Davenport, Keokuk, Grinnell, Sioux Center Win In Tourney

By HOBERT DUNCAN Daily Iowan Sports Editor

There's a saying that everyone loves a winner but the Davenport Blue Devils are certainly an exception. This was proven Tuesday night at the fieldhouse when Davenport whipped Waverly, 60-46, to become one of the four teams winning in the first round of the 1951 state basketball tournament.

Other winners were Keokuk, 49-48, over Sioux City Central; Grinnell, 58-26, over Massena and Sioux Center, 72-44, over Birmingham.

These four teams move into Thursday's quarterfinal round where they will be joined by today's four winners. Keokuk will play Grinnell and Davenport will meet Sioux Center.

Tuesday night a crowd of 11,000 gathered in the fieldhouse to watch the Blue Devils start defense of the title they won without exertion last year. The crowd

Close Loss Brings Tears

'Bucky' O'Connor Named Head Basketball Coach

Frank "Bucky" O'Connor was named head basketball coach replacing Rollie Williams who resigned because "the strain of Big Ten coaching is more than my health can stand."

Williams thus carried out a promise made after the Indiana game to quit after the season was over. "I have been advised by my physician that I would be wise to discontinue coaching in the best interests of my health," Williams said in a prepared statement. "In addition I would like to have full time to devote to my duties as assistant athletic director," he added.

Williams' resignation came as no surprise after his statement during the season expressing a desire to quit. Most observers felt that it was only a matter of time until the official announcement was made. O'Connor's appointment was also no surprise. He reportedly was the only candidate considered by the board in control of athletics who made the official decision at a Monday night meeting.

The appointment has the approval of the state board of education and is effective at once. Athletic Director Paul Brecher in commenting on the change, said, "I'm sorry that Rollie has found it necessary to request that he be relieved of his coaching duties. He has had a most satisfactory season. His team finished in third place in the conference and its season in tough competition with a 15-7 record."

"Rollie will continue with his full-time responsibilities as assistant athletic director and a highly valued member of our staff. "We are fortunate in already having on our staff Bucky O'Connor, a highly qualified successor to Williams. O'Connor was an outstanding college player, a most successful high school coach, and he had three years as an assistant coach on our own staff."

Prof. Paul Blommers, chairman of the board of control of athletics, said that the board unanimously action recommended appointment of O'Connor. "We regret that Williams finds it necessary to leave the post, but we are happy that we have a man of O'Connor's caliber available," Blommers said. O'Connor came to Iowa in 1948 as head golf coach, a post he will continue to hold, and freshman basketball coach. During the 1949-50 season, O'Connor was one of three coaches to handle the team. "Pops" Harrison, head coach at the time, was ill during the entire conference season. The team under O'Connor broke even in 10 Big Ten games.

After Harrison was discharged, Williams and O'Connor were the two leading candidates for the vacancy. Williams, who had coached at Iowa for 13 seasons before World War II, reluctantly accepted the job after receiving encouragement from the athletic department and the players. It is understood that O'Connor was told he was next in line when Williams decided to quit. Under that arrangement, O'Connor became varsity assistant to Williams during the past season. When Williams took over as head coach, he said he had been away from coaching for eight years and didn't know how his health would stand up under the strain. As the season progressed, it became apparent that Williams'

City Council Accepts Bid Over Protest

Over the protests of Alderman Wilber J. Teeters, the city council Tuesday night awarded a $63,238.35 asphalt resurfacing project for Iowa City streets to the Hargrave Construction Co., Inc., of Cedar Rapids.

"This bid was almost $5,000 more than the city engineer's estimate for this job," Teeters declared. "I don't believe members of this council can vote for this with a clear conscience."

City Engineer Fred E. Gartzke said that it was true the bid of the Hargrave firm, the only bid filed, was about eight percent more than his estimate.

Teeters said he was also afraid the resurfacing would be delayed once the contract was let. However, a clause took care of that by specifying the work must be begun not later than June 1, 1951, and must be completed by July 31.

Total ballots cast in Monday's municipal election was listed as 3,990. The council, after canvassing the election records, came up with these totals:

For a four-year term on the council: Pearson, 3,522; Daykin, 3,400, and Parizek, 3,011, were elected. Lawer received 1,020 votes.

For a two-year term on the council: Holland, 2,618, and Hotel, 2,365, were elected. Loria received 1,458 and Kammermeyer 891 votes.

Kanak was elected park commissioner with 3,204 votes. The revised city code was approved by the council. Economy Printing company of Iowa City was given the job of printing the code after that firm had offered the low bid. Borchart and Borchart were given authorized payment of $1,500 for work on the code.

The present council will meet Monday at 10:30 a.m. The new city council will be given the oath of office Monday noon.

Bill Would Exempt Students' OASI

DES MOINES — The Iowa house of representatives passed a bill Tuesday that would exempt students and other part-time workers from contributing to a pension fund for public employees.

Public employees attending school and other government job holders earning less than $200 a year would not have to contribute to the Iowa old age and survivors insurance fund if the bill becomes law.

At present, all workers employed in non-elective jobs by city, county and state governments are compelled to contribute four percent of their annual salary up to $3,000 to the pension fund. The bill was sent to the senate.

Gaps in the stands will be filling fast as the tournament progresses into the final rounds.

South Koreans Capture Town North of Parallel

TOKYO, (WEDNESDAY) (UP) — South Korean troops smashed another three miles into North Korea Tuesday and captured the town of Yangyang, six miles above the 38th parallel, while American forces above Seoul hacked up an entire Chinese division.

The rampaging South Koreans who led the United Nations advance into North Korea last fall pushed northward from the captured fishing village of Yonpo, three miles above the parallel, and swarmed into Yangyang on the main east coast highway leading north.

The ROK infantrymen were reported advancing without opposition as American destroyers lying off the coast bombarded enemy positions ahead of them. At one point naval gunfire pinned down the enemy until advancing South Koreans chased them into the hills. American forces mopping up the last thin slice of Red-held South Korea finish off a Chinese division and trap three battalions in the border area north of Seoul.

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary George C. Marshall tells newsmen that Gen. MacArthur has authority to cross the 38th parallel but not to charge ahead to the Manchurian border. MacArthur's action is to be governed by tactical reasoning.

WASHINGTON — Defense Mobilization Chief Charles Wilson says Russia should be afraid of America's speedy mobilization, but warns that inflation is an ever present enemy.

BELGRADE — An official Yugoslav communique reports that trenches are being dug on the Bulgarian side of the Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontier and that Russian officers are directing the operation.

Marshall Says Army Security Causes Action

(From the Wire Services)

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary George C. Marshall said Tuesday that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has authority to go as far beyond the 38th parallel in Korea as necessary for military security, but he said this does not include a sweep to the Manchurian border.

Marshall also warned the United States that the world situation is more serious than it was last November when the Western Allies were shocked by costly reverses in Korea.

The defense secretary told a news conference that the "controlling factor" for MacArthur in regard to the 38th parallel in Korea is the necessity to safeguard the security of his command.

Asked how far north of the parallel UN forces could go if they have the power to advance, he said no geographical line has been set up. But he said going to the Yalu river boundary between Korea and Manchuria would be going too far. UN troops drove to the Yalu river last November but were hurled back by a Chinese Communist offensive.

Marshall's comment was the first official word on how far MacArthur's United Nations forces may go without a new directive from the UN Allies fighting the North Korean and Chinese Communists.

The general did not go into details when referring to the seriousness of the international situation but he made it clear that he was viewing the global picture as a whole. He said that it is unfortunate that the U.S. is engaged in a struggle on the small Korean peninsula while Soviet activity covers the whole world.

General Marshall made his statement after expressing his great surprise at the speed with which the American public and some congressmen had recovered from their emotional shock last fall after the Chinese Reds plunged into the Korean struggle.

Marshall said the military authorities were then criticized for not asking enough in the way of men and money. He expressed astonishment at the current change from that attitude.

He appealed anew to congress for approval of the administration's combined draft - UMT program and voiced strong hope that the legislation will be approved without crippling amendments.

Russia Will Fear U.S. Power - Wilson

WASHINGTON — Defense Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson said Tuesday he is confident the United States soon will be so strong that Russia will be afraid to attack, but warned the battle against inflation must still be won.

At his first news conference since taking over the mobilization reins three stormy months ago, Wilson said he will issue a formal progress report Monday that would frighten him "if I were a principal enemy of the United States."

"America now has in sight the might that I think will forestall any enemy from attacking us," he said. Wilson also said there must be some control of farm prices, but refused to say what. He invited organized labor to end its week-old boycott of the splintered wage stabilization board, but angrily defended himself against labor's charge of big business bias.

Deadline Set Monday For Degree Applications

Applications for degrees for the June graduation must be completed and delivered to the office of the registrar, room 1, University hall, before 5 p.m., Monday. Applications received after Monday will not be considered for June graduation "under any circumstances," SUI Registrar Ted McCarrel said.

ALL GAMES PLAYED IN SUI FIELDHOUSE

alternately cheered and booed — cheered the efforts of Waverly and booed those of Davenport who had an unexpectedly tough time beating the northeast Iowa team.

Waverly stayed with Davenport through three quarters but faded in the fourth before a Blue Devil attack which kept up steady pressure with long shots from the fringes of the Go-Hawks' defense.

Davenport Center Carl Widseth came within five points of Ray Fontana's single game scoring record of 36 and was the one big reason the Blue Devils were able to keep ahead of the scrappy Go-Hawks.

In the other evening game, Sioux Center didn't have much trouble downing class B Birmingham, 72-44. Birmingham made a game of it in the first quarter but Sioux Center steadily drew away in the final three periods.

Keokuk and Sioux City Central opened the tournament in the afternoon with what might be the most exciting and closest game of the entire meet. The lead switched back and forth between the teams until in the final two minutes Keokuk managed a one point margin and stilled the rest of the way.

Grinnell, a dark horse class A challenger from the Iowa City sub-state tournament, easily defeated class B Massena, 58-26, in the second afternoon game before a crowd of 10,000.

Hemisphere Defense Asked by Acheson

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Acheson called on Latin American nations Tuesday to meet the "mortal danger" of communism by swiftly coordinating hemisphere defenses, tightening internal security against Reds and curbing inflation on an international scale.

He also urged consultation on "practical steps" that may be taken "to ensure the maximum protection and strengthening of our basic democratic institutions."

The United States and Mexico introduced resolutions calling for some measure of hemispheric price controls on goods the American countries sell to one another.

The U.S. also circulated two other resolutions calling on each government to agree to ration raw materials with priorities for defense needs and to coordinate transport facilities. The aim of all three U.S. resolutions is to dovetail the mobilization programs of all the American nations.

ATOM SUB SOON

health was falling.

After the season was over Williams remarked that he hadn't wanted to return to coaching in the first place but had been persuaded by friends. "My health just wouldn't take it," he said.

O'Connor has previously coached at Harrisburg, Ill., and Boone high schools. In 1946, after his return to Boone following four years service in the army air corps, O'Connor was named athletic director and head basketball and golf coach. He also served as athletic director at Boone junior college.

In Williams' 14 years as head coach, his teams had an overall record of 147 victories and 139 defeats. During this time, Iowa finished in a tie for second once, a tie for third once and a undisputed third once.

Crowd Floods City as Tourney Opens

By GLENN URBAN (Daily Iowan Managing Editor)

A mighty wave of humanity — more than 10,000 strong — swept into Iowa City Tuesday. And although it happens every spring, Iowa City and its citizens seemed to be knocked a little askew.

This is the week of the boys' state high school basketball tournament and the city is literally bulging with persons from every part of the state.

Some came to cheer their home team, some came to cheer for the team which beat their own, and some came just to see the show — but they too would soon pick a favorite to cheer for.

"A Hell of a Time" Some others, it seemed, came just for the fling — they came with their pockets full of money and an almost grim determination to make the most of their chance to be away from home, school, parents and wives. They would brook little interference to have, in the words of one of their own, "a Hell of a time."

To some local persons it seemed the city had been invaded by a mighty army of midgets — midgets in gayly colored nylon and jockey satin jackets emblazoned with numerals and huge chenille letters and the names of Iowa towns, large and small.

Here and there among the midgets towered a tall, spare youth who no doubt had hoped to be here as a contestant.

The midgets, with their occasional giant, hustled and hustled everywhere. They scooted along streets in Indian files or swept the streets clear before them in mass front rushes.

They thronged into business establishments in sudden floods jostling everyone before them, and as quickly faded out again.

Idle knots While parts of the midget army harassed the city by ducking in and out of stores and rushing along streets, other parts of the army formed idle knots on street corners and seemingly dared anyone to get by.

On the street corners, in stores, or in the midst of their pell-mell rushes they took time to observe the beauty of the Iowa City women as well as the female part of their own army.

The army had its mechanized units too. Their vehicles, new and old, seemed to have no limits to the number of midgets they could hold. For pedestrians attempting to cross streets, life became increasingly hazardous, if not precarious.

But the main occupation of the mechanized midgets seemed to be the same as that of those on foot, with added embellishments — they whistled at women of all ages and invited them to go for rides in cars already fully packed.

Of the whistles and invitations, said one Iowa City woman, "They're good for our morale."

While the midgets baffled everyone with their energy, hundreds of other strangers, dressed in the everyday or Sunday clothes of the state's farmers, working men and business men, resolutely forged their way along to their destinations — and perhaps wished they had the verve of the midgets about them.

Spewed Out Again When night fell, the might army disappeared into the cavernous Iowa fieldhouse, like ants into an anthill. About 10:30 p.m. the fieldhouse spewed them out into the heart of the city again.

A few left for home dejected. They will be replaced today by others who will look just like those departed. Where all who stay will sleep, no one will ever know.

Today will be a repetition of Tuesday, and Thursday will be a repetition of Wednesday and so on until the 1951 state champion emerges Saturday night.

A small part of the army then will be exultant, and a small part glum, another part will feel satisfied for having seen a state tournament and the rest will add the final kick to their fling.

Then the mighty army, the hustling, gayly dressed young and the resolute, orthodoxly dressed adults of all ages, will vanish as quickly as it came.

Sunday only a few vestiges of the hectic week will remain. The city will sigh with relief, and Iowa Citizens will attempt to get back to normal, some relaxing the wariness that had come to mark their steps as they crossed streets, some feeling a year older, and some feeling their morale had been lifted.

editorials Getting Along Just Fine - Or Aren't We?

There appears to be little hope now that President Hancher will get the $8-million annual appropriation he's requested of the state legislature.

And it's beyond us why the people in the state house continue to ignore his explanation of SUI's needs.

Perhaps they feel the figure is too padded—that it includes money for services and training which we can afford to let go by the wayside.

Take the $100,000 the President's requesting for elementary teacher training, for example. He says this is the amount needed to meet the demand of local school authorities and Iowa communities to increase the university's facilities for training the elementary teachers.

In way of explanation, he says that in the past the university has trained relatively few of these teachers, leaving that task to Iowa State Teachers college while SUI concentrated on graduate work chiefly in the fields of administration and supervision.

And in way of what might be called a warning, he says a serious shortage of elementary teachers has developed in Iowa, thus increasing the demands upon SUI to provide more of this type of training.

Maybe the legislators think this is just a lot of talk designed to exaggerate the real needs. We're getting along okay, aren't we?

Yes, we're getting along just fine in terms of education in Iowa. The New York Times completed a survey recently which points up just how well we are getting along.

Iowa was cited by the Times as a good example of one of the wealthier rural states having a high proportion of poorly prepared teachers.

Their survey showed that in the 1947-48 academic year Iowa ranked twenty-seventh among the states in income per school-age pupil. And it also showed that during the same year Iowa ranked THIRTY-SEVENTH in average annual salaries for teachers.

Benjamin Fine, the Times writer, thought it was "interesting" to note that 50 percent of ALL of Iowa's teachers had less than two years of college preparation.

Interesting? We'd say it was embarrassing. The nation's rural teachers ALONE average two years of college, while the urban teachers average four.

Something else that Mr. Fine found "interesting" might also hold some interest for Iowa's legislators.

"Iowa ranked FORTY-EIGHT among the states so far as professional preparation of the teaching staff was concerned," the writer pointed out. (Capitals ours.)

Yes, President Hancher probably is exaggerating the real needs. And we suppose Mr. Fine, sitting in his office in New York city, also is exaggerating Iowa's educational circumstances—just to influence a group of legislators a thousand miles away.

And even if Mr. Fine's figures are accurate, the $100,000 President Hancher is requesting for training elementary teachers still doesn't have to be allotted. We can put that off until later and still not drop in our national standing of professional preparation of the not drop in our national standing of professional preparation of the

Surplus U.S. Optimism Seen on World Affairs

By The Associated Press
In Russia and without Russia rewarded millions of soldiers and war workers with party membership.

Since the war there has been a continuous and drastic reduction. The Communist aim is for a party without doubtful fringes, a party which can be depended upon to react immediately, without cavil and without slackers, to the Moscow line.

The party itself, for purposes of both political and physical sabotage, and for fifth columning in case of war, could be truly stronger now than two years ago. Any failure to recognize this is to underestimate the enemy.

Peron's Atoms
The reaction to Argentina's announcement of developments in atomic energy has been truly amazing. On the basis of a statement by Peron which obviously was designed for political purposes, scientists and political analysts alike have dashed head over heels to deny that there is any substance to the report.

It was immediately assumed that the Argentine scientists were claiming to be using millions of degrees of temperature—an impossibility—because of a reference to the heat of the sun. What the scientist in charge really said was heat like the "surface" of the sun, which is measured in thousands of degrees and easily reproduced.

It seems very likely that the Argentine project has produced something, however small, and the real interest should be in learning about it—not merely trying to throw it down.

This recalls the attitude of scientists and others when the United States was wishing it could tell when Russia attained the atom bomb. Scientists said it was too early for Russia to have the bomb and that erection of a detection system was unnecessary.

They were finally overruled by civilians—perhaps the President

French President To Arrive in U.S. To Visit Truman

NEW YORK (AP) — French President Vincent Auriol, son of a baker, will arrive here today to pay an official visit to President Truman, former haberdasher.

It is the first official visit ever made by a French president to the United States.

Auriol, accompanied by Mme. Auriol, is scheduled to arrive late in the morning, aboard the Ile de France, then go by train to Washington, where Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson will welcome them.

They will stay in Washington until Monday, then return to New York for a brief visit before leaving for Canada April 4.

The popular, 66-year-old head of the French republic has announced he is bringing "a message of peace and friendship to the nations whose sons have twice crossed the sea to deliver us from the invader."

Making the trip with the Auriols are their son, Paul, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, U.S. Ambassador to France David K. E. Bruce and Canadian Ambassador Gen. Georges Vanier.

The presidential party has been preceded by a supply of silverware, china, champagne and fine wines from France. It will be used Thursday night, when the Auriols entertain the Trumans in the best French tradition at the Washington embassy.

Mme. Auriol, a resistance heroine, will enliven the official doings by wearing new creations of designers Jacques Fath and Christian Dior.

Auriol, who speaks with a southern French accent, expects to make some 20 speeches during his tour, including one Monday morning before a joint session of congress.

The speeches will be in French, even though Auriol has been studying English by records so he can chat a little with Mr. Truman.

He even practiced English on the ship, where the Auriols had a three-room presidential suite named "Versailles," complete with 140 clothes-hangers for Mme. Auriol's Paris robes.

When the two plain-spoken presidents compare notes on their jobs, they will find that Auriol's post has certain advantages, even though he has far less actual power than Mr. Truman.

Auriol, elected Jan. 16, 1947, by the two houses of the French parliament, is serving a seven-year term. He is not responsible to parliament.

He has no real governing powers, but acts mainly as a symbol of French unity and keeps up the continuity of the government during the nation's frequent political crises.

He designates a premier, who must be approved by the national assembly and presides at a weekly cabinet meeting. He grants pardons, is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and is frequently called upon to conciliate political squabbles between parties.

A lifelong Socialist, Auriol administers the presidency as non-political office above party considerations. He does not make speeches on political issues.

A former lawyer and newspaperman, Auriol was first elected to the chamber of deputies in 1914, and was reelected regularly. He has been finance minister, minister of justice and minister of state in various governments.

In 1940, he voted against giving full powers to Marshal Philippe Petain and was arrested by the Germans. He managed to escape to London to join Gen. Charles de Gaulle's resistance movement and served in De Gaulle's provisional government in Paris after the liberation.

He visited the U.S. once before—in 1925 as a member of the Franco-American committee on war debts.

Council Bluffs to Get New Federal Building
COUNCIL BLUFFS (P) — Congress will be asked soon to earmark up to $1.9-million for a new federal building here, the Nonpareil said Tuesday.

The newspaper said the assurance was received in telephone conversations with Iowa's two senators, Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R) and Guy M. Gillette (D).

Hickenlooper said a $1.9-million federal building for Council Bluffs is included in a list of approved projects to be submitted to congressional committees "almost immediately" for authorization.

himself. The system was set up not very long before a Russian explosion occurred. It was done so slowly, however, that there is no guarantee the detected explosion was the first.

In a long hot or cold war, such as this promises to be, superciliousness and skepticism can produce only negative results.

Barking Up the Wrong Tree

Welles Blames Truman for Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Former undersecretary of state Sumner Welles charged today that the United States and the United Nations "now face a crisis in the Far East" because the Truman administration "departed from" the policies of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In a new book, "Seven Decisions That Shaped History," published by Harper and Brothers, Welles said the government's "record of inefficiency and vacillation" in Korea between 1945 and June, 1950, "was an open invitation to the North Korean Communists and to their Soviet and Chinese Communist allies to invade South Korea."

He referred to "the statement issued by the state department in January, 1950, that the Republic of South Korea, although it was established by the UN, was 'not within our line of defense'."

Welles said "the aggression of June 25, 1950, was its consequence."

The 58-year-old career diplomat called for "a policy of containment—containment by military force and by economic power of a Soviet Union that has shown every intention of expanding its hegemony in Europe, in Asia and in the Near East."

He said he saw no other way out but for the American people "to put up with continued tension and recurrent mobilization, both military and economic, over a period of years."

Welles said it would be a "tragic mistake" to yield in Korea and Formosa or permit Communist China to be admitted to the UN at the present. He urged that the U.S. maintain its defense outposts in the Pacific "whatever the strain" on American natural resources. And he called for a Japanese peace treaty and partial rearmament of Japan.

In Europe and the Near East, Welles said, the U.S. must continue its military and economic assistance or abandon those areas to Russia.

He also urged that "far more thought be given to our relations with our neighbors of the western hemisphere, who 'at the time of our most dire need in 1942... united behind us.' The former chief of the state department's division of Latin-American affairs stated that "the other American republics have felt increasingly that our devotion to inter-American solidarity is far more noticeable when the U.S. faces an international emergency than it is during more normal times."

But he warned against rearming West Germany, saying the "immense future dangers" were too great to offset the "minor military assistance" the Germans could provide. Welles said Roosevelt would have opposed German rearmament.

Defending Roosevelt's actions at Cairo and Yalta, Welles said it was the "mistakes" of the Truman administration and the departures from the late president's policies that have resulted in the present situation.

"It is, in fact, a strange anomaly," Welles said, that the government in 1946 urged the Italian prime minister to oust the Communists from his cabinet while that same autumn Gen. George C. Marshall "was trying to browbeat" Chiang Kai-Shek into appointing Communists to the cabinet.

Welles said that although Roosevelt believed Chiang's government was filled with "corruption and inefficiency," the late president still felt that the generalissimo "was the only Chinese leader who would be able after the war to hold the Chinese people together."

Members of the committee and West German government spokesmen, brushing aside Washington claims that air and navy planning is still illegal and therefore impossible, pointed to existing Allied legislation calling for life imprisonment for Germans who advocate rearmament. That is exactly what Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and the Bonn committee members are doing.

Completion of the first phase leaves months of detail work to be done before any German decision on rearmament can be made, it was emphasized.

Agreement Nears on West German Arms

BONN, GERMANY (AP) — A joint Allied-German military committee has virtually completed drafting plans for Germans to join in the armed defense of West Europe, well informed sources here said Tuesday.

The committee, consisting of United States, British, French and German military men, has been meeting in almost complete secrecy for three months. It has concentrated on German proposals for organizing a West German armed force, to be contributed by the West German federal republic, to the armies which will serve under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Round one consisted of the technical military preparation. Political agreement between the Bonn republic and the Western Allies will constitute round two.

All that remains to bring round one to an end, participants said, is for the German committee members to make suggestions on small naval and tactical airforce contingents. This is expected to be accomplished at the committee's next meeting April 6.

Not So Fragile As All That —

The current preeminence of cinematized versions of stage plays again raises the question of the degree to which one can soundly judge a work when it has been transferred from one medium to another.

Critics of "The Glass Menagerie"—and for the most part they have been negative—have in many cases attributed its lack of distinction to its fundamental delicacy and death of action.

They have recalled that "The Glass Menagerie" has been termed a play as fragile as its title, and have offered to the argument that it is one of those stories lacking the dynamism, "physical" vitality, to become a thoroughly satisfying film.

I can't agree. I can think of several photoplays of the hand which have met the problem sensibly and interestingly. I don't feel that movie contentions are so rigid that it is only in the legitimate theater that a largely contemplative drama can be adequately presented.

Playwright Tennessee Williams and his collaborator Peter Bernes are sometimes proficient, sometimes insufficient, in their additions. A scene in which Laura flees the oppression of the typing school is no more than immature hackwork, while a scene between Tom and the would-be gentleman caller at the factory where they work is a realistic gem of writing.

I have no quarrel over the necessity of elaborating upon the play, which happens to be my own favorite. But I do regard the departures from the original text as ill-advised. It is these deviations which weaken the movie and may be responsible for comments to the effect that it was probably too much a play of passive mood to be a suitable project for the cameras.

A soft-focus flashback permitting Gertrude Lawrence to look young while revelling in those 17 gentlemen callers and the sudden invocation of a new gentleman caller for Laura at the picture's end are extraneous violations of the play's entire mood and of whatever substance is inchoate in the work.

Prime culpability for wrenching the play's poetic power rests with Director Irving Rapper, who has misunderstood the original and has infiltrated it with slickness.

The story has definitely suffered because it was shot in isolated scenes. Under Rapper's supervision there is no fluidity in the development of character. This is especially true of Miss Lawrence, who gives a well-meaning but worried portrayal.

Over-tussy in her earnestness to deliver a substantial portrayal, she plays for comedy passages which were meant to be only incidentally funny. She is the nagging but not the pathetic mother one is led to expect from any familiarity with the play.

And the poignancy of Laura is lost, surprisingly, in the performance of Jane Wyman, who has merely repeated her Oscar-winning "Belinda" in a distracting blonde wig; her scene with the gentleman caller is without its climactic poignancy.

The caller, played by Kirk Douglas, has become a bright young man who treats Laura as a frightened child whom he gives fatherly advice. The interpretation is distasteful to anyone who has seen the play, but Douglas' credit it should be said that it is done most capably.

Only Arthur Kennedy manages to reflect the spirit and intensity of the original "Glass Menagerie," though unfortunately his role, the central one of the play, has been de-emphasized in deference to the other cast members who are, after all, better known at the box office.

The criticisms are very likely not the ones to perturb those who haven't seen the Williams' play, since, for all its shortcomings, it stands up as a worthwhile, better-than-average movie.

The chief complaint to be directed against it, as I see it, is that it could have been so much better that it might have been a prize-winning motion picture, too. The play need not be regarded as sacred, but "The Glass Menagerie" is not so fragile that its story need have been divested of its poignancy and its people of their dimension.

Its delicacy could have been transferred without being shattered. What the Brothers Warner have given us are splinters, but even splinters of glass are an improvement over lumps of coal.

High Cost of Wool
To Raise Prices
Of Women's Suits

MIAMI, FLA. (AP) — If you've been looking forward to spring with the happy hope of giving that disreputable looking winter suit of yours to the old clothes man—don't.

The top man in Miami's clothing industry has said that a suit next fall probably will cost you from 30 to 40 percent more than your last one did.

His wholesale price will go up at least $10 this fall, explained Harold Schiff, head of the fashion of Florida women's suit manufacturing firm and president of the Miami fashion council.

That means the lady who wants a new fall suit will pay $70 for it compared with the $50 price she paid last fall.

Schiff blamed the skyrocketing price on the sudden rise in the price of wool. And he added the cost of other items used in suit production is just as inflated.

"The woolen material I bought for $4.45 last fall now costs me $7," lamented Schiff. "Rayon binding for my hemlines has gone from 55 to 90 cents. Even zippers that used to sell for a nickel are costing me almost nine cents."

Eastern mills have withdrawn many of their lines, Schiff said, because the government is expected to use 65 percent of the available woolen goods for defense uses.

Home Grown Vegetables Pay Big Dividends

Growing your own vegetables is an investment that pays better than 17 to 1, according to an article in a recent national magazine. This study shows that $5.25 invested in seeds, insecticide and plant food will pay back $91.02. This figure is based on retail prices of July, 1950, and now would be slightly higher. The $5.25 cost figure assumes that you have the basic tools — garden hoe, spading fork, rake and trowel and that you spade the plot yourself and grow all plants from seed. Even if you buy the tools, hire the plowing, and raise your tomatoes, onions, peppers, eggplant, cabbage and head lettuce from sets, you'll realize better than four to one dividends — $91.02 for $19.15, the article said. Take snap beans as an example of the possible economy of growing your own. The article states that 30 cents worth of seed will produce 45 pounds of beans. In June, 1950, snap beans sold for 20 cents a pound. Your initial investment has grown to $9. Then there are cucumbers, and more cucumbers. In fact 10 cents worth of seed will give you 100 of them, and retail cucumber prices today are nearing 10 cents each. It is necessary to consider growing conditions before starting this project. Sun, good soil and sufficient water are all "musts," and vegetables can't cope with trees in the struggle for nourishment. Also, you'll need to keep weeds and pests to a minimum.

All this can be accomplished in about 25 to 30 hours; eight hours for planting and one hour each week to weed and hoe. Nature will do the rest.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 15...THE LONG-WATTLED UMBRELLA BIRD

"They must think I don't have enough sense to get out of the rain!"

It made L. W. madder than a wet hen when they asked him to judge cigarette mildness by taking one puff, one huff, one whiff or one sniff. Our common sense friend enjoys a good smoke too much ever to settle on any brand in such a snap-judgment way! For him and for millions like him, there's only one convincing way to test cigarette mildness. It's the Sensible Test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed! After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you will know why...

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Engineers End Mecca With Exhibits

The annual engineering preview open house sponsored by the SUI college of engineering will be held Friday and Saturday. It is the wind-up for the 1951 Mecca celebration.

The open house is being held at the same time as the state high school basketball finals in order to allow the many visitors to the city at this time to go through the engineering laboratories on campus.

Students in all departments of the college of engineering will have exhibits and experiments in operation in the many laboratories for the benefit of the guests.

The materials laboratory in the chemical engineering department will make standard tests on oil and gasoline. The units operations laboratory in this department will have their machinery in operation distilling, filtering, evaporating, drying and mixing chemicals.

The communications laboratory will conduct demonstrations of military signal equipment, telephone relays, radio and television equipment.

Experiments showing how ultra-high frequency waves are being used for television and telephone relays will be handled in the micro-wave laboratory.

In his new post Kelso will be responsible for the development and supervision of field training programs in North Carolina and serve as consultant to other states in the region. He will also teach in the university's school of public health.

Author of a number of articles on water sanitation, Kelso received his B.A. from SUI in 1929. He worked as an engineer for the U.S. Rubber company before assuming his present position at SUI in 1945.

House Committee Approves 4 Money Bills

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa house appropriations committee Tuesday recommended that about $8,800,000 a year be provided for operation of the various state departments and agencies during the two-year period beginning next July 1.

The amount is approximately $3-million more than recommended by Gov. William S. Beardsley. It is about $500,000 higher than the 1949 appropriation for the same purposes.

Total Not Determined
Rep. Albert G. Olson (R-Osage), appropriations sub-committee chairman, said the actual total of the bill had not been determined.

The appropriations committee also recommended passage of three other money bills. One of them would provide funds for state aid to countywide soil conservation districts.

The departmental bill is the last of the big money bills which the legislature must pass before final adjournment to make its appearance. Awaiting action in both houses besides the departmental bill is the measure to provide funds for state board of education institutions.

On the senate calendar is a house-passed bill for the support of board of control institutions. The other "must" appropriations bills have been passed and signed by the governor.

Conservation Aids
One of the other bills recommended by the appropriations committee would appropriate $300,000 a year, mostly for state aid to county-wide soil conservation districts. The total is the same amount as recommended by the governor and is an increase of $50,000 a year over what was appropriated two years ago.

The third measure approved by the committee would provide $175,000 annually for state aid to fairs. The total is the same as recommended by the governor and the same as provided in 1949.

The other measure would appropriate $6,000 a year from state gasoline tax collections for the state comptroller's office.

The money is used to finance issuance of refunds of the tax paid on gasoline for non-highway uses. The total is the same as two years ago and the same as recommended by the governor.

Auto Safety Law Goes to Senate

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa house of representatives passed and sent to the senate Tuesday a measure to require safety inspection of motor vehicles throughout the state at least once a year.

Representatives also took time in a crowded day of lawmaking to squelch a resolution that proposed to end the current session April 13. The house changed the adjournment date to April 17, but deferred final action on the matter.

The vehicle bill, which eased through the house by a vote of 86 to 15, carried provisions for an inspection fee of 50 cents. Inspections would be made at private garages.

The house appropriations committee recommended passage of a bill providing approximately $8.5-million annually for operating state departments and agencies during the next two years.

The senate made progress in its debate on a house-approved bill to provide pay increases for county employees, but still had to act on several phases of the measure.

Senators adopted a house amendment providing a flat $800 a year increase for county treasurers, auditors and recorders.

Yesterday in Washington

CONSULATE EMPLOYEES FIRED — Four American employees of the U.S. consulate at Hong Kong were fired for moral reasons last December and one admitted taking bribes and gifts totaling nearly $10,000, the state department announced.

The employee who accepted the bribes for expediting visa applications was identified as John Wayne Williams, 25-year-old native of Carboro, N. C. He was dismissed from his $6,000-a-year post as U.S. vice consul at the British crown colony.

TROOPS-FOR-EUROPE — Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah) advised the senate to junk its troops-for-Europe resolutions and substitute something would be more than just "a pious prayer to President Truman."

He proposed that congress ask the President to negotiate a special agreement with the North Atlantic treaty nations on the number of American troops required in the international defense army being organized under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

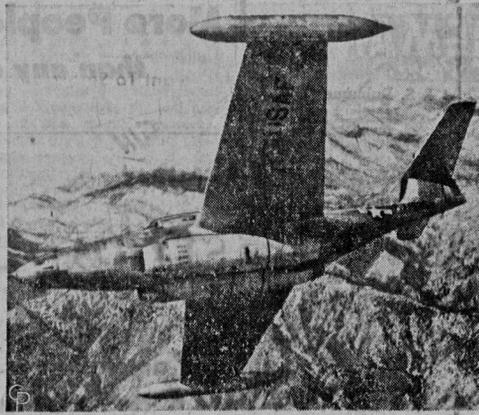

When the agreement is completed, he said, the President should be required to submit it to congress for approval. This would give congress the last word on the question, Watkins argued.

GOVERNMENT SCANDALS — Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) proposed establishment of a special commission to improve "ethical standards" of public officials and cited Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, as an example of what he meant.

Fulbright, chairman of the senate subcommittee investigating the RFC, delivered a scathing attack on government "scandals" and warned that the people may lose confidence in their leaders in the face of the Communist threat.

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle Jr., whose name has popped up repeatedly in the RFC inquiry, said after a meeting with Mr. Truman that the investigation was conducted by "honest men who pursued a course they thought proper."

New Library Continues Student Orientation

(This is the second in a series of three stories on the new SUI library. The next will describe the third floor and special services which the library will offer.)

The orientation of SUI students to the facilities of the new library continued Tuesday in the midst of men installing new equipment in the library.

The library staff managed to weather the storm of the past two days and has provided reasonable library service in spite of new and unfamiliar surroundings.

A tentative list of directions for student use of the new library was issued to all students as they entered the building during the past two days. This edition will serve until all changes in arrangements and services have been made at which time new directions will be issued.

Stairs to Second
The second floor, which will hold most of the heavily-demanded books, is accessible by using the stairs in the center of the first floor.

Students enter the library, walk straight through the front lobby and public catalog room to the stairs.

The reference and loan desk for books on second floor are in the general area at the head of these stairs. Catalogs for second floor volumes are also available in this same area.

New to SUI students will be the 70-90,000-volume open-shelf collection on the second floor. This collection has been set up for graduate and advanced undergraduate students and is spread out over most of the second floor area.

Arranged by Date
These books will be arranged according to eight chronological history periods. They are early man, classical and early Christian, Medieval, Renaissance, Eighteenth century (to 1815), nineteenth century (to 1914), twentieth century (since 1914), and overlap (books which do not fit into the seven historical periods).

Under this system, a student wishing to find a book on Egypt will go to the early man section. If he wants Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," he will go to the Medieval section.

Each historical period will be further broken down into subject classifications such as history, science, economics, literature, religion and philosophy.

Each period will be identified by a Roman numeral both on the books within that period as well as on the catalog cards. There will be eight Roman numerals, one for each period.

Colored Identity Bands
Further identification will be provided by a colored band on each book; for example, the books within the classical and early Christian period will have a distinguishing red and on the binding.

The catalog cards for this period will display the Roman numeral II printed in red.

This arrangement of history periods will allow students to move directly to various subjects within the chronological group.

In addition to this new arrangement of volumes, the library has adopted the system of congress classification to replace the old Dewey decimal system.

All books on the first and second floors have been reclassified under this system.

Miss Pauline Cook, head of bibliographical and reference services, is in charge of the second floor collections.

New Study Devices
Two groups of study carrels (individual study enclosures) and quadruple study tables with shelves for books are available to students on the second floor.

One group of 162 carrels is in the southwest corner, while another group of 118 carrels is located in the northeast corner.

The north central portion of this floor has been set aside as a lounge where students may smoke. There will be stacks in this room containing light reading material.

Students may encounter difficulties in locating books during the first few weeks. The library staff has anticipated such a difficulty and will locate the books or direct the student to them after the student has looked up the book in the catalog and filled out a call slip.

As the student leaves the library he will be expected to stop at the guard desk in the lobby on first floor. This is the only check which will be placed on students in exchange for their direct access to open shelf books.

Police 'Break' Into House To Rescue Black Cat
Two Iowa City policemen "broke" into a house at 617 Iowa avenue Tuesday and rescued a small black cat that had apparently been locked in the building overnight.

Employees at an oil station near the house reported to police that the cat was jumping against a front window of the house. When the officers arrived they pried open one of the windows and released the cat.

British Deserter to Reds Returns, 'Fed Up'

BERLIN (AP) — John Waller came back to the West Tuesday night, a little tired of the Red East.

Somewhat gaunt and a great deal disillusioned, Cpl. John Waller of His Majesty's British forces surrendered to the British authorities of West Berlin and said he had had enough.

Waller deserted May 26, 1950, and was greeted by Eastern German Communists with open arms. He was presented by Soviet zone propaganda chief Gerhart Eisler as a refugee from Western "war-mongering."

Waller had a job and a few coins but he had to speak German, live German and act German. He told friends after he came back to British headquarters that he was "fed up."

Waller came back to West Berlin with his German-born wife, Ruth, 22. He married her in the Soviet zone last November.

At the time he deserted, another Western soldier quit the Allied ranks and became a member of Eisler's propaganda team. When Waller was presented as a "peace fighter" he was accompanied by Robert Natskakula of Pittsburgh, Pa., an enlisted man in the U.S. Natskakula has since been in the army forces of Berlin.

Such widening would be needed along South Riverside drive as far south as the junction of highways 1 and 218. White explained that the widening would be also needed north from Riverside drive's junction with Burlington street.

At least one Iowa City project has been included in the highway commission's primary road construction program for 1951. This calls for the construction of a new pavement on Burlington street from Clinton street west to Riverside drive.

The project will involve the repair, widening and reconstruction of the present Burlington street bridge or the building of a new and wider bridge over the Iowa river near the present Burlington street bridge, White said.

Kilby, Student Called In October, Wounded
A former SUI student, Jack Kilby, Dubuque, is now in a hospital in Wonju, Korea, suffering from a wound received in an attack with the first Marine division.

Kilby, who attended SUI for two years from 1948-50, is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity. The nature of his wound is not known, except that it concerns his ankle.

Kilby came here as a transfer student from Iowa State and would have been a senior this year. He was a member of the Marine reserve and was called back to active duty in October. He went overseas in December, and was wounded in February.

Student, Local Man Fined in Police Court
Two men were fined a total of $22.50 in Iowa City police court Tuesday for traffic violations.

M. M. Johnson, route 2, was fined $12.50 for driving a vehicle with defective equipment and $5 for driving without a valid license plate.

Richard S. Thompson, A2, Des Moines, was fined $5 for having his license plate improperly displayed.

Cedar Rapids C of C Official to Speak Today

Bob Caldwell, executive vice-president of the Cedar Rapids chamber of commerce, will discuss the problems of the chamber of commerce in an industrial city at 4 p.m. today in room 304, University hall.

His talk will be the second in a series of five programs designed to give SUI students a better understanding of chamber of commerce work.

A graduate of William Penn college, Oskaloosa, Caldwell did graduate work at SUI and later became secretary of the chamber of commerce at Fort Dodge. Presently he is working on several committees of the U.S. chamber of commerce.

Anyone interested in chamber of commerce work is invited to attend the program.

State Suggests Ban Of New Businesses On Riverside Drive

The Iowa state highway commission Monday recommended that no new business developments be permitted along Riverside drive near the Burlington street bridge on grounds that widening of Riverside drive might be hampered by "excessive right of way costs."

Chief Engineer F. R. White of the highway commission told Mayor Preston Koser in a letter that proposed Bosten-Heltbride property on South Riverside drive should not be rezoned from class A residential.

An ordinance which would rezone the Bosten-Heltbride property from residential to business is pending action of the Iowa City council. The tract of land, just north of the hydraulics annex building, would permit operation of retail ice cream business.

White said widening of Riverside drive to a width of at least 48 feet between curbs to permit four lanes of traffic would be one of the "traffic needs of the very early future" in Iowa City.

Such widening would be needed along South Riverside drive as far south as the junction of highways 1 and 218. White explained that the widening would be also needed north from Riverside drive's junction with Burlington street.

At least one Iowa City project has been included in the highway commission's primary road construction program for 1951. This calls for the construction of a new pavement on Burlington street from Clinton street west to Riverside drive.

The project will involve the repair, widening and reconstruction of the present Burlington street bridge or the building of a new and wider bridge over the Iowa river near the present Burlington street bridge, White said.

Rooms Available For Tourney Fans

The chamber of commerce reported Tuesday that they have more than enough rooms available for visiting basketball fans.

Miss Verleen Dow, secretary in the chamber office, said rooms would probably not be as plentiful for the last two days of the tourney, but she did not believe there would be a serious shortage of rooms.

Visiting fans may make arrangements for rooms by stopping at the chamber of commerce office, 104 S. Linn street, or by calling 9637.

New Industries May Be Curse: Economist

Iowa communities trying to attract new industries should weigh the costs as well as the advantages of such a move, SUI economist Norman H. Ringstrom Jr., said in a talk to the Oskaloosa Kiwanis club Monday.

Citing a recent study, Ringstrom said that the advantages of even a small firm employing 50 persons is great. Such a firm would support 300 to 400 persons, require 75 to 100 homes, put 200 children in school, require six teachers, support ten stores with annual sales of $175,000 and would supply a yearly payroll of $65,000 to $85,000.

Communities frequently fail to see that many of these benefits are offset by increased costs, he said.

Problems for public utilities and transportation facilities are multiplied by new housing construction. Need for larger schools and more police and fire protection may disrupt local finances.

Ringstrom said that some communities are asked to help finance the factory site for a new industry. If communities would encourage existing local industries to

Police Tow Away Snow Stalled Cars

Iowa City residents who left their cars stalled in snow drifts during the big snow storms during the last two weeks may have to pay a towing and storage fee to get their cars back.

Police Chief E. J. Ruppert said Tuesday police had taken four cars to the city impounding lot and expected to take several more Wednesday.

The order to take stalled cars off the streets was issued Saturday by Mayor Preston Koser. Police said the reason for taking the cars away was to ease the job of snow removal from residential areas.

The said that unless cars are moved the melting snow is dammed up and continues to create a traffic hazard. Persons who have their cars towed away may claim them at the police station.

Fies $10,000 Law Suit After Auto Accident

A lawsuit asking $10,000 for injuries he allegedly received in a head on automobile collision was filed Tuesday in Johnson county court by George H. Allen.

He claims he was a passenger in the Brink car, and was seriously and permanently injured in the accident near Mulford on highway 71 last Dec. 23.

The injuries Allen claims include serious cuts and lacerations on his face which left permanent and disfiguring scars. He also states that he was unable to resume his part time job.

He requests money for lost wages and medical and surgical expenses of the past and future.

SUI Chinese Students Unaffected by Order

No Chinese students at SUI are believed to have as yet been denied visa extensions for U.S. security reasons, Richard Sweitzer, foreign students counselor, said Tuesday.

U.S. immigration authorities have ordered about 500 of the 3,400 foreign-born Chinese students back to China, because they are considered poor security risks. Several educators are protesting the moves.

Sweitzer said most of the 52 Chinese students here have been on the campus for some time and that they probably would have less contact with subversive movements than those who have just arrived.

Foreign students are usually examined after a certain period of time in this country and they may be denied renewal of their visas if sufficient cause is found.

Waverly Had Davenport 'Plenty Worried' In First Half

By KEN CESSNA
 "A team can't be careless against Davenport and expect to win" said Rollie Williams the Iowa cage coach who resigned his position Tuesday. And that's what Waverly did in the second half against the Blue Devils as the Go-Hawks lost, 60-46.

Williams regarded Waverly's offense against Davenport as tops, with special high praise for the way the Go-Hawks drove through the Imps defense. But, he added, you can't make mistakes against an alert team like Davenport because they turn these errors into benefits for themselves.

Carl Widseth, the 6-foot, 5-inch crew-cropped Davenport center came in for recognition from the recent Hawkeye cage boss, Williams said, "Widseth is one of the finest boys I've seen."

There was reason for praise to be added to Widseth's long list of 1951 basketball laurels as Carl hit 31 points against Waverly for a new Davenport school record.

Carl himself was a mighty happy, but a tired and perspiring player, after the Waverly game. "They had us plenty worried in the first half," Widseth said. Posing for dressing room pictures the 16-year-old Davenport junior moved immediately to a specific spot along the wall. Widseth remarked, "This is the same place I stood last year for the photographers."

His words emphasized the Blue Devils' ideas to repeat for the second straight season as tournament champs.

Trouble-shooting Cal Burnett, the 6-4 reserve ace, was injected into the Davenport line-up immediately after Waverly hit two quick opening-game buckets. Burnett, a pinsetter in a Davenport bowling alley in his spare time, likes the idea of "relief" roles. "It gives me a chance to settle down by sitting on the bench for awhile," Burnett said.

Burnett, a string-bean 18-year-old senior, keeps in shape by working summer vacations at a cemen tplant. He also jumps rope and lifts weights to build himself up for the long cage campaign.

Frank Schwengel, the Davenport forward whose father is a state representative, said, "I thought we had them (Waverly) beat at the start of the fourth quarter when we scored four quick points."

"They were just fired up for us," said Frank Sebott the sophomore regular as he was questioned on Waverly's appearance.

Over in the losers' camp, Waverly coach Floyd Magnusson said over and over, "We just made too many mistakes." Mag emphasized that, "Our boys' passing was terrible in the second half and Davenport is one team that you can't be off against and expect to win."

Jerry Hagen returned to the Grinnell starting line-up after a seven-game lay-off. Hagen replaced Norval Lowe in Coach John Megson's first five after showing up brilliantly in a relief role against Marion in sub-state play.

The Grinnell guard played Tuesday against Massena with a broken rib, received in practice Sunday. For support of the injury Hagen wears a heavy 8-inch width of tape around him and during the off-game hours wears an elastic harness.

A test is being given to some of the teams to find out the fatigue effect upon a player's eyesight. Edwin Youmans, G. Estherville, is giving the tests in his study for a masters degree in physical education at SUL. The test, taking five minutes, examines accuracy (sharpness), depth

Hawkeye Swimmers Leave by Plane For NCAA Meet

Iowa's eight entries in the NCAA swimming meet at Austin, Texas, this weekend, were scheduled to leave here by plane at 7:30 a.m. today.

The Hawkeye contingent, made up of those Iowans who scored points in the Big Ten meet three weeks ago, is scheduled to arrive in Austin at 6 p.m. today. Ohio State, winner of the Big Ten title and defending NCAA king, is a slight favorite to edge Yale's powerful entry. With the exception of Michigan State, the Big Ten's number two squad, no one is expected to challenge that pair.

Iowa, which placed third last year, will have strong representation in several events, but the Hawks don't figure to approach that lofty ranking on this occasion.

Once again, Dave Armbruster's squad will be depending on its sprinters, especially the 400-yard relay team. Other point prospects are Ron Johnson in the individual medley, Dick LaBahn in the 220, and Bunny Broeder in the diving.

Rusty Garst will defend his 50-yard free style championship but the Hawkeye captain will be up against an unusually strong field.

Indians Top Eagles, 72-44

By DICK JACKMAN
 Sioux Center's height and speed were too much for little Birmingham Tuesday night and the Indians rolled to a 72-44 win to move into Thursday's quarterfinals opposite defending champion Davenport.

Arnie Ver Hoef and Jerry Sandbulte formed the twin front court scoring punch for the winners, tossing in 19 and 20 points, respectively. Sandbulte, an all-state candidate dominated the rebounding at both boards. Dave Vandenberg added 10 points for Sioux Center.

It was the initial loss in 23 games for Birmingham. The southeastern Iowa club didn't have the height to compete with the Indians. Usually high scoring center Del Crafton was shackled effectively and forward Larry Lazenby sparked the losers with 10 points.

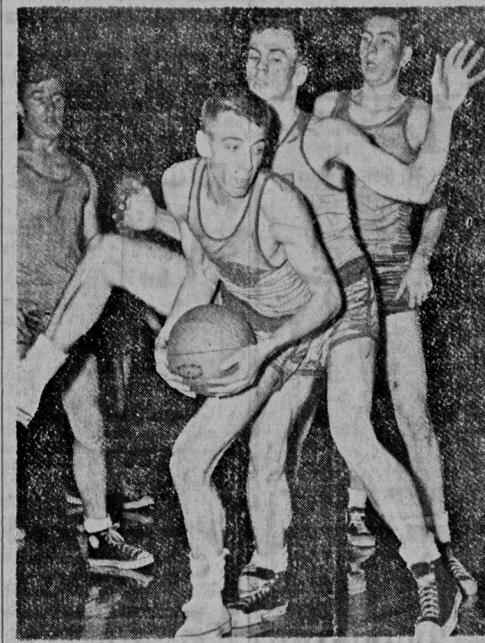

Sioux Center moved methodically to a 12-8 first quarter lead, ballooned it to 32-19 at halftime and won going away. Birmingham never got close after the half.

For the Indians it's their third appearance in four years in the state tourney field. Sioux Center was third in 1948, lost in the opening round in 1949. Thursday they get their crack at Davenport's champions.

The northwest Iowa squad has lost only two games in 28 starts this season, both to Orange City which they later eliminated in tournament competition.

Keokuk Downs Central, 49-48

By DICK CHRISTENSON
 One free throw was the margin as Keokuk slipped by Central of Sioux City in a thrilling 49-48 win in the opening game of the 1951 boy's state high school basketball tournament at the fieldhouse Tuesday afternoon.

Both teams scored 19 field goals in the game which saw it was that extra gift toss that the lead change hands 17 times. But Keokuk into Thursday's quarterfinals.

State tournament jitters plagued both teams in the first quarter with a resulting low-scoring Central drew first blood on a hook shot by center Bill Soelberg. Keokuk kept pace with a fielder and four charity shots and the first lead change went in their favor 6-5. Central ended the slow quarter with a goal and led 7-6.

It was back and forth in the second quarter with the game tied three times and five changes of lead. Keokuk wound up the final three minutes with long Bill Logan's five point spurt and a 21-20 halftime lead.

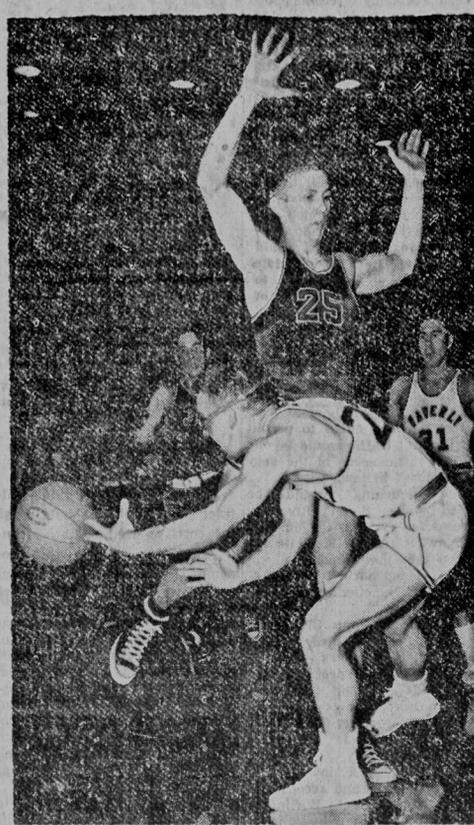

Central held the biggest lead of the ball game, 26-21, in the first minute of the third quarter. Two violations of the out-of-bounds rule, following two Central baskets helped the Maroons score four of the quick six.

With Keokuk behind most of the third quarter, Logan sank a set shot as the horn blew, and the game was tied again, 37-37.

The final quarter was a rough free-for-all and the crowd was becoming used to tie games and changing leads. On the final change of the game, Logan tipped in a two pointer to make the score, 49-48, and two minutes to play. At this point the Chiefs used a tricky stall to finish the game.

Logan had 25 points for Keokuk and High had 15. Soelberg led the Maroons with 20 points.

Imps Smash Go-Hawks, 60-46, After Faltering in First Half

Davenport's rugged Blue Devils, tagged as the tournament favorites to repeat their 1950 championship, took the first step toward that goal with a 60-46 win over Waverly.

Waverly had just about all the 11,002 Tuesday evening fans backing their bid for an upset of the Blue Devils. The Go-Hawks clung to Davenport throughout the first half, but the Imps showed up with a last half splurge.

Biggest donor to the Davenport cause was center Carl Widseth, whose 31 points set a new school scoring record for the Blue Devils.

Coach Floyd Magnusson, the former Iowa cager, had his Go-Hawks fired to fever pitch as they raced away from the Blue Devils at the outset 4-0. Davenport retaliated in strength to notch an 18-9 first quarter lead.

Waverly fought the famed Davenport fast-break on nearly even terms, scrapping vigorously against the rangy Widseth and Cal Burnett, the twin Blue Devil rebounding towers.

The Go-Hawks lagged, through, 31-25 at halftime, after having narrowed the Imps margin to 26-25 in the second session. Davenport scored five points in the period's last two minutes to pull away for good from the Waverly threat.

Davenport fattened their lead to 48-38 in the third period, and had a 10-point margin throughout the last quarter.

Grinnell Batters Massena, 58-26

By KEN CASSNA
 Grinnell uncovered it's long range batteries to shell little Massena from the opening round of the state tournament 58-26, Monday afternoon.

Ability to strike over the Massena defensive zone moved the Tigers into quarter-final action Thursday against Keokuk.

The Massena squad had rebounding strength at times, but couldn't compete consistently with towering Dick Ritter, the Grinnell center. Ritter monopolized both back boards and led all scorers with 20 points.

Basis of the Grinnell attack was the Tigers long-shot consistency. Clayton Adams, Bud Arment, Rog Zimmerman and Gordon Felper struck from far out on numerous occasions to break the Massena defense.

Grinnell never trailed in adding victory number 24, compared to only a single loss for the season. Massena never came within 10 points of the Tigers after Grinnell took a 20-9 lead midway through the second quarter.

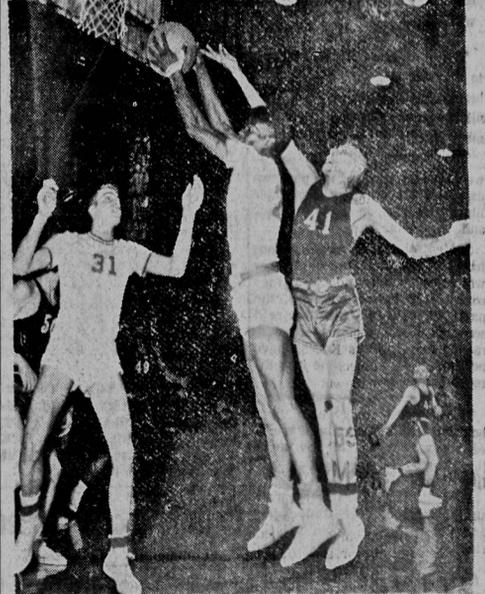

Getting off to a ragged start, Grinnell ended the opening period in front 15-8. In a low-scoring second session, Grinnell outscored the Eagles 9-4 to lead 24-12 by halftime.

The Tigers rolled away 42-24 by the third period and ended in a red-hot fourth quarter by bettering Massena 16-2.

Aside from Ritter, Bud Arment with 14 and Adams scoring 11 paced Grinnell. Duane Overgaard was the Massena top man with eight points while brother Junior was an outstanding rebounder.

Kentucky Dips K-State In NCAA Finals, 68-58

MINNEAPOLIS (UP) — Kentucky staged a withering second half rally to wallop Kansas State, 68 to 58, Tuesday night and win the national college basketball championship.

After trailing 29 to 27 at the half, Kentucky showed 15,438 fans why it had been rated the number one team in the country. With all-American center Bill Spivey, who stands seven feet tall, leading the way Kentucky cracked the game wide open in the first seven minutes of the second half.

Spivey, who scored 22 points in the championship game, whipped in 10 of them during the sensational Kentucky rally. Kansas State, which had out-fought Kentucky during the first half and looked like a winner, appeared bewildered as Kentucky turned on the pressure.

Kansas State scored only two field goals in the first 12 minutes of the second half. The Kansas State players appeared over-awed by the speed, passing and shooting ability of the Kentucky team they had been favored to beat.

With only seven minutes gone in the second half, Kentucky players seemed to realize they had won the NCAA title after Shelby Linville threw in a one-handed shot to give them a 49 to 38 lead.

The Kentucky players suddenly broke into big smiles and for the rest of the game appeared to be enjoying showing the fans just how good they were — and they were plenty good.

Illini Top Aggies 61-46 for Third

MINNEAPOLIS (UP) — Illinois copped third place in the NCAA college basketball tournament Tuesday night, 61-46, by taking advantage of the many foul shots given it by Oklahoma A & M.

The Big Ten champions were outscored from the field, 18 to 16, but made 29 foul shots to score an easy victory and take over third place in the tournament.

The game was very sluggish with neither team seeming to care too much whether it won or lost. Both teams seemed to have left their best basketball behind after losing in the regional finals last Saturday night.

Iowa to Field JV Team in 1951 Football Season

Iowa will have a junior varsity football team next season, officials said Tuesday. The JV squad will schedule several games away from home in addition to a home schedule.

With freshmen eligible for competition in the Big Ten next season, the coaches expect enough players for both the varsity and junior varsity squads.

Swimmers Break National Relay Mark

Application will be made for national intercollegiate and American amateur records for the 400-yard free style relay by Iowa after the Hawkeyes swam the distance in the 20-yard course in 3:25.1, Coach Dave Armbruster said Tuesday.

Armbruster said that the mark better the national intercollegiate record of 3:28.5 made by Michigan State in 1950 and the American record of 3:26.4 made by Yale in 1943.

The team for the exhibition swim in the Iowa pool consisted of Dick Labahn, Keo Man, Wally Nicholson, and Ed Garst.

"I consider this a remarkable performance. It was made with official timers and slip-off judges under meet conditions, although it was not a competitive race," Armbruster said.

The effort was the final preparation of the Iowans for the NCAA championships at Austin, Tex.

Armbruster declared that Labahn, the lead-off swimmer, was timed in :50.5, Mana did :52, Nicholson, :51; and Garst, :51.6. It was the fastest 100 time ever made by the first three swimmers. The NCAA title race at University of Texas will be over the 75-foot course.

3 More CCNY Men Arrested in Mushrooming Fix Scandal

NEW YORK (UP) — Three more City College of New York players were arrested by District Atty. Frank Hogan Tuesday night in a "brand new" basketball bribery scandal.

Placed under charges of accepting bribes to "throw" games were Irwin Dambrot and Norman Mager, who were members of last year's "grand slam" national champion CCNY team, and Herb Cohen, a member of the team last year and this year.

Tuesday's action meant that all CCNY "first stringers" for the last two seasons now are under arrest. The players, Hogan said, admitted agreeing to throw three games in 1949-50. They were the games against Southern Methodist Dec. 8, UCLA Dec. 27 and Niagara Feb. 16, 1950.

CCNY beat Southern Methodist, 67 to 53, and lost to UCLA, 60 to 53 and to Niagara, 68 to 61. The players told Hogan they tried to throw the Southern Methodist game but could only shave the point because the Mustangs "were too poor."

Hogan said that the money for these "fixes" was supplied by a person other than Salvatore Solazzo, who is charged with giving bribes to four other CCNY players who are charged with "throwing" games this season.

However, Hogan refused to name the new "fixer."

In each case, he said, the CCNY players were to arrange things so that they won by only seven points or less.

In the game with SMU, he said, Dambrot, Mager, and Cohen were in on the "deal" along with Ed Roman and Al Roth, previously arrested. Cohen was promised $500 and the others $1,000 each. However, SMU played very poorly and, despite the "fixed" players' efforts, CCNY won the game by 14 points. They did not collect the promised money.

Other points in the resolution pledges the coaches to follow the rules as outlined in their own creed, the rules of their conferences and of their individual colleges. The resolution also frowned on summer or "resort" basketball, and urged the mentors to pick their players from the student body on a basis of morals rather than athletic ability alone.

In the section asking the presidents and faculty representatives to become better acquainted with the athletic department, the coaches suggested that in the future such officials aid in the management of games played off the campuses.
