Hoover: Russ Could Sweep To Channel in 20 Days

WASHINGTON (UP) - Former president Herbert Hoover said Tuesday that Russia could sweep to the English channel in 20 days and the West's only defense is to build an overwhelming sea-air power that could 'pulverize' Soviet war potential.

Testifying before the joint senate armed services and foreign relations committee, he opposed administration plans to send four more U.S. divisions to Europe.

If Russia decided to invade Europe, he said, the American forces - 'and all Europe' - could be swallowed up before the Russian war potential could be destroyed.

The nation's only living ex-president returned to the 'great debate' that he started with a speech last year opposing use of American troops abroad and calling for creation of a 'western hemisphere Gibraltar.'

Following his appearance, Chairman Tom Connally (D-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee announced that Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former military commander in Germany and now assistant to Mobilization Chief Charles F. Wilson, will testify today.

Connally said he expects to end the hearings of the troops-for-Europe issue today. The two committees then will meet in closed session to decide their stand on sending additional divisions to Europe.

U.S. Unfreezes 200,000 Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government Tuesday unfroze the retail prices of clothing, furniture, rugs, lamps, drygoods and household textiles, and clamped a new freeze on the retailer's 'margin' between what he pays and what he receives.

Many price increases are due to result, as retailers pass to their customers price rises already made by wholesalers.

Officials also say they expect some price cuts. Price Director Michael V. DiSalle told reporters, 'my guess is that the roll-back will be greater than the roll-forwards' - but he admitted that this view is not shared by all his aides.

DiSalle's office of price stabilization (OPA) issued the first of a series of 'margin-type' orders designed to put price controls on a 'fairer and more workable' basis than could be expected from the freeze on Jan. 25.

The action affects about 233,000 retail companies. It covers an estimated 200,000 different items of merchandise.

Only One Candidate Files for SUI Council; Deadline Thursday

Only one candidate for delegate-at-large to SUI's Student Council had returned his petition with the required 100 signatures to the office of student affairs by Tuesday.

The deadline for returning applications is Thursday noon. Six or seven petitions have been taken out so far but the number is far short of last year's total of 18 candidates for the four positions.

Two men and two women will be elected to the council as delegates-at-large at the March 14 all-campus elections.

All candidates at-large for the council will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Old Capitol to hear rules governing the campaign from Ed Diekmann, E4, Ottumwa, co-chairman of the elections committee.

Applications for the student board of publications can be obtained from the school of journalism office, N-1, East Hall. They must be returned before March 7.

Reds Drop 169,544 in Largest Czech Purge

PRAGUE (AP) - The Czechoslovak Communist party punctuated its charges of Titoism against Dr. Vlado Clementis and four other former party leaders Tuesday with the disclosure 169,544 party members have been ousted since Sept. 1 in a continuing purge.

The membership of 2,025,318 has been cut 8.4 percent in this biggest housecleaning since the Communists won power in Czechoslovakia three years ago. Examinations of 52,466 members and candidates are still in progress.

50-Year-Old Man Drowns Self in Tub At SUI Hospitals

Ross Miller, a 50-year-old man from Sabula, Iowa, committed suicide at University hospitals Tuesday morning by drowning himself in a bathtub.

Hospital officials reported that Miller had been admitted as a patient Feb. 5. They said the time of death was 8:30 a.m.

After an autopsy Tuesday night, County Coroner George D. Callahan, in a note left at the police station, said death was caused by drowning in a bathtub and termed the death suicide.

No reason was given for the suicide. Hospital officials reported that they agreed at the autopsy that Callahan would release information of the suicide to the press.

Reached by telephone, Callahan refused to comment other than, 'Call the police station,' and hung up on the reporter.

Hangs Up Again. Called again for clarification on the circumstances of the death, Callahan shouted, 'You've got the clarification, that's it,' and again hung up.

Hospital officials said the body was taken to the Allen funeral home in Sabula. Funeral arrangements are pending. Miller is survived by his wife, Evelyn.

Other circumstances of the patient's bathtub suicide were not available from hospital officials.

Johnson Modifies Freeze on Wages

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government opened the way Tuesday for some wage and price increases.

It did so while struggling to control an economic situation which, in the words of congressional economists, contains possibilities of 'runaway inflation.'

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston modified the Jan. 25 wage freeze. He issued an order permitting workers to seek wage increases up to a limit of 10 percent higher than the level of Jan. 15, 1950.

He also asked the wage stabilization board to approve promptly seven amendments further liberalizing the wage ceiling. The chief of these would provide that 'escalator clauses' in wage contracts signed up to Jan. 25 of this year shall be permitted to operate up to June 30 of this year.

These clauses call for raises when the cost of living goes up, or when the productivity of workers is increased.

Women to Send Petition To Legislature Today

Signatures of 746 Iowa Citizens petitioning for the establishment of an Iowa legislative council will be forwarded to the state legislature today by the League of Women Voters.

The council would be a permanent fact-finding committee and propose bills for passage. The signatures were gathered by members of the league last week in down-town stations.

Reds Plan Large-Scale Offensive

TOKYO (WEDNESDAY) - The Chinese and North Korean Reds are planning to launch an offensive within a month with 300,000 troops, a highly-reliable source said today.

AP Correspondent Tom Bradshaw reported Tuesday from the field, however, that the Chinese Reds appeared to have postponed the drive, probably because of heavy losses.

The source said the Reds are believed to have 33 divisions now moving into attack positions in central and western Korea.

Bradshaw said it now appears the Chinese buildup is shifting to the western sector of the front.

The last big Chinese counterdrive failed miserably. A Chinese and North Korean Red force of about 150,000 plowed into the center of the U.S. Eighth army mountain line. But they knocked themselves out trying to smash the U.S. Second division and its French battalion west of Wonju.

Other circumstances of the patient's bathtub suicide were not available from hospital officials.

Nursing Applicants To Begin Tests

The college of nursing will begin interviewing applicants for next year's school term Thursday.

Jean Baer, counselor in the nursing college, said Tuesday the first group of high school and transfer students will arrive this week. Admissions will be open until June.

The application process includes an interview with the admissions committee of the college, a physical examination, SUI entrance tests, tour of the hospitals, and a question and answer roundtable discussion period.

The applicants will stay for a two day period.

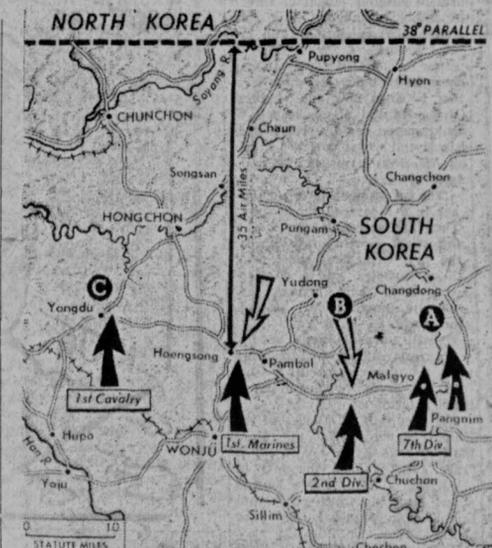

Boy, Woman Report Molesting Attempts

Complaints that a pair of unidentified men have attempted to molest two Iowa City residents were received by police Tuesday.

The parents of a nine-year-old boy told police a man chased the boy Monday afternoon along North Clinton street. The youth told police he took refuge in St. Mary's school for over an hour while the man waited for him outside.

The man was described as about 25 years old, slender, wearing glasses, high boots and a leather jacket.

A woman told police an unidentified man chased her Sunday evening as she walked along North Johnson street. She said she escaped the man by running into a house. She described the man as about 50 years old.

ACTION IN KOREA Tuesday was centered in the east-central sector where U.S. Seventh division troops were sweeping Korean Reds from hills and caves north of Pangnim (A). Earlier, the Second division hurled back five Red counterattacks to the west (B) between Pangnim and Hoengsong. Hoengsong, 35 air miles from the 38th parallel, remained a no-man's land as Chinese stymied a First Marine division drive. Along the rest of the front there was a lull following the First cavalry's battle Monday near Yongdu (C).

Gaffney Sets March 19 As Date for Lons Trial

James Lons, 53, Iowa City cafe operator, is scheduled to be brought to trial March 19 in Johnson county district court on a charge of murdering Andrew Davelis, 40, his former employee.

The trial was set Tuesday by Judge James P. Gaffney at the oral request of County Atty. William L. Meardon.

Lons was indicted for first degree murder Dec. 19 by a Johnson county grand jury following the fatal stabbing of Davelis Oct. 12. He pleaded innocent and has been free on $50,000 bond.

France Averts Cabinet Crisis

PARIS - A cabinet crisis was narrowly averted in France Tuesday night after Premier Rene Pleven won a slim vote of confidence on the hottest issue in French politics.

Pleven's coalition government won the vote 243-216 on the electoral reform issue, but the premier decided after meeting with his cabinet that his government should resign because of the large number of abstentions, 159.

President Vincent Auriol, however, refused to accept the resignation, ending the threat of an immediate crisis during the present critical stage in world affairs.

11 UN Divisions Shatter East End of Red Line

TOKYO (WEDNESDAY) - A U.S. Third division reconnaissance patrol fought its way into the suburbs of Seoul early today while Allied advances all along the front wiped out the gains of the abortive Communist counteroffensive.

Says He Lent Young Money to Buy Coat

WASHINGTON - A senate banking subcommittee investigating the reconstruction finance corporation tried Tuesday to find out who paid for an $8,540 'natural royal pastel mink' coat bought for a White House secretary.

Atty. Joseph H. Rosenbaum, identified as a key link in an alleged RFC 'influence web,' testified that he lent Expediter E. Merl Young the money to buy the coat for his wife.

He also told the subcommittee investigating alleged wire-pulling in connection with multi-million dollar corporation loans that he sold stock to Young for a fraction of its original cost.

The committee explored in great detail financial dealings between Young, Rosenbaum and the swank Gunther-Jaekel fur firm of New York which delivered the coat to Mrs. Young.

Marshall, Bradley Renew Draft Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall and Gen. Omar N. Bradley joined Tuesday night in new appeals for lowering the draft age to 18 in the 'interest of genuine security.'

Marshall said there was no certainty that the current military manpower goal of nearly 3.5-million might not have to be raised. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said that in this event 'any compromise' with the 18-year-old figure would result in a shortage of men.

Council Pushes Plan To Finance Widening North Riverside Drive

City financing of a widening program for North Riverside drive became at least a possibility Tuesday.

The city council, by a 5-2 vote Monday night, asked the city engineer, the streets and alleys committee and the finance committee to search for 'some method for city financing of street widening, curb and gutter' along the drive.

Alderman Wayne Putnam suggested that it might be $10,000 well spent to check steadily enlarging washout areas under the present paving and thus possibly avoid the necessity of replacing the entire street.

The street was termed 'an urgent maintenance problem' by City Engineer Fred Gartzke.

Twice the North Riverside drive widening project has been proposed, each time including a plan whereby adjoining property owners would be asked to share the expense, and each time the suggested program has been defeated in the council.

Date Changed for All-Campus Carnival

The all-campus carnival will be held at the fieldhouse Saturday, April 21, instead of April 28 as previously announced.

The change was made because it conflicted with Kampus Kapers, all-campus variety show, which is planned for Friday, April 27, and Saturday, April 28.

IT'S FINE WEATHER FOR DUCKS in Iowa City park with the pond overflowing due to spring thaws and rain. When Mr. and Mrs. Hubert H. Smith, 118 E. Prentiss street, went to feed the ducks, they found all heads above water. That is, except our 'white feathered friend' (upper right) who evidently felt inferior because it seemed he was probably the smallest duck in the puddle.

A FAMILIAR FIGURE ON CAMPUS, Bob Mongar the SUI ice cream man, was back at his old corner of Iowa and Madison Tuesday after the early spring weather hastened his return from San Antonio, Tex. Mongar, who spends his winters in the south, said this is the earliest he has returned to Iowa City. The two coeds taking advantage of his early return by having a between-class snack are Sally Bailey (left) A1, Ottumwa, and Alice McCorkle, A1, Chicago, Ill.

Letters on State Insurance

In Sunday's Daily Iowan we ran an editorial pointing out the unfairness of the Iowa Old Age and Survivors Insurance system to state employees who know they'll never work the 10 years necessary to recover any of the payments they make to the plan.

We've received a number of comments which lead us to believe that the sentiment expressed in the editorial is pretty indicative of the general feeling among those at which the editorial was directed: students and student wives who have jobs with the university, and very likely some of the staff and faculty members who plan to leave SUI within a short time.

Before the legislature recessed, two bills were presented which call for refunding OASI payments to those members who leave their jobs before the required 10 years are up.

The present law simply takes away four percent of a member's salary WITHOUT ANY REFUND WHATSOEVER unless that member works the 10 years.

The victims can best make their opposition to the current law known by writing to Sen. Herman B. Lord, chairman of the senate committee on social security, whose address is State House, Des Moines, 19, Iowa.

But we have a suggestion to make regarding these letters. For the greatest effect upon the legislators, DON'T SEND FORM LETTERS which are handed out by certain groups campaigning against that part of the present law which allows for no refunds.

Two paragraphs of a personal letter will do more toward saying a legislator than two pages of a form letter.

But the important thing is to start the letters on their way now—not only to Senator Lord but also to local legislators.

The bills may be referred to as Senate File 77 and House File 127.

Legislators on Vacation List Accomplishments

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's lawmakers, back home this week for their spring recess, pointed out to their constituents a long list of accomplishments during the first seven weeks of the 1951 legislature.

Twenty-five new laws have gone on the books since the session opened last Jan. 8. The number probably will increase while the lawmakers are vacationing, as Gov. William S. Beardsley signs more measures.

Several more bills have passed both houses but have not yet reached the governor. Each house has passed additional bills, which have not yet come to a vote in the other house. Still other measures which drew considerable interest were defeated.

Actually, the week will not be one of complete rest for the lawmakers. The legislature always takes a spring recess about this time of year. It gives them an opportunity to catch up on things left undone at home while they have been legislating at the statehouse.

The new laws include one making possession of a gambling device by a business house grounds for cancellation of all of the establishments' operating licenses.

Another sets up a state budget and financial control committee to act as a "watchdog" on governmental appropriations and expenditures. It will succeed the legislative interim committee system and have more powers. It was the key proposal of the Little Hoover governmental reorganization commission.

A third new law appropriated $8-million to complete payments of bonuses to Iowa veterans of World War II.

A fourth permits banks to do business on holidays if they desire, and legalizes any transactions made on those days.

Still another of the new laws gives a sentencing judge discretion in limiting the term of years of imprisonment given a person convicted of an offense the maximum penalty for which is a life term.

The list also includes an act to make the fourth and subsequent convictions for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated a mandatory three-year prison sentence, the same as for the third conviction.

Passed by both houses and awaiting the action of the governor is a bill to increase the educational requirements of chiropractors. Also passed by both houses but in different form is the second of the Little Hoover commission proposals.

Also approved by the house but not the senate is a bill to create a state board of public instruction, which would appoint the now-elective state superintendent of public instruction.

The legislators return to their lawmaking chores the afternoon of March 5.

New Wheat Rust Spreads in U.S., Threatens Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new wheat disease threatens the 1951 American crop. Scientists have reported it to be the worst of its type they ever have studied.

The disease is a rust, caused by tiny fungi, which are plants that live on other plants. Rust is an ancient enemy of wheat. Older types have been destroyed as much as 100-million bushels of the American wheat crop in one year. But these have been under control for years.

Department of agriculture scientists considered whether the present outbreak might be spread by foreign agents but have concluded, that it started from natural causes.

How much damage it may cause in 1951 depends upon weather between now and harvest. Given wet and warm weather, it could spread rapidly. The scientists say all wheat varieties grown on American farms can be damaged by it.

The government scientists now are in a race with the disease. They are searching the world for wheat varieties resistant to the new rust. They must find these varieties, and develop seeds from them, before the rust can spread widely around the world.

It will take at least several years from the time resistant types are discovered, until enough seeds can be developed for planting by farmers.

Agronomist B. B. Bayles of the United States bureau of plant industry says the new rust, called "race 15B," caused the loss of about one-fifth of the Durum wheat crop in North and South Dakota and Minnesota last year at the start of the outbreak.

Government experts say a short U.S. wheat crop this year would have its most serious effects in world markets. The U.S. is the world's largest exporter of wheat, providing about one-third of the total wheat in world trade last year and as much as one-half in some other years.

Rust was a plague of U.S. wheat crops for years until around 1935, Bayles says. Its elimination as a major problem followed one of the most important and successful projects plant scientists had undertaken up to that time.

The plant breeders bred new wheat varieties that were resistant to the rust.

Nature apparently used the same tactics with the rust. Accidentally the rust organisms crossed, producing a new "race" with new characteristics. One of these characteristics is the ability to attack all of the wheat varieties resistant to the older kinds of rust.

All evidence indicates accidental cross-breeding occurred while the rust lived on barberry bushes, its "host" during one stage of its life cycle.

The U.S., Canada and Mexico are cooperating to fight the new rust.

As soon as the outbreak occurred scientists began hunting for wheat varieties resistant to the new rust.

Woman Becomes 'Average' American, Census Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The census bureau has reported that the American woman, who has gradually undermined male supremacy in many fields, now has taken over for the first time as the "average" American.

The agency released some preliminary figures collected in the 1950 census which show there now are only 98.1 men for every 100 women in this country. It is the first time in history there have been more females than males.

According to the bureau, the "average" American is a native-born woman who is 30.1 years of age, married, and living in her own city home with 2.4 other persons.

The information was among thousands of figures, percentages, averages and medians culled from preliminary samples of the 1950 census of population, housing and agriculture.

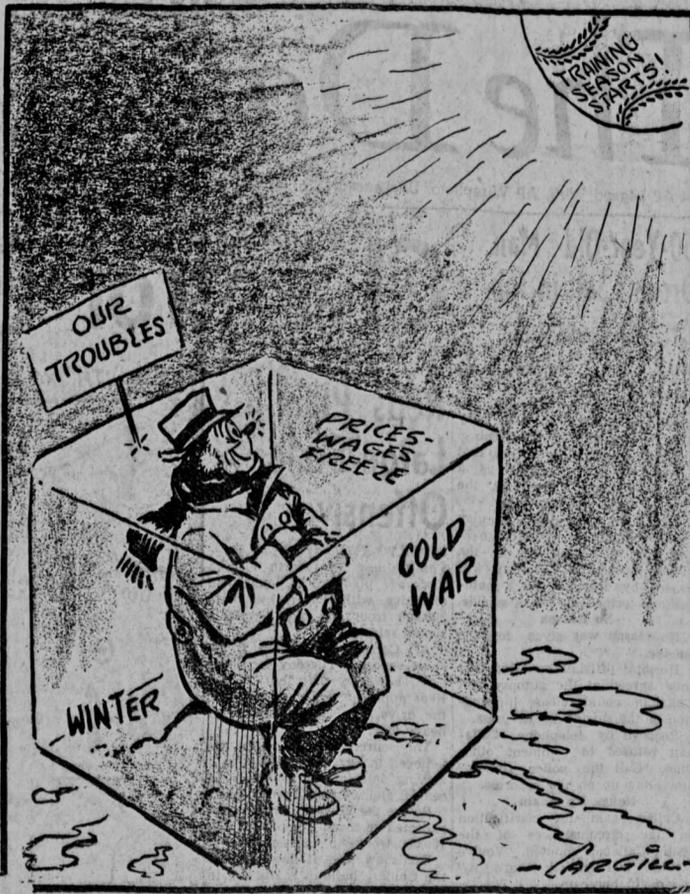

The age pattern in the United States also is changing. Contrasted to the 14.5 percent increase in overall population, the number of children below 10 years old rose 39.3 percent and the number of persons 65 years and over jumped 36.3 percent.

The rise in children was due to the big increase in wartime birth rates. The increase in the number of oldsters resulted in part from past rises in births and the continued lengthening of the American life span.

In 1950, the bureau said, there were 28.4-million pupils 5 to 24 years old enrolled in school, compared with 26.8-million in 1940. About one out of every five youths 18 to 24 years old was enrolled in school or college.

The total number of American households rose from 34.9-million in 1940 to 42.5-million in 1950.

U.S. Spends 4% for State Aids

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senate committee has reported the federal government will spend about four percent of its budget this fiscal year in grants to states for 41 programs financed by state and federal funds.

The report contained a table showing that the government of the average state received federal grants equal to 5.6 percent of the federal revenue collected in that state.

Federal grants to Delaware were only one percent of the federal revenue collected there, compared with 38 percent for Mississippi at the other extreme.

Grants to Iowa were 2 percent, or a $41,960,057 return from a total federal revenue of $345,223,492 from the state.

"Almost all authorities will agree that federal grants-in-aid are here to stay and that, properly legislated and administered, they will serve to strengthen our federal union and preserve local governmental economy," said a report from the committee on executive expenditures.

It showed $2,173,023,478 earmarked for federal aid programs this year, not counting funds for 10 minor programs for which figures were unavailable. This compared with $2,152,312,143 in the 1950 fiscal year for all 41 programs.

Figures used in the report included only those paid to state and local governments and not those paid by the federal government directly to individuals. Moreover, they did not include the matching funds supplied by state and local governments for some of the programs.

About 80 percent of the total goes for four programs — old age assistance, highway construction, aid to dependent children, and unemployment compensation, including federal employment offices.

The committee said purposes of the federal grand-in-aid machinery are to:

- 1. "Inspire the states to action in fields which are of concern to the entire nation. The action desired is primarily of a financial nature."
- 2. "Provide combined financial support and administration of programs of national interest."
- 3. "Establish a parity among the responsibilities to the federal government does have some basis of fact," the report continued.

"Increased federal taxes, largely a result of the defense effort, directly harry the efforts of state and local government to make the maximum tax effort to the maintenance of their own public services. Unfortunately, there seems little that can be done to ameliorate this circumstance."

The committee noted that the federal government now gets 72 percent of all revenue collected by local, state and federal governments, compared with 23 percent in 1916.

"The statement that federal grants-in-aid over-stimulate aided services through their matching requirements has substance, particularly in grants to dependent children, the blind and aged," the report said.

"It is obvious that the 'matching' system is necessary in order to prevent excess expenditures of public funds but at the same time, it is also obvious that the mechanics of the matching system should be altered to provide for basic differences in the fiscal capacity of given states or geographical areas."

The committee also conceded there is some basis for criticizing the federal aid programs on grounds that they complicate the federal budget. It also admitted "some substance" in a complaint that the programs result in federal interference in matters having no national concern.

U.S. Embargo Causes Red Economic Trouble

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Soviet Union is running into serious trouble in branches of its heavy industry, possibly because of an American clamp-down on shipment of strategic materials to Iron Curtain countries. Shakeups and ominously threatening warnings in the industrial field attest to this.

There have been a number of shakeups in Soviet ministries. One of the most intriguing has just come to light.

The supreme Soviet's presidium approved a shift in the administration of the metallurgical industry. The ministry has been split into two ministries—one for ferrous metallurgy and one for non-ferrous.

The former head of the overall ministry has been demoted. A.N. Kuzmin now is assistant minister of ferrous metallurgy, and the chief of that new department is Ivan F. Tevosyan. This talented Armenian once held the job of minister of the combined metallurgical industry. But in the now-famous departure to Olympus of the big shots of the Politburo, Tevosyan left the post and devoted himself principally to being a vice-premier and member of the council of ministers. He is one of the few members of the council who is not also a Politburo member.

That was at the time that V. M. Molotov stepped out from under the burden of the foreign affairs ministry and A.I. Mikoyan from the foreign trade ministry to retire to a sort of overall direction of things. There are increasing signs that this lessening of the burdens on the big shots didn't work. The strong hand of iron discipline from the top was lacking. One by one these ministers—and this includes Molotov himself—are drifting back to more active direction of the ministries they once left in the hands of subordinates.

Tevosyan was not back in active control for a week before he knocked off a letter to Stalin, noting that the ministry of ferrous metallurgy reported fulfillment of its production program for iron, steel and rolled metal and iron tubing for 1950 under the five-year plan.

But nothing is said of the other half of the metallurgical picture, the non-ferrous ministry. That is now in charge of Peter F. Lomako. He held this job once before when it was highly important—back in 1940, with world war threatening.

We are fairly sure that the Soviet Union is suffering shortages of such things as uranium ore, non-ferrous metals, seamless pipe and other vital materials. Production of aluminum is apparently far below demand.

Nickel, copper, cobalt and other non-ferrous metals are apparently short.

As a result of all this there likely will be more shakeups in the Soviet ministries—not because the ministries will be blamed if they cannot get enough of these materials, but because the Politburo must have scapegoats. It all adds up to one thing: the American embargo is hurting

Midwest Basin Project to Foster 'Well Being'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Full development of the Missouri river basin—now under way—should give the region a "high degree of stability and economic and social well being," according to a task force of the President's water resources policy commission.

The report estimated that the cost of the over-all program of water resources control and use by the reclamation bureau and the army engineers will exceed $5-billion.

"The transformation of the character of the basin in the end should be pronounced," it said.

"The report referred to full development of land management, flood control, drainage control, irrigation, hydroelectric power, water supply sources, pollution control, fish and wildlife conservation, navigation and land transportation in the Missouri basin.

"The future of this immense basin—covering one-sixth of the nation—has potentialities of providing abundant living.

"The Missouri river basin can remain one of the nation's great basic food providers, but it can also be a much better balanced region economically," it said.

The report said that the extremes of too much and too little water prevail in different parts of the basin.

Major multiple-purpose dams now under construction—such as the Garrison in North Dakota and the Oahe and Fort Randall in South Dakota—are expected to control most of the floods on the river.

The report said the principal possible sources of conflict of navigation and other water uses is with irrigation requirements. It added, however, that "the probability of such conflicts within the next 30 years is not high."

It said that industrial expansion is "highly desirable" to afford a broader and more stable economic base, especially in the upper basin.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 13...THE OCELOT

"I don't mean to be catty—but I hate pussyfooting!"
Our feline friend may not be from Missouri, but she sure likes to be shown! She saw right through those thin, quick-trick, cigarette tests and realized you couldn't fairly judge a cigarette's mildness with a mere one puff or a swift sniff. Right on the spot, she decided they weren't fur her! Sophisticated, but shrewd, she knew what she wanted.

The Sensible Test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis.

No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why...

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

What's to Blame? —

If Rollie Williams quits at the end of the season, and it looks now as if he will, a combination of pressures plus poor health will be to blame.

The immediate cause will be ill health brought on by over tension in trying to live up to predictions for an Iowa championship. Iowa was an overwhelming favorite for the title before the season started but the Hawks' own inconsistencies knocked them out of the race before it really got started.

All of this has weighed heavily on Rollie. He wanted a championship more than any of the critics who started howling for his job after three early losses.

Williams isn't what you would call a calm fellow but neither is he the jump-up-and-shout type normally associated with basketball coaches. Maybe if he had been more demonstrative, some of the tension would have been released. As it was, worry was piled upon worry until Williams finally had to admit he'd had enough.

When Williams took over the job last spring following "Pops" Harrison's dismissal, most people felt that Rollie's stay would only be temporary. It looks now as if they were right.

Rollie was anxious to return to coaching and also anxious to improve his not too impressive record compiled during 14-years of coaching mediocre material before the war.

If Rollie steps down, "Bucky" O'Connor will be the logical successor. This season, O'Connor is assistant varsity coach. "Bucky" coached the team most of last season when Harrison was forced out by illness.

It's generally understood that if Williams does decide to quit, it won't have any effect on his job as assistant athletic director. Rollie can continue in the department without much of a reduction in salary. He will also be free of the mountain of tensions commonly associated with modern college coaching.

Iowa's loss to Indiana at Bloomington Monday night had nothing to do with Williams' admission that he was considering quitting. Rollie has been giving it serious thought for over a month. He hoped at that time his health would improve but it hasn't.

Iowa fans should know definitely early next week what Williams plans to do. The Hawkeyes end their season Monday night against Michigan at Ann Arbor. Rollie will probably declare himself soon after that.

Williams is withholding a definite statement of his intentions right now because of an understanding with the athletic department that no action will be taken until the season closes.

Steamboat Rock, Moravia, Churdan, Monona Advance In Girls State Tournament

DES MOINES (UP) — Steamboat Rock and Moravia won quarter-final berths Tuesday night along with Churdan and Monona in opening round play of the Iowa high school girls basketball tournament.

Although pushed to the limit, Moravia conquered Holstein, 62-60, in a nip-and-tuck first round tilt. Steamboat Rock eliminated Farragut in routine fashion, 55-49.

Churdan ousted Knoxville, 64-38, and Monona knocked off Wota, 56-43, in afternoon play at a packed Drake university fieldhouse, the traditional site of the annual state classic.

The Moravia-Holstein battle was the first breath-taker of the tourney, with Moravia finally gaining a victory on a free throw in the final three seconds of play. Janet Broshar of Moravia dumped in the decisive free toss, making the score 61-60. Moravia tallied its extra point on another free throw that was awarded just as the final gun sounded.

With 13 seconds left in the game, Doris Brieftow of Holstein sank a free throw to tie the score, 60-60.

The Steamboat Rock-Farragut contest got off to a flashy first quarter with the two teams starting out on even terms. But Steamboat Rock later pulled into high gear to maintain a promising lead throughout the game.

It was Farragut's first defeat in 25 games. Farragut tossed in three baskets in the closing minutes, but the rally was too late to change the trend.

Eight other teams with a chance at the title will tangle in first round play today. Quarter-finals will begin on Thursday, with Churdan pitted against Monona and Moravia slated to meet Steamboat Rock.

Stone Gets Victory In Pan-Am Games

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Brooklyn's durable Curtis Stone won a thrilling 10,000 meter race Tuesday to give the United States its first championship in the Pan-American games.

The long striding Penn State athlete uncorked a last ditch kick to beat off Argentina's Hardy Ricardo Bralo by five yards.

Shortly afterwards, Virgil Dean Severns gave Uncle Sam his second championship of the day by high-jumping 6 feet, 4 1/4 inches.

Bralo led most of the way in his 25-lap duel with Stone. It was not until they were a lap and a half from home that Stone, the IC4A cross country and two mile champion, surged to the front.

Stone's time was 31 minutes, 8.9 seconds compared with 31:09.4 for the big Argentine laborer. The two lapped everybody in the field except Ezequiel Bustamante of Argentina, who finished third.

Hero After Previous Scandal —

Layne Admits Taking Bribes

CCNY Cancels Rest of Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Layne, the City College of New York basketball player who became the hero of the team when three of his teammates confessed taking gamblers' bribes, admitted Tuesday night that he was in on their ring.

District Atty. Frank S. Hogan announced that Layne confessed accepting bribes totaling $4,000 to throw the same three games his teammates dumped. Layne only collected $3,000 of the money, Hogan said, because "payoff man" Salvatore Sollazzo ran short of cash.

Cancels Program

Shocked City College of New York, which withstood the storm when the other three players confessed, immediately cancelled the intercollegiate basketball program for at least the remainder of the season after Layne was picked up by police.

Hogan said, "Layne was waiting for us to come. He is relieved to get it over with."

Layne, who dramatically addressed a "let's-get-behind-the-team" pep rally at the college after co-Captains Ed Roman and Ed Warner and star Guard Al Roth confessed taking bribes nine days ago, told police that he was lured into the ring by Warner.

At first, Layne said, he didn't want to go in. But later Warner took him to meet Eddie Gard, confessed "contact man" for the bribe ring and himself a former Long Island university player. Gard and Warner drove him around town in a car and talked him into the bribe-taking, Layne said. He quoted Warner as saying, "You may as well get in on it because others will."

Turns over Money

After he confessed, Layne led detectives to his home to turn over to them $3,000 in bribe money. He said he never spent a penny of it.

Layne, District Attorney Hogan said, admitted he accepted bribe offers to throw the Missouri game, Dec. 9, at Madison Square Garden, the Dec. 28 game against Boston college. Layne said he did not get paid the $1,500 he was promised for the Boston college game, but admitted getting $1,500 for the Missouri game and $1,000 for the Arizona.

Rubber Shortage Won't Hurt Sports

CHICOPEE, MASS. (AP) — How will the American sportsman fare under the government's new edict curtailing use of natural rubber in 40,000 products?

At present it looks as if he won't have to forego any of her cherished athletic activities in 1951 for lack of sports equipment.

Luther E. Coleman, vice-president of the leader in the sporting goods industry, A. G. Spalding & Bros., sums it up like this:

"I feel that we can operate with these new percentages allowed under the rubber order."

Coleman said Spalding has been allocating golfballs since the outbreak of the Korean war.

FORMER LIU PLAYER Natie Miller (right) was accompanied by a detective Tuesday as he left a police station in New York following his arrest and booking on bribery charges. District Attorney Frank S. Hogan charged Miller with taking $1,500 in bribes for fixing two games LIU lost in 1948. CCNY star Floyd Layne admitted Tuesday he had also taken bribes.

I Didn't Do Nuttin' Judge

NEW YORK (AP) — Charged with running a dice game the next day after he was fined for collecting numbers-game bets, Robert Franklin, 30, told the court Tuesday:

"The only reason I ran the dice game was to get enough money to pay the fine in the numbers case."

The judge fined him again — $75.

Writer Says Public Should Know Why Happy Was Fired

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP) — When the major league club owners, with all the vehemence of a Bill Klem, roared "yer out" at Commissioner Happy Chandler, they left one question unanswered.

"Why?"

Maybe, like Klem, they figured the decision was final, and no explanations were necessary. After all, they might figure they hired the man, paid him, and consequently had the privilege of firing him without being accountable to anybody. That seems reasonable.

But we do think the firing squad showed a certain contempt for the public in taking its action. Baseball courts the good will of the fans, and when the club owners take an action which leaves many of the fans thinking that maybe Chandler got a raw deal they certainly aren't promoting good will.

As a kibitzer we've kept our mouth shut concerning the Chandler case.

But lately too many people have asked us "Why was Happy fired?" And it's been a little embarrassing. They think we should know, being in the sports writing business, and we don't.

We do believe the club owners weakened their own position by not giving a bill of particulars. If they'd only said they didn't like the way he sang "My Old Kentucky Home," or didn't like his windup when he threw out the first ball of the season, or given any reason whatsoever it at least would have cleared up the picture.

As it is, they have given no concrete reason, leaving the public to speculate.

The owners will meet March 12 to try to name a successor to Happy. If they should decide upon a man the man might start thinking that what happened to Chandler might happen to him if he incurred the displeasure of the men who hire him to keep them in line.

Don't Kill Action
"When we kill the action we kill the game," said Stahl, whose team faces DePaul in Chicago Stadium Saturday night. Northwestern tangles in a crucial Big Ten engagement with leading Illinois in the other Stadium game.

"Basketball is being called a little loosely," added Stahl. "It is hard to coach a defensive player to do a good defensive job without having him foul out."

Bill Haarlow, Big Ten supervisor of officials, said he agreed with Olsen, but that officials are supposed to call what they see. He said Big Ten games were averaging 45 fouls as compared with 43 last year—with visiting teams averaging 23 and home teams 22.

K. L. (Tug) Wilson, Big Ten commissioner, said the question of so-called "pee-wee tools" will be wrestled with by the rules committee meeting at the NCAA basketball finale in Minneapolis, March 27.

To Move Basketball Scoreboard's Forward

Construction of two platforms to move the fieldhouse scoreboards approximately two feet forward from the balcony beams is expected to be completed by Monday.

A ledge between the side scoreboards and the balcony frame will permit workmen to repair and adjust the electrically operated scorers without lifting them out of place, as is now necessary.

Big Ten Coach Wants Less Calling of Fouls

CHICAGO (AP) — Take the "pee-wee tools" out of basketball... cut out inconsequential foul calling, Northwestern Coach Ole Olsen raised this cry against officiating Tuesday.

The veteran Olsen, dean of Big Ten cage mentors while at Ohio State before joining the pro ranks and then returning to college again with Northwestern, had his say before the Chicago Basketball Writers' association.

"I am disturbed by the definite trend of more whistle blowing and foul shooting and hope something can be done about it," Olsen declared. "I wish we could call infraction of rules pertinent to the play. There should be 10 or 12 fewer fouls in a game. The officials are too prominent in the game right now—it's too technical."

Too! Too!
Olsen gave examples. "A fellow is dribbling down the court. There isn't a soul near him. He takes a little extra step. Too! There goes that whistle, and the other team gets the ball where it wants it."

"Another player tries to slap the ball out of the hands of a dribbler and brushes the player's arm in the process. Too! And a parade to the foul line begins."

"In one of our games this year 69 fouls were called out of which only 30 actually had any effect on the game. The others were inconsequential."

Olsen was backed up by Coach Floyd Stahl speaking via amplified telephone from Ohio State.

Don't Kill Action
"When we kill the action we kill the game," said Stahl, whose team faces DePaul in Chicago Stadium Saturday night. Northwestern tangles in a crucial Big Ten engagement with leading Illinois in the other Stadium game.

"Basketball is being called a little loosely," added Stahl. "It is hard to coach a defensive player to do a good defensive job without having him foul out."

Bill Haarlow, Big Ten supervisor of officials, said he agreed with Olsen, but that officials are supposed to call what they see. He said Big Ten games were averaging 45 fouls as compared with 43 last year—with visiting teams averaging 23 and home teams 22.

K. L. (Tug) Wilson, Big Ten commissioner, said the question of so-called "pee-wee tools" will be wrestled with by the rules committee meeting at the NCAA basketball finale in Minneapolis, March 27.

Five Teams Picked For Invitational Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence Tech has accepted an invitation to the National Invitational basketball tournament which begins March 10 at Madison Square Garden, it was announced Tuesday night.

Lawrence Tech is the fifth team to get a bid. Previously, St. John's, Brigham Young, Arizona and North Carolina State agreed to compete in the 12-team competition.

Lawrence Tech, a tiny school with only a 1,100 daytime enrollment, has won 10 and lost two games this season. The two defeats were by a total of only four points—67-65 to Washington and Jefferson and 68-66 to City College of New York.

Coach Don Ridler blames himself for the W&J defeat because he took out his regulars when he had a 15-point lead and couldn't get them back into the game in time. W&J scored its winning goal in the final second of play.

Bid to Beloit...

BELOIT, WIS. (AP) — Little Beloit college has received a bid to play in the National Invitational basketball tournament in New York, it was learned Tuesday night.

The bid was received late Tuesday and the faculty athletic board was scheduled to consider it Tuesday night or today.

$80,000 Medical Expansion Allows Increased Enrollment

Nearly $80,000 was diverted from SUI activities to remodel the medical laboratories and expand equipment during the last two years, Dr. W. R. Ingram, head of anatomy department said Tuesday.

This expansion will allow increased enrollments in the college of medicine and raise the number of graduates in future years. At present, about 85 students graduate each year. About 120 students can graduate after 1953.

Expansion thus far has been for facilities for freshman and sophomores only. These are the basic science years which provide a foundation for further medical studies. Revised and improved selection procedures assure low rates of failure of advanced medical students, he said.

The admission of 30 additional freshman in 1950, required more equipment, more teaching personnel and more space, Dr. Ingram said. These needs were dictated by modern teaching methods which emphasize laboratory and actual work with patients rather than impractical lectures.

Many outpatients, patients who do not need to be confined to hospitals, will be examined and treated in the University hospitals, by the medical students under close supervision of instructors. This is valuable since most of a general practitioner's work involves outpatients.

As the additional freshmen of 1950 become juniors and seniors, further expansion will be necessary. Even the new readjustments are incapable of taking care of non-medical students who are taking the basic science courses, Ingram said.

Student Crew Begins Reassembling Shelves

BOOKS, BOOKS AND MORE BOOKS faced the SUI student moving crew Tuesday as they began reassembling shelves from the Library Annex on the third floor of the new library. The library moving staff began moving books into the library Saturday. The new shelving for the first and second floors is expected to arrive from New York this weekend.

Iowa Employment in January Sets Record

More Iowa workers were employed in commercial and industrial pursuits during January, 1951, than in any other January on record, according to the state employment security commission.

However, 10,000 fewer persons were employed during the first month of this year than in December, 1950. This decline can be accounted for when it is remembered that 7,200 temporary salespeople were laid off following the holiday rush season.

Many construction workers became temporarily unemployed because of the cold and snow which prevented much building during the month.

Workers in Iowa manufacturing increased 6,100 over the December figure to reach a record total of 158,150. This was 2,000 more than the number employed during the previous peak employment month of August, 1948.

Settlement of labor disputes in the farm machinery industry and notable expansion in transportation equipment accounted for most of this increase.

The meat packing industry employed more workers during January than in any other January of the last five years. However, the December figure exceeded January by 650 workers.

Missing Parolee Returns To Lone Tree Farm

Cecil Cox, 17, parolee reported missing since Saturday from the farm where he was employed near Lone Tree, returned Tuesday.

Gordon Morrison, owner of the farm, told police Cox drove his car to Iowa City Saturday and failed to return.

Morrison said Cox told him he was unable to get the car home after it broke down in Wilton Junction Saturday.

Need Trained Group To Guide Recreation

Trained group workers will be urgently needed in the next few years to provide adequate facilities for leisure-time activities, Prof. Richard M. Seaman, school of social work, said Monday.

In addressing the Iowa chapter of the American Association of Group Workers in Des Moines, Seaman said that with the changes in populations and living patterns expected in Iowa, plans should be made now to mobilize trained community personnel.

Iowa communities must supply leisure-time facilities for servicemen and their families since no large USO centers are likely to be planned for the state, he asserted.

Commercial recreational services will not be able to meet the increased demand of workers in Iowa's rapidly growing industrial cities, he added.

After Month of Slaughter — Allied Troops Outnumber Reds

UNITED STATES EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, KOREA (WEDNESDAY) — For the first time since the Chinese entered the Korean war last fall, the United Nations ground forces held a slight numerical superiority over the Communists Tuesday.

Li Gen, Matthew B. Ridgway's Eighth army is a month of savage fighting chopped down the enemy force until now it outnumbers the Chinese and North Korean troops below the 38th parallel, at least for the moment.

The Eighth army this week officially named seven American and four South Korean divisions, as well as the British Commonwealth 27th brigade, in the line. They total more than 160,000 men.

And together with previously identified fighting units, the beefed-up Eighth army now totaled more than the official estimates of enemy strength in South Korea. The estimated number of Communists is a military secret.

From the Yellow sea to the Sea of Japan, along a 120-mile front, the Eighth army faces seven Chinese army corps and four North Korean army corps.

At full strength, 28,000 men per Chinese corps and 18,000 for the North Koreans, that would mean 268,000 men. But since Jan. 25, when the Eighth army kicked off its limited offensive in the west, then followed through with "Operation Killer" on the central front, the Allies have reported 121,868 Red casualties.

Police Chief Declares Anti-Gambling Drive Led to Threats on Life

LOS ANGELES — Police Chief William H. Parker of Los Angeles told Sen. Estes Kefauver senate crime investigation committee his efforts to stamp out gambling had led to threats on his life and efforts to discredit him.

The chief told the committee he received numerous telephone threats and his testimony was corroborated by Capt. James Hamilton, head of the police intelligence squad.

Capt. Hamilton testified that several months ago he received a tip from what he considered a reliable source that Parker "would be taken care of at eight o'clock" that night.

The chief was scheduled to make a speaking engagement that night in a place Hamilton described as ideal for an ambush. As a result of the tip, Hamilton said he assigned a squad of officers to accompany the chief who insisted on going through with the speaking engagement.

Parker said in addition to threatening calls he received calls at home from persons desiring to discuss underworld activities. He said he understood from reliable sources that the effort to make him talk was tape recorded and the plot was to trim the tape so as to make him appear in an unfavorable light.

Aged Must Earn Love, Respect Of Children: Coburn

To be mentally healthy, the aged need the love and respect of their children, Dr. Frank Coburn, SUI professor of psychiatry, said Tuesday night at the Institute for Later Living in Davenport.

The love and respect of the children must be earned and deserved. While the strict parent makes the child feel unloved, the over protective one makes the child unable to face the stress of adult living. Such a child provides a source of concern, worry and emotional turmoil, Coburn said.

Coburn, emphasizing the theme of the institute, said the period of aging should not be a "do-nothing" period but a retirement from mental and physical stresses only.

The tendency of the older to live in the past is mentally satisfying. World problems do not seem to demand attention of the old person and he is willing to permit someone else to solve them, Coburn said.

Coburn concluded that to enjoy old age most completely, life should be enjoyed as we go along so we can enjoy it when we are old. Retirement should be prepared for by lifelong development of interests — work around the home—avocations and hobbies for the enrichment of later years.

Iowa Factory Wages Hit All-Time Peak

Weekly earnings by Iowa factory workers reached an all-time peak in January, 1951, the Iowa employment security commission reported Tuesday.

Pay of factory workers averaged $64.59 per week, whereas in 1950 it averaged only $58.16. This increase, the report said, was due somewhat to rising adjustment of wages, but mostly to an increased work week brought about by the expanding defense program.

January's work week averaged 42.7 hours, the longest in the last 12 months with the exception of December. Transportation equipment workers spent 45.2 hours per week on their jobs during January.

Student to Talk On Plumbing Codes

"Why We Have State Plumbing Codes" is the topic Richard Larew, E2, Iowa City, will discuss at a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club in Fort Dodge tonight.

Larew, who is attending SUI on a National Association of Master Plumbers scholarship, will lead a discussion on the same subject with journeymen, master plumbers and others later in the evening.

Donald Foley, E1, Kansas City, Mo., also attending SUI on the same type of scholarship, will assist in the discussions.
