Church Group's War Plans —

WASHINGTON (AP)—World headquarters of the Seventh-Day Adventists said Wednesday the church is putting into action its plan to organize for civilian defense and disaster relief in preparation for war.

A spokesman for the headquarters in nearby Takoma Park, Md., said the denomination's educational institutions have been directed to reactivate next fall the wartime medical cadet corps.

More than 60 persons who will carry out the reactivation plan will assemble at Union college, Lincoln, Neb., from June 11 to 15 for a course of instruction. The medical cadet corps will become a part of the curricula in the denomination's 10 senior colleges and approximately 70 academies.

The corps is a church-organized unit of young people trained to give medical aid in war and peacetime disasters.

Oak Ridge Work Resumed —

OAK RIDGE, TENN. (AP)—Construction was resumed at full speed Wednesday of two atomic materials plants after a week's delay caused by a wildcat strike of AFL laborers.

The day shift reported without hindrance, the atomic energy commission reported, after picket lines were removed. AEC guards with fixed bayonets guarded the entrances but there was no trouble.

The strikers' decision to return to work was regarded as a victory for the atomic mediation panel. The strikers walked out in disregard of a pledge to work until an arbitration board made a decision on their demands for wage increases.

Korean Elections —

SEOUL (AP)—Independents bowled over many of President Syngman Rhee's party regulars in Tuesday's national assembly election in South Korea.

Thus the veteran fighter for Korean independence faced a stiff challenge for control of his two-year-old government. Some independents support Rhee. Many more are middle-of-the-roads.

The test will come after June 19 when the new 210-member national assembly meets. The opposition is expected to introduce a bill to strip Rhee of power in favor of a prime minister. The latter would be responsible only to the assembly.

The state highway commission agreed to the change last Friday in order to give class A service to as many areas in the state as possible.

As a result, loads of 19,000 pounds per axle will be able to travel on the old class B road, compared to 12,000 pounds per axle before.

The commission said the new class A highways will revert to their old status for three months each spring, when the thaws make highways extra dangerous.

Czech Spy Trial Defendant Pleads Guilty

PRAGUE (AP)—The main defendant, Dr. Milada Horakova, pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of high treason, spying and sabotage at the trial of 13 Czechoslovaks accused of fifth column treachery.

They were charged with running an underground spy network in collusion with western diplomats and other aliens.

Among those they were accused of working for was Laurence A. Steinhardt, former U.S. ambassador to Prague who was killed in a plane crash last March 28 near Ottawa where he was then serving as ambassador to Canada.

(At Washington the state department flatly denied the Czech government accusation. It said the charges were "trumped up" and part of a continuing campaign in the iron curtain countries to discredit western diplomats.

(A department official said none of the Americans named was "in any way whatever" involved in espionage or subversive work while in Czechoslovakia.)

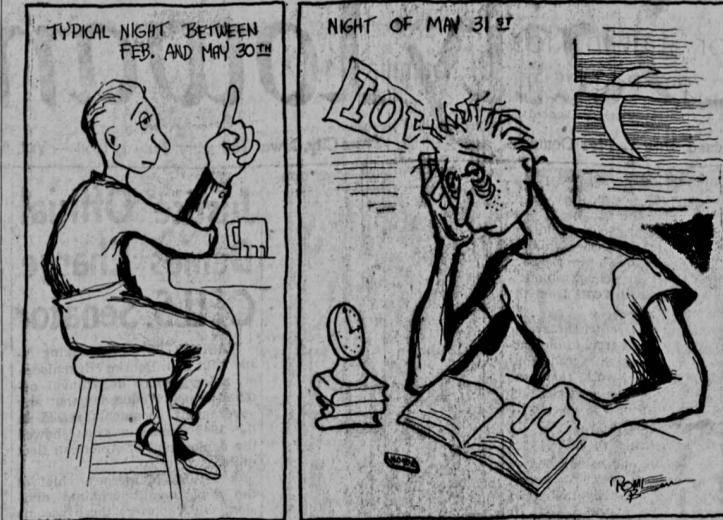

The Prague radio, reporting developments at the trial which began Wednesday morning, said Mrs. Horakova testified "how the National Socialist party's functionaries were receiving their directives from the American, British and French diplomats." Two other defendants are women.

Mrs. Horakova is a former deputy of the outlawed national Socialist party.

Military Unity Plan Meaning

By J.M. ROBERTS JR. (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, launching a campaign for public and congressional support of North Atlantic military unity as envisioned at the recent London conference, puts it mildly when he calls it something of "great and perhaps revolutionary significance."

The very meaning of the term "balanced collective forces" implies something of a concrete newness far more definite than was implied at the time the North Atlantic pact was approved by congress.

A "balanced collective" military force is one in which individual nations do not attempt to be self-sufficient, but rather contribute to one force which is not complete without the functioning of each of its national parts.

In other words, if France agrees to concentrate on ground forces, leaving strategic bombing to the United States, the United States is obligated to go to war when France goes to war. The term of the treaty, that an attack on one nation would be considered as an attack on all, takes on a new and far more automatic meaning.

There was much argument over the wording of this clause in the beginning. It was finally accepted as meaning that, while an attack on one would be an attack on all, the individual nation would reserve the right to consider the nature of the reaction required from it. There was a loophole in which measures short of war might, under some circumstances, be considered a sufficient reaction.

In accepting the idea of a "balanced collective" military force, however, the obligation of each treaty member is clear. There can be no such force — no nation would accept the idea — without a mutual faith that each component of that force will be made immediately available when needed.

The point is something that evolves naturally and inevitably under the circumstances faced by the community of western nations. As Acheson pointed out in his report to congress, the Atlantic community has been spending a vast proportion of its energy on postwar economic recovery while Russia, on the contrary, has been devoting herself to military preparations.

The imbalance of such a situation provides the opportunity for war. It could not be permitted to continue. Yet the allies were faced with the need for military expenditures which could not be met, without threatening the new economic structures on which they have worked so hard, if each were to attempt to provide a self-contained military force.

That was the original idea under the Atlantic pact — that each country would defend itself, for the most part, with coordination of assignments for the general defense of the community. When it became obvious that the individual finance ministers could not meet the requirements of the generals, it was decided to eliminate expensive duplication and provide, in general, a single force.

That 12 nations should agree on such a point, involving national sovereignty and a certain loss of autonomy in military affairs, is indeed a revolutionary product of some very urgent times.

Loyalty Board Adequate Says Attorney General

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP)—U.S. Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath said Wednesday the present government loyalty review board is doing a "good job" and the proposed super-loyalty board would serve "no useful purpose."

In a press interview, McGrath said Sen. Joseph McCarthy's (R-Wis) charges of Communists in the state department "have done a great deal of damage to United States prestige."

"The only thing McCarthy has produced so far is a lot of suspicion with no direct corroborative testimony," McGrath said. "The senator would have done much better if he had used established investigating agencies to trace his accusations."

McGrath delivered a non-political address on democracy in action at the University of Arizona commencement here Wednesday night.

Congressman's Death Complicates Dakota's Primary Elections

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP)—The name of Rep. William Lemke (R-ND) who died at Fargo, N.D., Tuesday, will be withdrawn from the June 27 primary election ballot, Secretary of State Tom Hall said Wednesday.

Hall said an opinion from the state attorney general's office ruled that it would be legal to remove the congressman's name from the ballot. Lemke, 71, was up for re-election to his ninth term in congress.

Gov. Fred Aandahl said it is "extremely doubtful" whether steps will be taken to fill Lemke's unexpired term. He said he does not have the power to appoint a replacement and that time will not permit the state to set up a special election to coincide with the primary.

Aandahl said he does not want the state to bear the expense of an extra election.

Should a special election be arranged after all, the Nonpartisan League is prepared to enter a candidate, League Campaign Manager George Olson said. He mentioned Atty. Gen. Wallace Warner, Howard Henry of Westhope, and State Sen. Orris Nordhaugen of Leeds.

Lemke was running on the Republican Organizing committee ticket. His death left the committee with only one candidate for congress and no hope of running two men in the final election under the GOP party label.

Despite his death, Lemke still could have received votes as long as his name remained on the primary ballot. Had he been among the top two vote-getters even in death, the Republican party state central committee would have been charged with naming someone to replace him for the final election.

Arrangements for Lemke's funeral were delayed pending arrival of his widow from Washington. He suffered a fatal heart attack in the lobby of a Fargo hotel.

Police State Charges —

Indians Petition U.N.

— Claim U.S. at Fault

By THE CENTRAL PRESS SEVEN INDIANS from the U.S.—Canadian borderland came down to the United Nations headquarters at Lake Success the other day in embroidered buckskins and feathered war bonnets, but peaking in the tongue of 1950 international diplomacy.

These six chiefs and one squaw complained about a "police state," "broken treaties" and the abuse of a "minority," all everyday parlance with the UN Commission on Human Rights, which was the visitors' target in seeking redress against both the United States and Canada.

Chief Rickard, known as Loud Voice back on the Tuscarora reservation near Niagara Falls, carried a creased and torn piece of buckskin which he presented as the original treaty signed in 1794 by President George Washington and the Six Nations confederation.

Instead of the 15 yards of cloth promised each member of the tribes by this pact, Chief Rickard complains that Uncle Sam gave only a yard and a half. Furthermore, the Tuscaroras do not have enough schools, and New York state has bought up millions of acres of Indian land without permission of the United States.

THE CHARGES against Canada of imposing a "police state" upon the Mohawks in the Grand River Lands reservation in southern Ontario, were voiced by the one woman in the party. Miss Emily General cited violation of the treaty between the British and the Six Nations confederation. She produced this 166-year-old document and explained that the modern Canadians break it up by running the reservation with armed mounted police. Miss General showed, too, that she was up on current world-politics when she told Dr. Charles Malik of the UN Commission on Human Rights that her fellow tribesmen were a "discontented minority."

"We're proud of our nation and we want to remain citizens of the Six Nations. We don't want to be assimilated by any country. We own our own land and we want to retain it as it is," said Miss General.

DR. MALIK of the Lebanon and Mrs. Hansa Mehta of British India received the visiting chiefs, who pointed out that it was their Six Nations which organized the first "United Nations" in 1700. Because of this unique bond, the Indians trusted that the 1950 United Nations would help right their wrongs.

The Commission on Human Rights, however, could not see how it could assist the bonneted braves, who represent some 15,000 Indians in New York state and neighboring Canada, descendants of the original Six Nations. These were the Moecas, Onondagas and Tuscaroras.

Although she spoke for the absent Grand Sachem of her tribe, Miss Emily General did not hesitate to let the interested woman delegate from British India see that she likewise was aware of popular trends in the emancipation of her sex everywhere.

"Our women on the reservation select clan leaders, keep an eye on the men generally and 'correct' them when they go wrong," she boasted to the surprised United Nations officials.

Insurance Company Set-Up by General With U.S. Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig, army inspector general, testified Wednesday that Maj. Gen. William H. Kastin, former army finance chief, used government offices and employees to set up a $30,000-a-month service men's insurance company while on active duty.

He told a house armed services subcommittee that, although the firm is a non-profit organization known as the Armed Forces Mutual Benefit association, its officers received salaries.

Col. Resser L. Hunter, director of investigation for the inspector general's office, said that Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Foster, who succeeded to Kastin's army post, now is a vice-president of the company. He also said most of its directors are active army, navy and airforce officers.

While there is no question of illegality, Craig said Kastin was recommended for censure on grounds that an army officer should not devote time to extra-curricular activities that might interfere with official business.

The subcommittee is investigating charges of money mismanagement and Communist infiltration at the army's huge St. Louis finance center. The charges were made by Mrs. Sally Dewey, a former center employee who was identified Wednesday as an undercover agent for army counter intelligence.

Charles Johnson, of the general accounting office, told the subcommittee a woman accused by Mrs. Dewey of trying to walk off with 750 uncashed servicemen's checks had been under observation by the army before the alleged incident.

Johnson said Brig. Gen. E. J. Bean, the center's commanding officer, told the GAO that a subordinate officer asked that the woman employee, Miss Burdella Eaddy, be watched because she often stayed in her office after other employees left.

Mrs. Dewey testified that Miss Eaddy tried to walk off with the checks but was stopped by a guard. Miss Eaddy has denied the story and offered to take a lie detector test.

Craig also testified that Miss Eaddy at one time was "under surveillance and was searched one or more times." But he said nothing incriminating was found.

Jane Meant for Barefoot Boys, Not Men

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—This is the month which there is nothing rarer than a day in.

Good ole June is back. So soon again? What are the months doing now — riding on horseback? The year turns faster than a merry-go-round.

Time is doing a jig instead of a waltz. The universe is exceeding the speed limit. Why, if a man isn't careful, he'll find he's run out of June, used up his ration, before he knows it.

Wherefore, let every man pause and remember his Junes. For Junes won't come on forever, and no season lasts, and isn't it wonderful to see the girls again in their summer dresses?

June is the heyday of boyhood, as the poet said. Remember? School let out at last and running from the building you whooped back in alto bravado. "No more pencils, no more books! No more teacher's sassy looks!" And the teacher smiled from the window, comfortably happy in the knowledge that for three months she didn't have to drum the multiplication table into the squirming minds of other people's runny-nosed children.

You never realized quite why mother sighed when you came home. It was no vacation for her. Then came the thrill of putting away your shoes for the summer. There was always the visit to your cousins in the country and the cruel jokes they played on you because you lived in the city.

They've have you milk the cow from the wrong side, so she'd kick or butt at you. Or at night they'd take you on a snipe hunt, leaving you standing for hours alone, holding an empty gunny sack behind a lighted candle and waiting for the mythical birds to flit across the light and into the bag.

I suppose these timeless pranks are being played on city boys' right now in a thousand rural communities across America. But they don't ruin June. Nothing can ruin June for a boy. It's his month to be free — free to swim and hike and run through the woods like a deer out of prison.

Somewhat June isn't quite so wonderful when you grow up, is it. There are no summer vacations in the school of experience, and you can't play hooky just because June rolls around.

Grownups chiefly use June as a month to marry in. But there is a limit to that, too. A man can't go barefoot or go marrying each June, as no wife would put up with that kind of nonsense, year after year.

But, all in all, a middle-aged man can still get some pleasure out of the month. His case isn't exactly desperate.

He can still enjoy the sunsets, he can walk through the fields and hear the crickets and watch a bee interview a clover . . . and be homesick for the Junes of his childhood, when his heart spilled over with the pure wonder of being alive.

Truman Soft-Pedaling Veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman is batting an even 1,000 on executive vetoes this session compared with his indifferent showing against the Republican 80th congress.

And he's fast losing his reputation as the White House's third most enthusiastic user of the veto to block distasteful legislation.

During the 80th congress, which Mr. Truman dubbed one of the "worst" in his successful 1948 election campaign, he rejected 75 bills — about a dozen of them of major national interest.

Six were overridden, including his last of three vetoes of a GOP tax cutting bill. The President still likes to talk about the fact when he discusses the nation's plunge into red-ink spending.

He also was overruled on passage of the Taft — Hartley law, transfer of the U.S. employment service to the federal security agency and the Bulwinkle bill to exempt railroad rate fixing from the anti-trust laws.

During the past two years, with the Democrats in the congressional saddle, Mr. Truman has vetoed 22 measures, only two with any real national interest. Congress didn't try to override either of the two.

Administration supporters claim this shows that the present congress, while it may not have passed all Mr. Truman's legislative requests, at least is not drumming through the "bad" legislation fostered by the 80th congress.

Critics contend that politics force the President to "swallow" Democratic legislation that he wouldn't think of accepting from a Republican congress.

With congress likely to run another two months or more, Mr. Truman will probably get some measures he doesn't like and increase his current veto record. And some of his vetoes may be overridden. But he has a perfect score so far for 1949-50.

Coalition Attempting To Control Congress, Sen. Humphrey Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) charged Wednesday that a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats is trying to control congress and repudiate the program President Truman calls the "fair deal."

In a senate speech he demanded again that congress abolish the joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va). Humphrey said the committee had claimed credit it did not deserve for government savings.

Last February Humphrey introduced a resolution proposing that the committee be done away with. Byrd's friends leaped to his defense at the time.

Wednesday Humphrey, a first-termer, said:

"Events of the past few weeks have proved to me that my bill has assumed greater significance than the bill itself warrants.

"I have apparently disturbed the bastion of the coalition which is attempting to control this congress and to repudiate the fair deal program which a majority of the people of America voted for in 1948."

Humphrey said that as a result of his move, he had been attacked by Byrd and "the big guns of the Republican — Dixiecrat coalition."

However, he went on:

"The coalition did see fit to pay glowing tribute and to eulogize the senator from Virginia without in any sense meeting the issue at point — that the activities of the (Byrd) committee duplicates the work of the standing committee on expenditures in the executive department."

Frat Reorganized; Martin Elected Head Of Acacia Colony

Warner Martin, C3, McGregor, was elected president of the Acacia colony Monday night at a meeting in Reich's Pine room.

Other officers named in the new fraternity include Bob Shaffer, A2, Sigourney, vice-president; Dick Larew, E2, Iowa City, recording secretary; Nate Ottens, C3, Clinton, treasurer; Ken Carman, A2, Cresco, corresponding secretary, and Don Gissel, A1, Ft. Howard, Md., rushing chairman.

Membership formerly was restricted to members of the Masonic lodge and their families. Acacia maintained a chapter on the SUI campus from 1909 to 1933. It began to re-organize last fall and was recognized as a colony during the past month.

Although some of the Masonic ties have been relaxed, it is still necessary to be the son or brother of a Mason or to be recommended by two Masons in order to pledge the fraternity.

Acacia has elected 21 of the 30 members necessary for admission to the SUI campus as a fraternity. The group will continue on probation for one year until membership and grade point requirements are met.

In addition to the officers, the membership includes Don Becker, A3, Bellevue; Don Carman, A3, Cresco; Walter D. Chiles, G, Leipsic, Ohio; Hubert Coons, A1, Carson; Billy Creger, A1, Truro; Bob Evans, A2, Muscatine; Tom Kelly, E1, Osage; Jim Lewis, A2, Beardman; Lynn Ogelsby, A2, Beardman; Gordon Reeves, A3, Decorah; Bill Scott, C4, Sterling, Ill.; Dale Seubert, A2, Dubuque and Pete Witwer, A4, Cedar Rapids.

Summer Furniture Makes Entertaining Easy for Hostess

New, practical furniture will make your garden or porch an ideal setting for summer entertaining, dining or relaxing.

Weather-proofing and double-season duty qualities of the outdoor furniture now on the market make this equipment a practical investment.

Rust-proofing and weather-proofing processes have added years of life to both metal and wood furniture.

New pieces display much of the grace and comfort of indoor furniture and can be moved inside for winter use, or folded and stored.

The newest styles offer graceful wrought-iron frames finished in flower colors of carnation pink, leaf green, turquoise blue, geranium red and buttercup yellow.

Many new pieces of rustic-type furniture have appeared on the market. These include barbecue tables and benches, cocktail tables and nests of tables.

Chaise longue with or without canopies, card table sets and serving carts on wheels make entertaining easy for the summer hostess.

If you like to stretch out in a hammock on a summer day, you'll enjoy the new plaid and stripe designs of heavy waterproof duck or canvas.

Classes Go On For Shut-In Kids

By VERNA MAE WINGATE

ABC's in "p.j.'s!" That's what you'd find at Perkins school, a three-classroom and library school in the basement of SUI Children's hospital.

Children admitted to SUI hospitals who are not too ill to study discover that the "three R's" go on just the same. Since Children's hospital was opened, children from all over Iowa have been attending Perkins school, conducted by graduate students from the college of education.

Eight grades are taught at the school. Youngsters from kindergarten age through eighth grade continue their school work, relax and find companionship in the cheery classrooms or with a teacher at their own bedsides.

Established in 1916 The school was established in 1916. It was named for the author of the bill, passed by the Iowa legislature the previous year, to authorize Children's hospital.

Teachers and principal are nominated by the director of University elementary school and officially appointed by the superintendent of University hospitals. Expenses are paid from SUI hospital funds.

The school is chiefly instructional. However, the social contacts made in the school often direct the child's attention away from himself and his handicaps.

Individual Tutelage Much of the work at Perkins school is individual instruction, according to Principal Pauline Everman.

So far as possible the pupil continues with the same lessons being studied by his classmates at home, she said.

Education of bedridden young patients is taken directly to the wards by two ward teachers. Three teachers conduct classes in the school classrooms.

About 45 youngsters "go to school" daily. During the 1948-49 school year, 1,001 students received instruction either in the school or in the wards, Miss Everman said.

Use Visual Aids In addition to regular "book learnin'" visual aids such as films, bulletin boards, and film strips illustrate lessons in geography and social sciences.

Books may be checked out of the school library for recreational reading in the children's own rooms. Art lessons are provided by students of the SUI art department, she said.

The classrooms in which the grinning lads and giggling lassies do their lessons are bright and friendly, with painted furniture and bookshelves equipped with puzzles and games and storybooks. Bulletin board displays range from current events clippings or national park posters to birds of Iowa and signs of the season.

The windows are hung with salty nautical or gay "circus day" patterned draperies.

Music is included in the curriculum, too. During the daily school period all children in the school gather around Miss Everman at the piano—some in wheel chairs and some on little stools—to sing such favorites as "Oh Suzanna" "Down in the Valley" and "Little Peter Penguin."

The school paper, "Perk - Up," serves as a medium of self-expression and teaches English and use of words. Some boys and girls offer poetry or art work.

'Katie,' Sorority Maid, Treasures Pictures Of Gamma Phi's

Surrounded by a pin-up gallery of memories, Mrs. Katie Lutz, 24 E. College street, veteran in maid-service for 13 years, keeps things humming six days a week at Gamma Phi Beta, social sorority.

Mrs. Lutz, usually called just "Katie", has covered the door and wall of her closet "office" with more than 200 pin-up newspaper clippings and pictures of her "kids" dating back to 1937.

"Someday I will put all the pictures in a scrap-book, and when I get old I can look back and remember all my 'kids'," she said.

Katie also has a collection of odds-and-ends in her cubby-hole "office"—pins, belts, scissors. These are things the girls leave behind at the end of the year. "I find them and put them away. Then the girls come running to me," she laughed.

Quite a few of "her girls" are married now and living in New York and California. One, who worked for the government in Germany, was married in a castle near Stuttgart and is now living in England. Two others have been in Hawaii during recent years.

Katie does not make extensive trips but often goes to weddings around the state when some of the sorority girls are married. Now she is planning a trip back to Germany to visit her family.

The last time she saw her family was in 1927 when she left for America. When she arrived in New York, she was wearing the suit she wore when she was married in 1923. Skirts in America then were shorter than in Germany, so she "cut it off." She still wears it now occasionally.

"You can see it is good material," Katie said.

She often sends clothing given to her by the girls to her two sisters and one brother, and a nephew and niece in Heidelberg.

The food situation in Germany is better than it was a year or so ago, but clothing and shoes are expensive, she said.

Katie works through the summers keeping the sorority house in order and helping university people give parties. At her home she cooks for her husband.

One of his favorite dishes is sauerbraten—beef roasted after it has been in a vinegar brine with onion added—and "maybe a bay leaf and a few cloves."

With it she serves a little of the brine sauce, macaroni and mashed potatoes or red cabbage.

PREDICTS LANDSLIDE WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democrats are sure to increase their majority in congress if more than 40-million votes are cast next November, Democratic chairman William M. Boyle said Wednesday.

Years at Sorority Told in Pictures

A GALLERY OF MEMORIES will go into her scrapbook, some day, when Mrs. "Katie" Lutz gathers together her 200 or more pictures. They record 13 years of maid-service with Gamma Phi Beta, social sorority, and are mostly pictures from graduations, engagements and weddings.

New Method of Cancer Detection Reported

Examination of urinary cells finds cancer and does not cure it. However, if found in early stages, a tumor may be removed to prevent it from spreading to other parts of the body.

Although studies to detect cancer of the kidney proper are being made at SUI, no satisfactory method has been found, he said.

Bunge reported the study at an American Urological association meeting in Washington, D.C.

"Confirming examinations," performed on more than 150 cases studied at University hospitals, showed cancer found by the new method, he said.

Cancer is likely to be present if a certain type of abnormal cell is found in urinary sediment. (This sediment remains after urine is allowed to stand or is centrifuged.)

By staining the entire cell nucleus, abnormal cells were found to be larger than normal cells, unevenly stained and containing odd-shaped bodies.

The type of cancer discovered by this method is transitional cell carcinoma (a malignant growth on the lining of the bladder, in the ureter and in the lining of the renal pelvis.)

Previous studies showed that cells from tumors of urinary organs are deposited in the urine. The staining test solves the problem of detecting them.

Bunge said this method merely

Jack Dittmer Leads Hawkeye Batsmen; Glenn Drahn Top Hurler with 6-1 Mark

Bud Kurt Handles 236 Chances Without Error

Jack Dittmer led Iowa hitters and Glenn Drahn was the top pitcher for the Hawkeyes during the baseball season concluded Tuesday, official averages showed Wednesday.

Dittmer hit .336 in 25 games, held the leadership for runs batted in with 23 and had the most stolen bases, 18. Bud Kurt didn't commit an error in 236 chances at first base to compile a fielding average of 1.000 and lead the team in that department.

6-1 Record

Drahn had a 6-1 pitching record, followed by Dick Hoeksema with a 8-2 mark. Drahn participated in 10 games for a total of 68 innings and allowed 45 hits and 19 runs while striking out 42 batters.

Hoeksema pitched 83 1-3 innings in 10 games allowing 65 hits and 29 runs. He struck out 31 batters.

Other Iowa pitchers and their records were Bruce Marsh and Bill Andrews, each 1-0; Dick Orth, 2-1, and George Schamberger, 1-2.

Iowa's season record of 19 wins and six losses was the fifth best record in the 23 years of coaching at Iowa by Otto Vogel. Only the 1941 team, with 22 victories, won more games than this year's team.

A late season spurt by Iowa, including wins in the last five conference games, gave the Hawkeyes third place in the Big Ten behind Michigan and Wisconsin.

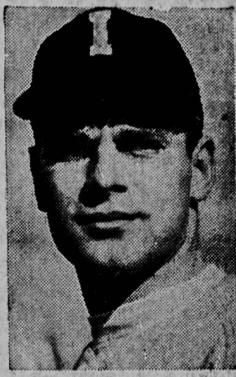

A rained-out game with Purdue on April 29 prevented Iowa from playing the full 12 game conference schedule needed for a share of the championship.

Even Break

Up to May 13, the Hawkeyes had an even break in six conference games. Two of Iowa's three league defeats were by one run, 5-4 to Indiana and 6-5 to

Purdue Shortstop Seeks Conference Batting Title

CHICAGO (AP) — Although the Big Ten baseball team race has been settled, Purdue Shortstop Bill Skowron will be shooting for a new conference batting title this weekend.

Skowron, with a .472 average for nine games, may top the league mark of .454 by Lee Ellbracht, Illinois catcher, in 1946, when the Boilermakers meet Ohio State in a belated closing of conference play Friday and Saturday at Lafayette, Ind.

All teams except the Boilermakers and Buckeyes ended loop competition last weekend when Michigan and Wisconsin tied for the title with 9-3 records.

Skowron's quest for the conference batting crown thus far rests on 17 hits in 36 times at bat. Runner-up, among pitchers with more than 30 times at bat, is Illinois' Russ Steger with .447. Steger also paces the runs-batted-in department with 20.

Thornton Kipper of Wisconsin (5-0) and Glenn Drahn of Iowa (4-0) finished as the Big Ten's top pitchers. Indiana's Jim McGee (2-2) has the best strike-out record among pitchers already finished, 44.

South African Takes Bantamweight Crown From Manuel Ortiz

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (AP) — With only 16 months of professional experience behind him, young Vic Towel of Johannesburg Wednesday night wrestled the world bantamweight crown from veteran Manuel Ortiz of El Centro, Calif., on a 15-round decision before a record South African crowd of 26,000.

Towel, 23, became the first South African in ring history to win a world boxing title as he succeeded to the championship formerly held by such great warriors as George Dixon, Terry McGovern, Kid Williams and Pete Herman.

Towel's speed and skill brought about the defeat of his harder-hitting opponent from the U.S. Towel won at least 10 of the 15 rounds.

Towel, champion of the British empire, gave his 33-year-old opponent boxing lessons in most of the rounds. Ortiz did not fight up to expectations — perhaps because of the high altitude of more than 6,000 feet, or perhaps because of a rib injury that had caused the bout to be postponed more than two weeks.

As Ortiz lost the 118-pound crown for the second time, he weighed 117 pounds and one ounce. Towel scaled 116 pounds and three-fourths of an ounce.

Ortiz, the California - Mexican celerity grower, first won the title from Lou Salica in 1942, but lost it to Harold Dade on Jan. 8, 1947. He recaptured it from Dade two months later.

After the fight Wednesday night, Ortiz said, "This Vic's so good I guess he'll keep the title for a long time."

Towel, known as the "Mighty Mouse," won the British empire title last November by outpointing Stan Rowan of England at Johannesburg.

Northwestern Wins Fourth Net Crown

EVANSTON, ILL. (AP) — Northwestern university, paced by North-singles champion Grant Golden, Wednesday won an unprecedented fourth straight Big Ten tennis title.

The host Wildcats won four of the six singles finals and one of the three closing doubles matches to score 19 1-2 points in the three-day conference championships.

Second with 17 points was Illinois, followed by Michigan with 14, Wisconsin, 7 1-2; Indiana, 5; Purdue, 2 1-2; Iowa and Minnesota, 1 each; and Ohio State which failed to score.

Chicago and Northwestern held the previous record of three straight team triumphs.

In the No. 1 singles finals, Golden, a short, stocky Chicagoan beat Wisconsin's Warren Mueller, 6-4, 6-1.

No. 2—Bill Landon (NW) defeated Sonny Bradley (Ill.), 6-5, 6-5.

No. 3—Dick Lincoln (Mich.) defeated Curt Reusman (NW), 6-3, 8-6.

No. 4—Scott Pieters (NW) defeated Steve Bromberg (Mich.), 8-6, 6-5.

No. 5—Curt Morsell (NW) defeated Jim Moses (Ill.), 9-6, 6-4, 6-4.

No. 6—Bob Bannorth (Ill.) defeated Vern Dorjahn (NW), 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

DOUBLES FINALS
No. 1—Golden and Landon (NW) defeated Don MacKay and Al Hetzek (Mich.), 6-3, 7-5.

No. 2—Lincoln and Bromberg (Mich.) defeated Gene Bawick and Bannorth (Ill.), 6-1, 6-2.

No. 3—Moses and Wilson Bryant (Ill.) defeated Jim Shannon and Bob Burnham (Ind.), 8-6, 6-1.

Davenport Wins State Baseball Tournament

MASON CITY (AP) — Davenport won its second straight high school baseball championship Wednesday night by swamping Glidden, 12-1, in a loose ball game.

Glidden, undefeated in 14 previous games, fell apart at the fielding seams, committing nine errors. Only five of the winners' 12 runs were earned.

It was Davenport's sixth championship since 1940. The Blue Devils ended the season with a 22-1 record.

Rescue Work

NEW YORK (AP) — More and more pitchers are turning to the rescue role as a steady diet now that Joe Page has proved it pays to be on relief.

With an eye on Page's $35,000 salary, such former successful starters as Mickey Harris, Washington; Bill Werle, Pittsburgh; Walt Dubiel, Chicago Cubs; Al Brazle, St. Louis Cardinal, and Jim Konstanty, Philadelphia Phillies, are devoting their pitching careers to relief.

Some like Harris and Konstanty have made their switch with a great deal of success. Not only have they insured their stay in the big leagues, but they've played a big part in the rise of their clubs.

The Phillies have played 39 games and Konstanty has appeared in 16 of them. They've won 22 and he's worked in eight of those although officially he's credited with only three triumphs.

Harris has worked in 10 of Washington's 36 games and has appeared in six of their 19 victories. He's saved two wins for Sid Hudson, two for Joe Haynes and one for Ray Scarborough. He was credited with the other triumph.

It took Manager Bucky Harris a long time to convince Mickey Harris to give up a starting assignment for relief work. Connie Mack tried to convince Lou Brissie of Philadelphia to do the same. Both pitchers went to Page for advice. Mickey decided to do Bucky's bidding but Brissie refused to listen to Mack.

Others influenced by Page's work and turned exclusively to relief include Howie Judson, Chicago White Sox; Paul Calvert, Detroit; Ed Erault, Cincinnati; Andy Hansen, New York Giants; Erv Palca, Brooklyn; Tom Ferriek, St. Louis Browns and Jesse Flores, Cleveland.

Few Specialists
In the years before Page you could count noted relief specialists on one hand. There were Firpo Marberry, Wiley Moore, Doc Crandall, Herman Bell and one or two others. Then along came Page.

It was in 1947 that the New York Yankee lefthander first became relief conscious. He was only 29 then and in his fourth year in the big leagues. He saved a game against the Red Sox in May with a great relief performance. Thereafter, he was used in relief by then-Manager Bucky Harris exclusively.

Powerfully Built
A powerfully built, well proportioned 175 pounder, Labahn has made steady progress in his battle against the clock. But it wasn't until he adopted an unorthodox style similar to that of the great Hironoshin Furuhashi that the seconds really began to peel off.

"Everyone seems to think that I intentionally copied Furuhashi's style," Dick said, "but that's not true. Jim Counsilman spotted a flaw in my form and after a lot of experimenting, I found that I was using almost the same methods as Furuhashi. It was just a coincidence."

Counsilman, assistant swimming coach, explained that the vast majority of swimmers bend their elbows while stroking. The latest trend, as popularized by the Japanese star, is not bending the elbows.

"I noticed that Dick was having trouble with the opposition of his hands," said Counsilman, a former Ohio State standout. As an experiment he had him try not bending the elbows, and immediately his times improved.

"Then, as sort of a check, we had him go back to his old ways and his times became slower. His present style is the exact opposite of what they used to teach, but for certain individuals, it's proven more effective."

Asserts Himself
Labahn's efforts were restricted in the earlier part of the year by an appendicitis operation in November. It wasn't until the Kansas City Athletic club meet March 2 that he began to assert himself.

Swimming against the best talent in that area, he took two firsts and a second, including pool records in the 50- and 100-yard events. The latter mark topped the previous figure of Wally Ris, a gentleman of some note in aquatic circles.

April 2, Labahn finished a yard behind Ris in the Central AAU championships at Evanston, Ill. "Potentially as good as Ris," according to Counsilman, Dick is from Evanston where he often practiced in the Northwestern pool under the eager scrutiny of Wildcat Coach Bill Peterson.

Iowa Tank Prospects

Sets Fast Dash Times — With Unorthodox Style

By JACK SQUIRE

That old stop watch, which has taken so much abuse from a long line of Iowa swimmers, seems to be in store for more of the same treatment. Newest Nemesis to father time is Dick Labahn, freestyler on the freshman team, whose latest exploits have done nothing to move Coach Dave Armbruster to tears.

Labahn, a transfer from Illinois, recently climaxed his activities on the freshman squad by turning in a time of :51.2 for the 100-yard dash. Considering that Rusty Garst's :52.2 was sufficient to take that event in the Big Ten championships, Labahn must be stamped as a prize piece of property.

Labahn's efforts were restricted in the earlier part of the year by an appendicitis operation in November. It wasn't until the Kansas City Athletic club meet March 2 that he began to assert himself.

City Council Plans Further Discussion Of Traffic Problem

Further discussion by the city council on the possibility of re-routing truck traffic through Iowa City will be held Friday, according to Alderman James M. Callahan.

The council met Monday with representatives of the chamber of commerce, police and fire departments, and trucking firms to discuss re-routing heavy traffic and widening certain intersections in the city.

At that meeting, Mayor Preston Koser cited the highway commission for its failure to realize Iowa City was "on the map."

The commission, Koser said, had studied re-routing truck traffic through Iowa City and Coralville, but had done nothing about it. He said the commission had stated it could do nothing about highway improvement in Iowa City until 1951 because of the lack of funds.

Alderman Frank Fryauf Jr. said Wednesday the council has no jurisdiction over the improvement of the Burlington street - Riverside drive intersection, just off the Burlington street bridge, cited by the council as the "worst traffic bottleneck in Iowa City."

Only the highway commission, according to Fryauf, can make improvements because the intersection is on state and not city property. The council recommended the intersection be widened so the light located there could direct traffic properly.

Callahan said the council hopes representatives from the Eldon Miller and Watson Brothers trucking firms, the chamber of commerce committee on good roads, and from SUI will attend the Friday night meeting.

Marshalltown Busses Quit, Emergency Looms

MARSHALLTOWN (AP) — Marshalltown will be without city bus service today.

The Marshalltown Transportation company which is to be succeeded by a new bus firm under city contract July 1 announced Wednesday that it would discontinue service after completion of Wednesday night's runs. This sudden development in the local transportation problem left the city faced with the prospect of having no further bus service until emergency arrangements can be made.

Bomber Crash in Illinois Kills Two

One-Room Rural Schools Target of County Board

By TONY HUEBSCH

The campaign against the shortcomings of the present system of one-room rural schools has advanced beyond a word campaign in Johnson county.

For two years, the five-man county school board and Frank J. Snider, county superintendent of schools, have been laying the groundwork for proposed re-districting plans as required by a state district reorganization act of 1947.

The objective would be to divide Johnson county into fewer districts — half a dozen, for example, instead of the present 68 — Snider has said.

With larger areas, there would be a larger tax base and better administration of the schools. Eventually these districts could build elementary and high schools centrally located in each district, Snider suggested.

Just what is wrong with the present system of one-room schools?

For one thing, under the present system, many school districts are of such limited area that taxes cannot be raised to maintain a desirable school.

10-Pupil Average
Snider has pointed out that there are 5,100 one-room schools in Iowa which have an enrollment averaging 10 pupils.

Even when such a school has a capable teacher, she must divide her time among eight grades, if there are students in all the grades.

The result is, as Snider explained, that rural students get "reading, writing and arithmetic, but are deficient in such courses as art and music, and facilities for vocational training just can't be had."

The county board and the superintendent have been conducting area surveys and making studies of the desires of Johnson county residents before laying out new districts.

Final Action
Final action will be left to the individual school districts. No one else will be able to push them into anything.

"We hope to have the districts worked out for submission to the districts at election time in March, 1951," Snider said last week.

Snider, with the help of maps, has explained the program to members of school boards in Pen and Madison townships.

Snider emphasized, "We are not belittling the rural schools we have had, but can they do the job for this day?"

Set up as ideals to work for were grade schools with at least one teacher per grade and high schools where from 12 to 15 teachers could be hired.

Would Lower Taxes
The new plan will lower taxes for those in high tax districts today and raise them in lower tax areas, Snider said. The larger districts will tend to equalize taxes, he added.

"If there is to be any reorganization, it's the people who have to do it," the county superintendent of schools emphasized. "The only way townships can become a part of a larger administrative area is by the people of those townships voting for it."

Only Bear Excited at Accident

"WOW," SAID THE TEDDY BEAR as he viewed the truck-auto accident near McKeesport, Pa., from his vantage point on the bill board in the upper-left corner of the picture. The bear's words expressed his surprise when the two occupants of the crushed car received only minor injuries from the accident. The truck was loaded with steel. The truck driver also was unhurt.

No Exams—Gets Degree Started 43 Years Ago

VALPARAISO, IND. (AP) — As a young man, Henry F. Schriener started from his home in western Indiana in 1904 to enter Valparaiso university, but he never got there.

When his train stalled at Knox, Ind., he got off, found a $4.50-a-week job, remained there, worked his way up and now is serving his second term as governor of Indiana.

Next Sunday he finally will go to Valparaiso university. It will confer an honorary doctor of laws degree upon the governor.

Expect to Complete Hospital Frame Soon

The concrete framework of the new 500-bed veterans hospital should be completed by the middle of July, Lt. Col. Harold K. Howell, Iowa City army engineer, said Wednesday.

The sixth floor of the planned 13-story building is nearing completion. Construction is progressing at about a floor a week and would have been completed now had not the May 5 windstorm delayed work, Howell said.

Thirty bricklayers have begun work on the exterior walls of the building and the black granite wall facing the front entrance.

The only interior work now being done is the installation of plumbing, he said. Sewer lines and drains are being placed in the basement. Steam lines for the first and second floors are also being put in.

Other work on the 13-acre site is the installation of steel joists at the apartment building and the setting of plaster on the second floor of the garage building.

The hospital is expected to be ready for occupancy by May of next year.

Lions Club Hears Law Enforcement Situation Discussed

There have been very few significant advances in police procedure during the last 15 years, Prof. Richard L. Holcomb told the Iowa City Lions club Wednesday.

Holcomb, head of the bureau of public affairs, spoke on "Where the Police Stand Now."

"We make the mistake of selecting the best policeman and naming him chief of police," he said. "The best policeman may not be the best administrator."

Holcomb cited the lack of a training school for police administrators and the absence of any research in police work as other inadequacies of the law enforcement system.

Poor selection of personnel, lack of training facilities and insufficient pay are among the reasons for poor police protection, he said.

"We require that police of occupied Germany and Japan have from three to six months' training before being assigned to duty. In the United States it is possible to become a policeman without any special training," Holcomb said.

In spite of many scientific crime detection devices, police still must do hard police work to break a case.

"All research benefiting police work has been borrowed from other fields," he said. "There has been almost nothing in the way of research into crime prevention. Until we have such research, crime investigation will continue to follow the same channels it has followed for 25 or 50 years."

Holcomb commended advances made in traffic control and communications. The traffic situation in Iowa now is better than at any time during the past 15 years, despite an increase in the number of cars on the road, he said.

Holcomb said he expects no more broad advances in communication procedures until the adoption of facsimile equipment.

"One-man squad cars are not an economy measure," according to Holcomb. "Departments should keep the same number of men on the street and double the number of cars. Properly handled, one-man squads can double the coverage."

Holcomb served in the Kansas City, Mo., police department and directed protective services for Montgomery Ward and Co. in Chicago before joining the SUI faculty.

Supply Sergeant Begins SUI Duties

Sgt. Joseph Tomak joined the staff of the SUI military department Wednesday to serve as a supply sergeant, department officials announced.

Tomak, veteran of 15 years military service, previously was stationed at the Moses Lake air force base near Spokane, Wash. There he was chief warehouseman in charge of supply.

Tomak spent two years in the Pacific during World War II and a year in Greenland and Iceland following the war.

High Flying Pilot

HURON, S.D. (AP) — Pilot Richard J. Plender went joyriding in the sky and Wednesday was charged with flying while intoxicated.

The 28-year-old airman waived preliminary hearing in municipal court and was bound over for trial. Bail was set at $700. The Civil Aeronautics administration ordered an emergency suspension of his private pilot's license.

WINNIPEG (AP) — In 1913 the Winnipeg Rotary club sent $500 to flood victims in Dallas, Texas.

Wednesday a check for $1,000 arrived for the Manitoba flood relief fund, along with the explanation: "It just happened that one of our older members remembered the gift from Winnipeg."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A NERVOUS patient was occupying the seat of honor in Dr. Pullman's dental parlor. The good doctor peered into her mouth and in his most reassuring manner told her, "Not a thing to worry about, Mrs. Selwyn. I won't have to extract a single tooth." Then he added, "Of course, your gums will have to come out."

An ambitious young shipping clerk, studying economics in night school, was asked what he would do if he found himself with Rockefeller's income. He answered wryly, "I'd rather speculate on what Rockefeller would do if he found himself with mine!"

A fellow student, habitually downhearted and gloomy, engaged the shipping clerk's attention. He confessed that he could not live down the disgrace of knowing that his father, a notorious gangster in prohibition days, had died in the electric chair. The shipping clerk had a solution for this dilemma too. "If any busybody starts prying too closely into your family history," he suggested, "simply tell him that your old man occupied the seat of applied electricity at one of the state's largest institutions."
