

Employment Personnel Reveal Common Job Hunting Errors

"He sat there, gazing at the floor, talking to his shoes, and glancing warily up at me only once or twice," an interviewer at the U.S. Employment office said about one SUI student who was looking for a job.

This case of poor personal salesmanship is not exceptional but often encountered at employment agencies, according to personnel managers. Robert Ballantyne, of the SUI employment service said he too has held many such interviews.

But this disinterested attitude is not the only defect prominent among job seekers, nor is it the worst. Faults are many and varied and they begin with the original contact with an employer, the application letter.

Three Iowa City employers interviewed recently on this matter of applications said many letters are too long, lack adequate information on experience and deal in generalities rather than specific facts. The latter means that they like a letter applying for a specific job, not just "a position with your firm." Information obtained from three Iowa City placement bureaus upholds these statements. Two SUI psychologists agree that application letters should be short and to the point.

What then should be included in an application letter and what should be left out?

A resort center in Colorado outlined nine points it likes to see in such letters. From data obtained in talking to personnel managers these seem uniformly agreed upon:

1. Specific type of work applied for.
2. Date available for work.
3. Age, height, weight, nationality, parenthood.
4. Names and addresses of former employers.
5. Experience.
6. Church affiliations.
7. Other affiliations.
8. Special talents.
9. A picture.

This list may seem only logical but strangely enough, such data is often omitted, especially points one and five.

But how, it could be rightfully asked, can one keep a letter short and yet include all this information?

The experts have an answer for that too, or at least most placement bureaus and employers recommend the enclosure of a personal data sheet with a letter of application.

A personal data sheet is simply a paper which briefly lists name, age, height, weight, addresses, affiliations and nearly all the information of the above points in a form similar to that on any application blank. If places of employment and experience amount to a long list they too may be included on such a sheet.

Whether or not a picture should be included has led to some controversy. Prof. Edward Shoben, psychologist and director of the SUI counseling office, says, "It has been established that a picture reveals very little about one's personality. Therefore they may often be misleading to an employer." Don Lewis, of the SUI psychology department, adds that such has been scientifically proved.

Yet, most employers like to have them included and most placement bureaus recommend that a picture be attached to a letter of application, especially if an interview is hard to arrange.

Probably the most dreaded aspect of job hunting is the interview with a personnel manager, and this is undoubtedly the most important one.

According to local employers, personal appearance merits highest consideration in an interview and they say that uncleanliness and over-dressing are the two worst faults of job applicants in this respect.

The personnel manager of one department store said his pet peeves concerning personal appearance were women with the "over-painted look" and gum chewing. A spokesman at the SUI education placement office said that women who are over-dressed are not at ease and often make such mistakes as shaking hands with gloves on. A small point, yet of considerable importance.

Robert Hanrahan, of the U.S. employment office here, lists cleanliness as the topmost consideration in appearance. "Soap is relatively cheap these days," he said.

A personnel manager of a local advertising firm said he likes to see a neat appearance but not too flashy in dress. Most employers in the survey agreed.

Of almost equal importance to appearance is the attitude of a job hunter, according to the placement bureaus and employers.

And there is a dangerous attitude prevalent among college graduates, they say, referring to the superior, intellectual and academic attitude of many who feel that a degree is a written ticket to a top job.

Ballantyne said he sees this attitude every day—the "know-it-all" guy who often misses an opportunity for success. The same was indicated by the U.S. employment office which listed such an attitude as the "I'm qualified for something better than that."

However, Frances Camp of the Education placement office said, "That superiority idea has two sides; employers may be afraid of that attitude and see it when it actually isn't there. But if there really is such a complex, it's bad. Qualifications should be stated in a matter-of-fact manner, frank but not offensive."

Attitudes that employers generally like to see, in the order of their importance, seem to be: willingness to learn, self-assurance, honesty, interest in the job, and naturalness.

Concerning hints on how to get along in an interview, a psychologist Shoben said, "There are no tricks that can be used, because an applicant's personality and the personality of the interviewer are the important factors. An interview will be as good as an employer makes it." Ballantyne said essentially the same thing when he stated, "Take the cue from the man you're talking to and respond in the same manner."

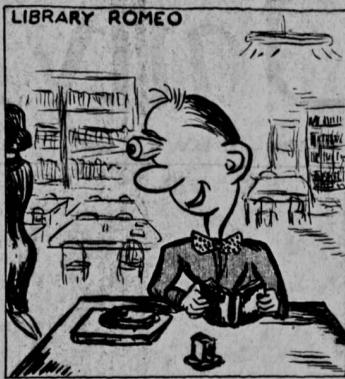

Psychologist Lewis, said the only suggestion that could be offered is to "form habits of being at ease in situations similar to those of job interviews. Being at ease under such tension is a learned response—that's one of the reasons for courses in public speaking."

Other suggestions offered to those looking for employment have included: don't be afraid to ask questions; don't plan to start as a vice-president; show interest in the job in question, and remember that the interviewer will probably be as nervous as you.

Miss Camp said, "Don't stay too long, thank the interviewer, and later send a follow-up thank you letter."

Perhaps some of these points, suggestions and theories will be able to help in personal public relations and make the job of job hunting a little easier.

Study 'Habits' on the SUI Campus

By GIL PEARLMAN

Getting to the end of the semester and, consequently, to the end of my rope. One more conference, after this, with an executive called Smith - Coronado (English, you know) and I shall hang up my notebook and pencil and call it "a day," providing it isn't night.

Be it so. "But," spake the High Lords of the third estate, "no columnist, worthy or not, can lie prostrate over his portable, ornamented with a scrapbook of past hallucinations, until he presents a list of modern word usage."

I FIND MYSELF extremely limited in this capacity. I have always leaned on Webster while writing term papers and most of my friends can utter no more than, "Ugh! Me Tarzan, you Jane!"

However, there is no use arguing. The word of the High Lords cannot be crossed. When this is done, a curse is cast upon you and in the journalistic field you can never rise above an editorial writer on the Chicago Tribune.

Here fellows, after three bows to the East, definitions of words in modern usage. Salam! Ee!

CONSCIENTIOUS: An exotic feeling of depression that overtly overwhelms the heart of every young student the last five days of any given semester.

REAL CRAZY: That which reaches perfection in its form and sends you into artistic convulsions.

GAS: Similar to "Real Crazy," but this is the utmost; the greatest. To say, "Man, that chick is gassed!" means that you think of her in a passion greatly exceeding an afternoon coke date.

BLEW HIS WHISK: Commonly mistaken for Jack Benny losing his temper. But in this case it is not peculiar to Jack Benny, or to temper. Refers to an exhibitor of internal excitement; so excited, I take it, that he finds it impossible to comb his hair.

WHAT'S SHAKIN'?: What's happening? What's going on? (Sometimes, innocently used by a freshman who, as yet, has not taken the Core Course in Anatomy.) Past Tense: Wot 'Oppin'?

DRAG: Extremely boring. When something becomes a "drag" one does not find it refreshing or stimulating anymore. Example: This is getting to be a drag—anything may be substituted for the word "this."

READ: To "read" somebody is the result of becoming velly velly perturbed with somebody and expressing your disgust in language of a high coloring aptitude.

EMPTY HOUSE: Refers to the mind of an acquaintance who has little chance of acquiring said acquaintance a Phi Beta Kappa key, even if the requirement for PBK was reduced to an accumulative "incomplete."

BANK: A spacious, green, comfortable pasture, frequently attached to a river. In this type of bank "currency" is transformed from the federal coinage to the electrical classification.

BUSH: A pre-fabricated shelter for Romeo and Juliet, found on the "banks" as defined above. These resemble thieves in the night in that, after the sun goes down, they become dangerous. In the more fanatic cases, says one expert geologist, they have been known to—"kick back."

NICE: In answer to, "What do you think of so-and-so?" when you can't think of anything else to say. It is a middle-ground between slandering, in bad taste, and praise, in hypocrisy.

PHONEY: This is the world's hardest word to define. Everybody calls everybody else "a phoney" and nobody seems to know what it means. The word itself is probably phoney, but that doesn't help matters of definition. In want of something better one might say that "phony" describes a person who is being himself... and anybody who professes to be himself all the time is phoney. But that doesn't help, because anybody who isn't himself is being promoted as a substitute for "Hey, you!"

Doctors List 14 Reasons Why — Childbirth Now Safer Than 10, 20 Years Ago

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Reporter NEW YORK (AP) — There are 14 reasons why childbirth is safer today for mother and baby than 10 to 20 years ago.

The reasons were cited by doctors attending the recent international and fourth American congress on obstetrics and gynecology here.

They give main weight to five advances, which you might guess at:

1. Antibiotics. These wonder drugs, developed during or since the war, give better control of infections.

2. Blood banks. Blood is available to combat hemorrhages and shock. Fibrinogen, a product from blood, is an even newer life-saver in hemorrhage.

3. Better and safer methods of long-lasting anesthesia.

4. Growth of pre-natal clinics, and more women going to their doctors early in pregnancy. This means better health care before delivery, and more warnings of possible troubles ahead.

5. About 85 percent of births now occur in hospitals, where new life-savers or emergency measures are more readily available. Only 25 to 30 years ago, most deliveries were at home.

Other reasons can be equally important, said Dr. C.L. Buxton, associated professor of clinical obstetrics and gynecology at Columbia University's college of physicians and surgeons, who was program committee secretary.

Physicians now have better methods of detecting threatened miscarriages, with loss of the unborn baby and danger to the mother.

They also have X-ray methods of measuring the size of the unborn baby's head in comparison with the size of the mother's bony pelvis. They are warned beforehand of difficult labor, or of the need to take the baby by Caesarian operation. The forerunner means less use of forceps, with danger of injury to baby and mother.

Caesarian operations are safer, due to antibiotics, blood, anesthesia methods and improved operative techniques.

German measles is recognized now as one cause of deformed infants, if women contract the disease very early in pregnancy.

The RH factor in blood has been discovered as a cause of stillbirths and of infant deaths after birth from a battle in the bloodstream. RH difficulties can be predicted, and a baby can be given a new supply of safe blood if he is born with RH positive sensitized blood.

MARRIAGE LICENSE A marriage license was issued in Johnson county clerk's office Thursday to Francis L. Broderick, SUI history instructor, and Barbara J. Baldrige, A4, Iowa City.

Life-saving care of premature babies is better known, better organized.

Surgical and obstetrical skills have grown with the years.

More attention is paid to repairing, right after birth, childbirth injuries to the mother that can cause complications in later years.

And finally, there is far more success now in helping childless couples have babies. The childless couple has twice as good a chance of overcoming sterility now as 20 years ago.

Since 1930, the yearly death rate among mothers at childbirth has been reduced by more than two-thirds. The infant death rate has been cut 50 percent.

One result of the advances is that women over 35, past the prime of reproductive life, can have babies with much greater safety today.

By MURRAY SEEGER

The prostrate form of SUI's much-mourned Panacea musical comedy was brought into Thursday night's student council meeting and a reviving campaign was begun.

Panacea committees from last year and this year have gone to work on the show and hope they have a plan whereby Panacea can become a regular campus feature once again.

The late Dean of Students Walter R. Goetsch gave the group invaluable aid showing them where to correct weaknesses in former year's planning.

Plans to put Panacea on are still largely in the formation stage but every indication points to towards success.

To put the show on next year, the council voted enough money to guarantee payment of any loss incurred in the production.

To make the show permanent, a sponsoring organization will be formed and memberships in it sold to the student body.

A constitution for this group is being written now and should be ready for registration in the fall.

The committee expects to have a desk at registration for selling memberships.

To create a revolving fund to underwrite the show permanently, the committee will request funds from the university. This was one of the suggestions made by Dean Goetsch.

At the meeting Thursday, it was pointed out that never in the three year history of Panacea had the committee contacted the university for help.

Probably the biggest problem

now facing the committee will be to create enough campus interest in the show when it comes up next November.

By next year, almost half the campus will be composed of people who have never seen a Panacea show.

The production costs of the show are so high that capacity audiences are needed to make it pay.

It will be up to the upperclassmen and the council to create the interest needed to make the show a success.

Production problems seem to be curable. With the music department cooperating and others offering to direct the show, only the script is needed.

Four persons have indicated they will enter the script contest before the Sept. 30 deadline. We hope more will enter before then. The script will control the music and no director can make a good show without a good script to start with.

The council has done enough reviving to get Panacea off the floor into a sitting position. The toughest part will be to put it back on its feet.

Youth Panel Reports Trend — Coeds Prefer Personalities

Not Campus 'Big Wheels' — Betty Coed wouldn't give a dime for a dozen millionaires any more, the National Youth panel reported Saturday.

Now all she wants is a guy with a million buck smile, mathematical experts, who happen to be men, claimed.

That's what the tabulation of a survey of college girls showed, anyway, and the panel said that figures never lie.

It seems that zip, pep, vim, vigor, vitality and good old sex appeal have been replaced by a brand new word — Pam. If a fellow's got it, he's got it.

They Call It 'Pam' Pam is a combination of a lively personality, neat appearance and good manners. To heck with the big man on the campus, the fellow with the drinking trophies, the waltz king, the campus wolf and the football hero, the girls say. Just be a Pam, and whom the date is yours for the asking.

The National Youth panel said it gleaned its information about girlish gleams by questioning coeds at Syracuse, Michigan, Southern California, Biarciff, Northwestern, Sweetbriar, Bradford Junior college and Oklahoma.

Among the views aired by the girls were preferences for a guy who can talk about any subject from atoms to eggnog, have his career all planned and remind a coed every few minutes how sweet she looks in her new sweater.

No Blue Jeans The coeds said they were much more interested in a clean looking senior than a good-looking one. He should be well-dressed, instead of hanging around the sorority house in dirty blue jeans and a T-shirt.

The "finishing" touch on an ideal man, the girls said, is good manners. They are quick to appreciate smoothness, without slickness they said.

"The girls like attention but not so much that it's wolfish," the panel reported, "or that they are made to think they have enrolled in a 'Kinsey kindergarten'."

Division of Child Welfare Aids SUI Clinics' Students

Roy, the son of a widow, had a severe speech problem. He came to Iowa City where he was placed in a foster home, and enrolled at the SUI speech clinic.

Finding the foster home for Roy was the work of the social service unit of the division of child welfare located in East hall. A branch of the state department of social welfare, this unit is the only one of its type in Iowa.

It is organized to locate temporary homes for and supervise handicapped or retarded children who attend the SUI reading, speech and hearing clinics. The unit also provides this service to the University hospital convalescent, out-patient (those who do not stay at the hospital) children's cases.

certain minimum specifications to be approved by the state department of social welfare.

"The child's maintenance in the home is paid by his parents on the basis of the severity of the child's problem, his age and the care he will require," Mrs. Himrod said.

Cared for 58

One foster family has cared for a record number of 58 children. Children of all ages are placed by the unit, but most of them are in the four to 16 age range.

Currently the unit is caring for approximately 30 children. Each semester, new cases arrive to replace those who have completed their correction programs, which vary in length from a few weeks to two years.

Roy's Case Typical

Roy's case is typical of the ones the unit handles regularly.

He was shy and backward when he came to Iowa City, but after several weeks at the clinic, his improved speech made him more socially acceptable and he made friends quickly. Now he has a paper route to earn his own spending money.

Children from all over Iowa are referred to Mrs. Cornelia Himrod, supervisor of the social service unit. She explains the foster home plan to the parents and helps them locate a home which will fit the needs of their child.

No Adoption

"The families where these children are placed must show emotional and intellectual acceptance of the child and his problem," Mrs. Himrod explained.

"The 'foster' parents must realize that the child is not an adoptive child and his parents will be visiting him.

Every foster home must meet

IOWA CITY SADDLE CLUB—Members of the Iowa City Saddle club will ride in the Memorial day parade and will meet at the sales barn at 8 a.m. for line formation.

NEWMAN CLUB—Members of the Newman club will meet today at 5 p.m. in the Catholic Student center. The Rev. Bernard M. Kamerick of the religion department of St. Ambrose college will give the last talk in a series on "Christian Marriage." A Sunday night supper will be held after the meeting.

ROSARY SOCIETY OF ST. WENCESLAUS—A regular meeting of the Rosary Society of St. Wenceslaus will be held today after 6:30 mass in the church parlors.

New Library Books Offer Varied Reading

From Adam Smith to etiquette and from sex to dog food — these are a few of the subjects represented in the list of new books added to SUI's library last week.

The 199 titles placed in the card catalogue include volumes on philosophy, psychology, religion, education, philology, the sciences, art, literature and history.

Among books included in the philosophy section are "Adam Smith's Moral and Political Philosophy" and "Masks of Love" by Hanns Sachs.

Added to the stacks in the section devoted to religion was a book on race relations called "The Protestant Church and the Negro," a treatise on medieval English churches called "The English Secular Cathedrals in the Middle Ages," and a volume on religious music entitled "Stories of Faded Hymns."

A book on atomic science by C.F. Powell, "Nuclear Physics in Photographs," is among the new listings.

For students interested in sex — who can read French — the library has provided Caullery's "Organisme et Sexualite."

Five books which recently hit the best seller lists are among the recent acquisitions.

They are Lucius Clay's "Decision in Germany," "The Lincoln Papers" by Mearns, Robert St. John's well-received book on Palestine, "Shalom Means Peace," "Domestic Manners of the Americans," a 19th century attack on Yankee etiquette by Frances Trollope, and Kenneth Williams' scholarly "Lincoln Finds a General."

Personal Notes

Valorie Jean Dierks, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Elmer E. Dierks, 230 N. Clinton, will arrive home today from Rockford, Ill., where she is teen-age director for the YWCA. She will return to Rockford on Wednesday. Douglas Dierks will return today from Ottawa university in Ottawa, Kan., where he is a sophomore to spend the summer with his family.

Patricia Brender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Brender, 416 Reno street, was recently elected to the Purple Arrow organization at Iowa State Teachers college in Cedar Falls. Membership is based on outstanding leadership, citizenship and potential leadership.

Kenneth Brandt, son of Mr. C. Emerson Brandt, 1801 Rochester avenue, will arrive home Monday from the Missouri Military academy in Mexico, Mo.

Methodist Youth to Hold Parent Night Program

The Methodist Youth fellowship's parent night program at 7 p.m. today will include worship services directed by the youth group, colored - slide showings of the Methodist summer camp at Clear Lake, and a program of refreshments and entertainment.

Selections will be played by City high school flute quartette. The quartette won a first-place ribbon at the state music content in Perry May 12. The group includes Patti Barnes, Beverly Bentzinger, Annette Trachsel and Eleanor Huber. Henry Boldt will present a French horn solo.

DAUGHTER BORN

Mr. and Mrs. James Whitehill Jr., 152 Riverside park, are parents of a girl born Saturday at Mercy hospital. Mr. Whitehill is an SUI dentistry student.

Commerce Sorority Honors 3 Members

Three members of Phi Gamma Nu, professional commerce sorority, were honored by the organization recently, according to Pres. Darlene Sweet, C3, Lamarr, Mo.

Mrs. Mitzi DiMarco was presented a recognition crest for her year as president of the chapter.

Dorothy Kamerick, C4, Knoxville, received an award for her outstanding work in extra-curricular activities. The SUI alumnae chapter presents the award annually to a senior member.

Betty Jane Rehmke, C4, Oxford Junction, was awarded the scholarship key presented by the Phi Gamma Nu national office to the senior girl graduating from the college of commerce with the highest grade point.

Whose on Third? . . .

BROOKLYN (AP) — The eighth inning of Wednesday night's Chicago - Brooklyn game was marked by the kind of confusion known only to Brooklyn.

With Jackie Robinson on third and Gil Hodges on second, Eddie Miksis bounded to Third Base - man Bob Ramazzotti. The latter's throw chased Robinson back to third where he found Hodges waiting. Catcher Mickey Owen tagged both and Umpire Jocko Conlan called Hodges out, ruling that Robinson was entitled to third base.

Owen then threw to Wayne Terwilliger at second in an attempt to get Miksis. As he did so, Hodges, Robinson and Owen started a race for the plate. It was Jackie first, Gil second and the Chicago catcher third.

As Robinson slid across the plate he was tagged by First Baseman Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs. Umpire Art Gore ruled Robinson out because Hodges interfered.

The official scorer ruled the double play: Ramazzotti to Owen to Terwilliger to Cavarretta, the catcher getting a putout at third and the first baseman one at the plate.

Hoeksema Pitches Iowa Over Northwestern, 15-2

Wildcats Get Five Hits; Hawks Finish in Third

EVANSTON, ILL.—Dick Hoeksema grinned his way through a five-hit victory as Iowa swamped Northwestern, 15-2 here Saturday morning.

Saturday's victory gave the Hawks third place in the conference behind Wisconsin and Michigan.

The little lefty from Davenport, after giving up a first-inning home run to Don Burson, set the Wildcats down on four hits while his mates pummeled five Northwestern pitchers.

Four of the Northwestern staff were called to duty in the eighth inning when the Hawkeyes exploded for a four-alarm nine-run uprising.

Thirteen batters stepped to the plate during that blast, nine of them hitting. Three walks, a pair of passed balls and a stolen base pushed the blaze along.

It was Iowa's biggest inning of the season and one of the largest er enjoyed by an Iowa team in Big Ten competition.

DICK HOEKSEMA Pitches 5-Hitter

Johnny Sullivan started Iowa in on its first run in the first inning when he was walked by Northwestern's Sophomore Starter, Buster Carlson.

After two were out, Pinky Primrose lined a single to center to send Sullivan home. Burson pulled Northwestern even with his home-run to deep center field, but Iowa tallied in the third with two runs and added single scores in the fourth and sixth innings.

Bombardment Then came the bombardment in the eighth.

Jack Ogle, who had relieved Carlson in the fourth, was on the mound for Northwestern when it rained.

Hoeksema led off with his second single of the day, Sullivan added another line-drive hit to it and Bob Christoph was walked.

Jack Dittmer beat out an infield grounder to First Baseman on Blasius, scoring Hoeksema, but was all for Ogle. Next came Dick Inman and he couldn't do any better.

After a fielder's choice, a walk and George Hand's thumping single, Inman retired. Six runs

Indiana Wins Big Ten Track; Merkel First in High Hurdles

Hawks' Dean Deuel 2nd in Low Hurdles

By EVERETT MONTGOMERY
Iowa Sports Writer
EVANSTON, ILL.—Iowa's Russ Merkel grabbed a first in the high hurdles but failed in his bid for a grand slam as the Hawks mustered 14½ points for seventh place in the golden anniversary of the Big Ten track championships here Saturday before 2,000 fans.

Merkel won the highs and lows in the indoor meet.

The 14½ points Iowa got Saturday was the best showing of a Hawkeye team since 1942 when they scored 17.

Trip to Europe Merkel's win in the high hurdles also wins him a trip to Europe with all the Big Ten track team this summer.

Indiana's Hoosiers edged Minnesota and Illinois by one point by taking third in the mile relay. The Hoosiers scored 37 points while the Gophers and Illini tied for second with 36 each.

Merkel was only two hurdles away from finishing the lows when he suddenly pulled up with a sore leg, Michigan's Don Hoover won the event and Dean Deuel of Iowa was a surprise second.

By virtue of their first and second respectively, Merkel and Deuel win berths on the Big Ten squad for the 10th annual Big Ten-Pacific Coast conference dual at Madison, Wis. June 20.

High Jumper Jack Weik tied for third with Ohio State's Ralph Shafer and may also gain a position on the conference squad.

Marcellus Boston got the remaining three points for Iowa, taking fourth in the 100-yard dash and fifth in the broad jump.

No New Records Although no records were broken, the performances were generally good with Hoover's time of 23 seconds flat in the low hurdles only four-tenths of a second off the league mark.

The time of Indiana's Charles Peters for the 220-yard dash missed the conference record by one-tenth of a second. The flashy Hoosier sped the distance in 21.2.

The three great Dons in the meet—Gehrmann, Laz and McEwen—came through as expected by winning their specialties easily.

Purdue Wins Golf Crown, Hawks 7th

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP)—Purdue's five-man golf team won the Big Ten championship Saturday and also came up with three of the first four individual finishers.

Purdue's five-man team total was 1465—far ahead of pre-meet favorite Ohio State's 1510. Michigan's defending champions were third with 1516.

Iowa finished in seventh place behind Minnesota, Indiana and Illinois.

Michigan, Badgers Win Big Ten Title

Michigan and Wisconsin tied for first place in the Big Ten baseball race Saturday with victories over Ohio State and Minnesota respectively.

Iowa's Hawkeyes, who played one less game than the champions because of a postponement with Purdue, finished in third with an 8-3 record.

Both the Wolverines and Badgers completed their conference schedules with 9-3 marks.

No provisions are made for re-play of postponed conference games.

East Des Moines Wins Class A Track Crown

By JACK SQUIRE
Iowan Sports Writer
AMES — A wallowing sea of mud couldn't stop East high of Des Moines from amassing a record total of 62 2/3 points here Saturday to win easily the state Class A outdoor track championship.

The speedy Des Moines crew far outdistanced second place Ames which managed to salvage 31 1/2 points. Davenport, 28 5/6, Clinton 27 1/2, and North Des Moines 22 weren't in hailing distance.

City high, which placed fifth in the high and low hurdles in the good times of 1:5.0 and 2:3.1

City high's points came on a second in the mile medley. A gallant anchor effort by Roy Ebert was just shy of first place Des Moines Tech.

U-high's 15 points were the result of Bruce Nolf's third in the 440 yard dash, fifth place finishes by Karl Harshbarger and Bob Ballantyne in the low hurdles and half mile, a fourth spot in the 880 yard relay, and a third in the mile medley.

Ray Kaiser won the romp in the individual events with first in the high and low hurdles in the good times of 1:5.0 and 2:3.1

Students to Study Science at Lakeside Laboratory

By DON STEFFEN

Two SUI student winners of Thomas H. Macbride scholarships in natural science will be among more than 100 zoologists, botanists, and biologists attending the summer session of Iowa Lakeside laboratory.

The Thomas H. Macbride scholarships in natural science have been established by SUI in honor of the late Professor Macbride, director of the Lakeside laboratory from 1909 and president of SUI from 1914 through 1919.

SUI students receiving scholarships this year are Kenneth L. Goodwin, G. Forest Hills, and other scholarship winners. Other scholarship winners are Carol M. Goodwin and Ruth Helmick, both of Drake university, Des Moines; and Leo E. Gudden, St. Ambrose college, Liverpool.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN Q. POSSUM, graduate students, Lakeside laboratory, plan to spend the summer vacation demonstrating their housekeeping habits to SUI natural science students attending the summer session at Lakeside on the shores of Lake Okoboji. Possums, the only mammal in North America that carry their young in a pouch, are just one of the numerous forms of animal life available for study at Lakeside.

American heritage and world understanding. Forum discussions based upon the lectures and films will follow.

Housing Facilities

Housing facilities consist of several dormitories for single students, and cottages for families. Nearly all available housing has been assigned for the summer.

Each summer's work at the Iowa Lakeside laboratory is planned by a scientific advisory committee composed of a representative from each of Iowa's three institutions of higher learning — SUI, Iowa State college and Iowa State Teachers college.

The 1950 committee members are Laboratory Director J. H. Bodine, Professor and head of zoology at SUI; Prof. H. M. Harris, head of zoology at Iowa State college, and Prof. C. W. Lanz, head of the science department at Iowa State Teachers college.

Instructing classes during the two summer terms will be Zoology Prof. R. L. King and Henry Conrad, visiting research professor of botany, both of SUI; Richard W. Pohl, assistant professor of botany at Iowa State college; John Bardach, instructor in biology, Iowa State Teachers college, and Leland Johnson, professor of zoology at Drake university.

Settle Local Hotel Suit Out of Court

The proprietors of Bob and Woody's tap, West Branch, Woodrow Millert and Robert Foraker, filed suit Friday against M.D. Hansen in Johnson county district court.

Millert and Foraker claimed the defendant cashed five checks in their establishment, receiving $125, and the checks were returned from the defendant's bank marked "insufficient funds."

The plaintiffs asked judgment of $125. Emil G. Trott is attorney for the plaintiffs.

VFW to Sponsor Submarine Display

Your eyes won't be playing tricks on you if you think you see a submarine in Iowa City Monday and Tuesday.

Mayor Preston Koser Saturday said an Italian submarine model mounted on a mobile unit will be on display at the intersection of Washington and Clinton streets from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. both days.

There will be no admission charged at the submarine exhibit, which will be sponsored by Iowa City's Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 2581, but donations will be received for the Iowa V.F.W. service welfare and relief fund.

The fund is used partly to pay hospital expenses for V.F.W. members.

The 21 foot-long, electrically operated craft is the latest model of the submarine known as the Battleship Killer, which Italians used in the Mediterranean to sink thousands of tons of Allied shipping.

A submarine of this type in one night sank the Queen Elizabeth and the Valiant, two of the Royal navy's larger battleships, during World War II.

Child, Parent Welfare Meeting Set at SUI

"Developing the Health Personality" will be the main theme of Iowa Conference on Child Development and Parent Education, to be held on the SUI campus June 20 and 21.

Prof. Beth L. Wellman, chairman of the child welfare department, Saturday announced plans for the 23rd annual conference.

"The purpose of the conference is to present to the community leaders of the state the latest developments in the fields of child welfare and parental education," Prof. H. J. Ojemann, of the child welfare research station said Saturday.

"The conference will include reports not only of the work done at Iowa but throughout the country," he said.

Main Speakers

The principal speakers during the two-day meeting will be Louis de Boer, national director of state and local action for a national Washington conference; Percival M. Symonds, professor of education, Teachers college, Columbia university, and Kenneth Benne, chairman of the education department's division of social, philosophical, and historical foundations, University of Illinois.

The conference will open officially Tuesday, June 20 with an address by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher. Following this the first lecture, "The Child's Evaluation of Himself" will be given by Symonds.

During the afternoon session de Boer will speak on the White House conference. A panel discussion led by Ojemann, who is chairman of the Iowa committee on research will follow.

Plays Scheduled

Wednesday, June 21, Benne will discuss "Dynamics of Group Discussions." He will present the principles used in leading and taking part in group discussions. Symonds will close the session in the afternoon with a lecture on "Home - School Cooperation."

No admission fee will be charged and the public is invited to attend, Miss Wellman said. All sessions will be held in Old Capitol, with the exception of the Tuesday night meeting at Macbride auditorium.

Two plays, "Scattered Showers" and "High Pressure Area" both by Nora Stirling, will be presented by the University theater players.

Meter Violation Costs Rise for Slow Payment

Every day you put off paying that meter violation ticket costs you money according to local police regulations.

For violators who visit the station within an hour after they receive a ticket the fine is a quarter but after that it begins to mount.

After the first hour is up it costs $1, after three notices from the police department the fine mounts to $2 and if it is necessary to issue a summons the fine is $3. Final step in the collection process is a warrant for arrest. That means $5.50 fine.

Places Open in U-High Summer Typing Course

Places are still available in the beginning typing class to be given this summer at University high school June 12 through Aug. 9, according to Mrs. Edna Keislar, secretary to Principal Myron Olson.

The course will be open to any Iowa City student in grades seven through 12. Six dollars tuition will be charged for the course. Students interested are asked to contact Mrs. Keislar at the University high school between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Angolina Can't Fly — Winged Cat Creates Stir

MADRID (AP)—Hundreds of persons stormed the home of Juan and Victoria Priego Saturday in the hope of seeing their cat which appears to have wings.

When some of the curious attempted to surge through the kitchen door, Mrs. Priego beat them off with a stick. It has been like that at the Priego apartment ever since Thursday when a Madrid newspaper published a photograph of the cat.

"I can't rest, can't eat, can't sleep," Mrs. Priego complained. "It's horrible."

The cause of her trouble was Angolina, a cat, which lay with what seemed to be wings folded neatly against her body in the Priego basement kitchen. Only the cat was unexcited.

Juan Priego, 55, was unshaven and haggard.

Like Other Cats

"Except for the wings, she is like any other cat," he said, pointing to Angolina's feline companion, a cat without wings.

"We have had her three months, took her over from a neighbor who would not feed her."

Doctors who examined the cat attested that the wings are real, a form of cartilage. They are the same white and musty color as the rest of the angora-type cat, are located in the center of Angolina's back and fold neatly over each side. When stretched, they measure about 10 inches.

Can't Fly

Priego said the cat cannot fly. "I have had to get a lawyer to handle all this," he said. "We have asked for permission to go to Mexico on tour. If we get it, I will leave with Angolina next week."

"It sounds to me too much like someone working up a way to get to Mexico," Dr. Lee S. Crandall of the Bronx park zoo said.

Marketing Survey

Prof. Wendell R. Smith of the commerce department and Prof. John V. Lund, of the commerce and journalism departments, will report on the results of a marketing survey to the Carroll, Iowa, chamber of commerce Monday.

James J. Benson, G. Charles City, who conducted the survey of the Carroll trade area, also will speak before the chamber.

Building Permits Total $77,800 for Week

Ten building permits totalling $77,800 were issued last week by City Engineer Fred E. Gartzke.

They were granted to: Jack J. Swamer for a $15,000 extension to the Swamer dairy at 1109 N. Dodge street.

Bert J. Miller for a $14,000 residence and garage at 1714 Morningside drive.

Joe Meyers, 110 E. Court street, for a $11,000 residence and garage at 814 Seventh avenue.

Robert L. Van Home, instructor of pharmacy at SUI, for a $10,000 residence at 1844 Morningside drive.

CARS PLAYED LEAPFROG but the drivers escaped injury Friday in this pile-up on U.S. highway 40 near Wentzville, Mo. The top car was trying to pass the bottom car when it was struck from the rear by a truck which also was trying to pass. The two cars hit, did a spin and wound up in the position shown.

Iowa Citian Seeks State Bar Office

Ingalis Swisher, 1708 Muscatine avenue, has been nominated for the 1950-1951 vice-presidency of the Iowa state bar association. Results of balloting will be announced Friday at the association's 56th annual meeting at Waterloo.

Nominee for presidency of the association is T.M. Ingersoll, Cedar Rapids.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and Harold J. Gallagher, national president of the association, will be among the speakers at the meeting, which will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Dean Mason Ladd, college of law, will preside Friday noon at the SUI college of law's luncheon at the Hotel President, Waterloo.

Use of Fertilizer Now Means Work

Further use of fertilizer on lawns now may mean more work this summer, Emmett C. Gardner, county extension director, warned Saturday.

Adding more fertilizer stimulates grass growth in the hot summer months, and this new growth of grass will have to be watered frequently, to prevent burning, he said.

Application of 2-4-D will kill most common weeds, which grow in lawns. However, users are warned that 2-4-D is deadly to roses, grape vines, tomatoes and other fruits, Gardner said.

It should be applied after a rain when there is no wind to cause drifting of the spray, he added.

Flying Saucer Fails to Fly

Lawn Mower Engine, Jet Powered Gadget Defies Inventor, Movie Cameramen

DALLAS, TEX. (UP)—A pint-sized "flying saucer" huffed and puffed mightily Saturday in front of a battery of movie cameras, but failed to make the epochal flight as predicted by its inventor.

John R. Mitchell, part-time inventor, had said his weird contraption, powered by a lawn mower engine and two ram jets, would make the first "real" saucer flight.

The disc, five feet in diameter, was basically the same one which flew 20 minutes recently before the terrific heat of the jet blast began to melt it. Then it plunged to the ground.

That flight was secret with only Mitchell's wife present.

Mitchell, a machinist at Chance Vought Aircraft company, said his disc would fly "upwards to 1,000 miles an hour" when it was perfected.

Cameramen from a national magazine, three newsreel companies, television, and the press hovered around for the expected flight Saturday in the midst of a carnival atmosphere.

An enterprising ice cream salesman received a rush business from more than 100 spectators. A vacant lot beside Mitchell's house was lined by curious youngsters, while their elders leaned over fences in the background.

But Mitchell's flying saucer failed to fly.

The small lawn mower engine in it was to have turned the disc rapidly, lifting the creation off the ground. Then the powerful jets were to take over and shove the contraption through the air at terrific speeds, the inventor said.

"But that little engine wasn't strong enough," Mitchell explained. He said he would get a larger engine and attempt to make his disc fly in a "couple of weeks."

Gradually the disappointed crowd melted away. Energetic cameramen, rather than waste thousands of feet of film shot prior to the failing test, tried to get the disc off the ground into the air.

But the 45-pound saucer refused to take to the air.

There was only one casualty — Maurice Levy, a cameraman for a national television network, suffered a near-broken wrist when his camera crank backfired.

Mitchell still insisted that his saucer was the air carrier of the future. Four Lubbock, Tex., oilmen agreed with him, he said.

"They've agreed to put up more than $40,000 to build a full-size passenger-carrying flying saucer," Mitchell, owner of a jet automobile and holder of several patents for previous inventions, said he would start on that saucer "pretty soon."

SUI Commerce Group Names New Officers

New Collegiate Chamber of Commerce officers for the 1950-51 school year were announced Friday.

Robert B. Concannon, C3, Davenport, was elected president; James E. Johnson, C3, Albert City, vice-president; Mildred Casey, C3, La Porte City, secretary, and Harry F. Eisele, C3, Grinnell, treasurer. Phyllis Rinderer, A2, Chicago, was named historian.

Prof. Wendell R. Smith, college of commerce, was elected faculty advisor for the coming year.

Professor Receives Water Works Award

Jack J. Hinman, former professor of sanitary engineering at SUI, has been awarded honorary membership in the American Water Works association.

Hinman received the association's highest award at the 70th annual conference in Philadelphia in May.

Iowa Citian Cut, Bruised in Collision

Wayne Kolstead, 21, 528 Rundell street, received cuts and bruises about the face, arms and legs when his car collided with another car and overturned Saturday afternoon 3 miles north of Iowa City on highway 261, according to a report filed with the state highway patrol.

According to the report the accident occurred when Kolstead swerved to avoid hitting a car driven by Michael Strayer, A1, Des Moines, and overturned.

Strayer was turning left and said he didn't notice Kolstead attempting to pass until it was too late.

Kolstead said his car was completely demolished but that Miss Joyce Brant, 925 7th avenue, who was with him escaped injury.

Strayer estimated damage to his car at about $200.

SUI Provost Harvey H. Davis will give the principal address. His topic will be, "Your Half Century." Prof. J.E. McAdam, acting director of University High school will introduce Provost Davis.

Johnson County Ranks Third in Bond Sales

Johnson county ranked third in the state in savings bonds sales at the end of the first week of the Independence drive, according to Roger F. Warin, state director of the savings bond division.

The county purchased 19 percent of its $447,168 quota, Warin reported. Montgomery, with 29 percent of its quota attained, led the state at the end of the first week.

The drive began May 15 and closes July 4.

Methodists to Honor Church School Staff

A Christian education banquet honoring church staff members will be held by the board of education of the First Methodist church at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Rev. Robert Crocker said the banquet will be held in Fellowship hall.

The Rev. C.O. Strohl, executive secretary of the state board of education of the First Methodist church, will speak on "The Moral Magic of Leadership."

Mrs. Jessie Bright will be presented a service award for 25 years service to the First Methodist church school as a teacher. Rev. Crocker said.

Barn Struck Twice

CHARLES CITY, IOWA (AP)—Don't tell Donald Kintop, farmer east of here, that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

His barn was struck about three weeks ago. A hole was torn in the roof and the electric wiring was damaged.

Workmen had nearly completed the repair job when lightning again struck the roof this week. The damage was minor.

Students to Present TV Show

Eight dramatic arts students will present an hour adaptation of Oscar Wilde's, "The Importance of Being Earnest" over station WOC-TV Davenport, today at 5:30.

This program is part of a series of shows given by students of speech and dramatic arts. The first show opened the Davenport station last fall.

"Dramatic arts students in television will have no break for finals or vacation since there will be a program every Sunday from now until the end of the summer session," Gene Spangler, G. Wichita, Kans., technical director of SUI video, said Friday.

Special Events Planned
This is the third consecutive week the dramatic arts department has produced a program.

Several special events are being prepared to vary the show, continued Spangler. These will be films or on-the-spot broadcasts. Plans are being made to televize the county fair at Muscatine.

Persons Participating
Eleven members of the department will make the bus trip to Davenport today.

They are: actors, Ralph Levy, A3, Northampton, Mass.; Andrew Krawetz, A3, Joliet, Ill.; Jacqueline Brooks, A3, New York, N.Y.; Corinne Silberman, A3, Milwaukee, Wis.; Claude Loftis, A4, Cordell, Okla.; Warren Hatfner, A4, Iowa City; Helen Pittas, A2, Erie, Pa.; and Gaylord Graham, A1, Iowa City.

Advertising Survey Covers 95 Retailers

A survey of 95 Iowa retailers who are "consistent and aggressive" advertisers, according to a selection by 10 Iowa newspaper and radio advertising managers, recently was completed as a graduate research project at SUI.

The results showed that the 95 retailers devoted 60 to 70 percent of their advertising budget to newspapers. Almost 90 percent of the retailers used radio to round out their advertising programs.

The selected retailers listed the use of pictures, good coverage, low cost, and audited circulation as some of the advantages of newspaper advertising.

Half of those who used radio advertising sponsored radio programs. The others either used spot announcements or shared programs.

Types of retailers interviewed were proprietors of department stores, men's clothing stores, women's clothing stores, furniture stores, jewelry stores, electrical stores, and cleaning and laundry establishments.

attend to the costuming, Hal Tschin, G, Iowa City, to direct the camera, and Dean Wagner, A2, Marengo, set designer. Prof. Lewis Goff of the dramatic arts department, will direct the program.

Unclaimed Articles To Be Sold in Fall

All unclaimed articles being held at the lost and found office in old dental building will be sold in September and the proceeds given to charity, according to Dick Levitt, A1, Des Moines.

Levitt, director of the office, requested that students check their unclaimed articles at the office after the loss of personal items. Persons who have lost items may leave their names and addresses and a description of the lost article at the office, and have a favorable prospect of getting the lost item back, he said.

Among the sundry unclaimed articles at the office are 25 pairs of eye glasses.

Heart Association Elects Prof. Bean President

Dr. William B. Bean, professor and head of the internal medicine department at University hospitals, has been elected president of the Iowa Heart association.

Dr. Lewis E. January, also a professor of internal medicine, was re-elected secretary of the group. Dr. Bean was also appointed chairman of the Heart committee of the Iowa State Medical society.
