Insurance Men In 35 States Plan to Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—The men who come around to collect for the Prudential Insurance Co. —some 15,000 of them—are set to strike today in 35 states including Iowa.

"There is no piece of Prudential property in the 35 states that will not be picketed," said New York's strike leader, Oscar D'Adolf.

However, picketing is not expected to begin before Monday.

The agents, scattered from the gulf of Mexico to Canada and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, want more money.

Their AFL insurance agents union is demanding that present base pay of $35 a week be raised to $55. But the company said they already average more than $99 a week.

Prudential's president, Carrol M. Shanks, said the firm has 28 million policy holders. But he added that in case of a strike they can mail in their payments or bring them into a Prudential office.

Federal Mediator Thomas G. Dougherty was still trying Friday to bring a truce in the deadlocked negotiations.

Shanks said it would cost Prudential $35 million a year to meet the union demands. In all, Prudential has about 18,700 agents and the insurance executive said he thought many of them would refuse to strike.

The strike deadline in Colorado is not until Dec. 8 because of a state "cooling off" law that does not permit strikes until a certain time has elapsed.

States where the strike is set for today are Alabama, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massechusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio (Toledo only), Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Maine, and the District of Columbia.

Only 1 Survives After Yacht Sinks Off Carolina Coast

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP) — Rescuers Friday found the sole survivor of a yachting disaster, which took eight lives, floating in a lifeboat with two bodies and a dying 12-year-old boy.

A navy minesweeper found Gustav Emmanuel Frazier drifting in the tiny lifeboat. Also alive at the time was Samuel Alfred Luttrell III, son of socially prominent Washington, D. C., yachtsman. But young Luttrell died shortly after being taken aboard the rescue vessel.

Frazier, the engineer of the yacht Amberthe, said the boy's family — Samuel Alfred Luttrell Jr., 40, his wife, Kathleen and young Luttrell — and five others got safely into the lifeboat when the yacht foundered on Monday, but all died waiting rescue except him and the boy.

Frazier, suffering from starvation and exhaustion, said the bodies of four persons who died in the boat were thrown overboard. The navigator of the yacht jumped overboard a night or two ago, he didn't remember just when, Frazier said.

The navy said the dead apparently were victims of exposure, thirst and hunger. They had taken to the lifeboat without any water or other porvisions.

City Bus Driver Hurt When Car Rams Bus

Charles Gibb, 1823 C st., city bus driver, was injured Friday night when the bus he was driving was struck broadside by a car at the intersection of Burlington and Gilbert sts.

Police charged Malcome Zunk, 21, Colorado Springs, Colo., with failing to stop for a red light causing the accident. Police said Zunk's car passed another car which had stopped for a red light on Burlington st. and skidded into the bus which pulled onto Burlington from Gilbert st. Witnesses told police the bus had started across Burlington st. after receiving a green traffic signal.

Mercy hospital officials said Gibb suffered several possible rib fractures when he was thrown against the side of the bus following the collision. He was able to back the bus to the curb, however, before police arrived. There were no passengers on the bus at the time of the accident.

Detroit Firm Makes $3 Million Profit on Surplus Nuts, Bolts

DETROIT (AP)—A Detroit firm made a $3 million profit by buying government surplus nuts and bolts and re-selling them across the country, a senate subcommittee investigating the gray market in steel learned Friday.

Eugene Zack, vice-president of the M. V. Zack campany, told Sen. Blair Moody (D.-Mich.), who heads the Senate small business committee, that his father's company paid $22.50 a ton for 100,000 tons of nuts and bolts and resold them to manufacturers and metal dealers at greatly-increased prices.

When Moody asked the witness if he would be surprised to learn that he made $3 million on the deal, Zack replied with a smile: "No, not at all."

Much of the materials, purchased from government warehouses in California, consisted of nuts and bolts for Civil War ordnance equipment.

Zack said some of the nuts were so large that a railroad flat car could carry only three of them. No one knew what they were for, he said.

Sen. Homer Ferguson (R.-Mich.) sat in on Friday's closing hearing and injected his comments as numerous cases of shady goings-on in the steel industry were brought to light.

Although re-selling steel at big profits up until this time has not been illegal, Ferguson said the gray market operations were "treasonable."

"Whatever gives aid and comfort to the enemy is treason," he said.

The Republican senator accused gray market operators of "clogging up the country's materials" and tying up supplies so that businessmen must "come to you people to get them at any price, or shut down factories and throw thousands of persons out of work."

Post Game Party

A post ballgame party will be held at Iowa Memorial Union tonight after the game until 12 p.m. Bill Meardon's band will play in the main lounge until midnight. All SUI students are invited to attend.

10 Finalists Picked For Cadet Colonel

Ten SUI senior girls have been selected as candidates for honorary cadet colonel to reign over the Military ball Feb. 25.

A faculty committee chose the finalists from a list of 22 presented by women's housing units. Judging was on the basis of scholarship, activities and appearance.

The candidates will be guests of ROTC seniors at an after-dinner coffee next week, when the honorary cadet colonel and her four aides will be selected.

The candidates are:

Anne Gilson, Kirkwood, Mo.; Florence Schuck, West Point; Charlotte Hess, June Markham, and Ellen Sideman, all of Des Moines; Helen Hays, Iowa City; Marianne Craft, Hudson; Joyce Horton, Osage; Ruth Swanson, Red Oak, and Mona McCormick, Lakewood, O. All are in the college of liberal arts except Miss Hess, who is in nursing.

Churchill Honored On 77th Birthday

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary Friday by slicing into a big cake shaped like one of his famous flat-top derbies.

The derby-shaped cake was decorated with more than 200 "feathers" of icing—one "feather" for each of the many honors Churchill has received. The biggest "feather" of all was marked "Clementine" for Churchill's wife.

Mrs. Churchill, of whom her husband once said, "I was married and lived happily ever after," posed for a birthday picture holding hands with him. They have been married 43 years.

Disarmament Talks Agreed to by Russia

PARIS (AP) — Russia agreed in the United Nations Friday to take part in private disarmament talks with the Western powers and the first Big Four session was scheduled for this morning.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky announced Russia's decision in the main political committee of the general assembly.

"We are prepared to persevere in our efforts and take part in the proceedings of the subcommittee," he said. "The Soviet Union is convinced that its proposals are capable of facilitating a successful conclusion of the problems before us and slaking the thirst of the peoples of the world for peace everywhere."

Vishinsky, Philip Jessup of the United States, Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Jules Moch of France will get together shortly before noon today for their first meeting, informed sources said. They will meet under the chairmanship of Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, president of the general assembly.

Vishinsky, chief of the Soviet delegation, thus agreed to sit down with Jessup, to whom he once referred as "a second rate" delegate, and with subordinate representatives of Britain and France.

The Big Four representatives empowered to range over the whole field of disarmament problems, was instructed by the political committee to report back by December 10. If progress has been made, the "subcommittee" would be instructed to continue its discussions, but such progress was believed doubtful in view of major differences between the disarmament plans of Russia and the West.

Vishinsky announced Russia's agreement to a resolution proposed by Pakistan, Syria and Iraq which reflected the demand of small nations for a Big Four meeting which might help break the East-West deadlock.

Fog-Bound Highways Bring Death, Injuries; More Fog Predicted

Temperatures up in the 50's are expected again today with a second blanket of fog covering this area and much of the state through the forenoon.

Fog-bound highways brought death Friday to at least one person in the state, injury to several others and damage to 10 vehicles in three accidents, each involving a school bus.

The Des Moines weather bureau issued a late Friday afternoon warning to motorists that dense fog could be expected this morning on most highways, especially in central Iowa.

At Iowa City the murky weather cut visibility to zero, but by noon it cleared sufficiently to permit late United airlines flights to operate on schedule.

Temperatures 10 degrees above normal are expected to last until Monday. Normal highs for this time of year range from 37 to 41, with normal lows of 20 to 30.

Tuesday and Wednesday a temperature drop is forecast, with an average fall of two-tenths to one-half inch of rain or snow.

'Terry' Finds Door —

'Stagedoor' Is Lifelike

— To Theater Success

"Stagedoor" which opened last night at the University theater, is an inspiring play because its characters depict youth with all their faults, virtues, hopes and fears.

About 350 people saw the opening night performance.

The story, written by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman, takes place in a rooming house for girls trying to make theatrical careers. Their problem is to find the "stagedoor" to a career.

The play centers around Terry Randall, played by Rosemary Wayland. Terry is a girl that wins the hearts of all who know her, including the audience. She has talent to be an actress but somehow seems always to be defeated in her climb to the theater's heights. She is very human because se also has faults.

The girls that surround Terry could have been lifted out of Currier. The actions and speeches are ones used by girls in real life.

There is Bernice Niemeyer (Donna Anfinson) who is unwillign to work hard for a career; Kaye Hamilton (Peggy Madden) who runs to the boarding house to escape her real life and finally commits suicide.

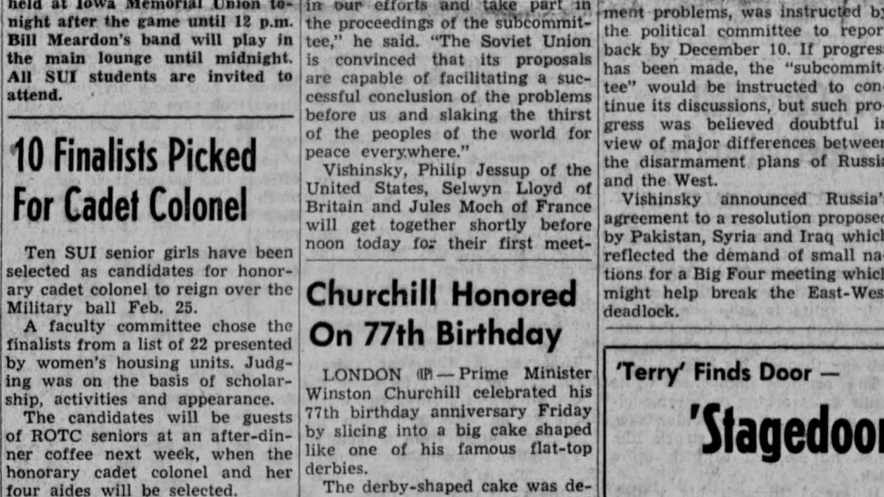
Jean Maitland (Sonya Lee Goering), the ultra sophisticated girl that goes to Hollywood because its easier; Mrs. Orcutt (Marilyn Hart), the rooming house proprietor who failed to make the stage in her youth, and many other girls who blend into the background just as some do in real life.

The male leads in the cast depict Terry's real problem to her. Keith Burges (Jerome Silberman) first wins her with his will to present the unsung working man to the world but finally turns to Hollywood, the easiest way.

David Kingsley (David Byrd), a Hollywood hireling, finally supports Terry's belief that the only way to be an actress is by working her way up on the stage.

The set is very unusual. It is a cut-away-house. It's arranged so the audience sees the outside door entering the house, living room interior, staricase, and an upstairs bedroom.

'Stage Door' Opens at University Theater



(Daily Iowan Photo.)

IN THIS SCENE FROM "STAGE DOOR," the University Theater's current production which is now playing at the theater, Jean Maitland, played by Sonya Goering, informs her actress friends that she has just made a date with David Kingsley, a successful Hollywood producer, with the possibility of a future contract. Those in the picture are (left to right) Marge Metier, A1, Spencer; Jayne Stewart, A1, Fairfield; Jo Anne Sabaath, A2, Reno, Nevada; Sonya Goering, A2, Walcott; and Donna Anfinson, A2, Nevada. Performances will be given through Dec. 8 beginning every night except Sunday at 8 p.m.

White House Releases Ridgway's Secret Order

U.S. Jets Bag 10 Red Planes In Single Fight

SEOUL, Korea (SATURDAY) (AP)— U.S. Sabre jets pounced on 46 Red planes Friday near the Manchurian border and shot down 10 in flames for the biggest single bag of positive kills in the Korean war.

Significantly, six of the destroyed Red planes were two-engined bombers and three were single-engined fighter-bombers. Heretofore Red bombers over Korea have been notably scarce. The tenth victim was a MIG jet.

The victorious American pilots, including a new jet ace, said they turned the battle into a "rat race," filling the skies with burning Communist planes.

Three more Red planes were damaged. The U.S. fifth air force said all the 31 Sabres involved returned safely.

There have been bigger claims of Red planes probably destroyed in a single action but never a positive bag of 10.

The Sabres surprised a flight of 30 slower, propeller-driven Red bombers and fighter-bombers escorted by 16 MIG-15 jets.

In three other fights Friday, Allied planes probably destroyed one Red plane and damaged another as the air force dominated the otherwise relatively quiet Korean war.

Winnie Ruth Judd Escapes from Asylum

PHOENIX, ARIZ. (AP) — Trunk murderess Winnie Ruth Judd, the Tiger Woman of 20 years ago, continued to elude capture Friday after a carefully planned break from the state insane asylum here Thursday night.

Apparently remembering bloodhounds had been used when she fled the institution on three previous occasions, Mrs. Judd carefully laundered all of her clothing and bedding to prevent the dogs from getting a scent.

Then she pried through a screen window, slipped down a ladder improvised from rags, yarn and an electric iron cord and disappeared. Hospital officials believe she went over the 9-foot fence as some of her cosmetics were found nearby.

Mrs. Judd shot two girl friends in 1931. She dismembered the bodies and sent them to Los Angeles in a trunk and a suitcase. She was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang. Less than 72 hours before her scheduled execution she was adjudged insane and transferred to the Arizona State hospital here.

Allies, Reds Meet In Another Effort To Reach Agreement

MUNSAN, Korea (Saturday) (AP) —Allied and Red truce negotiators met in Panmunjom today in another effort to reach agreement on how to supervise the armistice, if one is signed.

The session began about 11 a.m. (8 p.m. CST, Friday).

Vice. Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief Allied delegate, assured the Communists this morning that the UN has no desire to hamper the development of North Korean industry during the armistice but would insist on a ban on the development of airfields.

The disclosure came during a 15-minute break in the morning talks which was requested by the Reds to consider the Allied statement.

Joy made his clarifying statement in refutation to Communist Gen. Nam Il's charge yesterday that the Allies intended to "keep North Korea in a perpetual state of ruin" during the armistice.

Air Force Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, official UN spokesman, said Joy made it clear that "as far as the rehabilitation of North Korea is concerned, the Allied proposal does not apply to anything other than airfields and associated facilities." Nuckols said "associated facilities" include gasoline storage pumps, rail spurs, hangars and extension of runways themselves.

He explained that the Allied proposal does not put any ban on the reconstruction of railroads, power plants, telephone and telegraph facilities, port facilities, cities, towns, villages, and factories that are not completely devoted to war production.

West Halts Trade With Red Germany

BERLIN, Saturday (AP)—Western officials clamped a total embargo on shipments to Red Germany today in a new effort to force the Communists to end their "Little Blockade" of western Berlin.

All legal trade between east and west Germany halted at midnight Friday night, when export permits granted during the last two months expired.

The permits were granted after Communist promises in September made it appear that normal trade relations could be resumed. West German officials said no new export permits will be issued until the Reds end their restrictions on Berlin trade.

Report Shows No Cease-Fire Order Given

KEY WEST, FLA. (AP)— President Truman went into a huddle Friday with his top intelligence advisor after making public the hitherto secret instructions to United Nations forces to keep on fighting in Korea until the signing of an armistice agreement.

Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, director of the Central Intelligence agency, flew down from Washington to report on developments on the international front.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short read from a report made to the President Wednesday by Gen. John E. Hull, vice chief of staff of the army, based on cables from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway:

"On November 27 the Eighth army issued a secret letter of instructions to subordinate commands which contained the following statement:

"Steps will be initiated to insure that every United States, United Nations and Republic of Korea soldier is fully cognizant that hostilities will continue until the signing of the armistice agreement."

"The United States corps and the First ROK corps have issued orders containing similar instructions. The commanding general, Eighth army reports that no instructions have been issued from the Eighth army or any of his corps headquarters as far as he knows to the effect that there is any such cease fire at this time. The reports in question apparently emanated from battalion, or company or possible platoon level."

Short took issue again with an Associated Press dispatch from Seoul, Korea, reporting Wednesday that orders from the highest source, possibly the White House, brought ground fighting to a complete, if temporary halt, on that day.

Short said President Truman had directed the declassification of General Hull's report to refute the AP story. He challenged both the statement that ground fighting had been brought to a halt Wednesday and that any high source had issued such an order.

'Holiday Inn' Dance With Tex Beneke Attracts 650 Students

More than 650 persons attended the "Holiday Inn" semi-formal dance at the Iowa Memorial Union Friday night, featuring the music of Tex Beneke and his orchestra.

The festive atmosphere, heightened by blazing fireplaces, provided realistic background for Beneke's easy-to-dance-to rhythms.

Beneke estimated this year's crowd a little smaller than any of his previous appearances at SUI. Although there may have been fewer there, the saxophone-playing bandleader added, they seemed to have been having just as good a time.

His saxophone seems older and more battered than any other instrument in the orchestra. Actually, he bought it even before he joined the Glenn Miller band and has used it exclusively ever since.

"A good sax is just like a good pipe," he explained, "it gets mellow with age. At least this one has. I just can't fel at home with another instrument.

The saxophone originally cost $200 and Beneke has already spent over $750 on repairs and refinishing.

Haste Makes Waste

There is an old axiom that reads, "Haste makes waste." Probably nowhere else is that warning as applicable as on America's death-stalked highways.

After conducting considerable research into the causes of automobile accidents, the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago reported that accidents could be reduced 90 per cent if drivers would only reduce their travel time 10 per cent.

Think of all the money that would NOT have been expended for repairs, the people who would NOT have been maimed, the people who would NOT have been killed if drivers would have driven 10 per cent slower.

Two drivers recently participated in a road test on a 295-mile stretch of highway in Kansas. Here are their performance figures under ordinary driving conditions:

	Top speed reached (m.p.h.)	Average speed	No. cars passed	Elapsed driving time
Driver A	65	46	126	6 hrs., 25 min.
Driver B	50	43	62	6 hrs., 50 min.

Driver A saved only 25 minutes in nearly 300 miles. He passed twice as many cars (each a potential accident), used 11 per cent more gasoline and 50 per cent more oil.

You be the judge. Was it worth it?

Prolong Millionth Death

One way in which the death of Mr. Million may be prolonged is by this country's drivers using every possible road courtesy in the books.

The millionth traffic fatality is due to happen during the worst season of the year. Driving conditions are at their worst because of the great quantity of snow and ice and the shortened days which bring a lot more night driving.

A periodic safety check to see that your car is in good running condition is a first prerequisite for safe driving.

In bad weather conditions getting to a place should be secondary and slow driving should become a necessity. Early darkness and early evening twilight cause vision to be very poor. A careful alert driver can be aware of these conditions.

A common courtesy that each driver owes the other is the dimming of the car lights as cars approach one another. Bright lights cause glare on the slick and icy pavement and hence increase the possibility for accidents.

There is no room for speedsters and young daredevils on our highways.

Iowa City's last traffic fatality was Feb. 19, 1951. Observe and obey all the courtesies of driving on our highways—and postpone the arrival of Mr. Million.

Interpreting the News —

New War Developments Lead to Nervousness

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press News analyst

The appearance of Russian-made bombers in Korea, snags in the truce talks at Panmunjom and heightened activity along the Communist supply lines from Manchuria has led to a new period of nervousness.

J. M. Roberts Jr.

President Truman says there is still the possibility, recognized since the beginning, that cease-fire negotiations started by the Reds are only a screen behind which they hope to get set for a new offensive.

It could be, however, that the Communists are merely doing what the Allies have been doing—putting on military threats to emphasize the need for agreement in the truce negotiations, hoping to wear down disagreement over the terms.

Appearance of Bombers

The appearance of 30 bombers over Korea probably has more serious significance than any of the other things. Snags in the truce talks are commonplace, and the Chinese may have gotten the idea from the American-made lull on the front that they would also have some immunity in moving up things of which their troops are always short. Dispatches also indicate that the high count of moving trucks may have been due to better-than-usual observation conditions rather than to an actual increase.

All Out War

If the Reds permit failure of the truce talks they are asking for all-out war to drive them from Korea.

But if they are preparing to inject a new factor into the air war, then they are asking for extension of the war beyond Korea, with all of its implications for the general peace of the world.

Bomb Bases

Word went out from the United States nearly a year ago, in such form that it obviously was designed to reach Russia and China, that if Communist air power were used against Allied troops or installations, retaliation would be carried beyond the Korean border to the bases from which such operations would have to be conducted.

The Communists have been busy lately trying to build air bases within Korea, possibly with the idea that by operating from them they could get away with it without extending the geographical limits of the war. That would seem to be a very doubtful premise and one which they should be wary of following too far.

CAMPUS POLL

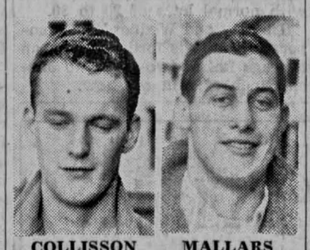
Question: How do you think traffic accidents can be minimized?



COLLISSON MALLARS

Dave Collisson, A2, Keokuk: "Have more auto safety checks and better highways."

Tom Mallars, A1, Ft. Dodge: "Make the requirements more rigid to get a driver's license."

HOLLINGSHEAD LARSON

Ann Hollingshead, N1, Albia: "Wider highways and better markings on the highways."

Dick Larson, University of Wisconsin student: "Highway speed regulations with highway notices and night and day limits. Also, special limits in urban areas, city approaches and highway villages."

KRALL WEIL

Al Krall, A2, Iowa City: "Less speeding and drinking and more parking—that way there will be fewer accidents."

Susanne Weil, A1, Chicago, Ill.: "If people would watch the stop signs and traffic signals, many accidents could be prevented."

Man Cut in Half Is Expected to Live

SANTA ROSA, CALIF. (AP) — A 42-year-old carpenter, cut almost in half by a handsaw Thursday, is expected to live.

Surgeons gave David Haun, 42, eight transfusions while desperately trying to stop the loss of blood from wounds when the saw caught him at hip level and ripped halfway through his body.

The accident happened while Haun was working on a remodeling job here. The circular saw, attached to a boom, struck him when he stopped to pick up a stick.

It sawed through his wallet, cut through a bone near the base of his spine and tore into his intestines.

BERLIN — KREMLIN

RED GERMANY — RED G.H.Q. MOSCOW

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of 12 articles, telling starkly and bluntly the truth of life for a Russian soldier in the Soviet-controlled zone of Germany, as told by Maj. Gregory Klimov, a former member of the Russian general staff in Germany. Disgusted with the system under which he lived, Major Klimov fled to the western (Allied-occupied) zone of Germany. Here is his own story, told for the first time.)

By MAJ. GREGORY KLIMOV
Formerly of the Russian General Staff in Germany

BERLIN — Germany was thoroughly demolished by the time the Red army moved into Berlin. Yet for the Russians, from common soldiers to highest officers, who were seeing the West for the first time, this war-ravaged country represented a wealth beyond description.

They reacted as might be expected, scooping up everything that lay in their path and shipping it back home, regardless of its intrinsic value or utility.

Plumbing fixtures were ripped from German walls and sent back to Russia by men whose homes there had no running water. Cheap lamps, radios—whole or broken—paintings, rugs, carpets were all legitimate loot.

Story

There is the story of a Moscow woman whose husband, a Red army officer, sent her a piano from Germany. When it arrived she called in a tuner to examine it. He told her the instrument had no "resonance."

"Oh, that's all right," the woman asserted, "I'll have my husband send me some."

My superior, General Shabalin, head of the economic administration, sent back three truck loads of "trophies," and a BMW car which he had negotiated from the factory.

Shabalin's chief of staff, Vinogradov, had the practice of making nightly forays through abandoned German homes in Karlshorst.

Like Warehouse

On one occasion I visited his apartment. It seemed more like a huge warehouse than living quarters. There was enough furniture stacked into it for three flats.

Inside a chest were several full sets of porcelain. Clothing of every description was hanging from racks, including a moth-eaten coat from Bismarck's time which, Vinogradov explained, he was sending to his brother. There was also a crate of women's hygenic articles.

A regular "seniority of spoils" had been established. For instance it was pointless for a lieutenant to take a German shotgun. This particular item was apportioned to ranks of majors and above, to whom anyone below would have to surrender it on their request.

New Sense of Justice

The Soviet high command for the most part closed its eyes to the plunder and rapine. An entirely new sense of justice and right had emerged under the Kremlin's regime.

Seldom, for instance would anyone be brought to trial for breaking somebody's window or knocking out somebody's tooth.

However, a five-year prison term was the penalty for scrounging corn grains from a collective farm or for stealing a lump of "Socialist" sugar from a factory.

Retribution for the common Red army soldier however was usually swift when it came.

Steal Parts

Once I surprised a couple of soldiers who were trying to dismantle my car and steal the parts. They fled when I came upon the scene, and I made a report to the nearest military police command post.

There I was told to be a little more efficient in the future: "Shoot them first, the next time," the officer in charge recommended. "We'll take care of the bodies."

Among the district military commandants in the Soviet zone the penchant for high living became so serious that periodic house-cleanings were necessary. I remember one conference of all commandants of Saxony and Thuringia.

Scapegoat

A scapegoat was being sought and everyone present knew it. In such a case it was always better, if one felt guilty, to take the initiative and load as many sins on his neighbor as possible. A lieutenant colonel began to be-labor a commandant in the Dresden area, one Major Astafjev.

Astafjev, he charged, had taken over a castle which he had staffed with more servants than there were in the time of the late owner.

Every morning Astafjev was accustomed to drink a half bucket full of pickle juice as an antidote for his hangover. One German valet put on Astafjev's stockings for him, while another put on his pants.

Further, Astafjev had detailed a special squad to round up all eligible women of the district, who were then kept in the cellar of the kommandatura until he was ready for them.

Lesson

At this conference I also got a lesson in how the general staff officers took care of their interests.

While the meeting was in progress, Shabalin sent his adjutant to a parking lot where the district officers had parked their cars, all of them luxurious models, which they had appropriated from Germans.

The adjutant examined them carefully and commandeered the best for the general. At the next meeting the district officers, now grown cautious, arrived in the oldest of wrecks so that none of their superiors might be tempted again.

In the early days of the occupation there was a mad scramble among Soviet personnel for automobiles. Most of them were simply confiscated from German owners, others were purchased with the worthless occupation money; practically every officer could find means of owning one.

More Accidents

One result was a tremendous increase in traffic accidents. For a time it was safe to proceed through Karlshorst only in a tank. There were no traffic regulations and right of way was determined by the driver who had the bigger car and cared less for his own neck.

The rule was: "When there is a danger of collision, the person likely to suffer the greatest damage is to yield." The high command cracked down and prohibited anyone below the rank of colonel from possessing a private vehicle.

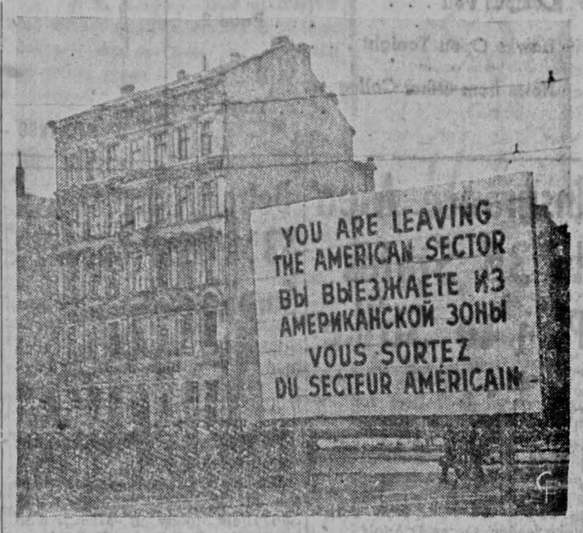
In Russia a private car is a "bourgeois" luxury. The only cars available are those provided by the state for specific business purposes, or given to privileged members of the Communist aristocracy.

Leave Cars at Border

Soviet officers who attempted to take their cars back to Russia, were forced to leave them on the border. The duty was often five or six times the original value.

It was advisable for other reasons not to attempt to take a car back home unless one had a sufficiently high position. It would have been impossible to obtain gasoline legally in the Soviet Union and in order to register a private car, one had to prove ownership of a stone garage, a difficult thing in a country where very few have even a single room to themselves in which to live.

NEXT — Red troops afraid to be friendly.



BLACK MARKETEERS do a flourishing business in the Soviet sector just across the border from the American sector.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

TWO silver-haired old ladies wobbled down the main street of a New England town in their moth-eaten coupe, made an illegal turn, and compounded their felony by ignoring the outraged traffic officer's endeavors to stop them. He finally caught up with them in front of Ye Olde Waffle Shoppe. "Didn't you hear my whistle?" he demanded angrily.

The perky octogenarian at the wheel looked at him coyly and admitted, "Yes, I did, officer—but I never flirt when I'm driving." The cop looked astonished, then broke into a broad grin, and said, "You win, lady! Drive on!"

* * *

Carlton Alsop complained bitterly to his friend Bob Sylvester that being forty-five meant that middle age had set in and the zing and bounce of youth were nothing more than memories. "What do you mean, 'middle age'?" interpolated Sylvester. "Just how many ninety-year-olds do you know?"

1951 Campus Chest Drive To Begin on Wednesday

Solicitors for the 1951 Campus Chest drive will receive last-minute instructions Tuesday night in preparation for the 3-day campaign which opens Wednesday.

Leon Mason, regional chairman of the student YMCA, will speak to the solicitors in Macbride auditorium. He will outline the need for funds.

Peggee Lutz, A3, Des Moines, drive chairman, said contributions received next week will go to four organizations.

The World Student Service fund, which sponsors campaigns in American colleges and universities to aid universities abroad, will receive the largest share of the SUI funds with 45 per cent.

Foreign student aid at SUI will get 25 per cent and the National Scholarship service and fund for Negro students will receive 20 per cent.

The final 10 per cent will be sent to CARE, the non-profit government-approved agency that sends food and clothing to needy persons in Europe and Asia.

The goal is 100 per cent contributions and faculty members as well as students will be contacted.

A solicitor from each dormitory, fraternity and sorority has been chosen in addition to students who will collect donations on the campus.

Last year's drive lasted four days and brought in $1,967 or an estimated 85 to 90 per cent.

Prize Paintings In Union Display

Twenty prize-winning paintings of the Hallmark Art award competition went on display Friday in the main lounge of the Iowa Union. They will be on exhibit through Dec. 19.

Based on the Christmas theme, the exhibit was brought to the university by the fine arts committee of the union board. It will be open to the public from 3 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day and no admission charge will be made.

Local Youths Record for National Broadcast

(Daily Iowan Photo)

National Youth Program To Include Local Group

Iowa City will be one of six cities represented on a national youth program to be broadcast Dec. 15 by the National Broadcasting company.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will be moderator of the program designed to call attention to such cities as Iowa City who have planned youth activities to curtail juvenile delinquency.

The actual time for the show, "Teen-Agers Take Over," has not been set. But Tuesday, a 3 minute tape recording of Iowa City's part was made at radio station WSUI.

The plan is to have this recording integrated with the other recordings by cities who are participating in the show to form one complete program, Mrs. E. T. Hubbard, youth chairman of the Iowa City Women's club said.

The 30 minute resume of youth activities in different cities is being sponsored by the Youth Conservation department of the General Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Hubbard added.

City Gains Recognition

Iowa City has gained national recognition in its drive to stop juvenile delinquency by providing work for teen-agers, rather than recreation. The teen-age work-experience and employment service, begun last spring, was sponsored by the Iowa City Women's club and developed by the youth and adults of Iowa City.

It was organized to get to the basic causes of juvenile delinquency and to prevent it through filling the youth's need for constructive work.

The experiment was begun last spring with forums of youth and adults to find youth's primary need for work during the summer vacation. 976 high school students were surveyed to find how many wanted work for the summer months.

The results from the survey showed 479 teen-agers were eager and would appreciate community help in getting summer jobs. A publicity campaign was started to arouse the community's sense of responsibility in providing jobs for teen-agers.

Youths Plan Training

Iowa City youths then planned a pre-employment basic training program called, "How to win jobs and influence bosses." Its purpose was to show teen-agers how to get a job and show the youth his responsibility to the employer.

Early in June another survey was taken and it was found that 727 students had jobs, either through the placement center, or through their own efforts to a more receptive community.

During the summer, each employed student was closely followed. Employers turned in reports on the progress of their student employes. If a satisfactory report was given, the youth was contacted and given proper commendation.

In cases of unsatisfactory reports, the youth was given counseling and an adjustment was attempted on his difficulty.

Files Employment Record

The Iowa State employment service served as a placement center and coordinated the program. A record of each youth's employment has been filed by the Women's club for future reference.

In another survey taken this fall, it was shown that approximately 887 students were employed during the summer. These teen-agers spent about 257,492 working hours during the summer and earned approximately $163,174.

In addition to having youth work, the city council and board of education both have appointed high school representatives as ex-officio members to further impress upon the teen-ager that he "belongs" and has an important responsibility in the community.

Iowa City police have reported this fall that a minimum of juvenile delinquency occurred during the past summer. They attribute the drop in petty crimes to the success of the youth experiment and feel that it has been the most constructive prevention of juvenile delinquency in Iowa City to date.

Better Watch Out —

Santa Claus Is Coming

Today is the day.

Santa Claus will drop in to visit Iowa City children at 10:30 a.m. today.

Santa will appear on top of the Whetstone building, and shower the children with candy kisses. He will be assisted from his perch by the Iowa City Fire department.

Santa wil direct Iowa City boy scouts in the distribution of candy to the children.

Authorization Given For Construction Of Airport Building

Final authority for construction of Iowa City's $135,000 airport administration building was received Friday.

The project, let to the M. D. McCreedy Construction company, is already under way although officials say that the major part of the work will be done in the spring.

The McCreedy firm will do the bulk of the construction. A $6,210 heating contract was let to H. L. Galbraith of Cedar Rapids.

Principal cause for delay was difficulty in obtaining allotments of critical materials. Details also had to be worked out to secure approval of the Civil Aeronautics which will pay half the cost of the structure.

Iowa City's share of the cost will amount to about $70,000.

BIGGER FEET

A national hosiery survey discloses that women's feet have got an inch longer since 1930. Evidently they think anything sticking out like that ought to be painted red.

15 Schools to Attend Regional Meeting of Iowa College Unions

An all-day regional meeting of professional staff members and students of 15 Iowa college unions will take place next Tuesday in Iowa Memorial Union.

A speech, "Interpretations," by Dr. Earl E. Harper, Iowa Union director, will open the meeting. Frank Burge, assistant director of the Union, will then conduct a tour of the SUI union, showing all phases of its operation.

SUI President Virgil M. Hancher is scheduled to deliver an address, "Education by Osmosis," at luncheon. After lunch, participants will form three discussion groups, consisting of a student group, food service group and general program group.

A final assembly will follow for a general discussion of the day's events.

In addition to the host school, represented will be Iowa State college, Iowa State Teachers college, Dubuque university, Drake university, Buena Vista college, Central college, Coe college, Cornel college, Iowa Wesleyan college, Luther college, Morningside college, Simpson college, Upper Iowa university, and Wartburg college.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the American Association of College Unions.

Married

Miss Kalunberg

Miss Ardette Kalunberg, former SUI student, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Klaunberg, Bondurant was married to Dean Percy A4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Percy, Bondurant, in a double ring ceremony Nov. 22 at the Salem Evangelical Reform church, Alleman.

The Rev. A. Kruetzmann, Hubbard, officiated.

The bride's gown was of Florence lace, styled with a fitted bodice, full skirt extending into a court train, long sleeves, and off the shoulder neckline with net yoke edged in tiny seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of nylon net fell from a fitted net cap edged with two rows of seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a rhinestone necklace, gift of the groom. Her boquet was of white chrysanthemums.

The maid of honor, Betty Jean O'Haver, A4, West Liberty wore an aqua colored gown of net and satin and carried bronze mums.

The four bridesmaids, Shirley Anderson, A4, Keokuk; Marianne Runyon, Bondurant; Nancy Dickey, Keokuk and Mrs. Darrell Klaunberg, Bondurant all wore identical dresses of aqua satin and net and wore head dresses of bronze mums. They carried bouquets similar to the maid of honor.

Best man was Floyd Percy Jr., brother of the groom. Ushers and attendants were Roy Barron, A4, Sioux City; Alvin Glottlelty, A3, Batavia; Darrell Kaluenburg, Bondurant; Robert Olaon, Ankeny and Michael Walsh, Cedar Rapids.

A reception for 300 guests followed the ceremony in the church parlor.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Iowa City, 123 Grand View court.

Hawks Face Test In Opener Tonight With Western Michigan

Broncos Out to Repeat Last Year's Victory

By JACK SQUIRE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

An oddity for an Iowa opening basketball game—a tough battle—looms at the fieldhouse tonight when the Hawkeyes launch their 52nd cage season.

The Hawks' opposition will be well-regarded Western Michigan, a team definitely many notches above the usual first game breather that Iowa teams have feasted on for so long.

The Broncos will present the same personnel that upset Iowa last year at Kalamazoo, 58-49. In addition, they have been bolstered by several promising freshmen and sophomores.

Hawks Ready

Fortunately, however, the stepping up of the early season schedule, which includes several top-flight non-conference contests, comes at a time when the Hawkeyes appear to be well-equipped to handle the assignment.

Coach Bucky O'Connor, in his first season as head man, has inherited virtually all of last year's third-place team, and here, too, the new men are very highly thought of.

The Hawks generally are rated as one of the teams to beat in the Big Ten race along with defending champion Illinois and Indiana.

Iowans should be thoroughly familiar with the Hawkeye starting five tonight, for O'Connor, for the time being, is going with his veterans.

Starting Team

This would have Ev Cochrane and Herb Thompson at the forwards, Chuck Darling at center, and Bob Clifton and Skip Greene at guards.

Several newcomers seem certain to be used, but just how many will depend on whether Iowa can build up a substantial lead.

Chuck Jarnigan, sophomore prospect from Newton, will see action at forward, especially if Cochrane's troublesome back injury acts up.

Sophomore Ken Buckles and freshman Deacon Davis are also slated for trials.

Western Michigan — a 74-50 victor over Manchester (Ind.) in its opener Thursday night — will be confronted with a distinct height disadvantage and is expected to employ a fast break attack as compensation.

Have 6-6 Reserve

The Broncos have a 6-6 reserve center but the tallest starter is only 6-2.

Co-captains Bob Adams and Joe Shaw who accounted for 22 and 20 points in last year's game are back again and figure to be Iowa's chief problems.

The varsity game will be preceded by a contest between the Iowa JVs and Central college "B" team. It's the first of 15 JV games. Starting time is 6 p.m.

Bob Schulz, former Iowa guard and now JV coach, has announced the following starting lineup:

Jim Treneman and Clyde Kitchen, forwards; Lem Jones, center; Bob Heppenstall and Ed Badger, guards.

Streak on Line

Iowa's long home-court victory streak over non-conference foes goes on the line again tonight against Western Michigan. The Hawks will be seeking their 52d straight win in the skein.

Bluehawks Get 43-31 Triumph Over Durant Five

By JIM COOKE

University high's Bluehawks grabbed a 43-31 Eastern Iowa Hawkeye Conference victory from a scrappy but outmanned Durant squad here Friday night.

The game was featured by the sharpshooting of Gardner Van Dyke, U-high forward, who had his one-hand jump shot working to perfection, and Durant's Jim Vastine, who hit for 14 of his team's 31 points. Van Dyke hit for 5 baskets and 8 free throws to take scoring honors for the evening with 18 points.

U-high's record is now 1-2 and the Wildcat's now have three victories and two losses, with a 1-2 record in the conference.

Durant threw up a tight shifting zone defense which held Coach Lou Alley's Bluehawks to a slim 6-4 first quarter lead. Van Dyke began hitting in the second period when he scored 10 of his team's 14 points to give U-high a 20-17 halftime advantage.

Late in the third quarter Virgil Krebs, Wildcat rebounding star, left the game with 5 fouls and was followed six minutes later by Armsby and Telsrow. Bluehawk center Craig Perrin also fouled out in the fourth quarter.

U-high looked vastly improved over its Tuesday night loss to Roosevelt of Cedar Rapids, as it hit for 16 field goals in 47 attempts for a very respectable 34 per cent shooting average. Durant had 12 baskets in 60 tries for an average of 20 per cent.

Veteran Hawkeyes to Start Tonight

Traditional Games on Tap Today

Army-Navy Clash Highlights Grid Card

NEW YORK (AP) — College football has its last big fling of a troubled season today with two major bowl berths up for grabs and enough traditional games to keep the fans happy.

The colorful Army-Navy spectacle in Philadelphia and the Notre Dame-Southern California clash at Los Angeles will offer an unprecedented football feast to television viewers from coast to coast.

Army and Navy start bumping heads at 12:30 p.m. (Iowa time), and at 4 p.m. the Fighting Irish will pay their way into the coliseum for the 23d meeting of these perennial grid powers.

There are a flock of other traditional tilts on the national menu and you can look for some upsets from the bunch. These include Georgia-Georgia Tech, Oklahoma-Oklahoma A & M, Missouri-Kansas, Alabama-Auburn, Tulane-Louisiana State and Mississippi-Mississippi State.

Tennessee, the nation's No. 1 team which meets Maryland in the Sugar bowl, is a 26-point choice over Vanderbilt.

Georgia Tech, ranked sixth nationally, is only a 7½-point choice over Georgia for their Atlanta meeting.

TV at Union

Television sets at the Iowa Union will be tuned in today on both the Army-Navy and Southern California-Notre Dame games.

and the far western Trojans will pick up the ball.

Both of these expected thrillers and the pre-game pomp and pageantry will be flashed across the nation by NBC. Housewives around the country are going to find it difficult to move their hubbies out of the living room.

SMU vs TCU

It's in the southwest, however, where the bowls are going to be filled. The whacky Southwest conference race goes down to the wire with two key games, Southern Methodist vs Texas Christian at Ft. Worth and Baylor vs Rice at Houston.

To the champion will go the lucrative Cotton bowl position against Kentucky at Dallas. The runner-up may get a shot at undefeated Georgia Tech in the Orange bowl at Miami.

TCU is favored by 6½ points. A crowd of 33,000 is anticipated.

Baylor, ninth-ranked nationally is favored by 6½ points for the Houston clash which will lure some 55,000 customers.

Despite the dismal records of Army (2-6) and Navy (1-1-6), more than 100,000 spectators will jam their way into mammoth municipal stadium for the 52d game between the service schools.

Navy is favored by eight points.

Trojans Choice

Southern California (7-3) is a 7-point choice to down Notre Dme (6-2-1). Some 50,000 fans

Didn't Make Boy Cut Weight, Wrestling Coach Tells Board

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — The Cedar Rapids school board Friday aired the problem of "induced sweating" to lose weight but took no action in the death of a 16-year-old high school wrestler who collapsed Thursday while using the method.

The body of Kenneth Averill, son of Mrs. William Hruby of Cedar Rapids, was found in a small individual shower by wrestling Coach Lloyd Wilson.

A pathologist said the boy's death was caused by a combination of suffocation and heat stroke.

The coach said Averill had gone in the shower to sweat off 1½ pounds to make a 95-pound limit for Thursday night's scheduled match with Traer.

Wilson, for six years wrestling coach at McKinley, Friday told the school board:

"I never made a boy of mine cut weight. If he wants to, it's up to him. I have no control over his eating habits or what he does at home."

The coach said, "I have cut weight myself as a wrestler and I know what it can do to you."

Wilson then told the board how Averill was worried about being a pound and a half over his weight Thursday and how he aksed the coach's permission to sweat it off in the shower.

Wilson said he told the boy "he wouldn't need to sweat off the pound and a half, that he would lose it normally before the team match Thursday night."

It was the first time that Averill had ever tried this process of losing weight, Wilson said.

Wilson told how he gave the boy instructions to get out of the shower if he felt sick or faint and that he could keep his head outside the shower curtain if he wished.

Reichardt Voted Most Valuable

Bill Reichardt was named Iowa's most valuable player Friday after a vote by the football squad. He thus becomes eligible for the Chicago Tribune's award for the Big Ten's most valuable player.

The list of entries thus far includes Chuck Boerio, Illinois; Darrel Brewster, Purdue; Vic Janowicz, Ohio State; Don Peterson, Michigan; Hal Faverty, Wisconsin; Ron Engel, Minnesota, and Gene Gedman, Indiana.

Northwestern's choice will be announced shortly.

Anamosa Falls, 68-36, To City High Cagers; Freeman, Frantz Star

By JORDAN MATULEF

City high, sparked by Jim Freeman's 25 points and Bob Frantz's floor play, coasted to its third consecutive victory Friday evening swamping Anamosa, 68-36, at the City high gymnasium.

Coach Howard Moffitt substituted freely and cleared the bench in the closing minutes of the contest after the final result was inevitable early in the game.

The Little Hawks jumped off to a 7-0 lead in the opening minutes and widened their margin to 11-1 before their opponents could get started. In fact, the visitors were able to attempt only six shots from the field during the entire first quarter which ended 21-5.

In the second period the visitors fared better against the City high reserves and at the end of the first half the score was 38-18.

The Hawklets began the third period with their starting five and rolled to a 57-24 lead by the end of the quarter. The final period was a seesaw affair as both teams substituted freely.

The rebounding and sharpshooting of Freeman and the great all-around floor game of Frantz featured the high-geared City high attack. Bing Norton played well for the visitors.

The shooting percentage of the Little Hawks was red-hot considering the length of time reserves were playing. Twenty-five goals were scored out of 72 attempts for a 34.5 percentage, while the visitors hit 15 out of 46 for a respectable 32.6 mark.

ST. PAT'S BOWS, 70-59

Loras of Dubuque defeated St. Patrick's here Friday night, 70-59, as all-state football player George Kress hit for 22 points for the visitor's. Dean Kelsey had 22 for St. Pat's.

Union to Sponsor 3 Free Movies

The Iowa Memorial Union will show three feature films Sunday night to all SUI students.

"Les Miserables," "How Green Was My Valley," and "Begone, Don't Care" will be shown beginning at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of the union.

Lecturers Will Tell Of Finding Lost City

The "Maya Vagabonds," Dana and Ginger Lamb, Santa Ana, Calif., will present kodachrome movies of their 4-year search for the Lost City of the Mayas at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Macbride auditorium.

Iowa Mountaineers will sponsor the 70 minute lecture and movie. Admittance will be by membership or tickets obtainable at the door for 80 cents.

From Other Colleges

TEXAS

Two University of Texas drama students were arrested recently for alleged drunkenness. The students were outside the auditorium rehearsing the drunk scene of "Juno and the Paycock," appearing there. They were released upon appearance of the stage manager.

NORTH CAROLINA

Bandleader Kay Kyser, head cheerleader at North Carolina university in 1927, returned to his alma mater to lead a pep rally before the Tennessee game recently.

MICHIGAN STATE

Students at Michigan State will vote in February for a proposed student tax which is not to exceed 25 cents per term. The tax would support the student government and finance all-college student projects.

If approved by students, the tax would bring $3,357 from the student body of 13,428 at the maximum rate of 25 cents per student. That would amount to slightly over $10,000 per three-term school year.

OHIO STATE

Sailing has become a popular sport at Ohio State university. Starting with 10 members in 1947, the sailing team now has 60 members, and boasts one of the best records in the middlewest. Last year it won the Michigan Sailing championship at Chicago and participated in the National sailing regatta at Boston. In 1949 the team traveled to Los Angeles twice to compete in the National and Rose bowl regattas.

WISCONSIN, SAN JOSE STATE

Eighteen university of Wisconsin men spent the night in an Evanston, Ill., jail for painting blazing red W's on Northwestern university fraternity and sorority houses and the ticket booths at Dyche stadium. The work was done the day before the Wisconsin-Northwestern football game.

For a similar prank, four San Jose State college students were suspended after they confessed to searing "SJS" on the turf at Stanford stadium prior to the Stanford-San Jose football game.

ILLINOIS

The Daily Illini proposed the following techniques for staying out of the army:

1. Join the navy.
2. Get a letter from your parents saying sorry, but you had other plans.
3. Try running around the block 15 times before taking your physical. You may be able to convince the doctors you have asthma.
4. Wink affectionately at the psychiatrist. If he winks back . . run.
5. Calmly inquire, "Comrade, is this where I join the People's army to fight against the imperialists in Korea?"
