The Students' Dilemma —

Editor's Note: The following editorial is from the Pacific View Panther, monthly newspaper of Prairie View A. & M. college, a Negro institution in Hempstead, Texas.

Today's student moves freely in a society where the horrors of slavery, the uncertainty, fear and many other evils endured by his race are over. That that day is past leaves no doubt in the minds of men. But, this situation that has arisen proposes two vital questions to the college student.

First, you will, as a Negro citizen of tomorrow lead in the field of race relations by putting your best foot forward, and actually making a courageous effort, or will you be content to back in the achievements of Tubman, Washington, Douglass, Carver, Bethune, Bunche, Sweatt and others?

This challenge presents itself to the young Negro and especially to those who have had educational opportunities. Therefore, while within an institution of higher learning it is our sole responsibility to utilize every opportunity to make good. Prophets of old have well advised that "we learn to do by doing" and "man never gets to old to learn." For these reasons, we must start today with an immediate concern. We must cultivate within us a vital determination for a better Prairie View. We must be cognizant of and strive to benefit from the powers of our first Student Welfare committee, that tomorrow we may bravely and efficiently accept our challenge.

But on our campus and likewise in any community that we might live, we are confronted with one tremendous task. If we are too radical within our environment we risk the danger of losing all of our hard won gains. If we meekly accept the injustice that is placed on our shoulders, we are less than an educated individual.

UN Retreat Destroys Korea

By CHARLES MOORE TOKYO — The most helpless victims of the war in Korea have been the Korean people themselves and a major question today is: how much longer can they take it?

Destruction, bloodshed and hunger, insufficient clothing and children without a home — these are the things the Korean thinks about as the war between the Communists and the United Nations forces washes back and forth across his peninsula.

Thousands of Koreans have lost their jobs because of destruction of factories. Families with children often have become hungry wanderers in the cold desolation of war's aftermath.

The lot of these helpless victims must be considered by the world's councils along with military decisions, and one hard fact that must be faced is that most of the destruction was done by the Americans.

It was done by military necessity but still it was done by the Americans — and that is a powerful piece of propaganda for the Communists.

The Communists can claim — and with considerable truth — that they have not wrecked the cities and towns of Korea.

Retreating or advancing, UN forces have found it necessary to bomb and shell and burn and blow up many of North Korea's towns and practically all of her industry.

The Chinese, by the very nature of their tactics, have avoided destructive assault on cities or towns. They have forced UN forces to pull out and usually in pulling out, they have destroyed whatever was left that might prove of value to the enemy.

Then too, the Chinese and North Koreans use towns and villages for shelter. Our planes and ground forces must bomb and shell to force them out. Mistakes are inevitable and innocent people get hurt.

The Chinese, overlooking the fact they had no business in Korea, can blame UN troops for the destruction.

If UN forces eventually drive north again, they will not find it easy to convince Koreans, especially the North Koreans, that they come as friends and that it will pay to cooperate with them again.

U.S. Withdrawal from Korea Depends On Future Display of Communist Power

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—The final decision on whether and when to withdraw from Korea has yet to be made. It apparently will depend on the power shown by Chinese and Korean Communist forces in one or more battles yet to be fought.

Informed officials said Wednesday that the basic policy laid down by President Truman early last month still stands: There will be no "voluntary withdrawal" from the Korean peninsula; American and cooperating United Nations forces will fight on there as long as possible.

Attention was focused on this policy anew Wednesday by a Chicago Daily News report from Tokyo that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had recommended to Washington a prompt withdrawal. The report was denied by both MacArthur's headquarters and the defense department here.

The denials, like Mr. Truman's earlier policy declaration, left key questions unanswered — what is meant by a "voluntary withdrawal"? Who will decide when and whether the "voluntary" stage has been passed? Why try to hold on in Korea in view of the size of the Chinese Communist forces?

The answer to the first question, according to authoritative informants, is that a voluntary withdrawal would mean giving up the fight and getting out of Korea before the pressure of the Communist forces makes that action unavoidable.

It is understood that some military men here have argued that might be the best course; in the policy councils of the government they have asserted that it would minimize losses to American and Allied forces.

It would permit concentrating strength in Japan, Western Europe, Indo-China and other potentially threatened areas, perhaps including Formosa.

The alternative to cutting losses and getting out now obviously is to hold a large beachhead around the southern port city of Pusan as long as possible.

When and if a decision to leave is made it is understood that it will be taken by the joint chiefs of staff under the President's approval, acting on a recommendation from Gen. Douglas MacArthur. That suggests that the answer to this still open question depends on actual fighting developments.

The question which has yet to get a public, official answer is, why make a stand at all? What is to be gained by holding a beachhead?

According to the best available information the present American policy is based on these main considerations:

1. American and other UN forces went into Korea last summer to repel an aggressor; if they cannot succeed in this primary objective, they can at least make the cost of aggression very high. Mr. Truman has said repeatedly that he regards Korea as a symbol of the much wider struggle against Communist aggression.

2. Any appearance of running away from the fight, even in the face of Communist China's vast numerical superiority, would greatly weaken the faith of threatened peoples everywhere in the determination of the UN and the U.S. to stand by them.

3. It is not at all certain that a total Chinese and Korean Communist victory in Korea is inevitable. If the Chinese suffer heavy and prolonged losses there is some belief here that they might eventually back down as the Russians, for example, did when they were confronted with determined Allied opposition in their efforts to take over Western Berlin a year ago.

Chiang's Troops Still Available to Fight Against Red China

By ARTHUR M. GOUL TAIPEI, FORMOSA — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's offer to send Chinese Nationalist troops to Korea — or to any other part of the world — to fight the Communists still holds good, it was said authoritatively Wednesday.

Chiang also is increasingly eager to attack the Chinese Communists on the mainland in the confident belief that if he does so the Chinese people themselves will rise against the Reds, it was said.

A spokesman for Chiang said that he did not ask that any American or other UN troops be used in China — he asks only American aid in arms and movement of troops and supplies to the mainland.

(Reports persist in Hong Kong that the Nationalists are ready to send troops to French Indo-China to fight against the Vietminh rebels there. A Hong Kong dispatch received in New York Wednesday quoted Formosa reports as saying that an agreement actually had been reached by which the French would use 30,000 Nationalist troops now interned in Indo-China after fleeing across the border when the Reds overran southern China.)

Outlining Chiang's views, government spokesman Shen Chang-huan said:

"President Chiang's offer of troops at the call of the UN still stands. He has said many times that we do not need American combat troops. We will do the fighting ourselves. What we need is only logistical (transport of troops and supplies) support. That would be a small cost compared to having American young men slaughtered mercilessly in a strange foreign land. It is the best way to save American lives."

Shen said it was wrong to assume that the Reds had the support of China's 475-million people.

"Our entire nation except for the small fraction of Communists is traditionally friendly toward Americans. A Nationalist landing on the mainland would unroll the door behind which they are forced to conceal their feelings as to the side they really choose. They must be given this chance to choose sides."

Russia Says Allies Avoiding Conference

MOSCOW — Using the pages of the semi-official Literary Gazette, Russia Wednesday accused the three Western powers — the United States, Britain and France — of not really wanting another Big Four conference.

The publication declared the West was trying to avoid four power talks which might prevent the carrying out of their aggressive plans — and was proceeding hastily to build a regular German army.

'Little War Policy'

PReviews... and Postscripts

By JACK LARSEN The Fine Art of Drumbeating Silenced —

With "Trio" having opened in New York City to the same critical huzzas which greeted its predecessor, "Quartet," the workings of well-planned publicity have again shown their potency insofar as the never-absent factor of box-office success is concerned.

"Trio's" forerunner had two advantages: it was a comparatively new genre, that of the feature film consisting of a number of short stories; and the creator of these stories was S. Somerset Maugham, a man of considerable repute.

The dish was surely an intriguing one, and reviews already point to the likelihood of duplicated success for "Trio."

During the spring of 1949, when "Quartet" was kicking up the dust of critical acclaim, all but secured in that cloud of congratulation was another film, also British, also containing four short plots, and also offering a varied entertainment with the highest technical excellence.

The title of this film was "Easy Money." It was shown here last year in support of a more publicized film. That many know of its existence, save those who saw it, is doubtful.

Yet from the physical aspects of production — art direction, photography, sound — "Easy Money" was surely "Quartet's" equal. Its acting, too, was every bit as convincing.

And in the matter of its direction, it displayed a degree of imagination surpassing the other movie. The same care — if not more of it — was lavished on "Easy Money" as was lavished on "Quartet" — except in the matter of publicity.

Consequently it opened in New York without fanfare, and these critics who bothered to review it, expecting little, in general saw little. "Easy Money" just didn't have a "hot gimmick" or two.

Each of its sequences dealt with individuals who had won in a kind of lottery, thus providing a slim but logical unitary thread which was all to the good. Each of the stories was told with good humor and the delectable bits of business one is accustomed to seeing only in the best stage plays.

Each of the stories was related with great economy, and all of them unredeed with a contagious good-naturedness and a healthy measure of genuine hilarity.

If the movie satirized anything, that satire was incidental to the telling of each of the stories. At no point did the film lapse into the sentimentality which weakened two of Mr. Maugham's vignettes.

If "Easy Money" had a weak

Interpreting the News — Big 4 Talks Will Bring No Russian Concessions

By J. M. ROBERTS JR. AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Western powers are reported about to send a new note to Russia, pegging the whole prospect for a new four-power conference on the Kremlin's willingness to discuss the entire East-West conflict in broad panorama rather than confine the agenda to Germany alone as the Soviet suggested.

Pravda, the Kremlin's newspaper mouthpiece, has labelled this attitude, coupled with the general American feeling that nothing can come out of the talks, as an attempt to avoid a conference and to sabotage talks on Germany.

It seems more likely, however, that the United States, under pressure from its European partners and following its own long-standing policy of always keeping the door open for negotiations, is resigned to another ride on the conference merry-go-round.

The British empire nations have just agreed that the conference should be held, France is all for it, and since Russia always seems willing to talk on any terms in order to have a forum for her propaganda, the meeting seems likely.

The Wall Street Journal suggests editorially that it might even pay to have the conference even if nothing but Germany is discussed. It cites the European estimate that Russia really means it when she says she will not tolerate rearmament of Western Germany by the Allies, and the possibility that the Kremlin is motivated by an acute fear of what such rearmament would mean.

"Once you know what a man fears you have a lever to move him," the Journal adds. "You can cause him to act hurriedly and irrationally. You can also by different procedure cause him to back up. Is it not then within the realm of possibility that the Russians would give something not to have Germany armed? We don't know. We do suggest that it may be worth consideration."

It is interesting, but the trouble with all these hopes and discussions of deals with Russia, of course, is that if any did actually develop they wouldn't mean a thing. The only thing Russia has to give is an end to the cold war; an end to her religion-like program of world conquest for communism; an end to Lenin-Stalinism.

Russia is in the midst of a new and successful push. She can almost feel southeast Asia in her grasp, is sniffing at the door of the whole eastern part of the vast Eurasian continent. That she will make any important concession while she is winning is highly unlikely. She has no timetable. She must believe there will be no war as long as she avoids climactic provocation. She is in a position to dicker and maneuver with the utmost cynicism, and that is what she will do.

Automobile manufacturers, who buy materials in huge quantity, are extremely cost conscious. A one dollar increase on one item needed to make a car, for instance, amounts to $1-million when 1-million cars are produced. The car companies constantly try to buy goods at lower costs, working out each deal to their best possible advantage. With the price order, purchasing agents are trying to drive even harder bargains. But the industry realizes that such action only is an attempt to stem the tide of rising costs, not the solution. What it wants is either clear cut controls on all industries instead of the "pin-point" controls it has been handed, or a chance to raise car prices enough to cover some of its soaring costs.

Agreement on Western European Air, Sea Forces Looms

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final agreement on the composition of the air and sea forces to back up the combined ground armies for defense of Western Europe is expected to follow Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's recent arrival on the continent.

The planning by the North Atlantic treaty nations for the air-sea phase of the mutual defense organization is at a less advanced phase than that for the ground forces, although much preparatory work has been carried on in recent weeks.

Questions such as that of the aviation and naval forces may have been left open deliberately until Eisenhower has made his visits to the 11 NATO countries and learned first-hand their willingness and ability to contribute to the air, sea and ground forces.

Eisenhower himself commented in a farewell news conference here earlier this week that he was going to Europe initially on an "exploratory trip."

Because air support of the combined ground armies will have a vitally important role in the Western European defensive plans it is expected that such emphasis may be reflected in changes in United States air force organization in Europe.

A more tightly-knit U.S. air combat force in Europe, with increasing attention to fighter, fighter-bomber and light and medium bomber elements, is emerging.

Conversion of the fighter outfits in Europe from reciprocating to jet engine planes started more than a year ago. As more new aircraft become available, jet bombers are expected to replace World War II types in the USAFE (United States air force in Europe). Among them probably will be such planes as the tactical B-45 jet bomber.

There also has been speculation that eventually the long range, medium B-47 bombers might appear in Europe. However, it is not clear whether those high speed jet powered bombers, with the longest range of any American jet plane, would operate under a tactical or strategic command.

Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, newly designated chief of USAFE, arrived in Europe about the time Eisenhower landed there. He will be senior American air officer in Europe, and at the same time responsible to the Allied supreme commander, Eisenhower.

At the outset, Norstad, veteran of World War II air campaigns in North Africa and the Mediterranean, probably will maintain headquarters in Western Germany, later moving them to the vicinity of whatever final headquarters is decided upon for Eisenhower. (Initially, supreme headquarters are at Paris.)

The bulk of American seapower in the European area is in the Mediterranean fleet, a force built around one, and occasionally two, Essex class carriers with a supporting force of cruisers, destroyers and supply vessels.

Where the U.S. Mediterranean fleet will fit into the combined European naval force, and the nationality of the chief of the combined naval forces, are among the questions to be settled during Eisenhower's setting-out of the military chiefs of the NATO countries.

Naval strategists point out the Mediterranean fleet will have vi-

Educators Submit Program for Induction of College Students

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—College authorities Wednesday set aside their several plans for the military induction of young men and agreed to a 10-point program for consideration by congress.

College presidents and deans from 675 institutions said in a declaration on manpower they were "actively aware that the national welfare must take precedence over other considerations."

In a three-day meeting of the Association of American Colleges, delegates expressed dissatisfaction with the selective service act as it operates now.

They brought to the meeting fears many of their smaller institutions would be closed by "wholesale" induction of college age men.

These are the four chief points which the educators proposed in their program:

1. Assure students whose inductions have been deferred that they will be able to apply for entrance into any branch of the armed services regardless of any action by selective service. (This to prevent many students from premature voluntary enlistments.)

2. Set the age of induction at 19 years, adopting a lower age only when required by an emergency shortage. Increase the number of ROTC units and defer their members until they complete college training.

3. Defer from service students in theology, medicine, dentistry and related health fields, and in graduate schools in mathematics, engineering and physical and biological sciences. Also defer all undergraduates who complete two years of study in any subject by July, 1951, until they earn their degrees.

4. Postpone induction of a college student who reaches induction age until he completes his academic year.

Youth for Christ To Show Movie

A hearing in a probation officer's office is filmed and from there the scene shifts to Youth Haven, Muskegon, Mich., where "Uncle Harry" Maurice A. Carlson, founder and director of the camp, and his staff attempt to win the confidence of boys.

Carlson and Warren Bolthouse are bringing the film, sponsored by the Iowa City Youth for Christ.

Journalism Graduate Gets Post as Editor Of Church Bulletin

Carroll Thompson, who received a master's degree in journalism at SUI in 1949, has been appointed editor and writer for the stewardship department of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Before holding a graduate assistantship in the editorial phase of journalism at SUI, Thompson worked as a staff reporter of the Macomb, Ill., Daily Journal.

After seven months' service in the air corps, he became an information intern at SUI and has directed the publicity work of Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio, from August, 1949 up to the present.

Atlanta Welcomes Carolyn Purcell

ATLANTA (AP)—Four-year-old Carolyn Joan Purcell, reprieved from a cancer death, flew home Thursday night to a joyous Georgia welcome, shadowed only by the medical controversy over what is really wrong with her eyes.

The smiling, wide-eyed little girl and her mother, whose prayers for a miracle were seemingly answered by a verdict of the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., arrived from Chicago on a Delta airplane.

The Mayo brothers staff told Mrs. Frank Purcell that Carolyn Joan does not suffer cancer in her dimmed eyes but only an inflammatory condition that can be treated without loss of eye tissue by surgery. It had been feared she would have to lose one or both eyes or else she would die.

Wearing an "honorary stewardess" cap and holding the pilot's wings tightly in her hand, Carolyn came grinning down the ramp with her mother after the plane landed at 5 p.m. (Iowa time.)

Iowa County Officials Ask Salary Increases

DES MOINES (AP)—Several members of the Iowa house of representatives said Thursday they have had requests from some of their county officers for salary increases.

The county auditors, treasurers, clerks and recorders want salaries boosted $100 a month, each. The four classes of county officials got their last raises from the 1947 legislature.

The legislators indicated they would prepare bills proposing salary increases but added the amount might not be $100 a month.

Nebraska Sheriff Shot at During Car Chase

MC COOK, NEB. (AP)—A statewide alarm went out Thursday for an unidentified man who led a deputy sheriff in a bullet-punctuated chase at speeds up to 95 miles an hour early Thursday morning.

The deputy, Fran Dolan of Red Willow county, was struck in the face with shotgun pellets but continued the chase until his car left the road. He was not seriously hurt.

The pursuit of the man in a 1949 or 1950 Plymouth two-door sedan covered 14 miles on highway 83 north of this southwest Nebraska city.

The chase started about 1:30 a.m. (Iowa time) when Dolan saw the man, his car parked in front of the Shamrock Auto Sales court in Mc Cook, use a rock to break a window of a car on the lot. It ended north of here when Dolan, driving with one hand shooting with the other and bleeding from three pellet wounds in the face, lost control of his car.

There was speculation that the fugitive might be William E. (Bill) Cook, object of a manhunt in the southwest where several killings have been attributed to him. Dolan said he failed to get a good look at the man.

Sheriff Emmet Trospen said the only clues which might tend to link Dolan's fugitive with Cook were the man's height, and the fact that the car he was driving was heavily covered by red mud as though it might have traveled some distance through the south-

Charles Faces Lee Oma Rusty Garst Selected All-American Willis Weber, Iowa Swimmer, Follows Dad's Steps

EZZARD CHARLES Ready for Title Bout

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Ezzard Charles, improving with every start, rules a solid 1 to 5 choice to whip tricky Lee Oma tonight at Madison Square Garden in the sixth defense of his world heavyweight title.

The determined champion, sharp and ready at 184 pounds, figures to unhinge the clownish Oma within the 15-round limit, perhaps around the eighth. The scant betting action centers around Lee's chance of going the route. It's about 9 to 5 he won't.

Styles make the bout interesting. Oma, a master of confusion, is hard to catch. Sometimes he walks away, drops both hands and turns his back. He is a master of slipping and catching.

Ed (Rusty) Garst, Iowa star sprinter, has been selected to the National AAU all-American swimming team, it was announced Thursday.

Garst was not in Iowa City Thursday to receive the honor having returned to his home in Dallas, Texas, because of his father's illness.

Iowa Coach Dave Armbruster said that Garst had wired him that he would be here in time for the Hawkeyes' opening meet with Wisconsin Saturday.

The selection of Garst as one of the all-American free-stylers came as no surprise since he had gained national recognition by his victories in the Big Ten and NCAA meets last spring.

The Iowa senior took first in the Big Ten 50 and 100-yard freestyle and the NCAA 50-yard freestyle.

A minor throat operation has hindered Garst in his conditioning for the coming season, but he is still regarded by Armbruster as one of Iowa's chief threats against Wisconsin.

"We'll need Garst and all the other sprinters we have because Wisconsin is especially strong in that department," Armbruster said.

"In fact, they're supposed to have their strongest team in 20 years, and like everyone else in the conference, they're out to get us."

"Our boys have come along fast this week and it looks like they're ready to go."

Iowa enters its competition with three sprinters who were counted on in the pre-season speculation — Larry Dunbar, and John Boyd, who quit the squad, and Bob Busch, who enlisted in the navy.

The Hawks have also lost several outstanding freshman prospects by enlistments, including Dick Paynter and Preston Doane, two sure-fire bets for future stardom.

ED (RUSTY) GARST Hawkeye All-American

Willis Weber, Iowa Swimmer, Follows Dad's Steps

By JACK SQUIRE
Willis Weber, a sophomore on the Iowa swimming squad, will probably never duplicate his father's feat of making an all-American team.

But young Weber, currently the Hawkeyes' No. 3 backstroke, has already turned in better times than his famous father, Irving Weber, Iowa's first all-American swimmer, also a backstroke.

"It just goes to show how much tougher the competition is today than it was thirty years ago," said Coach Dave Armbruster, who was coach for both father and son.

No one would agree with the statement more than Willis, who would like nothing better than to emulate his father's deeds. Judging from what he's shown thus far, though he never will become an outstanding swimmer, but that hasn't stopped him from trying.

"I've never seen a backstroke improve more in one year than Willis has since last season," observed Assistant Coach Jim Counsilman.

"He's brought his time down in the 100-yard backstroke from 1:10 to 1:04 which is really amazing. If he continues to improve that way, he can help us a lot."

Willis, a quiet 6-foot, 150-pounder, realizes that he still has a long way to go to rank with the better backstrokers. But he's thankful for one thing — people don't constantly compare him to his father, as is usually the case in a situation like this.

"Sure everyone expected me to learn how to swim but there was never any pressure for me to become great at it," said Willis.

"City high doesn't have a pool so Dad used to take me to the fieldhouse pool and work with me there. He wasn't trying to make me into an all-American — he just wanted me to be a good swimmer."

Willis and his dad still work out together whenever Mr. Weber has the opportunity. But Willis' presence on the team has put his father out of a job, for with a son on the squad, Mr. Weber will be unable to referee the Iowa home meets as he has done in the past.

"But I'll be in the stands," said Mr. Weber, and you can bet he will.

Bradley Bows, 68 59

NEW YORK (AP)—Bradley's 15-game winning streak was snapped by St. Johns of Brooklyn Thursday night. The Redmen handed the No. 1 collegiate cage team in the country their first defeat of the season, 68 to 59, in the feature of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

Iowa Cagers Depart Today For 'Mus' Tilt with N.U.

The Iowa Hawkeyes leave this afternoon by train for Evanston, Ill., and their first road game of the Big Ten basketball season. Opponents will be the hot-and-cold Northwestern Wildcats.

The Hawks will hold one final drill on the Iowa Fieldhouse floor early this afternoon before departing. It will be the only game of the season where the Hawks will travel by train. The remaining six conference trips will be made by plane.

In Northwestern, Iowa meets a team that "will run all the time" according to Bucky O'Connor, Iowa's assistant coach who scouted the Wildcats earlier this season.

"They have a veteran squad with good speed and height," O'Connor said. He went on to say that along with Michigan State Northwestern looms as a real darkhorse in the conference race.

Both teams go into the contest with identical 1-1 loop records. Comparatively, they've played only one similar foe, Notre Dame. The Irish tipped Northwestern, 82-75 while the Hawkeyes beat the South Bend men, 63-60.

Pacesetter of the Northwestern team is Ray Ragelis, one of the smoothest all-around pivots in the Big Ten. He is currently leading the conference in scoring and is dangerous with his under and overhand hooks near the basket and with his set shooting from out front.

Ragelis is also considered one of the best "feeding" centers in the Midwest. The boys he will be handing off to include Jake Fendley, master of the jump shot and Ralph Blasius. Both are fine rebounders.

Against this Iowa will probably go with Bob Clifton, Frank Calsbeck, Chuck Darling, Fred Ruck and Skip Greene. Clifton has edged back into the lineup with impressive work against Purdue and Illinois.

Ready for relief will be Herb Thompson, Ev Cochran and Whitey Diehl. The Hawks are anxious to get back upstairs in the conference race and they hope to follow the big Big Ten pattern this year of "winning them on the road."

Darling Thursday was named as leading rebounder in the country with an average of slightly over 21 rebounds per game. The squad has recognized the Illinois game as a case of "having met a very good team on a very good night."

Little Hawks Meet Cedar Rapids Team

Roosevelt of Cedar Rapids will face a "new-look" band of Iowa City cagers when they meet the Little Hawks in a Mississippi Valley league battle tonight.

Game time is 8 p.m. on the Roosevelt court as City High shoots for its fourth win against two losses.

Ellis Kondora and Don Brennen will be the changes in Coach Howard Moffitt's lineup. They replace all-season regulars Mickey Moore and Jerry White.

The pair earned a starting berth with their spirited play in the Hawkeyes' losing effort against Clinton. Iowa City is presently burdened with a slump that has tagged them with three defeats in four games.

According to Moffitt's scouting reports the Little Hawks (3-2) can expect a rugged battle from the up-and-coming Roughriders (1-3).

The third-place Iowa Citizens will have to stop a Cedar Rapids fast-break and a probable pressing defense. They are spearheaded by Mitchell, Fisher and Murdock, the latter being the loop's eighth ranking scorer.

Sophomore Bob Frantz, the sch league's top point producer, leads his Hawkeye mates against Roosevelt at 6:45 p.m.

Ben Hogan Honored For 'Comeback of Year'

DALLAS (AP)—Ben Hogan, who lit a cigarette, took a quick puff, grinned broadly, and said, "Gee that pleases me."

He was talking of the Associated Press poll which named his magnificent rally sports' greatest comeback in 1950.

Hogan came back from a near fatal automobile accident in 1949 to tie for first place in the Los Angeles Open, set a record 21 under par 259 to take the Greenbrier open and then clinaxed the movie script rally by winning the National Open golf tournament.

Oma lost only one of his last 16 fights. That was a knockout by Bob Satterfield which he later reversed with a decision, Sept. 25 in his last fight. He'll weigh about 192 for this one.

Iowa's fencers open their season Saturday with a dual meet with Wisconsin at the fieldhouse. It will be held on the varsity basketball court at 1:30 p.m.

1950 Hawk Review — Thin Summer For Hawkeyes

By DICK JACKMAN

The summer months of June, July and August witnessed only a sprinkling of sports activity around SUI. Baseball, golf, swimming and late summer football conversation was spread over a lean 90 days.

Three former Iowa baseball stars were gaining ground in organized ball. In June Dick Hoeksema and Jack Dittmer signed professional contracts. Hoeksema went as a pitcher to Quad-Cities in the Three-I league. He started with a bang swimming six of his first seven games.

Dittmer, on June 23, cast his lot with the Boston Braves. The ace Hawkeye athlete from Elkhart was sent to Denver of the Western league for seasoning. He began a hitting streak right away, broke into the lineup at second base and helped pace

Denver's rise out of the league cellar.

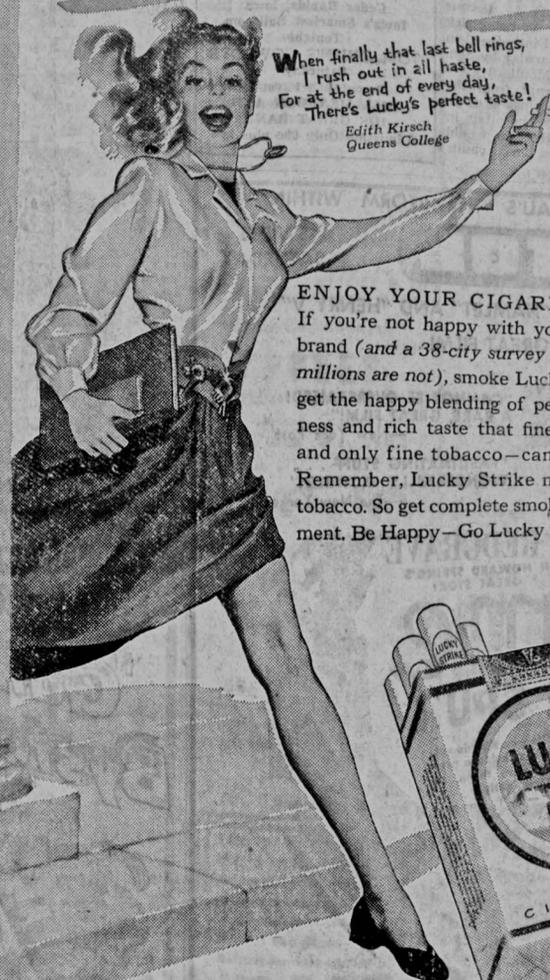

In early July Jack Bruner, former Iowa hurler, was sold by the Chicago White Sox to the St. Louis Browns. Bruner, in his second year in the majors, worked mostly in relief, though he did draw an occasional starting assignment.

Coach Otto Vogel and his Iowa baseball team turned down an NCAA bid in June because the dates interfered to much with graduation here. Forty athletes were graduated including Dittmer, Earl Banks, Bob McKenzie, Don Winslow, Russ Merkel, Ed Browne, Bob Vollers, Bob Schultz and Duane Draves.

Iowa's flashy breaststroke champion, Bowen Stassforth, went to Japan to compete in the United States - Japanese swimming event. At Tokyo Stassforth made himself known by winning the 100 meter breaststroke event.

As the summer closed football talk was back in the air again. Raff had several problems facing him. The Hawks were weak at the tackles and ends, but had a surplus of good backs. Bill Reichardt was shifted to the backfield and Mike Riley took over at the fullback position in the early days of practicing.

Governor Seeks to Hold Government Costs Down

DES MOINES (UP)—Gov. William S. Beardsley told the 54th general assembly Thursday its "No. 1 goal" should be to operate the state government without an increase in taxes.

The governor called for a "sound budget" but "no new taxes and no increase in taxes" in an inaugural address before a combined session of the newly-formed 1951 legislature.

Beardsley, a Republican, was inaugurated for a second two-year term. W. H. Nicholas, Mason City, his running mate, took the oath for his first term as lieutenant governor.

Returning to a campaign pledge of 1948, the governor asked the legislature to repeal a state law banning the union shop in Iowa, which has been a controversial issue since it was passed in 1947.

He asked the legislature to set up a labor conciliation service, simplify school reorganization laws, adopt the "Minnesota gambling law", enact a program for screening sex criminals and boost the strength of the highway patrol.

"We must continue to operate the state government within the current income of the state and avoid the necessity of levying new taxes or increasing the tax burden of the state," Beardsley said.

He charged that high taxes could paralyze the national economy, adding that the legislature could carry out his program without new levies. His remarks had a direct application to whether state income taxes should be increased.

Referring to the state's education program, Beardsley held that the "fundamental principle of local self determination" should be maintained but charged that progress of school reorganization had been "disappointing", probably because of public misunderstanding.

Beardsley, whose sentiment followed recommendations of the Iowa Safety congress, proposed that driver's license fees be increased from 25 cents to 50 cents a year.

The Iowa safety congress called for such an increase to finance expansion of the highway patrol. Beardsley proposed the patrol's strength be increased from 160 to 225 men.

Bodies of Victims Of Bomber Crash Found in Desert

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF. (UP)—The bodies of eight persons were found Thursday strewn around the wreckage of a B-50 bomber that crashed on the desert.

Search parties radioed that all persons who had been aboard the plane when it crashed sometime during the night were killed. The plane was carrying a crew of six and two civilians on a test flight.

The wreckage was located 10 miles east of the base center at the bottom of 4,000-foot Haystack mountain, between here and George Air Force base at Victorville, Cal.

Rescuers said they were loading the bodies into their vehicles and would return them here before dark.

The plane was only a few minutes flying time away from this base when it crashed. Last word from the bomber came late Wednesday afternoon when it radioed George Air Force base for a report on weather conditions and was informed visibility was poor.

The plane was scheduled to make only a short flight of about four and a half hours and then return here.

When the plane failed to make a landing by dark it was reported missing. Early Thursday an aerial search was started and Airforce Capt. Russel M. Roth sighted the wreckage from the air, reporting no signs of life.

Physicists Head to Grant for Research

Prof. James Van Allen, head of SUI physics department, is one of 46 U.S. scientists who will receive grants for basic research from Research corporation, a non-profit educational and scientific foundation.

Current grants from the corporation total $86,000.

Van Allen's grant will be given for research toward interactions of the primary cosmic radiation with various materials.

The foundation is now supporting 400 active research projects in the physical sciences, representing commitments of approximately $1.5-million.

FCC to Investigate Radio, TV Stations On Racing News

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission started checking up Thursday on how radio and television stations are handling horse racing information.

It sent out questionnaires to all broadcasting outlets directing them to give detailed information about any regular racing programs they may carry, including the source from which they get the race results and other data.

The commission made it clear that it is not concerned with the occasional broadcast of major turf feature, such as the Kentucky Derby, but rather with regular daily racing programs which might be of aid to illegal bookmakers.

Last October FCC ordered radio station WTUX at Wilmington, Del., to close down and go off the air. A majority of the commission decided that the station had handled its daily racing broadcasts in such a way as to be of assistance to illegal bookmaking operations.

WTUX responded that it had quit broadcasting racing information and asked that the order be reconsidered. Pending a decision on the station's petition, the shut-down order is not in effect.

After reviewing a number of programs over the country, the FCC has said that as a matter of general policy such broadcasts are not objectionable provided there is a suitable time lag between the end of a race and the announcement of results. Bookmakers need fast reports in order to carry out their business.

$50 Given Hospital To Purchase Films

Fifty dollars to purchase films for patients in the polio ward of University hospitals was donated recently by the state office of the American Veterans of World War II auxiliary (AMVETS).

Twenty-three selected films will be used in three ceiling book projectors available for polio patients, according to Dr. W. D. Paul, chairman of physical medicine and head of the polio ward.

These projectors allow patients to read books which are filmed page by page and projected on the ceiling. They are designed so that patients who must remain in bed can read without physical strain.

Gopher Scientist Subject of Legislative Action

ST. PAUL, (UP)—The Minnesota legislature was asked Thursday to pass a resolution calling on the University of Minnesota to suspend Joseph W. Weinberg from the faculty.

Weinberg was identified by the congressional un-American activities committee as "Scientist X", charged with associating with Communists and giving them atomic information while working at the radiation laboratories at the University of California.

Weinberg has denied the accusations.

Committee Asked State Sen. Fay George Child of Maynard, Minn., who asked for the suspension of Weinberg, also asked the legislature to appoint a committee to confer with university regents and President J. L. Morrill "relative to Weinberg and kindred subjects."

Child said there was a "growing belief that radical influences are at work" at the university. Child said "the notoriety and publicity attached to the 'Scientist X' case has brought discredit to the university's name." Child's resolution said two grand juries which questioned Weinberg neither indicted or exonerated Weinberg. He said this threw discredit on the university and that Weinberg should have resigned.

Reinstatement if Innocent The resolution would recommend that if Weinberg is eventually "declared innocent," he should be reinstated at the university with pay retroactive to the date of his suspension.

The legislature didn't act on the resolution but referred it to the senate committee on universities.

A spokesman for the university said that there would be no official comment. He said that at the time Weinberg was accused the university said it would take no action unless Weinberg was indicted.

Coal Company Sues

Sheridan and Sons Coal company filed suit Thursday in Johnson county court to collect $162.93 from Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf G. Peterson, 714 Kirkwood avenue. The company charges that the Petersons owe for coal delivered to them within the last five years.

Chicago Police Question Accardo

CHICAGO (UP)—Anthony (Tony) Accardo, reputed boss of Chicago mobsters, appeared before a county grand jury and then was questioned by police.

Reportedly Accardo refused to answer questions before the jury, which is investigating policy and other gambling, on the grounds he might incriminate himself.

Accardo similarly refused to answer most questions before the senate crime investigating committee in Washington last week and was threatened with contempt.

After he left the jury room, Accardo was questioned briefly by police and another subpoena was issued calling for him to appear before the jury Jan. 18.

State's Atty. John S. Boyle said he would seek a contempt citation against Accardo if he refused to answer questions in his next appearance.

Vet Sues Government for $265,000

SGT. JOSEPH G. GRIGALUSKAS of Gardner, Mass., one-legged veteran of World War II, with wife and daughter Ann, filed suit Wednesday afternoon against the government for $265,000. The suit claims Ann has a hole which developed in her back after she was given the wrong treatment in the army hospital at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in Nov. 1947. The suit opened Thursday in federal court in Boston.

Retired Army Major Plans to Organize New Political Party

GILMAN, WIS. (AP)—A retired army major who doesn't like "this business of America and Russia calling each other names," made plans in this village Thursday to form a new political party.

H. W. Kolpak said he'll outline his program tomorrow night to the 440 townsfolk and to any other interested persons at a meeting in the local school.

The former ordinance man said that he'll launch his "America party" on a local level if there's enough interest.

"I wrote the platform myself," Kolpak said. "I didn't want to involve others because I wasn't confident of making a go of it. But if people are interested we'll form a new party."

Kolpak said America shouldn't "gradually drift into war," but should "find out if Russia really wants war, then prepare for it."

Main planks on his proposed platform call for universal military training of profits and a ban on unauthorized strikes during "extreme emergencies."

Kolpak said he wasn't sure what his neighbors thought of the idea.

"They keep things to themselves," he said. Even if they didn't agree with me, they'd be too polite to say so."

'Black Animal' Seen Near Charles City

CHARLES CITY (AP)—An unidentified "black animal" appeared on a country road about five miles northwest of here late Wednesday night, Sheriff B. F. Atherton reported Thursday.

Atherton said a young farmer reported he saw the animal as he was returning to his farm home.

The animal was caught in the glare of the car's headlights briefly, then jumped from the road. The animal was about five feet long, the man told the sheriff.

An investigation of the area Thursday morning revealed tracks about five inches across and two recently killed pheasants.

The sheriff said the tracks were not made by either a dog or a fox. There have been various reports of a "black panther" in Iowa.

Students Enlist to Get Out of School, Dean Says

DE PERE, WIS. (AP)—The dean of St. Norbert's college Thursday night called the rush of students to enlist in the armed forces "a rat race to see who can get out of school."

The Rev. Anselm M. Kefpe, a World War II veteran, wrote a blistering editorial in the school paper denouncing students who enlist as "traitors to themselves who are falling prey to mass hysteria."

He said "about 15 to 20" students at St. Norbert's were planning to enlist and that he wasn't sure how many of them have already done so.

Considering Tunnel Between Twin Cities

ST. PAUL (AP)—Minnesota might build a tunnel underground between Minneapolis and St. Paul, Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl said Thursday.

Youngdahl told the legislature if the state decides to build bomb shelters it could consider such things as the tunnel, or underground garages.

12-Year-Old Girl Drops Textbooks to Marry

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 12-year-old girl has swapped her sixth-grade school books for kitchen utensils and has taken up housekeeping for her 19-year-old husband.

She is the former Virginia Pennell, one of nine children. Her husband is Donald Eugene Gray, a furniture factory employe. He's the boy who used to live next door.

How long they courted before they were married Dec. 22 is their secret. In fact, the marriage itself was a secret until Wednesday.

Virginia's mother didn't learn of it until four days after the ceremony. She was surprised and said:

"I didn't agree to it at first, but now that they've married, what can I do?"

The couple is living in a little basement apartment.

When word of the marriage leaked out, Virginia's mother at first answered a few questions. Then the telephone began to ring. The entire family, including the newlyweds, decided to go into seclusion.

Before this, however, Virginia told a newsmen: "I love my husband and I'm glad we got married."

The magistrate who performed the ceremony, George W. Johnson, didn't know the girl was only 12. In applying for the license, Virginia gave her age as 19.

Even as the news spread, a child bride of another day returned home from a hospital after giving birth to her fifth child, a girl. The baby was born Jan. 6.

The mother is Mrs. Iva Queen.

Killer Still Loose; Comb Border Area; Press Body Search

EL CENTRO, CAL. (AP)—Search for 21-year-old killer Bill Cook turned toward the area between Mexicali and Tijuana, Mex., Thursday on a report that a car the young desperado may be driving was seen this morning.

Federal agents were not sure that Cook was using a 1950 Studebaker which had been driven by two men missing on a hunting trip but they joined with San Diego, Cal., deputy sheriffs in setting up border roadblocks on highways into the United States from the Tijuana sector.

The two missing men are Forrest Dameron, 32, and Jim Burke, 33, of El Centro. They were to have returned home Sunday afternoon. They were reported seen at San Felipe, Mex., where much of the search for Cook has centered.

FBI agents, although looking for the two men, said there was nothing but speculation to indicate they might be two more victims to add to Cook's toll of eight slayings.

Cook abandoned his getaway car in the barren area north of San Felipe and tire marks nearby indicated he may have flagged down another vehicle.

While the hunt for Cook went on in the southwest and Mexico, authorities in Oklahoma still were seeking the bodies of five members of the family of Carl Mosser. In Pawhuska, Okla., murder charges were filed against the fugitive in connection with the Mosser's disappearance.

Cook also boasted he killed two other persons and he has been linked definitely with the shooting of Seattle salesman Robert Dewey, whose car he used to make his getaway into Mexico.

Iowa Senate to Act On Vet Bonus Bill

DES MOINES (AP)—Six Republican senators late Thursday introduced a bill appropriating $8-million from the state treasury to meet unpaid bonus claims of Iowa war veterans.

The bill was tossed into the hopper shortly after Gov. William S. Beardsley urged in his inaugural address that the legislature act promptly to make the money available so that all claims can be paid by Jan. 31. The bonus board has estimated it would need around $7.6-million in addition to the $85-million already paid.

The bill allows a little leeway. Any unused funds would revert to the treasury. The authors were Sens. John P. Berg, Waterloo; R. R. Bateson, Eldora; Earle C. Fishbaugh Jr., Shenandoah; Elmer K. Bekman, Ottumwa; R. J. Ottman, Storm Lake and O. N. Hultman, Stanton.

Reopen Morrell Plant; Strike Not Settled

OTTUMWA (AP)—Operations were resumed Thursday in the fresh meat department of the John Morrell and company packing plant, center of a labor dispute, but the company said it would be out of the hog market today.

A Morrell spokesman said that a dispute involving workers' job assignments had not been settled. Consequently, he added, several departments in the plant will be closed.

The fresh meat department was idled Wednesday in a dispute which the company described as a strike and the CIO united packinghouse workers union termed a suspension.

In addition to the fresh meat department, the hog kill, hog cutting, pork trim, hog cooler, green meat grading and casing departments will be shut down today, idling about 500 workers, the company said.

Morrell officials said workers' refusal to accept job transfers constituted a contract violation. They said the company would be willing to arbitrate the dispute when employes return to their assigned positions.

SCHOOL TO ADD LAW CLASS

Airline Killer Hangs After Futile Efforts To Gain Reprieve

QUEBEC CITY, QUE. (AP)—J. Albert Guay, 33, was scheduled to hang shortly after midnight Thursday night for master murdering the most fantastic murder plot of the air age.

The justice department in Ottawa rejected Guay's last minute request for a reprieve Thursday and said "no interference" would be made in his hanging. Quebec Chief Justice Albert Sevigny had rejected Guay's motion for a stay of execution last Tuesday.

The bizarre case began in the late fall of 1946 when the dapper jeweler, a married man, fell in love with an almond-eyed beauty who had just turned 17.

It exploded into death on Sept. 9, 1949, when Guay smuggled a time bomb aboard a Canadian Pacific airliner. The bomb blasted the plane from the skies, killing Guay's unwanted wife, Rita, and 22 other passengers.

It was almost a perfect crime. If the plane had taken off on time, it would have plunged into the St. Lawrence river when the bomb went off, drowning all evidence.

But the plane crashed on land and the wreckage revealed a time-bomb had caused the accidents. Police got busy. By the time their investigation was completed Guay and two accomplices had been charged with murder.

Atomic Explosions Scheduled for Nevada

WASHINGTON (AP)—The atomic energy commission disclosed Thursday that it will set off experimental atomic explosions at an isolated, 5,000-square-mile desert bombing range near Las Vegas, Nev.

No date was fixed for the tests, which will be the first atomic blasts on the American mainland since the original A-bomb was touched off July 16, 1945, near Alamogordo, N.M.

Bataan Veteran Tries to Enlist

NEW YORK (AP)—A Purple Heart veteran of the Bataan death march volunteered for the army Thursday.

He is 35-year-old Julian Wyse Adams, who told newsmen: "I feel my country is at war. At least men are fighting and dying. I'd like to get back myself. The army thinks he's probably the first Bataan survivor to offer to return to uniform. A physical examination will determine whether he's accepted.

A native of Greenwood, S.C., Adams now is an official of soap manufacturing firm.

His wife, Primi, said he has her blessing to return to active duty.
