Infantrymen Protect Crew of Knocked Out Tank

AN AMERICAN TANK, disabled by an enemy mine, was covered by infantrymen (left and right) who rushed up to see that the tank's crew got safely out of their tank. The tank was an M-4, known by non-fighting soldiers and civilians as a General Sherman.

Paratroops Dropped Behind Enemy Lines North Of Seoul

(From the Wire Services)

TOKYO (FRIDAY)—Thousands of U.S. paratroops today dropped behind enemy lines north of Seoul and cut the main escape highway for an estimated 60,000 Communists.

Soldiers of the 187th regimental combat team, supported by airborne Rangers, jumped south of the Imjin river, some 10 miles below the parallel, as three divisions drove forward from Seoul toward the First Corps positions.

Bailed Out
The paratroops bailed out of C-119 and C-46 transports at 9 a.m. 800 feet above the Munsan area, 22 miles northwest of Seoul on the historic invasion route from south into North Korea.

At the same time, task force Groden, a mighty column of Patton tanks, slashed up the road from Seoul to try to trap the fleeing Communists.

The new action north of Seoul came as other Allied troops to the east rammed through Red rearguards to the doorstep of North Korea.

It was believed that patrols in some sectors already may have crossed the 38th parallel.

Spread Out
The airborne troops spread out along the flatlands north of the Imjin river, which flows about 20 miles north and northwest of Seoul.

Field reports said the airborne troops cut the main road that leads 35 miles northwest from Seoul to Kaesong.

It was a brilliant maneuver, personally led and directed by America's own master paratrooper, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U.S. Eighth army commander.

Paratroop landing was unopposed, but the bulk of the 15,000-man Korean corps was believed to lie between the new Allied "beachhead" and the advancing tanks.

Combed by Airplanes
The narrow valley in which the airborne troops dropped had been combed out by Allied warplanes before the landing, and smoke from fires started by the air attack was still rising as the paratroops floated down.

Several anti-aircraft positions had been reported in the vicinity, but the paratroop planes encountered no flak.

The attack north of Seoul apparently was intended to bring troops on the western front in line with more advanced units in the center and to the east.

Johnston Tells U.S. Mobilization Effort Hurt by Inflation

(From the Wire Services)

WASHINGTON — Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston Thursday night issued a warning that "too much complacency" over inflation is undermining the mobilization effort.

Johnston called for tighter credit curbs, higher taxes, lower profits, and a check on farm prices and wage increases, to defeat the inflation which is "sabotaging" the defense effort.

"Inflation is already sabotaging our defense just as surely as if it carried the red flag of international communism," he declared in an address prepared for broadcast over the CBS network.

Johnston said last September's $4,500,000,000 tax increase already has been eaten up in the higher price the government must pay for weapons and military equipment.

Johnston also urged labor and management to get together as quickly as possible on another wage stabilization board.

He reviewed the break-up of the present board, inoperative since labor members' walkout over adoption of the 10 percent wage formula, and said it now is up to the union representatives and management to agree on a new panel.

$3,259,241,055.96 Worth

WASHINGTON — The government said Thursday it has more spare cash in the treasury — $3,259,241,055.96 to be exact — than at any time since mid-1948.

Simultaneously, house economy leaders said they will continue to try to cut President Truman's proposed $71.6-billion budget when the next regular money bill comes up for action after the Easter recess.

2 New Suits Filed In Goetsch Case, Ask Total of $40,000

Two suits totalling $40,000 were filed Thursday in district court for Richard and Jean Goetsch, children of the late SUI Dean of Students Walter R. Goetsch, who was killed in a car-truck crash last May 8.

The suits were filed by the widow, Charlotte Goetsch. The suits claim that both children were seriously injured in the crash with the defendant John Nash Wholesale company's semi-trailer truck.

Claim Negligence
Both suits claim that Gerald E. Parks, driver of the Nash truck was negligent, allowing the trailer of the truck to swing across the center of the highway as it approached the Goetsch car on Highway 6, south of Coralville.

Jean, 11, who was thrown from the car in the collision, asks $25,000, and Richard, 9, asks $15,000. Mrs. Goetsch, in a suit filed earlier, asks $51,450.

Jean claims to have lost control over her left eye lid from a cut from her hairline to the side corner of her left eye.

Severe Cuts
She also claims she suffered severe cuts and bruises on her body, and that she now has painful headaches.

Richard, in his petition, claims to have received a brain concussion in the wreck, and injuries to his right leg and foot which have resulted in lameness.

In a counter-claim to Mrs. Goetsch's suit, the Nash company requests $668 damages to their truck.

Larry Parks 'Sick in Bed'

NEW YORK (AP) — Film star Larry Parks, who testified Wednesday in Washington that he once was a Communist, is "sick of heart and sick in bed," his attorney reported Thursday night.

Louis Mandel, the lawyer, said he planned to take Parks "away for a few days until he comes to himself."

Parks testified before the house committee on un-American activities that he joined the Communist party in an idealistic search that "didn't work out" and quit when his interest faded. That was a week ago.

victed of perjury in saying he never gave secret government information to Whittaker Chambers, a Communist courier, and did not see Chambers after Jan. 1, 1937.

His only words were that he had "nothing to add" to previous professions of innocence. He displayed no particular emotion, though he did smile a time or two.

57 Dead, 1,500 Marines Return from Korea

OAKLAND, CALIF. (AP) — More than 1,500 joyful U.S. marines and 57 of the nation's heroic Korean war dead came home Thursday.

The 1,529 marines, many of whom had fought through the 25 below zero cold of the retreat from the Changjin reservoir, basked in warm sunshine at the rail of their transport, the USS General G. M. Randall, as it docked at an Oakland pier. They craned their necks eagerly for loved ones among the hundreds of well-wishers at the dock.

Big Four Meet In Secret Today

PARIS (AP) — The Big Four deputy foreign ministers will meet in their first closed (secret) session today to decide, according to informed sources, whether to continue their deadlocked efforts to arrange a meeting of their chiefs.

For nearly three weeks now, the deputies have failed in their assignment to draw up a list of world problems for the foreign ministers to discuss.

The Russians say the Western powers are to blame. The Western powers say the Russians are to blame.

The delegates agreed to call off Thursday's formal session and to hold the closed meeting today.

City Commission OK's Annexation of 3 Areas

Three areas, including Sunnyside addition, were recommended for annexation, by the city zoning and planning commission Thursday.

The commission's report to the city council requested that the entire four blocks of Sunnyside addition be annexed. Earlier, the council voted to take in one and one-half blocks of the addition, but the action was vetoed by Mayor Preston Koser.

Also recommended to be included in the city was an area west of Crescent street and south of Highland avenue to point 153, west of Keokuk street, and other areas of less than 10 acres which are likely to be developed.

"The city should annex adjoining areas before they are developed so that planning and zoning regulation applied," the commission said.

The woman standing next to her at the counter promptly called store detectives and had her arrested. The woman, Mrs. Lawrence E. Ruffing, was the rightful owner of the charge plate.

La Prensa Editor Disappears; Called Fugitive from Justice

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA (AP) — Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, editor of the government-seized independent newspaper La Prensa, was declared a fugitive from justice Thursday.

A congressional committee, appointed to take over the newspaper and investigate its activities, issued the declaration and ordered federal police to "exhaust all efforts to bring about the capture of the editor of La Prensa because it is essential that he be questioned."

The investigators Wednesday night ordered that Gainza Paz be arrested and imprisoned for 15 days for contempt of congress.

The newspaper executive had sent a statement to congress charging that seizure of his strikeboard paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

The probing body took over the books, keys and funds of La Prensa Tuesday. It issued subpoenas for all the paper's administrative officials and department heads to appear at the congressional building Thursday.

The committee said Gainza Paz could not be located, either at his suburban home or elsewhere.

Jury Recesses In Literature Case

DUBUQUE, Ia. (AP) — It will be another week before Iowans learn the decision of members of a grand jury which has been investigating both popular contemporary literature and classics in an attempt to determine what books are obscene.

The grand jury recessed Thursday afternoon and District Judge John Chalmers directed it to make its report at 2 p.m. next Thursday. The last witnesses heard were Paul Engel and W. B. Irwin, English professors.

County Atty. John Duffy ordered the probe after women's groups, which have been campaigning against sale of pocket book reprints on newstands, complained because Duffy's office dismissed charges against a Dubuque news agency.

Charged with Contempt; Freed on Bail

(From the Wire Services)

WASHINGTON — Jake (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, pudgy "pay-master" of the notorious Chicago Capone syndicate, refused to answer questions for senate crime investigators Thursday and was slapped with a contempt citation that could send him to jail for years.

The fat little racketeer also was placed under $10,000 bail, which he put up almost immediately, to assure his re-appearance before the senate crime committee March 30 for further questioning. The committee is scheduled to end its investigation March 31.

Cited for Contempt
Guzik was cited for contempt after he defiantly stood on his "constitutional rights" and said it would be self-incriminating for him to tell anything about his private or business life or what the committee calls one of the two big criminal gangs in the country.

He chanted "I refuse to answer, I refuse to answer" as the committee asked for his age, his brother's name, his "hiding" place for the past six months, his whereabouts when several persons were killed and how he "got here today."

In a day of hectic activity, most of it again carried to the nation by television, the committee cleared St. Louis bookmaker James J. Carroll of co-rtooned and voted citations against three other men — Ralph J. O'Hara, Chicago; George Bowers, Miami, and John Doyle, Gary, Ind.

Reverberations
The crime committees' recently-concluded hearings in New York continued to reverberate, with these major developments:

1. The committee, saying there are grounds for possible perjury action, decided to certify to the justice department and the New York district attorney for the entire record of the New York hearings. John P. Crane, head of the uniformed firemen's association of New York, testified he gave $10,000 in a red manila envelope to William O'Dwyer when he was mayor, and $55,000 to O'Dwyer's long-time friend, James J. Moran. O'Dwyer and Moran denied it.

2. A house subcommittee ordered the internal revenue bureau to check up to determine whether there had been any tax evasion in "alleged cash transactions" involving O'Dwyer, Moran and others.

3. Moran resigned his $15,000 job as New York city water commissioner on demand of Mayor Vincent Impellitteri.

4. O'Dwyer denied any plans to resign his present job as U.S. ambassador to Mexico. As to whether the crime probe testimony had lessened his value as ambassador, he said his "superiors will be the judge of that." His top superior is President Truman.

Truman Returns From Vacation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman returned tanned and rested from a three-week vacation at Key West, Fla., Thursday and found the same old troubles awaiting him on his White House desk.

His personal plane, the Independence, landed at Washington National airport at 3:55 p.m. (Iowa time) after bucking stiff headwinds throughout a four-hour flight from the southernmost U.S. city.

"If I felt any better, I would need help," Mr. Truman reported gaily.

The March of Time —

Telephone conversation; March, 1951.

Jo: Hello.
Moe: This is Moe Heroe—
Jo: Who?
Moe: Moe Heroe. You know, the captain of the football team and the leading scorer in the Big Ten?
Jo: Oh.
Moe: Eh... well... Jo, if you aren't too busy three weeks from next Saturday, I thought perhaps you'd let me take you to Cedar Rapids when Tex Beneke plays at the Armar.

Jo: Well, Jim—
Moe: It's Moe.
Jo: Oh yes. Well, if we went, how would we get there?
Moe: Don't worry. This time we wouldn't have to use my old car. Dad is going to let me use his new Buick convertible that weekend.

Jo: I'd really like to go with you Jim, but I've already had three offers. I know, why don't you phone me back tomorrow and I can let you know.
Moe: That's swell, Jo! Would 6:30 be all right to phone?
Jo: I may be out then, but you can keep phoning. I've gotta run now. See ya, Jim.
Moe: Goodbye, but it's not (click) Jim...

Telephone conversation.
October, 1951. A. D. (After Draft)

Schmoe: If I've told you once, I've told you a hundred times, DON'T PHONE ME WHEN I'M PLAYING POKER!
Jo: Gee, I'm awfully sorry, Schmoe. But my new convertible just came, and I thought you'd like to take a ride Saturday morning.

Schmoe: Lana LaMar is taking me riding Saturday morning, and you've forgotten, I'm all dated up for the next three weeks.
Jo: Schmoeeee, couldn't you just find one little week right for me? I could take a late leave, and—Schmoe: Late leave! Who wants to spoil a night by coming in at midnight? Why can't you have senior hours? I don't know where you get your nerve!

Jo: But I have this new convertible and I thought...
Schmoe: What kind did you get?
Jo: It's a sky — blue Cadillac, Schmoe, with white leather upholstery.

Schmoe: Well, I suppose I could... Tell you what; a week from Thursday, pick me up at 6:30 and we can stay out until Hedy picks me up at 9.
Jo: Gee, that's swell, Schmoe! Good luck in your poker—
Schmoe: Yeah, see ya.

Youth 'Left Out' of Civic Activities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of six articles dealing with a statewide survey currently studying post-high school educational needs of Iowa's youth.

Iowa's younger citizens haven't bridged the gap between high school graduation and legal access to the ballot box.

But what is this gap? They have their required course in government behind them, the average citizen replies. What more can we ask of the young people?

The problem isn't one of asking young adults of the state to do more. It's one of opening up opportunities for them to participate actively in civic affairs, of making them want to shoulder responsibilities of community leadership, and of finding real responsibilities suitable for their initiative — youth is suspicious of "busy work."

This gap, according to a report by the state research committee currently studying Iowa's post-high school educational needs, results in apparent apathy and a passive attitude toward citizenship problems which goes far beyond the legal voting age of 21. It is found to a certain extent in all age groups, and it is characteristic of practically all Iowa towns and cities, regardless of the size of the community or the source of its economic wealth.

Little difference in civic apathy was found between counties with a four-year college, a junior college and those without a college. This suggests, according to the report, that the colleges of Iowa are not contributing appreciably to growth of local civic enterprise.

Evidence of citizenship responsibility by individual faculty members was noted, but not of organized college action.

The Rise and Fall of Alger Hiss

From the United Press
One-time state department bright boy Alger Hiss Thursday surrendered to federal authorities and was taken to jail to begin serving a five-year term for perjury. Hiss' story follows:

Less than three years ago, Alger Hiss had a reputation beyond reproach. He came from a highly respected family, graduated with honors from Harvard law school, served as secretary to the late, famed supreme court justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and belonged to a distinguished New York law firm.

He went to Washington in 1933, and had a meteoric government career which ended when he became president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in January, 1947.

Hiss' rise to eminence was rapid and brilliant. But his fall from favor was even swifter. It took less than three years.

The "long nightmare" of Alger Hiss began shortly before noon on Aug. 3, 1948. It was a hot, muggy day in Washington and a portly magazine writer named David Whittaker Chambers was testifying before the house committee on un-American activities.

In words that sounded almost like an afterthought, Chambers branded Hiss as a member of a Communist underground ring that stole United States secrets for Russia. He named three persons as members of the group and then added "... as was Alger Hiss."

With those four words, one of the most celebrated legal cases in modern American history had its beginning. Hiss issued an immediate denial, touching off that hotly debated question: "Who is lying—Hiss or Chambers?"

Chambers expanded his charges, said Hiss gave him documents "wholesale" for delivery to Russia. Hiss repeated his denials. The men met face to face. Chambers accused Hiss publicly over the radio. Hiss filed a $75,000 suit for libel.

Then Chambers got down to business. He produced documentary evidence that Hiss had given him government papers. On a cold December night he reached into a hollowed-out pumpkin on his Maryland farm and drew out microfilms of stolen documents he got from Hiss—documents that would put Hiss behind bars.

Legal action against Hiss was begun at once. And on Dec. 15, the final day of its existence, a New York grand jury indicted Hiss on two counts of perjury.

The technical charge said that Hiss lied when he denied giving government secrets to Chambers and lied again when he said he hadn't seen Chambers since Jan. 1, 1937. But the underlying charge was that Hiss had betrayed his government while serving in a high post.

The trial began on May 31, 1948. It ended in a hung jury on July 8, with the jurors eight to four for conviction. On Nov. 17, the second trial began. The verdict, handed down on Jan. 21, 1950, was "Guilty." Four days later Hiss was sentenced to five years in jail.

He appealed and that was rejected. Then Hiss took his case to the highest court in the land. Last week, on March 12, the supreme court turned its back on Hiss, declined to review his case.

Legally the question was no longer "Who is lying," but "What motivated Alger Hiss?"

There was no way out for Hiss but jail. But he still maintained his innocence.

"The wrong will surely be righted," he said. "With a clean conscience, I continue to look forward to the time of my vindication."

Thursday, two years, seven months and 19 days after he first was accused, Alger Hiss was led to jail.

Other Values . . .

TO THE EDITOR:
True, Matthew 19:21 speaks of property. But in answer to Mr. Hans Bierman, I see nothing there or elsewhere in the scriptures that would make keeping property and killing others complementary.

Rather here, I believe Christ was reprimanding this rich, young man personally because the latter was evidently so selfish and proud of his material possessions that he held them above all other values.

It seems to me that if any of us, or any group of people, have a similar mind toward our possessions so that it is objectionable to others enough for them to want us to get rid of what we have, we ought to heed their advice and not glibly defend ourselves at all costs.

Thousands Leave Crowded England

LONDON (AP) — Quietly and without any fuss, one of the biggest mass migrations of modern times is being stepped up in Britain.

Since the end of World War II, nearly three quarters of a million Britons have slipped out of English ports and airports to settle abroad. Everyone is sorry to see them go, but nobody wants to stop them.

This exodus, which may change the whole pattern of world economy and strategy within the next generation or two, is a family affair.

Nearly all the migrants are budding empire builders, bound for the promised lands of Australia, Canada and New Zealand, with their vast unpopulated areas and their vast untapped natural resources.

British industry is being hamstrung by a manpower shortage, but even with rearmament wheels starting to hum, there are no signs of any change in Britain's official "hands off" policy toward the mass migration.

Tiny Britain, bursting at the seams with 50-million people jostling each other in an area only slightly bigger than Oregon, would be a sitting duck for enemy bombers in an atomic war.

In Canada and Australia, however, strategists and economists see mighty potential arsenals both for war and peace, protected by thousands of miles of ocean.

Both countries rank among the world's leading agricultural producers, both have tremendous natural resources, and both have young and energetic industries built up during World War II.

Both are making their contribution to Western defense — Canada with her armaments and aircraft factories and Australia with her guided missile projects.

But both lack the hands to keep their industries expanding — and they think British hands are the best.

Australia, for instance, is nearly as large as the United States — but has a population of only 7.5 million. Canada, slightly larger than the U.S., is dotted with a sparse 13.5 million.

Both Australia and Canada — and to a smaller extent New Zealand — are crying out for immigrants. In the first three postwar years these three dominions alone took 300,000 Britons. As far as they are concerned they can keep on coming.

Both New Zealand and Australia have elaborate and well-tried official immigration programs. Australia's plan to boost her population to 20-million in the next 50 years is history's most ambitious resettlement project.

Australia's ministry of immigration sifts applications from man-hungry employers and passes them to a network of immigration offices in most of Britain's large towns. Since this program, with free passage provided in chartered ships, was extended last year to cover hotel accommodation for families with no place to go, these offices have been swamped by over 3,000 inquiries daily from sun-starved Britons.

This year Australia has set herself a target of 85,000 immigrants from Britain, bringing her total since 1946 to 300,000.

Canada's immigration project is less ambitious — you make your own way there, and you find your own job when you get there. But so far she has taken an estimated 1,000 a day since the Canadian government offered to lend the passage money.

Many people in Britain and the commonwealth think there should be some coordinating scheme to deal with the exodus.

But three years ago Patrick Gordon-Walker, then under-secretary for commonwealth relations, turned down that proposal. He told the house of commons "the government wants to encourage and facilitate the flow of immigrants to various parts of the commonwealth, but do not want to force anyone to go."

Gordon-Walker added a proviso that the government would reserve the right to check too great a flow of certain types of skilled workers, but in actual practice this right has never been exercised.

Germany Center for Anti-Communist Intrigue

FRANKFURT (AP) — West Germany is now the world's hottest center of intrigue against Communist governments behind the Iron Curtain.

The plotters are the exiles and refugees driven here from Eastern Europe by war and Red terror.

There are at least 100,000. They come from every country behind the Iron Curtain.

The underground groups they form, the plots they hatch sound like Hollywood melodrama. But they are real. They mean business.

Some of them are old underground revolutionaries who fought the Communists with bombs and sabotage until driven from their homelands by armies they could not match.

The Ukrainian nationalist, led by the fabulous guerrilla chief, Stepan Bandera, are such a group. One Bandera had an army of 200,000 men fighting whole armies of Soviet troops in southwest Russia.

Driven first to the hills and then to flight, they fought their way westward across Red Poland and Czechoslovakia. At least 300 of them — still bearing arms and maintaining military discipline — crossed into Germany in 1947.

Here they still secretly train for the revolution they dream about. They send saboteurs and couriers back into the Ukraine to keep alive their fight for Ukrainian independence.

Bandera flits like a will-o-the-wisp around Germany and Austria, directing his Ukrainians from secret hideouts, which so far neither Red agents nor the U.S. army claim to have found.

The Poles and Russians also have small groups of veteran fighters waiting in Germany for a

Interpreting the News — Something from Nothing, Nothing from Something

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Sometimes the Russian way of doing business would be enough to make you burst out laughing—if it didn't lead to so many tears.

Back during the war things were so tough with Russia that Stalin even agreed to abolish the old Comintern and permit religious freedom — though he didn't lead any church services — to foster the goodwill through which the United States sent him one fifth of all the supplies which he used in his defense against Germany.

Stalin was in such a jam that he even tried to make friends with his own enslaved people, and old "Mother Russia," for whom the peasants have ever been willing to lay down their lives, was permitted to replace even Joe himself for a time as a proper object of all reverence.

Russia had such a narrow escape from Germany that it was obvious that Lend-Lease meant the difference between defeat and victory.

When the war was over, President Truman rather abruptly terminated Lend-Lease. The manner of action has created some argument as to whether it was wise, and whether it has contributed to subsequent poor relations.

Be that as it may, in due course the U.S. asked the Lend-Lease beneficiaries to settle up for left-over supplies or return them. Assessed valuations were culled to the bone, leaving little but token payments to be made by everybody.

But Joe didn't want to pay. The U.S. agreed to knock off about 90 percent of the bill, and to let Russia buy more than 600 loaned vessels if she paid the balance.

Still Joe wouldn't part with his dollars. The U.S. said all right, if you're going to waltz, you'll have to return the ships. All the Lend-Lease countries had agreed to return such left-over items.

But Joe says he's not going to do it. He says the U.S. agreed to let him buy the ships, choosing to forget the "pay the balance" clause. And a vigorous shaking of the envelope fails to reveal enclosure of any check to pay for the vessels.

Well, Joe is just as good about making agreements out of nothing as he is at making nothing out of agreements. There's no surprise about things like that any more.

But the laughable part comes in when Joe says one reason he won't return the ships is that the U.S. doesn't need them.

That's proven, Joe says, by the fact that the U.S. has been selling surplus ships to Latin American and other countries recently.

He's probably embarrassed about the whole thing, just the same.

Alive 2 Years After 'Death Warrant'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — What happened to Mrs. Heart?

Well, you'll be glad to know, she's still alive — a full 24 months after doctors said a heart condition would kill her in a year.

"I'm still under a specialist's care," the middle-aged, moderately wealthy Oklahoma City widow says. "But my improvement has been miraculous."

The woman, known to tens of thousands of newspaper readers only as Mrs. Heart, still refuses to identify herself.

"My state of mind has changed completely," says Mrs. Heart, who asked a sympathetic nation in March of 1949 how best to spend $10,000 in the year she thought would be her last.

The woman who once had "a reckless kind of feeling" has been in California with her only daughter during much of the past year.

She spent most of the $10,000 she rationed herself — the daughter already has been provided for in a will — in the first year after receiving what she thought was a death warrant.

And she has a reason for "my improved health."

She attributes it to a simple formula.

"I have a new desire to get well," Mrs. Heart says. "And that's because of the interest so many strangers showed in me."

Ham Is the Traditional Easter Dinner

A Luscious Looking Ham for Easter

LOOKING EVERY BIT AS GOOD AS IT TASTES, a ham-end makes a very good Easter dinner. This economical part of the ham is easier for the average person to slice than a full ham. The bone from this can be used to enhance the flavor and nutritious value of soups.

Easter with all of its deep spiritual significance also has a rich food tradition built up about it. The experts seem to differ on why we in America eat ham on Easter, but whatever the reason ham is the favorite dish for the Easter dinner.

If your family expects ham for Easter, a good buy for the occasion, or for any Sunday dinner, is the shank half of the ham.

It's the most economical of all ham cuts and may be garnished as handsomely as you like for the traditional feast. Another selling point is the ease in which a shank half of ham may be carved.

If you're a lover of hearty soups, you probably will want to have the shank-end removed when you purchase the half ham. Then in making a pot of bean or split pea soup to use up the last hamshavings, you can more easily get all of the bones into the soup kettle.

Baking a Shank Half of Ham

The greatest percentage of hams on the market today are the mild-cure type. These modern day hams should be baked and not boiled. Boiling robs them of much of their flavor, as does soaking overnight.

Place half ham on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Do not add water and do not cover. Place pan in a 325 degree oven and bake 25 minutes per pound. Half an hour before end of the baking time, take ham from oven.

Remove rind and cut flat surface in shallow criss-cross gashes. Stick with cloves, if desired, and spread with a glaze.

This glaze may be made by mixing brown sugar with just enough concentrated orange juice (thawed from the frozen state) to moisten. Spread over fat, return to oven and in 15 minutes, spread with more sugar mixture.

If the ham you have purchased is a cooked, ready-to-eat ham, it needs only heating through, about 14 minutes per pound.

Sweet Potatoes Fixed With Honey

Honeyed sweet potatoes are a festive, nectar-sweet vegetable that makes an excellent accompaniment to flavored baked ham.

Cook potatoes as usual in boiling water, peel and slice. Then dip in heated honey and roll in crunchy corn flake crumbs. Dot with butter, sprinkle with paprika and bake for about 25 minutes.

Ingredients for honeyed sweet potatoes are:

- 6 medium size sweet potatoes
- 1/2 cup honey
- 4 cups corn flakes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Scrub potatoes thoroughly and cook in boiling water until tender. Peel and slice 1/2 inch thick. Heat honey in a small sauce pan. Roll corn flakes into crumbs and add salt. Dip slices of potatoes in warmed honey and roll in corn flake crumbs.

Place in buttered baking pan and dot with butter. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees) about 25 minutes. This will make six servings.

Meat, Potato Dishes Are Delicious, Thrifty

To the rescue of your food budget come good meat and potato combinations. Potatoes are plentiful and attractively priced. Here are three dishes which use them in combination with the triftier cuts of meat.

Frankfurters and hot potato salad are combined in a main dish that is quick and easy to prepare. Remember that frankfurters are cooked when you buy them, so that all you have to do is heat them before serving. Make a tasty hot potato salad using bacon, onions, potatoes and vinegar.

If your family enjoys pork sausage, serve pork sausage and cottage fried potatoes. Fresh pork sausage comes in two forms, as links and in bulk form. Both are cooked by browning slowly in a skillet until well done. Pour off fat as it accumulates during browning. Transfer the meat to a warm plate and fry cubed cooked potatoes with a little chopped onion and green pepper in some of the sausage fat. Season well with salt and pepper.

To use leftovers from any of the economy roasts, such as pot roasts and pork shoulder roasts, make meat and potato hash. Cook some chopped onions in a little hot fat, then add equal parts of chopped meat and potatoes moistened with leftover gravy, milk, catsup or tomato sauce. Season with salt and pepper and slowly brown on both sides in hot fat.

Fresh Fish Test

The scales on a fresh fish cling tightly to the skin and have a sheen. The flesh should be elastic and firm; impressions made by fingers should disappear quickly.

Pennywise Porterhouse Is Tasty, Cheap Steak

Steak is a dish fit for a king — and sometimes, these days, it seems that only a king can afford it.

Next time the family demands a steak dinner and the budget won't stretch quite far enough, try this pennywise porterhouse recipe. With a ground beef base, it is definitely pennywise, and when properly broiled, it has the flavor of a real charcoal-broiled porterhouse.

Use the following ingredients for the pennywise porterhouse:

- 1/2 cup fine soft bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon grated or minced onion

Mix bread crumbs and milk in bowl. Add beef, salt, pepper and onion and mix lightly. Then turn mixture out of the bowl onto a sheet of waxed paper and shape the meat into the form of a 1-inch-thick porterhouse, pressing firmly together.

Invert waxed paper with steak onto rack in broiler pan. Place the broiler pan under broiler unit so

Tips on Buying

Here are a few poultry tips for the homemaker. If you want the best in poultry, look for a plump bird with a well-fleshed breast and legs, well-distributed fat, and with few blemishes and pinfeathers.

It's often more convenient, when you're broiling chicken, to finish its cooking in an oven; but use moderate heat (350 degrees) for this finishing touch.

Cooked green peas are delicious added, with a little diced canned pimento, to creamed chicken.

Eggs Can Be Used in Many Ways

Checking the prices in food advertisements leaves no doubt about the fact that eggs are one of the most useful sources of protein.

Eggs are versatile for any of the three meals, and can do dinner duty in place of meat frequently with a little imagination in the way they are seasoned and served.

One of the easiest seasonings to use with eggs is tabasco, the peppery pungent hot sauce. Gourmets have used a few drops with boiled or poached eggs for years, and good cooks picked up the hint from them and add it to other egg dishes. Here is the recipe for the egg dish pictured above as well as another tasty variation.

Tabasco Baked Eggs
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 1/2 cups milk
1 1/2 cups grated American cheese

Melt butter; blend in flour and seasoning. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; add grated cheese, stirring occasionally until cheese is melted.

Divide sauce into 6 individual baking dishes. Break 1 or 2 eggs into each dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until eggs are set, about 12 minutes.

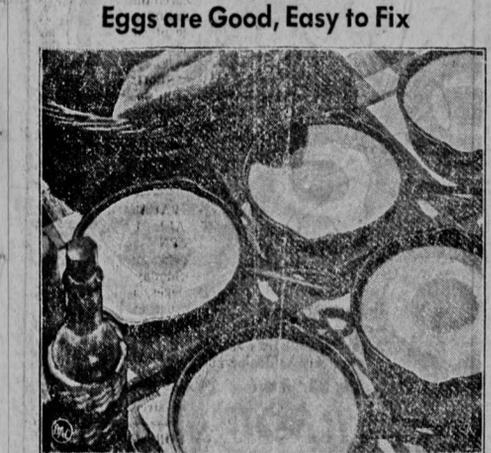

This will make six servings.
Omelet With Creole Sauce
6 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon tabasco
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Beat eggs enough to blend yolks and whites. Add salt, milk and tabasco; mix thoroughly. Heat butter in skillet; tip the skillet to grease sides and bottom. Add beaten egg mixture.

Cook over low heat, lifting the mixture very gently with a spatula as it cooks on the bottom, and tipping the skillet so that the uncooked mixture runs under.

When bottom is browned and mixture firm, fold in half or roll jelly-roll fashion. Serve with creole sauce. This will make four to six servings.

Creole Sauce
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 1/4 cups canned tomatoes
1/4 teaspoon tabasco
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Heat butter, add green pepper and onion. Cook until onion is tender, but not brown. Add remaining ingredients and continue cooking over low heat about 30 minutes or until thick. This will make one cup creole sauce.

ECONOMICAL, NUTRITIOUS AND VERSATILE, eggs are a good dish these spring days. Adaptable to any meal, they are one of the most useful sources of protein. The flavor of many egg dishes may be heightened by tabasco, a peppery seasoning.

Judy Garland Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Judy Garland told a divorce judge Thursday that when her husband "suddenly became withdrawn without reason" she was made nervous, ill and hysterical and required a doctor's care.

Her testimony won her an interlocutory decree of divorce from film director Vincente Minnelli, her husband of five and a half years. She charged mental cruelty.

The 29-year-old actress, wearing a half-length black linen duster coat over a black dress, spoke calmly and quietly.

"When we were first married we were very, very happy," she said. "We had many interests together—our work and friends."

Then Minnelli became withdrawn, she said.

She told Superior Judge William R. McKay that Minnelli, who has directed the star in several movies, "showed a lack of interest in anything—career, friends, my life in general."

Under a court-approved property settlement Minnelli agreed to pay $500 monthly support for their daughter, Liza, five. Miss Garland was awarded custody by the agreement provides the child shall spend an aggregate of six months each year with the father.

Miss Garland gets their two homes at Beverly Hills and Malibu Beach, but agreed to pay Minnelli $25,000 mortgaging the houses if necessary. She also was awarded seven life insurance policies—four on her mother's life, two on her own and one on Minnelli's—and waived rights to them in favor of her daughter.

The Minnellis were married June 15, 1945 and separated last December. Miss Garland was formerly married to musician David Rose.

Miss America Says Legs Not So Important

MOBILE, ALA. (AP) — The current Miss America is stressing art, not legs, and refusing to "parade around in a bathing suit for any amount of money."

Nelonda Betzbe, 22-year-old brunette whose 110 pounds are distributed in near perfect proportions, said that the leg shows were all right back in the early 1920s when Atlantic City pageant started.

"But the public now has a greater sense of values. There's a growth in culture and a greater appreciation for the girl who has talent along with physical beauty." She gave her views in an interview Tuesday night following her arrival in Catalina, Inc., longtime sponsor of the Miss America contest.

A STRICTLY MODERN AND EFFECTIVE WAY to focus attention on a favorite picture is to spotlight it as shown above. Hawkeyes Stave Off Louisiana Tech, 12-9

RUSTON, LA. — The Iowa Hawkeyes bounced to a .500 percentage Thursday by pouring out a 12-9 victory over the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs in the second game of their series.

Coach Otto Vogel used three pitchers as the Iowans built up leads of 8-1 and 8-3 in the first six and one-half-innings before the Southerners came back with three runs in the last half of the seventh and eighth innings. The score was 10-9 in the first of the ninth when Iowa pushed across two runs.

Glenn Drahn started pitching for the Hawks and hurled the first six innings. He was relieved by Jim Anderson who immediately walked two Tech batters. Another left-handed sophomore, Jim Riedesel, came in and finished the game.

Hitting stars for the Hawkeyes were George Hand, Rex and Bill Vana who each had three hits in five times at bat.

The Hawks play the Arkansas Techways today and Saturday in Conway, Ark., before heading back to Iowa City.

Poll Shows Coaches Pick Davenport

CEDAR RAPIDS (P) — Davenport is nearly a 2-1 choice to repeat as Iowa basketball champion, according to a poll of the 16 coaches whose teams appear in the state finals at Iowa City next week.

The poll was conducted by Jack Ogden, assistant sports editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

Nine of the 16 coaches picked Davenport as the team to beat in the 1951 field. Five, including Davenport Coach Paul Moon, chose West Waterloo. One figured Grinnell would take the title, and the 16th chose Keokuk.

Harold G. Stevens, Central high of Sioux City: "I guess the stock answer would be Keokuk. But I have to include Davenport, West and Grinnell."

Don Shope, Keokuk: "I guess I'd say Davenport."

Lavon Steinhoff, Massena: "I'll pick Davenport."

John Megson, Grinnell: "From what I've heard I'll take Davenport." Megson admitted it might be quite a battle if his outstanding pivot star, Dick Ritter, ever hooked up with Davenport's great center, Carl Widseth.

Paul Moon, Davenport: "West Waterloo, I suppose."

Floyd Magnusson, Waverly: "I'll take West Waterloo."

F. L. Pickard, Birmingham: "I'd take Davenport or Grinnell."

Francis Jones, Sioux Center: "I'd have to pick Davenport."

E. G. Strobridge, West Waterloo: "I'll take Davenport."

Ben A. Kammer, Lost Nation: "I'll take Grinnell."

O. M. Cheadle, Roland: "I'll take Davenport or Grinnell in the upper bracket and West Waterloo in the lower bracket."

Les Foreman, Hull: "If they're anything like that team they had a year ago I'd have to take Davenport."

Wendell Webb, East high of Des Moines: "I haven't seen Davenport play but we've met West Waterloo twice. I think I'd take West."

Tom Tierney, Holy Family of Mason City: "This West Waterloo has a fine club. I'd pick them."

Del Mully, Forest City: "I've seen West Waterloo play. I guess I'd pick them as the favorite."

Eddie Freese, Atlantic: "There are some good teams in this part of the state, but I guess I'd pick Davenport as the favorite."

Illini Rally Beats N. C. State, 84-70

NEW YORK (AP) — Illinois, champions of the Big Ten, put on a rousing finish in the final five minutes Thursday night to beat North Carolina State, 84-70 in the semi-finals of the Eastern NCAA basketball tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Illinois now will play Kentucky Saturday night for the Eastern title.

Illinois, ahead by 11 points at half time at 40-29, apparently was headed for defeat when the underdog Southern conference champions came from behind to lead at 66-65 with little more than five minutes left.

Illini Take Lead
Then unexpectedly Illinois broke the game wide open. Baskets by Don Sunderlage and Rod Fletcher put the Illini out in front at 69-68. The Big Ten champs broke loose for 11 straight points to make it 80-68.

Sunderlage, Fletcher and Ted Beach were the big guns as the lads from Champaign, Ill., turned the game into a rout. Each flung in two baskets in the Illini spurt.

Together Sunderlage scored 21 points, Fletcher 19 and Beach 17. Sunderlage and Fletcher each got nine field goals. Beach rimmed eight two-pointers.

One of Fletcher's field goals was a spectacular long shot that set a tourney record of 61 feet, 8 inches. The heave came as the halftime buzzer went off and electrified the crowd.

This gave the Illini their 11-point intermission edge.
The Wolf Pack from Raleigh, N.C., was held scoreless from the field for the first five minutes of the game, but starting the second half they flipped in four field goals that turned the game into an exciting see-saw until the final minutes.

Three of the schools entered this year are undefeated—Oklahoma, Penn State and Wayneburg, Penn. State and Wayneburg, Penn. State, with three unbeaten stars, are regarded as top heavy favorite to capture team laurels.

Full teams of eight men have been entered by Penn State, Oklahoma, Hofstra, Iowa State Teachers, Lehigh and Oklahoma A. & M. college.

Aggies Win In Western NCAA Meet

KANSAS CITY (P) — Joe McKeehen, a scrawny 145-pound guard, scared the living daylight out of Oklahoma A&M before the nation's No. 2 basketball team eked out a 50-46 victory over Montana State in the Western NCAA playoffs Thursday night.

Tonight at 9:45 p.m. (CST) the Aggies will play the winners of University of Washington-Texas A. and M. game. Kansas State and Brigham Young Wednesday night's winners, are scheduled in the other semi-final at 9 o'clock (CST).

The western playoff winner and the runner-up travel to Minneapolis to meet the east's No. 1 and No. 2 teams, for the NCAA title next Tuesday.

McKeehen, wearing glasses and dribbling left-handed, scored only three times from the floor but he dropped in nine free-throws to keep the Rocky mountain team in the running and the 9,000 fans yelling.

Three of the schools entered this year are undefeated—Oklahoma, Penn State and Wayneburg, Penn. State, with three unbeaten stars, are regarded as top heavy favorite to capture team laurels.

Full teams of eight men have been entered by Penn State, Oklahoma, Hofstra, Iowa State Teachers, Lehigh and Oklahoma A. & M. college.

Davenport Easily Wins Valley Track Title; Hawklets 5th

Favored Davenport didn't find much competition at the Iowa fieldhouse Thursday night as the Blue Devils easily won the 21st annual Mississippi Valley conference indoor track meet.

Davenport took six first places in the nine events to score 90 and a half points, exactly 40 points more than second place Clinton.

City high finished fifth with 16 points, behind McKinley of Cedar Rapids and Dubuque.

Bill Hook of Davenport set a new conference shot put record with a heave of 51 feet, seven and a half inches. This bettered by exactly one foot the previous record set by Iowa's Joe Paulsen in the 1947 meet.

Mike Korn was City high's top individual performer. The football fullback placed second in the shot put with a toss of 47 feet, 11 inches. Other City high performances included Bob Moore's fourth in the 50-yard dash; a fourth in the 440-yard medley relay and a fourth in the mile relay.

Low City entered 17 men in the meet.

The order of finish and points: Davenport 90 1/2, Clinton 50 1/2, Cedar Rapids (McKinley) 22, Dubuque 21, Iowa City 16, Cedar Rapids (Wilson) 15, Cedar Rapids (Franklin) 13, Cedar Rapids (Roosevelt) 9.

Ez Charles Isn't Living with Wife

CINCINNATI (P) — Heavyweight boxing Champion Ez Charles is married, but is not living with his wife, he said Thursday.

There is no trouble, he added. It is because "we just think it is best to live this way while I am boxing and my being away so much."

Charles' marriage to a former Miss Gladys Gartrell, and the fact that they have a baby girl, born Feb. 13, came to light Wednesday night.

The champion said the marriage was performed in New Kensington, Pa., Dec. 30, 1949.

Mrs. Charles who is 22-years-old, declined to see reporters at her home in Madisonville, a part of greater Cincinnati.

The heavyweight champion lives with his grandmother, Mrs. Maud Foster, who reared him.

Prestige Prevents Sending Big Ten Champion to Rose Bowl Each Year

NEW YORK (P) — Big Ten Commissioner Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson explained Thursday why his conference steadfastly refuses to guarantee its football champion will appear in the Rose Bowl every single year.

In the last five years, no Big Ten team could play in the Rose Bowl more than once in three years. A new once-in-two-years agreement has been approved tentatively.

Why not a straight pact with the Pacific coast conference, pitting champions?

"We firmly believe it is wrong for one of our teams to repeat on a trip to the Rose Bowl," said Wilson. "Why, we might have sent Michigan out there every one of the last four years and we don't consider that fair."

It's not the money, Wilson said, but the prestige involved.

"We want more teams to have an opportunity to go out," he said.

After Quitting Twice, Ebba St. Claire In Baseball to Stay

BRADENTON, FLA. (P) — Rookie Catcher Ebba St. Claire of the Boston Braves, who twice has "given up" baseball, promised Thursday he won't do it again now that he's got a chance to be a major-leaguer.

The husky rookie, battling for the number two Boston catching job behind Walker Cooper, came up from Atlanta of the Southern association with a reputation as a good long ball hitter, an excellent receiver of pitchers, and a peppy temper.

"Yeah, I twice quit baseball, just at a time when it looked as if I might be making the grade in the major leagues," he admitted.

Retired List
"Well, both times I didn't think they were paying me what I was worth so I decided to just step out and go on the voluntary retired list. But the lure of the game was pretty strong and so both times I came back. This time I figure I'm around to stay."

St. Claire said he was confident that he could fit in quickly with the Boston pitchers and that he always had made it a practice of studying the hitters closely in whatever league he had played.

"The main thing to do is to remember what kind of a pitcher a guy got a hit on the last time he was at the plate against you," St. Claire said. "Then be sure not to signal for that same kind of a pitch the next time."

The 27-year-old native of Whitehall, N.Y., used to be a switch hitter, but he now bats right handed only and thinks concentrating on batting from one side also will help his average. He said he went to batting left handed only as an expedient after being beaned when playing with Albany in the Eastern league in 1947.

"For a good while I couldn't see very well out of one eye so in order to get a better look at the ball, I switched to batting left handed," he said. "But I don't do it any more."

St. Claire said he didn't want to be labeled as a player who was hard to handle because he had quit baseball, first in 1947 and later in 1949.

"I was with Albany in 1946 under a Pittsburgh contract," he said. "I didn't think they offered me enough for 1947 and didn't give me a boost up to a higher club, so I stayed out."

Late Kentucky Spurt Tips St. John's
NEW YORK (P) — Kentucky, the No. 1 team in the country, pulled away from St. John's in the last three minutes Thursday night to walloper the Brooklyn Redmen, 59-43, in the semi-final of the Eastern NCAA basketball tournament before 14,214 at Madison Square Garden.

The victory put Kentucky in Saturday night's final against Illinois who beat North Carolina State, 84-70, in the other semi-final game.

Kentucky broke the game wide open after St. John's had erased an eight-point deficit to tie the score at 43-43 with five minutes to play.

St. John's was held scoreless for the remainder of the game although it remained close until three minutes to go.

At that time it was only 47-43 with St. John's very much in contention. But the situation changed abruptly when Bobby Watson, seven-foot Bill Spivey, Shelby Linville, Lucian Whitaker and Frank Ramsey broke away for six consecutive baskets.

Mickey Mantle Hailed As One of Baseball's Greatest Prospects

LOS ANGELES (P) — "He's the greatest prospect I've seen in my time, and I go back quite a ways," said Bill Dickey, the Yankees' catching coach. "I'll swear I expect to see that boy just take off and fly any time."

Dickey, who does not enthuse easily about anything or anybody, was, of course, referring to Mickey Mantle. And what he said about this 19-year-old refugee from a lead mine was very typical of what every baseball man on the coast is saying.

They say this husky Yankee kid can't miss being one of the greatest. No rookie in this writer's recollection has created the spontaneous commotion that Mantle has stirred up since he reported to the Yanks' school at Phoenix in mid-February.

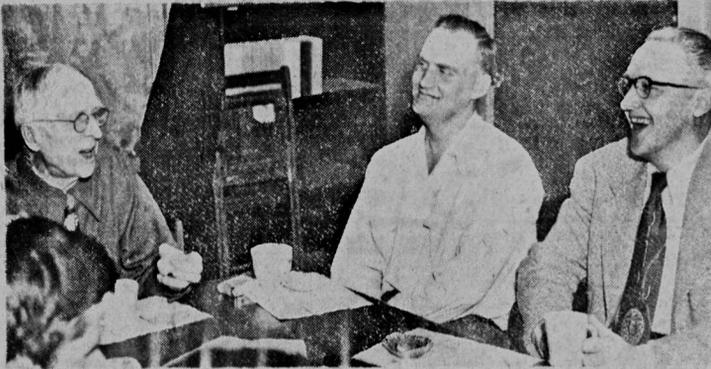

Mickey, whose 190 pounds are stacked on a solid 5-11 frame, hits with frightful power either from left or right. He is an extremely modest, quiet youngster. He finished high school at Commerce, Okla., only two years ago, and he gives the impression that all this is something of a pleasant surprise to him.

"I don't know which side I can hit better from," he says, seriously. "I'm right-handed, but it seems natural to hit from either side. I guess I've hit left-handed more."

Tax Bureau Says Agents Checking Underworld Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bureau of internal revenue disclosed this week its agents are making a "full scale investigation" of the tax returns of some 1,700 underworld characters, including Joe Adonis and Frank Costello.

George J. Schoeneman, commissioner of the bureau, said preliminary inquiries are underway in another 800 cases for a total of about 2,500. He said 374 of this number are targets of priority investigations involving more than $34-million in taxes and penalties.

Schoeneman gave the information to a special house committee investigating the internal revenue bureau's tax policies. The special senate crime investigating committee has accused the bureau of letting racketeers set by with evasions that would lead to serious trouble for an ordinary citizen.

The commissioner, who flatly denied the senate committee's charge, also handed the house group a heretofore secret list of names of 126 prominent underworld characters. The list, which also was given to the justice department, was promptly made public by the committee.

All those on the list are under investigation by Schoeneman's agents.

Claim Business Group Finances Red Activity

BOSTON (AP)—A World War II navy officer said this week a former high Communist official is running a powerful combination of business enterprises to finance the party's espionage apparatus.

Elliott Earl said the enterprises are in Boston, various parts of New England, New York and other eastern states.

Former special assistant to Adm. Ellis M. Zacharias, wartime U.S. navy intelligence director, Earl identified the Communist financier only as "Comrade Z."

Murder Inc.'s Ghost Dug Up By Senate Crime Committee

NEW YORK (AP)—Senate crime investigators have dug up the ghost of the once terrifying Murder, Inc.

During this week's committee hearings here names which once struck terror in the hearts of law-abiding citizens and hoodlums alike have flown thick and fast.

What kind of organization was this which went about homicide with professional zeal?

Name Misleading In the first place, the name is slightly misleading. The ruthless gang's primary business was not murder itself. It merely killed those who threatened to disrupt its lucrative business in gambling, prostitution, shake-downs and other rackets.

But though murder was a sideline, it wasn't squeamish when it came to eliminating its enemies. During its hey-day in the 1930's Murder, Inc., was believed responsible for at least 63 murders in New York City alone and many more in Chicago, Los Angeles, Newark and other cities.

The gang met its end shortly after Jan. 1, 1940, when Brooklyn—the gang's "hometown"—got a new district attorney.

When William O'Dwyer assumed office, there were about 20 unsolved murders on police books.

During his first term he sent some of the top leaders of Murder, Inc., to the electric chair.

Grim Humor There is an element of grim humor marking the new district attorney's first big "break" in the gangbusting case.

Two of its rules were that (1) no member could ever resign and (2) members accused of violating its laws were brought to "trial."

The combination developed its own "lawyers," more or less skilled in arguing the cases of fallen members.

One such "lawyer" was Abe Reles, who was proud of his forensic abilities. One day he appeared at a combination "trial" to argue the case of another member, "Pretty" Levine, who wanted to retire from the business of homicide and settle down to a more peaceful life with his new wife.

The combination "directors" took a dim view of Levine's ambition. They also decided that Reles showed a bit too much enthusiasm for the case. The "directors" decided to eliminate both Levine and Reles.

Reles fled to police. It was his testimony that gave O'Dwyer his "perfect case" against Albert Anastasia, notorious "executioner" of Murder, Inc.

Listened with Interest The senate committee listened with interest as it was described how Reles never liked to tell his full story and how Anastasia has since walked the streets a free man with a $50,000 home. For on Nov. 12, 1941, Reles—still under police protection—fell from the fifth story window of a Coney Island hotel and broke his spine.

A police investigation listed Reles' death as accidental. Police said he killed himself while trying to get out of the hotel room by an improvised rope made of hotel bed sheets.

An air of mystery still surrounds Reles' death. Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) committee member indicated this by appearing frankly sceptical of some officials' explanations.

It has been pointed out that policemen guarding Reles had checked his room only minutes before he was found dead. They said he appeared to be asleep. It has been pointed out that Reles lived in mortal fear of gangland retaliation. Some wondered why he would try to escape the comparative safety of police protection.

Whatever circumstances surrounded it, Reles' death ended the district attorney's move to imprison Anastasia. But Reles' testimony did lead to the execution of several big wigs of crime—including Harry (Happy) Malone, Frank (The Dasher) Albandano, Harry (Pittsburg Phil) Strauss, Martin (Bugsy) Goldstein and Irving (The Plug) Nitzberg.

But the gang's so-called "executioner" slipped out of the "perfect" case.

Russians Dig Bulgarian Uranium at Fast Pace

NIS, YUGOSLAVIA (AP)—Yugoslav officials have produced a Bulgarian fugitive who said the Russians are operating a Bulgarian uranium mine around the clock.

Uranium is the element used in the production of atom bombs. The officials called a special news conference at a refugee camp here for iron curtain escapees.

The fugitive, identified as Georgia Dimitrov, told the reporters Bulgaria is greatly increasing military preparations under the direction of Russians.

He said the uranium mine he referred to was in Bulovo, near Sofia.

CRANE, head of New York City's uniformed Firemen's association, admitted to senate investigators at New York that he handed ex-Mayor William O'Dwyer $10,000 as "evidence of support" in O'Dwyer's 1949 campaign, to have him on "our side," and contributed $3,500 to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's 1948 campaign for the presidency. In earlier testimony O'Dwyer and Moran denied receiving money from Crane.

Kitts, Hardy Guilty on 3 Counts; Face 40 Year Prison Terms

MASON CITY (AP) — A federal court jury Thursday night convicted Kenneth A. Kitts and Yancy D. Hardy on three counts in connection with the $38,000 robbery of the Laurens state bank last Nov. 3. The verdict was returned at 7:45 p.m., just four hours and 45 minutes after the case was handed to the jury of eleven women and one man.

Kitts, 33, of Omaha, and Hardy, 32, of Tyler, Tex., both remained pale and impassive when the verdict was read.

The two men could be sentenced to a maximum of 40 years each on three counts of the indictment.

The indictment against both men charged them with:

Entering a bank with intent to commit robbery. This carries a sentence of up to 20 years.

Stealing from a bank. This carries a term of up to 10 years.

Transporting more than $5,000 in stolen goods across a state line. This also carries a term of up to 10 years.

Federal Judge Henry N. Graven said he would pronounce sentence within a few hours. He did so after Kitts waived an indictment and agreed to plead guilty to charges of escaping from a Cedar Rapids jail. Graven had instructed the jury to consider carefully the testimony of the state's star witnesses, Pasquale Belcasto, 30, Omaha, and Tony Prochero, 29, Sioux City. Belcasto has pleaded guilty to participating in the actual robbery. Prochero has pleaded guilty to receiving part of the loot. Both were awaiting sentencing.

Yank Casualties Rise to 55,814

WASHINGTON (AP)—Official American casualties in the Korean war rose to 55,814 last Friday, an increase of 1,165 over the previous week, the defense department reported this week.

The figure represents casualties whose next of kin have been notified. The actual number is higher since one to three weeks are required for such notifications.

The new toll includes 9,377 deaths, 35,934 wounded, 9,364 missing and 110 taken prisoner. The missing figure includes 1,027 who had been reported missing but later were found.

Coralville to Vote on $70,000 Bond Issue For School Addition

A $70,000 bond issue to finance an addition to the school building will be presented to the Coralville voters in the special school election April 19.

The date was set at a school board meeting Monday when the members considered a petition favoring the bond issue.

The school building was completed more than two years ago and was deemed adequate at that time. The enrollment soared to 195 pupils last fall and estimates indicate that it might reach the 300 mark within the next five years if present trends continue.

The proposed addition was presented to a P.T.A. meeting in November by SUI architect, George L. Horner. The plans call for four new classrooms, a new principal's office, extra storage space and toilet facilities.

Horner estimated that the cost of constructing and equipping the addition would be in the vicinity of $70,000. This is the amount of bonded indebtedness which is possible, by law, for the community to assume now.

The members have indicated that if a 60 percent favorable vote is received, they plan to let the bids immediately with a view of completion by the beginning of school next fall.

Ford Trust Assets Set at Half Billion

DETROIT (AP)—The Ford foundation, richest public trust in the world, announced Thursday its net assets as of Dec. 31 were nearly half a billion dollars.

Under the direction of foundation President Paul G. Hoffman, the vast resources will be used to work for world peace and better government, living and education conditions.

The foundation, in its annual financial statement, listed assets of $492,678,255, nearly double the $250-million the trust was estimated unofficially a few months ago.

Of the total, spendable liquid assets were listed as $68,791,847. Bulk of the foundation's assets consists of 3,089,908 shares of class A non-voting common stock of the Ford Motor company, carried at $135 a share or $417,137,560.

These shares represent gifts from 1937 to 1950 from the late Henry Ford and his son, Edsel B. Ford, and their estates.

Russia Refuses To Return Vessels

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has told the United States flatly that it "refuses to consider" returning 670 American vessels obtained under lend-lease during World War II.

State department negotiators reported the Russians accused the United States of violating a promise to sell the fleet to the Soviet Union.

In a note presented at Wednesday session of the lend-lease talks, the Soviet government also took the position that this country does not need the merchant and naval ships in its accelerated defense program, as it claims. The note said the United States has sold surplus ships to several South American and other countries recently.

Collection Suit Filed

Wayne's Wiring service, West Branch, Thursday filed a $289.50 collection suit in district court against Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kadera, Johnson county.

The store claims that in 1949 wiring service totaling $319.50 was furnished to the defendants, and that only $30 has been paid on that amount.

AFL Postpones Meat Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—The AFL meat plant workers announced Thursday "there will be no AFL strike Monday" after they received a plea from AFL President William Green to delay a threatened nationwide walkout.

The CIO united packinghouse workers union, which had threatened to walk out with the AFL, said it had left "the timing of the strike" to its strike strategy committee. No strike date was announced.

Green sent appeals to both unions, representing some 220,000 workers, asking them to delay action that might upset negotiations in Washington between the united labor policy committee and defense mobilization officials.

Both unions had threatened to strike Monday.

The action did not rule out the possibility of a strike of CIO meat handlers Monday but the two unions have been acting together throughout the dispute.

Both unions reaffirmed their right to strike, but the date was left up in the air.

WALTER REUTHER, UAW president, loudly shouted his condemnation of the government's mobilization effort as he addressed hundreds of labor leaders at a national rally at Washington, for discussion of the defense program.

A-Bomb Equipped Armies Could Stop Russia, Bush Asserts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the Carnegie institution of Washington, said Thursday night the United States and its Allies can build A-bomb equipped land armies that "could stop the Russian army if it starts."

He made the statement at a Washington preview of a "March of Time" film based on his book, "Modern Arms and Free Men." Members of the cabinet, congress and the diplomatic corps attended the showing.

"We and our allies can build forces in Europe that could stop the Russian army if it starts, and be so obviously ready to stop it that the attempt to penetrate our lines would not be made," he said.

Bush, speaking for the "committee on the present danger" of which he is a member, said that ground forces equipped with "weapons of the future" are needed to stop any Russian attack.

"For example, we can use the A-bomb tactically—that is, against enemy troops—delivered by aircraft, guns and guided missiles," he said.

"So, if there is a great troop concentration in an attempt to break our lines—and this is the Russian tactic—we can smash that concentration before it becomes effective."

SUI Graduate Co-Authors Book

An SUI graduate of 1931 is the co-author of a 100-year-old diary of an ex-slave which will be published this month by the Louisiana State university press.

Edwin Adams Davis, who received his M.A. here, has collaborated with W. R. Hogan of Tulane university on the book, "William Johnson's Natchez." The diary was found in the home Johnson built in 1840 and which is still occupied by Johnson's descendants.

Johnson was freed from slavery in his early teens and became a barber. He later acquired other businesses and became a wealthy man. The diary covers 16 years.

Davis received his Ph.D. at LSU and is now a professor of history there.

Woman Jury Finds Rogers 'Not Guilty' Of Slaying Divorcee

DES MOINES — An all-woman jury late Thursday freed Joseph A. Rogers, 33-year-old Collins, Iowa, farmhand, of a charge of shooting an attractive divorcee to death in a Des Moines hotel lobby last Dec. 2.

The victim, Mrs. Grace Del Vecchio, 35, divorced wife of a Sioux Falls, S.D. bartender, was shot to death while her foster son, Jimmy, 6, looked on.

The boy was a key witness against Rogers in the murder trial. He pointed a finger at Rogers and identified him as the slayer in a childish voice that brought silence to the crowded courtroom during a highpoint of the trial.

Rogers testified he did not mean to shoot the woman. He said he intended to kill himself and shot her in a moment of confusion after she spurned his offer of marriage.

Rogers was arrested in Kansas City, Kas., on Dec. 19. He was living there under an assumed name.

The woman had been a housekeeper on the farm of Rogers' uncle.

The jury returned a verdict of innocent at 5 p.m. after three hours of deliberation.

Officials Consider Meat Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Beef industry representatives talked over the meat price situation Thursday with government officials who are studying proposed price ceilings on dressed beef and pork and live cattle and hogs.

Although the meat price and supply situation is one of the hottest issues facing control officials, the office of price stabilization (OPS) still can not give any indication when the proposed ceiling price orders may be issued.

One OPS official told a reporter that beef ceilings might be several weeks away. He said no definite conclusions have been reached on what will be done along lines of price stabilization.

The conference with the beef industry advisory committee was a forerunner for an important meeting OPS officials have scheduled with livestock men next Tuesday. At that time discussion will center on proposed cattle ceilings—a move that may come along with or shortly after placing of ceilings on dressed beef.

Easter Seal Drive $1,100 Short of Goal

The Easter seal campaign, with only two days to go, is still $1,100 short of its goal of $3,200, Johnson county Chairman James Stronks said Thursday.

The campaign to collect money for Iowa crippled children will officially end Sunday. A total of $2,100 has been contributed from Johnson county.

Funds raised through the Easter Seal campaign are used to finance aid for handicapped children in Iowa and are administered by the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Stronks said contributions should be sent to "Crippled Children" in care of the local postmaster.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (AP) Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, who is seriously ill at his home, sat up in bed Thursday and smoked a 50-cent cigar to celebrate his 67th birthday.

The Republican lawmaker's two daughters brought a gaily-decorated birthday cake to his bedside. They also showed him scores of birthday greetings which arrived by the bagful.

Dr. A. B. Smith, Vandenberg's physician, reported that the senator had a comfortable day but that his condition still was serious.

Spring Arrives One Day Late

WIND AND SAILS WERE ABSENT Thursday on Iowa City's streets, but local residents had all the other requirements for sailboating in the city as water from melting snows reached a foot in depth in some places. Temperatures which climbed to 46, made ideal boating conditions such as these shown on Riverside drive. Strangely enough citizens didn't seem to mind. They just plowed along enjoying the new signs of spring.

Davenport Woman Held After Mother's Death

DAVENPORT (AP)—Police took Mrs. Marvin Perkins, 29, into custody Thursday for questioning about the mysterious death of her mother Tuesday.

Detective Capt. Harold Thordson said Mrs. Perkins was not a suspect, but "she has the answers to a lot of our questions."

Mrs. Pearl Waits, 68, died shortly after she was found lying at the foot of basement steps in her home. She died of a skull fracture caused by "a fall or head blows," Coroner Reed Phillips said.

A purse containing money and a diamond ring was missing from the home and later was found empty in a tavern rest room. Police have searched for an elderly man who left the tavern shortly before the discovery.

Governor Gets Butterfat Tax Bill

DES MOINES (AP)—An amended measure designed to boost revenues collected through the state's butterfat tax was approved by the Iowa house of representatives Thursday, then received immediate concurrence in the senate.

The bill, which was sent to Gov. William S. Beardsley for his signature, would extend the present 15-day period during which a one-cent per pound butterfat tax is collected to a full two months.

In past years, the tax has been collected from June 1 to June 15. The new period would fix annual dates for the levy from May 1 to June 30.

The tax is collected by creamery operators from the state's milk producers. Revenues are then forwarded to the Iowa dairy industry council.

Judges Pay

Bills to stop the pay of judges under certain circumstances and to give the attorney general veto power over administrative agency rules were among 14 measures which the house passed speedily.

The house then adjourned until 11 a.m. Monday for the Good Friday Easter week end.

Yesterday in Washington

ATLANTIC PACT ARMY — Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R-Ohio), urged the senate to limit U.S. troop contributions to the Atlantic Pact army to one-tenth of the total force.

Returning to the "great debate" which he helped start, Taft introduced a series of restrictive amendments to the pending resolution endorsing President Truman's plan to commit six divisions to the unified army commanded by General Eisenhower.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Chairman Emanuel Celler, (D-N. Y.) of the house judiciary committee, introduced legislation to curb lawmakers' rights to insert otherwise libelous matter in the congressional record and thus escape prosecution.

RESERVISTS — A program to relieve the uncertainty of reservists now awaiting calls to active duty was outlined by Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense.

She said the defense department hopes soon to announce that no more inactive reservists will be called unless the world situation changes or the individual reservist has unusual military qualifications.

RFC — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, (D-Minn.) said that private banks are trying to kill the Reconstruction Finance corporation and "some people" in the agency have "played right into their hands" through irresponsibility.

DEFENSE CONTROLS — A full-dress senate investigation of the defense controls and production program was ordered with emphasis on "apparent abuses" of government tax concessions to business.

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank, (D-S. C.), said the senate-house controls "watchdog" committee will start the inquiry at once, with public hearings beginning April 4. Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson will be the first witness, he said.

It Shouldn't Happen to a 'GI'

HANFORD, CALIF. (AP)—Veterans administration officials were reading fine print in the GI bill of right Thursday.

The reason—a destitute, aged German shepherd dog, Pal, has filed for medical benefits.

Officials said as far as they have been able to determine Pal fulfills all the requirements. They are puzzled, however, whether "veterans" can be defined to include canines.

Pal was honorably discharged after two and a half years military service as a sentry at an atomic warfare base and at Salinas, Calif. He now suffers fungus infection and his master, Claude Brown of Avenal, is unable to provide medical treatment.

Officials reported they have referred the matter to Washington for a decision.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

Well, it won't be long now. Monday is election day, and that's when Iowa City elects five new city councilmen under the council-manager form of government that the voters chose last spring.

These councilmen you elect on March 26 are important persons. One of them will become mayor of Iowa City. After the election, the five winning candidates will get together and choose one of their number to be mayor.

Another important thing about these councilmen is that they will select and hire the city manager. Incidentally, the new council will take office the Monday following the election, and that's when the council members will elect a mayor to preside over the council and to be the official head of the city.

All the candidates for city council have been nominated by Iowa Citizens through petitions. Five of the candidates are sponsored by the Iowa City Council-Manager association, a non-partisan citizen's organization. These five men are William J. Holland, James M. Hotel, Clarence A. Parizek, W. V. (Pat) Pearson and Walter L. Daykin.

Parizek, Pearson and Daykin are being supported for four-year terms. Holland and Hotel are candidates for two-year posts. In case you've forgotten, the council will be made up of three four-year members and two members for two-year terms.

This sounds complicated, but it is perfectly simple, and gets easier as the years go by. You may rest assured that it is all very legal and according to Hoyle.

The candidates supported by the C-M association are all long-time residents of Iowa City. They aren't politicians—they're citizens with a yen to help the community.

Take Clarence Parizek for example. He is the proprietor of a grocery store here, graduated from City high, and has a proclivity for minding his own business. He's no politician; he's a neighbor.

DON'T FORGET — MONDAY IS THE DAY.
