400,000 Troops To Europe In 1952: Marshall

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sec. of Defense George Marshall threw top Pentagon officials into considerable confusion Friday night with his testimony before the senate foreign relations committee that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

The figure given by Marshall was nearly twice as great as previous official estimates.

Highest defense authorities at the Pentagon told newsmen after hours of frantic checking and double-checking that they were unable to explain or clarify the basis for Marshall's statement.

Marshall himself could not be reached. Aides said he left immediately after attending the funeral of Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, who died of a heart seizure in Italy last weekend.

There was some belief that Marshall may have made a slip of the tongue. Top aides said as far as they knew there was no change in present plans to limit the size of U.S. forces in Europe to six combat divisions totalling approximately 200,000 troops.

Marshall also disclosed that U.S. Allies in Europe have promised they will have 2.5 million men under arms next year and will be able to throw 5 million men into the field within 90 days after the outbreak of any new war.

Marshall's revised figures came as a surprise to lawmakers who recalled his testimony on the controversial troops-to-Europe issue last Feb. 15.

At that time, testifying before a joint session of the senate armed services and foreign relations committee, Marshall said there were no plans to send more than 100,000 additional ground troops to Europe to bolster the two American divisions already there.

He said the new contingents would include 72,000 men in four combat divisions—plus some 25,000 supporting units—and would raise U.S. ground forces in Europe to about 197,000.

Friday, Marshall raised the count to 340,000 ground troops and 60,000 air force troops.

Marshall made the disclosure in voicing a plea against any let-down in American defensive spirit resulting from the Korean armistice talks and against any congressional cuts in U.S. military aid to Western Europe.

Third Lenz Boy In Polio Ward

Larry Lenz, 15, the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lenz, R.R. 6, Iowa City to have polio, was admitted to the University hospitals' isolation ward Thursday. His case was diagnosed as polio and he was in fair condition Friday, officials said.

The first one in the family to contract the disease was Gary, 17, admitted to the hospital last week. He was transferred to the inactive list Friday. Thomas, 5, was the second of the family and he is still on the active list at the hospital.

A fourth son of the Lenz's, Billy, 1, is still under observation but his case has not been diagnosed. Admitted to the hospital Thursday were Lloyd Middlesworth, 31, Ottumwa, and Judith Crabtree, 8, Tama. Both were in fair condition Friday, officials said.

DEFENSE SECRETARY GEORGE MARSHALL points his finger at members of the senate foreign relations committee as he testified Friday that he is "shocked" by the American people's defensive let-down since the start of Korean truce negotiations. In a plea for $6.3 billion first installment of three-year $25 billion budget for foreign arms aid, Marshall said it is necessary to counter Soviet Russia's designs and bring a peaceful international situation.

SUI Gets $69,825 In Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants totaling $69,825 and a television set have been accepted for SUI by the finance committee of the state board of education, President Virgil M. Hancher said Friday.

The largest grant, $23,432, was made by the U.S. public health service for research at the Iowa child welfare research station.

Under the direction of Prof. Ralph Ojemann, the project involves a study of the effects of a teaching program in human behavior and emotional development on children of different age levels and backgrounds.

A $15,000 grant was received by the college of medicine from the National Foundation for Medical Education, Inc., one of 72 such grants to medical colleges in U.S.

The Cereal Institute, Inc., made a $10,000 grant for a continuation of research in physiology and nutrition. The project is under the direction of Dr. H. M. Hines, head of the physiology department.

The psychology department received a $5,778 grant from the U.S. public health service for research on the relation of conditioning response strength to anxiety aspects of behavior disorders.

A grant of $3,000 from Burroughs, Wellcome and company went to pediatrics for research in diabetes under the direction of Dr. Philip C. Jeans, head of the department.

The Nutrition Foundation, Inc., granted $3,000 to pediatrics for research under Jeans on the relation of vitamin K deficiency in the mother to intra-cranial injury of the baby at birth.

The American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education made a grant of $4,000 for fellowships of $1,500 each plus $500 each for academic expenses for Myron B. Slomka and Carl C. Riedesel, research assistant and graduate student in pharmacology respectively.

A $1,500 grant was received from the Nutrition Foundation, Inc., for research in biochemistry on the functional role of biotin and pantothenic acid. The project is under the direction of Prof. George Kalnitsky, biochemistry department.

Research on choline metabolism will be conducted under Hines in physiology with a $1,500 grant from Flint, Eaton and company. The Damon Runyon Memorial fund's grant of $1,000 will support research by Dr. Ralph James in anatomy on the effect of radioactive alloxan on pancreatic islet tissue.

Electrical stimulation by means of medotron stimulator will be studied in physiology under the

$50,000 Bail Set for Each Of Seven Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bail of $50,000 each was set Friday for seven persons arrested here in the government's three-city roundup of 12 secondary leaders of the Communist party.

The 12 arrested Thursday here, at Los Angeles and New York, comprise the newest batch of Communist leaders charged with teaching and advocating violent overthrow of the U.S. government.

Federal Judge Louis E. Good set the bail of the seven defendants here at $50,000. The bail of four male defendants originally had been $75,000.

The $50,000 was a drastic increase in the bail of three women, two of whom had been released under $2,500 bail and one under $7,500. Defense counsel said the $50,000 was 10 times what any of them could raise.

Those arrested here were Mrs. Loretta Starvus Stack, former California Communist organizational secretary; Bernadette Doyle, party organizer; Ernest Otto Fox, 45, an organizer; Carl Rude Lambert, 54, chairman of district 13 security review commission; Albert Jason Lima, 43, East Bay party chairman, Mrs. Oleta O'Connor Yates, state party secretary, and Al Richmond, 37, executive editor of the People's World.

Harriman Leaves For London, Seeks Reply to Iran Offer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - W. Averell Harriman, U.S. roving ambassador, left by plane Friday night for London to urge Britain to speed her reply to the Iranian proposal for renewed oil talks. He was accompanied by Sir Francis Shephard, Britain's ambassador to Tehran.

In London, a spokesman said President Truman's personal trouble-shooter will see Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and possibly Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Harriman will explain Iran's offer to discuss again its nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil company.

The British cabinet has asked "clarification" of the Iranian offer transmitted Tuesday.

An informed source said Harriman decided to make the 11-hour flight because he had not gotten a clear-cut answer from the British embassy here or by telegram from the British cabinet.

The jury urged substantial repairs and improvements.

U.S. Challenges Czechs To Let Oatis Broadcast

WASHINGTON (AP) - The state department's "Voice of America" Friday challenged Communist Czechoslovakia "in the name of decency" to let Associated Press Correspondent William Oatis broadcast daily to show he is still alive.

Oatis is now in a Czech prison, serving a life to 10 year sentence for alleged espionage. The state department has denounced his trial as a farce and a fraud.

In a dramatic new move, the "Voice" broadcast its challenge directly to Czech President Clement Gottwald: "Bring William Oatis to the Prague radio every night. Bring him drugged, if you must. But bring him. We do not want to hear one of these days that William Oatis is ill, and that despite everything the six doctors you have sent to attend (could do), he has passed away quietly in the night."

"Nor do we want to hear that somehow, by some strange writ of Communist law, William Oatis is no longer held in a Prague jail but has been moved to more distant places. It has happened too often in the past history of Stalinist jails."

The broadcast said the request for daily reassurances as to Oatis' health would not have been necessary if the American ambassador, Ellis Briggs, had been permitted to see Oatis.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) urged President Truman to crack down on trade with Czechoslovakia in an effort to free Oatis.

Senate Passes Weakened Controls Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The senate Friday passed compromise legislation to extend wage, price, rent and other economic controls through next June. The measure falls far short of the kind of program President Truman wanted.

The senate acted by voice vote shortly after senate-house conferees reached agreement on the compromise version. It generally would key price ceilings more tightly to costs while permitting some rollbacks to pre-Korea levels on all but farm commodities.

The measure now goes to the house, which probably will act Monday.

It would replace the present controls law expiring Tuesday at midnight, assuming President Truman signs the new legislation. He is expected to sign, perhaps with a complaint that it doesn't go far enough to fight inflation.

The weary conferees, who have been at work since Wednesday in adjusting the different senate and house versions, had their last tussles over rollbacks, price mark-ups and slaughter quotas in meat production. They refused to write into the purchase of new and used cars. One-third down payments still would be required. The conferees also agreed to permit somewhat easier terms than are now required for household appliances.

Production Cut ...

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government Friday ordered another cut in the output of automobiles, refrigerators, television receivers, washing machines and other major products for the last three months of this year.

The defense production administration slashed supplies of steel, copper and aluminum for consumer "durable" goods 5 per cent below the level prevailing during July, August and September.

This will mean roughly the same 5 per cent cut in production of new cars and the other items. The aim is to save scarce metals for planes, tanks, guns and other defense needs.

DPA Administrator Manly Fleischmann said automobile manufacturers still will be allowed to turn out "somewhat more than 1.1 million cars" in the October through December period.

Allies Ask Cease-Fire Line at Present Front

TOKYO (SATURDAY) (UP) - Truce negotiators met for the 12th time in Kaesong today and the Communists were believed to have demanded that the Allies pull back to a cease-fire line along the 38th parallel.

The Reds held the floor at this second session to work out the actual armistice terms. In the first of the new phase of meetings Friday, Allied negotiators were reported to have opposed a cease-fire line based on the present fighting front.

But the North Korean and Chinese delegates were believed to have countered today with the demand that the Allies get out of North Korea and draw back to the 38th parallel where the shooting would stop.

This would mean giving up a slice of North Korea 20 miles deep on the central and eastern fronts, where some of the bloodiest battles of the Korean war have been fought.

The decision on a military line of demarcation for an armistice is regarded among Allied observers as the most important item of the five-point agenda. Once the issue of the truce line is settled, observers feel, agreement can be expected quickly on other points.

These other points call for concrete arrangements for carrying out and supervising the cease-fire and armistice, arrangements relating to prisoners of war and recommendations to the governments of the countries concerned on both sides.

Although the present Korean battle line is well above the 38th parallel on the east and central fronts, it is 10 miles south of the boundary on the west. The conference city of Kaesong, which in prewar days was the republic of South Korea, is now behind the enemy lines.

More important to the UN command than the yielding or gaining of territory, however, is the ability to defend any demarcation line against any possible new outbreak of Communist aggression.

Since the peninsula bulges sharply westward just above the present line, moving the truce line north at the western end would have the effect of extending the front by many miles of more or less valueless territory.

A military spokesman said Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme commander, is determined that the lines shall be firmly fixed in accordance with the ability to defend the terrain. This would apparently rule out acceptance of the 38th parallel.

Military Funeral Held For Admiral Sherman

WASHINGTON (AP) - Adm. Forrest P. Sherman was buried Friday in Arlington cemetery, and President Truman was there to say goodbye for the nation.

For the admiral who also was a statesman and airman, there gathered in the sun-lit marble amphitheater the ambassadors and ministers of Washington's embassies. Overhead, as the cortege made its slow march across the Potomac to the cemetery, was the high thunder of warplanes flying their salute.

Mr. Truman sat in the hot sun of the amphitheater, flanked by Sec. of State Dean Acheson, and by Sec. of Defense George Marshall. They joined in the responses in the Episcopal service. The President looked across at the bronze casket, draped by the flag, glanced occasionally out over the audience.

Kimball Confirmed As Navy Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) - The senate Friday confirmed Dan A. Kimball as secretary of the navy. The senate also approved promotion for more than 100 generals and admirals in the army, navy and air force.

Kimball has been under secretary of the navy and was appointed to succeed Francis P. Matthews who stepped out to become U.S. ambassador to Ireland.

The senate also confirmed Walter G. Whitman of Massachusetts as chairman of the research and development board, succeeding William Webster, resigned.

Pentagon Ducks Question About Reds' Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) - The high command of U.S. armed forces publicly washed its hands Friday of a Pentagon officer's statement that while UN forces have halted their offensive in Korea the communists have taken advantage of the cease-fire talks to make a strength.

Clayton Fritchey, information director for the defense department, told reporters that the statement given out earlier by a briefing officer does not reflect official policy or views.

Up to Friday the earlier statement had been regarded as an official one inasmuch as the briefing officer, departing from custom, had told newsmen they were at liberty to quote his remarks directly.

The timing of his statement was surprising. It came shortly before UN and Communist negotiators at Kaesong resumed talks on the touchy question of setting up a buffer zone between the opposing forces in Korea.

The briefing officer pointed to what he termed the "tremendous buildup" of Communist strength since preliminary truce talks started, and expressed hope this was not evidence of "bad faith" on the enemy lines.

Proof of the "good faith" of the U. S. and its UN partners, he said, was presented when they let the truce talks halt their advance at a time when the Reds were "hanging on the ropes."

The officer drew a sharp contrast between the increase of Communist troops, weapons and supplies and the UN reaction to the truce talks. He let it be known that the UN command, instead of building up, has pulled one sizeable unit out of the battle line since the talks started and has sent it to Japan.

Mrs. John Beranek Killed as Lightning Bolt Strikes House

Mrs. John Beranek, 25, Morse, a community about seven miles northeast of Iowa City, was killed Thursday night when a bolt of lightning struck the house in which she was staying.

Dr. George Callahan, Johnson county coroner said Mrs. Beranek's death was caused by electric shock from the lightning.

Callahan issued the statement of her death after pathologists at University hospitals performed an autopsy on the body Friday morning to determine the cause of death.

Sheriff Albert J. Murphy said Mrs. Beranek and her six year-old daughter were visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Pennington at the time of the accident.

Murphy said the women were waiting for their husbands to return home from Cedar Rapids where they were employed.

Mrs. Pennington told officers a bolt of lightning struck on or near the house about 10 p.m. knocking out all the lights in the house.

Murphy said Mrs. Pennington told him Mrs. Beranek was sitting in a chair near the telephone at the time the lightning struck.

She said when she lighted a lamp, she found Mrs. Beranek slumped over in the chair. Attempts to revive her proved unsuccessful and a West Branch physician called to the scene was also unable to revive her.

Funeral services for Mrs. Beranek are set for 9 a.m. Monday in St. Bridget's church near Morse. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery.

Navajo Indians Not Starving, Official Asserts

WINDOW ROCK, ARIZ. (AP) — Navajo Indians in Arizona and New Mexico are in an "economic straight-jacket" but they're not starving, the man who bosses their vast reservation said Friday.

Allan G. Harper, area director of the Navajo and Hopi reservations, discounted reports that Indians are starving on the 15 million acres of tribal lands. The reports, he said, are "simply not true."

Harper's statement followed an announcement that an executive committee of the 17-state governor's interstate council on Indians planned an investigation of reported starvation among the Navajos. The council's headquarters is at St. Paul, Minn.

"Even though the Navajo people are not starving to death at the present time, they find themselves in an extremely difficult economic straight-jacket. . . . Harper said.

Their only salvation, he added, is fulfillment of the 10-year $88 million rehabilitation program approved by congress last year.

Harper said the Navajos don't want charity but they do expect the federal government to keep the promises it made under the long-range program.

Although their reservation—one of the largest in the nation—spans northeastern Arizona and northwestern New Mexico, the 60,000 Navajos realize a meager existence from its barren mesas and valleys.

The Navajos are traditionally a poor people, Harper explained, and for the past two years have been struggling to overcome the affects of the worst drought in 50 years.

Rare Brain Disease Kills Six in Virginia

RICHMOND, VA. (AP) — The death toll from a suspected rare brain disease rose to six here Friday and the U. S. public health service said an epidemiologist was on the way to help authorities check the outbreak.

The fatal disease tentatively has been diagnosed as encephalitis and city health director, Dr. E. M. Holmes, said the situation is "serious in its possibilities."

Encephalitis causes inflammation of the brain and has a mortality rate ranging up to 65 per cent. The virus is carried and spread by mosquitoes, by domestic and wild birds and possibly other animals.

City health authorities yesterday began spraying areas with DDT and pouring oil on stagnant water that might serve as a breeding place for mosquitoes. State and county health authorities joined in mapping control measures. All doctors were alerted to look for any symptoms that might be the disease.

Vinton Man Drowns

LA CROSSE, WIS. (AP) — Thomas Spencer, 40, Vinton, Ia., was drowned Thursday while painting on the west channel bridge across the Mississippi river.

Spencer's body was recovered by the sheriff's boat after the accident. His was the sixth river death of the season.

GI's Rug May Be Korean Treasure

PUEBLO, COLO. (AP) — Hold up your bids on that luxurious $100,000 leopard skin rug. The Korean government is considering buying back the souvenir which Sgt. Elvere H. Giltner sent home from Korea. There's a chance that it's a "priceless national treasure."

Sergeant Giltner mailed it to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh V. Giltner last month. It's made of 48 matched leopard skins and is 18 1/2 by eight feet.

One look convinced the Giltners it was "beautiful, but too big for our house." They offered it to the highest bidder, passing along their son's $25,000 estimate of its value, and put it in storage.

The Korean consul general in New York, David Nankook, saw a newspaper photograph of it, and thought it looked like one which once adorned the palace of the late Queen Min. He appraised it at $100,000.

The Korean embassy in Washington cabled a description to Pusan Friday for a check of its authenticity.

"It appears genuine we shall try to get it back, of course reimbursing the sergeant for any expense he went to in getting the rug and sending it to his home," the spokesman said.

Giltner said he paid 150,000 Korean won, or about $61 in American currency, for the rug. It cost nearly $40 to mail it home.

He said he bought it from a "gook" and that it came from the Chang Duk palace.

"Bewildered" by the furore over the rug, Mrs. Giltner said the family would "move through the proper channels" if the government steps in.

However, she reiterated that she still would sell the rug if she received a good bid, but didn't expect any in view of the developments. She said her son received proper clearances before mailing the rug home.

Mrs. Giltner said collecting was a hobby with the entire family.

Woman Bequeaths Chauffeur $250,000

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mrs. Louise A. Slimer, who died July 19, left Norman F. Bearhs, her chauffeur, more than $250,000 in stocks, it was disclosed Friday when the will was filed for probate.

Mrs. Slimer, 86, left the 62-year-old driver the money for "faithful and unflinching service to me for many years."

Bearhs was left 600 shares of A. T. & T. stock; 2,500 of Proctor and Gamble stock, a motorboat and a high priced automobile.

Bearhs seemed dazed at the news. He said Mrs. Slimer ate dinner every evening with him and his wife, Anna, until she broke a hip about 18 months ago.

"I'm not going to change our way of living one little bit," he told a reporter.

TO THE EDITOR: Your recent editorial on the GI bill helps perpetuate two insidious current fallacies.

First, you claim that the "right to an education" is thereby established. A serious difficulty today arises from the fact that we are convincing ourselves that too many of our privileges are our right. The danger is that we too often accept "rights" with neither gratitude nor a sense of responsibility. Rather are we moved to demand more. Recall the argument in 1947 that the GI in school could not live on $60 a month, and therefore the government "owed" him a raise. No gratitude here for a chance to get an education; only the howl that it was not enough! Some of the beneficiaries of this legislation appreciate it for the largesse that it is; I think it pernicious to encourage the rest in their smug belief that they "had it coming to them," and to make those who are not eligible for these benefits feel that they are being gypped out of their "rights."

The second fallacy lies in your argument that the veterans have a right to a government-financed education merely because they are veterans. Setting up ex-servicemen as a separate class with special rights seems discriminatory to me. The one supreme right the serviceman earned by his exertions was the right to live in a free nation where he is able to take for granted privileges and opportunities undreamed of by most of the rest of the world. But he enjoys this right not by virtue of being a veteran, but by virtue of being an American; so should it be with any right.

Public Law 346 is no bill of rights at all, but is a magnificent gift of the American people (including the veterans) to those of us who just happened to be of the proper age and physical condition between 1941 and 1945 to be of most service in the armed forces. I do not mean to depreciate either the GI bill or the veteran's service to his country; I object only to those who do not see these things in their proper perspective.

Jack Hall Lamb Quad A-80 (Editor's Note: The only thing "established" was the precedent of having the federal government feel some obligation to veterans in the field of education. Perhaps this feeling will some day be extended to include federal education based on citizenship. The GI bill is a successful start in this direction.)

DICTIONARIES ARE VERY USEFUL DEVICES, but it's just too hard to get away from one. Take the other day — I was looking up "squawk" (don't ask me why) and it was a long time before I could leave that page of the book.

Just below squawk the word "squawkie" caught the eye, with this definition: "A sound motion picture having singing or interludes of singing. Humorous."

Humorous, hah! What could be less humorous than the un-musicals ground out day after day? With Betty Grable, of course, singing and dancing her way (unrehearsed, of course) through trials and tribulations.

THEN IN THE NEXT COLUMN there was no less than "squeef." Which is nothing more or less than "a shabby, disreputable fellow."

WHAT TAKES ALL THE TIME, though, is something like "square and rabbit," which is defined as "an annulet." A challenge like that I simply couldn't let go by, so into the "A" section I flipped.

An annulet, it seems, is "a small molding or ridge forming a ring, as a list, fillet, cincture, etc." You see? The only connection I could see between molding and fillet was as in Jello and mignon, so the hunt went on.

But under "fillet" it says, "Anat. — a band of fibers; — applied esp. to certain bands of white matter in the brain."

At this point they seemed to be getting overly personal, and I gave it up.

ONE NICE THING ABOUT THE TELEPHONE COMPANY, if you put yourself in their hands you don't have to worry about indecision or ignorance. Take, for example, the section giving pertinent details about how to dial on a party line.

"Dial the number and hang up," it says. "Your bell will ring. When your bell stops ringing, remove the receiver and start your conversation." And no nonsense, they might well add.

"If your bell does not stop ringing soon, it indicates there is no one to answer at the called telephone." Oh.

HERE COMES THAT SHAGGY DOG AGAIN. Readers of Thursday's column will remember Rover, Sir Lancelotte's valiant steed-dog. It happened that the King, hearing of Rover's meritorious service, decided to honor him with a knighthood. "Tuesday at seven sharp," quoth His Majesty, "everybody come to the palace for the grand ceremony and poker game."

Came Tuesday. Came seven sharp. And came only Rover, H.M., Sir L., and two shoe-button salesmen.

"Gadzooks," quoth the King. "The deal's off. I wouldn't knight a dog at a turn-out like this!"

Cut off from World — Deaf Children Aided

— At Syracuse Clinic

EARPHONES OVER EARS, youngsters are taught to speak by Dr. Louis M. Di Carlo, director of the hearing and speech program at Syracuse University's hearing and speech center.

By WILLIAM P. EHLING Central Press Correspondent SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The strange and frightening world of silence which imprisons more than two million partially and totally deaf children in the United States has been invaded by a small task force of scientists and hearing specialists.

The invasion, conducted without fanfare, has been the result of years of patient research and the slow development of modern electronics equipment. The most difficult task, until recently, has been to penetrate the wall which separates the handicapped child from the world of everyday sounds.

How this is done is demonstrated daily at Syracuse university's hearing and speech center, whose diagnostic and remedial work with deaf and hard-of-hearing children has achieved national recognition.

Responsible for the center's outstanding work is Dr. Louis M. Di Carlo, director of the hearing and speech program, who has worked with hundreds of children, some less than a year old.

"The task of rehabilitating deaf or partially deaf children," he explained, "should begin at a time when a child normally learns to distinguish and identify sounds, and repeat these sounds in his speech, and before he begins to feel cut off from the world. It is this feeling which results in fear and loneliness and causes personality difficulties later on."

The job of teaching youngsters with impaired hearing how to talk and "hear" begins by first determining the kind and severity of the hearing loss.

What makes this process a difficult one is that the majority of children coming to the center not only are unable to hear but also unable to speak. But in place of the child's voice is substituted a sensitive instrument called a skin galvanometer which can tell Dr. DiCarlo all he wants to know.

The galvanometer, which plays a key role in diagnostic work at the hearing and speech center, is designed to pick up a child's reaction to any sound he may hear. The majority of deaf children are able to hear some sound, but this sound must be of high intensity, well above the range of the human voice.

Although the scientific principles of the galvanometer have been known to physicists for years, there are only six such instruments in the U.S. — and all custom made.

Based on the principle of electrical potential change in the nervous system, the galvanometer permits the operator to send a sound of any intensity through earphones worn by a child. Fixed to the youngster's hands are a set of metal disks, or electrodes. Any stimulus such as a loud or a slight tingling sensation caused by a mild electric shock, will cause the palm of the hand to perspire. If the perspiration increases, the skin's electrical resistance decreases. The galvanometer measures this change.

By sending a loud tone through the earphones followed by a mild shock to the hand, a conditioned reflex is set up. Soon the hands will perspire each time the sound is heard, even if sound is not accompanied by shock.

By gradually reducing the intensity of the sound until the child no longer responds, the precise hearing range or "threshold-of-hearing" can be accurately determined.

Employing a powerful amplifying system with earphones and microphone, Dr. DiCarlo is then able to talk to a deaf child within his hearing range. He holds up objects, names them, shows how they work. By repetition and imitation, the child slowly learns to make coherent sounds and form words.

The goal of diagnostic work is to discover the "hidden" hearing range. Once this is done, all of the child's senses—sight, touch, as well as hearing—are utilized to teach him how to speak. He must also be taught how to "hear."

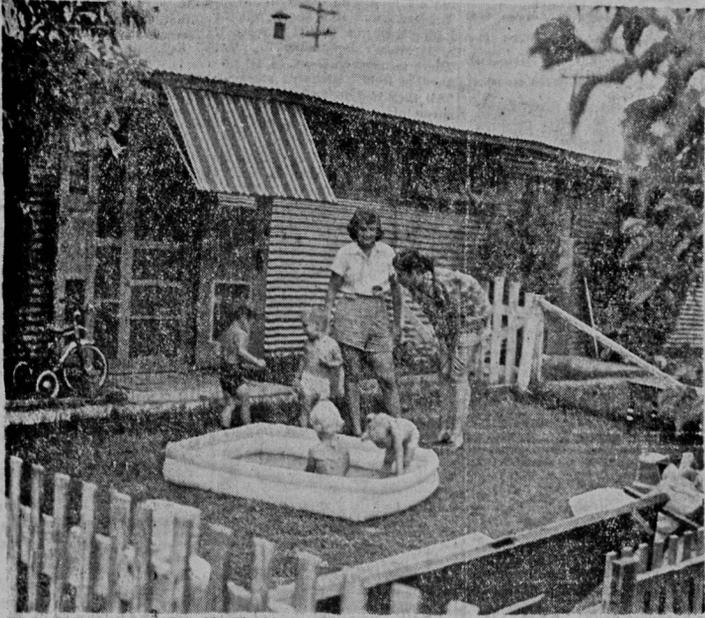

If some sounds are audible to the child, he is fitted with a hearing aid, and taught to identify the sounds he hears. In more severe cases, children are taught to concentrate on sound cues of the speaking voice which, combined with lip reading, enable them to follow normal conversation without trouble.

As the psychological as well as physical aspects of hearing difficulties become better understood and more people are trained in the education of deaf children, Dr. DiCarlo predicts that the deaf mute will gradually disappear from the American scene.

MILLIONS FOR GAS

DES MOINES (AP) — The state collected $3,771,126 in gasoline taxes during the month of July, compared with $3,782,699 for the same month last year, the state treasurer's office reported Friday.

How SUI Couples Live: In A Barracks

THE NORTONS' BARRACKS, 902 Finkbine park, is one of the few in that housing area which has a yard, and as a result—a yard full of children. When Barbara Norton reached the point where she couldn't stand to see son, Danny, 2½, wistfully hanging on the fence watching splashing neighbor children, she persuaded husband Dee to buy a plastic swimming pool. Here she and Mrs. Boyd Mast watch young Steven Mast, Danny, Amy Harrington and Kathleen Kolstoe do some splashing of their own. Another recently acquired outdoor fixture is the Nortons' awning above the door. Although it produced some "near-casualties," neighbors soon learned to duck as they came in the gate.

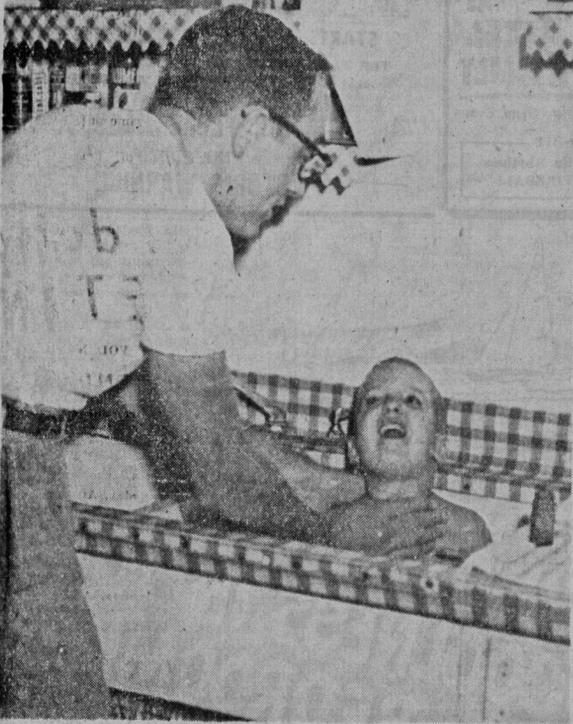

DANNY SPILLING HIS MILK is a very characteristic pose at the Nortons, says Dee as he wipes up the mess. Evening mealtime and weekends are just about the only time young Danny gets to see both his parents at the same time, since his mother has taken a job five nights a week at the hospital to supplement the family income. Barbara says she feeds her family lots of inexpensive dishes, such as tuna casseroles, and hamburger "dozens of ways."

ALTHOUGH BARBARA'S NEW JOB takes 20 hours of her time each week, she still finds time for play with Danny and some recreation of her own. Many Finkbine wives go to movies, play bridge and sun-bathe together, while their husbands are working or studying, she reports. Other Finkbinian customs are trading baby-sitting periods and borrowing "anything from shampoo to sugar."

(Daily Iowan photos)

THE DISHPAN SUFFICES FOR A BATHTUB even though it won't do for a swimming pool, Danny decides. Here Dee gives him his nightly scrubbing. Both have come from the Finkbine playground where the elder Norton has joined "a bunch of other fathers" keeping an eye on their offspring. In Finkbine, the fathers baby-sit for each other as much as do the mothers, the Nortons report.

AND FINALLY TO BED goes Danny as his father settles down to a couple of hours' study before his wife comes home at 9 p.m. from her work at the hospital. Barbara decided to take the hospital job since it afforded her opportunity to work while Dee could be at home with Danny. She has added to Dee's GI and assistantship pay by typing theses; Dee by spraying cockroaches for the SUI drug service.

DEE AND BARBARA STILL FIND TIME for relaxation and socializing with the neighbors, despite their jobs and time spent with Danny. They trade visits with neighbors, play bridge and go on cooperative picnics. During the almost three years that the Nortons have lived in their barracks, Dee has painted the living room and made brick and board bookcases. After Dee gets his Ph.D. degree next June he plans to go into college teaching. "I don't know how I'll ever live without my neighbors," his wife exclaims.

By JEAN SHARDA
(This is the second in a series of three articles on how SUI couples live.)

It isn't too often these days that Danny Norton, 2½, sees both parents at the same time—at least for very long. When his mother is with him, his father is gone. And when his daddy comes, his mother goes away.

While this situation might puzzle Danny, his parents think it very logical—and necessary.

When Dee Norton, 902 Finkbine, found he had three months and 18 days of GI subsistence pay left, he decided to forego it this summer and use it next fall.

Because his entitlement time will carry him past mid-semester, he will be paid a full semester.

Decided to Get Job

Since this decision left the Nortons' summer earnings fairly small, Barbara Norton decided to get a job to supplement her husband's half-time research assistantship.

Her problem was in obtaining work she could do during hours Dee could stay with Danny. Otherwise a big share of her earnings would go to pay baby-sitters.

Barbara solved it with a job from 5 to 9 p.m. five nights a week at University hospitals, where she is a clerk in the isolation ward. She goes to work just after Dee gets home from school.

After she leaves, Dee takes Danny to the Finkbine playground where the senior Norton joins a "bunch of other fathers" before he bathes and puts his son to bed.

Working Well

So far her job is working out well, still leaving some time for play with Danny and recreation, Barbara said. She said some of her social life will have to be curtailed, however, and she doubts if she'll have time for any more Saturday classes.

Last semester Barbara, who was usually socialize—trading visits with other Finkbine couples, picnicking and playing bridge.

Barbara reported that Finkbine wives do a lot together while their husbands work or study. They go to movies, swim and sunbathe "while the kids are napping."

Moved in 1948

The Nortons have lived in Iowa City since September, 1948, all but the first semester of which they have spent in their present barracks.

"I wonder how I'll ever cook without my neighbors," Barbara exclaimed. "We borrow everything from sugar to shampoo around here."

Trading baby-sitting is another Finkbinian custom. The fathers do it as much as the mothers, Barbara reported.

The Nortons' barracks, which has a living room, two bedrooms, bath, small kitchen and utility room, rents for $46 a month. This includes the furniture provided by the university.

Painted Living Room

Dee has painted the living room and made board and brick bookcases to make it more liveable. A neighbor, Fred Leach, provided three oil paintings.

The Nortons said they like their quarters very much and consider themselves especially fortunate since they're one of the few families to have a yard.

Their outdoor equipment consists of a picket fence, wooden bench, two lawn chairs, tractor tire-sand box and, just recently, an awning on their barn-type door. The latter has produced some near-casualties.

"We were picking our friends up off the ground—our hospitality suffered," Barbara reported. "Now they automatically start ducking when they come in the gate."

Exercises Can Eliminate Backaches: Doctor

CHICAGO — Simple stretching exercises can eliminate backaches and headaches among industrial and office workers, a Los Angeles doctor reported Friday.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr.

Add Swimming Pool

A plastic swimming pool is another recent addition. Danny's hanging on the fence to watch splashing neighbor children was the cause of this.

"We thought we could keep him happy in the dishpan," Dee lamented, "but finally when Barb couldn't stand it any longer she came down, got me out of class and we bought one."

When the Nortons had to buy a hose to fill the pool, their neighbors greeted them: "Boy, am I glad you got a hose—now I can wash my car."

"We're the most popular people in the block," Barbara laughed.

Harvey E. Billig Jr., said that chronic posture habits are a frequent cause of backaches, headaches and other complaints.

Headaches Eliminated

Headaches, he said, were eliminated with regular exercises that included the forced turning of the head from side to side. In this exercise the force is applied by the heel of the hand against the chin.

The head exercise was carried out three times to each side, three times a day.

Cites Exercise

The report cited an exercise for the back in which a person stands close to a wall with his hip touching. His feet are away from the wall. He bends out toward the pelvis, using his arm against the wall for force.

In another "force" exercise, the person sits upright on a chair and rotates his trunk from side to side. The arms grasping the chair-back are used to apply force.

Iowan Says Women Should Inspire Men In Civil Defense

A Red Oak, Ia., woman told the General Federation of Women's clubs Friday that men would show greater interest in civil defense if more women would join up to inspire them.

According to a United Press report, Mrs. Hiram C. Houghton told the federation's one-week institute in Chautauqua, N.Y., that women should enlist in civil defense projects where "the absence of the female sex has left a vacuum for inspiration."

"Men do not build castles or beautiful churches or even make soap for themselves; they do it for, or because of, women," Mrs. Houghton said.

PAINT LAMP SHADES

A lampshade just the right color is an easy accessory to acquire. Just take any heavy paper or cardboard shade and cover the inside with aluminum paint. Then apply the desired hue of wall paint on the outside. Simple as that!

The Ol' Swimmin' Hole — Channel Swimming Again

— Was Never So Popular

DOVER, ENG. (AP) — The English channel is as popular now as the old swimming hole, despite choppy seas.

A young British girl failed by five miles in her attempt to make it across from France; a Swede was still in the water in a similar attempt, and three other persons were poised on the English coast waiting to take the plunge.

In addition, six Egyptians set off for France in a motorboat, determined to swim back across to Folkestone, Eng. And two English swimmers, Doris Fell, and Phil Rising, 41, a Yorkshireman, said they would have a try at the chilly channel the same time as the Egyptians.

Kathleen Mayoh, 18, British factory worker, was pulled from the water by her parents after she had swum about 16 miles in 15 hours and 20 minutes from Cap Gris Nez, France. Her parents said she was too tired and the seas too rough. Kathleen herself insisted on continuing, pulling away from her parents' small boat. However, they caught up with her and pulled her in.

Lars Warle, 31, a bank clerk from Karlskrona, Sweden, was unreported somewhere in the channel Friday night. He had left Cap Gris Nez several minutes before the Mayoh girl.

The others waiting beside a rough channel for the weather to improve were Elna Anderson of Denmark; Ned Barrie, a Scottish science teacher, and Philip Mickman, 20, an Englishman.

The only previous attempt this season to swim the channel was by Greek army Maj. Jason Zirganos July 15. Trying the more arduous swim from England to France, he gave up to cold water and an adverse tide when only a mile from his goal, Cap Gris Nez.

Toledo Cage-Fixing Broadens

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A fourth Toledo university player and a freshman student who acted as a "contact man" for fixers were implicated in the widening college basketball scandals Friday by Toledo university president Asa S. Knowles.

Knowles informed district attorney Frank Hogan of New York that Jack Feeman, a sophomore forward from Akron, and three other players who were implicated on Wednesday in another fix accepted a total of $4,000 in bribes to rig the outcome of games against Bowling Green and Xavier last January.

Knowles later disclosed that Joe Massa, a freshman from Brooklyn, had acted as a contact man in the fixes, along with Bill Walker, one of the first three Toledo players who admitted taking bribes earlier this week. Walker, Carlo Muzi and Bob McDonald were charged with accepting a total of $1,750 to "dump" a game against Niagara university, Dec. 14, 1950.

Knowles said after lengthy meetings Friday with Feeman, Muzi and McDonald that they had named Walker and Massa as contact men in the Bowling Green and Xavier fixes. Toledo lost to Bowling Green, 66-59, on Jan. 11, and to Xavier, 79-59, Jan. 30.

The three told the athletic board that they had been paid $500 each for fixing the Toledo-Bowling Green game in Toledo and the Xavier game in Cincinnati," Knowles said.

McDonald said that Feeman was in no way involved in the Niagara game fix, disclosed by Dist. Atty. Hogan in New York earlier this week.

Feeman almost ruined the rigging of the point score in the fixed game with Niagara. The six-foot, four-inch Akron forward connected for 26 points that night while three of the bribed players, Knowles said, desperately tried to lose the ball away.

Three minutes before the end of that game, Toledo led Niagara by 17 points. Hogan said Walker, McDonald and Muzi, already named as having accepted bribes, managed to lose the ball often enough and Toledo won, 75-70.

Knowles said the four Toledo players tried to win both the Bowling Green and Toledo games by only a few points but they wound up actually losing both games.

Knowles said that Massa and Walker had brought two men to Walker's home here where they met Muzi, McDonald and Feeman the day before the Bowling Green game.

"After that, all arrangements were relayed to other players through Walker... (who) delivered $500 to each of them after each game," Knowles revealed.

"The players said they did not believe the men they met at Walker's house were confederates of Eli Kaye (alias Eli Klukofski), the man who had been named as the fixer of the Niagara game," Knowles said.

After the meeting, Knowles said the athletic board of control re-affirmed its decision of Thursday to continue basketball as a major sport, although he added that the university "would continue to keep in close touch with the situation."

To date 31 players from six major college basketball teams have been implicated in a tidal wave of more than 30 "dumped" games. Where it will stop not even Hogan will say. The probe is continuing.

White Sox Lose to Rain, Yankees

Yanks 3, Chisox 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Rain washed out a three-run Chicago rally in the ninth inning Friday night, and saved a 3-1 victory for the New York Yankees as the score reverted to eight complete innings. Thundershowers twice interrupted play in the ninth and the game finally was called after a one-hour, two-minute wait because of the unplayable condition of the field.

Tough luck Chicago, losing seven of its last eight, seemed to have pulled this one out of the bag with Bert Haas' two-run pinch single off Jack Kramer in the ninth.

The White Sox had the bases loaded with only one out and manager Casey Stengel was about to bring in Ed Lopat, his fifth pitcher, when the final deluge fell.

The 50,125 fans who braved frequent showers never will forget that stormy ninth that was enveloped by protests from both managers.

Stengel raised violent objections to umpire Bill McGowan's abrupt dismissal of third baseman Gil McDougald in the ninth. The Yankee rookie came in to talk with Tom Morgan and McGowan promptly waved McDougald away and out of the ball game, apparently for delaying the game. Stengel informed the press box he was playing under protest.

A few minutes later, after Baker singled home pinch runner Joe DeMaestri to make it 3-2, the first hard storm stopped the game. Manager Paul Richards of the White Sox protested because the umpire and ground crew were not prompt in covering the infield.

However, the game was resumed some 26 minutes later and continued for another 15 minutes. In that time Stengel had followed Morgan with Joe Ostrowski, Spec Shea, Jack Kramer and had Lopat ready.

Indians 3, Bosox 2

BOSTON (AP) — Two homers Ray Boone and another by Al Rosen Friday enabled the Cleveland Indians to top the Red Sox, 3-2, and pull into a second place bid with the Boston club. Bob Lemon held the Red Sox to five hits, including Charlie Maxwell's pinch-hit two run homer in the seventh inning.

Boone's four-baggers were consecutive affairs, off starter Ray Scarborough and Ellis Kinder in the seventh and ninth frames.

Rosen's four bagger, his 15th of the season, was blasted in the fifth inning after the Indians had missed scoring opportunities in three previous frames.

Lemon had the Red Sox under a firm check until Clyde Vollmer stroked his first and only hit while leading off for the Red Sox in the seventh as they trailed, 2-0. Maxwell then poled a 400-foot drive into the right field bull pen to deadlock matters.

In the ninth, after Billy Goodman had drawn Lemon's fifth and last base on balls, the packed 34,298 crowd pleaded with Vollmer to lash another of his game winning blows.

Nats 7, Browns 0

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conrado Marrero held the St. Louis Browns to eight scattered hits and pitched Washington to a 7-0 victory Friday for his tenth win. Mickey Vernon led the Senators' 10-hit attack on Jim McDonald, Jim Suchecki and Bob Hogue with two doubles and a triple.

Marrero permitted only two Browns to reach second base and neither reached third. He walked none and struck out three.

Gil Coan crashed a triple off the rightfield wall in the first inning and scored on Irv Noren's single. Washington lifted its lead to 2-0 in the fourth when Mickey Vernon doubled, took third on a passed ball and scored on Sam Mele's infield out.

Don Mueller powered the New York attack with two triples. Big Ted Kluszewski homered with one on for the Reds.

Jim Hearn gained credit for his ninth triumph, although wildness finally forced his removal in the seventh frame. Howie Fox was charged with his sixth defeat against a like number of wins.

Staats, Johnstone In Women's Golf Final

MASON CITY (AP) — Mrs. H. R. Staats of Davenport and Mrs. Les Johnstone of Mason City, the early favorites, battled their way into the finals of the Iowa State Women's golf tournament Friday.

The two finalists will go 36 holes today.

Mrs. Staats, 1949 State Women's champion, defeated Lee McFarland, Iowa State college co-ed, 3 and 2 in one of the semi-final matches.

Mrs. Johnstone, the medalist of this year's tourney and the 1941 state titleholder, eliminated Corky Major of Ottumwa 3 and 1.

Mrs. Johnstone continued her sub-par mastery of the Mason City course. She went out in 37, under par and was two under women's par when the match ended on the 17th hole. Mrs. Johnstone now stands two under par for 78 holes played.

On two occasions Friday Mrs. Johnstone was shooting for eagles but an erring putter kept her from cashing in. On the 486-yard 6th hole she was on the green in two but needed three putts. Again on the 479-yard 10th she was on in two but missed an eight-foot putt and took a birdie four.

"Landscape Composition" - Lorrain

Fine Arts Buys 3 Drawings For Collection

Three drawings from the "Six Centuries of Master Drawings" exhibition have been purchased for the SUI permanent collection. Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of the fine arts school announced Friday.

The drawings, valued at $500 are "Portrait of a Young Man" by Giovanni Battista Franco, "Bearded Figures" by Giorgio Vasari, and "Landscape Composition" by Claude Lorrain.

Harper said members of the fine arts faculty collaborated with him on deciding which pictures to purchase.

The Franco drawing is a pen and ink composition. The peculiar graphic manner suggests the possibility that this drawing prepared in an engraving. It was purchased from Durlacher Bros. in New York city.

Franco is a well known historical painter and etcher. He is considered one of the ablest designers of the sixteenth century. There are 108 known etchings by him.

"Bearded Figures" by Vasari is a composition of crayon, pen and brown wash. It also was purchased from Durlacher Bros.

Vasari is a painter, architect, and writer of sixteenth century Italy. He gained fame from his book, "Lives of the Most Eminent Painters, Sculptors, and Architects."

"Portrait of a Young Man" - Franco

The drawing by Lorrain is a pen, brush and ink work. "Landscape Composition" was purchased from H. M. Calmann of London.

Lorrain's real name is Claude Gellee. He is a well known French landscape painter and etcher of the seventeenth-century.

SUI Group to Judge Wisconsin Weeklies

Four faculty members of the SUI school of journalism will judge the 1951 All Wisconsin State Fair Better Weekly Newspaper contest.

The judges are Charles Barnum, assistant publisher of The Daily Iowan; James Morrison, head of the newspaper production laboratory; Henry Africa, lecturer in newspaper production, and William McBride, editor of the Staff magazine and instructor in magazine production.

Barnum will pick the best local news story and the best local farm story; Africa and Morrison will choose three papers in each of three circulation groups for their general excellence, and McBride will select the best locally written column.

Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the SUI school of journalism, was asked to name the judges for the Wisconsin Press association, sponsors of the contest.

Contest winners will be announced at the Wisconsin State Fair Press day program in Madison, Wis., Aug. 24.

'Battle Royal' Seen In Judgeship Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle royal which may become historic is in prospect as the result of a decision Friday by Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) to oppose confirmation of two of President Truman's nominees to the federal bench.

Douglas invoked the unwritten "personally obnoxious" rule in a statement saying he would fight the nominations of two men for district judgeships in northern Illinois.

Under the law, the President nominates, but his selections must be with the "advice and consent" of the senate. And when a senator from a nominee's home state declares the nomination personally obnoxious, the senate rarely votes for confirmation.

Douglas' decision underscored an apparent coolness that has developed lately between the President and the freshman legislator, who himself is sometimes mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee.

But in his statement the senator said he was "loathe to become engaged in a struggle with the President, for whom I have a genuine respect and who, in most major matters is, in my judgment, doing well."

Douglas said his opposition to the nominations of Joseph J. Drucker and Cornelius J. Harrington had been strengthened by Bar association polls.

He took the unusual course of asking the Chicago and Cook county bar groups to poll their members on the relative qualification of Drucker and Benjamin P. Epstein, and upon Harrington and William H. King Jr.

Douglas had recommended Epstein and King about six months before the other nominations went to the senate July 13. He said Mr. Truman did not consult him on the judgeship.

Douglas said Epstein received 3,656 votes to Drucker's 553 in the Chicago Bar association poll, and King received 3,003 against Harrington's 1,310. He added that a poll by the Illinois association of its northern state members showed similar preferences for his choices.

"I can only conclude," Douglas said regarding the polls, "that there is every presumption that I was correct in my judgment as to the relative qualifications of these men."

"I regard the methods and manner by which the appointments were made and the effect of these nominations as obviously contrary to the public interest and in that sense personally obnoxious to me as a believer in good government."

Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) of the judiciary committee has said he will hold public hearings on the nominations, but in the usual way without considering the favorable votes cast for King and Epstein.

The senate last year turned down two of the President's judgeship nominations after senators from the interested states objected. These were Carroll O. Switzer for the southern district of Iowa, fought by Senator Gillette (D-Ia.) and M. Neil Andrews for the northern district of Georgia, opposed by Senators George and Russell, Georgia Democrats.

Iowa Democrats Ask Legislature Session On Flood Controls

DES MOINES (AP) — Democrats of the 1951 Iowa legislature proposed Friday that Gov. William S. Beardsley call a special session of the legislature to consider flood control measures.

The 12 Democrats adopted a resolution asking for the special session as they met with Jake More, Democratic state central committee chairman.

The resolution asserted that the Iowa natural resources commission created in 1949 by a Republican legislature for the purpose of sabotaging efforts to build flood control reservoirs in the river valleys of the state.

Other resolutions accused Republican governors of midwest states of "hindering and sabotaging flood control plans," and asked investigation of Iowa income taxes which go unpaid.

A flood resolution condemned "present and past Republican governors of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota for being dilatory in putting flood control measures into effect."

The resolution said the Republican governors "hindered and sabotaged flood control plans" in the midwest.

Another resolution called on Beardsley to order the state tax commission to determine how much Iowa is losing because of unpaid income taxes. It asked Beardsley to order tax commission chairman Ray Johnson to investigate the income tax collections and determine "how many hundreds of thousands of dollars in Iowa income tax is not being paid."

The resolution also asked a report on the operation of the tax commission.

The meeting was the second of the Democratic legislators since the legislative session ended. More said a third meeting would be held on State day during the Iowa State fair in August.

Conferees Approve Increase in Interior Department Grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — House conferees on an interior department appropriation bill have agreed to go along with most of a $21 million boost voted by the senate in the half billion dollars measure, it was learned today.

The senate-house conference committee completed adjustment of the differences between house and senate versions of the measure, but declined to release details or totals.

However, house members said many of the senate increases were accepted, and in other cases "we split the difference." Most of the senate increases were for western water power projects.

The senate voted $518 million for the department while the house earlier voted to set the figure at $497 million.

The conference report will be filed formally on Monday with the house scheduled to vote on it first. Some of the house conferees thought the report was so much more liberal than the house version of the bill that a floor fight would be provoked.

'Shipwreck' Hits Bachelors, Girls In Experiment

MOUNDSVILLE, W. VA. (AP) — Four young experimenters in social conduct fished their belongings from the Ohio river Friday, still bent on floating down to New Orleans.

They want to learn what happens to mind and manners when two bachelors and two women have to live cooped up together for several weeks on a 12 by 20-foot raft.

"It was sad when the great ship went down," they sang, from a ballad about the sinking of the "Titanic."

Their great ship, called "Lethargia," was upside down near the West Virginia shore at Round Bottom, just downstream from Moundsville.

"Lethargia" capsized Thursday after hitching with a big river tug. The tug was too fast. It swamped the raft, built on oil drums with a canvas covered cabin about eight feet square.

Mary Ellen McGrady, a 24-year-old sociology student at the University of Michigan, and Geraldine Garcia, 23-year-old artist from Boston, managed to scramble aboard the tug.

Milton Borden, 30, from New Bedford, Mass., swam to the tug. Don Brown, 24-year-old Michigan student from Detroit, went down for a long time. But he came up, grabbed an oar and swam to the West Virginia shore.

Mary Ellen is leader of the expedition, which set out from New Kensington, Pa. She planned to take notes of the adjustments the four make in order to get along together in close confinement.

"Silly," she called complaints about unmarried men and women riding together on the raft. All have "other romantic interests," she explained.

Borden said the cabin will have to be unbolted before the "Lethargia" can be turned right side up again.

Mary Ellen fished Brown's binoculars from the wreckage. Miss Garcia is looking for her movie camera.

They recovered their guitar.

Boy, 14, Drowns At Charles City

CHARLES CITY (AP) — Donald House, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glynn House of Davenport, drowned Friday while swimming in the Cedar river at the west edge of Charles City. The House family formerly lived here.

The youth's companion, Henry Lum, 35, of Honolulu, Hawaii, was rescued. Lum is a former student at a Charles City linotype school.

After the two had been swimming for a while, House told Lum he was tiring out. Lum advised the youth to turn over on his back and float. At that point the youth called to Mary Jensen, 17, of Floyd, on the river bank to bring out a life jacket.

She took one to Lum, but he was unable to hold the youth up and get the jacket on him. Lum sank beneath the water. Mrs. Jim Olson, who lives nearby, rowed out to Lum in a boat and rescued him.

Church School To Close Sunday

The Trinity Episcopal church school will close Sunday for the summer. Classes will resume on the third Sunday in September.

The Wednesday morning holy communion will be discontinued until the third Wednesday in September, according to the Rev. Harold McGee.

A program with games and refreshments will be given for the church school at 10:15 a.m. Sunday in the parish house.

Strike Threat Eases For Ford Company As Workers Vote

DETROIT (AP) — Threat of a nationwide Ford Motor company shutdown was eased at least temporarily late Friday as UAW-CIO workers at the company's small but important supplier plant at Monroe, Mich., voted to end a wildcat walkout.

The 1,700 Monroe employees agreed to return after International UAW representatives met with the membership of Local 723 at Monroe.

Ken Bannon, national director of the UAW's Ford department advised the workers to "follow contract procedure." Bannon said the men would return at midnight Sunday. They walked out Thursday after the company disciplined a worker.

A Local 723 spokesman said a meeting would be held Sunday to poll the membership on whether a strike should be called a week later.

Earlier, Ford said continued interruption of operations at the Monroe plant, key supplier of wheels, would force a shutdown of the company's plants across the nation. The company said there were five earlier walkouts there.

Elsewhere, the automotive production outlook appeared bleak. Some 40,000 auto workers in the Detroit area remained idle because of production rate disputes and shortages of critical materials.

More will join the list of idle today when General Motors begins a series of staggered shutdowns.

WSUI to Present Speech-Handicapped

Nine speech-handicapped youngsters attending the SUI summer speech clinic will be featured in a 15-minute broadcast over radio station WSUI at 11:15 a.m. Monday.

Members of the group represent all types of speech handicaps treated at the clinic this summer. In conversations between them and their clinicians they will tell of the work they have been doing in the clinic, their recreational program and their handicaps.

Those participating will be Betty Lowe, daughter of John Lowe, R.R. 2, Marion; Linda Gibbs, daughter of George Gibbs, Nevada; Mary Pautsch, daughter of Mrs. Ida Pautsch, Des Moines; Dora and Nora Saner, daughters of Jack Saner, R.R. 1, Eldon; Arthur Carlson, son of James Carlson, Klemme; Duane Barker, son of Arnold J. Barker, Keosauqua; Paul Folsom, son of Mrs. and Robert Folsom, Ogilvie, Minn.; Mrs. Jesse Smith, R.R. 1, Tama.

S. N. Nelson to Direct 1952 Chest Drive

S. N. Nelson, Iowa City real estate agent, Friday was appointed chairman of the 1952 Community Chest campaign.

Nelson will make division chairman appointments within the next week, Burl E. Vandecar, president of the Community Chest board said.

The 1952 campaign will be conducted sometime in October to correspond with the national Community Chest drive.

Goal for the drive will be $31,126.59. This figure was set at a budget meeting July 10. Eight Iowa City organizations and activities will receive benefits from the drive.

Iowa City Woman Fined $100 on Assault Charge

Mrs. Estella Bethouille, Iowa City, was fined $100 in justice of the peace court Thursday on a charge of assault and battery.

J. Newman Toomey suspended the fine.

The charge was brought by Mrs. Ethel Dvorsky, Iowa City. The case was transferred from the police court to Toomey's court.

Ingrid, 12-Year-Old Daughter Reunited Briefly in England

LONDON (AP) — Ingrid Bergman slipped into Britain from Italy for a quiet reunion with her 12-year-old daughter Jenny Ann, the child disclosed Friday.

"I saw mummy and spent several hours with her at her private home," Jenny Ann told reporters. "It was wonderful to see her again."

The actress' former husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom of Hollywood, confirmed the meeting as he and Jenny Ann took off for Sweden.

Miss Bergman had not seen Jenny Ann since 1949, the year she went to Italy to make a movie.

Gen. Julius Klein, MacArthur Supporter, Loses Command

CHICAGO (AP) — Brig. Gen. Julius Klein, who publicly supported Gen. Douglas MacArthur and feuded with his Illinois national guard superiors over the former Far Eastern commander's visit here, was notified Friday that he will lose his command.

Maj. Gen. George F. Ferry, deputy commander of the state guard, said Klein will be without a command as of Aug. 1, because federal recognition has been withdrawn from Klein's 109th anti-aircraft brigade.

Ferry said he received orders from Washington, but denied that there was any "ulterior motive" in federal deactivation of the brigade.

He said that the three gun batteries of the brigade have come into national service, leaving Klein and a "skeleton" headquarters staff.

"It's a simple matter of military expediency," Ferry said. He admitted, however, that the net effect was to leave Klein without a command.

Klein, who heads a public relations firm in private life, issued a blistering statement that he was a victim of "political" generals who "conspired to rob me of my command."

"When General MacArthur was fired, there was nothing he could do about it," Klein declared. "I have been fired, and there is nothing I can do about it, other than to state what a dastardly trick it is."

Klein said he would not resign and would not retire, but would request transfer to inactive status.

He engaged in a heated controversy with Ferry and Maj. Gen. Harry L. Bolen, state guard commander, after MacArthur's visit to Chicago last May.

Klein complained because Ferry selected another guard outfit to fire a salute for the general. He declared that the state officials were trying to "gag" him for giving public support to MacArthur in the latter's fight with the administration.

Klein was rebuked by Bolen and the major eventually reached Gen. Adlai Stevenson, who also told Klein his actions were not satisfactory.

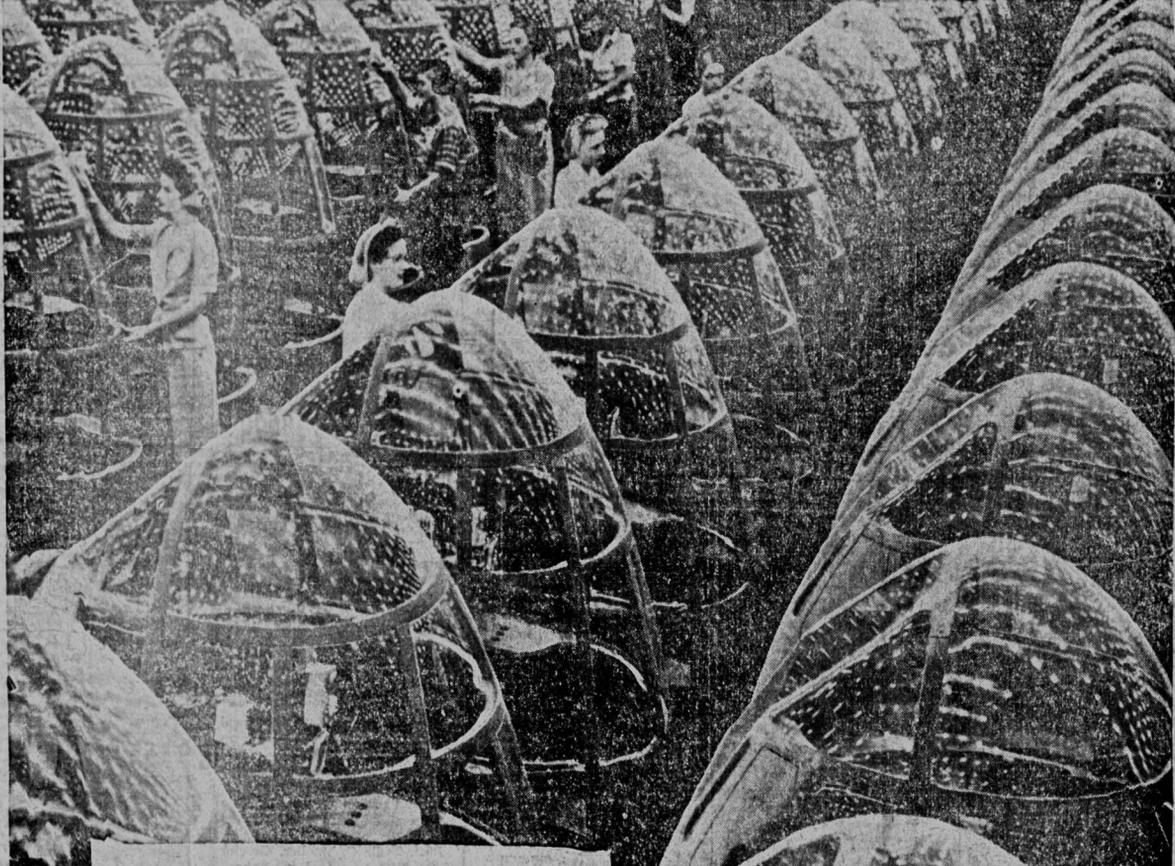

Ferry said the Klein can go on the inactive list, or resign.

"If he goes on the inactive list, it may be a table of organization post requiring a brigadier general will open up in the future," Ferry said.

The deputy commander said the few men remaining in the anti-aircraft brigade will be transferred to other outfits "and the 109th as a unit won't exist anymore."

KEOKUK GIRL DROWNS

KEOKUK (AP)—Geraldine Boyle, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Boyle of Keokuk, drowned Friday while swimming in Lake Keokuk.

Defense is your job, too!

Reflecting brilliant factory lights like a myriad glimmering stars, these masterpieces of American industrial design are in reality plastic plane noses awaiting inspection. They will play an important part in America's preparedness program; they are the tools of the U. S. Air Force in its job of defending you.

Defense is your job, too. And one of the best ways you can carry out your part is by making your family and your country economically strong.
