Chinese Ferry Trucks Across Tibetan River

CHINESE REDS set up a temporary ferry service over a mountain stream in Tibet. "While engineers of the Chinese People's Liberation Army are building a bridge across one of the swift rivers of Tibet army trucks are being transported across the stream on rubber rafts" was the caption accompanying this picture distributed by Eastfoto, New York picture agency. Eastfoto said it received the picture with that caption from the China Photo Service in Communist-controlled Peiping.

War Question Goes To UN Assembly While Reds Continue To Advance

13 Nations Ask Red China Halt At 38th Parallel

From the Wire Services
LAKE SUCCESS — Thirteen Middle Eastern and Asian nations appealed Tuesday to Communist China and North Korea to refrain from crossing the 38th parallel in their power drive against UN forces in Korea. The appeal pleaded that time be given for consideration of ways to end the crisis in the Orient.

The appeal was transmitted to Wu Hsiu-Chuan, head of the Communist Chinese delegation now in New York, with a request that he send it at once to his government at Peiping.

The plea was made by the UN delegates of India, Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Pakistan, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen.

U.S. Britain Approve
The United States and Britain endorsed the appeal.

Support for the peace move was voiced after the second round of conferences between President Truman and British Prime Minister Clement Attlee on the Korean crisis.

Minutes after the appeal was announced at Lake Success a state department spokesman said this government does not oppose the move, although it did not know of it in advance.

"We never thought that the Chinese Communists should have come into Korea," he said. "We think they should get out. It is their duty to get out."

Displayed Unity
Attlee's aides said the move was a "very fine one." They noted it was taken by Moslem, Hindu and Christian countries, which are members of the UN.

It was noted that the appeal was drafted and forwarded by countries which are not so-called occidental powers.

Meanwhile, officials said Mr. Truman and Attlee were still supporting formal UN action to investigate the Chinese "intervention" in Korea.

CRUISER ACTIVATED
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 18,000-ton heavy cruiser Los Angeles is being put into fighting trim. In mobilization since 1948, the 675-foot warship has been ordered out of the reserve fleet and into the active duty list.

Near zero temperatures hovered around Iowa City late Tuesday night as bad weather conditions struck throughout the nation.

Snow flurries lasting all Tuesday resulted in snow packed streets here which proved hazardous to drivers.

More than a dozen accidents were reported to Iowa City police Tuesday as cars caterpillared into each other on the slippery streets.

Two deaths were reported in Iowa as a result of accidents. The last report by the highway patrol, however, listed most roads as nearly normal except for sheltered areas and certain stretches in towns.

The arctic air dipped into the Oklahoma Panhandle and Texas and forecasters said it probably will spread as far southeast as Mississippi and Alabama by tonight.

The weather bureau said the snow would end Tuesday night but would be followed by temperatures ranging from 10 to 15 below zero in northwest Iowa to zero to 10 above in the southeast.

Temperatures are expected to remain near zero today, and the bureau said the outlook for the next five days is for temperatures to rise slowly but to average 15 to 20 degrees below normal.

The cold wave is expected to push into Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania tonight and Thursday with snow from two to six inches forecast for these states.

On the west coast, Washington residents were warned of winds from 20 to 30 miles per hour, and gale force winds of 50 miles per hour were reported off British Columbia to the north.

Farther south, the flood danger appeared ended in Nevada, and the only spot in California still threatened was the delta where the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers join. Some 5,000 evacuees have returned to their homes in northern California.

The Ohio river still was threatening Tuesday as rain and melting snow swelled it, making 300 families in East Liverpool, Ohio, take to the second floor of their homes or evacuate.

Meanwhile Red Cross and state highway department workers evacuated 435 persons in the Ohio towns of Empire, Mingo Junction and Brilliant before flood waters surged into homes and stores during the night.

Charles Ross Dies At White House Desk After Press Meeting

By The United Press
WASHINGTON — Charles G. Ross, 65, President Truman's press secretary and life-long friend, collapsed and died at his White House desk Tuesday.

Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, the President's personal physician, said death was caused by a heart attack and came instantly. He said Ross had suffered minor attacks during the past three or four years.

Stricken After Briefing
Ross was stricken a few minutes after briefing nearly 50 reporters on Tuesday's momentous talks between Mr. Truman and British Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Ross was still sitting at his desk, making a recording for a radio network, when the attack occurred.

He had seemed in almost normal health when he talked to reporters a few minutes earlier.

Secretary Summoned Doctor
With Ross at the time of his collapse was his secretary, Miss Myrtle Bergheim, who summoned Graham immediately.

Ross was an old schoolmate of the President and Mrs. Truman, with whom he had grown up in Independence, Mo. He enjoyed an affectionate and intimate relationship with the presidential family. He enjoyed as well the affection of newspapermen in Washington, his native Missouri and throughout the country.

When Mr. Truman became president on the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945, he offered the White House press relations post to Ross, who had spent more than 40 years in newspaper work.

Ethiopia, Italy Establish Diplomatic Relations

LAKE SUCCESS (AP) — Ethiopia and Italy, in a historic reconciliation, agreed Tuesday to establish diplomatic and commercial relations.

The two nations had maintained no relations since Ethiopia was liberated from Italy in World War II. The African nation was invaded and annexed by Mussolini in 1935. The Italians, fighting with tanks, airplanes and other modern weapons, killed thousands of the poorly armed Ethiopian tribesmen.

Some People Can't Tell the Difference —

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two police cars sped to investigate a report that screams were coming from inside the Shubert theater. Four patrolmen burst into the darkened theater.

There, in the center of the stage, facing 2,000 empty seats, was the night watchman, Hector Williams, 67.

Williams, arms stretched upward, was performing Gilbert and Sullivan—all by himself and in a lusty baritone that carried to the street.

The gray-haired, gray-bearded watchman said, "I sing quite a bit at night when the theater is dark."

They are surrounded by overwhelming forces of a determined enemy.

They are burdened with crippled tanks, vehicles and guns.

They are half frozen from bitterly cold winds that sweep in from the frigid plateau.

They are wounded and bleeding from battle.

But they are not defeated, and they are confident that they can and will fight their way out in the best American tradition.

Between them and survival is a narrow, frozen mountain road that leads to safety.

In the snow-covered hills on either side are the enemy—lying in wait for the dash for freedom they know must come.

"We will suffer heavy losses. The enemy greatly outnumber us. They have blown the bridges and blocked the roads. Our vehicles may not get through, but we will make it somehow."

Thus spoke Col. Lewis Puller, the tough little commanding officer of the First marine regiment which now appears so hopelessly trapped here.

Six or seven miles north of here lies the mountain hamlet of Hagaru. It is on the south end of the great Chosin (Changjin) reservoir that spreads over the land like a giant mirror.

And at Hagaru is the same situation — an American force surrounded by overpowering enemy forces.

Less than one week ago marines and soldiers were driving towards Manchuria along both sides of the reservoir.

New Defense Lines Set Up By 8th Army

From the Wire Services
TOKYO (WEDNESDAY) — The U.S. Eighth army, still a fighting force, today awaited the vanguards of a 1-million-man Chinese Communist army from a new defense line in northwest Korea.

It had halted its retreat from Pyongyang toward the 38th parallel. But there was no relief yet for 30,000 U.S. troops trapped in northeast Korea where appearance of Red forces close to the coast increased the peril.

The Communists reoccupied their abandoned capital city of Pyongyang, drove across the Taedong river under a blazing air assault that killed 2,000 of them, and pushed on toward the rear guard defense line the Eighth army had thrown across the main highways about 20 miles south and southeast of the city.

New Lines Secret
Precisely where the Eighth army has set up its new lines was a carefully guarded military secret.

AP Correspondent Don Huth said he saw large United Nations convoys move south of the 38th parallel which is 70 miles south of Pyongyang.

A possible suggestion that it was a defense line in depth came in reports from the field. These told of North Korean guerrillas being driven out of positions along commanding ridges and hills north of the 38th. South Koreans also were reported to have built other defense positions south of the parallel.

In that area, the main roads and railroad are commanded by rough, jutting hills suitable for artillery and other defensive works.

Collins Optimistic
A tempered note of optimism for the northwestern situation was voiced by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U.S. army chief of staff.

"I think the Eighth army is capable of taking care of itself," he said after a flying front line inspection Tuesday.

Asked at a news conference in Seoul whether the atomic bomb would be of worthwhile tactical use in Korea, the chief of staff replied:

"Virtually not, from what I saw yesterday (Tuesday)."

Excess Profits Bill Passed by House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house Tuesday passed an "excess profits" tax estimated to bring in $4.6-billion from corporations in 1951.

The levy was approved and sent to the senate, 378 to 20. There Sen. Walter George (D-Ga.) chairman of the tax-writing finance committee, told reporters that he expects the measure to reach the White House for signature in some form before New Year's.

As approved by the house, the levy would be retroactive to last July 1 — a few days after the U.S. got into the Korean war.

During the first 12 months of its operation it is expected to fall short of raising the full $4-billion asked by President Truman from a tax on "excess" corporate profits. But experts of the house ways and means committee, which framed the measure, estimated it would produce $4.6-billion in calendar 1951 on the basis of increased corporate earnings expected then.

The approved measure provides a 75 percent tax on profits in excess of what it calls normal. It defines normal profits as 85 percent of average profits for the best three years in the four-year period 1946-49. Profits thus defined as normal would be taxable at the present top corporation income levy of 45 percent.

Student Reports Gun Stolen from Parked Car
A .38 caliber revolver was reported stolen Tuesday by Richard Othmer, A4, Keokuk, Iowa City police said.

Othmer said the Smith and Weston military model gun was taken from his car between 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. in the Hillcrest parking lot.

Truman, Attlee Will Ask Action Against China in UN

From the Wire Services
WASHINGTON — President Truman and British Prime Minister Clement Attlee held two meetings Tuesday and diplomatic sources said they agreed to press for action against the Chinese Communists in the United Nations.

The talks concerned "steps to be taken" in Korea under any set of circumstances including, it was reported, the grim possibility that a Dunkerque-type evacuation may eventually be necessary.

No Evacuation Decided
Officials emphasized that no such evacuation has been decided upon.

They said the American and British leaders were canvassing the question of what their course should be in any eventuality.

These sources also said Britain and the United States have not wavered in their resolve to resist the Red invasion. Never for one moment, they said, have the two chiefs of state considered withdrawing from Korea.

Underscoring that, high military leaders insisted that the war situation, although grave, is not hopeless. They voiced belief that Gen. Douglas MacArthur still can halt the Communist thrust and establish a firm defense line.

The statements by the diplomats, however, seemed to indicate that Mr. Truman and Attlee still are hopeful that some diplomatic maneuver in the UN can persuade the Peiping regime to withdraw its troops.

Schedule Meeting Today
The American and British leaders met aboard the Yacht Williamsburg and scheduled another meeting for 10:30 a.m. Iowa time today.

Mr. Truman and Attlee were said to be looking hopefully toward the United Nations steering committee's approval of a U.S. demand that the UN assembly deal immediately with Chinese intervention.

If British and American plans are carried out, this action would be followed by a UN resolution demanding that the Chinese Reds withdraw behind the MacArthur border.

In connection with the military situation, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, said that before the senate foreign relations committee Tuesday he had touched on the possibility of evacuating hard-pressed UN troops from the extreme northeast sector of Korea.

3 Runaway Youths Found, Sent Home
Three teen-age Cedar Rapids youths who ran away from home were picked up by Iowa City police Tuesday afternoon on a complaint by a local business establishment.

Questioning revealed the youths came here Monday on the Crandic and spent the night in the Campus hotel.

Police said the boys first said they were from Keokuk but later said they were from Cedar Rapids. They said they had come here to look for work.

The boys said they had been brought before Cedar Rapids juvenile authorities many times. Local police held them in the city jail until their parents came to take them home at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Winter Returns to SUI Campus

IOWA CITY HAD ITS OWN edition of "Winter Wonderland" Tuesday evening as winter, still 16 days early, checked in to prove it hasn't been bluffing the past few weeks. These snowflakes smiled pretty for the camera as they floated gracefully down to play tag with the huge lighted Christmas tree near the home of SUI President Virgil M. Hancher. The flakes in the foreground were enlarged by bouncing off the reflection of the camera's light.

H-Bomb Plant Creates United States' First DP's of World War III

Editors Note: The writer of the following dispatch was born and reared in one of the four South Carolina towns which have been ordered razed to make way for the first hydrogen bomb explosives plant. In recent years, he has been assigned to the United Press Washington bureau where, by an ironic coincidence, he is one of the correspondents covering atomic energy developments. This week, he has returned to his home to write about his preparations for shutting up shop.

By LOUIS CASSELS

ELLENTON, S. C. (UP)—More than 700 people who live in and around this peaceful little village are learning this week how much heartbreak lies behind those cold official words:

It will be necessary to evacuate the local population. That's what the government men from Washington said last week when they came here to make off 400 square miles of pine forest and cotton farming for the site of the first hydrogen bomb explosives plant.

Boom And Oblivion

The clean, rectangular lines which some high official drew on a map may bring a boom to the nearby cities of Augusta, Ga., and Aiken, S. C., but they passed a death sentence on four little communities which happen to be in the way of the billion-dollar project.

One of them—Ellenton—is my home town. The others, Dunbarton Jackson and Snelling—also are full of old friends. I have been talking to them all day, and they are about the saddest people I've ever met.

A outsider might find it hard to understand why they love these humble little towns so intensely. The railroad runs right through the middle of them. And each block of paved street is a point of civic pride.

Ellenton is the metropolis. It has a population of 732 and a movie theater in a converted grocery store. The others are what Ellenton people refer to as small towns.

You Can't Go Home Again

But when your father, and his father, and his father before him, have lived in the same house and farmed the same land for more than a hundred years, you call that home.

It's bad enough to have to leave home. But it's hell to know that your home is going to be destroyed—wiped from the face of the earth, and surrounded by high barbed wire fences so you can never again seek the creek where you went swimming as a kid, or the vacant lot where you played baseball, or your mother's azalia garden.

That's what really hurts those people who call themselves "the first DP's of World War III."

They are unhappy at the thought of moving to strange places and worried about making a living somewhere else, where it may not be so cheap and easy to live. But the hardest thing to swallow, is the knowledge that they can never come back "home"—even for a visit or a look around.

"It's such a shock you just can't take it all in at once." Storekeeper Cubie Hill told me. "But the more it comes home to us, the worse we feel."

No One Complains

Although the "DP's" feel sorry for themselves and for each other, I have yet to hear a single person raise his voice against the government for bringing it all about. The nearest approach to criticism was a plaintive question asked by almost everyone: "Couldn't they have picked some unhabited place to build this new plant out of all the wide open spaces in this country?"

But even that question is being heard less and less. A story first told by an official of the atomic energy commission, and since endlessly repeated, has reassured those who feared that no one in Washington really cared.

The story is the President Truman looked a long time at the map which officials showed him of the planned site for the project. And then quietly asked:

"Isn't there some way you can spare these little towns?" The atomic officials told Mr. Truman they had surveyed 100 sites, and this was the best from many standpoints. The little towns, they said had to go.

"If the President couldn't save Ellenton, I don't guess there is anything we can do," I heard my father, Mike Cassels telling an elderly Negro man.

"If our country needs this land for national defense, we'll have to make the sacrifice." I know he meant every word of that, and I think he spoke for every one of the DP's.

Survey Recommends Changes In State Board of Education

EDITORS NOTE: This is the second in a series prepared from the "Report of a Survey of the Institutions of Higher Learning in the State of Iowa," better known as the "Strayer Report." The survey was conducted for the State Board of Education by Dr. George D. Strayer, Columbia University, and a committee of experts on American higher education.

The state board of education "must weigh the needs of the three institutions of higher education in relation to the welfare of the state against the resources of the state."

Thus the "Strayer report" by George D. Strayer and a committee of nationally-known authorities in higher education and its administration set forth the major duty of Iowa's governing board after a study of the board and its three institutions of higher learning — the State University of Iowa, Iowa State College, and Iowa State Teachers College.

The committee outlined four ways in which the board of education might better perform its duties.

First, the "Strayer report" recommended that the board extract from the minutes of its meetings since 1909 a set of by-laws and a set of statutes. The by-laws should govern the operation of the board itself, according to the recommendations, and the statutes should concern such matters as could be considered principles of operation governing all three of the major institutions. This should expedite the board's work, the report declared.

Secondly, the report recommended that the board always retain its status as a governing body for the purpose of establishing policy and take great care to distinguish between policy determination and the administration of policy. In this connection, the report cited eight matters which the board should regard as matters to be handled at the policy level, such as the appointment of all major administrative and teaching personnel upon the recommendation of the executives of the institution.

Noting that there is ample protection in the state's auditing and accounting procedures, the report advised that the board should concern itself with business functions at the policy level only. Business functions specifically mentioned as Editing Frivol . . .

TO THE EDITOR: Frivol Editor Leighton's defense of his policies and criticism of past policies have seemed to call for some rebuttal from the victims of his castigation. I was the editor who revived humor in Frivol three years ago after Frivol had suffered a season much like the present one.

It is true that Frivol, like the man and his son who tried to ride their donkey to market, cannot please everyone. Then the problem which the editor must face is which group he will try to please. My own opinion is that the group of people who like to read magazines and newspapers even when their name doesn't appear is the only group to write for. Some people never read Time, Colliers or the New Yorker, can't bear to glance at more than the headlines of papers, and obviously cannot be wooed by a printed page. I suspect these are the readers Leighton is after. He seems to have confused the other crowd with bohemianism, adequate red wine and tattered copies of Gide.

He also seems under the heavy misbelief that a humor magazine consists of nothing but dirty jokes. If he will look back he will find no doubt to his surprise, that each issue contained book, theater, movie and music reviews. At we did a survey of racial discrimination, and even tossed a friendly nod to the beautiful girls on campus and the comic strips. Thus it is possible to be humorous, sociological and intelligent in interests. Leighton makes a plea which every editor has made, but which, in fact, is meaningless: he asks those who can write to submit material. The fact is that an editor only gets what he deserves. He can only get other people to submit material by turning out the kind of magazine they want to be printed in. It is as certain as embalming and bookkeeping that an editor will end the year with exactly the same kind of staff he begins it with.

It is true that the first issue tend to be crudely put together; but the crudities are technical crudities, and the subsequent issues are only more polished editions of the first. An editor can always find a reason for continuing to do that which he likes to do, and constructive criticism and letters to the editor serve only to sharpen his rationale. I adjudge it mad hope to think Frivol will be other than a bigger and better information service release to send home to Mom. You can hardly ask a man who is sold on the fraternity system to play it down, who dislikes humor to crack a joke, who is dazzled by the big Cadillac and the nights at the house to think of college in terms of ideas and culture.

Faulty Reporting . . .

TO THE EDITOR: In regard to your front page article concerning the Young Progressives and their mediation petition, I would like to point out the unfortunately obvious, journalistic chauvinism displayed in your presentation of this news.

(1) As a comparison, your favorable and laudatory reporting concerning General Clay's Freedom Scroll displays a journalistic bias which belongs only on the editorial page.

(2) Two of the opposition statements made concerning the mediation petition were solicited from non-campus individuals, one, a chieftain of the Iowa City chapter of the United World Federalists, the other, an American Legion pedagogue who was not speaking for his group.

(3) No attempt was made to give a democratic cross-section of opinion; hence, a presumptuous insult was perpetrated against the student body by assuming that their thinking should be done for them.

(4) The obvious intent of your article is the destruction of any and all voices of opposition to the present, aggressive, MacArthurian foreign policy which we are now pursuing, by your employment of a rather provincial and clumsy brand of red-baiting.

In summation, a student-controlled and operated newspaper is attempting to destroy a student campaign through obvious discrimination, with the support of the regionalist, myopic, disc-jockey newscasters.

Obviously, the one hundred signatures given the first day the petition was presented, adequately demonstrate that the students have not been intimidated to the degree of your expectations.

Easy Money But —

A recent incident at Clay, N. J., can serve as a lesson and reminder to all Americans. Alfred Dean Slack, described by his friends as "a quiet fellow," "a nice guy" and "a home man" is serving a 15-year prison term for giving war secrets to Russia.

Two men from the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested Slack, then assistant production superintendent of a paint factory, as he reported for work last June 15.

It was an older man, Richard Briggs, whom Slack met while an eager young fellow at Eastman laboratories, and who encouraged the "quiet fellow" and "home man" in his waywardness. Briggs admitted he was collecting information for Russia and suggested that Slack might pick up extra money for spare time work. The "nice guy" listened to the suggestion.

Slack tried to break off relations with Russian agents when the United States went to war. But under the threat of blackmail, the young executive gave a sample of the explosive and a sketch of the manufacturing technique to the agent.

Alfred Slack finished high school at 17, attended Syracuse University and then got a job in the Eastman Kodak laboratories. He spent the war years at Kingsport and Oak Ridge, Tenn., helping develop a new explosive and becoming a department supervisor with access to information about the development of the explosive.

Slack appeared as "normal and average" as an American could be.

This whole story should be a reminder of how easy it is to take the first step in the wrong direction—and how difficult it is to retrace that step, once taken.

By JACK LARSEN

Whatever its weaknesses, the production of "Goodbye, My Fancy" which you can still see at the University theatre is about on par with the majority of productions given there.

Since most potential playgoers are interested in how well they will be entertained, this is assurance that, in that respect, the current play is eminently more satisfying than the two preceding efforts this season.

While the presentations of the Riges and Rice dramas were exceptional enough to give admirers of superior productions in themselves a field day — or rather, night — the presentation of "Goodbye, My Fancy" is a comedown technically.

But there is ample compensation in the amusing dialog and clever business which make the play anything but a dull evening's diversion, for which much of the credit is deservedly directed to Levin Goff's staging.

His staging, however, has this rather surprising flaw: There is not enough of it in crucial scenes where comedy does not occupy the center of attention.

The generally lackluster readings by the leading actors may be attributed partly to their inadequacy in delineating middle-aged persons, but closer direction might have rooted out a few of the weaknesses.

Such a need is never more apparent than in Jacqueline Reese's atrociously mishandled first entrance, or in any of the embraces, all of which give the impression that Congressman Reed has scarlet fever than sex appeal.

Since Miss Reese's is a very attractive, healthy stage presence, surely ardor ought to win over reluctance.

As for the play itself, it is successful when playwright Fay Kanin concentrates on laughter rather than preachments. The same might be said for the actors at the University theatre.

As the wisecracking secretary, Corinne Silberman is emphatically in her element. She appears to be enjoying the role almost as much as the audience, and, by contrast, with the occasional want of energy about her, she captures the show.

The supporting cast with one exception is, in fact, first-rate down the line. The many roles for college girls (which were undoubtedly a contributing factor in the play's selection) are rendered decoratively and buoyantly.

Possible sources for light within the set, either downstage or from the outside, are overlooked; consequently, there is no accounting for the brightness of the room and little difference between night and day with regard to light and shade areas.

This would not always be a reasonable criticism, but in plays where realistic settings are employed, realistic lighting is also to be expected.

It Was Worth It

DURHAM, ONT. (UP) — A small boy tossed a snowball at a locomotive passing through here and the long train of freight cars came to a quick stop.

The boy, startled, fled. The engineer wiped snow from his face, jumped out of the cab and gave successful chase.

The spanking administered and his dignity restored, the engineer climbed back into his cab and resumed his run.

SUI Young Progressive Defends Petition

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Charles Muhlstock, president of SUI's Young Progressives, in answer to charges made against the organization's current petition.

In Friday's edition of The Iowan there appeared an article entitled "SUI Progressives Plan Cease Fire Campaign." This article represents the opinion of four representatives of various organizations to the effect that the petition . . . circulated by the SUI Young Progressives is on the one hand Moscow inspired while on the other utopian and idealistic in its aims.

Let us begin by looking at the first point on our petition. Atty. J. Newman Toomey, Johnson county president of United World Federalists, termed the cease fire order in Korea as "completely unrealistic." But if it is to be avoided what could be more realistic?

Can both sides possibly negotiate while large scale battles are taking place? Didn't Secretary of State Acheson declare in his Wednesday night address that if UN forces were unable to check the advance of Chinese troops it would lead to an open declaration of war?

It is stillly become China and Korea's still remain unrepresented in the UN, although the former has received at least temporary voice in that body, that we cannot guarantee that they will accept the decisions of the UN.

However, we can say this much, that granting China the right to be present during the sessions of the UN now in progress is an important step in the right direction.

An order to cease fire would be binding on both sides and would hardly be based upon American troops laying down their arms while Chinese troops are shooting at them. Nor does this have anything to do with our pulling out of Korea and leaving it for the Communists.

The second point concerning the negotiating of peace is questioned by Alec Mackenzie, state chairman of the Young Republicans, who declares that "We've tried for four or five years to negotiate a peace and found that it's hard to do in a vacuum."

That is at best poor logic. Does it logically follow that because we've been unsuccessful in negotiating in the past that the same fate is in store for us now? Are we to spend our time in bewailing the past or in energetically working for the future?

Point three on our petition, concerning the immediate recognition of China by the UN is probably the least understood and most opposed section of the entire petition. Yet upon it hinges the fate of the petition as a whole.

Atty. J. Newman Toomey states that, "Recognition of Communist China by the UN would be a complete negation of all the moral concepts which we use as a basis of recognition of a foreign power."

Attorney Toomey well knows that recognition in international law is not a political, moral, or in any other way subjective question. The granting of recognition or its denial cannot be based upon anything but the fulfillment of objective standards set up through international law. Thus there are only two questions which we must ask ourselves in relation to recognizing the new People's Republic of China. Is the government of China effectively established within its national territory, and does it represent the will of the people?

The first condition nearly all of us would agree has been adequately achieved, but on the second there is open doubt. In order to prove this point I intend to use the following statement by Mr. Acheson in the white paper, "U.S. Relations with China," issued by the state department on July 30, 1949.

In it he says, "The unfortunate but inescapable fact is that the ominous result of the civil war in China was beyond the control of the government of the U.S."

" . . . It was the product of internal Chinese forces, forces which this country tried to influence but could not. A decision was arrived at China, if only a decision by default."

Finally, let me say that the argument presented by R. Bruce Hughes, state vice-president of the Young Democrats, that, "The petition is clearly a repetition of the Communist party line as presented in the UN," is based upon the kind of irrational, illogical argument which seems to appeal so strongly to the Red-baiters of this country.

In place of a plausible well-thought out argument which appeals to a person's sense of reason, we have this deterioration to name calling and appeal to the emotional.

West to Hold Korea or Try A Dunkerque

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Two very small rays of hope that UN action in Korea will not turn into an utter debacle pierced Tuesday's fog of bad news.

The Chinese Communists are reported to have told negotiators at Lake Success that they would insist on a "full victory" in any Korean settlement, raising the bare possibility that the idea of settlement is not completely dead.

Reports from Seoul discuss possibilities of maintaining an Allied beachhead there, and Gen. Omar Bradley is reported to have said a relatively safe withdrawal was possible if it became apparent the Chinese intended to continue attacks beyond Pongyong and the 38th parallel.

British reports that President Truman and Prime Minister Alee have agreed on a return to Korea even if the present situation resulted in a new Dunkerque were received here with a "wait and see" attitude. The state department merely replied that the conference had not reached the decision stage.

If a beachhead is to be held in Korea pending a buildup sufficient to contest with the newly-reinforced enemy, very little is going to be available for Europe any time soon.

The prime objective of the Western powers now is to avoid becoming tied up with a major Asiatic operation which Europe lies defenseless against Russia. But China apparently intends to limit only one alternative — complete withdrawal.

No Iowa Blackout Seen by Defense

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa probably would have no blackouts in another war, State Civil Defense Director Rodney Q. Selby said Tuesday.

Selby, discussing civil defense preparations at the annual convention of the Iowa Sheriffs' association, said bombing now is done "so much by radar, that day and night make little difference."

He told the sheriffs the state's civil defense organization now is inventorying "civil defense assets" and setting up machinery for their emergency use.

Information is being assembled about transportation facilities, medical personnel and supplies, food stocks, emergency housing, amateur radio operators, utilities and other key defense facilities, Selby said.

'Criticism Mainly Unjust'

Fraternity Officer Says Drinking Not Excessive, Grades Improving, Hazing Outlawed

By DICK CHRISTENSON
Public criticism of college fraternities is mainly unjust and founded only on a local basis, according to L. Jerrold Walls, field secretary of Phi Kappa Sigma, national social fraternity.

Walls, a native of Vancouver, British Columbia, was in Iowa City recently inspecting operations of the local chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma.

He has been with the national headquarters of the fraternity since July, 1948.

Previous to that, he was an undergraduate member of the fraternity chapter at the University of British Columbia at Vancouver.

Fraternity Officer Says Drinking Not Excessive, Grades Improving, Hazing Outlawed

Criticism of "Greek" organizations usually comes from four directions, Walls said. These criticisms include physical hazing of pledges, drinking and "partying," undemocratic practices in the selection of members and poor scholarship records of fraternities.

Walls said he spoke for all fraternities in saying, "Public criticism of fraternity principles and ideals on a national basis usually is not justified. However, in relation to practices of local chapters, such criticism many times does warrant attention," he said.

He said that in the past few years, the National Interfraternity council has realized the nature of hazing and outlawed it. Walls said charges of excess drinking by fraternity men stem from the "togetherness" of men living under the same roof.

He said drinking is characteristic of many young college people. Because fraternity men do their drinking in large groups, they are noticed more than the independent man who might drink just as much, he said.

"As far as fraternal groups being un-democratic," Walls said, "selection of friends is a right inherent in our social structure. This is true not only in fraternities, but also in lodges, women's clubs, and even in families and among individuals."

Walls said one of the main reasons for selective membership was to choose individuals who would be able to live together with a minimum of personal friction.

Most fraternity officials realize fraternity grades have run below average, he said. Walls added that more emphasis is being put on scholarship each year, and progress is being noted in many fraternities at various colleges throughout the nation.

Yanks Pass Night with Reds, Fight at Dawn

NORTHEAST FRONT, KOREA (AP) — If you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

A U.S. marine told Tuesday how he and two companions fell in with attacking Chinese Communists, marched with them through the night and picked them off at dawn. Pfc. Oscar J. Kessler of Petersburg, Va., member of company D of the Seventh marine regiment, was one of the three men.

"We'd been slugging it out with them for four days and nights when we broke contact Sunday evening," the 34-year-old Kessler said. He was one of the marines evacuated Tuesday from the Chosin reservoir area by an airlift operating under fire.

"We were the first ones hit by the Chinks," he said. "What was left of the company was on its own when we decided to rest for the night. I was manning a machinegun when they hit us about one or two in the morning. The fight lasted only an hour, they overran us so fast.

"Somehow I found myself with two riflemen. We saw a squad of Chinks moving across the crest of a hill so we decided to fall in with them. We figured we could kill the 12 or 14 of them if we were spotted.

"Just before dawn when the faintest flicker of light came up the guy in front of me turned around. Before he could open his mouth I put a bullet through his belly. The riflemen shot the guys in front of them and we ran off as fast as we could. The Chinks were so surprised they didn't open fire until we had a good start.

"As we came along a path a machinegun opened on us. I figured it was one of ours so I yelled 'We're marines. This is Pappy of Dog company' — I'm the oldest man in my company so that's what I'm called. I was told to advance along with my rifle over my head. I did. A lieutenant recognized me and let us come in."

Students Brave Bad Roads for Movie—See It Free

Sixteen students from Amana high school drove 20 miles over icy highways Tuesday afternoon to see the film "Fifty Years Before Your Eyes" at the Capitol theater.

Charles Selzer, superintendent of Amana schools, said the students were taking a course in American history and wanted to use the film as supplementary material.

THROUGH ICE AND SNOW. 16 history students from the Amana colonies drove to Iowa City Tuesday to see the documentary film "Fifty Years Before Your Eyes" at the Capitol theater. When Superintendent Charles Selzer's (left), back was turned, the boys splattered the girls with some well-aimed snowballs.

They planned to pay for the movie from a fund they have built up by giving programs and parties at the school.

But when they arrived at the theater, they found they were to be admitted free. Owner Ernie Pannos had left word that anybody who had driven so far under such treacherous conditions deserved to see a free show.

There are no movie theaters in Amana colonies.

Selzer said the trip is part of a larger plan of modernizing the Amana school system by instituting new teaching methods.

There is now wide interest in education among the Amana people, Selzer said. This is in contrast to former years when education was looked upon with disfavor by the religious groups.

Last summer, more than 3,000 man-hours were donated by students and community members to redecorate and repair the high school building.

Selzer got his master's degree at SUI last January. He has taught for 14 years in the Amana schools.

He said there was just one catch to the trip—the students will be tested over all the material presented in the film.

Kidnapped Witness Escapes in Gunfight

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Guards with guns protected a Hennepin county grand jury witness Tuesday after he told police he was kidnapped and shot at by two men.

Myles Johns, 33, said he escaped from his captors after a rough and tumble fight that was climaxed by an exchange of gunfire on a lonely road near Hastings, Minn., Monday night. He is president of a firm that operates radios for the Twin City Rapid Transit company.

Johns was called Tuesday to testify with three others before the grand jury investigating charges that some Minneapolis aldermen had been bribed by members of the transit company.

The company has been under scrutiny by the state warehouse and railroad commission which investigated reports gangster elements had gained control of the firm.

In a sworn statement before the commission, Johns had stated that Fred A. Ossanna, former transit company attorney, had told him to go ahead and install radios on the city's buses and streetcars, because "I've got the situation all greased."

The prosecution sent a group of former Buchenwald inmates to the witness stand to support its charges that she instigated 45 murders and the attempted murder of 136 other persons.

One ex-prisoner testified Mrs. Koch personally lashed him 18 times after accusing him of staring lewdly at her plump figure.

Another told of seeing Mrs. Koch incite her husband to make prisoners crawl in the snow for failing to salute her. Another testified she watched while a prisoner was hung by his hands to a tree and while vicious dogs were set upon Jewish inmates.

Mrs. Koch, 43, stared stiffly out a window. She has firmly denied all the charges.

In telling about the lamp shade, William Schmidt said he once overheard Mrs. Koch and her admitted lover, a camp doctor, talking about some "beautiful tattooing" on the skin of a prisoner. He said they seemed to be referring to a man he knew.

Later, he said, he saw a lampshade of tattooed skin in the Koch home, and he is "almost sure" the skin was that of his prisoner acquaintance.

Karl Wahl, a former inmate, told the court that his job in the camp was to help tan tattooed skin of slain prisoners and shrink their severed heads for curios.

In the head-shrinking operation, Wahl said the brains were removed and the skull filled with hot sand. He said this caused the head to shrink until it was "the size of a pear" and the skin and hair were preserved.

Plan Tavern Limit In Council Bluffs

COUNCIL BLUFFS (AP)—The city council has called for legislation limiting the number of taverns in Council Bluffs, according to population.

This action came simultaneously with a suspension and revocation of beer permits held by firms recently involved in alleged infractions of the law.

At the same meeting Monday night the council revoked the Class B beer permit of the Coconut Grove, a night spot operated by Darrell Anderson; and suspended for 30 days the Class B permit of Irwin Johnson.

Johnson recently was accused of selling beer to minors.

Police raiders allegedly found gambling activities at the Coconut Grove Nov. 16. Both men forfeited their bonds when their cases came up in municipal court.

General Motors Ups Auto Prices

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors announced Tuesday a price increase of "something less than five percent" on its 1951 model passenger cars.

It was the first break in the hold-the-line price policy of the "big three" automakers—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler.

The increases will apply on 1951 models of Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac. All of the cars are scheduled for introduction by January 1.

Price adjustments on individual GM cars will be announced with introduction of the new cars this month and next. New Chevrolets and Pontiacs will be priced this weekend.

Ford Hikes Car Prices

DETROIT (AP)—The Ford Motor company Tuesday night announced an increase in car prices, the second major auto manufacturer to announce such a hike Tuesday.

Earlier, General Motors said its 1951 models would cost more than current models.

As with GM, Ford blamed the increase on increased cost of materials.

Farm Prices Index In Iowa Stays Stable

DES MOINES (AP)—The index of prices received by Iowa farmers remained stable last month at 288 percent of the prewar level, the Iowa crop and livestock reporting service said Tuesday.

The index of prices paid by farmers, however, advanced two points to 287. The ratio of prices received to prices paid, interest and taxes was an even 100.

Falling hog prices led a four-point drop in the livestock portion of the prices-received index, but this decline was offset by rising grain prices. The crop index as a whole advanced 10 points.

The corn-hog ratio dropped 1.4 points to 12.9, lowest since May, 1948.

Coralville Rent Controls Slated to End Dec. 31

Rent controls in Coralville will "die a natural death" Dec. 31 — unless congress renews legislation on the controls at its present "lame duck" session.

Mayor Merritt A. Ewalt said the Coralville city council Monday evening "mentioned rent controls, but didn't do anything about it."

"It is now up to the government," he said, "to take action for us."

The continuation of rent controls, according to legislation passed by the last session of congress, depends upon the initiative of the respective communities. Each city government must take affirmative action on the regulations, or else the controls officially end Dec. 31.

There is one alternative for the councils to take should they wish to not act on the issue themselves. That is by a public referendum — such as done in Iowa City, extending controls to June 30, 1951.

"We feel the same way that University Heights does," Ewalt said, "that there are too few renters in town to make any difference."

"Maybe we should have done something about it," he added, "but I don't think so."

Of the 32 SUI faculty members, students and university employees living in Coralville and contacted by The Daily Iowan only a few had drawn a conclusion on whether or not the controls should be extended there.

All of these persons, however, were either home owners or were paying for their homes.

Hawks Don't Need Criticism —

Most of the people we talked to Tuesday were rather outspoken in their criticism of Iowa's opening basketball game with DePauw Monday night.

Comments ranged from, "I'm glad we didn't play a really good team that night," to "If Iowa's the best team in the Big Ten, I'd hate to see the worst."

We feel that most of this criticism is unjust. It's true that the Hawks didn't slaughter DePauw by a 20 point margin. Neither did they dazzle the fans and their opponents with a lightning fast break or behind the back passes.

Iowa did, however, play hard enough and well enough to win over a team under-rated by almost everyone. DePauw had unusual success with its long shots Monday night. No defense in the world is capable of stopping shots taken from as far out as DePauw was firing.

Another of the many factors influencing Monday's game was that DePauw had already played two games before meeting the Hawks. The experience of two games this early in the season can make a whale of a difference.

Still another point to consider was that Frank Calsbeek, one of the best rebounders in the conference if not the country, was out the entire second half. In the first half, Frank aggravated a charley horse he suffered in practice nearly two weeks ago.

With Calsbeek out of the lineup, much of Iowa's rebounding effectiveness was lost.

ROLLIE WILLIAMS

Against the Hawks, the team was much more relaxed, especially after seeing its long shots connect.

Abbott also said that Don Markle, a reserve guard who hit four straight shots from 40 feet out, was playing his first game.

We're not saying that the Hawks didn't make mistakes — they made plenty of them and will continue to make mistakes the whole season. Any team will.

Iowa's passing wasn't especially sharp and the defense left a little to be desired. What we are saying though is that we didn't think Iowa looked as bad as most people seemed to think.

We feel that these same fans who now are over-critical of the Hawks will be extremely surprised when they see them in the conference opener against Purdue Jan. 6.

This game will be the next one most students will see, unless they stay in Iowa City during Christmas vacation. All of Iowa's games before the holiday recess are played on the road. At home during the vacation period, the Hawks meet three top opponents in Notre Dame (Dec. 18), UCLA (Dec. 23) and Pittsburgh (Dec. 30).

Saturday night Iowa meets Western Michigan at Kalamazoo and the following Monday plays Butler at Indianapolis.

Ott to Oakland

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Little Mel Ott, the greatest home run hitter in National league history, signed Tuesday to manage the Oakland Acorns of the Pacific Coast league, just nine years to the day after he became manager of the New York Giants.

$150,000 FOR BOUDREAU

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Tom Yawkey, the free spending owner of the Boston Red Sox, paid Lou Boudreau, the ousted manager of the Cleveland Indians, $150,000 to sign a two year player contract with his club, it was revealed Tuesday night.

Charles Kayos Barone End Comes In Eleventh Round

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sharpshooting Ezzard Charles unboxed his heavy guns in the 11th round Tuesday night to knock out Nick Barone and thus retain his world heavyweight championship before an estimated 12,000 fans.

The knockout came at 2:17 of the 11th round. It was the first time Barone ever had been knocked off his feet in his professional fighting career.

Up until that time he had taken a fearful punching around. If Charles lost any round it might have been the fourth and that by only the slimmest of margins.

Barone had his best round in the fourth as he began mixing some long punches with his bulling fighting. The fifth was a different story, however. He had Charles trapped in a corner a minute before the finish but the champ came out slugging and had Barone on wobbly legs as they hammered away at long range.

Barone stopped bearing in but Charles rocked him in the sixth with a right to the body. Seconds later Ezzard blew blood from Barone's mouth as he began catching the challenger as he bore in close.

Doing more mauling than punching, Barone took a beating in the ninth as Charles had him wobbly again with perfect sharpshooting. He opened a slight cut on Barone's left eye.

IRISH-USC RENEW PACT

NOTRE DAME, IND. — The signing of a new two-year Notre Dame-University of Southern California football pact was announced Tuesday night by Edward W. Krause, Notre Dame athletic director.

A Couple of Heavyweights?

A PAIR OF RATHER LIGHT boxers weighed in for their heavyweight championship bout Tuesday with Champion Ezzard Charles (left) scaling 185 pounds, six more than his opponent Nick Barone (on scales).

Vic Janowicz Wins Top Player Award

NEW YORK (AP)—Vic Janowicz of Ohio State, 20-year-old all-American halfback from Elyria, Ohio, won the Heisman Memorial trophy Tuesday as the outstanding college football player of 1950.

The stocky Buckeye star will receive the award from the Downtown Athletic club of New York at a banquet Dec. 12.

Janowicz received a total of 633 points, leading the poll in the east, midwest and far west. He was second in the south and third in the southwest.

Kyle Rote of Southern Methodist finished second to Janowicz in total points with 280, followed by Francis (Red) Bagnell of Pennsylvania with 231, Vito Parilli of Kentucky with 214, Bobby Reynolds of Nebraska with 174, Bob Williams of Notre Dame with 159, Leon Heath of Oklahoma with 125 and Dan Foldberg of Army with 103.

CUBS BOLSTER SYSTEM

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The Chicago Cubs announced Tuesday that they had added Greensboro, N. C., of the Class B Carolina league to their farm system.

The Mighty Sooners -- Tops in the Nation

HERE IS THE NATION'S BEST football team for 1950 as chosen by the United Press and Associated Press Sports writers. It's the offensive lineup for the Oklahoma Sooners, winners of 31 straight games, and the team which will meet Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl. Left to right, linemen: Frank Anderson, Dean Smith, Clair Mayes, Harry Moore, Norman McNabb, Jim Weatherall and Kay Keller. Backs: Merrill Green, Claude Arnold, Leon Heath and Billy Vessel.

St. Patrick's Outlasts Late Surge, Wins, 43-37

St. Patrick's High survived a late rally by St. Wenceslaus of Cedar Rapids Monday night to post a 43-37 win here. The Irish had to throw in five points in the final minute of play after losing a 10 point lead in the third quarter.

Dean Kelsey tallied 13 points for the winners with J. J. Connors adding 12. Jim Colbert paced the visitors with eight.

Hawkeyes Drill on Defense For Weekend Doubleheader

Iowa's basketball team, with their opening game chalked up on the victory side, began getting ready Tuesday for their first road game of the season. The Hawks travel to Kalamazoo, Mich., for a Saturday night game with Western Michigan.

Coach Rollie Williams said the Hawks would go to work on defense this week to patch up the holes that let DePauw score 67 points Monday night. Iowa rolled on to win 74-67, but hasty critics of the Hawks began an early broadcast Tuesday that they did not live up to their pre-season rating.

"Naturally there's room for improvement," Williams said Tuesday. "There are a lot of places we've got to fill in. We haven't had much time to work on defense this year and that will get a lot of attention this week."

"It was a good opening game for Iowa and the next few non-conference games should tell a lot. I'm glad we have a tough early season schedule. It's just what the boys need to get them in shape for the Big Ten season."

Tuesday the Hawks were placed ninth in the first weekly poll of the United Press board of coaches. City College of New York was first and was followed by Kentucky, Bradley, North Carolina State, Kansas, St. John's, Oklahoma A & M and Long Island before Iowa. UCLA rated tenth.

Many fans questioned the Iowa defense and called it leaky after Monday's game. But DePauw guards Russ Freeland and Don Markle gave fine examples of the visitors' point-getting ability. Each hit four long set shots, all of Markle's coming within two minutes. Few coaches have figured out a defense against that kind of shooting.

Iowa will leave by train Friday for Chicago and will go to Kalamazoo Saturday morning. After that game they will return to Chicago and then leave for Indianapolis on Monday where they will meet Butler university Monday night.

Darling Honored

Chuck Darling, scoring spearhead in Iowa's opening game of the year, was named Tuesday as "athlete of the week."

The 6-foot, 8-inch center hit 11 of 27 attempts and added two free throws for 24 points against DePauw.

He showed great improvement in his rebounding and floor game continuing from a strong finish at the end of last season.

Hancher Rebukes U.S. View of Foreigners

What Americans needs is a change in attitude toward foreign nations, foreign peoples and foreign affairs, SUI President Virgil M. Hancher said in a magazine article published this month.

Appearing in the news bulletin of the Institute of International Education, the article said that in America's desire to correct the deficiencies in its program for leadership in international affairs, it has turned to the schools for the establishment of courses on Asian and Middle-Eastern affairs.

"We have also embarked on studies in the philosophies and religions of remote peoples and we have established regional programs based on the area and language studies evolved during World War II," Hancher said.

"All these things are hopeful and they deserve encouragement, but they are beyond the reach of many institutions and are in themselves inadequate.

"We need to understand that foreign peoples do not desire to become Americans or even to resemble us.

"It is implicit, in the GI's impatience with foreigners because they do not possess the equivalent of corner drug stores.

"It is the source of tactless comments by American soldiers and tourists which caused America's to be so unwelcome in some of the countries of Europe and North

Democrats Refuse To Ask Republicans For Advice: Taft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), accused President Truman and his diplomatic advisers Tuesday of failing to consult Republicans or give the public enough facts about the far eastern crisis.

He made the statement after a meeting of the senate Republican policy committee, which he heads, during which members discussed in general terms some of the grave problems presented by the Chinese Communist thrust into Korea.

The discussion included reports by three senate Republicans who attended White House and state department briefing sessions over the weekend.

Taft drew a sharp distinction between giving the Republicans a factual report on the problems and asking for their advice on the steps to be taken.

He said the Republicans invited to the briefing sessions during the past few days were "simply called to be brought up to date on the facts."

"The Republican party is not being consulted at all," he added. While Taft is chairman of the senate GOP policy committee and one of the party's strongest leaders in the senate, he was not among those called in for the actual briefings.

Senators who attended the weekend meetings, Democrats and Republicans, expressed satisfaction with the "frank" and "non-partisan" manner in which the sessions were conducted.

Runners-up to Luce were Dr. Jim Camp, Pecos, Tex., and Dr. John W. Strange, Logansport, Ind.

A thin, white-haired gentleman, Luce was described to the AMA by one of his patients as "not a synthetic general practitioner, but the real McCoy—the very epitome of the old-time physician—soft-spoken, kind, wise and vigorous."

AMA Names Massachusetts Man Year's Doctor

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Sherwood Luce, son of a once-shipped wrecked yankee skipper, Tuesday was named "family doctor of the year" by the American Medical association for his 45 years of treating the sick in Canton, Mass.

The 74-year-old general practitioner was named "outstanding doctor" by 5,000 delegates to the fourth clinical session of the AMA here. Luce, who is still "on the job" in Canton, said: "I feel very humble about this whole thing. There are many men just as worthy of the honor as I am."

The AMA, after sifting hundreds of nominations, selected Luce from three finalists as the man to succeed Dr. Andy Hall, 85, Mt. Vernon, Ill., "family doctor of 1949."

Luce said he had no idea his name was up for consideration. The Massachusetts Medical society, which named him state family doctor, submitted his name to the AMA.

Former Sgt. Bill Heevner, 54, convicted of murder, served in the Rainbow division under Warden Percy Lainson. Lainson was Heevner's company commander.

The prison magazine, the Presidio, said, however, that except for Lainson all of Heevner's 42nd division buddies have forgotten him.

"It seems odd that none of Bill's former buddies remembered him when they sat down to some of those 27 Christmas dinners Bill missed," the Presidio said.

Heevner will be eating his 28th Christmas dinner behind bars this month. The magazine said he has a "perfect" prison record and "talks more" about his former division than any other subject.

104 Take State Tests For 3 Professions

DES MOINES (AP)—Three state examining boards gave tests at the statehouse Tuesday for 104 candidates for state licenses. The exams covered the practice of medicine, cosmetology and engineering.

Today there will be 45 more candidates for preliminary engineering certificates. The cosmetology class continues today. The medical group finished Tuesday.

There were 12 candidates for licenses to practice medicine, 62 for cosmetology licenses and 30 for engineering licenses.

Included in the cosmetology class were two persons from Latvia and one from Denmark. They had interpreters to help them with understanding the questions. There also were three men in the cosmetology class.

Firemen said the fire started when the radiator hose broke and threw anti-freeze on the hot motor. They reported extensive damage to the wiring, radiator hose and hood.

At 8:40 a.m., they were called to the 100 block of South Riverside drive, where the entire load of a state-owned rubbish truck was on fire. Firemen said damage was confined to scorched paint on the truck.

Firemen Put Out Auto, Truck Fires

Iowa City firemen were called twice Tuesday to extinguish fires in vehicles.

At 8 a.m. they extinguished a fire in a 1937 Ford in the 100 block of Grand avenue. The car is owned by Robert Reynolds, route 6, Iowa City.

Firemen said the fire started when the radiator hose broke and threw anti-freeze on the hot motor. They reported extensive damage to the wiring, radiator hose and hood.

Lifer Remembered By Old Commander

FORT MADISON (AP)—A life term prisoner at Fort Madison penitentiary won't be forgotten on Christmas day by one of his World War I buddies, the prison inmates' magazine said Tuesday.

Former Sgt. Bill Heevner, 54, convicted of murder, served in the Rainbow division under Warden Percy Lainson. Lainson was Heevner's company commander.

The prison magazine, the Presidio, said, however, that except for Lainson all of Heevner's 42nd division buddies have forgotten him.

Houser Promoted To Colonel's Rank

Lieut. Col. Ralph L. Houser, an SUI graduate, has been promoted to the rank of colonel in the U.S. marine corps, according to an announcement Tuesday from marine headquarters.

Houser, son of Prof. and Mrs. Gilbert Houser, 430 Iowa avenue is now serving as commanding officer of Naval Retraining command in Norfolk, Va.

Upon his graduation in 1935, Houser received a commission as a second lieutenant in the marines. Since that time he has been awarded the navy cross, purple heart with a bronze star, and the Presidential unit citation.

Prof. Houser teaches in the SUI zoology department.

Iowa Fish Shipments Confiscated in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP)—A shipment of 1,500 pounds of fish from Iowa has been confiscated by the Illinois conservation department because the fish are too small, it was announced Tuesday.

The fish, which were confiscated Monday, had been shipped to the Fulton Street market by John Putnam and Putnam and Steimes, commercial fishermen of Bellevue, Iowa.

The fish were sheepsheads, a river fish also known as white perch. They were too small to conform to Illinois law, which forbids shipment or possession of sheepsheads smaller than 10 inches in length.

The shipment was distributed to charities.

Gunmen Caught After $10,000 Memphis Holdup

MEMPHIS, TENN. (AP)—Six Chicago gunmen who fleeced well-heeled patrons of a swanky gambling joint during a five-hour hold-up Monday night were captured with $10,000 in loot early Tuesday at another nightclub.

The Tennessee highway patrol was waiting for the bandits when they drove up behind the Colony club one mile north of Shelby, Tennessee.

It Looked Like Four Million Miles Then, But —

IT'S NOT AS FAR as it seems from editor of The Daily Iowan to editor of Parade magazine, a Sunday newspaper supplement with 5.5-million readers. Jesse Gorkin, an editor of The Daily Iowan in 1936 became editor of Parade only 11 years after he left SUI. Gorkin (second from right) stopped in Iowa City Tuesday to compare notes with Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the school of journalism (left), Publisher Fred Pownall of The Daily Iowan (second from left), and Prof. E. F. Mason (right), head of the journalism photography sequence.

Parade Editor, SUI Alumnus, Visits Here

There is a great similarity between editing a student publication and a big-time magazine — principally because both entail a lot of responsibility.

That is the opinion of a man who should know — Jesse Gorkin, the 1936 editor of The Daily Iowan, and present editor of Parade magazine.

Gorkin was in Iowa City Tuesday to visit SUI, a stop-off on his trip around the United States inspecting 33 newspapers that subscribe to the Sunday pictorial supplement with a 55 million circulation.

Gorkin became head of the pictorial section of Overseas Publications in 1944, and managing editor of Parade in 1947.

The training a person receives working on a student newspaper, Gorkin said, is the greatest asset he may have in obtaining a position after leaving college.

Gorkin said he will be in Rochester, N.Y., later this week to judge a picture contest for Graphic, Inc.

The vice-president of Graphic, and the man who invited Gorkin to be the judge, is Howard A. Schumacher, a former editor of Frivol and a 1931 graduate of SUI.

Gorkin said he didn't know until Tuesday that Schumacher was an SUI alumnus.

Suspected Burglar Of Laurens Bank Arrested by FBI

CHICAGO — Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said Pasquale Delcastro, 32, Omaha, was arrested Tuesday on charges of participating in a $38,246 burglary of the Laurens State bank on Nov. 3.

Delcastro was arrested as he left St. Anne's hospital on the northwest side early Tuesday, after visiting an uncle who had become ill with a heart ailment.

Delcastro was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of bank burglary. The charge came into federal courts because the Laurens bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Bond was set at $20,000, and hearings set for Dec. 12 on removal to Sioux City.

Two men reportedly took part in the Laurens robbery, in which about 100 safety deposit boxes were broken into. The loot included $25,740 in travelers' checks, and apparently these helped lead to Delcastro's arrest.

Although the FBI was reticent on details of the hunt for Delcastro, it was learned that the FBI traced some of the travelers' checks to him after the arrest of three men in St. Louis Nov. 20 and one in Tyler, Texas, Dec. 2, on charges of possessing some of the stolen checks.

Judith Coplon Gets Retrial On Spy Charge

NEW YORK — The U.S. court of appeals Tuesday reversed Judith Coplon's espionage conviction and ordered a new trial, but said it is "plain" she is guilty.

The 3-man court unanimously held the lower court's decision invalid because the dark-eyed former government girl was arrested without a warrant.

Miss Coplon, 29, was convicted with Russian engineer Valentin Gubitchev on espionage charges and sentenced to 15 years in jail.

Judge Learned Hand, who wrote the court's opinion, said "the conviction must be reversed, but we will not dismiss the indictment, for the guilt is plain."

The decision was concurred in by Judges Thomas W. Swan and Jerome N. Frank.

"We have no alternative but to hold that the arrest is invalid. . . ."

The court held that the papers taken from Miss Coplon's pocketbook at the time of her arrest should not have been used against her because her arrest was illegal.

The judges agreed that the FBI's powers of arrest without warrant and the use of evidence obtained by wiretapping should be broadened.

Miss Coplon's attorneys had contended in their appeal that she had an unfair trial because her conviction was based on illegally-obtained wire tap evidence.

There was no immediate indication when Miss Coplon would go on trial here a second time.

The appeal of her Washington conviction, where she was sentenced to 40 months to 10 years in jail on charges of stealing secret government papers for delivery to Russia, was argued last week. No decision yet has been handed down.

Miss Coplon was convicted in New York last March 7. She has been free on bail since that time and on May 28 married Albert H. Socolov, 30, one of her attorneys.

Says Cities Need Help for Shelters

WASHINGTON — Mayor Delesseps S. Morrison of New Orleans proposed Tuesday that the government help key U.S. cities build underground air raid shelter-parking garages as a safeguard against atomic attack.

The combination projects, to be financed by reconstruction finance corporation loans, would be located in congested urban centers most likely to be A-bomb targets.

Morrison said the idea is to equip them as "temporary city halls" in case of attack.

"What we need," he said, "is federal financing to help build garages to beat traffic congestion and also serve as air raid shelters and control centers."

Each of the teams will include a public health doctor, a sanitary engineer and a public welfare officer.

Children's Fund Gives Half Almost half of the grant is from the American Junior Red Cross National Children's fund and is being used to buy clothing for destitute Korean children.

An American Red Cross advisory group of three is already in Korea assisting the reorganization of the Korean Red Cross.

Ad Men Propose 'Survival Jackets'

CHICAGO — Two advertising men came up Tuesday with the idea that all men, women and children in metropolitan areas should be equipped with "atomic survival jackets."

The jackets would not protect against atomic radiation but would be used to carry medical and other supplies for use in an A-bomb attack.

Michael Shore and Ben Reyes said they whirped up plans for such a jacket with the help of U.S. Public Health officials and doctors and were offering them "free."

Gerald N. Hoisington, Floyd; Walter F. Johnson, Chillicothe; Evan L. Jones, Des Moines; Alvin M. Maurer, Le Mars; Ronald A. Mav, West Palm Beach, Florida.

Watch for Germs During Vacation

Be on the lookout during Christmas vacation for those invisible bugbears — namely, chicken pox, whooping cough, mumps and measles germs.

Right after Christmas vacation, according to Dr. Chester I. Miller, director of student health, students start reporting to University hospitals with these contagious diseases.

They pick them up at home, he said.

Records at the city clerk's office show that seven cases of chicken pox have been reported since Nov. 1, four of them from SUI housing areas.

But these cases so far, Miller said, have been among children of SUI students — not among students themselves.

Good Background — Male Nurses Happy Here

The innovation of men enrolled in the SUI college of nursing seems to be wearing off, Richard Fontaine, N2, Marion, said Tuesday.

Fontaine said that the girls in his classes are becoming more accustomed to the idea that men too can be nurses. "The girls, I think, like the idea because it is unusual and different," he said.

"I like it too," he added, "it's kind of handy to know all these girls."

Fontaine, David Rose of Marion, and Wayne Henry of Iowa Falls compose the trio of male nursing students enrolled at SUI.

Henry is enrolled in the three-year program and is still undecided on his area of specialization, while the two from Marion are enrolled in the two-year program for hospital administration.

The men are well aware of their minority, but cannot recall any unusual experiences or embarrassing situations.

They are enrolled in the same courses as the women and perform the same duties. They have four classes with the women, physiology for nurses, foundation in nursing, anatomy for nurses, and elementary nutrition.

Fontaine, in encouraging other men to enroll in nursing colleges, said, "It prepares one for all types of public health work, hospital administration, and for medical administration with the armed forces."

Background for psychiatric administration and anesthesiology is offered in the work, Henry said, but he would not say whether he plans to specialize in those areas.
