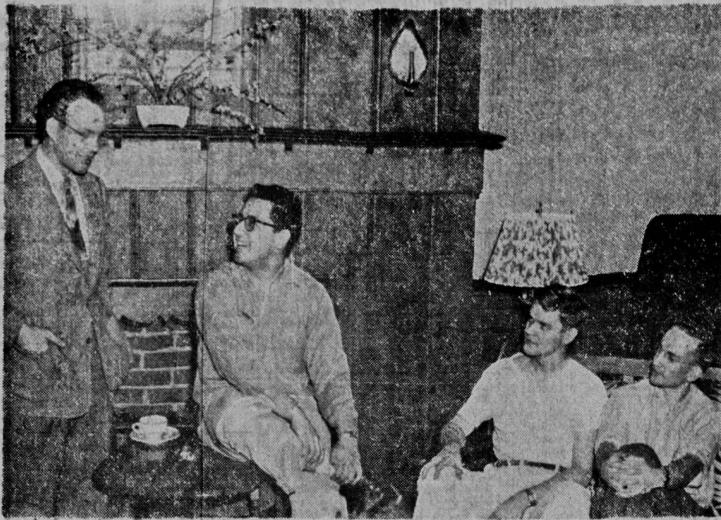

A meeting of the United Student fellowship (composed of Congregational - Christian, Evangelical and Reformed students) is held in the center every Sunday at 5 p.m.

The meeting consists of a short program with a speaker and supper, Miss Hadley explained.

Lenten Meeting

During Lent, the fellowship had four speakers at the Sunday night meeting. The theme was "Paths of Protestantism."

Each Friday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. the center holds an informal coffee hour, at which a woman of

Banquets Held

Miss Hadley said the students hold a freshman banquet at the beginning of each fall semester to acquaint incoming students with the student center and the minister.

A spring banquet held May 11 with a "Noah's Ark" theme was the formal ending of the center's organized student activity for the school year.

Main speaker was the Rev. Oliver Powell, Chicago, national secretary for young people's work in the Congregational church.

United Student fellowship members have donated $100 to the national student organization for scholarships to worthy Japanese students.

City High Offers Psychology Tests

City high school's guidance department offers an extensive program of psychological testing, according to E.O. Peisner, boys' adviser.

Tests available are: The Army General classification test, first civilian edition, designed to measure scholastic aptitude; occupational interest tests; personality tests and mechanical aptitude tests.

Tests are standardized to make comparison possible between City high school students and those of the same age and grade throughout the country.

Damage Suit to Open Before Jury Monday

A jury trial of a $196 damage suit against the Central Ready Mixed Concrete company, 15 E. College street, is scheduled to begin in Johnson county district court at 10 a.m. Monday.

Mrs. Florence M. Fenlon, 404 S. Summit street, is suing for damages to her car resulting from an accident with one of the company's cement mixer trucks on Burlington street Oct. 26, 1934. Stanley Evans, driver of the truck, was also named a defendant in the case.

Mrs. Fenlon's attorney is Emil G. Trott. The defendants are represented by Ries, Dutcher and Osmundson.

Predicts Improved Roads for County

Johnson county will have hard surface roads running by every farm within 11 years if the present rate of road construction continues, Floyd L. Link, civic affairs director of the Motor Club of Iowa, said Saturday.

The problem of how to have hard-surfaced roads in Johnson county, but avoid high auto taxes will be discussed by the Iowa City chapter of the Motor Club of Iowa at a meeting 8 p.m. Monday in the Iowa City Community building.

State Sen. W. N. Skourup, Burlington, will be the principal speaker. Skourup fought against increased license fees at the last legislature, Link said.

Slides and a film about safety education will be shown. Link said the public is invited to attend.

Blast Hits Near Home

News of the Friday night munitions explosion at South Amboy, N.J., "struck home" to SUI graduate student Octavian Tuckerman and his wife.

The couple lived in Perth Amboy, N.J., most of their lives before Tuckerman enrolled at SUI. Perth Amboy is about a quarter of a mile across the Raritan river from South Amboy.

Tuckerman said the explosion, which injured hundreds of persons and leveled docks and waterfront industrial plants, occurred less than a mile from where the Tuckermans lived, and where Mrs. Tuckerman's parents now reside.
