Soviet Union Executes Vast Agricultural Revolution

MOSCOW (AP) — Apparently little noticed inside the Soviet Union, the USDA 1959 is in the midst of a conversion of a vast agricultural revolution. Several general plans for supply, irrigation and supply of food and feed, and industrial and trade transformation of all roles of rural land and industry in the Soviet Union. This "Soviet agricultural revolution," many believe, is the start of a series of changes that may well transform all of the major roles of rural areas in the country. Among other things, it is expected that the change to more mechanized farming will make it possible to grow more food and feed for industry, which is the primary source of meat and dairy products. The revolution is also expected to make it easier to produce more food and feed for export.

As Hanoi French Uneasy

HANOI (AP) — The city of Hanoi and its ancient popular lifestyle is not at all uneasy, even as the city is preparing for the 10th anniversary of the revolution. The city is expected to see a large increase in tourism, with many visitors expected to come to see the city's ancient architecture and colorful street life.

For the French, before the change to more mechanized agriculture, the change to increased food production was an advent to a new way of life. For the Vietnamese, the change to increased food production was a way to improve their quality of life. The city is expected to see a large increase in tourism, with many visitors expected to come to see the city's ancient architecture and colorful street life.

HEAVY SNOWS HIT ROCKY MOUNTAINS

BRIDGER - New snow has hit the higher stations of the Rocky Mountains Tuesday night, changing range colors from golden to gray.

Long view at U.S. Highway 9 is a snow covered 12 inches of snow, and the green grass is barely showing through. Rabbit ears and Barbock hares pout, ears up, to watch the snowflakes fall from the sky.

The weather bureau said a cold front has moved in from the north, bringing snow and colder temperatures.

Chlorophyll — Wonder Drug!

Dean Kuever, college of pharmacy.

Chlorophyll is a vital plant life but its medicinal values are questionable. Dean R. K. Kuever, college of pharmacy, said Monday.

A recent article in Capper's Farmer, a nationally-circulated farm magazine, states that chlorophyll, a so-called wonder drug, is being promoted for "an astounding future."

Chlorophyll is the green substance in leaves that takes water from the soil and carbon dioxide from the air. It is known as the oxygen of plants and is, in turn, usually derived from food. Chlorophyll is a living tissue which will not live under pressure. The plant, when cut, ceases to live and becomes inert. Chlorophyll in water is so unstable that it will not live beyond a day or two. . . .

Dean Kuever warns readers not to take all of chlorophyll's claims for granted.

"In the light of present-day knowledge the whole alright of chlorophyll as a life-sustaining quality" is questioned.

"We get so much chlorophyll in very little water and little needs to be done to prevent bad odors and perspiration," he continued.

"The whole story of the success of the chlorophyll is the same as the story of the success of the incoming of the insured hospitalization. There are three kinds of hospitalization that get good results and there are no guarantees. There is a certain amount of insurance that will turn in a million-dollar loss. Whether or not this will happen is impossible to know. But there is at least a chance that the last time a dollar was put in a hospitalization it turned in a dollar to the hospital and the hospital at least at break even. . . .

The king is a mere puppet of the president. People who go into such approaches are likely to be money makers."
