Lons Trial Opens Today; State Files Late Objections

Judge Paul H. McCoid is expected to rule today on objections filed Monday by the prosecution against two late defense moves in the James Lons murder trial.

The trial opens at 10 a.m. today in Johnson county district court with the selection of a 12-member jury. The list of 93 petit jurors has dropped to about 75, after a number of citizens were excused.

Lons, 53-year-old operator of the Princess cafe, 114 S. Dubuque street, is accused of the Oct. 12 fatal stabbing of Andrew Davellis, 40, who was a waiter in the cafe.

One of the objections filed by County Atty. William L. Meardon and Atty. D. C. Nolan, special assistant, was to the addition to the innocent plea filed Friday by Lons.

Prosecution Objects

Defense Attys. A. C. Cahill and William Bartley added to the plea a statement that Lons' "mental, physical and emotional condition at the time of the alleged crime was such as to render him incapable of criminal responsibility for the actions and offense charged."

The prosecution contends that the plea is not one of insanity and therefore "would constitute only an irresponsible impulse" on the part of Lons.

Meardon and Nolan also filed an objection to the order handed by District Judge Harold D. Evans which directed the state to have all of Davellis' possessions on file with the clerk of court by noon Monday.

The prosecution claims the defense has the right to inspect only those items which the prosecution intends to produce as evidence in court.

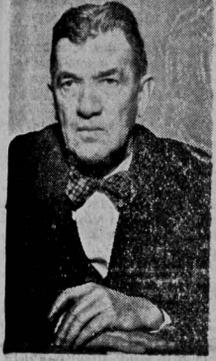

Meardon and Nolan added that the order for collection of the items was made without the state having a chance to be heard.

Judge Bans Pictures

In a press conference Monday afternoon, McCoid announced that no pictures will be permitted to be taken in the courtroom or in the hall outside of the courtroom.

He also set the daily court session from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 2 to 5 p.m. There will be no sessions Saturday.

Cut Predicted In May Draft Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defense department is expected to cut its May draft call soon because of a continued spurt in enlistments and smaller-than-expected casualties in Korea, it was disclosed Monday.

While no firm decision has yet been made, the army has almost reached its authorized strength of 15-million men and induction of the full 80,000 men alerted for the May draft call likely would push it over its quota.

The navy and air force have not yet used the draft in the current emergency since they have been able to meet their requirements with volunteers. They may be forced to do so later under the new system for assuring the army a fair share of brighter recruits.

The army already has cut its April draft call from 80,000 to 40,000 men, explaining that any larger inductions would overstrain its training facilities and perhaps result in shortages of some types of equipment.

Truman Voices Victory Hopes To DAR Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman voiced hope Monday that the "first naked military assault" of worldwide communism has been checked in Korea and predicted that the United States and its allies will win the fight for freedom.

In a brief message read at opening sessions of the 60th Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mr. Truman said this government expects to reach its goal by joining "our strength with the strength of other free nations."

Mrs. James B. Patton, DAR president-general, opened the meeting by saying that America's defense against the global menace of communism lies "primarily" in the Western hemisphere.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far Eastern commander who has been invited to address the convention after he appears before a joint meeting of congress, has insisted that the struggle against communism will be won or lost in the Pacific. The administration believes the test will come in Europe.

In a brief message read to open Daughters, the Chief Executive pledged the United States to "fight to preserve the freedom as other generations of Americans have fought to preserve it."

Then he declared that "we hope that we and other free nations have checked the first naked assault of Communist imperialism." He added:

"Elsewhere, particularly in Europe, the united free nations are building their defenses at a rate which we hope will discourage further Communist attack."

The DAR's board of management has asked MacArthur to speak at his convenience this week. The board has commended MacArthur on his stand on U.S. policy in the Far East and frowned on Mr. Truman's firing of MacArthur.

SUI Employees Union Accepts Wage Raise, Expects Second Hike

The SUI non-academic employees union, local 12, Monday accepted a 10-cent hourly wage increase from the Iowa board of education and expressed confidence another 10-cent raise would be granted July 1.

The union made this statement following a conference with President Virgil M. Hancher Monday. The union asked for the meeting after the board of education Friday unexpectedly authorized the 10-cent raise to the more than 1,900 full-time non-academic employees.

Another Raise July 1

The raise became effective April 1 and continues through July 1.

George Parks, president of the employees union, said an additional 10-cent raise will be granted July 1, when the new SUI budget goes into operation.

Last Nov. 28, the union asked Mr. Hancher for a 20-cent an hour pay boost, but was told no money was available for salary increases.

In Hancher's Request

When Mr. Hancher asked the Iowa legislature for an annual operating appropriation of $8,053,310 for each of the next two years, he included salary increases for the non-academic workers.

A Common Sight in Korea

ENJOYING THE WARM KOREAN SUNSHINE in front of the crude shelter they call home, this Uijongbu family passes the days as United Nations troops move north. The family built their straw-thatched, wooden-frame dwelling along a road near the ruins of their home. Uijongbu is 10 miles north of Seoul.

Reds Set Fires in Attempt To Cover Korean Actions

TOKYO (TUESDAY) — A smoke screen pall rolled up over a 300-square mile area today in central Korea where Chinese Reds set fires in efforts to mask what may be either a withdrawal or an impending attack.

A southerly wind at times opened clear spots in the smoke blanket.

Allied planes bombed and strafed these openings in support of advancing United Nations troops.

The protecting blanket of enemy-made smoke rolled up over an area about 30 miles wide and 10 miles deep.

The smoke pall extended 15 miles northwest of Yangju, one of the latest towns inside Red Korea to fall to the advancing Allies.

The Communists appeared to have abandoned the huge Hwachon reservoir dam, heavily-censored dispatches from the front indicated.

Cautiously - advancing Allied troops failed to find the Reds who previously had fought bitterly for the vital barrier.

At the same time, Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, new Eighth army commander, dared the Chinese today to halt their "shoot-and-run" tactics and open up their long-heralded spring offensive. The Reds, however, continued to withdraw slowly.

The army announced, meanwhile, that twelve thousand former North Koreans are being prepared for police duty under the Allies in North Korea. These men have been thoroughly indoctrinated in the south.

Graduate Student, Accused of Peeping, To Withdraw From SUI

Albert W. Sedar, G. Brighton, Mass., accused of window-peeping in Hawkeye village Saturday night, told SUI Men's Counselor M.L. Huit Monday that he plans to withdraw from school.

The office of student affairs, however, has taken no official action on the matter, Dean L. Dale Faunce said Monday night.

Sedar said Monday night he "might be considering" withdrawing from school but denied that he told Huit that he will leave school.

Sedar was fined $77.50 in Iowa City police court Monday on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was accused of window-peeping after two SUI students told police they caught him looking through the window of the trailers.

Sedar told Judge Emil G. Trott he was walking through the village on his way to his room in the Quadrangle and admitted looking through one of the windows as he walked past it.

English Professor Heads SUI Rhodes Scholar Committee

Prof. S. R. Dunlap, English department, has been appointed to head a five-man committee which will select SUI's candidates for the Rhodes scholarship competition next fall.

Rhodes scholarships offer two years or more study at Oxford university in England to men of junior standing or above.

For Unmarried Males

The committee, appointed by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher, also includes Dean Dewey B. Stuit, college of liberal arts; Prof. Paul Engle, English department; Prof. Gordon Marsh, zoology department, and Prof. John E. Briggs, political science department.

All unmarried male students who will be juniors or above in September, between the ages of 19 and 25, are eligible to appear before the committee, for interviews in October.

Three or four SUI students will be chosen to take a preliminary statewide examination at Ames in November, Dunlap said. The scholarship winners will be selected in six-state district competition at Des Moines in December. President Hancher will make the awards.

Thirty-two scholarships of 500 pounds (about $2,000) a year are awarded to students in the U.S. for study at Oxford. Four students will be selected for the awards from the fifth district of which Iowa is a part.

Robert Earl Shepherd, G. LeGrange, Ore., received a Rhodes award in last year's competition and will enter Oxford in October.

Buried Iowan, Other Articles To Be Sealed

The cornerstone of the Wesley foundation and religious education building, 120 N. Dubuque street, will be laid at noon today, and today's Daily Iowan will be among items sealed in the vault.

The Rev. Charles W. Brashares, bishop of the Des Moines area of the Methodist church, will preside at the ceremonies.

The new building, which will cost an estimated $180,000, was started this winter and is scheduled to be completed in January.

Rev. L. L. Dunnington and the Rev. Robert R. Sanks, pastors of the local Methodist church, will place documents representing the trend of today's thought into a box to be sealed in the cornerstone.

Other documents to be included are the Des Moines Register, the Iowa City Press Citizen, Time magazine, a history of the local church, a program of the 1906 dedication of the present church building, "Something to Stand On," a book by the Rev. Dr. Dunnington.

The box also will contain "Motiv," a national Methodist student magazine; current issues of WeSUI, Wesley student paper; a Wesley foundation brochure, and a picture of the building's predecessor which had served Methodist SUI students for 25 years.

Marine Battalion Lands on Malta

VALLETTA, MALTA (AP) — United States marines landed in battalion strength on this British fortress island Monday in an implied warning to Russia that the West will not tolerate aggression in the Mediterranean or Middle East.

Twelve waves of leathernecks — more than 2,000 — swarmed ashore from the strongest fleet of warships ever assembled in the Mediterranean area by the U.S. in time of peace. An estimated 70 ships were in the fleet, including the Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Coral Sea, two of the world's largest aircraft carriers.

The reinforced marine battalion swept into the northwest corner of Malta in a simulated "invasion" after cruisers and destroyers had "softened" the beachhead with simulated gunfire. After the waves of Leathernecks came tanks and artillery pieces, rolling in under an umbrella of carrier-based planes, which included Panther jets.

New Grants Given To Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman made $29-million available to Yugoslavia Monday to guard against a breakdown of Marshal Tito's armed forces.

The money will go for raw materials and supplies needed in Yugoslavia's drought-crippled economy. It is in addition to $72-million in drought relief already given to Yugoslavia by the United States.

Favors Extension Of Crime Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special commission of the American Bar association recommended Monday that the senate's crime investigating committee be kept alive to press for legislation to cure the evils it has exposed.

Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, chairman of the commission, said the group thinks the time is ripe to get effective laws passed.

He added, however, that the commission believes further investigations and hearings are necessary, and that the proposed extension of the committee's life should be limited.

One of the senate crime probes, Senator Hunt (D-Wyo.) told newsmen earlier he favors twice-a-year public hearings to turn a spotlight on the underworld and to keep law enforcement officials on their toes.

Tri-Dorm Dance Friday

The annual tri-dorm dance will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight Friday in the main lounge of the Iowa Union for students living in Hillcrest, Quadrangle and South Quadrangle.

Del Clayton and his orchestra will play for the semi-formal dance.

World Situation at a Glance

WASHINGTON — Sen. Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.) and Rep. Armstrong said over the weekend they would introduce a resolution in the two houses of congress today calling for a formal declaration of war against Communist China and North Korea.

UNITED NATIONS — The UN receives North Korean note demanding that the international army pull out of North Korea with a boast that the Communists are sure to win.

WASHINGTON — $29-million is made available to Yugoslavia to guard against a breakdown of Marshal Tito's armed forces.

MALTA — U.S. marines land in battalion strength as an implied warning to Soviet Russia that the West will not tolerate aggression in the Mediterranean region.

TEHRAN, IRAN — Thousands of angry Iranian workers stage anti-British demonstration in southwestern Iran where the big Anglo-Iranian Oil company had just resumed operations.

KOREAN FRONT — UN troops continue to advance on heels of bitterly resisting Communist rear guards. One major Red buildup area is wiped out. Chinese and North Koreans lose key towns of Yangju and Yachon on east-central front. Lt. Gen. James Van Fleet, new U.S. Eighth army commander, says Allies "shall always be ready to contain and drive back any enemy attack."

General Pauses Over Graves Of War Dead

(From the Wire Services)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur returns to his homeland today, and his welcome is expected to be one of the biggest and noisiest in American history.

The ousted Far Eastern commander is due to step down from a trans-Pacific plane late in the day at San Francisco — the first time he has set foot in the United States in 14 years.

Even before his first footfall echoes across the nation, bells and whistles and guns and cannon will mark his return in many hamlets and cities.

The Sixth army said it will fire a seventeen-gun salute from two 75-mm field pieces when Gen. MacArthur arrives in San Francisco.

Keys to Many Cities

The keys of many cities are his for the asking as MacArthur then begins a cross-country air journey to Washington.

Congress whipped through formal arrangements Monday for Gen. MacArthur to tell his story to a joint meeting — and by radio and television to the nation — shortly after 11:30 a.m. (Iowa time) Thursday.

Rep. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) suggested that congress move over to Griffith stadium to hear the general because so many people want to attend.

President Truman directed that all federal workers who can be spared should be given time off to take part in the welcoming ceremonies, which are expected to attract hundreds of thousands.

In Honolulu, on his first stop Monday, Gen. MacArthur paid tribute to the fallen of World War II, not far from Pearl Harbor where the crash of Japanese bombs hurled the United States into the biggest conflict of its history.

Wreath of Orchids

The general, pausing here on his way back home to present his case to the American people, stood at salute for a full minute at the base of the flagpole in National Memorial cemetery where 13,000 men lie buried. He placed a wreath of orchids five feet high at the bottom of the flagpole, and then, in a voice that trembled slightly, said:

"I do not know the dignity of their birth, but I do know the glory of their death."

San Francisco Mayor Elmer E. Robinson said MacArthur will land at San Francisco's international airport from Honolulu at 10 p.m. Iowa time today.

Robinson said there will be no public functions and no welcoming ceremonies when the general arrives.

Wednesday morning, Robinson said, the city will officially open its heart to the returning five-star general with a ticker-tape parade through the downtown and financial districts to the city hall.

In New York Democratic Mayor Vincent Impellitteri proclaimed Friday as "MacArthur Day."

North Korea Demands United Nations Leave

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — North Korea, boasting that the Communists are sure to win, demanded Monday that the UN get out of Korea.

In identical cables to Nasroolah Entezam of Iran, president of the general assembly, and to Holland's Daniel Von Balleusek, president of the security council, it also demanded that the UN punish what it called "monstrous atrocities."

It made no mention of the presence of Chinese Communist troops in Korea.

This was the 18th such communication received from North Korean Foreign Minister Pak Hen En. The previous cables have been shrugged off by unimpressed UN delegations and officials. The same fate probably awaits this one.

A close comparison with the 17 previous communications — the first dated June 28 and the last Feb. 11 — shows no modification in the Red position which might indicate any intention of negotiating peace in good faith.

$7.1-Million Asked For SUI

Special to The Daily Iowan

DES MOINES — The Iowa house appropriations committee Monday recommended a $8.3-million annual operating allotment for SUI for the next two years, but 32 house members quickly filed a proposal to increase the appropriation to $7,103,000.

Although recommending the same figure for SUI as voted by the senate Friday, the appropriations committee increased the whole board of education bill to $20,809,919, or $119,900 more than approved by the senate.

Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Davenport), who has backed other proposals to increase SUI allotments, said he and 31 other representatives have filed an amendment to increase the appropriation to $7,103,000.

Largest Yet

This figure is by far the largest allotment proposed for SUI in the legislature. Gov. William S. Beardsley has recommended $5.8-million a year, as compared to the $8,053,310 requested by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher.

The recommended increase of $119,900 in the board of education bill would give the state sanatorium at Oakdale an additional $83,000, or a total of $770,000 and the state school for the deaf at Council Bluffs $35,900, or a total of $439,900.

Meanwhile, a senate-approved amendment to allocate $35,000 for hospitals was blocked by the house.

The senate tacked on the hospital allocation as an amendment in approving a $2-million appropriation to the legislature's budget and financial control committee.

House Approved $1.5-Million

The house originally had approved a $1.5-million allotment for the committee. It went along with the senate's boost to $2-million, but declined the hospital funds.

The $35,000 under question was earmarked in the senate to pay for preliminary plans and specifications for an addition to University hospitals.

In leading a fight against the amendment, Rep. G. T. Kuester (R-Griswold), chairman of the house appropriations committee, contended that the expenditure should not be made at this time.

He declared it was "about time the legislature started thinking about paying only for what it could afford."

Ludwig Supports Proposal

Supporters of the proposal, including Rep. G. M. Ludwig (R-Tiffin), Johnson county's representative, said the money could only be used for study of the deed for an addition and possible drawing of plans.

They argued also that University hospitals is now operating at capacity or near capacity.

If the senate refused to back down on the matter, the bill will have to be ironed out in a conference committee.

Big Dispute

Truman, Mac to Speak On Networks Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just by coincidence, President Truman will have a chance to tell the nation right off the bat what he thinks of General MacArthur's address to congress Thursday — if he wants to, that is.

The President will speak over nation-wide radio and television networks just a few minutes after MacArthur quits talking over even bigger radio and TV line-ups.

The double-barreled broadcasts seemed to assure one of the biggest national audiences in history.

But no one planned it that way. It's just that Mr. Truman has had a long-standing date to address the American Society of Newspaper Editors at 1 p.m. (Iowa time) here Thursday. MacArthur is scheduled to start his speech about 11:30 a.m. (Iowa time).

Fulbright Award Deadline Extended

The deadline for Fulbright scholarship applications has been extended to April 30, Richard E. Sweitzer, SUI advisor on the scholarship, announced Monday.

The extension for the 1952-53 Fulbright scholarships in east Asia and the Pacific was made because of a delay in announcing the original deadline (April 15) and because new information on the scholarships has been obtained.

Life and Times at SUI, 1951 —

The Rev. Dr. L. L. Dunnington will lay the corner stone for the Wesley Foundation and Religious Education building today. And in that stone the pastor will encase a copy of his book, "Something to Stand On," a copy of Time magazine and three of today's newspapers, one of which will be The Daily Iowan.

When the contents are inspected 100 or more years from today, we wonder how our age will be judged. How will the people of that day look upon the events of 1951 and how Iowa Citizens reacted to them.

In April, 1951, SUI, with all the nation, stands waiting — waiting to see whether or not we can escape another World War.

Many male students today know that they will enter the armed forces at the end of this semester.

The council-manager form of government is still an infant here. A murder trial opens today with the selection of the jury SUI's chances of getting the $8,053,310 yearly which President Hancher has requested of the state legislature are dimming.

Iowa Citizens are wondering how long the city park bridge will hold up — the brave ones continue, perhaps with bated breath, to use the structure.

The student body at the university, along with those all over the country, is said to be reverting to the more frivolous collegiate life which existed on campuses before the influx of veterans studying under the famous "GI Bill."

The mechanization of our age is reflected in a parking problem which taxes the patience of our most Job-like personalities.

Communism is the big scare today. A public hero and world-famous general has been fired from his commands by a Democratic president who might be known then as one of the orneriest in history.

We wonder how many events and situations such as these will face the citizen a century from now. It might be risky to say.

However, we'd feel safe in betting that the Iowa Citizens of that day will still be making a remark we hear so frequently in April, 1951.

Knowing Iowa weather, we'd bet Iowa Citizens still will be saying: "It's sure cold for April."

Million Reds Have Seen Combat in Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Figures disclosed by the army show that 1-million or more Chinese Communists and Red Koreans have been used in combat against United Nations forces since the South Korean invasion last June.

This does not mean 1-million enemy troops, or close to that number, have faced UN forces at any one time, although the Communists have been in a position to throw a force near that size into combat.

With the Reds now gradually pulling back, the number of the enemy in contact with UN forces probably is in the neighborhood of 100,000, officials indicated.

Figures released by the army show that UN forces have inflicted 761,000 casualties since the fighting started. In addition, the 695,000 Chinese and Korean troops the Reds now have in Korea would bring to 1,456,000 the number of enemy troops who have faced UN forces or are in a position to get into the fighting.

Many of the 695,000, although in Korea, have not been in combat but are being held in the rear. If the Reds succeeded in making a substantial breakthrough anywhere in the UN lines, they probably would be brought into action in a hurry.

Mac A 'Bomb' Experiment

U.S. Seen With 95% of West's Korean Losses

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) revealed Monday that Americans have suffered 94.6 percent of all casualties among United Nations forces aiding South Korea.

At the same time, Bridges said that the government in its mobilization drive has been adding civilian employees to its payroll at the rate of 2,200 a day since Feb. 1.

Bridges, ranking GOP member of the senate armed services committee, said in a speech to the Western Railway club that he was revealing the ratio of American casualties in Korea "for the first time."

He said American losses of 60,000 killed, injured and missing represented 94.6 percent of all UN casualties, exclusive of South Korean.

Bridges did not give a breakdown on the ratio of casualties suffered by other Allied forces, or evaluate those of the South Koreans.

He added that of the 1-million casualties on both sides, more than 75 percent have been suffered by the North Koreans and Chinese Communists.

Bridges sharply criticized the administration on many counts, including foreign policy, spending, lack of preparedness, debt, price controls and its tax proposals.

He also touched on the MacArthur ouster, calling it the greatest tragedy "since Pearl Harbor."

Earlier Bridges told a news conference that the armed services committee wanted to investigate a "rumor" that Defense Secretary George C. Marshall opposed the ouster but lost out to the desires of Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

He said the committee also wanted to investigate a rumor that President Truman's statement discharging MacArthur was written by Acheson and Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Committee hearings start Wednesday with Marshall as first witness, and MacArthur has agreed to appear any time after his address to the joint session of congress Thursday.

In his speech, Bridges cited latest figures of the joint committee on non-essential federal expenditures, of which he is a member, showing federal civilian employment has increased by 2,200 jobs a day since Feb. 1. Of these, 1,000 a day were civilian employees added by the military.

Bridges said that one out of every 24 employable persons is now working for Uncle Sam.

Laymen Assume Wider Functions In U.S. Churches

NEW YORK (AP) — The businessman and the housewife today are taking over bigger roles in the church life of the country.

From door-to-door evangelism, to church government, laymen have assumed wider functions.

And most clergymen are glad of it.

"It means more democracy and strength in the churches," said Samuel McCrea Caver, general secretary of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

In nearly all major denominations, local and national councils of lay men and women have sprung up in recent years. They have undertaken broad programs, ranging from research to missionary work.

They have revived the ancient art of personal evangelism to a point where some religious leaders believe it outstrips platform preaching.

Lay Christian leaders have risen to occupy top church posts once reserved only for ordained ministers.

A few examples of the trend: In the Methodist church, largest Protestant group in the nation, three of its nine major boards now are headed by laymen — a former civil engineer, former educator and former businessman.

"This couldn't have been true 20 years ago," a Methodist spokesman said.

Only two years ago, laymen were given equal representation in the Methodist general conference, the church's main governing body that meets each four years.

F. Epling Reinartz, general secretary of the United Lutheran church, said, "Our whole tendency has been toward greater lay participation."

In the Catholic church, there has been a "tremendous growth of lay activity," said Monsignor Thomas J. McCarthy, of the National Catholic Welfare conference, Washington, D.C.

Bernard J. Bamberger, president of the Synagogue Council in America, said that while the role of the laity in Judaism has not altered perceptibly, laymen always have held major tasks.

Maybe This Will Tell Something

Interpreting the News — Mac's Career Parallels Father's

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Sixteen years ago Douglas MacArthur retired as chief of staff of the United States army and took a job as military adviser to the Philippine government.

He was, insofar as the more pressing matters of a soldier's life were concerned, through. He was settling down to ease in the Oriental atmosphere into which he had been introduced by his father.

If he ever thought about it at all, he never dreamed that he still had more of his father's path to follow. That he, too, would one day fall into conflict with the American concept of civilian control of military affairs.

But Douglas MacArthur's claim to a place in history was established after, not before, his retirement. As trouble began to brew over the Pacific in 1936 he was made field marshal of the Philippine army, and with World War II was recalled to active duty for the U.S.

The war had hardly begun when MacArthur, always one to inspire extreme devotion or extreme dislike, became the object for the search for clay feet which is always being conducted by part of the American public. Ordered to Australia so that he might command the counteroffensive, he was nevertheless accused of running.

He was even accused of leaving people behind at Corregidor to make room in his plane for personal furniture. There were all sorts of such yarns.

But he said, "I came out and I shall return." Forced to play second fiddle to the war in Europe, he quarreled for allotment of more power in the Pacific. When he didn't get it, he improvised.

Unable to get sufficient naval aid, he turned part of his army into a navy. Army crews took the landing barges along the northern shore of New Guinea in one leap frog attack after another, until Hollandia was secured and a base set up for the journey back.

Few will forget the picture of the general in the rains of Leyte, when a constant flow of Japanese reinforcements from the west side of the island blocked for a time the exploitation of an extremely successful landing. And when one of America's finest admirals almost forgot the general's beleaguered force in the enthusiasm of pursuing a Japanese naval force.

Then the general, by then 10 years past retirement, waded ashore on his beloved island of Luzon, to be with his men as they started the last march to Manila. He did return — but amid scenes of war carnage seldom seen in any important city.

Later he was to stand on the deck of the battleship Missouri and receive the surrender of the men who had led Japan into war which he had helped turn into disaster for them.

He was virtually to replace their emperor, he would live to command another war, to retrieve from disaster another almost hopeless military situation.

As political and military proconsul of the U.S. in the Far East, he was to run into trouble. He heard those words which to a West Point man strike more deeply than any other, the words which relieved him of command in the midst of action.

MacArthur's future position now depends upon whether his conduct draws a verdict of belief in his sincerity or a thumbs down for his stubbornness. Things over which he will no longer have any control, such as the outcome of the war in Asia, will vitally affect his place in history.

But none will forget the MacArthur of the flight from Corregidor, of his leadership in the weakness of the days in Australia, the MacArthur of Leyte, and of Lingayen Gulf.

Materials Conservation Urged in Rearmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is grave danger the United States will undermine its future security by burning up natural resources too rapidly during the defense buildup, according to Secretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman.

Therefore, he said, "the well-being of the nation requires the most careful planning for the fullest and soundest use of our natural resources on a long-range basis."

To carry out this planning, he ordered officials of all interior bureaus and offices to place new emphasis on conservation of such items as water, minerals, forests, fish and wildlife and land itself.

He told them world conditions will require the U.S. to use up many of its resources and productive facilities during the next two or three years and that "this is only the first step in our defense program."

"The second, or long-range, phase of this defense effort calls for the maintenance of a high level of military preparedness without jeopardizing the basic economic strength of the nation," he said. "Our greatest intelligence is required to meet today's challenge in the field of natural resources."

Chapman said the nation was able to produce enough goods in World War I and II to win—and still have resources left over. But he said they were treated as "expedient then and as a result, are running low now."

"I firmly believe the same treatment under the present circumstances will jeopardize the basic economic foundations upon which our long-range military security and peacetime welfare depend. There is grave danger that in our eagerness to achieve our immediate goals in the shortest and easiest way, we may fail to maintain the economic strength of the nation for the long haul."

He said water and mineral supplies already are running low in many sections, and public and Indian lands are suffering from "devastating erosion." In many cases it is the interior department's job to see that these resources are used wisely so they will last over the years.

Furthermore, he said the department must see that items are replenished wherever possible. He called on his aides to make this three-fold effort to promote conservation:

1. Cooperate fully with the new materials policy commission appointed by President Truman to study the broader aspects of the nation's materials problem.

2. Give "renewed emphasis to our own departmental efforts in long-range resource planning and programming."

3. Improve departmental machinery for translating resources programs into proposals for consideration of the President and congress.

Truman Points Out Precedents for Firing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman has recalled casually to a group of visitors last week that George Washington fired two generals in the American revolution—Generals Charles Lee and Horatio Gates.

Mr. Truman mentioned this when a group of Missourians called to present him with a book of photographs of all 32 presidents.

Cameramen asked the President to turn to his own picture and pose with it, but Mr. Truman opened the book instead to the first president. He told the visitors that Washington was "noncontroversial, but in his day was the most controversial figure of his age—he fired two generals."

There was no reference to the current uproar over Mr. Truman's ousting of Gen. MacArthur, those present said.

The book was presented by Mayor Joseph M. Darst of St. Louis.

Generals Lee and Gates were both American generals under Washington in the Revolution.

History records that Gen. Lee was reprimanded by Washington and later court-martialed and suspended for one year for permitting a retreat at the battle of Monmouth, N.J. in 1778, 11 years before Washington became the nation's first president.

Gen. Gates, who defeated Gen. Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1777, resigned his command after reported efforts to supersede Washington as commander in chief. He reentered the service in 1780 and his army was defeated near Camden, S.C. Soon afterward, he was suspended from duty but was reinstated in 1782 after the capture of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

He was virtually to replace their emperor, he would live to command another war, to retrieve from disaster another almost hopeless military situation.

As political and military proconsul of the U.S. in the Far East, he was to run into trouble. He heard those words which to a West Point man strike more deeply than any other, the words which relieved him of command in the midst of action.

MacArthur's future position now depends upon whether his conduct draws a verdict of belief in his sincerity or a thumbs down for his stubbornness. Things over which he will no longer have any control, such as the outcome of the war in Asia, will vitally affect his place in history.

But none will forget the MacArthur of the flight from Corregidor, of his leadership in the weakness of the days in Australia, the MacArthur of Leyte, and of Lingayen Gulf.

Local High School Students Join WSUI To Air UN Programs

A group of Iowa City high school students have joined with WSUI to relay the functions of the United Nations to local listeners.

A series of four scripts, designed by the UN radio headquarters in New York, were sent in rough outline form to WSUI. Nancy Curtis, G. Roanoke, Va., the station's continuity director, began writing and preparing them for use on the air.

She selected a group of students from City and University high schools as a cast for these plays aimed at the high school level.

The scripts are designed to explain all phases of the UN — political, economic and social. They will be sent to other English speaking countries. In each case credit is given to the universities, colleges or school systems which have contributed to the series.

Miss Curtis previously directed the high school students in "The Miner Fury," a story based on the UN commission on the status of women, and "No Man On Our Farm," based on the UN food and agriculture organization.

Other topics for this project will be "Genocide," the killing of mass groups of people, and "Technical Assistance," a program of sending UN technical experts abroad. They will be broadcast in the form of quarter-hour plays by WSUI in the near future.

Lighted Window Becomes Popular Style

ONE OF THE NEWEST AND MOST POPULAR lighting style trends is the lighted window. Lighted valances (decorative valance boards with long lines of fluorescent light concealed behind them) will give rooms an appearance of added spaciousness. Light, flowing down the draperies, will bring out full beauty of colors, patterns and textures in materials.

Westinghouse Presents — 'Adventures In Research' Tonight

Exploding mousetraps, light that burns, a three-dimensional atom model, and new jet engine alloys will be the highlights of the 12-act science show "Adventures in Research" at 7:30 p.m. today in the electrical engineering auditorium. The program is open to everyone.

The show, a virtual "laboratory on stage," was created by Westinghouse research laboratories to report the latest in scientific progress to the layman. A. R. Dostal, Westinghouse representative, will be in charge of the performance.

Demonstrations of atomic energy in all of its phases will play a feature role in the presentation. A three-dimensional atom model will be shown in action. It is capable of reproducing eight complete atoms including oxygen.

A miniature atom-smasher with a 250,000-volt electrical "wallop" will demonstrate the action of the giant machines used in the nation's research laboratories. A model atomic "pile" will show what the atomic power plant of the future may look like.

The brilliant intensity of one of the world's brightest lamps will be demonstrated by using it to ignite a piece of wood several feet away. This lamp is very versatile with uses ranging from finding cloud ceilings at airports to reproducing television broadcasts in theaters.

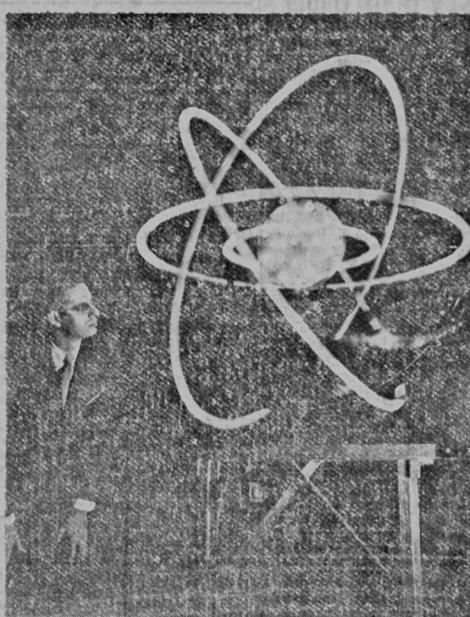

A demonstration of new metal alloys will show jet engine alloys which won't break even when stretched under cherry red heat.

Other acts of the show will include an oil lubrication demonstration in "technicolor," plastics made on stage, a new super-fidelity phonograph, "non-bounce" electrical contacts, color-corrected mercury vapor lamps, and a helium demonstration.

Elizabeth Schuppert Funeral Services Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Schuppert, 79, 1119 E. Court street, will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Oathout funeral chapel. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Schuppert died Saturday night at Mercy hospital following a long illness. She was born near Solon and lived in Iowa City most of her life.

MOTION OF ELECTRONS, PROTONS AND NEUTRONS of any atom including oxygen can be duplicated by this model atom which will be featured in the "Adventures in Science" show at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the electrical engineering auditorium. The demonstration of this and many other scientific developments will be in charge of A. R. Dostal, Westinghouse representative.

Service-Bound Student Wins Scholarship

James P. Sandroek, A4, Waverly, is the second service-bound SUI student in less than two weeks to win an award for graduate study.

The 22-year-old Greek classics student, due to be inducted into the airforce in June, was awarded a $500 Delecamp Greek scholarship this week. He is the first SUI student ever to win the award.

James R. Comor, A4, Dubuque was awarded a $1,350 Woodrow Wilson fellowship less than two weeks ago but expects to be recalled to service in June.

In both cases, the awards will be held for the students until they have served in the armed forces and can return to their graduate work.

The Delecamp award is given by the Classical Association of the Middle West and the South to a graduating senior enrolled in a college or university belonging to the association. This association covers 30 states and the province of Ontario.

Established in 1946 by an anonymous donor, the award is based on the ability to translate Greek on sight and on letters of recommendation.

Sandroek is president of the SUI Epsilon chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical languages fraternity, a holder of a Nile Kinnick scholarship and a member of Delta Upsilon social fraternity.

Inspection of ROTC Set for May 10, 11

Dates for the ROTC federal inspection have been set for May 10 and 11, with cadet parade May 11, the SUI military department said Monday.

Officers from the Fifth army and Tenth airforce headquarters will inspect ROTC facilities May 10, with formal inspection and parade of the cadets the following day. SUI Highlanders will also take part in the parade.

May 15, Gov. William Beardesley will review the military department in a formal parade. SUI President Virgil Hancher will review the cadet troops during the President's day ceremonies, May 21.

SUI Law Library Voted More Codes

The Iowa house of representatives Monday approved, 92-0, an increase in the number of copies to be given to the SUI law library of the Iowa supreme court reports, the Iowa Code, and the annexations to the code.

The bill has already passed the senate and now goes to the governor for his signature. Miss Edna Zwingli, librarian at the SUI law library, said the court reports, decisions of Iowa supreme court cases in book form, were needed badly for student reference.

The number of copies for SUI of the Iowa code were increased from 50 to 75, the annexations to the code from 40 to 75, and the supreme court reports from 50 to 75.

Four Persons Fined In Iowa City Court

Four persons were fined a total of $142.50 in police court Monday. Don L. Reece, 129 Grand avenue court, drew the biggest fine, $77.50 for reckless driving.

Donald Reynolds, Oxford, was fined $37.50 on the same charge. Mrs. Lee Carmodey, 511 Clark street, was fined $12.50 for driving without a valid driver's license.

Judge Emil G. Trott also fined Albert F. Eby, Marengo, $5 for driving with improper equipment.

ADMINISTRATOR APPOINTED W. J. Barrow Monday was appointed administrator for the estate of Mary M. Barrow, with bond set at $8,000. The estate was opened in district court by District Judge Harold D. Evans.

Dazzling Duo on Blades

THE ICE-ENER-JET-ICS, Jean Cheadle and Tommy DePauw, thrilled 4,200 spectators with their display of acrobatic skating at the opening night of "Ice Vogues of 1951," Monday night in the SUI fieldhouse. The ice show, featuring 26 acts of precision skating, will continue here through Thursday night with shows beginning at 8 each night.

Crowd Enjoys Ice Show — Visiting 'Vogues' Shine

Over 4,000 people cheered and applauded the Ice Vogues of 1951 Monday night in the first of four performances scheduled in the Iowa fieldhouse this week.

The two hour show, first ice show ever presented in Iowa City, presented a backdrop of color and music for flashing skate blades and a myriad of costumes.

Twenty-six acts presented variety to meet the imagination and fancy of the entire audience. Beautiful Jinx Clark and her partner Marshall Beard presented an example of the finest showmanship and style in figure skating.

Diminutive Jean Cheadle won the audience with her graceful exhibition solo number and in an act entitled "A Study in Grace and Motion" which paired her with Tommy DePauw in a flawless "swing waltz."

The audience, many seeing a show on ice for the first time, were delighted and frequent encores and applause were signs of an enthusiastic audience.

About 4,200 people attended the first night of the four night stand. They gasped at the acrobatics, marveled at the costumes and laughed at the clowns.

A word should be said about the costumes. Some of the 26 numbers in the show would put a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer technicolor musical to shame.

In one number, the chorus wore heavy, plastic, hoop skirts that had to be hoisted and then lowered over the girls' heads.

Tradescent Costumes In another, iridescent costumes provided the only lighting. In the finale, "Starlight Serenade," mirror-splangled costumes threw rays of light into the audience's eyes.

Comedy, Class Prevail

A little lighted table to the right of the rink, seats the brains of the show, the chief electrician, who gives all the cues and directs the impressive lighting effects.

This includes the local men who attempt to follow the speeding skaters about the rink with their spotlights.

The cast is rooming in hotels, motels and rooming houses all over the city. They have about five shows left before the cast goes on vacation. Within another two weeks, work will begin for the 1951-52 show.

Iowa State Bank, Trust Adds $50,000 Capital The Iowa State Bank and Trust company has increased its capital stock by $50,000 Ben S. Summerwill, president, said Monday.

Total capital stock of the bank now stands at $200,000. The bank opened here October 15, 1934, with a capital of $100,000. The capital stock was increased to $150,000 in December of 1941.

Civil Service Seeks Applicants for Tax, Engineering Posts

Applicants for federal income tax work and federal engineering projects are being sought through new civil service examinations. The examinations are for filling vacancies in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Applicants for these positions, which have a starting salary of $3,100 per year, should have an accounting or legal background. Deadline for Zone Deputy (tax) Collector applications is May 15. Titles of the other new examinations are Engineering Draftsman, with salaries ranging from $2,200 through $3,825 a year, and Engineering Aide, with salaries ranging from $2,450 through $3,825 a year.

The engineering aides are being sought to work in the civil engineering, soils, mechanics and survey fields.

Civil service examinations have also been announced for geologist positions in various federal agencies in Washington, D.C., and throughout the United States, and examinations for engineer and physicist positions at the naval air development center, Johnsville, Pa.

The salaries for these positions range from $4,500 to $7,600 a year. Full information, and application forms may be obtained from the local civil service secretary, Lester J. Parizek, at the Iowa City postoffice.

Anti-Union Shop Bill Stands

DES MOINES — The Iowa house of representatives Monday killed any possibility of repealing the state's anti-union shop law during the present all but finished term of the legislature.

Representatives defeated, 51 to 43, a motion to force out of the sifting committee a bill to legalize union shop contracts. It therefore became inevitable the bill would not be acted upon before final adjournment.

Rep. Ted Sloane, (R-Des Moines), sponsor of the motion, delivered an out-spoken plea that the legislature act upon the measure, but his efforts proved futile.

"Since the bill conforms to the Republican platform," Sloane said, "it is hardly fair the legislature to hide behind a statement that the house sifting committee failed to bring the bill out."

Sloane also criticized labor leaders for failing to introduce the measure before Feb. 23. He said that he had advised them to get their proposals before lawmakers early in the legislature's session.

Fishing Licenses . . .

A bill which would have prohibited residents of South Dakota from obtaining fishing licenses in Iowa as long as hunting restrictions against non-residents remain on the South Dakota law books was vetoed late Monday by Gov. William S. Beardsley.

The veto message will be read today before the state senate where the bill originated.

Gov. Beardsley said that making the bill part of the Iowa law would be "of no material benefit to the sportsmen of our state." He added that it is "not desirable to raise a policy of discriminatory

To Hear MacArthur

The Iowa house Monday passed by a voice vote, a resolution calling for a joint senate-house session to hear the radio broadcast of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's address to congress Thursday.

About a dozen anonymous boos greeted the opposition of Rep. John Hansen (D-Dedham) to adoption of the resolution. When Hansen, who was not interrupted, finished his remarks, Rep. Henry H. Stevens (R-Scranton) called attention to the boosing, and declared:

"I demand respect for the speaker (Hansen) and ask that the sergeant at arms be instructed to take care of this situation."

Stevens' request was met with a solid round of applause. There was no way to tell the source of the boosing.

Hansen said he objected to taking time away from legislative duties to hear MacArthur when no time had been taken since he came into the legislature several years ago to hear any broadcasts by the President of the United States.

Mental Institutions . . .

Iowa's state hospitals for treatment of insane persons and those for mental disorders will be known in the future as "mental health institutes" if the governor signs a house bill which the senate passed Monday, 34-8.

The change in name would affect the four state hospitals at Cherokee, Mount Pleasant, Clarinda, and Independence.

Waldbauer was a close associate of composer Bartok and played in the first performances of both of these works.

Yesterday in Washington

WAGE BOARD — Creation of a new wage stabilization board appeared as far away as ever. Labor and management representatives on the President's mobilization advisory committee remained tightly deadlocked on what kind of disputes a board should handle.

The advisory group, headed by Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, is scheduled to meet again today. Last week the White House said Wilson was hopeful that "substantial agreement" could be reached by Tuesday morning.

RADIO CENSORSHIP — The supreme court Monday let stand a lower court decision that radio stations may censor speeches made for political candidates.

Both sides in the hotly disputed case agreed the issue vitally affects the conduct of political campaigns and freedom of speech. There was no argument involved as to speeches by candidates themselves; federal law says stations may not censor their speeches. The high court gave no formal opinions Monday.

ONE PACKAGE APPROPRIATIONS — Forty-seven senators — nearly half the senate's membership — asked congress to return to the "one-package" method of appropriating money as the best way to hold down government spending.

Their view was announced by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), long-time economy advocate and chief sponsor of the "one-package" type of money bill.
