11 Airmen Feared Dead In Ohio Bomber Crash

LEBANON, OHIO (AP)—A four-engine B-50 from Biggs Field, El Paso, Tex., fell in a field near here Thursday afternoon, killing at least 11 members of the crew.

The state highway patrol identified the plane as coming from the 342nd bomber squadron at Biggs field and fixed the number of dead at 11.

The plane burned for several hours. Bodies of the servicemen were scattered over a wide area.

Alex Fields, who lives near the scene of the accident said the plane sounded as though it was in trouble when he first heard it.

"It sounded like at least one engine was out," he said. "The plane seemed to circle two or three times and there was a noise like the pilot was trying to gun the engines. Then the plane just nosed down and dived into the field."

Fields said the plane caught fire after it struck the ground, but other persons interviewed declared they saw fire before it crashed.

Mrs. Mattie Bishop told the Cincinnati Times-Star by telephone that the plane had struck her house but that she had escaped injury.

Windows in several houses more than a half-mile from the scene were shattered by the explosion.

Thousands of persons drove to the field where the plane burned, and blocked traffic for miles on state route 741 and U.S. route 42.

The scene of the crash was about 20 miles northeast of Cincinnati.

Bodies of the victims are to be taken to Wright-Patterson air force base but names of the dead will not be made public until next of kin have been notified, air force spokesmen said.

Air force officers and enlisted men collected personal effects and equipment that fell or was thrown from the big bomber.

B-50 Crashes ...

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) — Six men parachuted to safety Thursday from a crashing airforce four-engine B-50 bomber.

Three other crewmen were missing. The body of another was found in the wreckage.

The plane plunged into the Galuro mountains, about 40 miles northeast of here, shortly after midnight.

The pilot, who was among the survivors, told State Highway Patrolman T.K. Wootan the No. 3 engine exploded and blew off the right wing in flight. Wootan did not report the names of the pilot or the other survivors.

The pilot said 10 men were aboard.

Wootan radioed his headquarters here that five of the survivors walked out of the rugged mountains. The sixth suffered a leg injury, Wootan said.

The pilot was quoted as saying the three missing men may have bailed out. A search was undertaken.

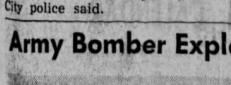

Hartman Not Hurt In Car Mishap

William Franklin Hartman, 27, 1225 S. Riverside, was held without charge this morning following an accident near Coralville.

Hartman was driving west on highway 6 when his car left the road and turned over at Wayne point, opposite Loghry's drive-in restaurant.

Hartman was uninjured, Iowa City police said.

Army Bomber Explodes in Ohio Crash

Chicago Man Injured In Fall on Crandic Track

McCarthy fell on a Crandic line track south of Harrison and Gilbert streets. Police rushed him to the hospital where he later regained consciousness.

Truman Asks More Funds to Get 'Voice' Into 'Critical' Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman asked congress Thursday for $125,645,000 to wage an intense "campaign of truth," aimed principally at "critical" countries of Europe and Asia.

One aim is to crash the Soviet radio jamming screen with a more powerful Voice of America and to reach remote areas.

"We will never attain real security until people everywhere recognize that the free nations of the world are the true seekers of permanent peace," the President said in a letter to house speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas).

Mr. Truman asked congress to add $89-million to the $36,645,000 already in his budget request for the American information program abroad.

House Group Warns Citizens to Beware Of 'Peace Petitions'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house un-American activities committee warned Americans Thursday that they may be black-mailed for years if they innocently sign a "peace petition" which the committee called a piece of "Communist chicanery."

The committee charged in a statement that the petition — said to contain 1-million names already — is really intended to open the way for a planned campaign of civil disobedience and defiance of the government "in the interests of the war effort of a foreign power."

"It would be unfortunate," the statement continued, "if many Americans, unaware of the insidious aims and purposes of this drive, should be misled into lending their names and signatures to this spurious 'peace petition'."

It said that Communists are trying to get signatures on the petitions at meetings, on street corners, in shops, homes and churches. The committee said the names and addresses gathered by the solicitors will furnish "a gigantic and invaluable Red mailing list for the Communist party, U.S.A., and its headquarters in Moscow and numerous Communist front organizations."

"This list will be used not only for the distribution of subversive literature throughout the country, but it will also serve as a means of blackmailing for years to come those who have innocently lent their names to 'peace petitions,'" the committee declared.

Local Petition ...

An emphatic denial of any connection with the petition mentioned in the house un-American activities committee's statement was voiced late Thursday night by members of a local group who had planned to circulate a peace petition here.

The group held a meeting Tuesday in the north lobby conference room of the Iowa Union, according to records at the Union lobby desk.

Mrs. Bernard Baum, publicity director for the group and wife of Prof. Baum of the SUI English department, issued the following statement:

"Iowa City for Peace' is a newly formed organization of local citizens, intent upon furthering the cause of world-wide peace. It has absolutely no connection with or support of any out-state group. We intend to promote the recent International Red Cross resolution condemning the use of atomic bombs and other mass extermination weapons, to publicize the stand of the Society of Friends in urging arbitration between U.S. and U.S.S.R., and to utilize material from any church groups."

"We were considering a number of sample peace petitions from other organizations, but now may find it necessary to simply draw up and circulate our own, depending on the wishes of the group."

The group Thursday left a copy of a petition at the Office of Student Affairs to be approved for circulation. Helen Reich, acting director of student affairs, said Thursday night she had not considered the petition and would not do so until today.

Mrs. Stanley Ferber, 4 E. Market street, said she delivered the petition to the Office of Student Affairs.

When informed of the statement by the un-American activities committee, Mrs. Ferber said she was "shocked" and she expressed hope that local citizens would not interpret the group's action as being part of the movement mentioned by the house committee.

The petition Mrs. Ferber left in the Office of Student Affairs was titled "World Peace Appeal" and bore the name of an organization titled "U.S. Youth Sponsoring Committee."

The petition included the following statement:

"We demand the unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon as an instrument of aggression and mass extermination of human beings."

Mrs. Ferber said the only reason this particular petition was submitted to the Office of Student Affairs was that it happened to be one of several that had been requested from organizations such as "the American Red Cross and the Quakers."

"It was simply a matter of a few people who had seen a petition and thought it would be a good idea to get together and talk, and see how other people who wanted peace felt," she said.

Mrs. Baum said the group had not even decided for certain where the signed petition would go when completed, but that consideration had been given to sending it to the United Nations.

Mrs. Baum said "about 25 persons" were in the group.

REP. LLOYD M. BENTSEN (D-Tex.) demanded Thursday that President Truman deliver a one-week 'atomic ultimatum' to Communist invaders of South Korea. His speech drew applause from aroused members of Congress.

'Atomic Ultimatum'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman asked congress Thursday for $125,645,000 to wage an intense "campaign of truth," aimed principally at "critical" countries of Europe and Asia.

One aim is to crash the Soviet radio jamming screen with a more powerful Voice of America and to reach remote areas.

"We will never attain real security until people everywhere recognize that the free nations of the world are the true seekers of permanent peace," the President said in a letter to house speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas).

Mr. Truman asked congress to add $89-million to the $36,645,000 already in his budget request for the American information program abroad.

However, almost simultaneously, the senate voted, 53-25, to cut the earlier request to $32.7-million.

But it was not a clearcut test. Members were aware that the big supplemental request was coming.

President Truman's "expanded campaign of truth" would widen distribution of films and publications, establish more information centers and enlarge the exchange of visitors with friendly countries.

Edward W. Barrett, assistant secretary of state in charge of the program, said two years would be required to get the proposed new transmitters and other equipment into full use.

"As our power is increased, it will be infinitely more difficult for the Soviet Union to jam our broadcasts," the official said.

About half the added $89-million asked would go for stepping up the radio bombardment.

Congress recently has studied a proposal of Sen. Benton (D-Conn) for a "Marshall plan of ideas" to counter Moscow - directed propaganda. Witnesses Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles endorsed the plan.

Food Rationing Unlikely; Need Calm: Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman Thursday called for calm on the home front, saying food rationing will not be necessary and hoarding is very foolish.

He told his news conference the government is weighing plans for every phase of home front mobilization, but he emphasized such plans would be put into effect only if necessary. All decisions will be made in plenty of time, he said.

Price jumps can be blamed at least partly on profiteering, he said.

He expressed every confidence that the objective of pushing the Korean Reds back to the 38th parallel will be attained.

The President was asked whether he plans shortly to send to congress a request for authority to mobilize industry for war production and invoke controls over prices, wages, materials and manpower, as in World War II.

Everything that relates to the emergency is under consideration, the President replied.

He was most emphatic that food rationing will not be necessary.

There is no prospect of any food shortage in the United States at any time, he said, and he supported the statement with a brief survey of the harvest outlook. One of the largest corn crops in history is expected, he said. The cotton harvest will be normal, and is backed up by 3-million bales in storage. A wheat harvest as large as last year's is in prospect.

The President said he could not report on the outlook for such durable items as automobiles and tires, because he was not familiar with the situation in those industries.

AEC Hints U.S. To Build H-Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional atomic energy committee hinted Thursday this country hopes to produce a hydrogen bomb so powerful it could destroy a city as big as Chicago and its suburbs.

The awesome possibilities of the weapon were outlined in a carefully-worded report prepared by the committee staff. Technically, it covered the problems raised by the dreaded H-bomb in efforts towards international control of atomic energy.

Actually, the pamphlet carried out the most complete review of H-bomb problems and history yet issued by a government agency. It discussed "triggering" of the bomb, ingredients involved, and supplies of raw materials.

Applications for recall to active duty are now being taken from all members of the voluntary reserve, according to information received from the 10th airforce headquarters, Selfridge airforce base, Michigan.

Applications for reserve officers will be accepted in all fields. Those who are selected will be informed directly from 10th airforce headquarters.

Lt. Col. Allen H. Wood, commanding officer, Offutt airforce base, Omaha, announced that reservists called to active duty will be entitled to full re-employment rights of the selective service act of 1948, as amended.

Mrs. Ferber said the only reason this particular petition was submitted to the Office of Student Affairs was that it happened to be one of several that had been requested from organizations such as "the American Red Cross and the Quakers."

"It was simply a matter of a few people who had seen a petition and thought it would be a good idea to get together and talk, and see how other people who wanted peace felt," she said.

Yanks Defeat First Red Attempt To Breach Kum River Defense

Wounded GI Returns from Front

THIS UNIDENTIFIED AMERICAN SOLDIER was moved on a stretcher for transportation to a hospital from an advanced medical station on the war front in South Korea. The other GIs are also unidentified. Communiques early today said the tempo of the battle increased as U.S. troops dug in along the Kum river to make a defensive stand.

Speech, Hearing Clinic Opens

General hearing problems and speech defects caused by brain injuries will be discussed today at the opening sessions of the SUI-sponsored speech and hearing clinic.

The two-day conference, today and Saturday, will be held in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Among the guest speakers will be Prof. Ira J. Hirsh of Harvard university's psycho-acoustic laboratory; Prof. Harold Westlake of Northwestern university's speech clinic, and Dr. Hildred Schuell, director of Ft. Snelling veterans hospital's speech clinic.

Prof. Wendell Johnson, director of the SUI speech clinic, said conferences of this kind have been held yearly at SUI for about 25 years.

The conference is sponsored by the speech and psychology departments, and the otolaryngology department (ear, nose and throat) in the college of medicine.

Delivery of Nehru's message came a short time after some foreign diplomats in Moscow expressed the opinion that the Soviet Union wants to see a peaceful settlement of the Korean conflict.

According to these informants Russia's price probably would be the withdrawal of United States troops and any other foreign troops from the Korean peninsula. Moscow also is said to want general elections in both North and South Korea to elect a single government for the whole peninsula.

Russia instead has claimed South Korea provoked the fighting and maintained that the United States is following an aggressive policy by helping the South Koreans.

Britain has made a request to the Soviet Union similar to the one advanced by the United States. No definite Soviet answer yet has been made to the British move.

Mortars Rout 3 Red Patrols In Dawn Raid

TOKYO (FRIDAY) — American troops beat back the first North Korean attempt to breach the Kum river defense line today.

Three fanatical patrols from the Communist positions on the north bank of the river were all but wiped out as they tried to get a foothold on the American-held shore. A front dispatch said a few Communist troops managed to reach the south bank but apparently in numbers too small to be a threat to the U.S. defense line.

The North Koreans tried to sneak across in the pre-dawn darkness but were spotted in the glare of American flares and cut down by heavy mortar and machinegun fire.

As dawn broke a comparative quiet enveloped the Kum river front where the Americans are defending the South Korean temporary capital of Taejon, only 12 miles away. Most soldiers on the front expected within a matter of hours an all-out onslaught on the American line from the two Korean divisions reported to be on the north bank.

"Generally Quiet" Earlier, Red Korean artillery fired sporadic shells into the American Kum river line Thursday night but the American sector "was generally quiet," a U.S. headquarters spokesman said.

Artillery and mortar fire indicated the Communists had pulled up in some force from Chochiwon, 20 air miles north of the key city of Taejon.

The spokesman said the South Korean army front to the east was generally stabilized and that one Communist company which broke through was "annihilated."

South Korean police wiped out a guerrilla band of about 30 Communists in a fight north of Pusan, the southeast Korean port, the spokesman added.

Hit Key Target U.S. Superforts, nearly 50 strong, made their first big raid of the war on North Korea Thursday and the Pyongyang radio indicated the target was the key coast port of Wonsan.

A broadcast from the capital of Communist North Korea said "more than 30 bombers raided Wonsan and surrounding areas five times." It conceded damage was heavy. Two B-29s were reported missing.

First reports on the Superfort strike did not give the target beyond the fact it was north of the 38th parallel dividing North and South Korea. Wonsan is 80 miles north of the parallel.

South's Race Problem Easing? —

The beginning of a wonderful situation might be underway in the south.

The trend toward acceptance of Negroes in southern universities might develop into the genuine spirit of friendliness between races our country needs.

It's gratifying to read that those Negroes accepted at the University of Texas have suffered no abuse. They reported they were pleased with the way their entrance was handled.

The editor of The Summer Texan, the university newspaper, recently lambasted editorially a Texas town and its own newspaper for their vehement criticism of the Negro's new privilege.

That's good news. The editor of a southern paper can do much toward helping his fellow southerners break away from holding to unfounded beliefs simply because most people around them do and always have.

Every time a southerner speaks out for equal and just treatment for Negroes, another southerner will find it easier to do the same. It's simply a matter of finding courage in knowing you're not alone.

The southern students have a wonderful opportunity. They can do more in less time toward eliminating bitterness between races than any other group in the south.

We believe they will accept the challenge. We believe they will discover that the presence of the Negroes can be a pleasant experience. We believe the Negro student there soon will be treated with the same friendliness that our Negro friends at SUI enjoy.

Louisiana State university has received admission requests from nine Negroes, with a warning they will sue for that admission if necessary.

If the widespread belief that prejudice breeds best in ignorance is true, a university should be the easiest place to get a foothold on the racial problem.

Let's hope Louisiana State university won't find court action necessary.

UP Draft Age Poll Shows 48 Percent Feel War Inevitable

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you think the fighting in Korea will lead to a third world war?

United Press reporters asked that question in 33 cities across the nation, polling 128 former servicemen and young men and women eligible for military service in the event of war.

"Yes," answered 48 percent, with many adding: "It's already started." Thirty-eight percent said, "No." Fourteen percent didn't know.

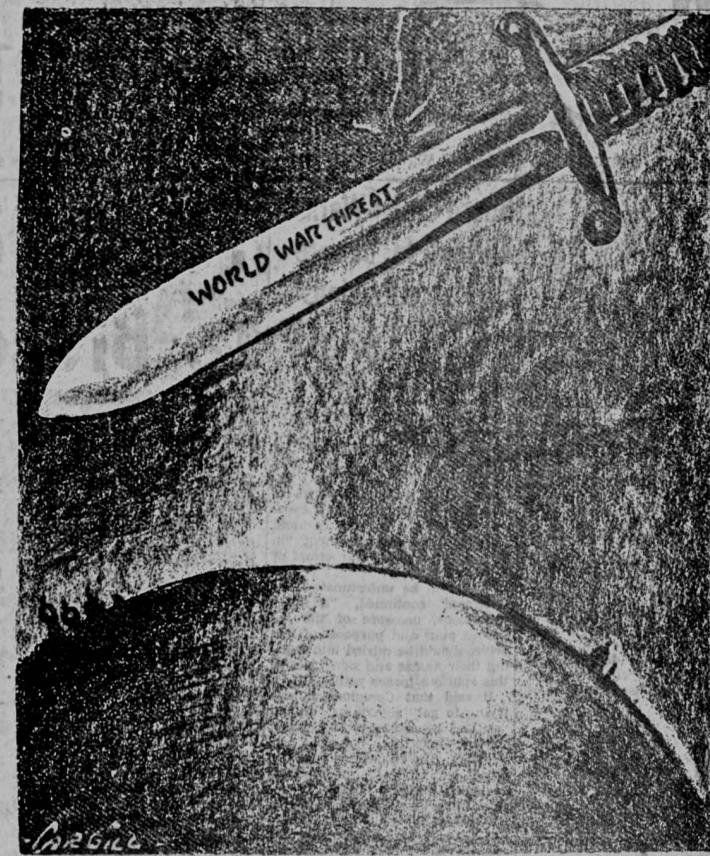

But if war comes, 52 percent are ready to volunteer, 35 percent will wait until drafted and 13 percent are unsure what they will do.

On a percentage basis more women than men are planning to volunteer. Fifty-five percent of the women questioned plan to enlist, as compared with 52 percent of the men.

"It looks like they'll draft women in this war anyway and I might as well get in on the ground floor," explained Marcella Roberts, 25-year-old Dallas, Texas, secretary.

The survey showed that mothers and wives across the nation are greatly worried over the possibility of war, particularly those who waited and worried during World War II. They are resigned, however, to seeing their loved ones in uniform but would rather have them wait to be drafted.

'Receding Hair Line'

By TOM DORSEY
WAIT A MINUTE: An Iowa City woman and her recently attached husband almost missed their honeymoon trip because of the slip of a pen.
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lamb were married here July 2 but, as they prepared to leave for a wedding trip to the Black Hills, they discovered their wedding certificate was dated July 10.
Needless to say the couple delayed the start of their trip one day and got the certificate corrected but fast.

NOTE TO DETECTIVE STORY WRITERS: If you need a new death dealing technique for your villains try needles embedded in bananas.
The other day in India they rushed a man to the hospital because he said he swallowed something that hurt his throat. He suspected foul play so they X-rayed him.
And the X-rays revealed needles — plain ordinary sharp needles — lodged inside him. How many? Oh, just 35 of them.
It seems the man had swallowed four small bananas whole on a bet. The needles apparently were in the bananas.

IT SEEMS TO ME: That the person who brags about what he is going to do tomorrow, was probably doing the same thing yesterday.
OH, WHAT YOU SAID: A Colorado Springs officer hung a ticket on an automobile for illegal parking. A day or so later he received the following letter from the woman motorist:
"Dear Traffic Cop: I looked for a cop for 20 minutes before parking my car in the alley, but finding no one and also seeing several parked cars in the same alley, I reasoned that it must be permissible after working hours. I certainly do not break rules intentionally. Enclosed find your dollar with three wishes:
"1. That you get rich hounding widows. 2. That you live to be sixty on a dollar and a half a day and are hounded every step of the way by a cop. 3. That the money burns a hole in your pocket and you have to buy a new suit."

WHICH ARE THE KIDS? A terrible truth has come out of a recent spot survey of television families.
Under the protective system of being identified only as a percentage, a surprising number of men confessed that "Hopalong Cassidy" was their favorite program. Believe it or not the men topped the number of teen-age boys who voted the cowboy first place in their viewing.
The majority of the teen-agers indicated they have graduated from guns to grunts, naming wrestling as their favorite program.

NO BEDTIME SNACKS: I guess just about the meanest man on record is the fellow who carried his wife's false teeth around in his pocket so she wouldn't eat between meals.

Retreating in Korea Doesn't Necessarily Mean Lengthy War

United Press Correspondent Ralph Teatsorth has arrived in Korea to cover the fighting there. Teatsorth, UP general manager for the Philippines, is a veteran war correspondent, having covered Gen. Douglas MacArthur's advance in World War II from Australia back to the Philippines. He went into Japan with the first of MacArthur's forces and remained to take charge of the United Press bureau there. The following is his first dispatch from Korea.

ADVANCED AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA
— This is a grim, dirty backpeddling war, but it won't be necessarily a long one.

It is nothing like the Pacific war that ended five years ago. It is a strange fight, in a strange land, against a strange enemy.

American humor in Korea is running low. One sees long faces all the way from rear bases in Japan to forward outposts. One senses that the wisecracks and ribaldry that are the trademark of American servicemen have been stowed away until things get better.

The term "front line" is misleading in the battle for Korea — it changes from minute to minute. There is no such thing as two lines of steel running parallel to one another. The sudden smash and jab at flanks is the Communist way of fighting. Americans engage superior numbers, fight briskly for a short time, then fall back.

Nobody can be sure at any time of the day or night just where the front is, but there is no doubt it has been moving steadily southward for two and one-half weeks.

There is no denying being pushed around by the Reds has had a demoralizing effect. But here are the optimist's reasons for believing that the Communists will soon be turned back:

1. The allies have absolute air and sea superiority.
2. American infantry reinforcements now are moving up.
3. The Japan-to-Korea airlift is beginning to bring in the needed materiel in large quantities.
4. The American soldier is just as good a fighting man as ever. Give him equal numbers with the enemy, the weapons he needs, and a little more experience and then watch him go.
5. The chunky little South Korean soldier — that tough-looking guy in the faded green uniform — also is a first-rate fighting man.

Letters to the Editor

S. Korean Government . . .

TO THE EDITOR:
I feel that certain facts concerning Korea are being overlooked by many newspapers and would like to present the following data.

The day before the May South Korean election 30 candidates were arrested by Syngman Rhee's government. (New York Times, May 30, 1950.)

Kim Koo, rightist, anti-Communist leader, favored negotiation to achieve unification of Korea and attacked Rhee's warlike policy and the fact that Rhee had surrounded himself with former collaborators. Rhee attempted to prevent members of the UN commission (on unification) from speaking to Kim Koo. Kim Koo was assassinated. (Nation, Aug. 13, 1949.)

On Oct. 8, Rhee set several conditions for cooperation with the UN commission: 1. The commission should not employ Communists or sympathizers; 2. The commission would not discuss unification with North Korean representatives. (New York Times, Dec. 23, 1949.)

23, 1949.)

The commission stated it "was disturbed by the implied desire of the Korean (South Korean) government to restrict its work." (New York Times, Dec. 23, 1949.)

The South Korean national assembly's "Special Committee on National Traitors," collecting material on collaborators, uses its own police since the regular police force is filled with collaborators. (Nation, Aug. 13, 1949.)

Dr. Ahn Hasanges, minister of education in South Korea, an open admirer of Hitler and enforcer of Nazi teaching methods, has had the school system purged of 2,000 teachers who were either inclined to the left or did not know their political beliefs clear. (Nation, Aug. 13, 1949.)

Two weeks before the outbreak of hostilities the Korean ambassador told the U.S. state department that "his country was on the verge of internal collapse" mainly due to fear that the United States would "abandon" South Korea in event of a "showdown" with North Korea. "He pleaded for some guaranty of armed intervention by the United States in event of war." (New York Herald Tribune, June 25, 1950.)

In 1949 Acheson testified that the South Korean government would fall in three months without U.S. aid.

The South Korean government has been threatening to invade the North for many months. Late in June a New York Times correspondent wrote that "on a number of occasions Dr. Rhee has indicated that his army would have taken the offensive if Washington had given its consent."

Appropriations of $100-million were voted for South Korea June 6, 1950.

And with these things in mind, I wonder whether the South Korean government might not be less secure and more fascistic than supposed; whether the South might have precipitated the present crisis calculating promised U.S. aid in the event of a conflict, as a carefully planned maneuver to help maintain the Rhee government?

Atomic Calendar to Fix Prehistoric Dates

By Central Press

CHICAGO — Until the development of their "atomic calendar" by researchers at the University of Chicago Institute for Nuclear Studies, no accurate methods were at hand for dating prehistoric Mexican remains thought to go back 10,000 years.

Now Prof. Willard F. Libby and his fellows hope to determine within two centuries the dates of the ancient Tepepan Man.

Because his bones were found surrounded by skeletons of extinct mammoths, geologists without the use of Libby's atomic calendar thought that he lived 10,000 years ago. Nuclear research promises more positive clues to the Tepepan period.

These far distant dates are being determined through delicate analysis of the traces of radioactive Carbon 14 in samples of wood, plants and charcoal recovered from the Mexican sites in 1947 by Helmut de Terra.

Other samples of once-living organisms like charcoal and wood from the Temple and Pyramid of the Sun sites near Mexico City will be tested under the system first devised by Libby.

A third current problem of these atom scientists is the age of Monte Alban, the temple city noted for the gold treasures discovered there in the early 1930's. It was the site of the pre-Aztec Zapotec civilization which abandoned Monte Alban around 1100 A.D.

The Institute for Nuclear Studies means to learn more about that civilization which may prove to have originated as much as two or three thousand years ago.

Such dramatic Chicago expectation is based upon the radio carbon in wood and charcoal remains which was originally created high in the air when cosmic rays bombarded particles of nitrogen.

The carbon in turn was eventually transposed into carbon dioxide gas and taken into the bodies of plants and animals. When they died, the radio carbon began to decay.

Scientists know how long it takes for radio carbon to break down and by analyzing the amount of it left, it is possible to tell approximately when the plant or animal lived.

Libby's unique atomic calendar thus stems from nature's cosmic ray bombardment which produces radioactive Carbon 14 in every living thing, including the human body.

His group explains that "Carbon 14 has a definite half-life of almost 6,000 years. That is, within this period the number of radioactive carbon atoms in any substance will decline by half."

Thus in measuring the continuing radioactive Carbon 14 contents of anything that once has been alive, the age is revealed. The less radioactivity, the older the substance is.

"So far," say these researchers in Chicago, "we can date, with reasonable accuracy, any sample of wood up to 4,600 years old. We hope to extend the method within the next year so that it will accurately measure 20,000-year-old relics."

Prior to the present work on Mexican remains, the institute has tested samples of Douglas fir from Arizona, fragments of the wooden floor of an ancient Syrian palace, a piece of a giant California redwood felled 75 years ago, cedar of Lebanon from an Egyptian funeral boat and wooden relics from Egyptian tombs.

When the radioactive results were checked against conventional methods used by archaeologists in dating objects, they agreed with those of the older practice.

In the case of an Egyptian mummy, a piece of cypress wood from the casket revealed it to be within a century or two of 4,750 years old. In most instances, Libby modestly concedes that his atomic calendar, like the methods it supplants, cannot define exact dates to within a few years.

However, Libby and his associates who include James R. Arnold, E. C. Anderson, Robert Merrill and Richard Wolfgang, do promise that "once this atomic calendar is thoroughly tested, it will give a yardstick for calculating dates before man wrote history."

Use Nature's System To Cool U.S. Cities Meteorologist Urges

PASADENA, CAL. (AP)—Withering summer heat spells will be a thing of the past, if Dr. Irving Krick's solution, to turn on nature's own air cooling system, is adopted by major eastern cities. The noted meteorologist said Thursday that temperatures can be lowered by seeding clouds so they will move over cities with the winds.

On a typical hot day in New York City, Krick said, clouds build high over the Appalachian mountains. Late in the afternoon those clouds move in on westerly winds, but too late to help.

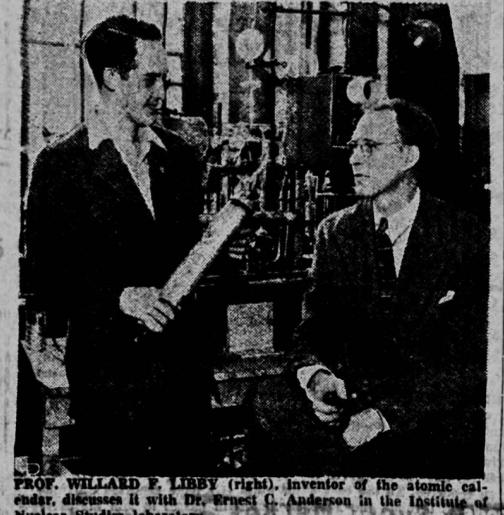

Seeding them early enough would start a high deck of clouds moving east by midday to shatter the simmering sun.

Baseball Trouble?
"We are at the point where quite a bit can be done," the doctor said, "but in the case of New York we might also get some rain and have trouble with the ball clubs."

Recently completed tests in Washington state demonstrated the effectiveness of Krick's method of producing rain by seeding clouds with silver iodine smoke dispensers operated on the ground, he said.

In one week last month the rain makers claimed to have brought more than four times the normal rainfall to one area. The total was 4.0 percent of normal, compared with 60 to 120 percent in areas unaffected by the operation.

Los Angeles Helpless
The technique used for producing clouds, rather than rain, is too overused. Too much seeding results in less precipitation, a problem which faced experimenters with dry ice scattered over clouds from airplanes.

PROF. WILLARD F. LIBBY (right), inventor of the atomic calendar, discusses it with Dr. Ernest C. Anderson in the Institute of Nuclear Studies laboratory.

GI Predicts Own Death in Last Letter Home

CLEVELAND (AP)—The first Clevelander to die in the Korean war had a feeling he might be killed, his parents disclosed.

Here is Pvt. Edward Peska's last letter home (he was killed in the crash of a plane carrying GI's to the Korean front):

"Dear folks: Well, I guess you people are worried about me. Well, I am going to give you the bad news now. We are informed at 11 this morning to be ready to leave Tokyo at three for South Korea. Well, it is one of those things. Maybe my time is here this time. It was 32 months before (in the European theater in World War II), and nothing happened. And now it is with the Japs (the meanest the North Korean Communists) and maybe they have my number."

Interpreting the News — Kum River — Another Marne?

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

American boys, too lightly armed and poorly reinforced, are trying to turn a strange river in Korea into a new Marne.

You will remember that it was the British - French armies along the Marne which, after disastrous retreat from the Belgian border, broke the impetus of the Kaiser's first drive in 1914. And it was against this same line in 1918 that the German armies bashed out the last of their brains.

The armies along the Kum can't compare with those that fought along the Marne. But the Marne stood before Paris and the allied holding operation made possible the long comeback through which they eventually won the war.

The Kum stands before Taejon, American headquarters and South Korea's temporary capital, and before Pusan, only decent port for handling American reinforcements for which the thinly spread defenders are so urgently calling.

Few look at the American line, and its South Korean - supported wings, with any great hope. There was beginning to be talk that the U.S. forces would be thrown out of Korea, and speculation as to what might then happen.

Criticism of behind - the - front activity was mounting in the United States. There was not enough action, said the critics. Too much complacency. Was the defense department, which seemed to be dragging its feet in the first days, still doing so?

Or were secret operations going forward normally? Were the planes and ships needed being broken out of the mothballs? Was the shortage of technicians needed for putting a real airforce into operation being taken care of?

High government officials met and agreed to issue gloomy warnings of a long fight. But they gave people nothing to rally around. Perhaps preparations were going forward. Word was leaking out that if we could just keep holding on in Korea until September, things would begin to show.

Reports that Russia had not slammed the door on proposals for peaceful intervention merely add to the confusion. Allied diplomats know that with her puppet army advancing, Russia will make no deal except as out-and-out bargaining for a high price — a price higher than the west can pay. Yet now we have peace talk to confuse the urgent issue, which is backing for the boys along the Kum.

But the big question being asked everywhere is: If it is going to take two or more months for the United States to get started, how do we buy the time without more dynamic action than is yet apparent?

Regular Meals Bolster Tennis Queen's Game

A girl can eat "anything and everything," but she's gotta eat, if she wants to play a good game, of tennis, brown-eyed title-defender, Natalie Coughlin, St. Joseph, Mo., says.

"And it's not a good idea to go without breakfast when you play tennis," she added.

The pretty 18-year-old won last year in the junior girls division of the Missouri Valley tennis tournament in Iowa City and has reached the semi-finals so far in this year's contest.

Natalie said her 16-year-old sister does not like tennis, probably because "she hears too much of it." Her mother and father are great fans — as spectators.

Besides eating regularly, you have to get enough sleep to keep in good condition for tennis, she says. She likes all kinds of sports, and is an enthusiastic movie-goer.

Likes Shorts
According to Natalie, skirts have not become popular tennis attire for girls in the Midwest and Texas. She prefers "plain old shorts."

Natalie relaxed in the shade of the busy officials' tent and answered modestly when questioned about her trophies.

She won in women's and girl's singles in the Midwest tournament in Omaha June 2 through July 2, and also won in junior girls' singles and doubles in the Iowa State tournament at Cedar Rapids last week.

At the Heart of America tournament in Kansas City, she placed second to Laura Lou Jahn in the second round and ranked tenth nationally in 1949 in the junior girls' division.

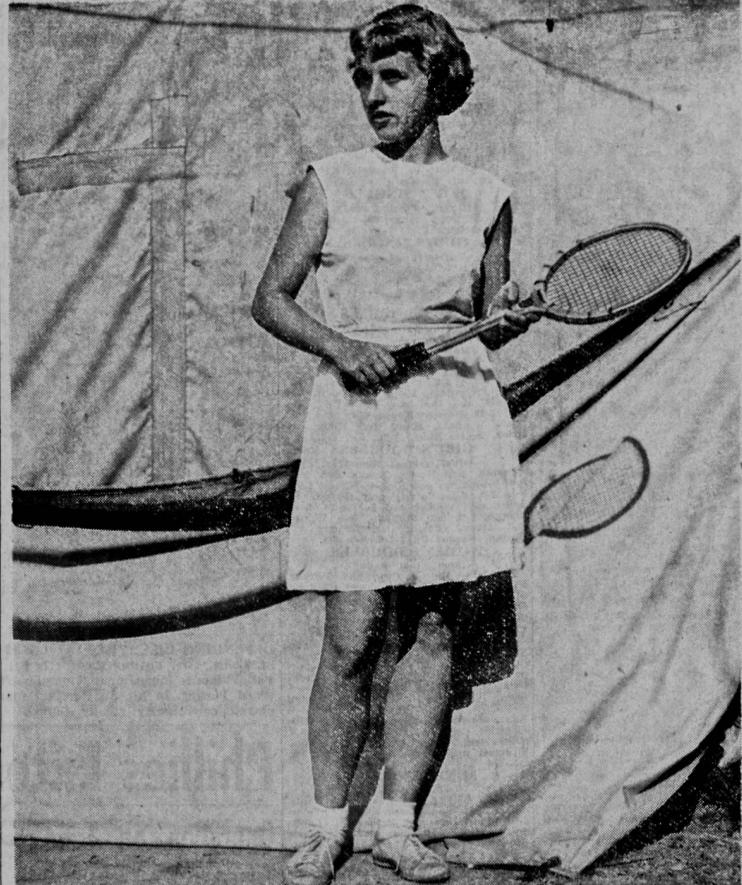

"If I'm lucky, I'll go to the nationals this year," she said.

Three Years in Nationals
The national tournament Aug. 21, follows inter-team matches Aug. 16, in Philadelphia. Players from thirteen sections of the U.S. compete in the intersectional games.

The Missouri Valley tournament sends a team of six girls each year to the intersectionals. "I've gone three years," Natalie said.

Natalie will enter Colorado college, Colorado Springs, Colo., next fall.

Burlington Girl Features New Tennis Wear Town 'n' Campus

A SHANTUNG TENNIS DRESS was selected by Sieglinde Schramm, 16, Burlington, to wear for the Missouri Valley tennis tournament. This is Sieglinde's first tournament competition, and she is entered in the girls' singles and doubles. When asked about her unusual and melodic first name, Sieglinde explained she was named for the mother of Siegfried in the Wagnerian opera "Siegfried" of the "Nibelungen Ring" group.

New Combination Spreads Give Hamburgers Appeal

Almost everyone enjoys a favorite dish prepared in a new way, and hamburgers offer a fine opportunity for menu variation. For example, mix up some garlic butter to spread on toasted hamburger buns. Add one clove of chopped garlic to every one-fourth pound of butter, and allow the mixture to stand for one hour.

Another spread mixture is anchovy butter. Cream a small quantity of anchovy paste, or mashed whole anchovies, with the butter, before spreading the buns.

Hot creole sauce served over an open-face hamburger will draw the family's praise. Add sauteed mushrooms, green pepper and onion to whole canned tomatoes, and let the sauce simmer until it is slightly thick.

Horseshadish and chopped chives are also delicious seasoning for butter to spread on the buns.

To prepare the best cheeseburgers, place a slice of cheese on the partly cooked hamburger and complete cooking while the cheese melts.

If your family likes onion slices with their hamburgers, be sure to brown the onions slightly and the hamburger will be more evenly flavored.

Mushroom sauce is delicious served with hamburgers, and you may want to try preparing it this way. Mix the contents of a three-ounce can of bottled mushrooms, one cup of seasoned chicken broth, two tablespoons of cornstarch, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon of ginger, and two tablespoons of chopped sweet pickle.

Bring the sauce to a boil, stirring constantly, for one minute. This recipe will make four generous servings.

Meat Pie Makes Use of Kitchen Leftovers

It takes a bit of imagination to concoct vegetable-meat combination dishes that disguise the fact you're using leftovers.

However, Sunshine Meat Pie is an economical and attractive variation on stew and other combination dishes. It is made with ground beef crust, and a corn and tomato filling.

Here are the ingredients you will need:

- Crust:
- 1/2 pound ground beef
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1/2 cups drained whole kernel corn
- 1 cup well-drained canned tomatoes

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon basil
Butter or margarine

To make the crust, sauté the bread crumbs in the milk and beaten egg for five minutes. Then add the beef, salt, Worcestershire sauce and onion, and mix thoroughly.

Line the bottom and sides of a nine-inch plate with the mixture. Combine the corn and tomatoes, and drain off any excess liquid. Then add the seasoning and fill the meat shell.

Dot the filling with butter or margarine, and bake for 40 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Cut the pie in wedges and serve garnished with green pepper rings or parsley.

Another attractive meat pie can be made with a ground beef base, topped with fluffy mashed potatoes.

SUNSHINE MEAT PIE is a colorful and delicious main dish for an evening when you want to serve something different and easy to prepare. It is made with a ground beef crust and a vegetable filling.

Saunders Eliminated In Tennis Tourney

Dick Hainline Advances In Men's Singles Class

By HOBERT DUNCAN
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Jim Saunders of Amarillo, Texas, third seeded in the men's singles class of the Missouri Valley tennis tournament, was eliminated from the meet Thursday in an upset defeat by 18-year-old Gene Powell, Topeka, Kan.

Tom Crabbe In Golf Finals

MASON CITY (AP) — It will be an all-Cedar Rapids finale in the Iowa amateur golf tournament today with a youngster seeking his first crown pitted against a tourney veteran who is after his sixth championship.

Johnny Jacobs, five-time tourney winner, defeated John Stoltz of Ottumwa 3 and 2 in the 36-hole semi-finals Thursday while his fellow townsman, 19-year-old Tom Crabbe Jr., was fashioning a 5 and 3 victory over Les Handt of Independence.

Jacobs was one over par for the 36 holes it took him to subdue the hard-fighting Stoltz. Crabbe shot even par figures over the 36 holes he covered in winning from Handt.

Both Cedar Rapids golfers turned on the heat in the afternoon rounds after fighting a nip and tuck battle on the morning. 18-year-old Crabbe was even at the end of the morning's play and Crabbe had a one up lead over Handt at the conclusion of the first 18.

Handt held Crabbe for the first five holes of their afternoon round. Then the young Iowa star took 24, 25 and 26 to go for up. Crabbe closed out the affair when his par on No. 33, gave him that hole.

Jacobs took two holes from Stoltz on the outgoing afternoon nine when he shot even par against Stoltz' 38. Jacobs then took No. 31, lost No. 33 and then took No. 34 to end it.

The last Iowa amateur meet, held in Mason City — in 1939 — also had an all Cedar Rapids windup. On that occasion Jacobs had to go 38 holes to win the crown in his final match against John Vavra.

Another surprise of Thursday's play was the Jamie Andrews-Norman Barnes win in the boys' doubles over the fourth seeded duo of John Been, Okmulgee, Okla., and Bill Taylor, Shawnee, Okla.

Andrews is from Iowa City and Barnes from Cedar Rapids. In other matches, as the fourth day of the tourney was completed, results conformed with predictions.

Hard Fought Match
One of the hardest fought matches of the day was Frank Wilkinson's 1-6, 6-3, 8-6 victory over Bob Ziervogel, St. Louis, in the men's division.

Ziervogel rallied to tie the match at five games apiece in the deciding third set after the players had split the two previous sets. He then took a 6-5 lead on his service. Wilkinson, from Kansas City, was within one point of defeat in the set when he lost three straight points in the next game.

He came back with a driving service and steady volleying to win the game and square the match again. Wilkinson then took the next two sets to win, 8-6.

The Kansas City player meets Barbour in a quarter final match this afternoon. Hainline plays Ward Parker of St. Louis in a match scheduled for 3 p.m.

In two girls' singles matches Thursday, the second and third seeded players came through with twists. Mary Vassely, St. Louis, beat Jo Ann Sullivan, Omaha, and Martha Goebel, St. Louis, defeated Sue Ruedell, Omaha.

Cobaugh vs Goebel
Natalie Cobaugh, defending champion and seeded first in the girls' class plays Goebel today. Vassely meets Shirley Anderson of Des Moines in the other semifinal match.

Louis Might End Boxing Retirement

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of September championship fights between Joe Louis and Ezzard Charles and Jake La Motta and Ray Robinson plus an expected break on the television dispute had the boys smiling along cauliflower row Thursday.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing club, said that Louis would come out of retirement to oppose Charles in September if he could straighten out his tax problems with Washington.

The husky boxing promoter said if everything worked out right, La Motta might defend his middleweight title against Sugar Ray in the first week of September. Louis and Charles would be ticketed for the last week in September.

The television dispute between the IBC and the New York boxing managers may be settled by the IBC and the New York box to $2,250 for each main event fighter and there was good reason to believe that the managers would accept the offer at a general meeting today.

Cubs Dump Skidding Dodgers; Preacher Roe Hurts Shoulder

CHICAGO (AP)—The skidding Brooklyn Dodgers suffered a double setback Thursday. Not only did the Chicago Cubs whip them, 6-4, but the defending champions lost the services of their pitching ace, Preacher Roe, for an indefinite time.

Roe hurt his pitching shoulder throwing a fast ball to Hank Sawyer in the third inning and retired when his forearm became numb pitching to Bill Serena. In between he hit Andy Pafko with a three-and-two pitch.

Knotted Shoulder
Brooklyn Trainer Dr. Harold Wendler diagnosed the injury as a "knotted shoulder and nerve involvement" and said that he could not immediately tell how long the star southpaw would be out of action.

Roe, who hadn't lost to the Cubs since June 20, 1948, and had downed them six straight times, also was charged with the defeat. Paul Minner, ex-Dodger southpaw, went the route to register his third victory for Chicago.

Minner Helps Cause
Minner helped win his own game, with a two-out single in the second that scored a run and set up two more. The Cubs picked up two more in the third after Roe retired. Serena doubled off Reliever Joe Landrum to produce one run. Phil Caveretta singled in the other. Pafko's 14th homer, off Ralph Branca in the sixth, ended the Cubs' scoring. Brooklyn 100 300 000-4 3 0 Chicago 000 010 000-6 10 3 Roe, Landrum (3), Branca (1) Hatien (1) and Campanella, Minner (1-3) and Owen, LP—Roe (10-3). Home run—Pafko (18th).

Little Hawks Win On No Hit Game
Eddie Morgan pitched Iowa City's Little Hawks into the finals of the local high school sectional baseball tournament Thursday night with a no-hit 3-0 victory over North English.

Morgan issued two walks in seven innings to spoil a perfect game. No North English base runner advanced beyond first base. Iowa City scored two of its three runs in the fourth inning. Mickey Moore's triple was the big blow of the inning.

The Little Hawks will meet the winner of the Muscatine-Oakville game tonight for the right to enter district tourney play. The semifinal game is scheduled to get underway at 6 p.m. with the finals scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Operation on Ted Successful; Might Play This Season

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox' fractured elbow night was given some chance of playing again this season by the surgeons who removed seven bone fragments earlier in the day.

Williams was reported "resting comfortably" in a nearby Cambridge hospital after a 75-minute operation that Drs. Joseph Shortell and Ralph McCarthy described as "very successful."

Expressed Confidence
Dr. Shortell, an outstanding orthopedic specialist, expressed confidence that Williams, baseball's highest-salaried performer, not only would recover full use of his left arm but also would be able to play again. But he declined to estimate the time one of baseball's all-time outfield stars would be sidelined.

Dr. McCarthy, the club's regular physician, gave a more encouraging report.

"We do not anticipate a second operation," he said. "It will be several weeks before Ted regains normal motion of his arm. We hope he will be ready to play again before the end of this season."

Dr. Shortell predicted Williams' arm would be useless for the next few days, which he will spend in the hospital. But within a week he will be ready to begin post-operative exercises.

They will consist of turning the left hand in and out and raising and lowering the elbow that he splinted during the first inning of Thursday's all-star game in Chicago.

Size of a Dime
Dr. McCarthy displayed the bone fragments, the largest of which was the size and shape of a dime coin, as he marveled over Williams' ability to withstand severe pain. From the time Williams suffered the injury until it was X-rayed Wednesday, the arm had swollen to twice its normal size.

The Red Sox physician, who explained that Williams' fracture was much more common in football than in baseball, was amazed that Ted was able to continue playing so long after that first-inning accident.

Detroit Whips Nats; Hal Newhouser Wins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hal Newhouser set down a ninth-inning rally to win his ninth decision and present Detroit a 5-2 victory over Washington Thursday night. The triumph boosted the Tigers' lead over rained out New York to 3½ games.

Washington loaded the bases with none out in the ninth on singles by Mickey Vernon and Sam Mele and a walk to Johnny Ostrowski but Sam Dente fouled out and Al Evans hit into a double play. Newhouser, who allowed six hits, owned a shutout with two out in the eighth, when Eddie Yost reached first on an error and Cass Michaels belted a home run into the left field bleachers.

The Tigers nipped Sandalio Consuegra, the loser, for a run in the first inning on a single by George Kell and Vic Werz's double. Detroit boosted its lead to 3-0 in the second when Johnny Ligon doubled across two runs.

Don Kolloway opened the seventh with a single and went all the way to third on Ostrowski's error, scoring on Newhouser's final run in the ninth when Kell's long fly scored Ligon from third.

YMCA Sponsors Tour Of 14 Mexican Towns

An invasion is about to be launched on Mexico by 15 or 20 camera-carrying conquistadors from SUI and the state of Iowa, but it's all peaceful.

The invasion, which might be termed "Operation Fiesta," is sponsored by the World Relatedness commission of the SUI YMCA group.

Its stated purpose is to promote understanding between the peoples of Mexico and the United States.

Officially, its name is Mexican Study tour. It is a co-educational hostel - bus - style trip lasting 28 days during which visits are made to 14 cities and towns in Mexico.

SUI Students
Three SUI students, Nancy Knowles, A1, Ft. Dodge, Alice Ferguson, A1, Ames, and Rodney Blunk, A2, Estherville, will be among the group leaving Iowa City for Mexico Aug. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sittler, Iowa City, both instructors in the SUI guides, are conducting the tour. YMCA general secretary Ralph Schlomg, Iowa City, owns the bus and has driven it on similar tours to Mexico every year since 1945. Schlomg was formerly secretary for the California YMCA.

This is the second annual trip to be made from the SUI campus according to Schlomg, who instituted the tours when he was with the YMCA in California, and sparked the idea on this campus after his transfer here in 1948.

According to Schlomg, tour activities center on sightseeing with special guides, native Mexican recreation, study of Mexican sociological developments, and discussion groups.

Students meet with Mexican government officials, labor leaders and educational officials.

Mexican Guide

"A good share of our spare time goes into shopping tours," said Schlomg. "We use up - to - date shopping references for each town we visit, and our guide is a great deal of help in showing us how to deal with native shopkeepers."

Guide Manuel Lopez Cassio, a native of Mexico, stays with the group and looks to their welfare all the time they're in Mexico, Schlomg said.

Cassio has been guiding the tours since 1945.

Money, said Schlomg, isn't much of a worry in Mexico. Fifty dollars puts a shopper in the "upper brackets," and $10 goes a long way.

Visit Volcanso
A special visit will be made to the volcano, Paracutin, the newest volcano of its size in the world.

Paracutin erupted through a farmer's corn field in 1948, and has since grown to a 5,000-foot mound of volcanic ash and hot, flowing lava.

Entertainment in Mexico City runs the gamut from concerts, theatre productions, and dancing, to bull fights, fiestas, and shopping tours.

Inquiries concerning the tour should be made at the YMCA office, Iowa Union, Schlomg said.

Democratic Candidates Meet at Convention

POSSIBLY TALKING OVER CAMPAIGN PLANS were Lester Gillette of Fostoria and Albert Loveland at the Democratic state convention in Des Moines Thursday. Gillette will oppose William Beardley in the November elections for the Iowa governorship. Loveland is the Democratic candidate for U.S. senator and will oppose Bourke Hickenlooper.

SUI Pre-Schoolers to View White Rats

About 18 tots from the SUI pre-school, all 6 years of age or younger, will spend part of this morning looking over a colony of white rats.

The rats belong to the SUI home economics department, which uses them for nutritional experimentation purposes.

Ruth Hightberger, head teacher of the preschool, said "the children raised two white rats during the past school year, and showed a great interest in them."

Because of the interest, pre-school authorities decided the children would enjoy seeing the home economics white rat colony.

After seeing the animals the young students will be served a fruit juice and cookies lunch by home economics department members.

Iowa Democrats Call for 'Limited World Government'

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's Democratic party called for a "limited world government" Thursday in a campaign platform drawn up at a state convention of 2,088 delegates.

Jake More was reelected chairman of the state central committee.

The platform said, "We favor the use of the existing provisions of the United Nations charter for the accomplishment of a limited world government and the attainment of lasting world peace."

Delegates avoided a showdown battle on the controversial Brannan plan, giving ready approval to a plank that called no farm policy by name but demanded "modifications" of the existing program.

"We maintain that the farmer is entitled to an income from his products, in direct proportion to the cost of the articles he has to buy," the platform said.

The farm plank suggested the administration's agriculture program be modified to "prevent interference with world trade" and provide "abundance for all" instead of "storing food away from people."

Albert J. Loveland, Democratic candidate for the U.S. senate, made no mention of the Brannan plan in his keynote address, although he campaigned vigorously for the program in his primary race.

"The Democratic party stands for freedom of opportunity, for enlargement of opportunity, and for security along the way. That is because the Democratic party concerns itself with the needs of the people," Loveland said.

Judge to Consider Firm's Lawsuit

The lawsuit of Ferris and Kerner, Inc., New York, against Newton R. Mulford, operator of the Mulford Electrical Service here, Thursday was taken under advisement by District Judge Harold D. Evans.

Hearing on the case was held Wednesday.

The suit was brought against Mulford by the New York advertising firm, claiming that he contracted for a $200 advertising display in 1948.

Mulford denied the claim and alleged that terms of the contract, which called for an advertising display at Kelly field, a ball park on highway 218 near the airport, were not fulfilled.

Baggage Trailer Smashed as Autos Collide on Highway

A one-half ton baggage trailer was demolished Wednesday on highway 6 when the car, pulling it went out of control, causing the trailer to crash into a car coming from the opposite direction, highway patrolmen said.

Mrs. Lucille Atchison, Van Nuys, Calif., was driving east in the car pulling the trailer when the accident occurred about 3 p.m. three miles east of Iowa according to the patrolmen.

Mrs. Atchison's car was not damaged, but the car driven by Paul M. Jacobs, Denver, Colo., received $400 damage. The trailer was valued at $50, it was reported.

In another accident Wednesday on highway 6, a truck driven by John W. Killee, Carlisle, and a car driven by Walter W. Moeller, Coralville, collided near the Veterans hospital site.

Both vehicles were traveling west when the accident occurred. Police said Moeller tried to pass the truck on a hill, and charged him with passing in a no-passing zone.

Dummy Undergoes Toughest Workout During Peace Officers Short Course

DRAGGING THE IOWA RIVER FOR A "BODY," these two members of the peace officers short course pulled "Junior," the bullet riddled dummy, from the river five minutes after efforts started. An instructor in the course said many times rivers and lakes are dragged for as long as three weeks before bodies are recovered. Art Bartholomew, river patrolman of the Des Moines police department, (left) and K. M. (Bill) Rooker, state conservation officer, were two instructors in the course at SUI which started Monday and ends today.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS AND "DROWNED" during the peace officers short course at SUI, "Junior" relaxed under a shade tree. "Junior" is the dummy used in staging the mock murders during the course which began Monday and ends today. Thursday he was thrown into the Iowa river, weighted down with 60 to 70 pounds of sash weights. After receiving an hour's instruction in dragging for a body, members of the advanced police class located the dummy in five minutes.

Iowa's OMVI Laws Praised By Michigan State Professor

Iowa has the best legislation for prosecution of drunken drivers in the United States, Prof. Ralph Turner, department of police administration, Michigan State college, told officers of the peace officers short course Thursday.

The 14th annual peace officers' course opened here Monday and will continue through today. Officers who successfully complete the course will be given certificates indicating their achievement.

"In 46 other states, law enforcement officers and attorneys look with wishful thinking upon Iowa legislation," he stated. "Only Oregon has laws comparable to those of Iowa, he added. Turner gave a history of chemical tests for intoxication, which were originated in the early 1930's. Chemical tests of blood, urine and breath gained popularity with law enforcement agencies in the late 1930's, he said, when drunken driving first became a serious problem.

Chemical Tests
During the war, the program came to a standstill, but rapidly has gained wide use since the war, he explained. "Law enforcement agencies went in for chemical tests with a rush." Turner said this sudden adoption of chemical tests without adequate training resulted in many mistakes, and caused many courts to refuse to admit the test results as evidence.

"Iowa has had a succession of favorable decisions, however," he added. "Even when tests are administered by trained scientists, 'contradictory testimony has shown up,'" he explained. To check the reliability of these tests, Michigan State college has been running a two-year program testing persons known to be intoxicated, he said.

Persons drawn from the surrounding area are allowed to consume all the whiskey they desire. At the same time, tests including chemical, psychological and fatigue are given.

Detecting Machine
These tests show that all chemical tests for intoxication are nearly equal in results, he stated. However, the tests will not be successful until an educational program is developed for the courts, prosecutors and police officers, he explained. He described a new intoxica-

County School Budget Estimated Same for '51

Operation of the county board of education and the county superintendent's office should cost about the same during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1951, as for the present fiscal year which began the first of this month.

The proposed $19,350 Johnson county board of education budget is exactly the same as the budget for the 1950 fiscal year just begun.

Prepared by the five-man county board of education, the budget contrasts with $17,733.54 spent in 1949.

A public hearing on the budget will be in County Superintendent Frank J. Snider's office in the courthouse July 24 at 8 p.m. Taxpayers may express their opinions on the budget at the hearing, Snider said.

The budget will then be either approved or rejected by the five-man board.

Expenses of operating the county superintendent's office and some supplies to county schools are covered by the budget, Snider said.

It does not cover the expense of operating the individual schools throughout the county. The 68 individual schools in the county are financed by funds levied in their own school districts.

Truman's Councilman Says Depressions Can Be Avoided

The President's economic council believes great depressions can be avoided if proper policies are followed, a council member told participants at the SUI workshop on economic education Thursday.

The workshop began June 25, and ends Saturday. Roy Blough, a member of the President's council, said the nation's economic policy has not had a genuine test because there has been no collapse of the economy such as took place in the early 1930's.

He pointed out, however, that recovery from the recession in 1949 was due in part to government policies.

Blough said the functions of the three-man council were four: (1) To advise the President in preparing his report to congress. (2) To study economic developments and trends. (3) To study the degree of success of the government's economic programs.

(4) To make recommendations to the President concerning the nation's economy.

In studying economic conditions, Blough said, the council concentrates on policies to prevent spirals in either direction.

It also encourages new industries and greater production and consumption to keep a maximum level of production and employment, he added.

Children Attend SUI Clinic

Twenty Iowa children, most of whom have never been able to attend public school, are attending a one-month clinic ending Thursday at the SUI Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children.

Parents of the children will attend the last week of the clinic. They will learn home treatment methods and get help in planning the children's futures, according to Virginia Hymans, acting senior teacher.

The children, ranging in age from 3 1/2 to 14, represent several types of physical handicaps. Most of them have had some type of cerebral palsy since birth, and one is recuperating from polio.

They were selected for the clinic on the basis of immediate necessity for educational service. The school's staff will evaluate these needs in therapy and education, and predict long term needs.

Therapy, rather than education is emphasized during the clinic. The children require several weeks to adjust to the environment, and must feel at home and relaxed before therapists can judge their probable responses to extended treatments.

Most of the children are receiving intensive physical therapy treatments in special areas this summer.

Others get frequent occupational therapy treatments, usually to teach self-help in feeding and dressing.

All the children have group music therapy and some have individual treatments. Frequently a child who cannot speak clearly can forget his handicap and perform better in singing.

Steigleman Backed For Journalism Post

Prof. Walter Steigleman, visiting professor in the SUI school of journalism, has been recommended by the school to take over the faculty position of Prof. Arthur Wimer, head of the journalism reporting and editing sequence.

Steigleman came to SUI last summer from Indiana university, where he was an associate professor of journalism. He has taught courses here in law of the press, and magazine article and feature writing.

He has served as editor of the Altoona, Pa., Tribune, and the Lancaster, Pa., News-Journal. Other experience includes eight years with the Associated Press in New York, Pittsburg and Harrisburg, Pa.

The recommendation will probably be submitted for approval of the state board of education this month.

Wimer, an SUI faculty member since October, 1947, will leave his present position at the end of the summer session to become chairman of the department of journalism at San Diego State college, California.
