TRUMAN FIRES 'MAC'

Relieved of All Commands; Ridgway Named Successor

WASHINGTON - President Truman early today fired General Douglas MacArthur from all his commands. The president designated Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, now commander of the Eighth Army in Korea, to succeed MacArthur.

The president said he had concluded that MacArthur "is unable to give his wholehearted support" to United States and United Nations policies.

Announcement of the president's decision to fire MacArthur followed days of international controversy over the general's endorsement of policies particularly relating to the use of Chinese Nationalist troops, in conflict with the announced policies of the president.

Mr. Truman discharged MacArthur from his commands with this statement: "With deep regret I have concluded that general of the army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States government and of the United Nations in matters pertaining to his official duties."

General Ridgway, as MacArthur's successor, is supreme commander, Allied powers, commander in chief, United Nations command; commander in chief, Far East; and commanding general U.S. army, Far East.

Mr. Truman asserted that "military commanders must be governed" by policies and directives of the government and "in time of crisis, this consideration is particularly compelling."

The announcement of the almost unprecedented dismissal of the hero-general was made at a rare news conference at the White House at 1 a.m. (midnight, Iowa time). The time was fixed to coincide as nearly as possible with the delivery to MacArthur at Tokyo of the order relieving him of his commands, "effective at once."

The White House released with the President's statement, a memorandum purporting to show differences between MacArthur's statements and action and presidential policy.

The President's order, telegraphed to MacArthur over the army network, was brief and pointed: "I deeply regret that it becomes my duty as president and commander in chief of the United States military forces to replace you as supreme commander, Allied powers; commander in chief, United Nations command; commander in chief, Far East; commanding general, U.S. army Far East."

"You will turn over your commands, effective at once, to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. You are authorized to have issued such orders as are necessary to complete desired travel to such places as you select."

"My reasons for your replacement will be made public concurrently with the delivery to you of the foregoing order, and are contained in the next following message." (This referred to the President's statement.)

In addition to the brief order to MacArthur and Ridgway, the White House released a hitherto secret file of communications between the joint chiefs of staff and MacArthur which, according to Press Secretary Joseph Short proved MacArthur on several instances... "recently" made statements publicly and privately which made it "questionable" in the President's mind whether MacArthur was in full sympathy with the policies of this government.

The President, in a brief statement accompanying his action, said he regretted having to relieve MacArthur because the general's place in history "as one of our greatest commanders is fully established."

"The nation owes him (MacArthur) a debt of gratitude for the distinguished and exceptional service which he has rendered his country in posts of great responsibility," the President's statement said.

"For that reason I repeat my regret at the necessity for the action I feel compelled to take in this case."

The secret file included one from the joint chiefs of staff to MacArthur and other commanders on Dec. 6, 1950, embracing a presidential order that "no speech, press release, or other public statement concerning foreign policy should be released until it has received clearance from the department of state."

One of the documents made available by the White House was proof, according to Short, that MacArthur actually recommended against the arming of additional South Koreans - a step which had been recommended by the joint chiefs.

The collection of documents also showed that MacArthur, on Dec. 6, 1950, and again on March 24, was warned by the joint chiefs of staff to abide by a Presidential directive requiring all public statements on foreign and military policy to be cleared by either the White House, the state department, or the department of defense.

"No speech, press release, or other public statement concerning military policy should be released until it has received clearance from the department of defense."

To this was attached another memo from the joint chiefs of staff to MacArthur March 26, 1951, asserting that the state department was planning an announcement shortly that with clearing of bulk of South Korea of aggressors, United Nations now prepared to discuss conditions of settlement in Korea; and adding: "Strong UN feeling persists that further diplomatic efforts towards settlement should be made before any advance with major forces north of 38th parallel."

"Time will be required to determine diplomatic reactions and permit new negotiations that may develop."

Short called attention of correspondents to a statement by MacArthur in the New York Times four days later, offering to confer in the field with the commander in chief of the enemy forces "in an earnest effort to find any military means whereby the realization of the 'political objectives' of the United Nations in Korea might be accomplished without further bloodshed."

Marshall Orders Quota Plan For Armed Services Recruits

The Women George Attracts

PITTSBURGH (AP) - What George Matthews thought was love at first sight Tuesday turned out to be nothing more than a "twist" in the pickpocket game. He told police he was standing on a downtown corner when a good-looking woman ran up to him, flung her arms around him, and kissed him on the mouth. Then she swirled away in an auto. When he recovered, George found his wallet and $160 gone.

No Progress Made On SUI Appropriations

DES MOINES (AP) - The senate made no progress Tuesday toward a decision on how much the SUI budget will be for the next biennium.

A senate house group of appropriations committee members which had tentatively agreed on an SUI budget of $6.3-million a year, including $300,000 for maintenance, failed to get its amendments in shape for filing.

However, Senator Herman Knudsen (R-Clear Lake), introduced as his own proposal a new amendment to the board of education budget bill. Knudsen was not a member of the house compromise committee.

Knudsen proposed that the SUI budget be kept at $5.8-million a year as proposed by Governor William S. Beardsley but that an additional $500,000 for the biennium be appropriated on a conditional basis.

Knudsen's amendment would make the same conditional arrangement of $500,000 for Iowa State college, keeping the regular appropriation for Iowa State at the governor's figure of $5,850,000 a year.

Knudsen's amendment would also provide for a $500,000 appropriation for the U.S. court of appeals, which would be paid for by the U.S. government.

The U.S. court of appeals made the same charges against George Killon, head of American President Lines, Ltd., and former treasurer of the Democratic National committee.

Long Litigation The charges are an outgrowth of long-drawn-out litigation over a $65-million steamship empire. Sawyer and the others must appear in court Thursday to show cause why they should not be punished for failure to turn over "effective possession" of American President's voting stock to R. Stanley Dollar and associates.

The court refused Tuesday a government request for postponement of the contempt proceedings until the whole case can be put before the supreme court. The government can renew its move for a delay, however, on Thursday.

The cabinet member and the nine others cited could be fined or imprisoned, at the court's discretion, if they are finally adjudged in contempt. Among the government officials named were Solicitor General Philip Perlman, Assistant Attorney General Peyton Ford and Undersecretary of Commerce Philip Fleming.

Must Not Take Advantage The court of appeals also told the 10 cited they must not take any advantage of an injunction issued last Friday by U.S. District Judge George B. Harris in San Francisco.

Wilson Charges Nation with Complacency (From the Wire Services) WASHINGTON - Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson warned Tuesday night that American lives in Korea and the "very future of this nation" are being threatened by public complacency and rivalries of competing groups in the defense effort.

Wilson told a nationwide radio audience that the defense program is rolling forward "with less dislocation and more speed than anyone had thought possible."

But then, echoing recent warnings by Defense Secretary George C. Marshall and House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, he added that there is evidence of a public letdown in recent weeks and an unwillingness by different interests to make equal sacrifices.

His speech followed by only a day a similar plea from President Truman. The President said Monday he could not do the mobilization job without wholehearted help from industry, labor, agriculture and the general public. "Here and now we must decide for ourselves the price of freedom," Wilson asserted. "Each of us must decide in our own heart whether he will do his part rigidly and magnificently. We must decide whether he will be greatly patriotic or merely partisan for ourselves or for any group or class."

"Shameless Price-Pushing" His speech followed by only a few hours a charge by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey that "shameless price - pushing, racketeering and profiteering" by business is to blame for any public indifference toward the mobilization program. Simultaneously, Senate Democratic Leader Ernest W. McFarland (Ariz.) urged the administration to outline its economic controls proposals to congress as quickly as possible to make certain a bill will be approved before the present law expires June 30. Charge Sawyer With Contempt grain can recess by Aug. 1 at least until fall but added that "one discouraging thing" is the fact that there are no immediate prospects for action on new controls legislation. He conceded administration delay is partly responsible.

In addition to extending provisions of the present law under which the government imposed wage-price controls, the lawmakers will be asked to consider changes in the parity law to halt climbing food prices and to enact a stiffer rent control law.

Equality and Sacrifice While making no direct reference to the embittered labor leaders who only recently returned to the mobilization program on a partial basis, the defense mobilization made it plain they are included in his urgent new plea for "equality and sacrifice."

"If I am to carry out the instructions of the President," he said, "and if I am to live with my conscience, I must put aside self interest and I shall expect others

Chinese Battle to Hold Reservoir Area

Daily Iowan war map on page 8

(From the Wire Services)

TOKYO (WEDNESDAY) - Allied forces driving to the misty southern banks of the big Hwachon reservoir battled furiously Tuesday to wrest control of Korea's third largest dam and power unit from the Chinese Communists.

The Reds held on tenaciously but at heavy cost. By nightfall the Chinese still retained control of the 800-foot long dam, six miles inside North Korea and 55 miles northeast of Seoul.

Air Strikes American infantry, artillery and air strikes beat repeatedly at the Communist defenders during the day.

A ditch band of Chinese, working within rifle shot of Allied forces less than a mile distant, had opened 10 of the Hwachon dam's 18 floodgates by dusk. But the swift flowing Pukhan river carried off the torrent, and so far the damage was not great.

The Chinese 39th army corps had fallen back across the Pukhan and was reported abandoning the town of Hwachon, on the north bank of the river four miles west of the dam.

American and Allied troops closed against the 14-mile Hwachon lake under intense fire from Communist self-propelled guns, mortars, automatic weapons and small arms. It was the strongest Red barrage of recent weeks.

Booby Trapping Dead Along the south shore, North Korean troops fought with their backs to the water's edge. They were booby-trapping their own dead as they yielded ground. Thirty-seven such bodies were found on a single hill.

Violent fighting against the last ditch Chinese rear guard was reported in the horseshoe loop between the west side of the reservoir and the Pukhan river. American troops had driven into the loop and headed for the dam on its northern rim, but were checked by the Reds.

While the major fighting was along the central front, Allied patrols in the west encountered increasingly bitter resistance as they probed into Chinese defense positions.

In the Yonchon area, six miles north of parallel 38 on the main north-south highway north of Seoul, the Reds rushed in reinforcements and prepared ridge defenses. U.S. patrols in this sector were forced to withdraw under heavy mortar and machine gun fire.

Ex-Georgia Governor Resigns Price Job With Blast at Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Gov. M. E. Thompson of Georgia resigned from a top price control job Tuesday night with an angry charge that the Truman administration and the Democratic National committee have put the country in a "mess."

"Conditions existing in the national administration are so deplorable today that loyalty to party and patriotism to country constitute a conflict," Thompson said in announcing his resignation as co-director of price controls for the United States territories and possessions.

At $53.48 a Day He said his specific reason for quitting the price job was that he had been on the job for 12 weeks, at a temporary consultant's pay of $53.48 a day, "without doing a lick of work." He said Price Controller Michael V. DiSalle never gave him anything to do and that he refused to be a "parasite" on the public any longer.

Thompson, a bitter political foe of Georgia's present Democratic Gov. Herman Talmadge, backed Mr. Truman against the states' righters in 1948 and helped keep the President's name on the Georgia ballot in that year.

But he said he can no longer support Mr. Truman's administration and will not return to the Democratic fold "so long as the Kansas City gang is running the show."

editorials Should Follow Orders, Or Quit —

Douglas MacArthur probably will go down in history as one of the greatest generals of all time. And there appears to be little desire on the part of anyone in the United States to detract one whit from the general's reputation as a leader and a soldier.

But despite all his greatness and skill, General MacArthur is a subordinate to the President of the United States and to those military officials from whom he receives orders.

His skill is acknowledged by his superiors and, as a result, he has been given virtually free reins many times in his work as a military leader and as an administrator.

But as a servant of his country, his people and his superiors he is obliged to do as he is instructed when those superiors feel such instructions are necessary.

For many months the general has disregarded this obligation. His job in Korea is a military one and he has been requested to refrain from publicly criticizing U.S. and United Nations diplomatic policies in the Korean war.

Apparently he has ignored the request. The general came out last week in favor of using Chinese Nationalist forces to open a "second front" against the Reds as a means of relieving pressure on UN troops in Korea.

No one wishes to deprive General MacArthur of his convictions. How could a man in his position possibly escape convictions? And with convictions founded upon years of experience and observation, his ideas certainly should be considered seriously.

But MacArthur is no god. Nor is he infallible. And he is not superior in authority to the President of the United States.

MacArthur's release, dismissal or resignation from his duties as commander of UN forces in Korea would be recognized as a great loss by all the countries participating in the war against the Communists.

But the advantages enjoyed as a result of his military skill can be out-balanced by his political remarks which bring embarrassment to the governments for which he's now fighting.

The general has his convictions. He's entitled to them. But if they have become so strong that he can no longer operate under superiors who do not share his views, there's only one thing left for him to do.

He should come home and, as a politician or just a plain citizen, fight for those convictions.

His fights in Korea should be confined to the Communists.

Interpreting the News —

Compromise Foreseen on Iran Oil

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Hope has risen in Anglo-American circles that, while Iran is expected to go ahead with her oil nationalization program, the extremists who would "throw the British out" will not have their way.

Premier Hussein Ala, known for his cooperative attitude toward the West, has been constrained by public sentiment to go along with the Iranian parliament's determination that the country shall own outright its greatest resource. He has politely but firmly rejected Britain's contention that nationalization cannot take place legally during the life of the Anglo-Iranian Oil company concessions which run until 1933.

Western diplomats are now inclined to accept the inevitability of nationalization, but hope to make an agreement whereby it won't make much actual difference in control and distribution of the oil. That has now become the major issue, overshadowing things like profits.

The United States has joined Britain in reminding that both countries have cooperated for Iranian's welfare and promising to continue to do so. Their stand against Russian intentions in 1946, and again in 1950 was recalled. Not a word of pressure was applied, but Iran's position with relation to Russia if she did not have this Western support was implied for all to see.

In return, the Iranian ambassador in Washington had said that Iran wants the benefit of those who are experienced in operating the oil development, which means the British technicians.

Iran's oil fields now are the world's fourth largest, and reserves which might put them well toward the top are suspected. The fields have been operated for years by the British. Thousands of Iranians are employed, but none in key operating positions. Iran will either have to let Western technicians run things or—a grave alternative—let the Russians in.

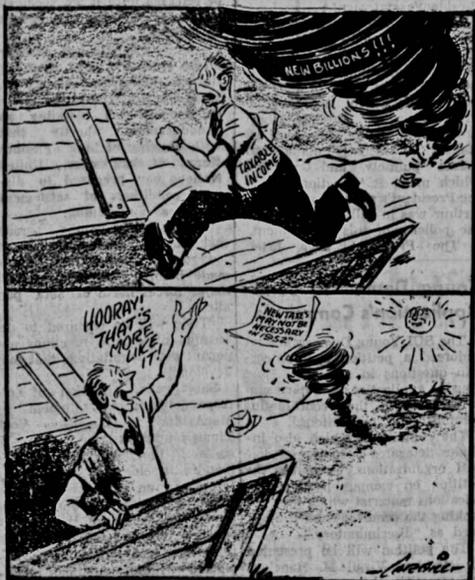

Iran made an agreement with Russia several years ago to form a joint company and study the possibility of letting Russia in on new developments. An agreement is all that it has amounted to. But the shadow of Russia's nearness and the threat which would be contained in her access to Iranian oil, coupled with the dangers of some extreme anti-Western sentiment among Iranians, is frightening to the West. Under the circumstances, almost any sort of deal which will retain Western rights to the oil can be expected.

The U.S. is interested not only as a friend of Britain and an enemy of Russia in the cold war. A large part of Iranian oil is contracted for by American firms, and the whole oil distribution system of the Western world would be upset if that supply were cut off.

The hope now is that a deal will be made on a monetary basis, with Britain retaining operating and distribution rights in some new lease arrangement. One of the great factors producing optimism on this score is that Iran doesn't have the money to pay for the fields, and that she will need some sort of pay-as-you-go arrangement to clear the books.

And there is still some basis of friendship on which to work, too.

'Cancer Conspiracy' ...

TO THE EDITOR:

The cartoon by Robert Artley picturing cancer as an octopus and the Iowa Division of the American Cancer Society as the hero that can crush cancer by public contributions is a typical and melodramatic presentation supporting a gigantic conspiracy that has everyone fooled except a few thinking people.

This chimerical conspiracy does not include only cancer but also polio and other diseases. In each case, however, the collected millions are wasted for idiotic research, bungling medical treatment, and for paying big salaries to sadists and hierarchs of medicine. The irony of the whole rotten business is that the money earmarked for research and for most other medical measures to fight cancer and other diseases does exactly the opposite — produces more disease.

Cancer and other chronic diseases such as polio and leukemia have increased sharply since organized medical science started squandering millions for research obtained through theft of public confidence. Fatalities and invalidity have also increased. VA hospitals house as many veterans disabled from medical treatment, particularly immunization shots, as from injuries received in combat.

Organized medical science and the vested interests of the commercial interests are behind this diabolical conspiracy.

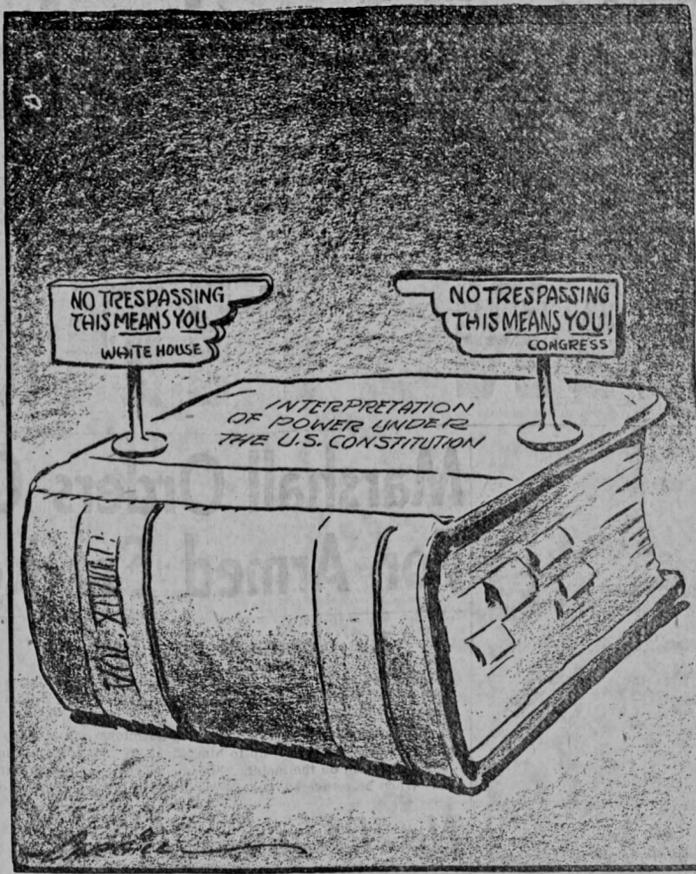

Organized doctors practice commercially profitable medicine, and ignore mild, natural measures as being too simple, too unprofitable, too effective, and take too much time and energy. The medical and commercial interests are not interested in eradicating cancer or any other disease. They are interested in treating disease, not preventing it. If this were not true, they would not ignore Dr. Hoxsey's treatment for cancer, and they would stop trying to eradicate natural methods, such as chiropractic and naturopathy.

Signs of Spring in Washington

New-Found 'Jet Stream' Hatches Weather

CHICAGO (AP) — A new-found factor in our weather already is solving many forecasting puzzles.

Called the "jet stream" by University of Chicago scientists who discovered it, it is a narrow whirling wind with speeds up to 300 miles an hour. It rides six to 10 miles above the earth, always moving from west to east, near the top of the atmospheric envelope.

Telling about its discovery, the university's Herbert Riehl said the swift current is considered the hatchery for much of the world's weather. Its finding is ranked by meteorologists as a major step in weather predicting. Forecasters using it report a great step up in accuracy in extended predictions.

A tremendous storm which hit the United States Nov. 25 came three days after a jet stream had passed at 150 miles an hour.

Jet stream information had not been incorporated in general forecasts then, but Riehl thinks observation of that and other examples will detect similar possibilities in the future.

The jet stream also is coming into some commercial use. Airline pilots are learning to utilize it as an auxiliary power source. Long-range aircraft save both fuel and flight time by riding the jet stream from west to east and by avoiding bucking it when returning from east to west.

Riehl described the jet stream as about 300 miles wide. It swings back and forth from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, partly influenced by the seasons and other factors.

"Weather," explained Riehl, "follows the earth's rotation like grandma's trailing skirts. Its general pattern in the temperate zone is from west to east. Within the general movement, however, there are many localized swirls and undulations.

"Until the jet stream was discovered, we could not explain many of these differences. We find long-range forecasting improving with this new knowledge."

The wind averages 100 miles an hour in summer, 150 in winter. Velocity can drop as low as 75 and rise to 300 miles an hour. At varied speeds it circles the world in four days.

Anti-Brothel Group Retires

CHICAGO (AP) — The committee of fifteen, chartered 44 years ago to fight white slavery, has closed its office because the old fashioned bawdy house has disappeared from the Chicago scene.

Executive Director Howard Haylett said the once-famous committee went out of business because public support had waned and prostitution had dwindled to its lowest ebb.

Other sources, however, disagreed with the thesis that prostitution is negligible. They conceded that the brothel is a thing of the past, but they said "call girls" ply a lucrative trade along the night club belt.

The prostitutes frequent bars and cabarets where they contact salesmen and out-of-towners here to attend conventions. Many live in second-rate hotels and employ bartenders and cab drivers as their "contact men."

Nevertheless, police sociologists and members of the committee itself agreed that prostitution is not the problem it was in Chicago's palmy days.

Ernest W. Burgess, University of Chicago sociologist, said one reason for its decline appears to be a less rigid set of moral standards among women generally.

"The amount of promiscuity among women not engaged in prostitution is much greater today than it was 30 years ago," Burgess said. "Naturally, prostitution has declined."

He cited the Kinsey report, which shows that a relatively small percentage of males of the present generation have had relations with prostitutes.

Oddenda, Including More About Oscar —

One of these days I'm hoping that the Motion Picture academy will get around to making a few reforms which are sorely needed. One of them concerns so-called "supporting" actors like Edmund Gwenn who was mentioned here yesterday.

It is the practice for each studio to name two of its own pictures and a specified number of performers from which the nominees for Academy awards shall be selected. This almost precludes choice on a purely artistic basis since the studio will pick those it believes have the best chances to win and/or will prove the most commercially advantageous.

It permits, where actors are involved, the peculiar practice of submitting names for either the starring or the supporting performance category, again depending on which the studio powers believe will give their candidate the best chance of bringing home the bacon.

Such a process accounts for Barry Fitzgerald's being nominated under both classifications in 1944 for the same performance, thereby depriving someone in one or the other category of a chance at the Oscar. (Actually Fitzgerald had a leading role; technically he was a supporting actor.)

Because leading actors naturally get more attention, it has seen an increasing practice of stars' being nominated in supporting categories. Celeste Holm, Clifton Webb and Ralph Richardson have been so nominated. Anne Baxter and now George Sanders have won through this procedure. (This year it was reported that Miss Baxter had to call up Darryl F. Zanuck to request that she be nominated in a starring capacity for her starring role in "All About Eve".)

The practice should logically have been outlawed long ago, but the abuse remains. What is needed is a clarification of the definition of "supporting player." Since Edmund Gwenn received supporting billing for "Mister 880" as well as for "Miracle on 34th Street," his nomination in that classification was entirely in observance of Academy provisions — unlike the nominations mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

There is no question of course, that Gwenn had the "true" starring role in those films. But one's name in small title is the traditional determinant of status; realistically, the practice means that some of our Hollywood stars are stars in (position of) name only.

Similarly, while we may have no doubt that Walter Huston was the dominant personality of "Tresure of Sierra Madre" and Charles Coburn of "The Green Years," their nominations for Oscars at the time as supporting actors was commensurate with their original casting position and with their studios' estimates of their box-office power.

Once Hollywood acquires maturity insofar as publicizing its players for their artistic worth rather than commercial value alone, we may see actors nominated in their proper classifications. Until then it will be a toss-up as to who will be placed in what category, the decisive factor being $$$$.

What's in a Double Feature Department

It's a common practice to pass on film titles which provide amusement when placed in combination feature bills. Not to be outdone, I pass on a few, the first demonstrating (if nothing else) the versatility of "Sunset Boulevard".

In Iowa City, with "Where the Sidewalk Ends"; In Cedar Rapids, with "One Way Street"; In Chicago, with "No Way Out."

I'm also fond of last week's local duo: "June Bride" — "Bitter Rice."

Storyteller Spins Tales—Handicaps Forgotten

Hospital Library Enables Patients to Explore World

By MARTHA OVERHOLSER

Even for those who cannot see or hear, the patient library at University hospitals offers a way to explore through many lands with many people.

The Iowa City Delta Gamma alumnae presented two braille magazine subscriptions, Readers Digest and Jack and Jill, to the hospitals as a Christmas gift for both the children and the adult sight handicapped readers. The first issues arrived in March.

Previously the patients had donated braille literature and material sent from the inter-library loan at the School for the Blind at Winton.

Mrs. Stagg Is Librarian

Mrs. Leota Stagg, librarian for the hospital, said she had difficulty in keeping many of the braille readers happy. Now she has more up-to-date material available for the readers.

In addition to the little book-lined library, and book carts which go to the patients in their wards, Mrs. Stagg conducts story hours for those with handicapped hearing and sight. She has separate story periods for the adults and children.

She tells stories to the children using pictures and record backgrounds. Those who cannot hear, can understand the story through pictures and feel the rhythm of the records. Those who cannot see, can hear Mrs. Stagg's voice and the musical background.

Tots Prefer Reality

Mrs. Stagg has found from her seven years as hospital librarian that children like at least the shadow of reality in their stories. They are no longer happy with the complete fantasy of some of the classical tales, Horse and dog stories have been the most popular in the last few years.

Mrs. Stagg's story-telling technique is to let her audience choose the stories they want after they gather in the library because she never knows which age group and tastes will be represented.

The older children seem to like younger age stories, but when there is a demand, Mrs. Stagg tells folk tales to the teenage group.

The adult group which gathers spontaneously in the evenings enjoys hearing records of favorite musical comedies with Mrs. Stagg telling the story in-between songs. One man said he'd "Never seen a stage play, but I feel as if I have now."

City to Enter Youth Partnership Contest

Representatives from a number of Iowa City civic and educational groups met Tuesday to initiate plans for the Iowa City Woman's club entry in a national "Build Freedom With Youth" contest.

The contest, sponsored by the General Federation of Women's clubs, dramatizes the idea of taking youth into partnership in a program of community planning.

Mrs. E. T. Hubbard, project chairman of the Woman's club, said.

The local club began their program by surveying students in the four local high schools about a youth employment service. The meeting Tuesday represented the pledging of active support in the program by other Iowa City organizations.

The extent of youth participation, the degree to which the community was united in participation, and the results achieved will serve as a basis for all the awarding of prizes, Mrs. Hubbard said. The projects are to be carried out from Feb. 1, 1951 to Feb. 1, 1952.

Award Basis

Organizations in Iowa City which will cooperate in the program are the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Recreation board, YMCA, YMCA, Optimist club, recreation center, the four local high schools, churches through the Ministerial association, chamber of commerce, League of Women Voters, SUU child welfare research station, other University groups, Parent-Teachers association, and the Opti-Mrs. club.

1951 Students Less Self-Supporting; Morris

Medical students are getting more financial support from parents than students five years ago, according to statistics released by Dr. W.W. Morris, assistant dean of medical student affairs.

Seventy-one percent of the freshman class worked their way through school five years ago compared to 34 percent today. Sixty-six percent of today's freshmen plan to secure all or part of their finances from parents, Morris said.

The statistics show that 11 percent of the freshman medical students came from farm homes this year, a greater percentage than any other occupational group.

bers and given admission tests.

Grades from these tests and from previous college work help determine a student's acceptability. Race or religion have no bearing on the application, Morris said, but Iowa residents or sons or daughters of Iowa alumni are given preference.

Every effort is made to admit only those students with a strong desire to enter the medical profession, Morris said.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 16...THE HARLEQUIN DUCK

"I may be a clown—but I'm no fool!"

He might be the merry-andrew of the marshlands, but lately he's been downright glum about these trick cigarette mildness tests. Never one to duck facts, he holds nothing much can be proved by a sniff of one brand or a quick puff from another. Snap judgments can't take the place of regular, day-to-day smoking. That's why so many smokers are turning to...

The sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why...

Marshall Plan Guest Amazed at Waste —

German Visitor Finds Surprises in Iowa City

By DARLENE CROUCH
Brightly-lighted homes in Iowa City were a great surprise to Miss Lore Adam, Berlin, Germany, a guest in the city this past weekend.
Miss Adam, an "exchange of persons visitor," was amazed at the number of "kilo-watts" we burn needlessly. In Germany, she said, it is necessary to conserve electricity as the power is only on for certain hours.
Another surprising trait of Americans, so far as Miss Adam is concerned, is their tendency to keep houses too warm. She had to send home a suit which she brought because it was too warm in American houses.
Will Study Women's Groups
Miss Adam is in the United States for six months to study women's organizations and civic participation. She arrived in Iowa City Friday after spending some time in Minnesota. She left for Ames Tuesday.
The funds for her trip were provided by the Marshall plan. The program which sponsored Miss Adam's trip was administered by the woman's bureau of the United States department of labor in cooperation with the state department and nine national women's organizations.
"I'm mostly interested in the League of Women Voters and the Parent-Teachers association," she said. Miss Adam is first president of a German organization similar to our league. She said German women have had the right to vote since 1918, "two years before you Americans," she laughed.
Learned English from BBC
Although Miss Adam is modest about her English, she speaks very clearly and distinctly. She learned English in school where it was required. Most of her speaking ability was gained by listening to BBC, London.
Americans speak too softly, she says. "I have met this characteristic before, as I have an American friend who is married to a German. I suffer because she talks too low for me to understand her."
Met the Duke
Miss Adam's stay in Iowa City was a constant round of activities. She attended the Duke Ellington concert Friday night and met the "master of jazz" backstage in person. "I'm hoping to take some of his records back home with me," she said.
She also visited the Amama colonies where she toured the mills and visited several German-speaking families.
Miss Adam was also fortunate in meeting two German women while in Iowa City. One young woman introduced herself to Miss Adam during her visit to Currier. They both came from the same city in Germany and lived but two blocks apart.

LOOKING OVER A COPY OF "THE NEW YORKER" was Miss Lore Adam, Berlin, Germany, who spent the past weekend visiting in Iowa City. Miss Adam said the magazine appealed to her very much, especially the drawings. "I think I like it best of the many things I have encountered in the United States," she said.

Price Regulations Mailed to Businessmen

Current price ceiling regulations are being mailed directly to Iowa businessmen as soon as copies are received at the office of price stabilization, Albert J. Loveland, state OPS director said Tuesday.
Until a merchant receives his copy of the new regulations, trade association lists are fairly accurate and can be followed.
If, within a reasonable length of time, a merchant fails to receive a regulation he knows he should have, he should write the office of price stabilization, 615 Securities building, Des Moines.
Before the copies ran out last week, 1,150 merchants received copy of price regulation No. 7, pertaining to furniture and wearing apparel. Another 300 copies will be sent out this week to complete the list.
CPR No. 7 requires that a pricing chart be filed with the Des Moines district office not later than April 30.

First District Survey Shows UMT Favored

Rep. Thomas E. Martin (R-Iowa) has announced that of the 3,465 replies he has received to questionnaires he sent to 32,000 constituents of the Iowa first district, 2,353 persons answered in favor of universal military training and 982 were against it.
The questionnaires, which Martin said were sent to every fifth householder in his district, contained 56 questions based on President Truman's four messages to the 82nd congress.
Iowa first district voters opposed 2,115 to 1,180 the withdrawal of American troops from Korea, and 2,384 answered a resounding "No" to the question, "Do you approve the Truman administration foreign policy?"
In response to other questions pertaining to the Far East situation, Iowans in Martin's district favored the bombing of bases and supply lines in Manchuria, the support of an invasion of China by Chinese Nationalist forces, the use of atomic bombs against Russia if a Russian war develops, and the rearming of Japan.

They opposed, 1,952 to 1,904, the use of atomic bombs against Chinese Red forces and supply bases.
Asked if they approved of drafting 18-year-olds into the armed services, 1,896 of those queried answered "yes" and 1,432 said "no."
Strong disapproval of drafting World War II veterans was shown when 869 answered in favor of it and 2,197 opposed it.
The voters who returned their questionnaires favored sending armed forces to Europe but with congressional control, rearming Germany, continuing arms aid to foreign countries and immediate across the board government regulation of prices, wages and rents.
They decisively disapproved of socialized medicine and the Branman plan for agriculture.

A concert superior to any presented thus far this year at SUI was performed Tuesday night by the Minneapolis symphony orchestra in the Iowa Union.

Mississippi Woman Reveals Job-Selling In Post Office-Graft

JACKSON, MISS. (AP) — A witness told a senate committee investigating sale of federal jobs in Mississippi Tuesday she had been "afraid to tell all I knew" for fear "we'd probably all go to the pen."

The witness was Mrs. Claude Y. Murphy of Winona, a member of the pro-Truman Mississippi Democratic committee and identified by previous witnesses as their contact with the committee in purchasing postoffice department jobs.

Sen. Karl Mundt (R-S.D.) asserted during the hearings now in their second day that handling of postoffice patronage in Mississippi is "one of the most vicious job-selling rackets I've ever heard of."

Mrs. Murphy and her husband, a rural mail carrier, were sworn in together.

She told the senate committee that Curtis Rodgers, secretary of the Mississippi Democratic committee and Forrest Jackson, an attorney at Jackson, "told us we could accept contributions up to $5,000. I understood that if the contributions were made and I recommend them the people would get the jobs."

She said Rodgers would not accept any checks other than her own, and that "he told me he couldn't run the office on hot air."

She said she had collected $2,500 in contributions for the committee. "I've been afraid to tell all I knew," she testified. "Mr. Rodgers told me that if we told everything we knew we'd probably all go to the pen."

Her husband, explaining that he is a Republican while his wife is a Democrat added "but you know a Republican in Mississippi has about as much chance as a snowball in hell." He said he had contributed $700 to the pro-Truman group and $600 to the campaign to Rep. Thomas Abernethy of the fourth Mississippi district.

During the council meeting, SUI's athletic department was granted the use of a city street sweeper to clean tennis courts near the fieldhouse.

ence of about 1,000 persons. The SUI concert course committee sponsored the concert, one of a series of three by the orchestra to be presented here.

The most impressive selection, which opened the program, was the Leonore overture No. 3 from Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio."

It was played with such precision and consistent firm attacks that each phrase glowed, a desirable entity in itself.

The individual instruments maintained a rich coloring whether soloing or in harmony or union with others. No blurring was discernable. Each kept its edges and character and the blended result was a new experience in auditory sensation.

Of high interest to the audience was the Suite from the Stravinsky ballet, "Petrouchka."

Rich in variation of mood and instrumental color, the suite offered opportunities for much solo work.

The piano, with various members of the woodwinds section, introduced passages of elusive beauty which gained in frenzy throughout the selection, gave unity to sections that at times seemed completely disconnected from the overall impression.

Humorous touches abounded in the suite and the suave Dorati drew all possible meaning from them.

"The Sibelius Symphony No. 2 recounts a tremendous psychological struggle where moods, dark as the bass instruments can make them, conflict constantly, except for brief interludes of troubled rest, with soaring strings and distressed woodwinds.

A feeling interpretation by the orchestra made turmoil lucid and simplicity a complex of nuances in tone.

In all, it was a performance this reviewer would like to hear again.

Sheboygan Strike Ends; Paper Keeps Union Shop

SHEBOYGAN, WIS. (AP) — The Sheboygan Press and the American newspaper guild signed a new contract Tuesday ending a brief strike by some 33 guild members in the newspaper's editorial, advertising and circulating departments.

The new contract continues the union shop. A. Matt Wener, associate editor said. A dispute over the union shop provision precipitated the walkout. Some workers walked out Monday and others joined them Tuesday and picketed the plant.

On Concert Tours —

Dorati's Main Problem

— Is His Laundry

By BETTY GLENN

The biggest problem of a symphony orchestra conductor on tour has nothing to do with music or musicians — his really big worry is — laundry.

It generally takes 24 hours to get laundry done at a hotel, Antal Dorati, conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra, said Tuesday, but the orchestra seldom stays in one town that long.

Now on tour, Dorati has conducted eight concerts in seven days. He arrived with the orchestra in Iowa City Tuesday afternoon to play three concerts here.

Prof. Clapp Helpful "Iowa City to us is a special town because we play here year after year. I work with many people at the university — Dr. Clapp and several others, in planning the programs for the university audience." Prof. P. G. Clapp is the head of the music department here.

The conductor said that his programs were planned to give a variety of music, but said that he believed one of the highlights of today's 2:30 p.m. program, will be "The Pines of Rome" by Respighi.

"It is not very often played but it is beautiful," he said. Of this evening's program, at 8 p.m. in the Iowa Union, Dorati chose Beethoven's "Symphony No. 4" as his favorite. "It is a beautiful, sweet piece," he said.

Musical Scores Memorized Dorati began studying the scores for his programs as soon as he arrived in Iowa City. He has all his musical scores memorized and conducts from memory.

"Traveling for an orchestra is very difficult, but this one holds up well under both the traveling and the great number of concerts," Dorati said. All rehearsing is done before the tour begins.

In the past two weeks, they have played at the University of Wisconsin, University of Illinois, Iowa State college, St. Louis, Mo., the University of Missouri, Waverly, Burlington and several other towns. Two concerts in Cedar Rapids Thursday will complete the tour.

Although the orchestra has appeared here many times, this is Dorati's second visit. "Last year it rained all the time we were here, so I saw very little of the campus."

Dorati is married and has a 10-year-old daughter, Tonina, who plays the piano. The conductor was born in Budapest and studied at the Budapest Academy of Music.

Succeeds Mitropoulos He was chosen conductor of the 90-piece Minneapolis symphony orchestra after the resignation of Dimitri Mitropoulos in 1949. Mitropoulos became conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra.

Previously, Dorati conducted the Dallas symphony orchestra and other orchestras in Europe, England, Mexico, South America and Australia.

Kaiser Weds Nurse 28 Days Following First Wife's Death

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF. (AP) — Henry J. Kaiser, wealthy west coast industrialist, Tuesday married Alysce Chester, the dark-haired divorcee who was his first wife's nurse until her death 28 days ago.

Only a few friends and relatives of the couple were present as the Rev. C. Eugene Sill performed the marriage in the First Congregational church.

Immediately after the ceremony, Kaiser and his bride boarded his private plane for a honeymoon flight to Miami. From Florida, they will fly to Jamaica, British West Indies, where Kaiser will combine his honeymoon with a business trip to the Kaiser Bauxite holdings there.

The automobile and ship builder was quick to answer those who raised their eyebrows at his marriage to Miss Chester so soon after his wife's death on March 14. They had been married 4 years.

"I have never lived according to the conventions," he said. "I have defied the conventions all my life."

"No one who knew Mrs. Kaiser and Miss Chester and their association could express disapproval of this marriage," Kaiser said.

"And," he added with a glance at his bride, "I love her."

Reports he had built a home in Lafayette, Calif., for Miss Chester while his first wife was alive were true, he said, but he and his late wife built that in appreciation of Miss Chester's devotion and long service. He indicated Mrs. Kaiser knew and approved before her death of his plan to marry Miss Chester.

INTOXICATION FINES Two men were fined a total of $50 for intoxication in Iowa City police court Tuesday. Nick Elmore, Iowa City, was fined $27.50 and George W. McClelland, Madrid, $22.50 on the same charge by Judge Emil G. Trott.

Unaware of Injury, Driver Collapses Later DAVENPORT (AP) — A man who apparently was unaware that he was injured in an auto accident collapsed Tuesday as he drove up to the U.S. engineer's shop at the Rock Island arsenal.

Paul Eads, 34, muttered to fellow workers that he "went into a ditch near Princeton to avoid a head-on collision," then passed out — the victim of a brain concussion.

Investigators said Eads apparently was able to get his pickup truck back on the highway after avoiding an oncoming machine and was unaware that he had been injured in the jolt.

Dentist Says City Water May Be Lacking Fluorine

Iowa City may be one of 936 Iowa communities which lack enough fluorine in their drinking water to check tooth decay.

Dr. H. I. Wilson, a dental consultant for the state department of health, made this statement Tuesday as he addressed more than 70 water works managers and superintendents attending the SUI water works short course.

He said that communities which get their water supply from a river or lake are lacking the required fluorine to check tooth decay.

Iowa communities which derive their water supply from wells generally have enough natural fluorine in their water to do the job, he added. There are 365 such communities in this state. At the present time, no Iowa town is adding fluorine to its water supply.

It takes only one and a half to two parts of fluorine per million parts of water to reduce tooth decay, Dr. Wilson said. He told the water works men following Dr. Wilson's speech. Nichols is the assistant director of the Wisconsin state laboratory of hygiene.

The third speaker to address the meeting Tuesday, Dr. J. R. Blayney, director of the University of Chicago dental clinic, injected a word of caution into the discussion of adding fluorine to drinking water.

Existing evidence shows that fluorine in water supplies is desirable, he said, but the project is still in the experimental stage.

Water Safety Course Offered by Red Cross University and town women may now enroll in a water safety training program sponsored by the American Red Cross. Deadline for enrollment is Monday.

Beats Daughter, Pleads Guilty

DAVENPORT (AP) — Cleoher Robinson, 28, Davenport, pleaded guilty Tuesday to an assault charge filed in the investigation of the beating of his infant daughter.

Police magistrate John J. McSwiggan bound the young father over to district court on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Bond was set at $1,000.

Detectives who arrested Robinson last March 26 said that he had beaten his two-year-old daughter, Emma Jean, so severely that she had to be hospitalized.

In a signed statement, Robinson said he struck his little girl "in a fit of anger." Robinson himself took the child to meek hospital.

Emma Jean is still under treatment at the hospital.

Property Owner Opposes Re-Zoning Proposal

Proposed re-zoning of the Boston-Hellbride property near the hydraulics laboratory from a residential to a business-district met opposition again Monday night in city council meeting.

L. H. Dawson submitted an objection on grounds that the rezoning ordinance, which still awaits final acceptance by the city council, would lower the value of his property.

Previously SUI President Virgil M. Hancher had asked that the council carefully consider the proposed plan, thus registering concern that future university building plans might be impaired.

Recommendation of the Iowa City planning and zoning commission was that the requested rezoning not be granted.

During the council meeting, SUI's athletic department was granted the use of a city street sweeper to clean tennis courts near the fieldhouse.

Late Hawkeye Rally Beats Luther Second Time, 6-5

Iowa Gets Only Four Hits in Gaining 6th Win

By HOBERT DUNCAN
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

The ball game was certainly better than the weather at Iowa diamond Tuesday afternoon when the Hawkeyes scored a run in the eighth inning to beat Luther for the second straight time, 6-5.

A fair sized top coated crowd saw the Hawks win their sixth game in weather more suited to football than baseball.

Iowa had to rally for all six of its runs in the last two times at bat to overhaul the Norsemen who looked much better than they did in Monday's game.

Monday it was Iowa who did the hitting. Tuesday it was Luther. Luther collected 10 hits off Jim Riedesel and his replacement Whitey Diehl while the Hawks got by economically with only four hits from three Luther hurlers.

Half of the Hawks' hits were triples but neither figured in the scoring. In fact it's doubtful if Iowa would have scored at all if it hadn't been for Roger Weberg's extreme wildness just when it looked like he had the Hawks beaten.

Weberg was sailing along with a 5-0 lead going into the bottom half of the seventh inning. He got past Bob Christoph and Bud Kurt with strike outs and then his control left him but good. Before he left the ball game, he had walked five straight hitters including two across the plate and left the bases full for his replacement Devere Carey.

Left fielder George Hand, the first batter to face Carey, bounced a double over third base to score all three runs and tie up the ball game at 5-5. Luther Left Fielder Jack Schultz twice dropped the ball trying to pick it up allowing Chuck Cebuhar to score the third run.

The Hawks got their winning run in the eighth. After two were down, Diehl worked Bob Knutson for a walk. He moved along to second on a wild pitch, to third when successive batters were walked and hit by a pitch-ball respectively and came in on another wild pitch.

After scoring the run, Diehl then went out and stopped the Norsemen in the top of the ninth. Luther picked up a single run in the sixth inning on three hits for a 1-0 lead. They added four more in the next inning to pile up a lead which at the time looked pretty tough to overcome.

In the inning Luther collected five hits, two of them beat out bunts.

The first four Norsemen at the plate in this inning got on base. Riedesel, who was never hit hard although he gave up nine hits, finally forced Larry Kipfer to ground out. But the next two hitters got on base and that was all for the Iowa left hander.

Diehl came on and got the side out after pitching to three men.

In the ninth inning, Bud Kurt committed his first error in 298 chances at first base. Third Baseman Frank Bok and Shortstop Bob Christoph each tripled for the Hawks. Both drives bounced off the left field fence 400-feet from home plate. Hand hammered a double in the seventh inning and Tom Stenger, second baseman, got Iowa's only single.

Iowa's next opponent will be Illinois Friday and Saturday on the Iowa diamond in the Big Ten opener for both schools.

Government Control Placed on Baseball Players 1951 Wages

WASHINGTON — The wage stabilization board put a ceiling on the salaries of baseball players Tuesday.

It ruled that no player can receive more money in 1951 than was received by the highest-paid player on his club for the 1950 season. This means that almost all players who got raises for 1951 will keep them — although Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals loses an estimated $35,000.

The ruling was requested by attorneys for the clubs, and it covers both major and minor league teams. Some attorneys thought that baseball players should be exempt from the wage control program because — like doctors and lawyers they are paid for "professional services."

The board ruled that clubs can grant merit increases and bonuses to players only as long as the salary does not exceed the biggest salary paid by the club last year. The salary boosts also must conform to past practice.

Some of the highest-priced players in the game are not affected. For example, Joe DiMaggio is the highest paid player on the New York Yankees, he gets $100,000 a year. Since he also got $100,000 last year, he keeps his $100,000 this year — and anyone else on the Yankee club can be raised up to that amount if the wage board can be convinced he's that good.

Yogi Berra, for example, was raised from about $25,000 to $40,000. He gets to keep all of that since he still does not come up to DiMaggio's $100,000. Yet Musial was the highest paid player on the St. Louis team last year at an estimated $55,000. So $50,000 is the top for all Cardinals. Musial signed for $85,000 this year, but won't get it now.

SAFE OR OUT? The ball (at left) and sliding Bob Christoph of Iowa seemed destined to meet in a dead heat in the Hawks' game with Luther here Tuesday. But Christoph, who had just slammed a long hit, was safe with a triple. Waiting for the throw was Luther's third baseman, Loren Chelleen. Iowa won its sixth game of the season Tuesday and the second straight from Luther, 6-5.

Both Iowa Houses Approve April 17 For Session's End

DES MOINES (AP) — Both houses of the Iowa legislature Tuesday adopted a resolution to end the 1951 session at 12 noon April 17. The action definitely put the end of the session in sight although the final gavel may not fall at noon April 17th.

House Kills Senate Approves 4 House Bills

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa house Tuesday voted 53-45 to kill a resolution calling for an investigation of the state liquor control commission. The vote was not strictly along party lines, however. Rep. Ted Sloane (R - Des Moines) immediately moved for reconsideration. Speaker William S. Lynes ruled him out of order. A long parliamentary tangle followed and it grew more complicated by the minute.

In the confused windup, the house finally adopted Sloane's suggestion that the procedural state-mate growing out of Sloane's move to reconsider the resolution be reopened today. The house action followed a similar decision by the senate last Friday. The senate vote was on strict party lines with the overwhelming Republican majority ruling.

The house vote showed 33 Republicans and 12 Democrats voting against killing the measure request for an investigation. However, two Democrats voted with the house Republican majority in voting to kill the proposal. Nine Republicans and one Democrat were recorded as absent or not voting. Those house members who voted against killing a resolution calling for an investigation of the state liquor control commission were:

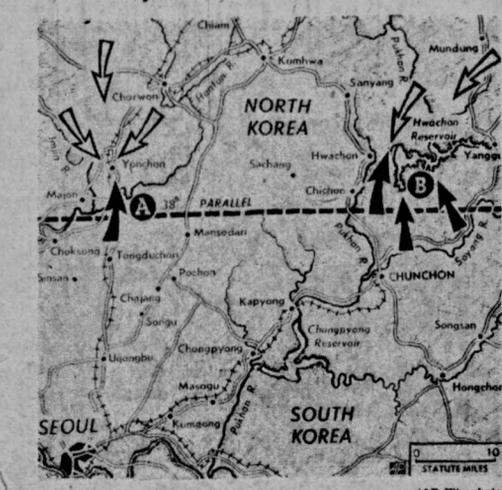

Other Bills
A bill to provide that school driving permits be issued only to youths of 14 to 16 who live 1-1/2 miles or more from school was one of six passed by the house. This bill went to the senate by a vote of 91 to 1. Also sent to the senate was a bill to increase the salaries of grand jury clerks by $2 a day in counties of less than 75,000 population and by $800 a year in counties of more than 75,000 population. The vote was 90 to 2. The four other bills, all sent to the governor, proposed:

To the House
A bill which would allow alcoholics to obtain treatment at state mental hospitals on a voluntary commitment basis was passed by the senate Tuesday, 45 to 0 and sent to the house. The bill provides a method whereby a person can be released within 30 days if cured and detained for an additional 90 days if he requires further treatment.

Name Outstanding Iowa 4-H Members
DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's eight outstanding 4-H club members were named Tuesday and from this group four will be selected to represent Iowa at the national 4-H club camp in Washington, D.C., June 13 to 20. The final selection of two boys and two girls as delegates will be made in Des Moines Saturday by a committee of agricultural leaders headed by Dean Floyd Andre of Iowa State college.

AFL DONATES $768,000
NEW YORK (AP) — The AFL international ladies garment workers union announced Tuesday contributions totaling $768,000 to a number of philanthropic, labor and medical causes.

Heavy Action on Central Front
Action was heaviest Tuesday on the western and central fronts in Korea. Allied troops (solid arrows) and Communist forces (open arrows) battled in the west as the Reds (A) rushed reinforcements near Yoncheon, six miles above the 38th parallel, and forced U.S. patrols to withdraw. In the central sector (B) Reds battled Allied forces attempting to seize the Hwachon Reservoir dam as other UN units drove to the southern shores of the reservoir.

New SUI Editors and Business Managers

Frivol Editor

Cecile L. Rhinehart, A4, Detroit, Mich., appointed editor-in-chief of Frivol by the student board of publications, was copy editor of the 1951 Hawkeye. She is an English major and will receive her B.A. in August. She will continue at SUI doing graduate work in magazine journalism while editing Frivol. Miss Rhinehart has no definite changes in the theme for the 1951-52 editions of the magazine. She wants it to remain a magazine reflecting collegiate life at SUI. Her aim is to make it a much better publication in the future. She advocates raising the quality of writing and art work in Frivol. Her plans for the coming year also include an attempt to line up a staff of reporters from each dormitory on campus to aid in making the magazine actually a true story of collegiate life at SUI.

TED PATROU
Frivol Business Mgr.

Ted Patrou, A2, Webster City, member of the Frivol advertising staff since September, has been promoted to the position of business manager of the magazine by the student board of publications. He is a transfer student from Webster City junior college and this is his second semester at SUI. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity and was publicity chairman for the Intrafraternity Pledge prom this year. He is a commerce major here. His main intention is to make Frivol a magazine which will be able to pay for itself. It is also his intention to see that the business manager will work hand-in-hand with the editor of the publication.

PATRICIA ANN HOUSER
Hawkeye Editor

Patricia Ann Hauser, A3, Decora, present managing editor of Hawkeye, will be the editor-in-chief of the annual for 1952. She was the division editor of the activities volume of Hawkeye and also a copy writer for the 1950 volume. She is a member of the University Women's association and the central party committee. She is president of Alpha Chi Omega, social sorority, and is a member of the SUI Newman club. Miss Hauser has stated, in regard to next year's yearbook, that she would like to use a theme featuring projected shadows symbolic of the various colleges and activities. This system would be similar to the 1949 Hawkeye, she said.

TED SLEDIN
Hawkeye Business Mgr.

The newly-appointed business manager of the 1952 Hawkeye, Ted Seldin, A2, Council Bluffs, is stepping into a position which is not foreign to him since he served as staff manager of the 1951 yearbook. He is majoring in economics, but plans on entering the SUI college of law in the fall of 1952. He has been a member of the National Student association publicity committee and was a freshman orientation advisor. He has also been a member of the SUI marching and concert bands. Seldin recommended that the size of the Hawkeye be changed to where it will be consistent with other college annuals. The present size is slightly smaller than the normal size and is an inconvenience for the printer, Seldin said.

The board passed a motion which prohibits the YMCA from using the school's equipment when it is granted the use of buildings for its programs. The board also approved a motion to open bids for the coal supply for the coming year. Bids may be submitted up to the time of the next meeting.

Free Chick Offer Answered by 5,000

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — R.J.C. Tricou expected "a few hundred people to answer" when he advertised Monday he would give away 10,000 baby chicks. But when his store, Louisiana Hatcheries, opened Tuesday morning, between 3,000 and 5,000 persons were crowded around the door. Unable to handle the crowd, he called police. Several hours later when customers had been placed in orderly lines, Tricou began distribution of the chicks — 15 to a customer. "I'll never try to give anything away again," Tricou said.

Babs' Hutton Reported In 'Serious Condition'

NEW YORK (AP) — Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton is in a "serious condition" with a virus attack in a Manhattan hospital, it was learned Tuesday night. Intimates of Miss Hutton said, however, that the latest physician's bulletin indicated "some improvement" and that there was "no reason to believe that she won't pull through."

Mark Twain Library Sold at Auction

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mark Twain's library was sold at auction Tuesday and the author's own copy of "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" brought top price. Max Hunley, rare book dealer of Los Angeles, bought the volume for $325. It was the small copy — 5 by 8 inches — the late writer used on his lecture tour: 60 and 70 years ago. Bookworms from all sections of the country vied for portions of the author's collection of 3,000 volumes. E.F. Whitman, auction manager, estimated the first 800 books auctioned brought more than $5,000.

MCCARTHY TARGETS — Stephen Brunnauer and his wife, who were targets of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's communism-in-government charges, have been suspended from their navy and state department jobs, it was disclosed. The Brunnauers were suspended pending the outcome of loyalty and security checks on the husband.

IOWA CORN CROP — Iowa's stocks of corn on the farm were nearly 90,000 bushels less than a year ago, the department of agriculture report indicated. The crop report showed stocks of corn on Iowa farms on April 1 amounted to 269,555,000. This compares with stocks of 357,105,000 bushels on April 1, 1950.

WHEAT ESTIMATES — The government estimated that drought and greenbug damage have cut the 1951 winter wheat crop to 728,512,000 bushels, but officials said the supply should meet civilian, military and export needs. The new estimate is a drop of 172,488,000 bushels from the agriculture department's Dec. 1 prediction of 899-million bushels. It is also 24,154,000 bushels less than last year's 750,666,000 bushel crop.

COWS ARE MACHINES — The internal revenue department is preparing to rule that livestock are "machines" Rep. Harold Love, (R-S.D.), said. Love said the revenue department will rule that cattle held for six months before resale can be classified as capital assets. As a result, the department will be carrying out the decision of the eighth circuit court of appeals in what is known as the "Albright case." The court held that dairy cows and brood sows are "machines" owned by livestock growers and should be treated as capital assets. Consequently, when sold they would be subject to the 50 percent tax on capital gains instead of the regular income tax.

Sterling Hayden Admits Former Communist Party Membership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Movie actor Sterling Hayden, six-foot four-inch World War II marine, testified Tuesday he joined the Communist party in a burst of misguided emotion in June 1946, but quit in disgust seven months later. The frank-spoken star, who ticked off the names of several members of his Hollywood cell including former actress Karen Morley, said he returned from highly-dangerous war service with Marshall Tito's Yugoslav partisans imbued with the idea of righting the world's wrongs.

Recruited by Woman
Hayden, ex-husband of screen star Madeline Carroll, told the house un-American activities committee it was in this mood he was recruited into the party by a woman named Bea Winter, then secretary of his agent, Berg-Allen-Berg. He said she now is employed by Sam Spiegel, independent producer. The actor, also revealed he had handed the investigators a list of film colony persons he believes "by conjecture" to be Communists. He refused to tell reporters how many he had listed.

Rep. Morgan M. Moulder, (D-Mo.), told Hayden he was satisfied. "You gave honest testimony — I have concluded that you are an intensely loyal American citizen," Hayden thanked him. Larry Parks, star of "The Jolson Story," was the first Hollywood figure to admit he was a one-time Communist party member. He later repented also. Two other previous witnesses, actor Howard De Silva and actress Gale Sondergaard, refused to answer questions and were threatened with contempt prosecution.

Stupidist Thing
He admitted candidly that joining the party was the "stupidist, most ignorant thing I've ever done," adding that what turned him completely was the "manner in which everything is predetermined." "I thought they had a form of democracy in mind," Hayden testified. "The whole thing is that they believe they have the key through some occult power and that they know what is best for everybody."

The witness said he wrote FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover within a month after the start of the Korean war to confess his former ties. He said he wanted to clear himself of possible military service in case the fighting spread and urged Hoover to permit him to refer prospective employers to the law enforcement agency when they asked about Communist party membership. Hayden said Hoover rejected the idea. He added that the committee should find some way for people who had made "mistakes" and become Communists to clear themselves.

Applications are not a contract and do not require the student to take the course. Quota allotments may not permit the SUI military department to enroll more next fall who have not applied before Saturday.

Skymaster Crash In Alaska Kills 8

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA (AP) — An airforce C-54 Skymaster attempting to pick up a glider on a training mission crashed and exploded on Ladd field here Tuesday, killing the eight crewmen aboard. Capt. Joe Worthington, Ladd field public information officer, said the four-engine plane swooped down to snatch up the glider and that the nylon cable attached to the plane wound itself around the "elevator" to which the glider was attached. The big plane then smashed into the ground and burst into flames, sending up a giant cloud of black smoke. Worthington said all aboard apparently died instantly. No one aboard the glider was hurt. Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

HAVE FUN.... BUT BE CAREFUL WITH KITES!

Here are four "Reddy" kite flying safety rules that are easy to remember and simple to follow.

By observing them, you'll enjoy all the fun of the sport with no danger of a serious accident to yourself or your playmates.

Reddy says, "Safety pays; play safe."

- ★ Don't use a kite with metal ribs or a kite string of wire or tinsel. Use only cotton cord.
- ★ Don't use wet cord. It's as dangerous as a wire if it contacts electric lines.
- ★ Don't attempt to climb poles to release a kite or try to release it by throwing stones at it.
- ★ Don't run across streets or highways when flying a kite.
