Lons Returns To Cafe After Acquittal; Plans No Vacation

By MARVIN BRAVERMAN

Less than 24 hours after a Johnson county district court jury acquitted him of fatally stabbing Andrew Davelis, James Lons was back at work at the Princess cafe.

Dressed in a brown suit and white shirt, the 53-year-old cafe operator opened his restaurant at 5 a.m. Monday and donned a white apron.

But it soon became apparent that Lons wouldn't get much done Monday, as customers and friends flocked to the cafe to extend their congratulations.

"I put my faith in the Lord and prayed," the cafe operator told the many well-wishers.

Several persons asked Lons whether he would take a vacation after the three-week trial. Lons replied:

"Right now, the only thing I'm thinking about is the restaurant."

He said he had no plans at present to get a divorce from his estranged wife or to sell the cafe.

Lons left the courthouse immediately after the jury of seven men and five women received the first-degree murder case at 4:19 p.m. Saturday.

He returned at 11 a.m. Sunday with his attorneys, A. C. Cahill and William Bartley, after the jury announced it had reached a decision.

"Mr. Cahill and Mr. Bartley told me to be prepared for anything, and no matter what the verdict was, to brace up and take it like a good soldier," Lons said.

At 11:07 a.m., it was all over. "We, the jury, find the defendant to be not guilty," Judge Paul H. McCord read.

The jurors, who were given 10 possible verdicts, were silent after giving their decision and refused to comment on any phase of their deliberation.

However, it was learned that the jury never considered a serious degree of guilt. About eight or nine ballots were taken during the eight hours of deliberation, with the first, 9-3, for acquittal.

Lons wept openly after the verdict was read and, after court was adjourned, silently dropped to his knees and crossed himself.

Soon he was out of the courthouse and on his way to the Princess cafe. His employees rushed up to the cafe operator. A number embraced him.

One employe placed a sign in the window of the restaurant reading, "Not Guilty."

Lons remained only a few minutes at the cafe, and then with his brothers, George and Gus, drove to Cedar Rapids "to get away from the excitement." They returned Sunday night.

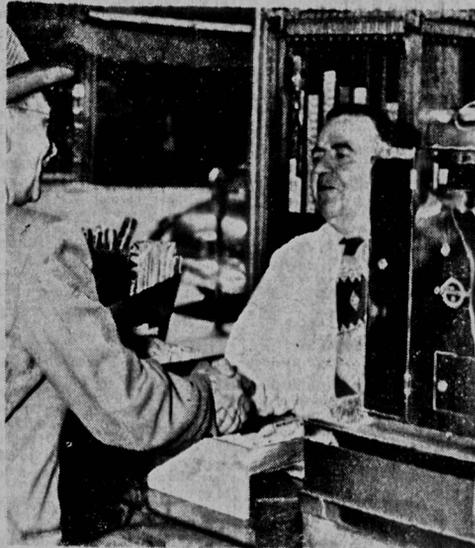

Mrs. Stella Davelis, divorced wife of Davelis, commented Monday that she thought the verdict was "unfair."

"With 10 possible verdicts to bring in, how could they acquit him," she asked.

She said several persons had told her they were "stunned" by the decision.

Asked about the attitude of Davelis' relatives, Mrs. Davelis answered, "they feel very bitter about it."

Members of the jury were George Parks, SUI steam fitter, Mrs. Ethel E. Cox, John Walters, Homer Estes, Mrs. Esther Bireline, Mrs. Emily Stochl, Herbert Ashdown, Owen Rogers, R. H. Goering, James J. Burns, Clara Kutz and Mrs. Claretta Yoder.

Lons Gets Congratulations

Davelis' Wife, Brother File Suit Against Lons

Attorneys for Mrs. Stella Davelis and Thomas Davelis Monday filed a $51,500 damage suit in district court against James Lons and his brother, George Baculis.

Lons was acquitted of murder charges by a district court jury Sunday in connection with the death of Andrew Davelis, a waiter in his cafe. A charge of aiding and abetting a murderer is pending against Baculis.

Davelis' former wife and brother charge that Lons and Baculis "inflicted knife wounds in and upon his (Andrew Davelis) chest and back, thereby causing his death" last Oct. 12.

Administrators Mrs. Davelis and Davelis are administrators of the deceased man's estate.

Andrew Davelis' two sons, George, 13, and Theodore, 10, were named in the petition as his only heirs.

The plaintiffs ask $50,000 for loss of earning power because of Davelis' untimely death. They claim that the 41-year-old man had a life expectancy of 28 years when he died.

Mrs. Davelis and her brother-in-law further contend that before his death Andrew Davelis was in good health and able to continue earning substantial wages. They said his annual salary as a waiter at the Princess cafe was about $3,000.

For Funeral Expenses In addition to the $50,000, they also ask $1,500 for funeral expenses and interest on the expenses, which they claim were incurred prematurely.

Also in connection with the damage suit, A. L. Towner and John Nash petitioned the court to continue their receivership of the Princess cafe.

They asked the court to keep Lons' cafe in receivership until any claims resulting from the damage suit are settled.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs in both suits are Edward W. Lucas and Edward F. Rate.

Iowa's June Draft Quota Is 500 Men

DES MOINES (AP) — State selective service headquarters said Monday it has received the official call for June and that it will require slightly more than 500 men for military service.

An early estimate of about 800 given last week proved to be too high because additional factors now are being taken into consideration that didn't enter into the allocations previously.

(Johnson county Monday had not received orders on its quota for the June draft call.)

State's Case Against Baculis Is Undefined After Lons Acquittal

The acquittal Sunday of James Lons, freeing him from charges of murdering Andrew Davelis last Oct. 12, left the state's charges against Lons' brother, George Baculis, the center of a legal question.

Baculis is charged with aiding and abetting Lons in "the murder of Andrew Davelis." But a district court jury found Lons innocent of the murder.

Legal Question

Asked Monday about the status of the charge against Baculis, County Atty. William L. Meardon said he would have to consult the law books to discover first, whether or not the charge against Baculis can be changed, and second, what the altered charge should be.

Meardon mentioned the possibility of accusing Baculis of being an accomplice in murder.

District Judge Harold D. Evans declined to comment on whether the charge of aiding and abetting murder could be allowed to stand if Lons' name is stricken from the indictment as the man who "murdered Davelis."

Baculis was arranged on a grand jury indictment last Dec. 19. He then pleaded not guilty and was released from custody on $50,000 bond.

Case Continued

The charge against Baculis has been continued to the May term of court, which began Monday. The continuance was granted by Evans upon request and agreement of both the state and defense attorneys.

Representing Baculis is the law firm, Messer, Hamilton, Cahill and Bartley, who also represented Lons in his successful defense against the charge of murder.

World Situation At A Glance

KOREAN FRONT — UN armored patrols plunge north through Chunchon to find key central Korean base deserted by Chinese Reds. Communists are reported regrouping farther north. South Koreans take initiative, with Allied artillery and air support, in limited attacks on western and eastern ends of front. Large Red forces concentrate 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

UNITED NATIONS — Britain and France indicate they will support an American proposal for a world-wide embargo against shipping arms, ammunition and war material to Red China and North Korea.

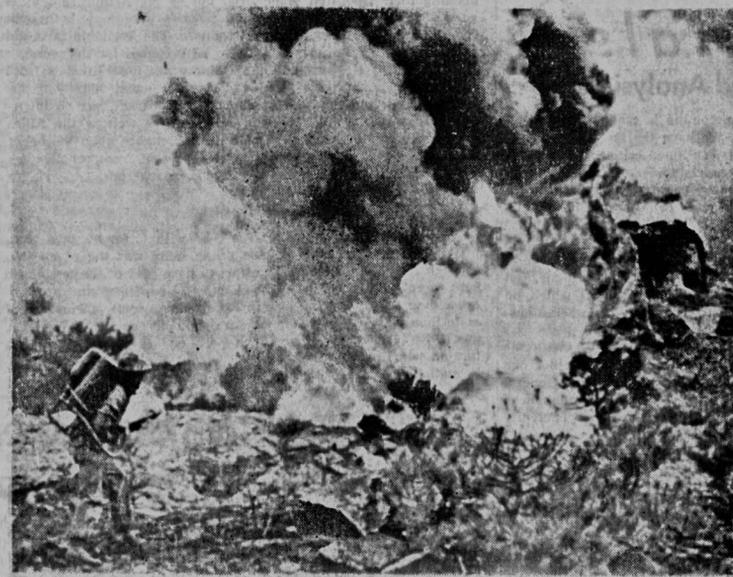

WASHINGTON — U.S. and Russia break off direct talks aimed at settlement of Moscow's $10.8-billion loan-lease account. U.S. has reduced bill to $8-billion. Moscow has offered $240-million.

ISRAELI-SYRIAN FRONTIER — Israel accuses Syria of "armed aggression" in the six-day fighting along the northern frontier and demands a UN security council meeting to take up the issue.

LONDON — Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of Britain's board of trade, declares it was nonsense to say that British goods shipped to Red China greatly helped the Communists in their Korean fighting.

Chinese Feel Let Down by Russia

ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN KOREA (DELAYED) (AP) — Some Allied officers now believe there is some hard feeling among North Korean and Chinese Communists because of Soviet failure to supply them with heavy weapons for their latest offensive.

Lack of these weapons — specifically tanks and airplanes — prevented the Reds from exploiting any of the small breakthroughs they gained during the hectic week of Allied pullbacks to the Seoul perimeter.

Before the offensive began April 22, there were many signs that the Reds were counting on tanks and aircraft.

Behind their front, roads were being widened and improved, and for weeks there had been constant work on fields and new airstrips. Further, many prisoners captured at that time told of promised Russian armament. Yet, when the offensive jumped off, the Red infantry had help only from a single artillery division that went silent after the first night.

In the succeeding six days of attack, the Reds piled up heaps of their own dead, trying to break the elastic Allied line with foot soldiers.

"Uncle Joe sold them down the river again," one officer exulted after the first few hours of the offensive showed NO tanks or planes.

UN Troops Drive Reds Back Toward Parallel

TOKYO (TUESDAY) (AP) — South Korean troops smashed hard into a North Korea army corps northwest of Seoul Monday and rolled it back three miles to points 13 miles from the capital. Other Allied forces in the east forced back hard fighting Reds a mile and a half.

These Red setbacks on the flanks and a withdrawal north of Chunchon in the center coincided with reports of dissatisfaction in Communist ranks.

The Allies have won back nearly half of the ground lost north of Seoul to 300,000 Reds who aimed the main weight of their futile offensive at capture of the capital by May day.

Last weekend, some 7,000 North Koreans northwest of Seoul stood their ground and defeated Allied attempts to dislodge them.

But Monday at dawn, South Koreans opened an attack with support of Allied artillery. The Reds resisted until late afternoon. Then the North Koreans began a general withdrawal from advance hill positions.

The South Koreans said they were in contact with a division and a half of North Koreans, fighting in groups up to regimental strength.

In central Korea, Allied armored patrols plunged north through Chunchon Monday. They found the highway center deserted by Chinese Reds.

Adds: Next War Will Be Atomic War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman Monday night joined Secretary of Defense Marshall in blasting Gen. Douglas MacArthur's war plans in Korea. The President said widening the conflict might bring down a rain of bombs on American cities.

Mr. Truman's broadcast and televised speech came after Marshall told senators that MacArthur's proposals would risk all-out war with Russia, expose Europe to attack and perhaps split the free world into two camps.

Revises Speech Revising a major policy speech after copies of it had been distributed, Mr. Truman said:

"Remember this: if we do have another world war, it will be an atomic war. We could expect many atomic bombs to be dropped on American cities. And a single one of them could cause many times more casualties than we have suffered in all the fighting in Korea.

"I do not want to be responsible for bringing that about."

The President added these statements to a speech in which he declared anew that spreading the war beyond Korea might well incite World War III.

He said the free nations, by their stand in Korea, have stopped the march of communism in Asia and dealt a heavy blow to the Kremlin conspiracy "all over the world. Already, he said, there are signs of a crackup behind the iron curtain.

Go It Alone And he declared that a "go it alone" policy in the Far East might wreck the whole Western defense effort" and thus amount to "a tremendous Soviet victory."

MacArthur, testifying before senate investigators last Thursday, proposed an ultimatum to the Chinese Reds. If Allied nations failed to go along, he said, the United States "should go it alone."

"We do not intend to fall into that trap," Mr. Truman asserted in an address prepared for a national civil defense conference.

The President declared that "the best collective military advice in this country" backs his policy of limiting the war in Korea, and that — contrary to MacArthur's statements — "our policy is designed to win."

Courier Action "But if the aggressor takes further action which threatens the security of the United Nations in Korea," he said, "we will counter that action."

This he left open the possibility that some of MacArthur's hit-the-Reds-harder demands will be carried out if the Chinese Communists provoke them.

The President said there must be nationwide organization to meet the "awesome and terrible possibility" of atomic attack.

But he declared: "The best defense against atomic bombing is to prevent the outbreak of another world war and achieve a real peace."

May Grand Jury Members Selected

A seven man grand jury for the May term of district court was impaneled Monday afternoon in Johnson county district court, and then adjourned until Thursday.

County Atty. William L. Meardon said there are fewer criminal cases for the jury to consider than last term. During the February term 17 criminal indictments were returned by the grand jury.

District Judge Harold D. Evans will meet with members of the Johnson County Bar association at 4 p.m. today to determine the civil cases that will be scheduled for the new court term.

Members of the grand jury are Rollie E. Barnes, foreman of the jury, Wayne Allen, Charles F. Buline, C. H. Jennings, Louis Rebal, Frank Slofer and Reuben Stoner.

Order Inspection For New City Homes

New homes built in Iowa City class A residential areas from now on must be inspected before occupancy. That is to make certain no apartment house exists in the disguise of a duplex.

Occupancy permits haven't been required in Iowa City for years, but the city council Monday night ordered City Engineer Fred Gartzke to crack down on future builders.

The city code requires such occupancy permits.

The council Monday received a complaint that the property of Paul E. Vermillion, 1413 Rochester avenue, had been devalued by the existence of nearly built houses as duplexes but now used as apartment houses.

General MacArthur The Inertia ...!

Two 5-Star Generals, One War: Two Opinions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, in their own words, is some of the area of disagreement between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Defense Secretary George C. Marshall over the conduct of the war in Korea and related issues.

The quotations are taken from their testimony before the senate's armed services and foreign relations committees.

Armistice Terms MacArthur — The position that was taken by the joint chiefs of staff in which I was in fullest agreement, late in March, as I recall, was that the terms of an armistice or cease fire should specifically not include the recognition of any seating of Red China in the United Nations or a consideration of turning over Formosa. . . . It was, I understand, in those two particulars, disapproved by the secretary of defense who said that he believed that those two items might well be considered at the conference, the peace conference.

Marshall — At the time I became secretary of defense last September the established policy of the United States was to deny Formosa to Communist China and to oppose the seating of the Communist Chinese in the United Nations. There has been no deviation from that policy whatsoever. . . . These two issues were to be excluded from any armistice terms.

War Strategy MacArthur — The inertia that exists! There is no policy — there is nothing, I tell you — no plan, or anything. . . . I believe it can be brought to a decisive end without the calamity of a third world war. I believe if you let it go on indefinitely in Korea, you invite a third world war.

Marshall — Our objective in Korea continues to be the defeat of the aggression and the restoration of peace. We have persistently sought to confine the conflict to Korea and to prevent its spreading into a third world war.

Buying Time

MacArthur — The great trouble, Senator, is that when you try to buy time in Korea, you are doing it at the tremendous expense of American blood. That does not seem to me to be buying time. It seems to me it is sacrificing our youth. . . .

Marshall — Our efforts in Korea have given up some sorely needed time and impetus to accelerate the building of our defenses and those of our allies.

MacArthur's Recall

MacArthur — I know nothing about the reasons for my recall except the order the President issued. . . . I can't believe the traditional authority that a commander in the field has to negotiate with his vis-a-vis, the opposite commander, on an armistice would be the subject of criticism from any source whatsoever in the world. . . .

Marshall — On March 24 General MacArthur issued a public statement with respect to the Korean conflict. . . . He added that within his authority as military commander he stood ready to confer in the field with the commander in chief of the enemy forces in an effort to find any military means whereby the realization of the political objectives of the United Nations might be accomplished. At the time the foregoing statement was issued, the clearance of the proposed presidential declaration with the other 13 nations having forces in Korea had very nearly been completed. In view of the serious impact of General MacArthur's statement on the negotiations with these nations, it became necessary to abandon the effort, thus losing whatever chance there may have been at that time to negotiate a settlement of the Korean conflict.

Ending the War

MacArthur — I believe. . . that the application of the, if you want to call it, limited pressures would be quite sufficient to bring Red China to a reasonable attitude to gather around a peace conference table to end this savage slaughter (MacArthur referred to extended air bombardment, a naval blockade of the Red China coast and use of the Nationalist Chinese force).

Marshall — I should say that if the Chinese Communists continue in force in North Korea with the potential of additional reinforcements that might be made available, and with our situation where we visualize no considerable reinforcement of the United Nations army, that they could not be driven out of North Korea, and I have my own doubts as to whether the actions recommended by General MacArthur would bring the conflict to a victorious end.

Russian Intervention

MacArthur — I have never accepted. . . that the bringing of the Korean problem to a close would necessitate bringing the Soviet into war against us. I believe that there is an excellent chance that if you apply the power against the Chinese, that would not necessarily involve the Soviet into taking action against us.

Marshall — My own view (of MacArthur's proposed military program) was. . . that we were risking a hazard that had such terrible consequences that what editorials Time for Level-Headed Analysis —

The furor of the MacArthur homecoming is gradually subsiding — at least on the part of the public. We have the feeling that news stories concerning the general and his continued criticism of the administration are declining daily in readership.

We wish, for the good of the entire country, that the people would display as much interest, of a more calm nature, however, in the results of the general's firing as they did in his speeches and parades.

As for the waning excitement, though, we heartily approve. John Cowles, president of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, last Friday made a speech at the University of Missouri in which he blasted some of the newspapers in the country for their sensationalizing of the MacArthur incident.

"... Regardless of whether one agrees or disagrees with the administration's Asiatic policy," he said, "regardless of whether one thinks the President should or should not have relieved General MacArthur, is the preservation of our free society being enhanced by the emotional orgy that some of our newspapers are currently stimulating?"

"Would not qualified psychologists, regardless of their political views, say that what we have been witnessing in the United States in the last couple of weeks bears resemblance to what took place in Germany and Italy not too long ago for some of us to remember?"

It is true that many of the papers, as Mr. Cowles said, have been "whipping the public into a frenzy with cartoons, news stories and editorials that are so violent as to be almost psychopathic?"

But we are more concerned with the people's reaction than we are at the moment with that of the newspapers. The story, without a single distortion of the truth, WAS sensational. Its prominent play on front pages was inevitable.

We don't feel that the papers were the biggest factor in the explosion of public sentiment that was set off as the story began appearing on newsroom teletype machines across the country.

The people simply found themselves rolling with a snow-balling effect into the frenzy which ensued — and which, admittedly, had some extra pushes by the press. And we do agree with Mr. Cowles that the frenzy bore some resemblance to that stirred up by two other men who were national heroes at one time in their respective countries, Germany and Italy.

This certainly isn't to associate Gen. Douglas MacArthur with Hitler or Mussolini. But it is an indictment against the American people for succumbing to what almost reached mass hysteria at times.

We're happy that the excitement is declining in intensity. And we hope that the people, who certainly don't have to depend upon any one newspaper, will settle down to a level-headed and mature analysis of the information which comes to them now as a result of the incident which set off the wave of hero-worship.

Hint Start of Collectivization Program on Chinese Farms

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign trade ministry's bulletin has disclosed the Chinese (Communist) People's Republic has machinery and tractor stations on the Soviet model.

These figures, even taken at face value, indicate China still is in a bad way. So far as food supply is concerned, the production would still be far below her needs. Her production now is well under the pre-Japanese war level, and China always has been an importer of food.

Collectivization of farms in China, as it did in the Soviet Union, would have a number of major aims; tightening political control over the farmers, releasing peasant manpower for work in industry, stepping up farm production through mechanization and advancing the drive toward Stalinist socialism.

In effect, collectivization turns the farmers into agrarian proletarians—workers in a sort of farm factory. Besides organizing the farm for mass production, this also extends the control of the government over the peasants, who in China, as elsewhere, represent the most independent element.

A collective farm is fully controlled by the Communist party. It is run by a sort of board supervised by party officials. All equipment, stock and land belong to the state. Farmers are not permitted to leave these farms without specific permission. They are paid on a piece-work basis in accordance with averages for individual production which are fixed by the state.

Chicago Jails Filled With Drug Addicts
CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's jails are filled to overflowing with drug addicts, authorities reported last week.

The situation developed only one month after the new narcotics court, which handles only narcotics cases, went into operation.

Says MacArthur Offers No Alternate Plan

By J.M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Gen. Douglas MacArthur holds out to the American people a very enticing prospect of being able to clear the Korean war from the books and so be in better position to meet Communist aggression wherever it occurs again.

But the general is significantly silent on what happens if his plan should fail. He is so sure of his own ideas that he virtually refused to consider questions about what would happen if it didn't work.

In the Background

Seemingly secondary with the general, but always in the background, is his belief that intensified action against China would not bring Russia into the war. He also seems to think Russia would not be much force in a Far Eastern war if she did come in.

Yet MacArthur described how the Russians trained the North Koreans in Manchuria, passed this real army through the North Korean border patrol and attacked South Korea. American intelligence had known their actions but not their intentions.

Then the Chinese, after MacArthur's Inchon landing, began massing their troops in Manchuria, but as MacArthur said, it is very difficult to determine another power's intentions, both with regard to the North Koreans and Chinese. The available facts did not produce an American decision to be prepared for the worst.

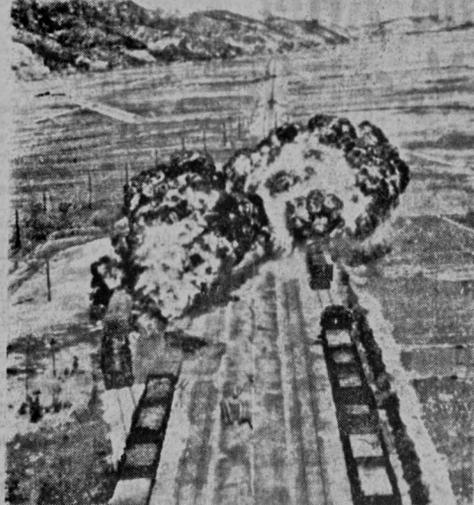

The North Koreans and the Chinese are now Russia's front echelons in Asia. Russia has between 250,000 and 500,000 troops in Manchuria and Siberia. It's a good bet that she has no intention of committing them to war, since she as well as the Allies must be prepared in Europe. But concrete reliance upon the belief that Russia will not "pass through" the present front echelons, as did her satellites, would be repetitiously dangerous.

Other Holes, Too

MacArthur was undoubtedly a good witness for his own plan, but he left other holes, too. One prime thing was the revelation, through the state department's effort to have part of the testimony kept secret, that relations between the United States and her UN allies over expanding the war in Korea have been even more delicate than was generally known. An open split seems to have been narrowly averted. This may have been one of the several matters on which MacArthur admitted he did not have sufficient information to qualify as a global strategist.

The conflict between the administration and MacArthur seems to boil down to the hope, on the one hand, that a settlement in Korea may be possible if the Chinese are stopped dead there, and the belief on the other hand that such a settlement depends upon an actual victory.

Also involved is General MacArthur's matter of buying time in Korea while preparations are made to resist even greater threats. MacArthur did that with his initial two battalions in Korea. But he doesn't seem to understand how it applies on a global scale.

MAKING A TWIN KILLING WITH DIRECT HITS, Fifth Airforce B-26s knocked out two enemy supply trains last week north of the Chinese built up area on the east coast. The bombing was done with Napalm bombs, which raise fiery balls of flame when they explode. The Napalm bombs have been used extensively against Chinese troops, installations and supplies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate tried to be fair. It tried to give the two famous generals the same treatment, right down to the welcoming committee.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur had his voluminous say last week. Monday it was Gen. George C. Marshall's turn.

So at 8:22 a.m. (Iowa time) Senators Byrd (D-Va.) and Bridges (R-N.H.) came out of the senate office building and joined reporters and photographers waiting on the sidewalk for Marshall.

Last Thursday Byrd and Bridges had gone to the airport to meet MacArthur. Friday they had met him here on the sidewalk. Saturday they had planned to meet him, but MacArthur got in ahead of time.

"I figured I'd better talk with Marshall now," Bridges said jokingly. "After I get through with my questions, he may not talk with me."

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) came up and pretended that the newcomers were there to welcome him.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) came up and pretended the newcomers, etc.

At 9:28, 20 minutes before the scheduled start of the hearing, the ever punctual Marshall arrived.

He looked startled when he saw the crowd. Normally Marshall arrives unnoticed, and then sits around patiently waiting for tardy senators.

Byrd and Bridges escorted him upstairs to the same caucus room where MacArthur testified. He shook hands with all the senators, while flash bulbs flashed.

Then he posed at the witness table.

"Say something, General," a photographer urged.

"I'm doing everything you tell me to," Marshall said, doing everything they told him to.

A few moments later reporters and cameramen were shooed out.

The same ground rules were used as when MacArthur was here. Stenographers, working in relays, brought out the copy to be censored and duplicated. The same subscribers bought it at 12½ cents a page.

(Tass, the Russian news agency, bought MacArthur up until Saturday afternoon, when it cancelled out. It began again with Marshall.)

The only difference was in the size of the crowds. After all, Marshall has been around here a long time, testifying on one thing or another.

About 20 spectators watched the general alight from his car. A reporter asked a photographer who had come early if they had been there long.

U.S. Forces Arrive In Iceland to Man Atlantic Defense Posts

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND (AP) — U.S. Brig. Gen. Edward J. McGaw, landed by air Monday with the first contingent of American army, navy and airforce to help defend this North Atlantic republic.

(The defense department in Washington said the force consisted of 200 men.)

Icelandic newspapers got out extras announcing the second coming of the Yanks. The government issued a statement saying troops had arrived at the invitation of this country, an independent member of the North Atlantic alliance.

It was believed the force will be built up gradually in the next few weeks. Its activities will center around the capital, and Reykjavik, but listening posts and other strategic installations about the island also will be manned.

American troops were stationed here from early in World War II and were the only defense force for this island close to the Arctic circle. Iceland's airfields and bases were an important factor in the protection of convoy routes across the North Atlantic.

Iceland, a nation of 140,000 people, has no army, navy or airforce of its own.

Cornell's Rock Returns to Campus

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — The Cornell college rock weighing over seven tons, which originally was placed on the campus by the class of 1889 and which disappeared three years ago is back again.

"From all the evidence," said President Russell D. Cole Monday, "it is concluded that the rock disappeared in the spring of 1948 at the hands of the freshman class of that year. Presumably, it now has been restored by these same men, now seniors. We are glad to have it back above ground."

PReviews... and Postscripts

By JACK LARSEN

Some People May Not Like This — Nuts to delicacy! Drop the bombshell! To whit: This column is dedicated to the proposition that stage actors are no better than movie actors.

(Pause. Flutter of several Iowans to floor) That statement may seem rash at first, but it's really quite rational. It's a conclusion I came to all by myself even though I've had long conversations with members of a certain department who possessed (and I use that verb in its more active sense) arguments to the contrary.

The fact is that I've seen many more downright bad performances on stages than I have in movies, despite the far, far greater number of movies I've seen.

(Exeunt. Unsheduled intermission. Good stiff shots on sale in lobby.) I know the whole idea sounds fantastic. After all, you've all heard how the motion picture industry prostitutes the arts which are combined to make movies. And when Corinne Calvet or Robert Mitchum comes along in a "vehicle," you don't need anyone to tell you that the movie thrust at us some pretty ghastly samples of the acting art.

Granted. But how many stage plays have you seen in which somebody didn't jar you with some colossal line (mis)reading? Every season, in some of the best plays, with some of the biggest stars, you can find performances that — brrr — will demonstrate conclusively that Margaret Truman has a lot of company.

(Pause while yours truly puts guard on mail box.) Of course, the movies do have decisive advantages. They're characterized by rapid movement and changes of action which leaves less time for impressions to register deeply. They're unhampered by the formality of stage conventions; they can deal in smaller, more intimate, more natural gestures and expressions to convey the same mood or idea.

On the stage an actor, or an entire cast, can have an off-night or two—or twenty. I've seen Gerie Lawrence on an evening when Shirley Temple might have done better (if Shirley could act). And I've seen Ruth Gordon get away with such outrageous over-acting that any minute I expected her to try upstaging the audience.

In the movies it's different. It's got to be a suitable, in-key performance of the actor's art. But that stage actress has demonstrated dear Olivia's virtuosity and versatility as seen in such films as "Strawberry Blonds," "Hold Back the Dawn," "To Each His Own," and "The Snake Pitt" (Red spot on stage center.)

I can go along with arguments that stage training is a better preparation for movie acting than the reverse, that stage acting demands a lot more individual imagination and energy than movie acting.

But I can't subscribe to the theory that the quality of performance you see on the stage is invariably superior to that you find in the movies. It isn't, kiddies, and don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

And if I haven't presented any foolproof evidence of the greatness of movie stars here, it's because my intentions weren't along that equally foolhardy line. I've just been wanting for a long time to take a few pot shots at a sacred cow: that only stage actors live on the right side of the artistic tracks.

As in any other field, the quality depends upon the time and the place — and above all, upon the individual.

(Silence. Curtain. More silence.)

SUI Coed, Mother Give Currier Hall Own Song

By JULIE JENSEN

When Mrs. D. Howard Smith lived in Currier hall the first year of its existence, she didn't dream she would one day write the "Currier Song" of her daughter's generation.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Joan, A4, Wapello, are the winners of a contest for lyrics to the tune, "The Halls of Ivy."

The song made its debut in the women's semi-finals of the All-University sing, in which Currier hall was one of four winners.

When Currier was young, Mrs. Smith was Lillian Russell, an English major at SUI.

She lived on the second floor of Currier in the corner room of the south wing. During that first year there was no furniture in the lobby and gaslights in the hallways, Mrs. Smith recalls.

Another unusual feature of the early Currier was the patrolling of its inside corridors by a night watchman.

Mrs. Smith marvels at the huge dining rooms of the modern Currier. When she was in school, the dining service was confined to one small room.

Joan is a music education major and has been director of Currier's first permanently organized chorus this year.

Joan got the music for "The Halls of Ivy" and offered to arrange it for the chorus if somebody would write lyrics.

No one volunteered, so a contest with a five dollar prize for the winning entry was started. This also was met with a lack of response.

Mrs. Smith, however, was interested in trying her hand at a song for the dormitory which had been "kept in the family" for two generations. So Mrs. Smith and Miss Smith worked together on lyrics and came up with "The Halls of Currier."

Lois Wait, A4, accompanist for the chorus, helped Joan with a full chorus arrangement, and the dormitory gave "The Halls of Currier" an enthusiastic reception.

Mrs. Smith will come to SUI for Mother's day weekend this Saturday and Sunday to hear the song she and Joan made possible in the finals of the All-University sing.

A fifth and sixth grade English teacher in Wapello, Mrs. Smith is the mother of three grown-up children.

She is within 20 hours of receiving her B.A. degree and has been taking correspondence courses. After Joan's graduation, Mrs. Smith will return to SUI to complete her work.

Joan plans to teach high school vocal music after graduation. She will attend music camp at Walden Woods, Mich. in August.

"I'm glad that Currier has a song all of its own," Joan says, "I feel that we've needed one for a long time."

LOOKING OVER A COPY OF THE SONG they collaborated on for Currier Hall, Mrs. D. Howard Smith and daughter, Joan, A4, Wapello, hoped the song would help the Currier chorus win in the University sing this weekend. Miss Smith directs the Currier chorus.

Woodlawn Operators Request Court for Stay of Proceedings

The Iowa supreme court Monday heard arguments on a request which would allow the Woodlawn pre-school to remain in operation until a law suit involving the school is heard by the high court.

The request for a stay of proceedings which would nullify a district court injunction closing the school, was presented by operators of the school, Madeline and David Davis.

The plaintiffs, Prof. Ross Livingston, of the SUI history department, Klara Robbins and Mrs. Mabel Evans, residents of the private Woodlawn residential area sought to close the school. They charged that it was being operated in violation of local zoning laws. (Mrs. Evans died here last week.)

The supreme court has not yet ruled on the operators' request, although arguments were completed Monday afternoon. The justices said the ruling will be mailed to both parties.

A temporary stay of proceedings, allowing the school to remain open until the court's decision is in the hands of the attorneys, was granted Monday to the operators of the school.

Atty. Clair E. Hamilton represented plaintiffs in the arguments Monday, and Atty. Milo Smith represented the defense. Smith has been assisting Atty. William L. Meardon in the case.

Last Jan. 7 District Judge James P. Gaffney handed down a district court ruling on the case. It placed restrictions on the use of the private Woodlawn drive and the operation of the school, but held that it was legally operated.

Both sides appealed the case to the supreme court, but Hamilton obtained a district court injunction closing the school.

Judge Gaffney ordered the injunction because operators had failed to file a health and fire report on the school as he had ordered in his ruling on the case.

Meardon then appealed the injunction before a supreme court justice in Cedar Rapids and obtained a temporary stay of proceedings until the supreme court could hear the arguments Monday.

Operators of the school said Monday that a new health inspection of their school has been made. They earlier had petitioned the city council to order a new inspection, claiming that Dr. D. F. Fitzpatrick's report was unfair and untrue. Fitzpatrick is the city health physician.

The Davises wanted the new report filed in district court in time for the supreme court hearing Monday, but they said it could not be made available soon enough because the report was sent to Des Moines for approval.

They said the report was made after an inspection of the school by the state sanitary engineer.

COLLEGE MEN:

BE PREPARED FOR YOUR DRAFT DEFERMENT APTITUDE TEST

Selective Service now urges and all but demands that every draft-eligible college man take the deferment aptitude test which will be held in May and June, regardless of scholastic standing. General Renfrow has said that should there be no test score for a student seeking deferment, the draft board may order his induction.

Now is the time to prepare for this all-important test which will help determine whether you can serve your country best by continuing your studies or entering the Armed Forces.

WHAT THE APTITUDE TEST WILL ASK YOU

There is no quicker, easier, more inexpensive preparation than PRACTICE FOR THE ARMY TESTS. This "on-the-ball" book contains complete, simplified study material for the questions and answers on the four subjects you must know to obtain a high score, it covers: 1. Ability to read and comprehend materials collegians must study; 2. Ability to deal with words; 3. Interpretation of data in charts, graphs, tables, and diagrams; 4. Arithmetical reasoning which will require no advanced mathematical knowledge. These are the announced subjects of the test. And these are the subjects for which PRACTICE FOR THE ARMY TESTS prepares you.

Wisconsin Rejects Rose Bowl Renewal

Brechler Says Iowa Will Favor Keeping Pact in Operation

CHICAGO (AP) — Wisconsin Monday flatly rejected renewal of the Big Ten-Pacific coast conference Rose Bowl pact in any form, thus pushing the issue again before the Big Ten's joint committee.

The committee of faculty representatives and athletic directors will meet at Evanston, Ill., May 24-26. A definite decision will be reached then on reviving the Bowl pact, which expired last New Year's day after a five-year run.

In February the committee voted to continue the contract for another three years. The conference was to vote on whether a single team could make the Pasadena trip not more than once in two years or not more than once in three years.

In Iowa City Monday night Athletic Director Paul Brechler said, "Iowa has favored renewal of the contract in the past and will favor it again in the May meeting. I expect the voting to be very close with one or two schools holding the balance of power."

"We'll have to wait until the May meeting before we know definitely if the contract is to be renewed."

A majority vote is required to carry the measure and a 5-5 vote in the conference meeting will kill renewal. Wisconsin and Minnesota have been admitted opponents to renewal of the pact and several other schools are believed to be in agreement with this stand.

Head Football Coach Leonard Raffensperger said, "I don't feel in a position to make a definite statement. I'll go along with anything decided by the athletic director and faculty representative (Paul Blommers)."

Under the expired five-year agreement, a Big Ten team could not go to the Rose Bowl more than once every three years. The Pacific coast champion automatically went to the bowl game each year.

Wisconsin becomes the first Big Ten member to reject flatly renewal of the agreement in any form. Illinois last month voted to favor only the three year limitation and would reject the once-in-two-years alternative preferred by the Pacific coast conference.

Michigan's Athletic Director Fritz Crisler said Sunday that the Wolverines are undecided and would have the school's faculty representative go to the May meeting in Evanston "without instructions."

Wisconsin's rejection, a Big Ten spokesman said, now makes necessary another vote by the joint committee on whether or not to continue the pact.

If the vote is again affirmative, the 1 in 3 and 1 in 2 proposals again will have to be voted upon. The spokesman said the whole issue will be decided at the May sessions.

At Wisconsin, Athletic Director Guy Sundt; Kenneth Little, faculty representative, and Prof. Kurt Wendt, speaking for athletic board Chairman Nathan Feinsinger, all opposed former Big Ten competition in the Rose Bowl. Sundt said Ivy Williams, head football coach, also was against the renewal.

U-High Wins Prep Loop Track Title

Eight records fell as University high school won its fourth straight Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference outdoor track and field title Monday afternoon.

Bob Ewalt led his Bluehawk mates to their 48 point winning total as he set new records in 440 and 880-yard runs; Ewalt's time of 2:03.4 in the half bettered that made by Crum of U-high in 1948 of 2:08.7. His record of :52.9 in the 440 was better than the :54.3 set by Mt. Vernon's Bud Kudart in 1948.

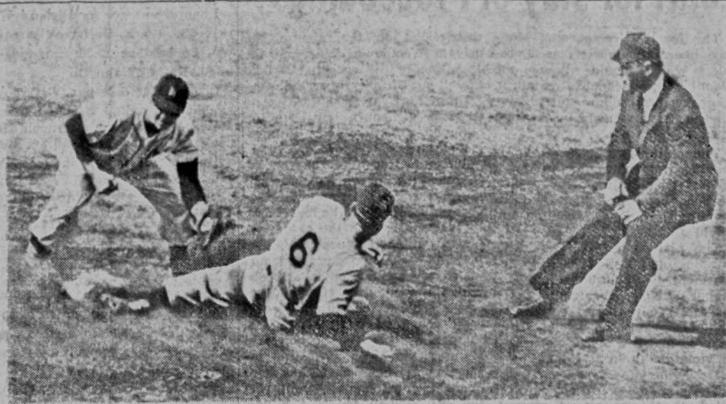

Rittger of U-high set a new record of :15.9 in the 120-yard low hurdles.

Bob Johnson of West Liberty provided the main punch to put his team in second place with victories in the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash and pole vault. Both dash performances were new records.

West Liberty finished second, followed by Mt. Vernon, New London, Winfield, Columbus Junction, Wapello and West Branch.

NEW YORK'S MICKEY MANTLE successfully stole second base Monday afternoon against the Detroit Tigers as Second Baseman Gerry Priddy reached for the tag. Priddy received the throw from Catcher Joe Ginsberg. The Umpire was Jim Honochick. Detroit broke the Yankees' eight game winning streak, 10-6. Gene Bearden, former Cleveland and Washington pitcher, was credited with the victory.

Cards Hold League Lead Despite Loss, 4-3

BROOKLYN (AP) — Bruce Edwards singled home one run and Tommy Brown drove in another with a fly ball to give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 4-3 ten-inning victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night. The Cards took a 3-2 temporary lead in the tenth just before Peanuts Lowrey's double effort opened the gates for the Dodgers' winning rally.

Despite the defeat the Cards remained in first place, 34 percentage points ahead of the idle Boston Braves.

Preacher Roe had the Cards beaten, 2-1, with two out in the 9th when Del Rice rifled a two strike pitch into the center field stands to tie the score. Lowrey singled home a run in the tenth to shoot the Cards ahead but his error paved the way for Gerry Staley's downfall in the last of the tenth.

Senators Edge Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP)—Eight Washington batters in a row singled off two Cleveland pitchers in the fourth inning Monday night to score five runs as the visiting Senators edged the Tribe, 11-10, and climbed back into second place.

Larry Doby and Allie Clark led off the last half inning with homers for the Indians, but the home team's bid ended there, one short.

The barrage of singles — three short of the one-inning major league record the St. Louis Cardinals set in 1925 — ruined Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vander Meer's first American league start. He was charged with the loss.

Tigers 10, Yanks 6

DETROIT (AP) — Gene Bearden, a castoff relief pitcher, halted the New York Yankees' eight-game winning streak Monday. He sparked the Detroit Tigers to a 10-6 victory with a home run and seven innings of sharp relief pitching.

The Tigers broke up a tight ball game in the eighth inning, when Bearden, Hoot Evers, and Dick Kryhoski homered. Earlier, Yogi Berra and Gene Woodling homered for New York.

Bearden, who came to the Tigers from Washington a few weeks ago, relieved Starter Saul Rogovin and allowed only five hits in seven innings to win his first game. Relief Pitcher Fred Sanford of the Yankees lost his first game.

home run for the Boston Red Sox Monday night to give them a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The opposing hurler, Ned Garver, yielded four hits.

The win was the first major league triumph for the 22-year-old Nixson.

He ignited his own keg in the third inning by slamming a home run on the first pitch over the right field pavilion roof with none on.

DETROIT (AP) — The Stroh's bowlers from Detroit led just about everything except the band at Monday's session of the American Bowling Congress tournament.

In the singles, Lee Jougla set a new all-time record with a total of 775. He had games of 242, 255 and 278.

The Stroh's Quint rolled a 9,506 all-events total, topping the 9,278 mark set April 22 by the Meister Braus team of Chicago.

Russia Gets Admittance To Olympics, Promises To Abandon Politics

VIENNA (AP) — Russia was admitted to the Olympic games Monday after agreeing in writing to abandon politics on the field of sports.

The vote of the International Olympic committee was 31 - 0 in favor. Three members did not vote.

During a three-hour discussion the IOC was told by its executive commission that the Russian Olympic committee had agreed in writing to abide by the Olympic rule.

Rules include the promise to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics.

Russia is now eligible to take part in the Olympic games starting with the winter session at Oslo in February, 1952, and the summer games at Helsinki in July and August, 1952.

Konstantin Andrianov, president of the Russian Olympic committee, was named to represent his country on the IOC.

He heads a Russian delegation which came to Vienna seeking admission to the games.

Andrianov appeared before the IOC Monday afternoon to offer his thanks.

He gave assurance of sincere and strong cooperation between his committee and the IOC. He said he was sure of a strong feeling of friendship on the part of the Russian Olympic committee with the Olympic movement and with the peace in the world.

Billiards Easy to Learn Says Expert

Billiards is an easy game for beginners to learn, according to Charles C. Peterson, fancy billiard shot artist, who will give an exhibition of his skill at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Iowa Union.

Peterson contends that anyone can learn to play well with reasonable attention to simple fundamentals.

Peterson has about 550 fancy shots. One example is his famous "dollar shot" in which he stands a silver dollar on end between two pieces of billiard chalk which are about one-quarter of an inch apart.

He then strokes the dollar to the far cushion and it rolls back through the two pieces of chalk.

Free tickets for the exhibition are available to SUI students, faculty and staff at the main desk of the Iowa Union.

Cordell Hull Reported In Critical Condition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, 79, is in precarious condition at the naval medical center at nearby Bethesda, Md.

He was admitted to the hospital Saturday, and has been put on the critical list, hospital officials said.

William Musgrave Funeral Set Today

Funeral services for William Musgrave, former resident of Iowa City, will be held at 3:30 p.m. today in Oathout funeral chapel.

Musgrave, 58, died Friday at his home in Carroll, Iowa. Burial will be in the North Liberty cemetery. The Rev. B. T. Yeager, pastor of the North Bend Church of God, will officiate.

Musgrave was born Jan. 10, 1893, in Johnson county, the son of Wallace and Sue Grim Musgrave. In 1915 he was married to Ruth Bernice Oldfather, who died in 1928. He married Tholena Olson, North Liberty, in 1927.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Mary Etta Petersen, Sidney, Neb.; one son, Dr. Paul W. Musgrave, Fairfax, Mo.; his mother, Mrs. S. Musgrave, North Liberty; one brother, Jesse, North Liberty, and five grandchildren.

3 Persons Fined Total of $52 Here

Three persons were fined a total of $52 Monday in Iowa City police court.

Roger W. Schulthise, 135 Halley street, was fined $35 on two counts, speeding and driving without lights. Judge Emil G. Trott suspended $12.50 levied on the second count.

Joe Van Eschen, A4, Ackley, was fined $12.50 for driving without a license and $4.50 for parking his car with the left wheel to the curb. Judge Trott suspended $7.50 of the first fine.

Emmett J. Morris, New York City, was fined $10 for repairs for a parking meter which he struck with his vehicle in downtown Iowa City.

Religion School's Trustees Elect Officers at Meeting

Members of the board of trustees of the SUI school of religion elected officers at their annual meeting in the house chamber of Old Capitol Monday. They also elected 17 board members.

Four officers re-elected were F. C. Waples, Cedar Rapids, president; Rabbi Eugene Mannheim, Des Moines, first vice-president; Dean Bruce E. Mahan, SUI extension division, secretary; and Thomas Farrell, Iowa City, treasurer.

ROTC Will Practice Today for Inspection

A practice ROTC parade will be held from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. today west of the fieldhouse, in preparation for federal inspection of the SUI military department Thursday and Friday.

All ROTC students have been excused from classes during these hours today by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher.

Uniforms will be worn to the practice as well as to the actual inspection, the military department said.

Inspecting officers from Fifth army and 10th airforce headquarters will inspect classroom facilities Thursday and the SUI cadets at a formal inspection parade Friday.

Colonel Inspects Local Guard Unit

Col. Wolcott K. Dudley, inspecting officer, Fifth army headquarters, Chicago, Monday inspected the Clearing company, 109th Medical battalion, Iowa national guard at the Iowa City army.

All military detachments must pass a federal inspection each year.

The 109th Medical Clearing company, now at about half strength, has about 70 officers and men assigned to the unit.

Iowa City's other national guard unit, the 34th Reconnaissance company, was inspected by Colonel Dudley while on flood duty along the Mississippi river Thursday.

Three Weekend Accidents Reported

Three accidents were reported to Iowa City police over the weekend.

Cars driven by Clair W. Marshall, L1, Coralville, and Darrel J. Croot, A4, Sioux City, collided Sunday afternoon at the intersections of Linn and First streets.

Damage was estimated at $160.

Mrs. Grant Cariens, 807 Maiden Lane, reported that her car was damaged by an unidentified vehicle Saturday evening while it was parked in a downtown city parking lot.

William R. Griffith, 1303 Lukirk street, told police that his car struck a parked car, with Wisconsin license plates, Saturday on South Summit street, near Burlington.

JACKSON SPEAKS TONIGHT

Swedish Gymnasts 'Graceful'

By TOM KLECKA

Sofiaflickorna, Swedish women's touring gymnastic troupe, flexed and danced through a show of "high effort, low tension" calisthenics and folk tunes Monday night on the fieldhouse basketball floor.

The performance opened with a synchronized rope skipping exhibition and then a swing and sway deep bend routine. All the women's motions seemed effortless and smooth, the grace emphasized by Greek statue poses and tog-like costumes.

Considering the difficulty of performing some of the sways in unison, the women turned in a creditable job, with only negligible teetering.

After calisthenics, the troupe went through a series of high bar stunts, walking on the arch formed by the crosspiece which the rest balanced gracefully up and down inverted benches.

Handsprings and springboard flips over an exercise horse concluded the first half of the show.

After intermission, the group put on a costumed exhibition of Swedish folk dancing.

The group performed at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin and is now touring the United States for the second time.

Nanny Johanson, "Ja, she could speak English best of us," according to a fellow trouper, explained that five of the women had been to the U.S. once before.

Looking as if American show business agreed with her the late hours didn't, she added sleepily, "Ja, we came to Iowa that time, too."

CONTROLS END IN '53?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston predicted Monday that price and wage controls in this country will end by 1953 unless Russia attacks.

Daily Iowan Staff Members' Terms Shortened

The student board of publications Monday night voted to shorten the terms of Daily Iowan news staff members, except for editor and managing editor. The terms, effective June 1, will run from June to February, and February to June.

The editor now appoints his staff members for the entire school year. The board also decided that under the new plan, staff members may not succeed themselves, except with the board's concurrence.

The new plan was adopted to give more students an opportunity to gain experience in administrative news staff positions. Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, chairman of the board, explained.

In other action, the board:

1. Named Charles E. Barnum, journalism instructor, assistant publisher of The Daily Iowan, succeeding Prof. Walter Steigleman.

2. Decided that Frivol, SUI magazine, should be delivered on the 15th of the month preceding the date it carries, except for the January issue. They scheduled the January delivery for the second or third day following the Christmas holiday recess.

3. Voted to ask for bids on the Hawkeye yearbook covers for the next three years.

4. Approved Reynold Hertel, G. Amana, as city editor of The Daily Iowan succeeding Murray Seeger, A4, Hamburg, N.Y., who resigned April 16.

Washington Jobs Open

Civil service examinations have been issued for filling accounting and auditing clerks positions in Washington, D.C., and vicinity.

The pay for these positions is $2,875 per year. No experience is required but applicants must pass a written test.

The age limits, 18 to 62 years, will be waived for persons entitled to veteran's preference.

Further information and application forms are obtainable from the commission's local secretary, Lester J. Parizek, at the Iowa City postoffice.
