Prof. G. F. Robeson Collapses in Class; Taken to Hospital

Prof. George F. Robeson, SUU political science department, was reported in "satisfactory" condition at University hospitals Tuesday night after he collapsed in a class he was teaching Tuesday.

Robeson was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. He was in no pain but will remain in the hospital for a few days for a checkup, Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of political science department, reported.

Porter said Robeson appeared to be in fine spirits at the hospital. Robeson's classes will be distributed among other members of political science staff until he returns.

Robeson had started teaching his 2:30 p.m. American constitutional government class, reporting that he didn't feel well. A few minutes later he collapsed and was carried into the hall by students. He recovered almost immediately but fainted again when he tried to walk to his office.

T.R. Prophesied Russ in China, Red Terror

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (AP) — Prophetic and startling words, written of Russia by Theodore Roosevelt more than half a century ago, sprang to life Tuesday.

"A problem very appalling . . . if she ever does take possession of Northern China and drills the Northern Chinese to serve as her army, she will indeed be a formidable power . . . but when Russia grows so as to crush Germany, the crushing will be once for all."

Two decades before the Russian revolution, the man who was to become the United States' 25th president foresaw: "a Red terror which will make the French revolution pale."

These are quotations, among many others, sifted by a research team at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from nearly 150,000 Roosevelt letters. Publication of two volumes of an eight-volume series was announced by the Harvard university press.

Mac Lands At San Francisco, Gets Hollywood Style Welcome

General Looks Full of Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head was up, the jaw was thrust out, as Douglas MacArthur came home.

MacArthur's face was a trifle pale. His right hand trembled as he held it at salute for two long minutes before the massed cameras at San Francisco international airport. It trembled as he waved repeatedly to the crowd on his walk up and down before the lacquer-helmeted honor guard.

But the old bounce was there. The jaunty stride and the thrust out lower lip and the ready smile were in evidence.

Mrs. MacArthur cradled flow-ful of fire as he did last Jan. 20 when he flew into Korea and said, "No one is going to drive us into the sea."

Draftables Need OK For Foreign Travel

All men of draft age, who plan to travel abroad or attend foreign summer school, must contact their local draft boards to obtain a permit to leave this country.

Draft boards are authorized to issue such a permit unless the registrant's absence is likely to interfere with the performance of his obligations under the selective service act.

This regulation makes it possible for many men of draft age to take advantage of foreign summer courses and low cost student travel tours.

Draft boards may require registrants to file classification questionnaires and other such forms and information necessary to complete classification, before a permit is granted.

6 Prospective Jurors Selected for Lons Trial

Six of eight prospective jurors passed initial questioning Tuesday in the opening of the James Lons murder trial in Johnson county district court.

A ninth prospective juror, Homer Estes, 47, Coralville, was questioned by the state just before court adjourned. The defense will examine him beginning at 10 a.m. today.

Fatal Stabbing Lons, 35-year-old operator of the Princess cafe, 114 S. Dubuque street, is charged with fatally stabbing Andrew Davelis, 40, last Oct. 12 in Iowa City.

Jurors tentatively accepted are: Mrs. Sally Ann Roberts, 713 Iowa avenue, wife of SUI graduate student William M. Roberts Jr. Mrs. Roberts is an administrative employe in the college of medicine.

Robert Seiler, Lone Tree farmer. Charles Eckerman, 56, Oxford farmer.

Mrs. Vilda Schmidt, 6 Woolf avenue court, wife of Walter F. Schmidt, vice-president of the Iowa State Bank and Trust company.

John Walters, 75, Hills, farmer. Mrs. Ethel E. Cox, farmwife from eight miles south of Iowa City.

Those who were excused from jury duty after they said they had formed opinions about the case were William Spratt, Oxford farmer, and Lee Colony, 308 Melrose avenue.

Judge Paul H. McCoid, Mt. Pleasant, called as an outside juror to preside over the case, told the more than 70 prospective jurors that there is a "strong likelihood" that the jury when chosen will be segregated during the trial.

Lons, who has been free on $50,000 bond since indicted last December, appeared in court wearing a blue suit. He showed little signs of emotion as he sat with his attorneys, A.C. Cahill and William Bartley.

Also in court was a brother of Davelis from Rock Island, Ill. There were about 20 additional spectators.

Discuss Business Questioning of prospective jurors Tuesday indicated that the state may present evidence that at the time Davelis died, he and Lons' wife, Viola, 42, were on their way to discuss business with Eral Loghry, Mrs. Lons' brother.

The prosecution asked the jurors if the presence of Davelis and Mrs. Lons in a car early the morning of last Oct. 12 would influence their attitude toward the case. All answered no.

County Atty. William L. Meardon and Atty. D.C. Nolan, special assistant, also asked the prospective jurors if they would follow court instructions on insanity, irresistible impulses and justifiable homicides.

This indicated that the prosecution expects defense testimony on Lons' condition at the time of the alleged murder.

The state also asked the jurors whether they were prejudiced against medical testimony and whether they knew certain doctors

MacArthur Salutes at Home

SALUTING THE COLOR GUARD WHICH MET HIM, General MacArthur gave thousands of San Franciscans a look at the man they have seen so often in pictures during the past decade. Mrs. MacArthur and their son Arthur were with him when his plane landed in San Francisco at 10:29 p.m. Tuesday night.

Wife, Son Say Wonderful To Be Home

(From the Wire Services)

SAN FRANCISCO — Gen. Douglas MacArthur of Corregidor returned to his homeland Tuesday night after 14 years, with two wars behind him and the climactic battle of his career ahead of him.

MacArthur's transpacific plane Bataan landed at International airport at 10:29 p.m., CST. Thousands who had been gathering more than three hours gave him a hero's welcome.

His landing set off a nationwide celebration. Huge spotlights shone on the plane as it taxied toward the administration building.

A great roar arose from the crowd as the Bataan nosed up directly in front of the flag-draped welcome platform.

Even before the plane stopped a huge platform loaded with photographers pushed up obliquely to the scores of cameramen could get a picture of the general as he set foot on continental United States.

Another roar arose as a blue-uniformed officer guided the unloading steps to the Bataan and its big door opened.

Mrs. Jean MacArthur was the first of the party to leave the plane.

MacArthur followed her immediately, to more wild cheering.

His 13-year-old son, Arthur, was third to leave the plane. Then came members of the former supreme commander's official party.

Dignitaries milled thickly as they pressed forward to shake MacArthur's hand.

As the word flashed that he had touched soil, sirens sounded throughout the city.

MacArthur was hemmed in immediately by the crowd. He was unable to move except with the sway of the crowd.

Mayor Elmer Robinson was forced to shout his greeting, "Welcome home, general," to be heard above the turmoil.

MacArthur replied, "This is a great honor. I can't tell you how good it is to be home."

Governor Warren's wife stepped forward to greet Mrs. MacArthur. The general's wife presented her son with the words:

"This is our child."

MacArthur was wearing a trench coat and his famous "scrambled eggs" hat.

Mrs. MacArthur wore a purple dress, a corsage of orchids and a three-strand pearl necklace.

Speaking over a microphone hookup to a loudspeaker, MacArthur said to the crowd:

"I can't tell you how good it is to be home. For long dreary years, Mrs. MacArthur and myself have talked about this time. Now it has come."

The crowd broke through the lines in a virtual mob scene to follow MacArthur on his inspection of the honor guard. Officers and friends of MacArthur's formed a protective ring about Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur.

The boy, bareheaded and wide-eyed, watching this scene, was held tightly in the arms of Lt. Col. Anthony Story, the general's personal pilot.

Story and the group kept the crowd from pressing in on the MacArthurs and crushing them. Someone asked Arthur how it felt to be home and he said: "It feels fine."

Mrs. MacArthur cradling flowers in her arms as she watched the welcoming scene, tears in her eyes.

"It's simply wonderful!" she said. "It's simply wonderful for both Arthur and me."

"We have looked forward to this."

MacArthur's march before the honor guard was a riotous scene. Newsmen and photographers and civilians swarmed around him and made the inspection almost a running mob scene.

Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur got into the sedan with the general. They left the airport for San Francisco — 15 miles away — 25 minutes after landing.

Trailing them was a procession of thousands of cars.

Floodlights were taken off the Bataan and the crowd slowly began to disperse.

MacArthur was home.

Defeat Special Move To Give SUI More Money

DES MOINES — An amendment to add an additional $525,000 to the proposed $6.3-million appropriations for SUI was defeated Tuesday by a vote of 56-44 in the Iowa house.

The amendment, proposed by Rep. Ernest Palmer Jr., (R-Port Madison), was defeated after a full day of house debate on the issue.

Withdraw Proposal: Shortly after the defeat of the amendment Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Davenport) withdrew a proposal to boost the SUI appropriation by $800,000.

The house then passed a bill approving an annual SUI appropriation of $6.3-million, the same figure passed by the Iowa senate Monday.

The house approved budget is considerably below President Virgil M. Hancher's request for $8,053,310 and above the $5.8-million recommended by Gov. William Beardley.

The bill now goes to the senate for consideration of two amendments placed on the senate-passed bill by the house.

The two amendments concern budget increases for the Oakdale sanatorium and the Council Bluffs School for the Deaf.

Total Appropriations: These placed the total appropriations for all state supported institutions at $20,812,919. The senate bill authorized a budget of $20,693,019.

In Tuesday's debate Schwengel argued vigorously that SUI is now at the point of going either forward or backward. He insisted that the extra funds proposed in the house amendment were needed to continue the university's advance.

Rep. G. M. Ludwig, (R-Tiffin) was among those who supported the Palmer amendment. Another member of the house, Rep. Harvey Uhlenhopp, (R-Hampton) told the house, "If you want a first rate university, you are going to have to pay the price."

Opposition to the bill was led by Rep. G. T. Kuester, (R-Griswold). He declared that the proposed appropriation for SUI, even without the amendment boost, would run expenditures for the university about $8.5-million behind the current revenue. He proposed increases in the state sales tax and boosts in income tax to meet the budget needs.

Rep. Lee Gallup, (R-Libertyville) also argued against the proposed increase in the budget. Gallup said the best way to get more funds for SUI would be to have the students pay more tuition.

He cited the laboratory's $16,000 electron microscope paid for by funds for cancer research.

Phillis Hughes of Mason City, district field representative for the cancer society, also spoke at the rally.

Thankful for Quiet Beaches—

We Americans frequently are told how fortunate we are and how thankful we should be to live in a great land like the United States. There are many evidences, too, of the truth in this thought. Our standard of living certainly is high. We enjoy many conveniences which we hardly think of — until we're forced to do without them. But a United Press dispatch from the little island of Malta Monday brought to our minds something else for which we can be thankful.

"United States marines landed in battalion strength on this British fortress island," the dispatch read, "in an implied warning to Russia that the West will not tolerate aggression in the Mediterranean or Middle East."

More than 2,000 of the Leathernecks swarmed ashore, in wave after wave, from the strongest fleet of warships ever assembled in the Mediterranean by the U.S. in time of peace.

The marines swept into the northwest corner of the island in a simulated "invasion" after cruisers and destroyers had "softened" the beachhead with simulated gunfire.

And then tanks and artillery pieces moved in while carrier-based planes roared overhead.

We're afraid that only the most hopeful and trusting now believe that Russia will listen to anything less than strength and force. And in light of this, we're not criticizing the U.S. actions in making our intentions known.

But we certainly should be thankful that we're at the strong end of this action.

The day may come, heaven forbid, when our own shores are invaded by an enemy force.

But unless and until that day comes, we can thank heaven that our coastline residents will never have to stand meekly by while another nation's men, tanks and guns roll ashore, displaying their might.

We may someday be invaded by an enemy force. But there's little chance of another nation playing war on our beaches.

Interpreting the News —

Peace in Korea Called Last Desire of Reds

By J. M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The latest Communist "peace offensive," with North Korean officials carrying the Russian ball this time, demonstrates that the thing they demand is the last thing they want.

First the Russians stage a meeting in Berlin at which something called a Korean peace platform is worked out. Then the Koreans present it to the United Nations and start a signature campaign similar to the one conducted by the Communists after the Stockholm meeting last year.

They ask a five-power conference, including Communist China, an out-and-out aggressor if there ever was one. They ask reversal of Peiping's UN conviction as an aggressor, and demand that, instead the United States be placed in that pillory. A better way of not getting a settlement could hardly be devised.

Gen. Omar Bradley was talking Monday more about the military than the political situation in Korea when he said that "as far as we can see now there is nothing transitory, nothing temporary, about the Communists' determination to drive us out of Korea and, if possible, to destroy our forces completely." But the description fits the political field just as aptly as the military.

The latest step in the phoney Communist peace offensive fits closely into Russian tactics in Paris, where Gromyko seems to be working toward a foreign ministers conference with no agenda, so that Russia can spout her distorted version of the whole world picture without having to agree or disagree at any particular point.

Russia will probably use this situation as she uses the Berlin peace appeal, to throw another sop to Communist China and will pretend to seek her presence at the negotiations.

She can do this while relying on the Western powers to keep Peiping out, and so burn the candle at both ends — making friendly gestures toward Mao Tse Tung but never letting him step out to represent himself in world relations. (One of the West's chief hopes is that Mao will one day get tired of this role, so similar to that played in the Axis with such ignominy by Mussolini.)

Stalin undoubtedly expected to pick South Korea off the tree like a ripe apple, without interference from the West. But whether the turn of events now leaves him with any chagrin ### over the initial failure is open to question. He is undoubtedly afraid of the Atlantic pact. And nothing in the world today so interferes with this program of rearmament for the free nations as does continuation of the Korean war.

From Stalin's standpoint this war, in which he wastes no part of his military resources, is ideal. The avid desire of the West, particularly the Europeans, to end it is sufficient evidence of that.

Tokyo Headquarters Workers Alter Habits Under New General

TOKYO — The effects of the new regime at general headquarters were felt Tuesday all the way to the kitchens and dining rooms of a lot of officers' homes, where schedules were advanced to conform with the boss' working hours.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's general headquarters staff began to shake down in a new routine as the boss arrived for his second full working day at GHQ. Ridgway arrives at his office "not later than 8 a. m.," one officer said. That means a lot of staff officers between 10 and 10:30 a. m. now had to hustle to be on hand when Ridgway showed up.

There was some compensation at the other end of the schedule, however. After a mid-afternoon lunch hour, MacArthur used to return to the Ai Ichi building around 4 or 4:30 p. m. and remain until well into the evening — sometimes 10 or later.

Ridgway's schedule calls for lunch between 12:30 and 2:30. He leaves for the day "not later than 5 p. m.," but officers can't bank on it. He often will stay as late as 7 or 8 p. m.

Ridgway's schedule Tuesday included conferences with Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, head of psychological warfare, and Assistant Secretary of Army Earl Johnson, who arrived with Ambassador John Foster Dulles.

Dulles, who arrived here Monday and held a conference with Ridgway, met him again at 9:45 a. m. Tuesday.

They were still in session at 11:10 a. m.

Ridgway devoted the remainder of the day to conferences with members of the GHQ staff.

Bradley Warns Tighter Taxes Viewed Start War III

CHICAGO — Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, warned Tuesday that any attempt to expand the Korean war and force a "show down" may lead to World War III.

He advised against delivering an "ultimatum" to the Communist enemy or making threats to bomb the Chinese mainland. Bradley, apparently answering some views of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and congressional Republicans, addressed a luncheon meeting of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

"Any recommended course of action which would enlarge the present war is contrary to our best interests, and by jeopardizing world peace ultimately would threaten our security," Bradley said.

He warned that "it is fundamental that our foreign policy must be based upon our military capabilities to back it up."

The gray-haired GI's general said there was "no early end in sight" to the Korean war and that those who despair of an early solution "are apt to become frustrated and discouraged."

"There have been recurring and louder whispers in favor of forcing a showdown and delivering an ultimatum to those who encourage such 'local wars' and who continue to obstruct sincere efforts for peaceful negotiations.

"Any such direct, unilateral solution to the problem would be militarily infeasible.

"I wonder if these responsible citizens have pondered the conditions of such an act. Any ultimatum must state clearly the irreducible minimum of what we would regard as satisfactory and, ordinarily, if not always, implies a threat to use force if the demands are not met," Bradley said.

The general said that "responsible airforce officers" are not among those advocating bombardment of the Chinese mainland.

He said the nation's best hope was "to continue cooperation in mutual security efforts, and to continue negotiations in this world wide conflict as long as possible."

"An ultimatum would either commit us to a so-called preventive war, or gain for us only temporary respite until the enemy feels that conditions for his victory are more favorable," Bradley said.

He said the nation cannot take chances on anticipating Communist intentions, but must determine their capabilities and prepare to meet them.

He said that "it is fundamental that our foreign policy must be based upon our military capabilities to back it up."

Tighter Taxes Viewed For U.S. Underworld

PHILADELPHIA — The U.S. senate crime committee will recommend amendment of internal revenue laws so the government can collect "sorely needed millions of tax dollars" from gamblers and criminals, Sen. Estes Kefauver said Tuesday night.

The committee chairman said also that legislation will be sought to fix the responsibilities of attorneys and accountants who filed racketeers' tax returns which do not comply with the law.

Kefauver wrote in the Saturday Evening Post that his committee's nation-wide investigation of crime pointed up the need for requiring "gambling casino operators, the policy wheel boys and so forth to complete financial statements with their annual tax returns.

The purpose of the amendment would not be to provide local law-enforcement agencies with information to use against criminals, because such action might violate the constitutional guarantee against self-incrimination, the senator said.

However, Kefauver said, if gamblers are compelled to disclose the sources of their "ill-gotten loot," agents then can get at the truth and "start collecting some of the sorely needed millions of tax dollars which these hoodlums now are concealing or withholding from the government."

The Democratic senator from Tennessee said the committee concluded that more stringent regulations should be adopted in regard to attorneys and accountants filing returns which do not meet bureau of internal revenue specifications.

Kefauver told about the committee's quizzing of Alvin E. Giesey, a public accountant and former agent of the internal revenue bureau in Cleveland. Kefauver said the list of clients for whom Giesey prepared returns included such Cleveland racketeers as Morris Kleinman, Al Polizzi, Lou Rothkopf, John Angersola and Moe Dalitz.

Kefauver quoted Giesey that when he made out the income tax returns of gamblers they periodically gave him "a single sheet of paper," on which were written a few figures showing the purported "gross income from various sources."

Kefauver said committee counsel Rudolph Halley asked Giesey whether he filed the returns without having the "faintest idea" of whether he was getting a "straight count or a bad count."

"That is right," Kefauver said Giesey replied. "That is true of anybody. When we file an income tax return, we take their word from the figures they give us."

Trade estimates indicate Kefauver's book and magazine deal may be worth $75,000 to $100,000. But part will go to the senator's collaborator—a member of the Saturday Evening Post staff.

Kefauver's lecture fees range from $500 to $1,500.

British Sub Lost; Ships of 4 Nations In Channel Search

PORTSMOUTH, ENGL. (WEDNESDAY) — The British submarine Affray, missing since Monday night in the English channel, was found at the bottom of the sea today and the admiralty said at least some of its 75 men were alive.

Rescue ships of four nations, airplanes and helicopters searched the English channel Tuesday night for trace of the crack British submarine Affray, missing and feared lost with 75 officers and men aboard.

Late in the afternoon a little Danish freighter sighted an oil slick in the search area—an area called "the graveyard of submarines." It gave a bit of hope momentarily. But the admiralty found it was furnace oil from an ocean liner or freighter.

The Affray, on a "war patrol" training cruise, failed to surface and report to the navy as ordered between 8 and 9 a. m. Tuesday (1 and 2 a. m. Iowa time).

The submarine carried its Pacific war-hero captain Lt. John Blackburn, four other regular officers, 48 enlisted men, four marines and 20 submarine officers undergoing training, who were passengers.

Submarine headquarters at this greatest British navy base waited vainly for a report from Affray. Then out went the signal:

"Sub smash one"—alerting all navy rescue ships and planes. Then came the second:

"Sub smash two"—disaster is feared, and the vast search operation started.

The British Broadcasting corporation interrupted its programs to alert all shipping. The navy radio sent out the news every 15 minutes, appealing to all ships to be on the lookout.

In the 1,900-square-mile area off the south coast in which the submarine might lie helpless on the bottom, 200 to 500 feet beneath the surface, four British submarines have been lost with 228 men.

This afternoon the admiralty notified the next of kin of those aboard that the submarine was missing.

Rescue ships and planes converged on the area. The United States destroyers Perry and H. J. Ellison, French and Belgian rescue craft raced to the scene.

Sleepless crews maintained the search through the night. The weather was good.

The ships and the planes watched for the winking light of a buoy such as Affray carried outboard, to be released to mark its position in event it could not surface.

"Sub smash two"—disaster is feared, and the vast search operation started.

The British Broadcasting corporation interrupted its programs to alert all shipping. The navy radio sent out the news every 15 minutes, appealing to all ships to be on the lookout.

In the 1,900-square-mile area off the south coast in which the submarine might lie helpless on the bottom, 200 to 500 feet beneath the surface, four British submarines have been lost with 228 men.

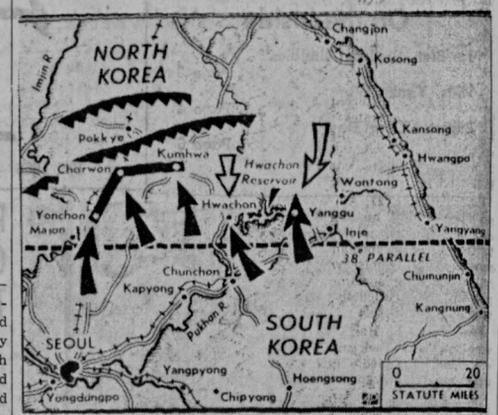

This afternoon the admiralty notified the next of kin of those aboard that the submarine was missing.

Rescue ships and planes converged on the area. The United States destroyers Perry and H. J. Ellison, French and Belgian rescue craft raced to the scene.

Sleepless crews maintained the search through the night. The weather was good.

The ships and the planes watched for the winking light of a buoy such as Affray carried outboard, to be released to mark its position in event it could not surface.

Allies Continue Press on Reds

APPLYING PRESSURE TO KEY RED TOWNS. Allied forces (solid arrows) continued their squeeze against Chinese Red bases in Korea. Main drives were against Yonchon, Chorwon and Kumha, main points on line behind which Reds were believed to be building up (sawtooth lines) a force that may possibly number 500,000 men. Open arrows show where Reds were resisting drives on Hwachon Reservoir dam and on eastern end of reservoir above Allied-held Yongju.

Recreation Camps Deemed Health Hazards

WASHINGTON — The national forest service has threatened to close all federal public recreation camps deemed a hazard to public health and safety.

Officials said that because of lax public cooperation and lack of funds many camping and picnic areas "no longer meet the sanitation requirements of state laws" and "such camps will have to be improved — or closed."

"The forest service can not permit the use of areas which are a hazard to public health and safety," it added.

Last year more than 26-million Americans left crowded cities to "enjoy" the outdoors in the nation's 4,500 woodland camps. What they found, in most instances, forest officials said, were camp sites littered with garbage and other debris.

They said the situation cannot be remedied unless more money is provided to hire caretakers and to repair worn-out facilities. They already are experimenting with a small charge to the public at the more heavily-used areas but, under present law, this money must be turned in to the treasury department.

Most of the camp facilities were built nearly 20 years ago by the civilian conservation corps, and little has been done to keep them in repair.

Officials said the caretaker force is so inadequate that many camps are left without attention for weeks at a time. In such cases garbage and trash accumulate to an alarming degree.

"Inadequate facilities mean public dissatisfaction," they said. "Overcrowding reduces the enjoyment of those using the area, and may spoil the camp for future recreational use."

"Attractive ground cover is destroyed, dust accumulates, and trampling even weakens or kills mature trees. Funds available are not enough to pay for care of latrines, looking after water systems, repairing fireplaces, and removing garbage."

They pointed out that public and other places of outdoor recreation are "especially important to help relieve people from the tensions of the present defense effort."

Temporary U.S. Power Shortage Seen

WASHINGTON — More power to expand service is one of the knottiest problems facing the rural electrification administration, according to REA officials.

They said the present demand will be at least doubled by 1955 and that unless new generating plants are constructed, a severe shortage is likely.

The outlook beyond 1955 is not now regarded as cause for worry. Development of hydroelectric power plants in the Missouri river valley — part of overall Missouri basin program — is expected to supply all the power needs of central states farmers.

In anticipation of this, congress has authorized the soil conservation service to proceed with construction of power line grids in several states which eventually will be hooked up with such power sources as Garrison and Oahe dams in North and South Dakota.

Officials also said construction of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway which would include a giant hydro-electric plant at Massena, N.Y., would provide sufficient energy for power-starved New England states.

Meanwhile, REA is approving loans for steam generating plants to fill the gap — plants which later will be used for stand-by operation.

Journalism Students To Publish Newspaper

Five SUI journalism students will publish the Anamosa Journal May 3 as the field trip of the SUI community journalism program.

They will sell advertising, write news and edit stories under the direction of Journal Editor Thomas B. Powell Jr.

Walter Wilcox, G. Lone Tree, will be the paper's student editor. His staff will include Joe May, A4; Lineville; Max Sowers, A4; Ames; John Bernet, A4; Johnson, Penn., and Wayne Shaw, A4; Phoenix, Arizona.

New York Starts Sabotage Prevention

NEW YORK — Barbed wire barricades and batteries of floodlights are being set up on New York City's bridges to guard against sabotage.

Guard booths are being built and manholes giving access to vital points on the massive spans are being locked or sealed.

City Public Works Commissioner Frederick H. Zurmuhlen said, "We don't think it's a bit too soon to take these precautionary measures."

The program is a part of the master civil defense plan for New York, which is considered a most likely target for the enemy in case of war.

Zurmuhlen said hundreds of floodlights are being spotted on such giant suspension spans as the Brooklyn, Queensboro and Manhattan bridges. They will illumine key points which saboteurs would choose logically in placing demolition charges.

These points include the under-water pillars and skyscraper tops of the suspension bridge towers, and the anchorage points at each end of the bridges where the main cables that curve across the tops of the towers are anchored in concrete ashore.

"These are the spots where an enemy would most likely set his charges," Zurmuhlen said. "You can walk up the main cables to the towers, you know, so we're barricading the cables with barbed wire."

After Five Years, Student Finds

Star of Ice Vogues Old Neighbor

The city was different but the ice rink and ice skates were still in the scene Monday night when an SUI student went backstage to visit Jinx Clark, star skater in the Ice Follies of 1951.

Harry Bunker, 22, A3, 428 Ferguson avenue, and his wife, Millie, G. Wapello, were attending the first night performance of the show in the fieldhouse when they noticed the star's name on the program and decided to go backstage to visit her.

Five years ago, Harry and Jinx were neighbors back in Colorado where they attended school together since fifth grade. During this period, Harry and Jinx were in the same crowd and dated occasionally. Most of the dates were at the local ice rink where Jinx had taught herself to skate and learned to whirl and pirouette.

Harry, no slouch at skating himself, worked at the ice rink, scraping and patrolling the rink. After they finished tenth grade, Jinx and Harry parted, she to finish high school in Colorado Springs and he to go to prep school in Mercersburg, Pa.

After graduating from high school, Jinx packed her skates and set out for New York City where she landed a part with the Sonja Henie show in the Roxy Theatre.

After two years at Menlo college, Menlo Park Calif., where he abandoned his skates in favor of books, Harry came to SUI where he enrolled in the college of commerce.

Commenting about the meeting with Jinx, Harry said, "She's still the same old Jinx, just like she always was. We spent all our time talking about people back home and the things that had happened since we'd seen each other last."

(Daily Iowan Photo)

THE SCENE WAS STILL THE SAME MONDAY NIGHT when Harry Bunker, A3, Colorado Springs, Colo., reminisced with Jinx Clark, left, star of the Ice Follies show, about the ice rink back in Colorado Springs where he used to take her on dates. Bunker took his wife, right, backstage to meet Jinx after he and his wife noticed her name on the program.

Central Party Candidates Must File Before Friday

Friday is the deadline for applications of candidates for the 1951-52 central party committee. Students interested in serving on the committee should obtain their application blanks at the Iowa Union main desk immediately.

Application blanks have been sent to each housing unit. The present committee has asked each unit to nominate three candidates for next year, selection committee chairman Norman Matulef, C4, Des Moines, said Tuesday.

Seniors Uneligible
Any freshman, sophomore or junior student is eligible to file petition for membership on the committee. Candidates not nominated by a housing unit must obtain a petition at the Union desk and get the signatures of 20 students in his class. The completed petition is then returned to the Union desk.

Members of the new committee will meet in joint session with the present committee several times but will not take office until the beginning of the summer session. The central party committee is in charge of all all-university parties, concerts and programs. Jazz at the Philharmonic, the Duke Ellington concert, Club Cabaret and the Spinster's Spree are a few of the present committee's accomplishments.

Must Meet Costs
The committee makes the arrangements, contacts and selects the bands for concerts. It has no fund of money to fall back on if the cost of the program is more than the income.

The committee's budget comes from proceeds of the previous party or program, said Frank Burge, assistant director of the Union and central party committee advisor.

To Air Faure's Requiem
The Cornell Oratorio society will present Gabriel Faure's "Requiem" from 4 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday over WSUI.

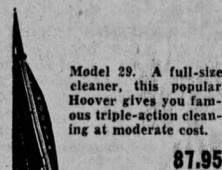

The program will originate in Mt. Vernon under the direction of Jacques Jolas, director of the Oratorio society, and come to Iowa City listeners over a direct wire.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 17... THE OWL

"So I'm a wise guy —so what?"

"Speotyto cunicularia" — Speo, for short, majors in the classics. But in this case, he's dropped his Latin leanings and slings American slang with the best of them. He comes right out "cum loudly" whenever he voices his opinion on these quick-trick, one-puff cigarette tests. They're a snub to his high I.Q. He knows from smoking experience there's just one intelligent way to judge the mildness of a cigarette.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why...

Lemon Hurts Two Hitter; Phillies, Yankees Triumph

DETROIT (AP) — Genial Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians, the American league's winningest pitcher last season, pushed the Detroit Tigers right into the deep freeze Tuesday with a thirty-four-hitter performance that nullified 43-470 shattering opening day fans and flattened the Tigers, 2-1.

The clubs, battling in a chilly 37 degrees, stayed on even terms until the ninth when, with the score tied at 1-1, Detroit Shortstop Johnny Ligon bobbled an easy grounder to allow Cleveland's Larry Doby to score from third.

Iowa Plays Notre Dame Today

A 21-man Iowa baseball squad left Iowa City Tuesday for South Bend, Ind., and games today and Thursday with Notre Dame. Friday and Saturday the Hawks launch their once postponed Big Ten season with games against Northwestern at Evanston.

The four consecutive games are expected to strain Iowa's not too strong pitching staff. Coach Otto Vogel indicated before he left that he would save Glenn Drahn and Jim Riedesel for the Northwestern series.

Bruce Marsh, Jim Anderson, Whitey Diehl and Al Lenski are the probable pitchers for the Notre Dame games.

The Irish defeated Ohio State 1-0 in their only game this season. Iowa will take a 6-2 record into the game. Four of these victories were won on the southern road. In the only two games played at home, the Hawks defeated Luther twice.

Touring Austrians — Visitors Reap Honors — Spread Cheer

Toting six-shooters and hustling rustlers may seem like a far fling from Austrian yodeling, but not so to Houston and Corpus Christi, Tex. These two cities recently hung honorary and deputy sheriffships on several members of the "Visitors from Vienna" cast, which will appear at SUI Sunday. It's a toss-up whether the Texanized Austrian students are learning to "fan" or to "trigger" their pearl-handled Colt '44's. But it's a fact that honors have been pouring onto these wayfaring Austrian off-spring with an eye-blurring rapidity ever since they first got stiff necks from looking at the Empire State building. And no wonder. Their first tour of this country (last year) netted 200 stage performances before audiences totaling 180,000 from smoggy New York to foggy San Francisco. There also were 78 radio broadcasts, 20 television shows and 37 other command performances at parades, banquets and receptions. Though the Austrian show has visited the United States only twice the affair was first presented before audiences in England and the Union of South Africa in 1935. The tour was the culmination of a good-will gesture made by a group of Austrian students back in 1922 who made their services available gratis as guides and companions to visiting groups of British and American students. The venture finally grew into an Anglo-Austrian-American Office for Student "Wanderings." By October, 1950, the total of young people who participated in various tours and youth centers numbered 7,561 Austrians and 13,237 youths from 46 other nations. This year's cast of 26 yelping, yodeling, slap-happy Austrians has revised its successful program of last year throwing in a few new surprises for good measure. But their aim is the same. They want to acquaint the people here with the dances, music and spirit of a small, fiery nation which most of their audience will never be able to visit.

Coralville Citizens To Vote Thursday On School Bond

A special election will be held in Coralville Thursday to decide whether or not to allow a bond issue for a proposed $70,000 addition to the new Coralville grade school. The polls will be open from 12 noon until 7 p.m. in the new school building in Coralville. If the issue is approved, bids will be taken immediately and construction will probably begin in time for completion next fall. Supporters of the project have pointed out that enrollment has increased to more than 200 pupils in seventh and eighth grades at the Coralville school this year had to be transferred to the old school building, where facilities are considered inadequate. The new building was completed in the fall of 1949.

Yesterday in Washington

A-BOMB SHELTER — President Truman has allocated $881,000 from his special funds for construction of an ultra-modern A-bomb shelter on the east side of the White House, it was disclosed. The new A-bomb shelter is a modernized version of the one that was constructed in 1942 for the late President Roosevelt to use in case of an enemy air raid or gas attack.

RFC — SYMINGTON — President Truman asked W. Stuart Symington to become administrator of the reorganized RFC. Symington, 49, is now chairman of the National Security Resources board. He is a former St. Louis manufacturer. President Truman got congressional assent last week for him to organize the RFC, abolishing the present five-man board of directors and putting it under one man.

HOLLYWOOD REDS — House investigators threatened to arrest the "missing" Hollywood witnesses as three more film and radio figures refused to answer questions about alleged Communist affiliations.

Heating Buildings by Refrigeration Explained by Student

As the cost of oil, coal and gas goes up, an old idea—heating buildings by refrigeration—may gain in popularity. This process is described in an article by Robert Lind, senior chemical engineering student at SUI. It was published in the April issue of the Iowa Transit, monthly magazine written by SUI engineering students. Heat by refrigeration isn't new, being first proposed by Lord Kelvin as early as 1852, the article explains. Commercial refrigeration equipment removes heat from an area and dispels it into the atmosphere. What remains is lower temperature or "cold." The heat pump, a refrigerator in reverse, draws heat out of the ground, water or air and dispels it inside a building as heat. According to Lind, today's heat pumps can produce three units of heat for every unit of electrical energy needed to run such a pump. The pump has technical drawbacks. It is less efficient in cold weather, it consumes huge amounts of electricity and its initial cost is high. But, the article says, it has many advantages. It produces clean, odorless heated air. In the summer a simple conversion turns the heat pump into an air conditioning ducts and homes equipped with unit. There are no waste products and homes equipped with modern insulation can eliminate chimneys and storm windows.

Alumni Office Staff Holds Open House

SUI's alumni office staff will be host to SUI students at an open house in the alumni office in the basement of Old Capitol from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Thursday. The open house will be sponsored jointly by the alumni office and the student-faculty relations committee of the University Women's association, Alumni Secretary Loren Hickerson said Monday. All students are invited to drop into the office to visit with members of the staff and to inspect the facilities through which current records are maintained on all SUI graduates. The office keeps tab on the whereabouts and activities of about 45,000 graduates, located throughout the world. In addition to its record function; the office staff handles such varied activities as servicing SUI clubs throughout the nation and administering alumni reunion programs during each June commencement weekend. The central headquarters of the SUI alumni association is also in the alumni office. The association publishes its own bi-monthly magazine for its dues-paying members, sponsors the sale of SUI rings and of Old Capitol playing cards and spearheads the growing program of alumni support for SUI. Members of the University Women's association will serve as student hostesses at the open house, assisted by special representatives from the interfraternity council and the dormitory association.

Center of Supreme Court Day Controversy

ABOVE PICTURE IS THE CONTROVERSY over which SUI law seniors will argue Thursday before members of the supreme court of Iowa. The arguments will feature supreme court day activities at SUI. When originally published, the outline of this picture read, "John Boswell, convicted last week of treason against the United States in behalf of the Communist regime in Russia, and sentenced to death, is shown in a friendlier atmosphere two years ago at a party given by friends. Enjoying the convivial atmosphere are shown, left to right, Boswell, Marty Johnson, Frank A. Isom, Sally Lane and Frank Wellsley."

Iowa Justices to Arbitrate SUI Law Argument Thursday

Members of the Iowa supreme court will sit as final arbiters of the senior law class arguments Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

The arguments will highlight Supreme Court day.

The case to be argued centers around the picture reprinted above. It is a law suit.

The attorneys for the plaintiff are James E. Kennedy, Esterville, and R. Bruce Hughes, Sioux City. Kennedy is a graduate of Notre Dame and is president of the SUI Young Democrats. Hughes, a former editor of The Daily Iowan, is vice-president of the Young Democrats.

Evan Hultman, Waterloo, and James Sperry, Grundy Center, will handle the case for the defense. Hultman is a former president of the student council, and Sperry graduated from Kentucky Military institute.

The defendant in the suit is a hypothetical newspaper known as the Capitol Times. The Times printed the photo two years after it was taken, when one of the persons pictured was convicted for treason.

Another man, "Frank Isom, attorney," also appeared in the picture, and is plaintiff in the suit on the grounds that its publication invaded his "right of privacy."

The plaintiff also claims that the event pictured is the only time that he has talked to the man convicted of treason and that the paper is guilty of sensational "yellow journalism."

The newspaper insists that (1) the law recognizes no such right as privacy and that (2) even if such a right is recognized, there is an exception when the public has an interest in the picture. An added defense argument is that the plaintiff is amply protected by the recognized law of libel.

Another feature of Thursday's Supreme Court day will be initiation of the Order of the Coif, honorary legal society. William F. Riley, federal judge for the southern district of Iowa, will be initiated as an honorary member of the Coif. He is the second man who is not a member of the Iowa supreme court, to receive the honor. He graduated from SUI in 1909. Annually, the society initiates one honorary member and the top 10 percent of August, February and June graduates of the college of law. This year 12 persons, including Judge Riley, will be initiated.

June graduates to be honored are Emery Davis, Marathon; Blair White, Burlington; R. Bruce Hughes, Sioux City; James Sperry, Grundy Center; Alan Polasky and John Sticknoth, both of Iowa City.

February graduates Richard Hobbet and Donald Lay, and August graduates William Ryan, Dean Sticknoth and Eugene Hoffman also will be initiated.

Dean Mason Ladd of the college of law will preside over the initiation ceremonies which will take place at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

All members of the Iowa supreme court, all of whom have been initiated as honorary members of the Coif, will attend. The public also is invited.

The Iowa Law Student association is sponsoring all events.

Cornerstone For Wesley Building Laid

The Wesley Foundation and Religious Education building, 120 N. Dubuque street, received its cornerstone in a 15-minute ceremony at noon Tuesday.

The center of the cornerstone contained a cache of present day documents, including Tuesday's Daily Iowan, which won't be opened as long as the structure stands.

The box was lowered into the cornerstone and the cap was placed on by Prof. V. A. Moody, chairman of the state Wesley foundation board; Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, chairman of the local Wesley foundation board, and James E. Stronks, head of the official board of the local church.

The Rev. R. M. Shipman, pastor of the First Methodist church at Fort Madison, a member of the state Wesley foundation for 22 years, spoke in place of the Rev. C. W. Brashares, bishop of the Des Moines area of the Methodist church, who was ill and unable to attend.

The Rev. Sam Nichols, pastor of the Collegiate Methodist church, Ames, closed the ceremony with a benediction.

Senate Locks Horns on Taxation Exemptions

DES MOINES (AP) — Members of the Iowa senate locked horns Tuesday in a dramatic battle that will serve as a climax to the closing days of the 1951 legislative session.

Supporters of a house-passed bill to grant new exemptions under the moneys and credits law for taxation of intangible property pushed the measure through to passage late in the day 31 to 17 after three hours of parliamentary maneuvering.

The bill, passed at previous sessions of the senate but always killed in the house, would exempt from the moneys and credits tax the capital stock of companies which are incorporated in other states but do their principal business operations in Iowa.

There are about 25 or 30 such concerns operating in the state. In some of these firms the capital stock is mostly family-owned, such as the Maytag company of Newton and the Sheaffer Pen company of Fort Madison.

Proponents of the bill maintained that firms such as these were being subjected to double taxation because they have to pay property taxes and their stockholders have to include their stock assets in their personal property valuations.

Driving Licenses

The Iowa senate agreed with the house to increase the biennial driving license from $1 to $1.50 but decided that the state highway patrol should have a bigger increase in strength than the house provided.

The house had passed a bill increasing the authorized numbers of the highway patrol from 160 to 200 men. The senate increased this figure to 225 men, and returned the bill to the house.

Salary Increases

A conference committee report on the state departmental appropriation bill which grants Atty. Gen. Robert L. Larson a $750 a year increase in salary was received by the senate.

The measure, appropriating $8,999,867 a year for the operation of state departments and agencies, was sent to conference after disagreement rose over changes made by the senate.

The senate proposed to increase the attorney general's salary from $7,500 to $8,500, partly in recognition of his law enforcement campaign against gambling violators. The final agreement reached by the conference committee was for a salary of $8,250 for Larson.

As a result of the conference report, Bruce Stiles, director of the state conservation commission will receive a salary of $5,500 a year and David Dancer, secretary of the state board of education, will get $6,000.

The salary of Rodney Q. Selby, director of the Iowa development commission, who also is acting state civil defense director, was fixed in the conference report at $6,180 a year, the amount he now receives.

The attorney general's office was allowed $7,500 a year for enforcement of a new law which requires the office to pass upon the legality of all rules and regulations issued in the future, by state administrative departments.

Hawkeye Contracts Let

The student board of publications Monday voted to let three contracts for the 1952 Hawkeye SUI yearbook.

They were engraving to the Southwestern Engraving company, Tulsa, Okla.; binding, Economy Advertising company, Iowa City, and covers, the Kingsport Press, Kingsport, Tenn.
