Beautiful Footwork — No Ball

"HE KICKED IT OUT OF MY HANDS!"—Murray Rost (8) Michigan State player seemed to protest as Iowa's Frank Calsbeck (11) danced a tricky ballet step. Iowa downed the Spartans in a slow game, 46-42.

Missouri Gunman Surrenders In Mexico Without Fight

SAN DIEGO, CAL. (AP)—Droopy-eyed desperado William E. Cook Jr., suspected killer of eight persons, was captured without resistance in a Mexican village Monday.

Almost simultaneously, state and federal officers, acting on a tip from a one-time prison mate of the Missouri ex-convict found the bodies of five of his alleged victims—the Carl Mosser family—floating in an abandoned mine shaft at Joplin, Mo., Cook's home town.

Mental Blackouts

Cook, pleading mental blackouts and denying any knowledge of killing anyone, stepped handcuffed across the international boundary at Tijuana, Mex., into custody of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

The curly-haired, 23-year-old with a tattooed hand, was whisked to San Diego and arraigned on three federal charges. He was ordered held without bail for a hearing Jan. 29.

With Cook at the time of his capture in the lower California (Mexico) town of Santa Rosalia were two missing El Centro, Cal., prospectors, Forrest Darnon, 32, and James Burke, 33. They said they had been kidnapped by Cook after stopping to give him a ride on a Mexican road Jan. 7. They were returned to their homes.

"I didn't shoot anyone that I know of," Cook told newsmen at Tijuana.

No Memory He declared he had no memory of being with the Mosser family and had suffered another blackout Jan. 6, after he encountered a deputy sheriff looking for him at Clyde, Cal.

It was after his encounter with the deputy, who said Cook disarmed him and stole his car, that Robert E. Dewey, 33, Seattle salesman, was found shot to death.

One of the three charges filed by the FBI against Cook was of flight to avoid prosecution on a charge of murdering Dewey.

The other two charged kidnapping of the Mossers with intent to do them bodily harm—a charge filed originally in Oklahoma City, and flight to avoid robbery prosecution.

Nation Considers Extra 'Hazard' Pay For Combat Troops

WASHINGTON (AP)—Military planners were warned Monday that they may jeopardize congressional approval of an 18-year-old draft unless they agree to a flat ban on sending such youths overseas before they are 19.

The warning was sounded by Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas) of the senate preparedness committee, as the defense department disclosed plans to give extra "hazard" pay to combat troops in Korea.

Simultaneously, the department announced that it will ask congress for authority to extend for one year all regular enlistments expiring before June 30, 1953. It already has such authority for enlistments expiring before next June 30.

Other mobilization developments:

1. President Truman authorized draft-age men to volunteer for 21-month hitches—the same period they would serve if they waited to be called for induction. They now must volunteer for three years in the army, navy and marines and four in the air force.

2. Some 210,000 physicians, dentists, and veterinarians registered with their local draft boards from coast to coast.

3. Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin broadened the list of critical occupations eligible for draft deferment. Special stress was laid on merchant seamen and skilled shipyard workers.

4. Assistant Defense Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg revealed that the armed forces will not be able to build up to their new manpower goal of 3,462,000 men by July 1. She said lack of training facilities will prevent the services from absorbing more than 3,325,000 men by that time, but that they will go on to the goal "as soon as possible thereafter."

Two Things Certain —

LONDON (AP)—The last thing George Bernard Shaw wrote, as he lay dying at his home at Eyot St. Lawrence, was his signature on his income tax return, his secretary said in a book published Monday.

Allied Troops Pull Back From Wonju

From the Wire Services TOKYO (TUESDAY)—The U.S. Second division has ended its eight-day stand at Wonju and withdrawn southward to a new defensive line in the Sobak mountains, the Eighth army announced today.

The withdrawal came as U.S. forces on the east coast of Korea in a surprise offensive action sent armored spearheads 12 miles northward to within 23 miles of Seoul and the Chinese were reported retreating northward at many points.

The U.S. Second division, with Dutch, French, and South Korean units attached, dug in at the Wonju area for eight days to stem a Communist onslaught from the north and possibly throw the Reds timetable off balance.

The new lines south of Wonju were not defined. Meanwhile U.S. Third division troops advanced unopposed to within 25 miles of Seoul in West Korea. In the central sector, Allied forces made a planned withdrawal from the Wonju salient to straighten and shorten the defense line.

Armor-led reconnaissance forces of the Third division drove four miles up the road from recaptured Osan to within five miles of Suwon. It was the continuation of the surprise advance in the west which gained up to 12 miles and recaptured three towns Monday.

The Sobaks block the way to Taegu and other points in the old Pusan beachhead which Allied forces held last summer. Red forces have tried to infiltrate through these ranges and cut in behind the Second division.

Fresh Troops . . .

WASHINGTON (AP)—The defense department said Monday "replacements for casualties and battle weary soldiers" will start reaching Korea "in quantity" by early March, and a smaller number will arrive in February.

An official spokesman said most of them will be drawn from men inducted into service in the September, October, and November draft calls, but he declined to give totals.

However, the September and October draft calls were for 50,000 men each, and the November call totaled 70,000.

Some replacements—mostly reservists called to duty and volunteers—already have reached Korea and more are on the way, the spokesman said. But he indicated their number is not great.

Jaycees to Pick 'Man of the Year' For City and SUI

Prof. C. H. McCloy of the SUI physical education department will speak on "Meeting Our Southern Neighbors" at the junior chamber of commerce distinguished service award banquet at 7 p.m. today in the River room of the Iowa Union.

McCloy will speak on observations he made while touring South American countries last fall. He was there for a physical education congress.

Three outstanding young men of 1950 will be announced at the banquet. Mayor Preston Koser will present an honor certificate to the winner of the Outstanding Young Man of Iowa City. The winner will also receive an honor key to the city.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher will make a certificate presentation to the Outstanding Young Man at SUI. Emil Novy, president of the Johnson county farm bureau, will make the presentation to the Outstanding Young Farmer of Johnson county.

Contestants in the contests were judged on the basis of personal character and ability, achievement, and community service. R. J. Danielson, project chairman, said.

The banquet will also be known as "Bosses Night" and all Jaycee members have been requested to invite their employers or another guest to the dinner.

Restrictions Clamped On New Construction

From the Wire Services WASHINGTON — The government clamped down tight Monday on the construction of new commercial buildings, prohibiting the starting of virtually all such new projects until Feb. 15.

After that date, it will take government permission to put up a bank or barber shop, restaurant or shoe repair shop, hotel, motel or mortuary. The builder will have to prove the building is needed for defense: "essential" health, welfare or safety reasons; or to prevent "hardships."

The stiff new construction crackdown came as President Truman told congress that wage and price curbs now appear "inescapable," and again asked for quick extension and improvement of control laws.

He gave no details in his budget message of what he wants in the way of new legal power to check inflation, but he asked for $276-million to handle wage-price controls and allocations and set up an enforcement staff.

Representatives of more than 1-million retail stores told the government that any price curbs should be flexible enough to let them pass on added costs to their customers. Price controls officials took the proposal under advisement but made no promises.

State Budget Message Postponed to Thursday

DES MOINES — Gov. William S. Beardsley's budget message will not be ready for delivery to the Iowa legislature when it reconvenes today, his office said Monday.

The governor plans to make his budget recommendations Wednesday, if the printed budget book is ready for submission with them. The legislature, which has been in recess since Thursday, will reconvene at 2 p.m. today.

4 Fined for Taking Meter

Four men were fined a total of $310 by Judge Emil G. Trott in Iowa City police court Monday in connection with the removal of a parking meter from a post near the Maid - Rite cafe Saturday night.

They were charged with defacing public property. Police apprehended the men after a tip from two SUI students who had seen the four men taking the meter.

Two of the men, Leo W. Hotz, route 6, and Gordon Schnoebelen, route 5, were fined $102.50 each. The others, Floyd Hotz, Lone Tree, and Henry Brun, route 1, were given suspended fines of $52.50 each.

1,000 More Students To Get Draft Notices

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa draft boards Monday began mailing pre-induction notices to about 1,000 Iowa college students.

Col. Ralph Lancaster, head of state selective service, said that the notices will be sent "as fast as the boards can get them out."

He said the pre-induction exam-notice mailings will be in addition to the regular draft board work and it might take a little time for some boards to get all their students processed.

"These pre-induction notices apply to men who could have been called up previously if they had not been in college," said Lancaster.

Once they receive pre-induction notices, the students may no longer enlist.

Announcement that the pre-induction notices would be sent out has caused a rush of college students to enlist during the last several weeks.

Receiving a pre-induction notice is not necessarily an indication that men will be immediately inducted. Purpose of the pre-induction exams is to discover how many college men can meet the army's requirements.

Pre-induction tests will be given at induction centers in Des Moines, Omaha and Sioux Falls, S. D.

Second Group Of County Medics Register for Draft

Approximately 200 University Hospitals doctors and dentists and 37 other doctors and dentists from Johnson county registered Monday in the second and final special registration for medical personnel.

No veterinarians were known to have registered.

The registration was the second authorized by the 81st congress as a preliminary to drafting medical men for duty with the armed forces.

The first registration was last Oct. 16 and was for those medical men who had been deferred during the war or trained at government expense and had not served at least 21 months with the armed forces after completing their training.

Monday's registration was for those medical men under 50 not in the organized reserves or national guard who hold one of the following degrees: bachelor of medicine, doctor of medicine, dental surgery, dental medicine, veterinary medicine or veterinary surgery.

Stop Enlistments, Educators Ask U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Stop voluntary enlistments and rely solely on selective service manpower was one of the proposals advocated Monday by 15 midwest college deans.

L. Dale Faunce, SUI dean of students, represented Iowa at the meeting.

The move would eliminate "uncertainty and confusion in the lives of students," they indicated. Students now are tempted to enlist before being drafted so they can choose a specific branch of the service, the educators said.

Choice of Services The draftees could be given their choice of services "insofar as possible," they suggested.

The deans gathered at the University of Chicago for a special meeting on the problems of service calls of students.

They also advocated: 1. More complete and uniform interpretations by the government to local draft boards to "eliminate wide variance in applications of draft policy."

2. That selective service director Lewis Hershey "centralize manpower pronouncements in a single agency, eliminating the present multiple statements which perpetuate confusion in the minds of students and parents."

3. That students and parents be given detailed interpretation of the army service classification procedure, so that they may be aware of all opportunities in the armed services.

The program will be presented to the American Council of Education, the United States Office of Education, to Hershey, and to congressmen.

Schools represented at the conference in addition to SUI were Purdue, Indiana, Michigan State, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa State, Wayne, Chicago, Southern Illinois, Illinois Institute of Technology, Akron, Washington (St. Louis), and Principia.

SUI Reports No Drops For Second Straight Day

For the second day in a row no SUI students dropped out of school to enlist in the armed services, Registrar Ted McCarrel, said Monday.

The total number of students dropping out to enlist remains at 314 since no registrations were recorded of those who changed their minds.

Reedquist Elected To Directorship

Harold Reedquist, manager of Bremers' store for men, was elected Monday by the board of directors of the Iowa Retail Clothiers association at its annual meeting in Des Moines.

He was one of 21 men elected to the board. Loran A. Durlam, Jefferson, won the election for president of the association; Emil Shull, Clinton, and R. G. Bowers, Keokuk, became vice-presidents, and C. H. Crowe, Des Moines, is the new secretary-treasurer.

Fair Deal Included in New Budget

From the Wire Services WASHINGTON — President Truman sent congress a $71,594,000,000 "brink of war" budget Monday and called for a $16.5-billion tax boost to put the huge preparedness program on a pay-as-we-go basis.

He also threw in a flock of "fair deal" measures.

The President said the new tax increases, which will hit everybody could soar as high as $20-billion.

His budget was by far the largest in American history except in time of all-out war.

War Buildup

He earmarked almost three-quarters of it for the growing, ready-for-war buildup of this country's military strength and for bolstering the defenses of other free nations against what he called the "imminent possibility" of attack by the "barbaric" forces of communism.

Then, braving the quick and sure wrath of many legislators, he dusted off key sections of his controversial "fair deal" program and asked their speedy adoption in the interest of high production for defense.

These included the Brannan farm price plan, a national health insurance system and — like a red flag to most Southern lawmakers — revival of the World War II federal fair employment practices commission (FEPC) to wipe out discrimination against Negroes and other minorities in interstate industries.

Congressional reaction indicated he will get billions for defense against Russian aggression. But his tax and other proposals face rough going.

Warning to Reds

Mr. Truman said the program was designed as a warning to Red leaders in the only language they understand — military strength backed by the will to fight if attacked.

"Our best hope now," he said, "is to build our strength to the point necessary to bring them to caution, if not to wisdom . . . For the third time in this century, we as Americans must subordinate our peacetime goals to what is required for the survival of the nation."

The new budget calls for actual expenditures, in the 1952 fiscal year beginning next July 1, that would be about $24.4-billion greater than last year's, estimated spending and $31.5-billion greater than last year's. This is a two-year increase of 78 percent.

Whole Story

And that doesn't tell the whole story.

On top of the $71,594,000,000 to be spent in fiscal 1952, Mr. Truman asked congress to vote $22,835,000,000 which would be spent after the fiscal year ends. This brings the grand total to $94,429,000,000.

The new budget would boost the public debt to the neighborhood of $276.3-billion if new taxes are not levied. This would be an average debt of $1,814 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

It leaves a gap of about $16.5-billion between what Mr. Truman wants to spend and what the government expects from all its sources of revenue.

Federal tax rates already are near the record high of World War II and Mr. Truman's proposals would push them about 30 percent above present levels. They also would force congress to add several million more persons to the tax rolls.

The program would mean bigger levies on both individual and corporations, sharply increased excise taxes and perhaps a sales tax.

Your Share . . .

WASHINGTON (AP)—Your per capita share of the fiscal 1952 budget proposed by President Truman Monday is $477.

If individuals alone paid all taxes collected by the government each individual would be expected to contribute $477 a year to balance the $71,594,000,000 budget.

But corporations bear a sizeable part of the tax burden, so the direct taxes on each person will be quite a bit lower.

editorials Confusion and Rumor —

Male students all over the nation face confusing circumstances. They have to decide individually whether it is best to enlist immediately in the armed services or wait to be drafted or called from the reserves.

It's a pretty obvious fact that these circumstances have affected the interest and energy of the students in their class rooms.

And now, in view of a United Press report last week, certain SUI instructors have added to the confusion. According to the report, 75 percent of the men who have left this university for the armed services ranked in the lower third of their classes.

Many of them, the report added, were in danger of "flunking out" at the end of the current semester.

Since the report was released, Registrar Ted McCarrel emphatically denied that 75 percent of the men were scholastically deficient. "The figure is completely erroneous and completely unfair to the young students who have dropped out to enlist," McCarrel said.

The big rush to enlist began at SUI shortly after the Christmas vacation. University officials have done everything apparently possible to encourage wisdom and serious thinking on the part of students who decide to interrupt their education before being called.

President Hancher called on students to make their own decisions — not to take a course of action just because "Joe Doakes" chose that course.

"Get all the facts about the services," he said. "Get them from advisors who are primarily interested in seeing that you make the right choice for yourself and your country. Discuss the facts calmly with your parents or guardians and with those whom the university has designated to help you. And then make your decision quietly with all your wits about you."

These were excellent words for the occasion. They were wise words. They were words which would tend to alleviate some of the confusion.

And we believe the words did have an impact on those parts of the student body concerned.

But the instructors quoted by the United Press probably have thwarted considerably the president's efforts.

They have only added to any confusion which might exist in the minds of SUI men.

One fraternity house in particular reported to us Sunday that five of the last six of their members who enlisted had grade points over 2.8.

There is hardly anything deficient about those records.

A Mankiewicz Named Joe —

Truth is stranger than fiction, and there is a good deal of truth in "All About Eve"; but while this highly-touted film about Broadway folk is glossed with the glitter of sparkling dialogue and vivid personalities, it degenerates in its homestretch into a too-typical triteness which destroys its craftily constructed illusion.

A great deal of the picture is illusion, but it is a tribute to Joseph L. Mankiewicz's particular talents that "All About Eve" like most of his other films, doesn't let you realize that, until you've left the theatre — if, indeed, you come to realize it at all.

Mankiewicz has become the master of a process so germane to Hollywood it might be called the Hollywood process. He assembles a series of artificial twists, transfers them to a world which somehow, through his efforts, resembles reality.

Each of his stories is something of a special case. Usually the situations lack the believability his characters, and his approach to them, are given.

His own selective process creates a distinctive — if not always distinguished — results. I have yet to see a Mankiewicz movie I considered one of the year's top films. But I have yet to see a Mankiewicz movie I did not consider exceptional enough to be just outside the charmed circle of each year's "bests."

Mankiewicz has a couple of Oscars, a N.Y. Critics' award, and a Screen Directors' award as testimonial to the reception given his more recent films.

He has emphatically become "big" as "All About Eve," with his 138 minutes of running time and its cast of top-caliber actors will testify. My own opinion is that he is now being over-rated after a long period of being under-rated.

routine thriller but for some remarkably tall sequences — which make the picture instead a special event.

What was true of that film has been true of such subsequent Mankiewicz efforts, however diversified in subject matter they have been: "A Letter to Three Wives," "House of Strangers," "No Way Out," or the current "All About Eve."

His dramas are unmitigated melodramas; his comedies are undiluted conversation combats. Basically his plots are devoid of probability, yet almost invariably he convinces us of the truth in his material.

He succeeds in fooling us by whisking us off into his own world of Mankiewiczian, dazzling us by his pacing, by the luscious listenability of his words, by the incisive bits of reality he papers through his script.

Mankiewicz has what is referred to as a "fair for dialogue" and he invokes the illusion of reality more by the directness and familiarity of his conversations than through any other means. He is aware of this "fair" and capitalizes upon it — wisely — although in "All About Eve" he occasionally becomes engulfed in a dialogue which is more oratory. It wasn't until "All About Eve" which points out with broader examples his basic approach to fashioning films, that this analysis of Mankiewicz's technique crystallized itself for me.

This would seem to suggest that, while that film, currently receiving such honors, constitutes a high point in his career, it also suggests the danger of his overdoing his talents as too often happens in Hollywood.

Because it is through his conversations that his people become vivid and his action engrossing, he must at all times remember that this particularly brilliant facet of his technique is not enough in itself to carry an entire picture.

Japanese Teaching . . .

TO THE EDITOR:

It was a matter of great concern and disappointment for me when I read your report of the International Christian university in Sunday morning's Iowan. While nothing was quoted directly, the article seemed to be taken from a short talk I gave last week on ICU. This is disturbing to me, for almost nothing in the article is correct, and the remainder is so out of context that it is misleading. For the benefit of those who are following the growth of the International Christian university in Japan with interest, I should like to try to correct some of the errors as they appeared in your article.

In speaking of the authoritarian system of teaching which is traditional in Japan, I tried to point out that teaching methods are substantially unchanged (in spite of the educational reorganization of SCAP) due to the lack of leadership. I did not say that a student is not supposed to show that he doesn't know an answer for fear of losing the teacher's respect. So far as I know, it is as hard for a Japanese student to hide what he does not know from his teacher as it is for a student in any country. I certainly do believe that the Japanese educational system is different and out of touch with modern educational purposes, but I would not say that it is the outgrowth of a "weird" philosophy; it is a different one, with different aims and purposes. Using such phrases as "weird Oriental philosophy" gives this article a misleading tone.

The article states that classes at the university will be taught in English, which is not quite true. In the effort to make the curriculum truly international, the curriculum will be as bi-lingual as possible, with Japanese and English as the basic languages. Undoubtedly Japanese will be the predominant vehicle. The faculty will be half Japanese, with the remaining number made up from the countries of Asia, Europe and the Americas.

Education courses are offered not to increase the number of teachers in Japan, but to improve the quality of teachers and provide the proper leadership in modernizing the educational system. Social Service courses are designed to meet one of the basic needs of Japanese life at present, not to "guard against communism."

While the school considers freedom of religion as one of the basic faiths of democracy which it will adopt, it definitely does plan to emphasize Christianity by surrounding, personal contact, and so on, but it will not propagandize Christianity. I am not quite sure what is meant by "the university will be the first in the Orient to offer missionaries' graduate study." If this means graduate study under missionaries, this is not true for both Japan and China have universities where such work has been available for years. The uniqueness of the International Christian university is more in its organization, its approach to the educational and cultural problems involved, and its curriculum which includes both specialized study and a broad liberal arts program combining high academic standards with Christian motives.

$45-Million Available For Road Construction

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa will have $45-million available for primary and farm-to-market road construction this year.

The big expenditure of state-administered construction funds, which is to be accomplished by a large secondary road building program under direction of the counties, is made possible by the increase in road funds voted two years ago.

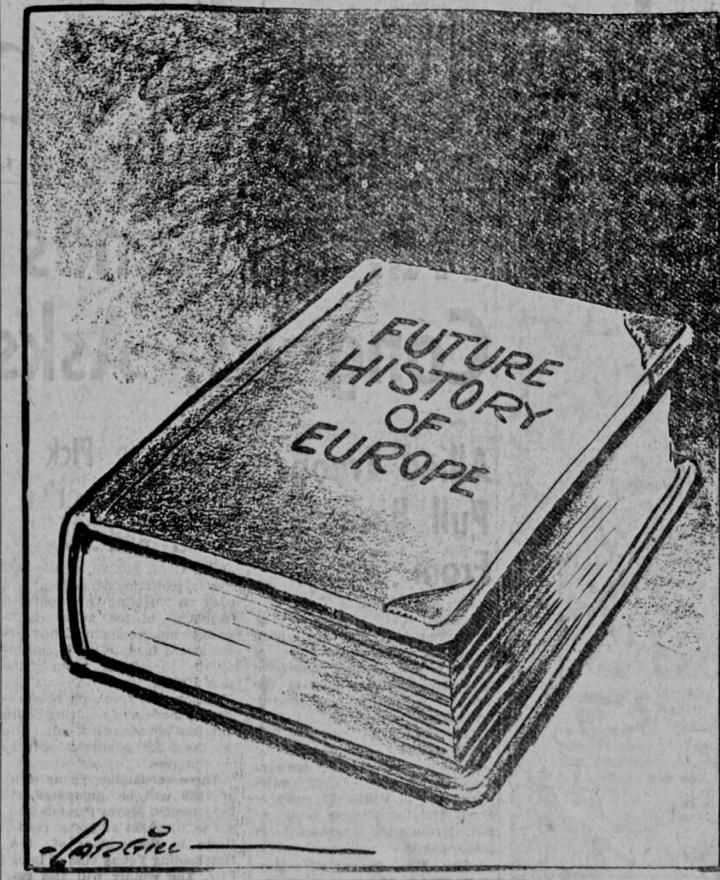

Robert Keir, chairman of the state highway commission, said primary road construction contracts to be let this year will make up $26-million of the total, and farm-to-market contracts will amount to the other $19-million. Income of the road use tax fund, created by the 1949 legislature, in the calendar year 1950, was $65,458,347, far above the estimate of $50-million to $55-million made in 1949.

Two years ago, the primary road fund was so low it could not match federal aid allocated to Iowa. That was because the law then said the fund could retain only $17-million of the state funds received each year.

Approximate annual income of the primary road fund now is $34,492,409. In the 12 months from Dec. 1, 1949, to Nov. 30, 1950, the primary fund received $28,164,447 from state sources.

Iowa's federal aid allocation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, was $6,327,962. Iowa's allocation under the 1950 act, which increased the authorization, will be somewhat larger.

Indonesia Remains Neutral, Leans to Left

By FRED HAMPSON

JAKARTA (AP) — The infant Republic of Indonesia is one of those rare nations of southeast Asia where normal internal problems are more pressing than the threat of communism.

This is not to say there is no communism here, but it appears to be loosely controlled and not very effective at the moment. In the government itself, the Reds are not strong. There are 16 admitted Communists in a parliament of 253 members, plus a sprinkling of fellow travelers.

The Chinese in the islands, numbering about 2-million, followed the suit of most overseas Chinese in Asia when China went Red. But they are mostly business men and traders and their devotion to communism so far is more of a gesture than anything else.

Most observers think they would support the Chinese Reds if the Red tide began rolling south.

The Soekarno government has guaranteed freedom of political and ideological movements to the Communists as long as they observe the laws of the land.

Hadji Agus Salim, former Indonesian foreign minister and a son of elder statesman of the foreign office, said his government is trying to remain neutral in the cold war.

"But if a showdown comes, which side will Indonesia take?" "We will fight the first side to attack us."

But the active neutrality that Hadji described does not seem to reflect the opinion of the man on the street of Jakarta. The populace seems more inclined toward communism than the West.

This probably is due to dislike of the Dutch and to general discontent which grew when the people discovered that independence was not a shortcut to easy street.

The top figure in Indonesia in the Red movement is a Javanese named Alimin, a shadowy figure who stays underground. He was a close associate of Tan Malakka, Moscow-trained Red who was supposedly executed two years ago.

Chinese are not much in evidence in the Red movement here.

Soekarno government recognizes both China and Russia but seems in no hurry to send an ambassador to either.

Several weeks after Wang had been accepted as Peiping representative it was found he had written two books on how to overthrow a government and how to set up a Communist state.

Allied Differences on Japanese Treaty Will Make Dulles' Job Dangerous, Difficult

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The dangerous problem of peace with Japan is taking John Foster Dulles, foreign policy expert, back to Tokyo again, probably this week.

His mission is to explore the routes to a formal treaty. He will have no easy time. There are expected differences between the United States and Russia. But the cleavages between America and the other wartime Allies are, in this case, more pronounced and possibly more dangerous.

One of them hinges on the question of post-war controls. Normally, a peace treaty places restrictions on the rearming of a defeated nation and the restoration of its arms-making industries.

American thinking is that no such controls should be incorporated in the contract with Japan.

Japan lacks both the money at present and the raw materials to rebuild an army, navy and air force. Consequently, the American feeling is that these constitute a true, not a theoretical, set of controls.

Australia, New Zealand, Indonesia, Ceylon and even India can be expected to oppose the proposal.

The question of the two Chinese governments is even more complicated. Six of the thirteen nations in the Far East commission have recognized the Chinese Reds as the government of China. The U.S. still considers the Nationalists, now exiled to Formosa, as the head of the Chinese government.

War-time agreements stipulated that "China" should be one of the participants in drafting a peace treaty with Japan.

At the moment, American delegates are not likely to sit at a conference table with Chinese Reds. Vice versa, those nations which have recognized the Reds could not join with Chiang and the Nationalists in discussing the terms of peace for Japan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur considers Formosa a key link in the outermost chain of American defenses in the Pacific.

For these reasons, and one other, the American plan is not to have a general peace conference. (The other is that Russian delaying tactics are a foregone conclusion.) It is considered more feasible for each nation to make its own treaty, separately, with the Japanese.

Japan, obviously, will accept the best of the several offers that would be made under this plan.

That is, if the treaty with the U.S. contains no postwar controls, Japan undoubtedly would request the British Commonwealth nations to sign a similar agreement.

Japan is potentially one of the great power-units of the world. It represents an attractive next-step in the operations of Oriental Communists.

Interpreting the News —

Withdrawal from Korea Would Disarm Diplomats

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

While the "great debate" over American foreign policy goes forward at top levels, and particularly concerns Europe, the question one hears most often from the man in the street is "why don't we cut our losses and get out of Korea?"

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U.S. army chief of staff, in Tokyo for high level military conferences, has just repeated the American policy:

"I am not going into the future, but as of now we intend to stay and fight in Korea."

As he spoke, American troops were successfully counterattacking in one area, adding to the time for preparation of the ultimate defense line. The Allies presumably intended to stop retreating when their perimeter had been reduced in length to where it would accommodate no more Chinese than defenders — probably around the Pusan beach-head.

Personnel at the conference — Generals MacArthur, Collins, Vandenberg of the air force, Bedell Smith of central intelligence, Bolling of army intelligence and high naval officers — suggested that the main topics were how to fight a war, rather than broad policy.

But that their opinions would weigh heavily on the making of policy was self-evident. There was talk of blockading Communist China's ports, of a flanking attack involving Chiang Kai-Shek's forces from Formosa cooperating with Nationalist remnants on the mainland and particularly with anti-Communist movements within China which have no direct connection with Chiang.

At home, support for such thoughts was developing in congress, with appeals for reassociation with Chiang and for taking off the handcuffs which have prevented MacArthur from attacking China directly.

But little was being done to answer the question of the man in the street, "Why don't we get out of Korea?" The newspapers were trying to do it, but with a notable lack of official help. Reporters got scattered and varied answers.

By continuing the fight in Korea the Allies may keep the Communists from occupying an outpost which might later be used against Japan, and prevent the Chinese from attacking in Indo-China, Hong Kong, Formosa or elsewhere.

Continued fighting keeps pressure on the Chinese for the purposes of negotiation, whereas evacuation would leave Allied diplomats unarmed.

National Unity Hinges On Congressional OK Of Troops for Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three senate supporters of the administration's military aid programs said President Truman's best hope for national unity lies in obtaining congressional approval of sending troops to Europe.

At the same time, Sens. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) and Kenneth Wherry (R-Neb.) renewed demands that the lawmakers be given a chance to pass on any move to dispatch ground troops to help man Western Europe's defenses against threatened Soviet attack.

President Truman has said he will consult congress — but won't be bound by its decision — on the policy of furnishing American divisions for the international army to be formed under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Taft and Wherry have challenged Mr. Truman's right to act alone.

Sen. Walter George (D - Ga.), foreign relations committee in point of service, told reporters:

"Regardless of the President's authority to commit troops to combat in foreign areas without the consent of congress, we will not obtain national unity that is essential until the President advises the people he will submit the question to congress before finally acting."

George said he has no fear that congress will fail to approve "whatever is wise and right to carry out any commitments that bind us."

Taft, who has argued for a large air and sea power instead of ground forces, said the prospective troop transfers involve "a matter of major national policy that ought to be passed on by congress despite the constitutional aspects involved."

Wherry said that the European troop question will affect every military move being considered by congress and will determine whether the national budget be greatly increased and taxes boosted sharply.

Wherry has offered a resolution to prohibit the dispatch of troops to Europe until congress has passed on the issue.

The reserve championship of all breeds went to a 1,160-pound Angus shown by C.E. Yoder and Sons, Muscatine.

The grand champion was shown by Wolf's 21-year-old son, Emmett. The champion was bred and raised by Wolf and placed first in his class at the International Livestock exposition at Chicago last year.

Ilse Koch Sentenced To Prison for Life For Second Time

AUGSBURG, GERMANY (AP) — A German court sentenced fat Ilse Koch, "The Red Witch of Buchenwald," to life imprisonment a second time Monday while she faked madness in her cell.

The prosecution failed to convict on the grisliest charge — that she had tattooed prisoners killed to make lampshades and handbags from their skins.

The notorious 44-year-old red head was convicted of inciting murder, attempted murder and tortures of inmates in the concentration camp where her husband, Karl, was commander. He was executed by the Nazis for murder and embezzlement. She was acquitted of personally assisting in the murders.

When the verdict was read the courtroom was jammed to capacity by persons hoping to see Mrs. Koch throw another hysterical tantrum with which she frequently interrupted her seven-week trial. But, at the time, she was in her cell, unable to bring herself to face the verdict.

The court physician, Dr. Rudolf Engler, testified she "voluntarily fled into a simulated mental disturbance." The verdict was read to her empty chair.

Judge Georg Maginot, who read it, called her an abnormal personality with a "strong sexual drive." He said she showed "not the least remorse."

It was the second life sentence in four years for the widow and mother of three children — one of them illegitimate. A United States war crimes court gave her a life sentence in 1947 for atrocities against Allied prisoners at Buchenwald. It was commuted to four years. The Germans tried her for crimes against German and non-Allied prisoners.

A-Bomb Attack Would Show Transportation Is Weak Link

Transportation might be one of our weakest points in case of an atomic bomb attack, Prof. Richard Holcomb, SUI institute of public affairs, told the civilian defense class here last weekend.

Although our transportation system is one of our strongest points in peacetime, the very concentration which gives it that strength will cause it to become one of the major problems in an atomic attack, Holcomb explained.

When a major transportation center is bombed, all transportation in the area is paralyzed. This would cause considerable difficulty in evacuating refugees from the disaster area and in bringing in supplies and rescue squads, he said.

Community Should Prepare
A community should prepare to meet the traffic jams which could result from this two-way flow of vehicles. Plans should be made to route traffic in and out of the area without confusion and also to clear roads of any vehicles which might break down and halt the steady flow of traffic, Holcomb said.

Problems of transportation in evacuating refugees can be eased if advance warning of the attack is given. A well-planned system could be established to take advantage of regular transportation facilities, he said.

If little or no advance notice is given before the attack, the problems would be radically different. Private transportation would become the main source for evacuation and could do the job adequately in a small city, Holcomb believes.

Combination Needed
In larger places, a combination of public and private facilities would be needed, Holcomb suggested that assembly centers be established which would use any transportation facilities available. Evacuation after an attack would be complicated by the necessity of checking all persons for radioactivity. Another problem would be that of moving the injured from the disaster area, he said.

Stassen Outlines Anti-Red 'Peaceful Offensive'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold E. Stassen urged Monday night that the United States take the offensive in the struggle against communism and support a program of "counter-revolution" to help peoples in Russia and elsewhere whose governments deny them freedom.

Stassen proposed a seven-point program of action growing out of his recent statement, made on his return from a round-the-world trip, that unrest is rising among the peoples behind the Iron Curtain.

Odds on Peace
"I sincerely place the heavy odds on peace," the University of Pennsylvania president said. "Because I believe the Kremlin faces a counter-revolution which will include the Red army itself if it starts an all-out war."

Stassen, a contender for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, declared that to preserve peace the U. S. must follow a "sensible, practical internationalism."

In a radio address, Stassen

Twin Cities Residents Lose Thousands Because of Thaw

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesotans were reported Monday shelling out "thousands of dollars" for damage to their homes the past few days by an innocent rise in temperatures.

O.K. Johnson, a roofing firm executive, said he was "swamped" with orders to repair badly-damaged roofs throughout the Twin city area and he said it was a type of damage previously unknown to the cities.

Johnson said it was caused by a slight thawing of snow that lay deep on the roofs of homes and apartment buildings. The temperature, which had hovered around the zero mark to 15 and 20 below, spurted up to a high of 35 for several days.

"After the thaw, the snow would freeze into the roofs and when it turned cold again, the ice expanded and caused the roofs to crack," he said. "It was the first time in my 12 years in the business that I've heard of such a thing."

Johnson estimated damage in the Minneapolis area alone at "thousands of dollars." A check with the weather bureau indicated similar damage was inflicted in many other areas in the state, but damage figures were unavailable.

Question Perjury of Rosenberg Witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate armed services committee asked the justice department Monday to decide whether witnesses who accused Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg of being a Communist sympathizer should be prosecuted on perjury charges.

The committee unanimously cleared Mrs. Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense, after 15 days of investigation.

In turning its written record of the hearing over to the justice department, Chairman Richard E. Russell (D-Ga.) said the committee told Attorney General McGrath that "appears to be a distinct possibility some of the witnesses may have committed perjury, subornation of perjury or perhaps other criminal offenses."

In testimony vigorously denied by Mrs. Rosenberg and disputed by other witnesses, Ralph de Sola, a former Communist of New York, declared he saw Mrs. Rosenberg at Communist meetings 15 years ago.

Plots Explosive Fire, Youth Kills Parents

BENTON, ARK. (AP) — A young lumber yard worker, at odds with his father, said Monday he plotted an explosive fire that brought death to his father and mother.

"But I didn't intend to kill them," Ernest Bunt, 19, added between sobs. "I just wanted to burn the house down."

Diesel fuel used by Guy Bunt, the father, to kindle a stove fire exploded, setting fire to the family's three-room frame dwelling Sunday. Bunt and his wife, both in their 50's, were burned fatally.

Coroner James Sims said Ernest admitted substituting the explosive diesel oil for kerosene, which normally was used for kindling fires.

Ernest, who was charged with murder and arson, said he and his father had been arguing because he had refused to help his father build a new home.

"So I just decided to burn down the house," the youth said.

Sims said Ernest placed the fuel in the home Saturday night and then spent the night with neighbors.

The Bunts had three other children, all married daughters.

Deadline Passes For Tax Payment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Midnight Monday night was the deadline for those who have filed declarations of estimated income tax for 1950 to make fourth quarter payments, or to amend original declarations if amendment is needed.

The Internal Revenue bureau Monday denied reports in some areas that an extension of time had been granted.

Amendments are required to avert a penalty if previous declarations underestimated the tax due by more than 20 percent.

Midnight Monday also is a final date for filing declarations by persons receiving two-thirds of gross 1950 income from farming. The deadline will not apply, however, if these persons will file final returns by Jan. 31 and pay the total tax at that time.

AGAR PLEADS INNOCENT WEST LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

(AP) — Shirley Temple's divorced husband, John Agar, 29, pleaded innocent Monday to a charge of drunken driving. He was arrested Saturday night by police who reported he was driving erratically. He will remain at liberty under $150 bail pending trial Feb. 5.

National Guard Plane Explodes in Air, Killing Five Persons

CHICAGO (AP) — A national guard B-26, attempting an emergency landing because of iced wings, exploded in the air over Glenview naval air station Monday, killing the four crewmen and a passenger.

The twin-engine plane exploded less than 100 feet from the ground as it approached for a landing and plunged to earth "like a meteor," witnesses said.

A second blast shook the craft as it hit. It burst into flames so intense that rescue workers were driven back in their attempts to reach the shattered wreckage.

The victims were residents of the Chicago area. Four were members of an Illinois air guard unit while the fifth was an army reservist riding as a passenger.

They were identified as 1st Lt. Myron A. Bourland, pilot; 1st Lt. Frank R. Henderson, co-pilot; Capt. David W. Schneider, member of the army reserve; Cpl. Claude W. Bourland and Cpl. Ralph A. Moeller.

The B-26 was returning to its base at O'Hare airport west of the naval station, from an overnight training flight. O'Hare officials said the ship radioed that the wings were icing dangerously and it was directed to land at Glenview.

The plane fell in a farmer's field about 100 yards from the runway on which it was trying to land.

$3,000 Damage Done in Waterloo Explosion

WATERLOO (AP) — An explosion in a foundry here Monday did an estimated $3,000 damage and injured two employees, neither seriously.

The blast blew out all of the windows in the Headford Brothers and Hitchins foundry and threw pieces of metal about the plant.

Struck by metal were Richard McCarthy, 25, and Lois Tovar, 47, a cupola tender. Neither was hospitalized.

The explosion occurred in the cupola where the metal is heated. The damage estimate was made by Summerfield Brunk, president of the company.

FOOD AIRLIFT

QUITO, ECUADOR (AP) — An airlift supplied food Monday to 7,000 persons isolated by floods in a farming region 50 miles northwest of Quito. Damage to crops from weeklong rains throughout Ecuador was estimated at $50,000.

Doesn't Think Remington Ever Communist

NEW YORK (AP) — A foreign correspondent, testifying for William W. Remington Monday, said he didn't think the former commerce department economist had ever been a Communist.

The witness, Bernard S. Redmont, Paris correspondent for U. S. News and World Report, also denied he'd ever belonged to the Communist party.

Remington, 33, is on trial for perjury, accused of lying when he denied he'd ever been a Communist. He was ousted from this $10,000 government job after this indictment last summer.

Elizabeth Bentley, self avowed Red spy courier during the last war, put the Communist tag on both Remington and Redmont. She is the government's star witness against Remington. She testified she was the wartime "party contact" with both men.

Redmont once worked in the press division of the office of coordinator of inter-American affairs.

Three Men Escape Fort Dodge Jail

FORT DODGE (AP) — Three men sawed their way out of county jail Monday but were captured a few hours later, two of them at a nearby town.

Edward L. Gerdes, 20, Otho, and Ellsworth Musselman, 20, Fort Dodge, hired a taxi to drive them to Kalo, a small town south of here, but were picked up there by sheriff's deputies.

Police captured the third man, Lenter L. Shafer, 31, Fort Dodge, on the outskirts of the Fort Dodge business district.

Sheriff Joe McMahon said the three men sawed through the bars of their cells on the fourth floor of the county jail building, went down to the first floor and escaped into the street.

Gerdes was serving a three-months term for forgery and Musselman a one-year term for breaking and entering.

Free Speech Not Guaranteed To Riot Leaders: High Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The supreme court ruled Monday that guarantees of free speech under the constitution do not extend to persons attempting to incite riot.

Free speech in public parks or on the streets came before the high tribunal in three cases.

In two of them, freedom of religion also was an issue. The court, setting aside convictions, said requirement for licenses to use public places for meetings is a restraint in advance on freedom of speech and religion.

But in the other case, the tribunal in a six to three decision upheld a 30-day jail sentence imposed on a student who was arrested while making a political speech on a street in Syracuse, N.Y.

Here the court held the conviction should not be tossed out in the name of free speech. It said the police in making the arrest used "their power and duty to preserve law and order."

Vinson Writes Opinions
Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson wrote all three of the majority opinions in the free speech cases.

This is what happened in the two cases in which convictions were set aside on the grounds that requirements of public meeting permits were a restraint on constitutional guarantees:

1. The court, eight to one, struck out as unconstitutional, a New York City ordinance which required a permit from the city police commissioner to hold religious meetings on the streets. It thus wiped out a $10 fine imposed on Carl Jacob Kunz, an ordained Baptist minister, accused of violating the ordinance. Justice Robert H. Jackson wrote a dissenting opinion.

2. The court unanimously set aside the convictions and $25 fines assessed in Havre de Grace, Mo., against two members of Jehovah's Witnesses—Daniel Niemotko and Nell W. Kelley. The two were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct for speaking in a public park without a permit. The court found there was no law in Havre de Grace requiring such a permit and said it concluded use of the park had been "denied because of the city council's dislike for or disagreement with the Witnesses or their views."

In the Syracuse case, the stu-

Supreme Court Grants Stay Order to Student Facing $25,000 Suit

A stay order issued by the Iowa Supreme court Monday halted the trial of a $25,000 damage suit against James Lauman, A4, Sioux Rapids, which was scheduled to begin in Johnson county court.

Attorneys for both sides agreed to begin the case Jan. 25.

The stay order to halt the trial was requested of the Supreme court Saturday by Lauman's defense attorney, J. D. Randall of Cedar Rapids. Randall claimed he hadn't had time to prepare the case.

Last Friday Judge Harold D. Evans denied Randall's request to remove the case from the court assignment saying that Randall had had over two years to prepare a case since the suit was filed Jan. 4, 1949.

Clark M. Sexton, the plaintiff, claimed that a car driven by Lauman and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cullen, former SUI students, struck a car in which he was riding on an icy hill on highway 218 south of Iowa City, Jan. 10, 1947. Sexton says he suffered a brain concussion.

Judge Evans had the prospective Sexton jurors who had arrived at court named to hear a $190 collection suit and $340 countersuit. Five women and seven men were chosen and are to report back Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. to hear testimony.

MAJ. GEN. CLARK RUFFNER, (right) has replaced Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure (left) as commander of the U. S. Second division the Eighth army announced. No reason was given for the change of command of the division now battling against Communist troops on the central Korean front in the Wonju area. Gen. Ruffner had served as chief of staff for the U.S. 10th corps which conducted the UN offensive in northeast Korea and was evacuated last month.

Sunday Teachers Study

94 Attend Inter-Church Leaders' School Enthusiastically

By JERRY COPELAND

Attendance at Iowa City's Inter-Church Leadership school Monday night showed an urgent desire on the part of Iowa Citizens to better the city's Sunday schools and religious thought.

The school, on its second night of operation, opened its doors to nine new students that swelled enrollment to ninety-four in what school officials termed a "very pleasing show of enthusiasm."

Monday night's sessions found the real beginning of classes, and instructors were given an opportunity to find just what interest students had in attending the school.

Kindergarten supervisors, Sunday school teachers and high school teachers who attended said that the school would help them in aiding their children and young people. Other students think the school will give them "depth and understanding."

Although the school was scheduled to open last Monday and run for eight consecutive Mondays, officials changed the opening and closing dates to Tuesday in fear of a low attendance on nights of the SUI basketball game.

Monday night's game didn't hurt the school's attendance. Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the SUI school of religion, found a full classroom and three other instructors had a "surprising" attendance.

Four fifty-minute classes began at 7:30 p.m. A 20-minute assembly period follows, and then the classes are resumed for another 50 minutes.

Iowa City's Mennonite church conducted the Monday night as-

Cedar Rapids Man Goes to Grand Jury For Jail Breaking

Clarence Kriz, 25, Cedar Rapids, was bound over to the Johnson county grand jury Monday by Justice of the Peace C. J. Hutchinson on two charges of attempted jail break from the county jail.

Kriz pleaded innocent to the charges filed by Sheriff Albert J. Murphy and waived preliminary hearing. Bond was set at $1,000.

At the same time Kriz lost the services of his attorney, J. Newman Toomey, who withdrew from the case. Toomey had represented Kriz last week in a habeas corpus proceedings in county court.

Kriz then claimed he was being illegally held by the sheriff. He said he had served his six months' sentence for forgery and should be released.

However, Judge Harold D. Evans ruled that three months served prior to the sentence on Sept. 18, did not count toward the six months' sentence since Kriz had not paid back the money involved in the forgery.

Kriz made his second attempted break as he was being returned to the jail following the habeas corpus hearings, but was recaptured after a two-block foot-race.

The first escape was effected during church services Dec. 17 in the jail. Kriz said he thought he was a free man as of that date because he had served his sentence.

$1,800 in Goods, Cash Stolen at Anamosa

ANAMOSA (AP)—Police Monday investigated weekend thefts at the Scott Hardware store and the Anamosa Feed mill which netted burglars more than $1,800, most of it in merchandise.

Burglars took six rifles, six radios, a cash register and $35 from the hardware store. They stole a cash register containing $1 from the feed mill.

Police said the robbers apparently made no attempt to crack safes in the two establishments.

Amvet Chief Hits Medic's Dismissal

CHICAGO (AP)—Michael Straight, national chairman of the American Veterans committee, Monday condemned the firing of Dr. Paul Magnuson, chief medical director of the Veterans administration, as a "stunning blow" to the nation's veterans.

At the same time Straight said that the "fumbling" of VA Chief Carl R. Gray in instituting needed reforms and his "gross maladministration" in firing Magnuson called for a congressional investigation.

The firing, Straight said, was "the latest and perhaps most startling evidence of Gray's intention that VA revert to the miserable medical and other managerial practices of the pre-Bradley administration of the VA."

Fund Drive Starts For Quad-Amputee

JOLIET, ILL. (AP)—Neighborhood groups banded together Monday to raise a fund for Pvt. Hubert Reeves, a native son now a quadruple amputee at Percy Jones hospital, Battle Creek, Mich.

The drive was backed chiefly by the Ingalls Park Athletic club, a parent-teachers association and the Boy Scouts. Reeves' parents live in Ingalls park, a subdivision.

Spokesman said a square dance will be held Jan. 27, with all proceeds to go to the fund. They said a bank account in Reeves' name would be established at the Union National bank and that anyone could make other contributions.

Reeves suffered severe frostbite of the feet and hands in Korea, necessitating amputation.

Illinois Police Report 100 to 150-Member Teen-Age Sex Club

MATTOON, ILL. (AP)—Police Chief Larkin J. Jones said Monday he has uncovered preliminary evidence of a "non-virgin" club here with a reported membership of more than 100 high school boys and girls.

The club requires an illicit sex relation for membership and at least four relations a month to remain in good standing, he said. Jones said he has been investigating the club for a month in a search for "concrete" evidence, and expects to make an arrest today.

The story came to light when the father of a girl student protested to Superintendent of Schools L. L. Krantz that his daughter had been asked to join the club.

The daughter told her father that to become a club member "it was necessary to have illicit sex relations with a man in the presence of a second man," Jones said.

Krantz said he also had been investigating the reports and had interviewed 30 high school girls, but so far had turned up nothing "concrete."

The 16-year-old girl who went to her father said there were between 100 and 150 members of the club and that she could name the club officers. She said one of the girl members had left Mattoon to have a baby.

The police chief said his investigation indicated that for a girl member, at least, it was necessary to have at least four intimacies a month to remain in the club.

The girl who made the accusation told her father about the club after she refused to enter a local confectionary store which police believed was the club headquarters.

The father told Krantz that one of the girls in the club is the daughter of a prominent business man.

"It will come as a great shock to him, but if it were my daughter I would want to know it before it is too late," the father said.

Traffic Fines Total $105 on Monday

Five persons, including one SUI student, were fined a total of $105 by Judge Emil G. Trott in Iowa City police court Monday.

James N. Trissel, A3, Davenport, was fined $12.50 on a charge of improper passing.

Norman J. Kuenster, 1020 N. Summit street, was fined $27.50 on a charge of speeding and $12.50 on a stop sign violation.

Howard Lackensire, 113 Iowa avenue, paid $12.50 on a speeding charge.

Clyde M. Lenoach, 1402 Yewell street, was fined $12.50, and Robert Donovan, route 4, was fined $27.50 on charges of allowing unauthorized persons to operate motor vehicles. Donovan's fine was suspended.

Former Student Attends Army Officers' School

Noel D. Knotts, former SUI student, was enrolled last week in officer's candidate school at Fort Riley, Kansas.

On completion of the six-months course, Knott will be commissioned in the organized reserve corps and go on to a branch school for specialized training before being assigned to a permanent unit.

Knott, a graduate of Iowa City High school, entered the army five years ago.

That's All There Was to It'— Capturer of Billy Cook Says Arrest Was Easy

By FRANCISCO KRAUS

(As told to the United Press)
TIJUANA, MEX. (AP)—We walked into a cafe in Santa Rosalia, said this fellow Billy Cook, and told him he was under arrest. That's all there was to it.

But before we ran him down that little fishing town we did a lot of looking. Thanks to the information my good friend Xavier Gonzales gave us, we knew where to look. But for a while, we thought he had as you say "flew the coop."

Gonzales came to me Saturday and said he saw this fellow Cook in the village of El Marmol. He was sure it was the same man when I showed him pictures of Cook. He said Cook had two other Americans with him. We were working on the idea that Cook had kidnaped two American prospectors, Forrest Damon and Jim Burke. The tip looked good.

I flew to El Marmol in a government plane. The people there said "Yes," a man looking like Cook with two other Americans was there but left.

I decided maybe if I went south a little more I might find them. So I flew to Punta Prieta, which is about 60 miles below El Marol. The man we were looking for had been there but again was gone.

The next town was Santa Rosalia so we went there. This time we were lucky. There on the street were the three men. One of them was Cook. We followed them into a cafe.

I walked up to the little fellow. Believe me, I didn't know if he was going to shoot or not. I said to him, "You are under arrest, Cook." He had a gun in his pants but he didn't reach for it.

We watched him close but Cook said he wasn't going to hurt anyone. He said he didn't hurt Damon and Burke. They were very happy to see us. Cook said he was going to turn them loose in a little while but I don't think they were sure of that.

That's all there was to it. I telephoned my office here in Tijuana and we got into the airplane and came back here.

Safe and Happy ...

By FORREST DAMON AND JAMES BURKE

(As told to the United Press)
TIJUANA, MEX. (AP)—Boy, you can believe we're glad to be back here.

During most of the eight days, this Bill Cook kept a gun in his lap with the trigger cocked. At night when we camped out he sat with his back against a tree with the gun cocked. We were afraid to try to escape.

Unfortunately, the FBI has asked us to talk to no one about this.

But the first thing we did in Tijuana was to phone our wives in El Centro. And you can believe they were happy to hear from us.

Our car is still in Santa Rosalia. I guess we'll have to have it sent back by freight as we've had all of that country we want for a little while.

You know the main parts of the story, how we started out over a week ago heading for a prospecting trip into that mountain area between San Felipe and Mexicali and maybe on toward Ensenada for some fishing.

We must have been about 45 miles below Mexicali when we picked this Cook up.

The FBI says no soap to the rest of it.

We head back across the border this afternoon (Monday) for San Diego and then home to El Centro (about a two hour drive from San Diego) tonight (Monday night).

Hawkeyes Down Spartans In Slow Game, 46-42

Iowa Isn't Impressive In Second League Win

By HOBERT DUNCAN
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

If anyone had any school work to do they should have taken to the fieldhouse Monday night for they would have had plenty time to do it between baskets. After an agonizing 40 minutes of ball control basketball, the Hawks whipped Michigan State 46-42 for their second Big Ten victory.

Iowa's win was anything but impressive over the Spartans who would engage in fancy figure eight maneuvers far out on the court without any attempt to score.

When Michigan State did shoot it was usually with negative results. The Spartans hit only 239 percent of their shot. Iowa was a little worse.

The Hawks connected 231 percent of the time and won only because they held a slight free throw edge over the heavy fouling Spartans. At that, Iowa failed on 17 free throw attempts while hitting 16.

It Was All Dismal

Every aspect of the game was dismal. Iowa's rebounding didn't show much improvement over the past several games. Only when Michigan State took long shots with no one under the basket did the Hawks rebound well.

A small crowd of 9,824 often tried to prod the Spartans into action with rhythmic clapping but even this didn't liven up the proceedings. Michigan State had strict orders to hold the ball as long as possible and it did just that.

The Spartans never held a lead but stayed close enough to the Hawks to keep this department of the game interesting.

Michigan State cut its halftime deficit of six points — 24-18 down to nothing in the second period but didn't quite have the stuff to go ahead of Iowa.

Darling Hits 12

Chuck Darling scored 12 points on five baskets and two free throws to lead the evening's scorers. Most of the giant center's baskets came on tip-ins.

Guard Fred Ruck had 10 points and Forward Frank Calsbeek poked in nine, all better than Ray Steffen's eight which paced the Spartans.

While his Spartans were giving a slow motion exhibition of basketball, Michigan State Coach Pete Newell chewed nervously on his now famous towel. When things got too unbearable for the freshman coach to bear, he would bury his head in the towel until the situation improved.

Early in the first half, fans began to wonder if either team would exceed 20 points. Guard "Skip" Green didn't register the game's first field goal until a little over five minutes had gone by to make the score 4-2.

It looked for a while as if the Hawks might fast break Michigan State despite the delaying tactics when they went into a 23-13 lead with about five minutes left in the half. But the Spartans slowed things down and hit four straight points before the buzzer to pull within six points.

In the second half, Michigan State scored four more points while the Hawks were standing still to cut the lead to 24-22.

Spartans Tie Game

Iowa rallied momentarily but Michigan State kept chipping away with long shots and finally pulled abreast at 33-33 on Tom McAuliffe's basket with ten minutes left.

The Hawks got eight straight points to lead 41-33 and then concentrated on preserving this lead. Three Michigan State players fouled out in efforts to get the ball from the semi-stalling Hawks.

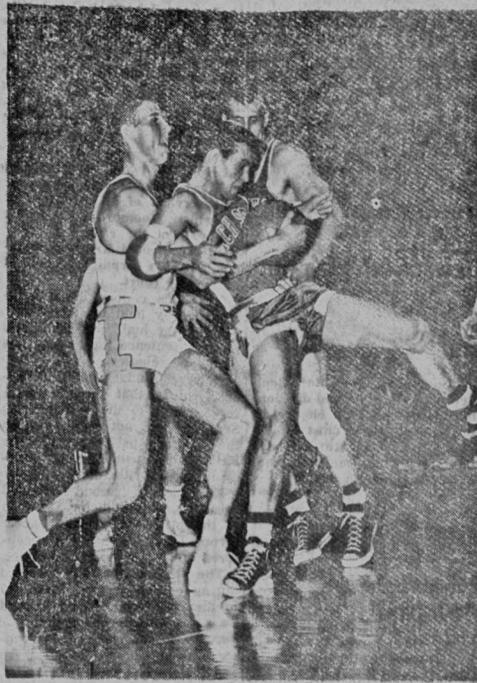

Iowa added five more points and the Spartans got nine to bring the final total to 46-42.

Oklahoma Aggies Replace Bradley As Top Cage Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Deliberate court wise Oklahoma A. and M. took over first place in the national college basketball rankings Monday in the Associated Press' closest poll of the season.

Hank Iba's precision-playing Aggies, winners of 15 straight games without a defeat, edged out Kentucky, Bradley and Long Island university, which followed tightly bunched in that order.

The Aggies succeeded Bradley on the No. 1 rung. The Braves tumbled to third after two weeks on top, their 15-game winning streak snapped last Thursday night by St. John's of Brooklyn, 68-59.

On the basis of this impressive triumph, the St. John's Redmen moved up from 11th to fifth place, the only new member of the first ten. They replaced Wyoming, which dropped from tenth to 13th after losing to Brigham Young.

Following St. John's, in order, came Indiana, Columbia, St. Louis, North Carolina State and Kansas State.

The Oklahoma Aggies collected 39 first place votes and a total of 1,084 points, which are awarded on the basis of ten for a first place vote, nine for second, etc.

Hoosiers Down Illinois; Gophers, Badgers Win

BLOOMINGTON, IND. (UP)—Indiana's hurrying Hoosiers, their fast-break working to near perfection in the second half, overwhelmed Illinois Monday night 64-53, to take over the Big Ten basketball title chase before a sell-out crowd of 10,283 fans.

Both teams started slow and play in the early stage was erratic. But when the Hoosier express began rolling in the second stanza, Branch McCracken's hot-shots literally blatted the Illini from the floor.

The loss was Illinois' first in five conference starts, and Indiana's third straight loop win.

The score was 27-24 Indiana at the intermission after it was tied just once—at 2-2. Then Gene Ring, Billy Garrett and Bobby Masters fired Indiana into a 10-5 lead and the Hoosiers stayed ahead the rest of the way.

Although play was close in the first half, it was Garrett, and an Illinois boy, oddly enough, little Sammy Miranda from Collinsville, who kept Illinois in check and kept the visitors from scoring a bucket in the first eight minutes.

Garrett, though covered by six-foot-eight Bob Peterson, broke loose repeatedly for lay-ups and out-rebounded his towering pivot rival. Miranda popped in three long set-shots in a row, and Bill Tosheff and Masters contributed others.

Garrett, with 21 points topped the scoring.

But Indiana struck like lightning as the second stanza opened, scoring nine straight points, six of them by Toheff, to run the lead to 36-24 before Peterson broke through to count two points for the Illini.

Badgers 68, Wildcats 56

MADISON, WIS. (UP)—Wisconsin strangled a last half Northwestern rally here Monday night to win, 68-56, and set the Badgers up in a tie for second place in the Big Ten with Illinois.

Control of rebounds and a tight defense paid off for Wisconsin's fourth straight conference win. Monday night was Wisconsin's first home stand after knocking off Michigan, Michigan State and Ohio State.

Big Jim Clinton racked up 22 points for Wisconsin — all of the on field goals — to lead scoring for both squads. Ab Nicholas turn-

Bernie Masterson May Be Backfield Coach at Green Bay

GREEN BAY, WIS. — Head Coach Gene Ronzani of the National football league Green Bay Packers said Monday his backfield coach, Ray Nolting, has resigned.

Ronzani said the resignation, effective Monday, came "as a complete surprise." He said he understood Nolting planned to go into business in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Bernie Masterson, a former Chicago Bears quarterback and recently backfield coach at Iowa, was one of two men mentioned as possible successors to Nolting. Masterson resigned from the Iowa job a week ago. At the time he said he had future plans but wasn't free to reveal them.

The other possibility was Paul Chrtman, a five year veteran with the Chicago Cardinals who played last season with the Packers. Chrtman indicated last month he had played his last pro game, but observers here said it was likely he would be interested in a coaching post. Ronzani declined comment on either man.

Nolting, Ronzani and Masterson had been teammates on the Chicago Bears before Ronzani took over here a year ago as head coach. A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Nolting served four years as head coach after playing nine years with the Bears. In 1949 he returned to pro football as backfield coach of the old New York Bulldogs.

Detroit Stuns Bradley, 70-65

PEORIA, ILL. (UP)—Bradley university, one of the nation's top cage teams, was handed a stunning 70-65 defeat by the University of Detroit Monday night in a contest that saw the score tied nine times.

Detroit's Titans, trailing 65-62, took the lead with a little more than three minutes left and dropped four free throws in the closing minutes to hand the Bradley Braves their second loss in 18 games.

Detroit, led by Center Norm Swanson's 23 points, halted a home court Bradley winning streak at 25 games. The loss was the second for the Braves in 31 games at Robertson Memorial fieldhouse.

Indians Have Another Slugger

NEW YORK (AP)—Leave it to Hank Greenberg to come up each spring with the top slugger of the minor leagues.

Greenberg, one of the American league's greatest sluggers, succeeded Bill Veech as boss of the Indians at the end of the 1949 season. The Tribe's first spring training drill under Greenberg featured the presence of big Luke Easter, who had bullied Pacific coast league pitchers the previous summer. Easter proceeded to whack big league chuckers in somewhat similar fashion.

Now comes another minor league fence-buster to the Indians' spring training camp at Tucson, Ariz., with high hopes of duplicating Easter's freshman performance. He is Harry Simpson, 26-year-old flychaser with only two years of minor league experience, who carries the colorful nickname of "suitcase" because of his large feet.

Simpson, like Easter, is a left-hand Negro swatter. Like Easter, he makes the jump from San Diego, and like Easter, he carries a "can't miss" tag. The 6-2, 200-pounder had a terrific year with the Padres.

He led the Pacific coast league in runs batted in with 158 and triples with 19. He was third in the homer derby with 33. His .323 average was good for sixth place. In addition he is fast and is considered a better than average fielder. With Wilkes-Barre in '49 he led the Eastern league in homers and runs batted in.

McBride to Teach Magazine Production

In line with the expansion of the magazine sequence in the SUI school of journalism, a two-hour course in magazine production will be offered beginning with the spring semester.

William McBride, editor of Staff, a magazine for all SUI personnel, will teach the course. The average student should be able to put out a small periodic magazine, such as Staff, upon completion of the course, McBride said.

Background for Work

The idea is to give each student sufficient background so that he could go immediately to the staff of a magazine and be able to recognize the methods and instruments used," he added.

The course will deal with different types of current magazines

Sarongs Dull Senses!

Student Girl Completes Costume For Panacea Stage Show

By MARIAN PETKOVSEK

Native sarongs and south sea skirts may appeal to the appreciative senses, but creating such suitable scanties not only appeals to the senses—it downright dulls them. Honest.

Ask Angeline Thomas, A3, Cedar Rapids, who just completed the last "native costume" for the Panacea show, "In the Pink."

With the first costume hardly complete, green flowers leaped right off the seersucker material, floated around in coffee cups and appeared in Angie's room every night. They were literally everywhere.

Former SUI Coach Gets Insurance Job

Frank Carideo, former SUI football backfield coach, has been appointed district supervisor by the Bankers Life Insurance company of Des Moines.

Carideo resigned his coaching job in July 1950 to enter business. He recently completed Bankers Life courses in insurance. He has an office in Cedar Rapids but lives here with his wife and daughter at 483 Grand avenue.

In 1929 and 1930, Carideo was named to All-American teams as a Notre Dame quarterback. He graduated from Notre Dame in 1931 and started coaching at Purdue university that year.

Carideo came to SUI in 1939 as a backfield coach under Eddie Anderson and served in that capacity until his resignation. He was on leave of absence from 1943 to 1946 when he served in the navy office of research and invention.

But soothed by a couple dozen nerve pills, Angie remained stable and 32 yards, 17 hours and 12 costumes later, collapsed in a chair to study her part for the musical production.

D.A. Major

A dramatic arts major, she accomplished something new in her costuming attempt. Except for a seventh grade course in sewing she's never been active in the seamstress field. Seeing the final results, she surprised herself.

It all began when 13 costumes were needed for Panacea cast members in "native" south Pacific scenes.

Angie, tepped in to help, bought 35 yards of material and used her imagination for a pattern. With a snip of the scissors here and there and a few sewing machine sessions, she completed 13 costumes, of four different kinds, within a week.

Worth It All?

The professional results were more than a reward. But with final exams approaching and a part to rehearse in the show, was it worth all that?

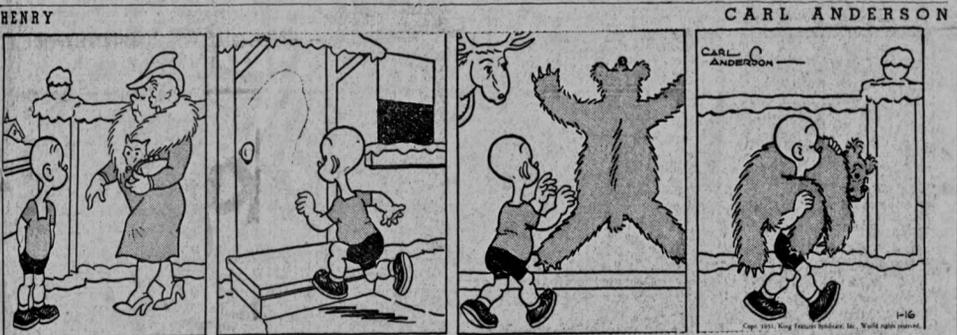

"W-e-h!" says Angie as she eyes her bed for a wistful wink of sleep. "There's one nerve pill left and I can't decide. Shall I take it tonight for rehearsal or save it for two weeks hence when exams begin?"

Mrs. Lucy Gibson, 32-Year Resident, Dies

Educated at Sweet Briar college in Virginia, Mrs. Gibson married Gibson in 1917. After a short period in the Philippine islands, the couple moved to Iowa City in 1919. Their home is at 1029 E. Court street.

Survivors include her husband, two brothers, George Tait, in the United States diplomatic service in Belgium, and Robert Tait, of Waterford, Va.; one sister, Mrs. Harry Caperton, of Beckley, W. Va., and her mother, Mrs. Frances Tait, now living in Waterford, Va.
