GI's Gather Fruit Near Front Lines

Probers Seek Missing Links, Call New Witness in Hiss Case

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seeking "missing links" in the Hiss-Chambers case, the house un-American activities committee has called as a witness, Lee Pressman, onetime New Deal government lawyer and a former CIO leader.

Rep. Richard Nixon (R-Calif.), disclosing this Saturday, said the action was his idea, prompted by Pressman's break last week with the American Labor party.

Pressman said the party couldn't win because of labor's conviction it is following the Communist party line.

Pressman himself was accused by Whittaker Chambers in 1948 of having served as leader of a "cell" in a Red network in Washington during Chambers' career as a Communist party member which ended in 1937.

Summoned to testify at that time, Pressman refused to say whether he had ever been a Communist party member.

Chambers was the government's star witness in the perjury trials of Alger Hiss, who was convicted for denying that he had supplied government secrets to Chambers at a time when the latter was a Communist spy ring courier.

Woman Dies of Polio After Bearing Child

A young Oskaloosa woman died of polio at University hospitals early Saturday just after giving birth to an eight-pound baby girl.

Mrs. Lilian Vittetoe, 22, wife of James Vittetoe, died at 4:10 a.m. just after the child was delivered in the isolation ward.

Hospital authorities reported the child was in "excellent" condition.

One new polio patient has been admitted in "fair" condition at University hospitals. He is Lawrence Samuelson, 6, son of Roswell Samuelson, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FAMILY BIRTHDAY

ROANOKE, VA. (AP) - When Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Craft got married they had something in common—the same birthday, Aug. 19. Two years ago Saturday Anna Jean was born to them. Saturday morning, Aug. 19, Mrs. Craft gave birth to a son, Samuel Eugene.

Married Vets Re-Entering Service to Get Housing Priorities

SUI's married student veterans re-entering the armed forces will be given special SUI housing priorities on their return to the campus.

This statement was made Saturday by T.M. Rehder, director of dormitories and dining services at SUI, in answer to queries on the status of several married student veterans who have been recalled to active duty.

"These men are being called from their college studies," Rehder explained, "and they need to be assured that they will have special housing priorities when they are able to return here and complete their studies."

The priority ruling applies only to the tenants of SUI-owned temporary housing for married students, but Rehder said that should a housing problem arise in the future, veterans would be given preference regardless of their marital status.

"In the past SUI has managed to provide housing for all single men and women who desired it,

Demos Predict Defeat Of Proposed Changes To Anti-Inflation Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - A senate Republican leader declared Saturday that lack of confidence in the Truman administration is mainly responsible for a stack of proposed changes in the senate's anti-inflation bill.

Sen. Eugene Millikin (R-Colo.) made the assertion as senate Democratic chiefs predicted defeat for all of what President Truman called "crippling" and "special privilege" amendments in a chiding letter about the bill's progress.

The senate will vote on the measure Monday.

It would give Mr. Truman an almost free hand to invoke wage-price-rationing controls whenever he sees fit. It also would authorize credit and production controls. The house already has given overwhelming approval to a similar bill.

In predicting senate passage of a measure acceptable to the President, Sen. Burnet Maybank (D-SC), floor manager of the bill, claimed enough votes to keep a Republican - sponsored Communist - control program from being written in as a rider.

First ROTC Graduate Called to Active Duty

Don D. Cawelti, L. Toledo, an SUI June graduate, has been called to active duty in the armed services, it was announced Saturday.

Cawelti, a second lieutenant in the infantry reserve, is believed to be the first of the ROTC graduates at SUI to be called to active duty, officials reported.

They pointed out that this does not include those who accepted regular army commissions or who have applied for extended active duty.

Robert Hennesy, A4, Toledo, has been ordered to report to Des Moines Tuesday for a physical examination. Hennesy, a Daily Iowan news editor, is a member of the army's inactive reserves.

DES MOINES BIRTH

DES MOINES (AP) - The stillbirth of Siamese twin girls to a Des Moines mother was revealed Saturday. Officials at Mercy hospital said the twins were joined at the chest in a face-to-face position. Their total weight was nine pounds, 15 ounces.

Settle New York Newspaper Strike

NEW YORK (AP) - Negotiators Saturday agreed on terms for ending a strike that has kept the New York World - Telegram and Sun off the streets for two months.

The agreement, still to be ratified by members of the striking CIO American Newspaper Guild, came after an all - night, 15-hour session.

Guild representatives said they would recommend approval by the 400 editorial advertising and business office strikers at a membership meeting Tuesday.

The special edition was distributed to these new students, regular subscribers and various high schools throughout the state.

Reds Massing North Of Taegu

Allied Forces Launch Attack On East Coast

TOKYO (SUNDAY) (AP) - UN forces launched an attack today on the east coast anchor of the South Korean battle line as 50,000 Reds massed north of Taegu. Emphasizing the Red menace to that key American supply base, enemy artillery shelled it for the second time.

Another Red force, with tanks and motorized infantry, was building up near Chinju at the southern end of the 120-mile battle-front perimeter.

For the moment, Red drives were so effectively stalled that the North Korean radio at Pyongyang stopped claiming Red "advances" for the first time. A broadcast today spoke frankly of "counterattacking American and South Korean troops."

Main Menace

On the east anchor, South Korean troops which recaptured the port city of Pohang Friday jumped off in an attack north, teamed with American elements. The front for this drive extended nine miles west of Kigye.

But the Communists' main menace remained to the west of the Pohang - Kigye fighting - in the Kunwi sector where the 50,000 Reds were reported assembled.

Ahead of this menacing force was the spearhead of Reds which drove within 10 miles of Taegu before South Koreans and a "fire brigade" of Americans blunted it. Resistance in that sector today disappeared but American leaders were cautious.

While keeping a wary eye on this as yet withheld big push, the U.S. Eighth army headquarters today sent American and South Korean forces to the attack in a sector immediately to the east.

Melts in Bloody Rout

Twenty - three miles southwest of Taegu another Communist menace melted in a bloody rout. Hundreds of bodies were found on hills seized by U.S. Marines as the 24th Infantry division drove against 12,000 Reds who had massed on the east bank of the Nakdong near Changnyong.

The American military assessment of the Changnyong action was that the Red Korean Fourth division had been eliminated as a fighting force after one of the most intensive battles of the war.

The main threat remained north of Taegu where the appearance of a probing spearhead only 10 miles away was followed by orders that the more than 500,000 civilians leave the city entirely to the military.

South Korea's government also abandoned it as a provisional capital.

The spearhead's forced retreat and lessening pressure on other fronts added up to a remarkable defensive victory. But there was no apparent feeling at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo or at U.S. Eighth army headquarters in Korea that the Reds have given up their offensive.

What Next?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some top ranking military leaders are wondering whether we are fighting only North Koreans or soldiers from other Communist nations - and how much longer this war can be considered "just a Korean affair."

This growing worry, heightened by news that the North Korean invading forces may be getting set for still another assault on the Nakdong river line, sounded an ominous note at the end of a week which had been the best of the war for the defenders.

It was a week in which there had been no serious reverses (even if no big victories) for the U.S.

War at a Glance

Korean front: Americans and South Koreans launch general attack on east coast anchor of Korean front. Reds numbering 50,000 reported threatening vital base of Taegu. Full-scale Red attack also feared on southern flank by forces threatening Americans barring road toward key supply port of Pusan.

Air war: Ninety B-29s blast North Korean industrial areas with 800 tons of bombs in second biggest strike of the war, hitting as far north as 60 miles from Soviet Siberian frontier. Jet fighters chew up enemy trains and oil installations. Marine and air force fliers hit enemy along battlelines.

Washington: Army estimates North Koreans have lost 50,000 dead, wounded or missing of their 100,000-man forces, but recruiting wholesale with call up of all men and women between 18 and 40. South Korean losses put at 37,000 up to three weeks ago. No new American casualty figures announced.

Moscow: Moscow press pictures Americans as "uncultured gangsters" and "stormtroopers."

Man Now Is Attempting To Make Sunshine

MEDFORD, ORE. (AP) - Apparently successful at making rain, man now is trying to make sunshine.

A power company manager believes the experiment a success, too.

It is happening at the Tokete Falls dam, now under construction in the Cascade range east of here. The dam is earth-filled and the problem is to get the soil dried to a 20 percent moisture content so it can be rolled into place.

That requires sunshine. Clouds and fog held back the work last year, so two weather - making pilots were hired to try to keep clouds away.

Using their own secret cloud-killing spray, they take off whenever fog rolls up the Umpqua river canyon.

"It might be coincidence, but the fog does clear up, and lets the sun shine down to dry the clay. We got way off schedule last year, because the clay didn't dry out," the manager said.

Iowan Special Edition On Sale Again Today

The Daily Iowan's 48 - page special edition, published Saturday, will be on sale at news stands again today.

Monday, copies of the edition will be available for 10 cents at The Daily Iowan business office in East hall. Those interested may purchase wrapped copies ready for mailing.

This issue is a six-section paper to acquaint freshman and transfer students, coming to SUI for the first time this fall, with this university.

The special edition was distributed to these new students, regular subscribers and various high schools throughout the state.

Three fatally injured in crash near Victor

South Korean soldiers manning the defense.

The deep suspicion of the Pentagon about where the North Koreans are getting manpower to replace losses now estimated at 50,000 men and to enable a continuing build-up of strength seemed to have support in developments outside the military command post here.

First, there was the comment of Sen. Joseph Wiley (R-Wis.), a member of the senate foreign relations committee, to reporters. He said this:

"Congressional members have been informed that a crack Communist force of 200,000 is moving northward in China toward the Korean border. This force is composed largely of Koreans trained in Manchuria by the Russians."

Then there was a dispatch from the front which had bearing on the reports of the presence of outlanders or foreign-trained troops among the Korean Red army.

Photographs found on the bodies of enemy dead in the southern sector of the front showed these soldiers in Chinese Red army uniforms. Other material found on the bodies indicated the homes of some of them were in Manchuria.

A few weeks ago the Pentagon announced that Russian nationals were known to be serving as advisers attached to at least one North Korean unit.

One of the handy devices for explaining the enemy's capability of offsetting battle losses and expanding his army has been to say that the North Korean Communists are conscripting both North and South Koreans.

That undoubtedly accounts for much of it, but not all. Nor does it explain how the enemy apparently continues to have at least a nucleus of unusually highly skilled troops, who fight like veterans.

THIS PICTURE WAS DISTRIBUTED in Berlin by the Russian-controlled German news agency "ADN" with a caption saying it shows American prisoners of the North Korean Reds crossing a Han river pontoon bridge near Seoul on their way into captivity behind the battle lines.

SKETCHY REPORTS GETTING through a U.S. army communications shutdown Saturday indicated a new Red massing of troops was taking place north of Taegu (1), main U.S. forward base. The U.S. Marine First brigade and U.S. 24th Infantry division continued to mass retreating Reds in Changnyong area (2). An enemy build-up was reported on the U.S. 25th division front near Chinju (3) on the southernmost Korean war sector.

Talk of Excise Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) - Talk of voting new excise taxes next year was heard in congress Saturday less than two months after the lawmakers wanted to make drastic cuts in existing excise rates.

The worsening international situation has killed all hope of early excise tax reductions, and congressional tax spokesmen are hunting for ways to increase, not reduce, tax collections.

Looking ahead to next year and a second tax bill to follow the pending $5-billion tax increase, some of them are talking of levying new excises in 1951.

A staff memorandum from the federal reserve board to the house- senate economic committee also has recommended enlarging the already long list of items subject to federal excise taxes.

Excise taxes, with some untapped revenue sources, are expected to be studied by congressional tax-farmers who believe that income taxes cannot be raised much more.

The pending bill, approved by the senate finance committee, calls for annual income tax increases of nearly $3-billion a year on individuals and $1.5-billion on corporations.

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the finance committee said Friday he expects congress to seek $6-billion to $7-billion in new taxes next year on top of this year's $5-billion boost.

Red Losses Estimated At 50,000 in Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) - A military spokesman said Saturday that the Korean Communists have lost 50,000 killed, wounded or missing in the first eight weeks of the Korean war, including the bulk of their trained troops.

But he indicated that American and South Korean losses have been almost as heavy.

He said that up to three weeks ago, 37,000 South Koreans had been listed as killed, wounded or missing. The spokesman refused to give any up-to-date estimate on American casualties on the grounds that it would aid the enemy.

The latest totals issued on American losses showed that on Aug. 7 official notices had been sent to 2,616 families of servicemen killed, wounded or missing in action.

Unusual Display Of 'Aurora' Visible

An unusually bright display of Aurora Borealis, commonly known as the "northern lights," was visible over Iowa City and the mid-west Saturday night.

Local CAA officials said the demonstration, aided by clear and cool weather, was reported as far south as the southern Missouri border, as far east as Detroit and as far west as the Rocky mountains.

The display is caused by an electrical discharge in the stratosphere normally in the spring and autumn months. Usually the "northern lights" will be the brightest either two hours after sunset or two hours before sunrise, CAA officials explained.

Try to Head Off Partial Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House kept union and management negotiators in prolonged session Saturday in a strenuous effort to head off a partial railroad strike due to begin Monday morning.

Although the strike deadline was still some 36 hours away, several defense plants were already feeling the pinch, and were preparing to close down.

Three unions have called a "token" strike of yardmen at three rail terminals for Monday. Wage boosts and working hours are the main issues involved in the 17-months-old dispute.

What Now, Hank? —

Henry Wallace has the people guessing again, and many interpretations will be made of his recent resignation from the Progressive party.

Policy on Korea was the point over which the former New Dealer split with the party he headed, the dispute becoming public when he issued a statement saying that although he did not condone previous actions of either the U.S. or the Soviet Union, he was supporting this nation and the United Nations in the current crisis.

Wallace used to have many more friends than he can boast of now, but for many of them he went too far off the deep end in his love for Russia. For a long time it seemed he did nothing but praise Russia to high heaven and knock America as being about the worst place thereunder. This was just too much for many of those friends.

His trip through the south in 1948 subjected him to treatment that few contemporary American politicians have suffered. He was called a Communist and was konked on the head with a variety of objects ranging from well-aged eggs to over-ripe tomatoes.

He was believed by many even to have purposely invited that treatment. He was accused of staying in Negro homes and of patronizing the Negroes, not because he was particularly sympathetic, but because he knew he would be abused and would, therefore, reap the benefits of martyrdom.

But through it all, there were those who believed Wallace had the highest motives despite the known Communists who attacked themselves to him. They thought he was too idealistic in his efforts to get peace in this realistic world, but many thought O. Hank meant well and wanted the best for his country.

Those people might still find reason to continue their faith in their former vice-president. In his letter of resignation to the party secretary, C. B. Baldwin, Wallace said:

In view of the actions recently taken by the national committee of the Progressive party and the various state committees (on the opposition of those committees to U.S. intervention in Korea), I am convinced that I can more effectively serve the cause of peace by resigning from the national committee and the executive committee of the Progressive party.

Wallace might draw back to him many of his former friends. Some will say they knew Hank would break with Russia once he got his feet on the ground and realized the Reds weren't really interested in peace.

And there also will be speculation on whether he resigned with a more subtle purpose. Some will say his doing so was a first move toward gaining favor again among his old friends whom he frightened away with his pinkish talk and his list of dark Red friends. His vice-presidential mate, Glen Taylor of Idaho, long ago asked to be taken back into the fold.

Whatever Hank's got in mind, we won't know for a while — maybe never. He may continue to be the enigma he's been for years.

But we believe that if he does have our country's good in mind, his renunciation of Russia will be the best proof he could offer his old friends.

ABOARD A NAVY SHIP OFF KOREA (THURSDAY) — Katrinka, a dog which is half cocker spaniel and half boxer, gave birth to 13 puppies today.

Her owner, a chief boatswain's mate, was pleased but puzzled over the blessed event.

"This beats me," he declared. "As far as I know, Katrinka has not been ashore for 13 months."

U.S. Air Defenses Too Feeble to Stop Enemy Bomb Raid

WASHINGTON (AP)—An enemy probably could make an aerial Pearl Harbor strike at almost any place in the United States today and get some bombs down on the target.

It is not considered within the realm of possibility that the present sparsely spotted radar system — even though on a round-the-clock operating basis — would detect all approaching bombers or that existing fighter forces would destroy every one of them.

Competent military sources doubt if more than a quarter of an attacking bomber force coming in over the polar regions could be knocked down before it crossed the northern border of the United States.

They point out that in World War II, in areas where there was a high concentration of fighter defense and elaborate radar warning system, destruction of 10 percent of an attacking force was considered excellent.

Airforce strategists hold that the most effective way to halt air attacks on the U.S. mainland would be destruction of the bases from which the attacks are launched and of the industrial centers supporting the attacks. It is on the theory that the retaliatory strike by long range B-36s, B-29s and B-50s are planned.

Following the same reasoning, defense officials believe that the bases for those planes, in the continental United States and Alaska, would be priority enemy targets, the spots for which sneak raiders would head first. Making the bases useless for launching retaliatory strikes would be of prime importance to the enemy. Any bombers he got past the radar warning system and fighter defenses could be expected to streak for airbases.

Next in importance probably would be the great industrial areas and the nerve-center of government and military direction, Washington.

When asked about defenses against a surprise air attack, the airforce's frank answer sums up to this:

The nation's air defenses today are not satisfactory. The present radar stations comprising the warning net are composed of World War II equipment and are located on government sites — apparently places where the government has land on which to locate them, but not necessarily the most desirable locations.

The stations are too few in number to give more than a very limited warning to certain industrial and military areas.

Unique perhaps among the award winners was a modest Merion, Pa., housewife, Mrs. Ruth Mills, who devised a credo freedom cookie cutter, a mouth-watering recipe to match and an earthy letter about what Freedom meant to her.

TO KEEP PACE with growing public interest, Freedoms Foundation has increased its 1950 general awards program to $100,000, and has widened its award categories so as to make it possible for more citizens to participate.

This year a total of 416 cash awards, plus 300 honor medals and 200 certificates of merit will be awarded to those who have made the greatest contribution to the American way of life by speaking up for freedom.

Each category carries a total of $5,000 in awards divided as follows: first place, $1,500, four second places of $300 each, five third places of $200 each, and 13 places of $100 each.

Entries may be made in the following categories: high school and college commencement address; magazine articles; photographs with captions; public addresses, sermons; editorials; radio programs; community programs by boys, girls, men's and women's clubs or organizations; company employ publications; advertising campaign; 16 and 35 mm. motion pictures, and cartoons.

In ADDITION there is a general category in which various unclassified entries are eligible such as school newspapers, poems, songs, plays, television programs, pageants, window displays, and just about any other activity which will permit Americans to "speak up for freedom."

Material offered in nomination must have been completed after Sept. 20, 1949, and in the mail to Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa., by Nov. 1, 1950. Already a stream of entries is beginning to flow into the foundation's headquarters.

Once again the awards will be chosen by an independent 21 member awards jury composed of state supreme court justices and elected national officials of patriotic and service organizations. Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State college, is the non-voting chairman of the jury.

Freedoms Foundation to Award $100,000

By Central Press.

VALLEY FORGE, PA. — From this rolling green valley where once General Washington and his valiant Continentals endured the darkest hour of the Revolution, has come a renewed and dramatic call to the American people "to speak up for freedom." It is the second annual general awards program of Freedoms Foundation.

Organized last year, with national headquarters near the historic site, the foundation has stimulated a popular movement to encourage and reward all citizens who value their American heritage of freedom by "speaking up for freedom by word and deed."

In its first year Freedoms Foundation set up a general awards program offering a total of $84,000 in cash awards plus honor medals and certificates of merit to individuals and groups whose activities or words were judged to have best exemplified the American way of life as defined by the official credo of Freedoms Foundation.

THE CREDO, which has been widely publicized, declares that the American way of life is based on "the fundamental belief in God, constitutional government designed to serve the people, and the tenets of the Bill of Rights and other economic rights which protect the dignity and freedom of the individual."

Last year, more than 300 individual awards were presented to Americans in every walk of life and activity, including cartoonists, housewives, labor and industry leaders, ballplayers, writers, high school and college students, and ministers.

Recipients included such persons as ex-President Hoover, the Brooklyn Dodgers' Jackie Robinson, United States Judge Harold Medina, Hearst cartoonist Burris Jenkins Jr., and scores of others from very corner of the American scene.

Unique perhaps among the award winners was a modest Merion, Pa., housewife, Mrs. Ruth Mills, who devised a credo freedom cookie cutter, a mouth-watering recipe to match and an earthy letter about what Freedom meant to her.

Grammar Ain't Good English

What Johnny Couldn't Learn Warn't Worth Larnin' Teachers Discover in Mexican Research

Associated Press News Feature. NEW YORK — The first English grammar was written only in the last few years, a small but growing group of teachers believes.

Before that, little Johnny, who struggled through his lesson and had a hard time of it just thought he was studying grammar. His teachers thought they were teaching grammar.

Now Dr. Charles Carpenter Fries of the University of Michigan, Dr. Aileen Traver Kitchin and Miss Virginia French of Teachers College, Columbia University, say what Johnny really studied was Latin grammar. And even as Latin grammar it wasn't very good.

For more than a century learned savants have been trying to find out what language is. Dr. Kitchin says. They have come up with much new information about how words work and what they do when they do work. In 1943 Drs. Fries and Kitchin decided it was time to put some of the new ideas into the classroom.

Dr. Kitchin and later Miss French went to Mexico and worked with teachers there who were trying to teach English. "English is a word-order language," they said. "We have been trying to teach it with rules based on Latin which is an inflected language."

In English, it makes a big difference whether you say, "That's an awful pretty hat," or "That's a pretty awful hat." In Latin and other inflected languages such a word-order change might not make any difference, because the inflections would carry the meaning either way.

So they built their grammar around word-order "boxes." They made little spaces marked "A," "B," "C," etc. Then they told the student what kind of words go in the boxes — which comes first, which must follow. Instead of tearing sentences to pieces to find out what made them tick, they made up sentences as they went along.

For example, "I," "This boy," "The boys" and "You" are shown as the kind of words going into "A" box, "Am," "Is" or "Are" are listed for the "B" box. "Opening," "Closing," "Writing," etc. are listed for the "C" box.

Then the student knows that "I am opening" is right — not "I opening am." Other lines in the box guide the eye so that he does

First War Casualties Arrive at Great Lakes

GREAT LAKES, ILL. (AP)—The first midwestern battle casualties of the Korean war have been flown to Great Lakes naval training center to recuperate.

Twenty-one wounded soldiers arrived by military ambulance planes last weekend. Army officials said most of the men were from Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

One patient complained that he had not received his army pay on time and that he had no clean clothing to use when he arrived here. An army officer commented: "When they start to gripe, they're feeling fine."

Hurricane Lashes Toward Bahamas

MIAMI, FLA. (AP)—A severe Atlantic hurricane lashed toward the Bahamas Thursday night and put all Florida on the alert.

The storm, with winds up to 140 miles an hour and measuring 350 miles across, is the year's first hurricane. Residents of Nassau, capital of the British colony, batten down in anticipation of the worst blow since 1929.

In Miami, where the hurricane's outer fringes can be expected late today, residents were unexcited.

German Economy Booms As Allied Powers Arm

FRANKFURT (AP)— Allied and German officials reported Saturday Western Germany is reaping a harvest of export orders because of the western world's rearmament programs. It may develop into a full-blown economic boom.

Western Germans expect to profit handsomely from exports of consumer goods while other nations concentrate on arms. They also expect the need for their industry's output, spurred by the eruption in Korea, to wipe out some western allied limitations — particularly on steel production.

Flamand in his thoughtful and provocative "Making our Asian Policy Work" in the Aug. 15 Reporter. Flamand's careful analysis of American foreign policy in the far east, and his well planned alternatives and suggestions deserve the attention of all Americans.

The Monthly Review, an independent Socialist magazine, presents a 14-page article on Korea as their featured review for August. This article clearly and forcefully presents the American Socialist party's views on far eastern affairs.

"Events in Korea and the International Working Class," which appears in Moscow's English language magazine New Times, says, "The American interventionists, who have openly occupied South Korea, present a shameful spectacle, with their marauding and outrages on the peaceful population, vicious reprisals against democratic elements, savage bombings of Korean cities, and willful extermination of civilians."

In the same issue of New Times (No. 29, 1950), there is an interesting series of reports on the Stockholm peace petition, which, according to New Times, is having a response abroad from all of the peaceful citizens of the world.

An article, "The U.S. Tries to Catch Up on Tanks," in the July 31 issue of Life, explains the development of the tank as a military weapon, tank tactics, Russian tanks, and the present status of American armor.

Two articles in the Aug. 11 Foreign Policy Bulletin, "Vacillations Hamner U.S. Policy in Far East" and "Unflagging Use of UN Needed to Win Asian Minds," review recent American policy in Formosa and China and warn "By intervening in Formosa, however, America risks the possibility of having to engage most of its military strength in a Chinese war and depleting forces theoretically available to Europe."

Hemispheric solidarity of the west is stressed in the Export Trade and Shipper's article "Reaction to Korean Crisis Reflects Solidarity of All Americans." "Everywhere," the article says, "there was the same blaze of anger against those guilty of this threat to the United Nations, and the same solidarity in support, the same stern determination to force back the invading forces which menace not only the independence of Korea but the peace of the world."

"One of the great dramas of modern times is grinding to a climax in the windowless, softly padded security council chamber at Lake Success," declares the New Republic (Aug. 14, 1950) in an editorial on the Russian return to the UN. Particularly important is the discussion of the legislative machinery needed to call the general assembly together when the security council fails to act against aggression.

Interpreting the News —

Indo-China—An Easy Conquest

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

With Britain and the United States in a stir over Formosan policy and all sorts of talk and threats about a Communist invasion of the island, people keep asking why I put Indo-China at the head of the possible emergency list.

Well, there are a number of reasons involving both positions which seem valid, although I learned long ago not to get in too deep when trying to figure out any situation in which Russia has a hand.

The Formosan situation, as I get it, is this:

The Chinese Communists are not equipped with modern vessels for an overwater attack. Even without the U.S. seventh fleet which is under orders to stop any invasion, the enemy would have to land in the face of a well-trained and well equipped Nationalist army of several hundred thousand men.

And the seventh fleet is being reinforced rapidly. The Chinese also would have to face airpower from Okinawa as well as Formosa, and what a bunch of radar-equipped planes could do to a big fleet of junks would be terrific.

Those are military angles. More important, I think, is that an attack on Formosa at the present time would be an attack on the United States. Formosa could hardly be worth it to the Communists.

In Indo-China there is an entirely different situation, and one which seems to be coming to a head, whereas Communist attention on Formosa seems to consist mostly of talk.

Important Campaign

The Communists can conduct an important military campaign in Indo-China without becoming directly involved with the United States, which has no troops there and could not send any now.

Such a campaign can be conducted by infiltration and supply, as the Russian satellites conducted their campaign in Greece, and so possibly avoid international war.

In Indo-China the Communists have the same situation they had in China itself, with most of the people preferring Communist rule to their present French puppet regimes.

No important native defense can be improved in Indo-China, beyond what use can be made of native troops who may not be too stable. The Communists would be fighting a popular war.

Handle Situation

It would seem that 200,000 French troops equipped by the United States, as they are being, would be able to handle the situation. But for five years 150,000 of them have not been able to handle even the forces which Ho Chin-Minh could produce without Chinese aid. The best they have been able to do is maintain a stalemate.

Conquest of Indo-China also would give the Communists a spearhead into the whole Malay peninsula and a commanding position in southeast Asia, the importance of which was fully recognized by the Japanese when they began their attempt to conquer that area.

Formosa is just an island, of no strategic value except as against the American defense line in the Pacific, especially the Philippines, in case of a global war, and that is not yet believed to be a part of the Communist book.

From the standpoint of maximum opportunity at minimum risk, Indo-China (with Burma and Tibet on the side) might look very good to the Communists if they seek to create a diversion from the Korean thing.

Four-Day Session Attracts 250 From Mid-west

Indian Tribes End Annual Powwow at Tama

Today marks the climax of the thirty-fifth annual powwow of the Meskwaki Indians on their Sac and Fox reservation near Tama.

Participating in tribal festivities during the four-day powwow were visiting Winnebagos from Wisconsin and Nebraska, Sac and Fox from Oklahoma, Omaha tribesmen from Nebraska, Kickapoos from Kansas and Otoes from Oklahoma.

Today the assembled braves from the various tribes are scheduled to compete for the title of "Men's Champion Dancer."

More than 250 Indians, including the representatives from other tribes, have been participating in daily afternoon and evening performances which a number of Iowa Citizens have attended.

Welcome Visitors

The Indians have welcomed visitors to watch the pageantry, to see the displays of native handicraft, agricultural produce, and to inspect the teepees and wigwags erected on the powwow grounds.

The present site of the powwow is known as the "Old Battleground," where, according to Indian tradition, the Meskwaki were attacked by a band of roving Sioux warriors in 1839.

According to the State Historical society, this plot of ground, nestled in a wooded area on the bank of the Iowa river, was a gift set aside by Jim Poveschick in 1937 as a powwow ground.

The Meskwaki tribe, which is of the Algonquian or Woodland stock, formerly lived on the Atlantic coast and gradually moved westward to Wisconsin. There, during the early fur-trading days, a federation was formed with their kinsmen, the Sac, or Sauk.

The word Meskwaki means "people of the red earth," but the early traders called them Foxes or Reynards.

Surrender Land Rights In 1803 when the Louisiana Purchase was made, the Sauk and Fox lived along the Mississippi river. By a treaty signed in 1842, these Indians agreed to surrender their rights to all land in Iowa by Oct. 11, 1845.

In return, they received additional annuities and land in the present state of Kansas.

Once in Kansas, however, they became homesick for their former hunting grounds and little groups straggled back to Iowa where they received no opposition from the white settlers.

The General Assembly tried to help these Indians by passing a law permitting them to remain in Tama county and urging the U.S. government to pay the annuities stipulated in the treaties.

During the winter of 1856-1857, eight wigwags, housing some eighty natives, were reported along the Iowa and Cedar rivers.

On July 13, 1857, five Indians, representing all of those then in Iowa, secured their first eighty acres of land in Tama county for $1,000.

The deed was made out to Gov. James W. Grimes and his successors in office, to be held in trust for the Indians and their heirs.

Reservations Grow

Grimes had consented to serve as trustee, since the Indians desired that the property belong to the group rather than to individuals.

Gradually additional acres have been purchased until at the present time, the reservation consists of about 3,353 acres. In 1896 the trusteeship over the land was transferred from the governor of THREE VISITING OTOES from Oklahoma, sons of Chief Sugar Brown, paused in their plumed and feathered finery for a brief rest between the strenuous dances at the thirty-fifth annual Meskwaki powwow at Tama. More than 250 Indians, including representatives from other tribes, participated in daily afternoon and evening performances during the week. The four-day powwow comes to an end today when braves from the various tribes will compete for the title of "Men's Champion Dancer." A number of Iowa Citizens have attended the colorful pageantry.

Iowa to the secretary of the interior.

In the years following World War I, the late Billy Jones, a Meskwaki who served overseas with the 88th Iowa division, presented a special dance depicting his experiences in the service.

Designs on Bombers In recent years the eagle dance as performed by Frank and Charles Pushetonequa, grandsons of the last government-recognized chief of the Meskwaki, has been a favorite.

Charles Pushetonequa is considered the tribal artist and during World War II was commissioned to originate designs to be used on bombers of the Fifth bomber command in the South Pacific.

Powwows were not held in 1943 and 1944 due to the war. The 1945 celebration was only a small event to mark the close of World War II.

Today approximately 550 Indians are living on 3,820 acres of land assessed at $157,522. A genuinely democratic government is in operation, a council of managers is elected, and the council has a chief.

The old tribesmen cling to the traditions of the past but the younger generation is interested in keeping abreast of modern times.

Iowans are fortunate that this last vestige of the red man still remains to link them with the colorful story of yesteryears.

Painters Report Loss Of $37 from Billfolds Two painters working at Long-fellow have reported to police the theft of $37 from a locker in the school.

The men, Wallace Davis, Marion, and L.C. McConaughy said the money was taken from their billfolds which they kept in a portable dance floor was spotted.

Morning Glories Cover Street Sign

(Daily Iowan Photo)

BEAUTIFICATION WENT TO TOWN when Mrs. Fred L. Clark and Darrell Atkins designed a plot of petunias in front of the Iowa apartments, 109 S. Linn street, in the business district of Iowa City. Atkins is manager of the apartments and Mr. and Mrs. Clark live in apartment 6. The morning glories in the center were already there when they started, Atkins said. In spite of being beaten down by two hail storms this summer, the morning glories grew so luxuriantly they now cover the street marker. The plot has been entered in the Iowa City Beautification contest sponsored by the Iowa City Woman's club. Entries will be judged the first week in September. Clark is a tailor for Bremers clothing store. Before coming to Iowa City five years ago, Mrs. Clark assisted her husband in their clothing business in Corydon, where she was a member of the Corydon Garden club. Mrs. Clark and Atkins have taken turns caring for the flowers.

Two-Week Safe-Driving Plan Opens This Week

The Iowa safety congress "Drive Right" campaign to save 14 lives on the highways over a two-week period, opens Tuesday over the entire state.

Dr. R.S. Leighton, retiring chairman of the Johnson county chapter, said Saturday the campaign will be based on a safety "saturation program," constantly warning motorists against the pitfalls of thoughtless driving.

Safety "stop-sign" posters go on display in about 100 business establishments in Iowa City. These posters, sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce, will be the first in a 52-week series to promote safety in every phase of community and farm life.

A White Flag

Beginning at noon Tuesday and ending at noon Sept. 5, a white flag will fly over the courthouse, reminding motorists to resist all temptation to drive recklessly during the campaign period.

A black strip will be added to the flag for each traffic death in the county during the campaign; a smaller red strip will be added for each traffic injury.

Highway patrolmen will distribute safety education folders to thousands of motorists, while local garages will issue bumper posters bearing the slogan, "Two Weeks to Live."

A nursery will assist by placing billboard posters at points of entry along the Iowa boundaries to warn in-coming motorists.

Compare Progress

Progress of the drive will be determined by comparison with an average traffic accident record for the past two years in Iowa.

In each of the past two years during the corresponding two-week period, an average of 27 persons have been killed and 795 injured in 1,657 Iowa traffic accidents.

Johnson county's average in this two-week toll is one killed and 12 injured in 27 accidents. The average financial loss due to accidents during the period is $18,192, and the state loss $1,206,942.

Betty Jo Frederick Of Iowa City, Weds Graduate Student

The Methodist church in Iowa City was the scene of the marriage of Betty Jo Frederick, A.S. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Frederick, route 6, to Floyd Freerksen, G. son of Mr. and Mrs. Elso Freerksen, Freeport, Ill., Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Robert S. Sanks performed the double ring service. Gienna Lovig, Villisca, a former SUI student, attended the bride as maid of honor.

James Wheat, Freeport, Ill., served as best man, and Wayne Frederick, brother of the bride, and Robert Ely, Freeport, Ill., were ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Wesley house. The couple left on a short wedding trip.

The bride is a junior in the SUI liberal arts college. Mr. Freerksen, an SUI graduate, majored in art, and is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma, social fraternity.

After the wedding trip, the couple will live in Washington, where Mr. Freerksen will teach in the high school. Mrs. Freerksen will teach in an elementary school in Washington.

Cotton Popular for Fall

COTTON IS VERSATILE in 1950 fall fashions, as shown here in this theater suit. The suit of cotton velveteen, consists of three parts, a straight sheath skirt, decolette bodice, and fitted jacket. The deep horseshoe neckline with rounded revers is an important fashion highlight this year. The matching hat is also of velveteen.

Catherine Mottet, SUI Student, Wed Saturday

Catherine Mottet, A.S. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Mottet, route 7, was married to Willa John Dickens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willa N. Dickens, N. Dodge court, at 8:30 Saturday morning in St. Mary's church in Iowa City.

The Rev. Carl Meinberg performed the double ring service. The bride was attended by her sister, Marilyn Mottet, as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Martha Mottet, A.S. sister of the bride; Etta Jane Dickens, sister of the bridegroom, and Gwendolyn Teefy, all of Iowa City.

Richard Dickens, cousin of the bridegroom, Iowa City, served as best man. Charles Mottet, A.S. brother of the bride; John Teefy, C.S. and John Stockman, all of Iowa City, were ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast from 10 to 11 a.m. was held in the Jefferson hotel.

After a reception from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. held in the Mottet home, the couple left on a trip to Wisconsin for a week.

The bride is a member of Theta Chi chapter of Alpha Iota, honorary business girls sorority.

Mr. Dickens is a graduate of the American Academy of Horology, Denver, Col., and is employed as a watch-maker by Hersell.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Cedar Falls high school and SUI. He is now attending the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Maywood, Ill.

Mrs. Edna Moore, 118 E. Market street, Saturday filed suit for divorce in Johnson county district court.

Mrs. Moore charged her husband, Neil Moore, with cruel and inhuman treatment.

According to the suit, the couple's three children were in the husband's custody, and Mrs. Moore stated she was willing to agree that they remain with him. He was last reported living in Centralia, Ill.

The Moores were married July 2, 1929, and had lived together until July 11, 1949.

Art Houtteman Hurls One-Hitter At Browns, 6-0

Delsing's Hit In 2nd Spoils No-Hit Effort

DETROIT (AP) — Young Art Houtteman of the Detroit Tigers just missed pitching a perfect game Saturday as he blanked the St. Louis Browns, 6-0, on a one-hitter, facing only 27 batters in the process.

Outfielder Jim Delsing spoiled Houtteman's efforts for a no-hitter as he pumped a clean single into right on a one-one pitch in the second inning.

But from then on the Browns could do little as Houtteman notched his 16th victory as against nine losses.

Delsing was thrown out on an attempted steal.

Only two other Brownies got to first, both on walks, but they were erased by a couple of double plays as the Tigers came up with their most brilliant defensive play of the year.

Red Sox Capture Seventh Straight Win, Beat Nats, 5-4

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's Red Sox came through with two ninth inning runs they needed to whip Washington's Senators, 5-4, Saturday and extended their winning streak to seven games.

The string equals their best previous mark of the season.

Catcher Buddy Rosar, who played only the ninth inning, came through with a lusty two — out bases loaded single high off the wall in left center to drive in Vern Stephens with the winning run.

Stephens' line double into the left field corner, his second two bagger of the game, had driven home Johnny Pesky with the tying run.

The Senators opened the scoring with one run in the second, The Sox went ahead in the third when they batted around for three runs.

After picking up a run in the fourth the Senators tied it at 2-3 on Johnny Ostrowski's homer in the seventh and Sam Rice, a former Red Sox player, doubled home the fourth Washington run in the eighth.

Bucs Blast Cubs, 13-8; Kiner Hits No. 35, 36

CHICAGO (AP) — Ralph Kiner blasted his 35th and 36th homers of the season and Clyde McCullough drove in six runs Saturday during a Pittsburgh Pirate slugfest which overwhelmed the Chicago Cubs, 13-8. It was the Bucs' sixth win in their last seven games.

Kiner's homers put him nine games ahead of his pace last year when he led the National league with 54. At the same time he is only one game behind the pace Babe Ruth set en route to his record 60 in 1927.

The Cubs paraded five pitchers — Doyle Lade, Johnny Klippstein, Dutch Leonard, Bob Rush and Johnny Schmitz — to the mound while the Pirates hammered out 14 hits.

The Pirates employed Mel Queen, Dickson and Bill Werle to stem the tide of Cub hits. Werle stopped them after they had been stopped by Roy Smalley, Mickey Owen and Hank Sauer and a double by Andy Pafko.

Cardinals Edge Reds in 9th, 3-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst tripled against the right field wall in the ninth inning Saturday night, driving in the run that broke up a pitcher's duel to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Red's single in the 11th inning Friday night enabled the Redbirds to beat Cincinnati, 2-1.

The deciding marker was scored by Pitcher Al Brazie, who had singled. In gaining his ninth triumph, Brazie allowed six hits and struck out three men.

Ewell Blackwell, on the mound for Cincinnati, gave up eight hits and fanned seven.

Riley Wins Western Golf Title

CHICAGO (AP) — After eight years of trying, persistent Polly Riley of Ft. Worth, Texas, Saturday won her first women's Western Amateur golf title, 4 and 3, over a newcomer, Mae Murray of Rutland, Vt., who lost her earlier tourney skill.

Polly, 23, the meet medalist, jumped into a three-hole lead after the first five greens of the scheduled 36-hole match at sun-spattered Exmoor Country club, and Mae never could get closer than two holes behind.

Miss Murray, who looks more like a high school kid than the 24-year-old she is, in 61 previous competitive holes during her first appearance in this tourney had been only one over par.

Saturday, Mae, the daughter of a Rutland pro, was a staggering 12 over par for the 33 holes played. Polly, on the other hand, methodically ground to a seven-over-par for the distance.

The best Miss Riley ever did previously in the tourney was reach the 1948 finals, losing to Dot Kietly.

Mae still had a chance after 27 holes when she trailed by three holes. But miserable luck with her putter, including four taps from eight to 12 feet which lipped the cup on the last 18, cooked her goose.

Polly won the 28th and 29th to go five up, and Miss Murray made her dying bid on the 31st, sinking an eight — footer for a winning par three. They halved the next two holes with fives, ending the match on the 33rd.

After trailing by three holes in the morning 18, the closest Miss Murray could get was two behind her efficient opponent. That came on the 23rd and 24th holes which Miss Murray won with a par four and birdie three respectively.

Her bird on the 355-yard 24th was produced by an 18-foot putt.

DiMaggio Continues Spree as Yanks Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe DiMaggio continued to bang Philadelphia pitching Saturday as the New York Yankees trimmed the Athletics, 6-2.

DiMaggio hit a double and two singles and drove in two runs. The Yankee Clipper returned to the starting lineup Friday night after a week on the bench and won the game with a ninth inning homer.

The Yanks trailed Hank Wyse for two runs in the first with DiMaggio driving home the second with his two bagger. They picked up two more in the fourth on a pair of singles, error, fielder's choice and double play.

An error and singles by Joe Collins and Billy Johnson led to another run in the eighth. DiMaggio singled home the Yanks' final run in the ninth.

Cooper Ties Heafner at 209

BALTIMORE (AP) — Clayton Heafner held grimly to a share in the lead at the three-quarter pole of the Eastern Open golf tourney Saturday.

Curly-haired Pete Cooper from Ponte Vedra, Fla., steamed into a tie with Heafner who has been in front since the first 18 holes Thursday.

The pudgy North Carolinian struggled mightily to match par 72 Saturday and bring his 54-hole total to 209. Cooper, playing in the same trio, chopped three strokes from par to pull up even.

Pace-setters in the $16,500 tourney on the Mount Pleasant links are bunched for a mad rush to the wire in the final 18 holes today. A hot round by any of several touring pros can grab the $2,600 first money.

The honors for such a round on the third 18 went to Lloyd Mangrum, the former Open National champion from Niles, Ill. He flashed to 67 to bring his total to 210 which tied him for second place with Fred Haas Jr., from Claremont, Calif.

Bunched another stroke back in striking position are Walter Romms, Baltimore, Cary Middleoff, Ormond Beach, Fla., and John Palmer, Badin, N.C.

The course, already a long 6,895 yards, was stretched to the full extent Saturday by pushing back the tees and the pins. Several of the contenders, including Heafner, found it rough going.

The most notable of these was young Jimmy Clark from Huntington Beach, Calif. He soared to a 77, five over par, and a sixth-place 214. He started the round in a first-place tie with Heafner at 137.

Henry Ransom, the Tam O'Shanter "World" titleholder, faltered to 78 and dropped to 8th place at 216, par for the 54 holes. The original field of 125 was cut to 70 with a qualifying score of 153 for pros and 156 for amateurs for the first 36 holes. However, four eligibles failed to start

Merrins Beats Brewer For Junior Golf Crown

AMES, IA. (UP) — Eddie Merrins, Meridan, Miss., won the National Amateur junior golf championship Saturday, defeating Gay Brewer, Lexington, Ky., one-up in 36 holes.

Merrins, who will be a freshman next fall at Louisiana State university, was two-down at the end of the first 18, and built up a three-up lead before staving off Brewer's drive in the last nine.

Brewer, who will be a Lexington high school junior next fall, won the 34th and 35th holes in a final surge, but was unable to eliminate the 3-up advantage Merrins held on the 33rd.

They halved the final hole, and Merrins won the trophy in the National Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored meet.

The second 18 holes of the match were a reversal of the first 18. Brewer won the first hole of the day and led through the first half of the match, carrying a two-up lead of 18. Merrins won the first hole of the afternoon round and then evened the match on the 21st hole. He never again was behind.

The two youngsters played steady golf with few exceptions.

Yanks Topple Cards In Exhibition, 23-10; Banks Plays Briefly

DES MOINES (AP) — The New York Yanks handed their owner, Ted Collins, his first exhibition victory in seven seasons by whipping the Chicago Cards, 23-10, in a football game here Saturday night.

The Yanks' first touchdown was set up on a 63-yard run by Buddy Young, just after New York had scored 2 points on a safety.

Sherm Howard, former Iowa star, punched 3 yards for the touchdown three plays later.

New York tallied again in the same second quarter, with George Talaferro going over from the 3 in the last minute of the first half.

The Cards' first score came on a 17-yard field goal by Ventan Yablonski late in the third period.

Both scored in the final quarter, the Yanks on an 18-yard pass from John Rauch to Lowell Tew and the Cards on a pass good for 20 from Jim Hardy to Don Paul.

Earl Banks, former guard for the University of Iowa, made a brief appearance in the last quarter.

Pennant Fever for Phillies

Philadelphia No Longer 'A's Town' as 'Futile Phillies' Change to 'Fightin' Phillies'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennant fever, that autumn affliction of baseball fans, burned-hot in Philadelphia Saturday with all eyes and ears turned to the progress of the Phillies.

On the streets, in offices and practically everybody's home the National league pennant chase is the No. 1 talk topic.

Everybody admitted it hasn't happened yet, but in the same breath came the question: how do we get World Series tickets?

It's been 35 years since Pat Moran and his gang brought the only pennant the Phils ever won back to old Baker bowl, a 35-year stretch when the club was the doormat of the league and deserved the nickname "futile Phils."

Not any more, though. The club stopped being a doormat shortly after young Bob Carpenter bought control back in 1943.

Today it's a new, young ball club, complete even to peppermint-striped red and white home uniforms and a set of new nicknames, "Whiz Kids" and "Fightin' Phillies."

And they've got the whole town talking.

The sports page is the best-read part of the newspapers, on street corners and in autos, share the play — by — play of daytime games. At night you can walk any city or suburban residential neighborhood and keep track of the score.

Series Ticket Requests
There's greenbacked evidence in the Phillies office as mailmen every day add to the pile of Series ticket requests faster than they can be sent back to the requesters.

"We've already returned 25,000 applications," says Publicity Director Babe Alexander.

"We aren't accepting any applications now, and won't until we get a green light from Commissioner Chandler."

Might Shift Series
Shibe park, which hasn't seen a Series since the Athletics won the American league title in 1931, figures to seat about 33,125 for a World Series. Only about 3,000 seats will be available for game-by-game general admission sale. All the rest will be reserved.

City council looked into the attendance possibility this week, suggesting the Series might be played in Municipal stadium which seats 100,000. There was no official comment, but some mighty big changes would be needed at the stadium to lay out a baseball diamond of major league size. The home parks of the two clubs traditionally are preferred as World Series sites.

Chance Unbelievable
The change that a winning Phillies' club produced among Philadelphia fans is almost unbelievable. For two or three baseball generations the town has been called "an American league city." Often there was talk of moving the National league franchise, leaving the Athletics a clear field.

But last year the Phils were the top drawing card, and this year they figure to attract something like 1,250,000 paying customers-at-home, almost five times as many as the floundering A's who drew only slightly more than 1,000 for each of their last two home games at night.

CR Eagles Top Iowa City In Midget Baseball, 11-1

The Cedar Rapids Eagles defeated Iowa City, 11-1, on the City high diamond Saturday night to win the fifth district's eastern division midget baseball tournament.

The Eagles play the winner of the North English tourney Tuesday for the fifth district championship. The winner of that game will advance into the state midget tournament at Cedar Rapids next week.

The Eagles jumped on Pitcher John Engler for five runs in the third inning to coast in with the triumph.

The line score:
Iowa City . . . 000 010 0-1 1 0 2
Cedar Rapids . . . 005 012 0-11 9 3

Atlantic Coast Residents Alerted for Storm

MIAMI (AP) — Northeast storm winds were hoisted from Morehead City, N.C., to the Virginia capes Saturday as the Atlantic hurricane speeded its forward motion.

An advisory issued at 3:30 p.m. (Iowa time) by the Miami weather bureau predicted that the 140-mile winds whirling in a narrow band around the storm's center would remain at sea off the North Carolina coast.

A navy spokesman at Glenview, Ill., naval air station said the air station at Patuxent, Md., was being partly evacuated as a precaution. Planes were being flown to other naval air bases. Patuxent is about 50 miles southeast of Washington.

Between 40 and 50 bombers, manned by some 200 men, were ordered to Glenview naval air station near Chicago. The storm center is expected to pass a short distance offshore from Cape Hatteras Sunday morning. Coastal residents were advised to take precautions against dangerous gales and high tides.

The storm covers a diameter of 300 miles with heaviest winds in the center and lesser velocities stretching outward. After inching along at a pace of 10 miles an hour or less for a week, the storm has stepped up its pace to about 12 miles an hour.

Wife Hides Auto From Topsy Mate

ATLANTA (AP) — A slightly tipsy man telephoned Captain Jimmy Brown at police headquarters Saturday and reported his car missing.

"What's the license number?" asked the captain. "And the model and make?"

"Well," the gent hiccupped, "it's a late model car and I don't remember the license plate number. I mean I'll have to look for it. I'll call you back."

Minutes later a woman called the captain.

"My husband just phoned you about a stolen car," she said softly.

"Yes ma'am," Brown answered politely, "you have the license number?"

"No," she whispered, "I hid the car and don't want him to find it."

Philippines to Send Troops to Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A regimental combat team from the Philippines, including veterans of Bataan, may be among the first United Nations reinforcements in Korea.

President Truman tacitly accepted the island republic's offer of troops Thursday. In a message thanking President Elpidio Quirino, he said:

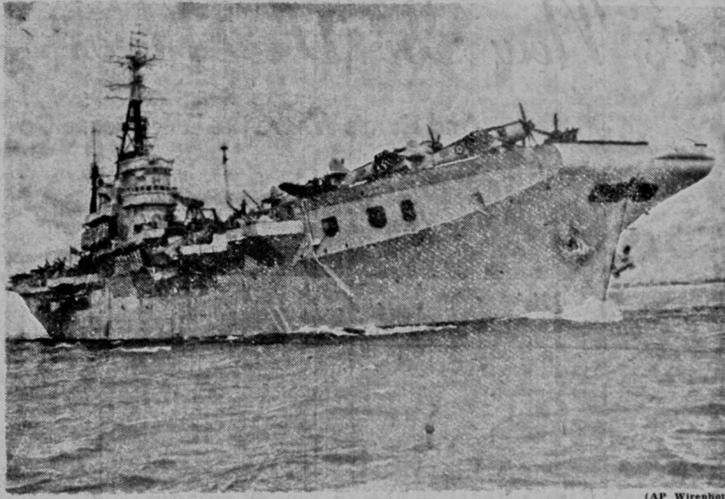

"I am proud that the soldiers of our two nations will, again stand shoulder to shoulder against the forces of aggression."

At the Philippine embassy, a spokesman told a reporter the soldiers will be ready any time their former commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, calls them.

He said the officers already have been chosen and the men will come from the standing Philippine army, including many who fought beside Americans against the Japanese on Bataan during World War II.

Because of American equipment, training and advice, the combat team will be one of the easiest of all the proffered United Nations units to mesh into the American force fighting in Korea.

British Carrier Leaves for Pacific Duty

THE BRITISH AIRCRAFT CARRIER Theseus left Portsmouth, England, Friday on its way to join other British naval forces operating in Korean waters. The Royal Navy disclosed a possible case of sabotage aboard the vessel four days before its departure. Electrical wiring which led to the ship's gyro compass was found slashed. The Theseus carries 40 planes and a crew of 850 men.

Four GIs Battle Red Tanks

On THE TAECU FRONT, (UP) — Four American infantrymen fought a battle with five North Korean tanks Friday night.

Two lieutenants and two enlisted men tangled with the Russian-built T-34's at the forward-most observation post of the American force which is attacking 13 miles north of Taegu.

Maj. Gordon Murch, St. Louis, sent the first word on the battle back to headquarters. His voice was almost casual as he said over the field telephone:

"Five enemy tanks in our positions. No sweat."

That is a widely used expression here to indicate the issue can be met.

"We are holding," Murch added. His confidence was justified. A few yards forward were the two officers and two men battling the tanks.

The brief and victorious Yank battle reduced the number of tanks to three in a few minutes.

The fight started when Lt. Dixie Parker, Green Pond, Ala., Pfc. Frank Schiavone, Mullica Hill, N. J., Pfc. Edgar Taylor, New Cumberland, Pa., and Lt. Derwood Simms were at their posts by a road trying to detect and report enemy movement.

Here is Simms story, told as he was standing beside a blackened Russian tank Saturday morning with the odor of dead Koreans around him and a dirty red beard blackening his face:

"This forward position isn't my job. I just came down the hill to take a look and visit some with Dixie Parker. We were sitting there just after it got dark with the bazooka team (Schiavone and Taylor) when we heard the tanks highballing up the road.

"We phoned it back and waited. We didn't wait long. When we figured the tanks were about 100 yards away, Schiavone whammed one at them. It hit, but good. The tank flared up and we saw it was only 40 yards away and that it wasn't the only tank and that it wasn't the lead tank.

Lead Tank Close

"The lead tank pulled up right beside us. It stopped no more than 10 yards away. Schiavone banged it twice but didn't hurt it. He looked around for more ammo and there wasn't any. We ran back up the hill about 30 yards and Parker started over the mountain for more ammo.

"The Gooks tank wheeled its turret and fired one at us. It hit 10 feet away. We could hear Gook infantry bringing up ammo to the tank. One Gook stood on the back of the tank and was yammering about something.

"I popped at him with my carbine and missed. The tank started slamming a lot of shells down the road and then it began to back out of the fix it was in.

"My carbine wasn't any more good than a slingshot against that tank so we sat there and watched them. Our infantry up the slope poured it into their infantry and the whole bunch started to take off.

"Parker came down the hill with more bazooka ammo and we fired some, but I guess we didn't hurt anything. That's all there was to it."

That wasn't quite all. One of the shells a tank fired down the road cut a GI in half.

King's 'Chorus Girl' Denies Shady Dance

DEAUVILLE, FRANCE (AP) — Samia Gamal, King Farouk's favorite dancing girl, made a face when she was asked if she did a belly dance.

"Oriental dance," she corrected. "Like this."

Her shapely feet wove a delicate pattern, her midriff rolled in a slow rhythm. Her jet-black eyes shot stars and she flashed the whitest teeth in the middle-east.

"Isn't that a belly dance?" "No," she insisted. "It's an Oriental dance."

Samia is 26, auburn-haired and beautiful. She has made 30 films and has danced countless times for Farouk in his palace. She has one of the 25 rooms reserved for the corpulent monarch's party at the luxurious Hotel Du Golf.

Samia is unmarried. She jerks her thumbs down when asked her opinion of men. She says she has one big ambition — to dance in the United States.

She is a seasoned campaigner. When two American beauties tried to catch the King's eye after an all-night gambling session, Samia froze them out of the picture by stepping in front of them. The American girls, both blondes, both lovely, refused to give their names.

Sheriff Puzzled as Fish Flood Town

WAUSAU, WIS. (AP) — Marathon County Sheriff Carl Mueller has his hands full of fish these days — and he'd like to know where the stuff is coming from.

For the fourth time in the past month, county residents have reported finding sizeable amounts of freshly-smoked chubs.

Mrs. Ervin Kufahl, Wausau, said Saturday she found 12 10-lb. boxes of fish neatly stacked on a porch near her home.

Friday, the Bernard Loughrin family, near Elderon, reported finding 140 pounds of chubs, all in 10-lb. boxes, piled along a road.

And Rev. Alfred Schroeder, another Wausau resident, said he came across 12 more boxes in a woods.

'What's New In The News' — In Pictures

Teacher's Pet for Keeps Now

WELL ON HIS WAY to an "A" in romance was Arthur Williams, 18, when he married his teacher, the former Mrs. Jean Lewis Bressette, 30. They were pictured in her home in West Springfield, Mass., where she said she would resign her teaching job to keep house for Arthur. He's a football-hockey star currently open for job bids.

And Here's Where the Wild Geese Go

EVIDENTLY THESE WILD GEESE were sold on Chicago as a vacation stopover, for they swooped right down to the 57th street beach on Lake Michigan and got in with the bathers. Apparently the 73-degree temperature gave the 30 birds nothing to squawk about, for they refused to comment to passersby concerning their destination.

Hostess Uniforms — Now and Then

She Swims, Too

WEBSTER DEFINES health as the quality of being sound in mind and body. Whatever it is, Judges claimed Lynn Moorhead, San Antonio, Tex., had enough of it to rate the title of National Swim for Health Queen of 1950. She competed against other beauties on the basis of figure, personality, photo qualities and even a little swimming.

Off to England by Plane and Ship

BOUND FOR EUROPE BY AIR AND SEA was this twin-transportation combination as the Pan American World Airways Clipper Flying Eagle saluted the Cunard Liner Queen Elizabeth recently in New York Harbor. Both left on trips to England.

Four Sons Leave for War

MRS. NELLA DUSATKO proudly bids good luck for the second time to her sons as they enter service in Huntington Park, Calif. World War II she said good-bye to five, but this time only four are going. The three above are, left to right, Donald, William and Neil. A fourth, George, was just called by the airforce. The fifth Dusatko brother, Emil, will stay home to look after his mother. He served in the Pacific.

Could This Be 'Unfair?'

A QUESTION OF JUDGMENT has arisen in the selection of Margaret Bradford, Windsor, Ont., as "Miss Canada." Four other girls are protesting the choice of Miss Bradford. They claim she was chosen from pictures alone, "which wasn't fair." The judges reportedly are still satisfied, but have expressed a willingness to view the real product.

Coffee Served While You Drive

A SOLUTION FOR SLEEPY DRIVERS was provided when a German motorist installed this coffee container in his car. It is operated from the generator and holds three cups of coffee. It can also warm soup, but doesn't as yet make toast, he said.

Orphan Fawn Takes on Rations

BAMBI RECEIVES SOME PERSONAL attention from two-year-old Susan Brown, of Bethel, Me. Bambi is a two-week-old fawn that was orphaned when its mother was killed by an automobile. Animal loving lovers of the area have agreed to provide the nourishment for the fawn.

Encore?

AIMING FOR a repeat performance, Phoenix, Ariz. chose 17-year-old Kathryn Lunsford to represent the city in the "Miss America" contest to be held in Atlantic City in September. Last year's "Miss Phoenix" Jacquie Mercer, won the national crown.
