B-29 Hits Houses, 8 Airmen Killed

DENVER (AP) — A B-29 bomber with one engine dead, crashed into a swank residential area Monday morning killing 8 and injuring 6 of the 14 crew members aboard.

The crippled craft mowed through five houses and set the debris afire, but as if by a miracle, not a civilian was killed and only two were hurt.

The bomber, pancaking slowly in as if in a stall, cut a swath about two houses wide and less than a block long, 2 miles short of the Lowry air force base's east-west runway.

The fact that most residents were away from home, or were in sections of the homes not hit by the bomber saved them from death in the debris which burst into flames.

"We were coming in in good shape and I didn't realize we were in any danger and the next thing, we crashed," said Sgt. William A. Zippel, 29, flight engineer, of Baudette, Minn. He was hospitalized with minor injuries.

The injured civilians were Mrs. Austin Murphy, a maid in one of the houses struck, and Joe Pearce, a fireman who suffered a broken arm during rescue operations.

Lowry airforce base announced the names of five of the injured late Monday. They included, besides Sgt. Zippel, Capt. James W. Shanks, 33 pilot, Denver; First Lt. Robert H. Snure, 27, Spokane, Wash.; Cpl. Ray E. Widner, 19, Estby, Wis.; Pfc. Teddy D. Allen, 18, South Gate, Calif., and Pfc. Joe D. Wiggins, 20, Williamsburg, Va.

Denver General hospital reported that one airman, whom it identified as Teddy Devearl (no address) was brought there for treatment.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

Col. John T. Sprague, commanding officer of the air base, told a newsman the plane had been on a routine gunnery mission and was headed back toward the base. He said one propeller was "feathered," indicating the engine was not working.

"But that wouldn't have caused this crash," the colonel said. "Something else must have happened."

He described the pilot as a "thoroughly experienced" one. Several stories of escapes by civilians were told. Mrs. Charles Tobias happened to be in the basement when the plane destroyed her house. Her two children, aged 5 and 3, were out of the house, she said, "for the first time in a week."

One-Day Battle Kills 29 In Suez Canal Zone

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The most serious clash that has yet occurred between British troops and Egyptians in the Suez canal zone resulted Monday in the deaths of 29 on both sides, an Egyptian communique reported.

The announcement from the Egyptian government said the fighting in and around the town of Suez was still going on Monday night.

It listed the Egyptian dead as two policemen and 14 civilians, the British as 13 servicemen. The Egyptians also claimed 13 policemen and 55 civilians were wounded.

The Egyptians called the fighting the bloodiest that has occurred since the beginning of the British-Egyptian crisis in mid-October.

For the first time the British announced they had taken "prisoners." They said they had captured 25.

Conflicting reports came as the result of two clashes in and near the town of Suez, Red sea entrance to the canal.

A British spokesman said the bodies of three Egyptian policemen and one civilian were picked up after a two-hour battle at noon in which the 25 "prisoners" were taken.

In a second round, he added, "Egyptian terrorists," using rifles and incendiary bombs, ambushed two trucks at a railway crossing just outside Suez. Six Mauritian soldiers in British service were killed. A British major is missing and is presumed dead and another soldier is missing the spokesman said. The two vehicles were burned.

An Egyptian spokesman in the zone gave a different version of the second clash.

Beardsley's Plan to Be Used In Operation of Juvenile Home

DES MOINES (AP) — The state board of control said Monday two recommendations by Gov. William S. Beardsley for improving operation of the state juvenile home at Toledo will be put into practice immediately.

The governor asked the board earlier Monday to screen all applications for employment at the home, and have a psychologist study each child sent to the home before the child is assigned to one of the various cottages there.

Henry W. Burma, speaking for the board, said a psychologist has just started working with the children both at the juvenile home and at the state's Annie Wittenmyer home for orphans at Davenport.

He said also, the recommendation for screening applicants would be accepted and carried out promptly. The governor, when making his recommendations, also emphasized that judges have a great responsibility in choosing institutions to which children are

Hungary Says Missing U.S. Plane Carried Espionage Equipment

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungary Monday charged that an American plane, forced down near Papa by Soviet fighters on Nov. 19, was intended for the dumping of spies on Hungarian territory and demanded severe punishment of the persons responsible.

A note handed to the American legation confirmed for the first time a Soviet news agency announcement of Sunday night that the U.S. air force C-47 transport, missing on a flight from Erding, in western Germany, to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, had been forced down in Hungary.

But the note disclosed neither the whereabouts of the four-man crew, nor Hungary's intentions concerning the crew and plane. Nor did it explain why the C-47 force-down had been kept secret for a fortnight.

The U.S. legation asked the Hungarian government about the missing plane on Nov. 20, after it had been reported fired on by Hungarian and Romanian guards, but the Hungarian government said at that time that it knew nothing about it.

Monday the government said the plane "violated the Hungarian frontier" at 2:14 p.m. on Nov. 19 near Gyula near the Romanian border. It was "forced to land by Soviet fighters staying on Hungarian territory near Papa," about 125 miles west of Gyula, exactly one hour and 41 minutes later, the note continued.

The note declared the plane carried military maps showing "the most important parts" of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania and the Soviet Union, a radio set for "camp use" and warm blankets in 20 bundles, all packed and "ready to be parachuted."

(The U.S. state department Monday denied the plane was on any espionage mission and explained that the blankets, maps and radio were standard emergency equipment. The department said it was taking immediate action to demand release of the crew and plane.)

Hancher Returns From Hawaii Trip

SUI President Virgil Hancher returned to Iowa City Saturday from his cruise to Pearl Harbor "very impressed with naval personnel and the job they are doing."

Hancher and 13 other Iowans made the trip on the battleship Iowa and inspected naval installations at Honolulu. Prof. William J. Peterson, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Iowa, was one of the group.

Hancher said the trip was "very interesting. It let us know what the navy is doing."

The cruise was a shakedown for the Iowa, its first major trip since being removed from mothballs Aug. 25.

LONDON (AP) — George Henry Powell, 71, author of the song, "Pack Up Your Troubles In Your Old Kit Bag," died in his home near Brighton Monday.

Raiders Hit Behind Red Lines

SEOUL, Korea (TUESDAY) (AP) — British commandos supported by tough U.S. marines landed on the northeast Korea coast 130 miles behind Communist lines Sunday night and shot up Red transport and communications.

Naval gunfire from the transport Bass and destroyer Tingey supported the surprise assault on beaches near Tanchon, 170 miles north of parallel 38, the navy said today.

In the air war, Communist planes Monday flew far south of their usual northwest Korea haunts, roared over the South Korean capital of Seoul and drove American troops to cover along the battle line 40 miles to the north.

The Far East air forces said Allied pilots damaged four Communist jets in the eighth straight day of jet fighting. It reported no Allied losses.

The eighth army belatedly told of the loss Friday of Taehwa, an island in the mouth of the Yalu and Chongchon rivers far up the northwest Korea coast.

About 1,000 Chinese troops assaulted the island in canoes, sampans, canvas and motor boats. They hit it three waves.

Truce Talks . . .

MUNSAN, Korea (TUESDAY) (AP) — Allied and Red truce delegations adjourned after only 30 minutes today and instructed their subcommittees to meet in the afternoon.

Presumably the subcommittees were told to continue discussion of the Communist proposal to permit neutral inspection of some places behind the lines and to "freeze" troops and arms now in Korea if an armistice is signed.

He Shot an Easy Buck

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 14-year-old boy from nearby Coraopolis who didn't take time to put on his shoes staked a claim Monday to be the first hunter to kill a deer in Pennsylvania as the 11-day season opened.

Thomas Wilson said he spotted a fine eight-point buck when he looked out of his bedroom window.

Thomas grabbed his trousers and rifle, ran barefooted into the yard and brought down the buck with one shot.

Bach is Consulted On 'Christian' Ruling

The ruling in the Waterloo case which posed the problem of defining a Christian was submitted to SUI Prof. Marcus Bach before it was released, but the assistant director of the school of religion denied Monday that he had any influence on the decision.

District Judge S. B. Charlton labeled as "unenforceable and invalid" the will of a late Waterloo physician, Dr. W. B. Small, who had left the income from a $70,000 trust fund to "persons believing in the fundamental principles of the Christian religion."

Many persons had speculated that the judge's ruling in the case that attracted nation-wide attention, was based somewhat on an opinion by Bach.

But Bach said any charges he suggested pertained only to technicalities and did not change the meaning of the decision.

"I have the highest respect for Judge Charlton's judgment in the matters pertaining to religion and life, and any suggestions I may have made were already stated most emphatically in his decision," Bach said.

The heirs of the physician's estate had contested the will, contending that it was impossible to determine what persons are "promulgating the fundamental principles of the Christian religion."

Seven Iowa clergymen, including the Rev. L. L. Dunnington of the First Methodist church in Iowa City, had been called into the case for their definitions of the Christian religion.

The Rev. Mr. Dunnington, who had testified for the heirs, said Monday Charlton's decision was the only one that could be made.

"If it's carried to the U.S. supreme court, there can be no other decision," he said.

Dunnington said there was no way to define a Christian which would satisfy everyone, because "there are too many different opinions."

The reporter said, in answer to Shafer's questions, that he was in an Iowa City club, that it was Sunday night and that he had been served beer. He also reported that no membership card was needed for admittance to the club.

The reporter also said that about 35 persons were patronizing the club at the time of the conversation and that empty or partly filled beer bottles could be seen on the 30 or more tables in the club.

No mention was ever made of the name of the club during the entire interview. The reporter estimated that the average age of those in the club to be about 20 to 22.

Iowa law prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors. It also forbids the sale of intoxicants on Sunday.

Shafer said the station had been flooded with calls asking for more information and commending the station for its action.

About 15 members of the Amvets club attended the city council meeting Monday night. The council approved the refund of $75 of the $100 paid by the Amvets for the permit.

The Amvets had difficulty obtaining a renewal of their beer permit last fall, after the club had been convicted in 1948 of illegal possession of gambling devices.

The present club submitted affidavits showing that no gaming devices now present and that the club had been completely reorganized and was under new management.

County Attorney William L. Meardon refused to speculate Monday night on what action by the county might be taken against the Amvets club, if it were established that any laws had been violated.

"I don't know what all the facts in the case are but I intend to find out," Meardon said.

Action Follows Interview from Unnamed Club

The Iowa City Amvets club Monday night voluntarily surrendered to the city council its beer permits which were renewed this fall following a lengthy investigation by the state permit board.

This action came after local radio station KKIC had twice broadcast during the day a recorded telephone conversation made Sunday night between two of its reporters, one located in an unnamed Iowa City club. The conversation included a discussion of beer sales on Sunday and sales to minors.

Robert Crosby, district Amvet commander, said the permit was turned in because the club could not be operated on a sound financial basis.

Bob Shafer, A3, one of the reporters participating in the recorded conversation gave this version of how it was obtained:

A member of the station's staff, who is 20 years old, went to the local club about 8 p.m. Sunday. He said he ordered a bottle of beer and after being served, went to a telephone booth where he called Shafer waiting with recording equipment in the KKIC studios.

The reporter said, in answer to Shafer's questions, that he was in an Iowa City club, that it was Sunday night and that he had been served beer. He also reported that no membership card was needed for admittance to the club.

The reporter also said that about 35 persons were patronizing the club at the time of the conversation and that empty or partly filled beer bottles could be seen on the 30 or more tables in the club.

High Court Rejects Contempt Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supreme court Monday refused to review the cases of three men jailed last summer for contempt in connection with ball-jumping by four top Communists.

The decision went against Frederick Vanderbilt Field, millionaire left-winger, and two fellow trustees of the civil rights congress bail fund, Dashiell Hammett, detective story writer, and Alpheus W. Hunton.

They were convicted of contempt following their refusal to disclose the names of fund contributors after the Red leaders jumped bail. The Communists became fugitives after the supreme court upheld their convictions for conspiring to teach the violent overthrow of the American government.

Scene of Student's Death

EXAMINING THE BRIDGE OVER MUD CREEK near Wilton Junction, four Muscatine men point to the spot where the car driven by Garret Murphy, A2, Muscatine (shown above upper left) crashed into the corner of the structure and plunged into the creek below early Sunday morning. Murphy's body was found in six feet of water nearly four hours after the crash.

Funeral Services Today for SUI Crash Victim

Funeral services for Garrett "Jerry" Murphy, A2, Moline, Ill., will be held at 3 p.m. today in Moline. Murphy was killed early Sunday morning when his car smashed into a bridge girder on highway 6 west of Wilton Junction and plunged into Mud creek.

Muscatine County Coroner Dr. William Catalona said Murphy was apparently "stunned and drowned." There was no other obvious external causes of death. Murphy's Chevrolet convertible was found, three quarters submerged in six feet of water, about 8:30 a.m. Sunday by Leo Friendli, a farmer near Wilton Junction.

He called a local garage which pulled the car out of the water and notified highway patrolmen. After the car was established to be Murphy's members of Muscatine's rescue squad began dragging the creek about 12:30 p.m. The body was recovered 10 minutes later.

Charles Anon, sheriff of Muscatine county, said skid marks seemingly left by all four of the car's tires were visible on the muddy left shoulder for a hundred feet before the bridge. Murphy apparently dozed off behind the wheel, he said.

Murphy was president of the Sigma Chi, social fraternity, pledge class. He transferred to SUI in September from Colgate university in Hamilton, N. Y.

He was the son of L. A. Murphy, vice-president in charge of manufacturing at the Deere and Co. plant in Moline.

Know Your University

DR. RALPH E. ELLSWORTH has been director of SUI's libraries since 1943. Previously Dr. Ellsworth held the same position at the University of Colorado. He is a member of the campus planning and library committees. Dr. Ellsworth is at present president of the Association of College and Reference Libraries. He has also served as chairman of the cooperative building committee for the libraries of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Ralph E. Ellsworth
Director of Libraries

Now that the library move is finished and except for a few loose ends, the staff can stand up again and survey the situation. The first thing to be said is a word of praise for the patience and good humor with which students and faculty alike have endured a 12-month disruption in library service, and disruption is a mild term to describe the inconveniences the move has caused everyone concerned.

The second relevant comment is that we are proud of the way in which students are now using the new building. Walk through the building any afternoon or evening and one can see hundreds of students hard at work, quietly and earnestly. We are particularly pleased to see so many readers staying 'till midnight. And we detect faint signs that students are getting wise to the fact that it is unwise to postpone studying until the night before the exam.

Now we must find out if the organization of the library is satisfactory. What is a good library? A university library may be efficient in the sense that its staff may be able to procure from its locked off inwards the books students want when they want them and still be a bad library for students. Here's why:

Learn Yourself
As an adult there is going to be no professor around to guide your quest for knowledge or to hand you a list of the materials you should read. You have to learn these things yourself, and the best time to learn them is while you are a student. Mark well that it is possible to learn knowledge without developing judgment in using the sources of knowledge.

Before the ink on your diploma is dry, or the novelty of wearing a hood around your neck has worn off, much of the specific knowledge you acquire will be out-of-date. All that you take with you that will last are mental habits and judgment.

Develop Judgement
Our library is designed specifically to help students develop judgment in using the sources of information. That is why nearly a hundred thousand books are placed on open shelf, why you are allowed free access to the stacks, why your "reserves" are out on the shelves where you can approach them directly, why the second floor collections are arranged by historical groupings, and why your instructors, whenever possible, are avoiding the textbook method of teaching. A library that offers its readers these opportunities must inevitably be less "efficient" than the old-fashioned closed stack library, and will also not be an easy library to learn to use. The records of scholarship are complex, and it is they you are learning to use.

Mechanics
The mechanics of the plan can be learned in two hours, and hundreds of students find this possible. Those who take the trouble to learn soon realize that the ability to find one's way around among books is a wonderfully fine possession, and that, if cultivated assiduously, it can lead to a maturity of the mind that is satisfying.

We hope that SUI students will be proud of this facility, and that they will learn to use it enthusiastically, frequently, and critically.

"Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required."

BERLIN-KREMLIN

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of 12 articles, telling starkly and bluntly the truth of life for a Russian soldier in the Soviet-controlled zone of Germany as told by Maj. Gregory Klimov, a former member of the Russian general staff in Germany. Disgusted with the system under which he lived, Major Klimov fled to the western (Allied-occupied) zone of Germany. Here is his own story, told for the first time.)
By MAJ. GREGORY KLIMOV
Formerly of the Russian General Staff in Germany

BERLIN—From the very first day of the joint occupation of Germany, the Russians regarded the Western Powers—the United States in particular—not as allies but as enemies. We of the general staff were not allowed to forget this for a single instant.

"Remember that you are on the foremost sector of our postwar battlefield," General Shabalnik, my chief, instructed me before my first Allied Control Council meeting.

"You must realize that your future colleagues in the ACA are agents of the capitalist espionage services," he continued.

No Personal Friendships
"Consequently I order you to make no personal friendships whatsoever with Western personnel and not to engage in any private conversation with them under any circumstances. Instead, listen to as much as you can."

Soviet policy was as follows: The Western democracies were sincerely trying to guarantee world peace. Soviet readiness to collaborate in this effort was nothing more than a tactical maneuver to win time for the consolidation of power and to enable us to exploit the democratic forum for sabotaging world public opinion.

Talked Peace
While the Kremlin talked peace it was busily expanding Soviet armed forces and preparing new bridgeheads for aggression.

The Kremlin did not have the minutest desire to work together with the democratic countries of the West.

In regard to Germany the Soviets considered the Potsdam agreement as one of their greatest diplomatic victories, and they were bent on pressing every advantage which they had wrung from the West.

Where the Potsdam pact offered any barrier to Soviet plans, the Kremlin did not feel itself restricted. Even before the Big Three conference the general staff had been instructed to proceed with carrying out Russia's aims which, they assured, would not be affected one way or another by developments at Potsdam.

The Western powers were principally concerned with preventing any possibility of the rebirth of German militarism and German aggression in the future.

Key to Domination
The Soviet viewed Germany as the key to domination of Europe, and an active partner in Russian designs. They looked upon its borders as the furthestmost Western outpost of Soviet power.

Germany, defeated, was no longer an enemy in the analysis of the Kremlin, as it was in that of the Western powers. The wartime arrangements had been reversed on the day of the capitulation although it took the West a long time to realize it.

During the ACA meeting which I attended I was constantly aware of Shabalnik's surveillance of me. If some Allied officer began chatting about the weather with me I could feel the general's eyes boring through my back.

It was pleasantly surprising to find that, contrary to all of Shabalnik's warnings, none of the Allies with whom I spoke indicated the slightest interest in ferreting out any Russian "secrets."

I understood that the general was required to keep me under surveillance; I also noticed that often he seemed more interested in ascertaining just how much I might be keeping back on him, for everyone in the Soviet system has his shadow, and usually does not know who it is.

Fear and Mistrust
The higher one climbs in the hierarchy of the Kremlin, the more intensively is he gripped by fear and mistrust.

We were occasionally invited to impromptu parties by Allied officials. But it was impossible for us to reciprocate in the same way. If we wanted to hold a reception for Western colleagues, we could do so only in a special club set up for this purpose by the NKVD, which first had to approve each guest.

Opportunity
The ACA gave me my first opportunity to learn to know our Western Allies personally.

During the war I had seen many Americans and Englishmen in my hometown of Gorki and in Moscow, but I had no official pretext for any personal contact with them.

Without special permission, it is impossible in the Soviet Union to engage in even the most innocent conversation with a foreigner. One need only offer a foreigner a light for his cigarette and he will be summoned by the NKVD. He may find himself classed as an "enemy agent" and join the slave labor force as a result.

The case of Valya Grintshuk will illustrate the policy on relations with foreigners.

Valya, a young girl of 20, had been one of Russia's most distinguished partisan fighters during the war; her bravery had earned her more medals than many a general, in the rank of a senior lieutenant.

During her work at the ACA Valya made the acquaintance of a young Allied officer and a deep friendship between them ensued.

Summoned
One day Valya was summoned by the chief of the Communist cadre and forbidden to have any more dealings with the Allied officer unless she was willing to exploit the relationship for the interests of the state.

She chose the former course and let her friend be informed that she had been recalled to Russia.

One day at the ACA, the chairman of the Soviet industry committee, Koslov, incautiously disclosed that he planned to go home the following Sunday. Several of the Allied members asked to go along and Koslov had to agree for the sake of appearances.

Protection
When the hunt got underway Koslov did his best to shake off his Western colleagues, without success. During the next week, in order to protect himself from any suspicion that he had been seeking the company of foreigners, Koslov cursed about the "ruined" Sunday and the Allies who had "tagged along."

Although during the early days of the occupation the Allied service clubs were open to us, it was not advisable to frequent them too often. The NKVD kept careful note of who sought the hospitality of the other side of the town.

"Too intimate contact with foreigners" was one of the primary and one of the most damning reasons for recall to the Soviet Union, and an ensuing period of "re-education" in a slave labor camp.

NEXT—Russia soldiers awed by Americans.

GENERAL NOTICES

GENERAL NOTICES should be deposited with the city editor of The Daily Iowan in the newsroom in East Hall. Notices must be submitted by 2 p.m. the day preceding first publication; they will NOT be accepted by phone, and must be TYPED OR LEGIBLY WRITTEN AND SIGNED by a responsible person.

Blood Red Christmas

The Christmas of your dreams may not be white this year. Mourning black or blood red will be the holiday color scheme for thousands of Americans during the month of December.

This is the grim warning constantly reiterated by the National Safety Council in its annual campaign, to save lives on America's highways.

December is the big death month. Last year, it saw 3,580 fatalities. And Yuletide whiteness—snow and sleet—has consistently been one of the main causes of Santa season deaths.

Chances are it'll snow this Christmas. And chances are, the warning comes again, the America's millionth auto death will occur somewhere during the blinding whiteness of Christmas, 1951.

But it need not be blinding snow. Safety Council's simple-to-follow recommendations for blizzard visibility can see even the most short-sighted through. For clear windshields, they read: keep a steady hot air flow from auto heater, use a defroster, use wipers on front and rear windshields, keep head and tail lights in good working order, use fog lights and an ice scraper.

It need not be slipping and sliding snow either. Again the recommendations are worth the life they may save. Use chains. Avoid sudden stops on slippery surfaces. Watch road crowns and narrow bridges as special danger points. Expect ice just over every hill, around every curve, on every bridge and in every shaded spot on the road.

Such recommendations are of course as numerous as tin-pan alley songs for the season. The Safety Council made the same ones last year. Yet there were those 3,580 Americans killed as the Santa songs rang out over the snow.

We can keep on dreaming of a White Christmas, but maybe re-reading, and heeding, the Council's advice might help in keeping the dreamer alive to enjoy it.

Klimov Articles Further Tension

TO THE EDITOR:
In this already dangerously divided world it is imperative to increase our understanding of the conflict and differences dividing the East and the West, with the hope that such understanding may contribute to the eventual settling of the more crucial issues that left unsettled, would likely lead to another world war.

Yet if the first in a series of articles by Major Gregory Klimov on East Germany is any indication of the nature of those to follow, they lead only to further the tension between East and West.

Frankly, I for one am fed up with this type of vicious, distorted, anti-Communist viewpoint by Major Klimov. The large majority of the people of the West may abhor a Communist regime, but abhorrence is a negative feeling when left to feed on itself.

The fact is that Russia has a Communist government. We cannot dispute this, nor are we in a position to say that this government is not supported willingly by the majority of the Russian people.

One job should not be to further the already existing animosity between these two worlds; rather, first let us accept the fact that both worlds, exist, and once accepting this, work for solutions in a spirit of compromise, recognizing that the coexistence of divergent ideologies is a necessity for a peaceful world.

This is particularly true when one realizes that Russian communism and American democracy are both civilized attempts at bettering the conditions of mankind on this earth.

We in the West rightfully deplore the means that Russia has often used to further its program, but its aim—unlike that of Nazi Germany or of present Fascist Spain—is a humanitarian one.

In spite of Communist political repression in Eastern Europe, the steady rise in the standard of living for the large masses of people in such countries as Poland, Rumania, Hungary, and Bulgaria, attests to the success of the long-needed industrial and social developments which have been the outgrowth of Communist rule in these "People's Democracies" since 1946.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

HUMORIST Arthur Kober began his professional career as a press agent for the Shuberts. In his spare time he strove desperately to land a contribution in F.P.A.'s then famous column of wit and light verse. Viewing a virtually empty theatre from the back of the orchestra one Christmas Eve, he was seized with the inspiration that opened the golden gates of the column to him. The couplet that did it:

"'Twas the night before Christmas,
And oh! What a house!"

Margalo Gilmore's favorite cartoon was drawn by George Belcher for Punch Magazine. It showed two London biddies "avin' a few" at a neighborhood pub. "Ow yer tripe, dearie?" asked one. "A bit stringy," grumbled the other. "I eye," suggested the first, "try it wiv yer veil off, ducky."

Conservation Commission Has 5-Year Plan To Increase Iowa's Supply of Walnut Timber

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Conservation commission is off on a 5-year planting program designed to start five million walnut trees in state-owned forests, parks, and wildlife lands.

Commission employees are beginning with a million walnuts harvested this year. It has been a bumper year for walnuts.

So far, 223,000 nuts have been planted, and the planting will continue through the late winter and spring. Boy scouts, future farmers, 4-H club members and other groups will help in the planting next spring.

Walnut lumber is one of the most valuable of all native woods. For the past several decades walnut timber has been cut faster than it has been grown in Iowa. The use of walnut in gun stocks for soldiers in the two world wars helped deplete the supply. And production of fine furniture puts a continuous strain on existing stocks of walnut.

The Conservation commission says that walnut trees planted in 1900 now measure as much as 20 inches in diameter. The commission estimates number one prime walnut logs from trees of this size are worth up to $66 each. Since up to 300 prime walnut trees can mature on each acre of land, they make a worthwhile crop for a farmer.

In addition to being valuable wood producers, walnut trees are of importance in the growth of timber squirrels. Where numbers of walnut trees grow, there is an annual surplus of squirrels. That makes for good hunting.

Walnut meats, too, have become an important crop in recent years, largely because of recent advances in mechanical cracking and picking processes. And the shells have become a valuable by-product used in manufacture of high grade charcoal.

Areas where fall plantings of the nuts have been completed are Red Haw hill in Lucas county; Swan Lake in Carroll county; Osceola East reservoir, Clarke county; Alorton reservoir, Wayne county; Goede park, Des Moines and Henry counties; Union Grove, Tama county and Lake Darling in Washington county.

New Cover for a New Book

ADMIRING THE COVER OF THE 1952 HAWKEYE YEARBOOK is Fran Swartz, A3, Iowa Falls. Orders for this year's Hawkeye yearbook, which will contain about 400 pages, are presently being sold by salesmen on and around the campus. However, orders may also be placed at The Daily Iowan business office in the west wing of the East hall basement. Ted Seldin, Hawkeye business manager has stressed the importance of placing orders now. Only enough copies to serve those who have subscribed to Hawkeye will be printed, he said. The book will cost $5. Seniors are automatically eligible for a Hawkeye if they are on the graduation list. The annual will appear about May 20.

Recently Married

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Casey

Miss Evelyn Lorraine Brandt, 822 Newton road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Brandt, Alpha, Minn., was married to Paul F. Casey, Minneapolis, son of Mrs. Fannie Casey, Cedar Falls, Nov. 24 at 2:30 p.m. in St. Paul's Lutheran church in Iowa City.

The Rev. E. H. Yohr officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride received her B. S. from the University of Minnesota and took her dietetic internship from the University hospitals in Iowa City where she has been therapeutic dietitian.

The groom graduated from SUI and is now attending the University of Minnesota law school.

The bride's dress was of white velvet with pointed long sleeves and a sweeping flared skirt. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried white chrysanthemums on a white velvet muff.

Her maid of honor was Mary Ruth Bedford, Iowa City, who wore a dark green velvet gown styled after the bride's.

Final Student-Faculty Coffee Hour Today

The last of this year's series of informal student-faculty coffee hours will be today at 4 p.m. in the River room of the Iowa Union, chairman of the UWA committee, Jo Fuller, A3, Centerville, announced.

Honoring the departments of journalism, creative writing, history, art, dramatic art, English, sociology and commerce, the coffee hour marks the end of the 16th year of the program.

It was started in 1936 by a committee of the University Womens Association who recognized the need for closer student-faculty relations.

Four were held this year honoring the administration, core course departments, and other departmental groups.

Doormat?—Not in Basketball—

To some, the arrival of December means snow, cold weather and Christmas, but as far as Iowa athletics are concerned, it's taken on still another meaning in recent years.

Dec. 1, among other things, generally marks the end of football season and the beginning of basketball, a fact which shouldn't be passed over lightly when you're referring to the athletic situation at Iowa.

You don't have to be omnipotent or ultra sensitive to public opinion to realize that there's a remarkable change in outlook around Iowa City when the word "Iowa" in the sports pages refers to the Hawkeye basketball team rather than football.

This, perhaps, has always been true, but it's been particularly evident since 1944, and hardly can be missed this year. It's as if a collective inferiority complex is suddenly removed and in its place emerges a fierce, almost antagonistic pride.

There's no strange or deep seated reason for this, for it's simply a matter of performance. Or more accurately results. Iowa football teams don't win very often. Hawkeye basketball teams do. And what's that they say about everyone loving a winner?

It's been generally customary to refer to Iowa in its relations in the Big Ten as "weak sister," or the "doormat," or a "have not" and names with a similar connotation. This has been prompted mainly by the fact that, with rare exceptions, Hawkeye football clubs have occupied the lower regions of the Big Ten.

To a degree, that was true about basketball here until the early 1940's, but since that time there has been a distinct upward surge in the Hawk's cage fortunes. In fact, from 1944 on, Iowa has one of the best records in Big Ten competition of all conference teams—winning one title and barely missing two others.

Harrison Started it in '44

It was in 1943 that Lawrence (Pops) Harrison took over as coach when Rollie Williams went off to war. Harrison's first team finished a poor ninth, but after that the fiery Pops met with outstanding success and did much to bring Iowa into the basketball limelight.

Iowa finished second in 1944 and in '45, with the Wilkinson brothers and Dick Ives starring, the Hawks won the Big Ten crown and Herb Wilkinson received all-American honors.

After that, the principle that good teams beget more good teams started to operate and this, aided by Harrison's vigorous recruiting of talent, accounted for further happy days.

In 1946 Iowa was third, slipped to sixth in '47 but jumped back to second in '48 when Murray Wier performed remarkable feats and was an all-American choice.

The following years saw the Hawks finish eighth, fifth, and third, and this year they are again rated among the top title contenders.

There are very real reasons for Iowa's better showing in basketball than football through the years. Leonard Raffensperger, in a speech to the Chicago Quarterback club, mentioned one of them when he observed that there are about 1000 high schools in the state fielding basketball teams compared to 250 with grid squads.

And, of course, you can get by in basketball with as little as five good players where in today's two-platoon football, at least 25 good ones are needed.

But of greatest importance probably is the financial consideration. Since the competition among alumni for torchlight cage talent is less heated than for budding football heroes, it requires less money to build a cage winner. That fact lets Iowa compete more successfully with schools like Michigan and Ohio State, though, on paper, the Hawkeyes are still at a disadvantage.

The point is that in basketball Iowa has a chance to get the top as well while the job is infinitely tougher in football.

Thus you'll find schools like Kansas State, Bradley, NYU, and others—"pore white trash" on the gridiron but mint julep drinking colonels when it comes to the cage sport.

Bluehawks Travel To Lone Tree

University high's Bluehawks travel to Lone Tree tonight for their second Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference game. The Blues, fresh from their Friday night conference victory over Durant, will be out to even up their season record at 2-2.

Lone Tree has a conference record of one win and two defeats, with its single victory coming over West Liberty, 26-21. Durant, trounced by U-high, 43-31, beat the Lone Tree squad in a close game, 40-34. Lone Tree's other conference defeat came at the hands of West Liberty, 26-21.

Action is slated to get underway at the Lone Tree gym at 7:15 when the two reserve squads meet, followed by the varsity contest at approximately 8:30.

Reichardt Accepts Bid To Blue-Gray Tilt

Bill Reichardt has accepted a bid to play in the Blue-Gray game Dec. 29 at Montgomery, Ala., after failing to receive a bid for the East-West game at San Francisco New Year's day.

Reichardt had also received an offer from Yale Coach Herman Hickman to play on the North team against the South at Miami Dec. 25. He had withheld answering either invitation in hopes of receiving a bid to the East-West game.

But Saturday Coach Leonard Raffensperger received a telegram from Bernie Bierman, one of the advisory board members of the East-West affair, stating that there would be no spot available for Reichardt on the team.

No reason was given for the action. The Blue team which Reichardt will play on is coached by Ivy Williamson of Wisconsin.

12 Iowa Officials To Attend Chicago Conference Meet

Big Ten winter meetings in Chicago on Wednesday through Saturday will be attended by 12 Iowa athletic department personnel.

Schedules will be arranged in baseball by Coach Otto Vogel, in tennis by Coach Don Klotz and in golf by J. E. (Waddy) Davis, who will represent Frank O'Connor, the basketball coach who also handles golf. O'Connor cannot attend because of basketball duties.

Coach Mike Howard will confirm dates of the tentative wrestling schedule and Coach Francis Cretzmeier will complete the indoor and outdoor track schedule by setting several tentative dates.

No football schedules will be arranged because the cards are complete through 1954 but Coach Leonard Raffensperger will attend a coaches' session which meets with the athletic directors to review officiating and discuss officials' training and supervision program conducted by Commissioner K. L. Wilson.

Other Iowans present will be Director Paul Brechler, Prof. Paul Blommers, faculty representative; Frank Havlicek, business manager; David Armbruster, physical education; Frederick Beebe, intramural athletics; and Eric Wilson, publicity.

Hawkeye Seniors Rip Pros, 48-0

A team of Iowa seniors had little trouble with an outclassed Waterloo semi pro football team Saturday, the Hawkeyes winning, 48-0.

The game was played at West high field in Waterloo before a crowd of 1,800. The Iowa players received $37 each for the game. Leading the seniors' attack was fullback Gerry Nordman who picked up 125 yards in 17 tries. Halfbacks Jerry Faska and Don Commack also picked up considerable yardage. The Iowans' offense was quarterbacked by Fred Ruck and Chuck Denning.

The seniors scored the first three times they had the ball and led 28-0 at the half.

A 39-yard pass play from Commack to end Dave DeProspero was the longest scoring play of the day.

The seniors shifted positions late in the game with one change sending DeProspero to fullback for a series of downs.

RAMBLERS ROLL, 60-29
St. Mary's rolled to a 60-29 victory over Xavier of Dyersville here Monday night as Bob Seuppel scored 21 points for the winners. Dick Pettinger had 22 for Xavier.

Sees Illini Taking Title; Hawkeyes Rate High

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN AP Newstfeatures

CHICAGO — Defending Champion Illinois has been solidly pegged by rival Big Ten coaches as a repeater for the conference basketball title this season.

They are so high on the Illini that they figure about the only competition in the race will come from other first division spots. Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota are seen battling for second place.

With nine lettermen, backed by some of the Midwest's best sophomore and freshman talent, Illinois looks strong enough to live up to the fancy predictions. Upsets, however, have been the habit rather than the exception in past Big Ten championship struggles.

Lost One

Illinois won 13 out of 14 league starts last season and Coach Harry Combes declares flatly that "we won't be that good again."

Among the lettermen back are Jim Bredar, 5-11; Bob Peterson, 6-8; Irv Bemoras, 6-3; Clive Follmer, 6-4, and Rod Fletcher, 6-4. All were highly rated last season on the Illini team that took third place in the NCAA Tournament.

Two of the state's best 1949 prep head Combes' sophomore group. They are John Kerr, 6-8, of Chicago's Tilden Tech, and Max Hooper, 6-5, of Mt. Vernon. The top freshman prospect appears to be Walt Moore, 6-2, also of Mt. Vernon.

Many squads will rely heavily on sophomores after a large graduation toll. Freshmen will frequently break into lineups as the season progresses.

League Improved

A bumper crop of former high school stars makes for a livelier scoring campaign and a general increase in power throughout the conference.

The only new coach is Frank (Bucky) O'Connor, Drake '38, at Iowa. His Hawkeyes may prove to be the biggest surprise package in the Big Ten. Bob Clifton and lofty Chuck Darling, two fine shots, lead a contingent of seven monogram men from last season's third-place team (9-5).

O'Connor has a horde of former prep all-stars to work with. Among the sophomores are Bill Stenger and Ken Buckles from Davenport's 1949 champions, regarded the best high school team ever turned out in Iowa; and Chuck Jarnigan and Gene Hetrick.

Iowa's freshmen include Center McKinley (Deacon) Davis, an unusual choice as the outstanding player of the 1951 Illinois State schoolboy tournament. Davis paced the title-winning Freeport high, Harlan Fritz and Ben Dorsey, a pair of Davis' Freeport teammates, also are at Iowa.

No Change

Big Ten cage coaches have the feeling generally that size of crowds and their reactions will remain unchanged at campus games despite the outbreak of six scandals. Their attitude seems to be "it can't happen here."

Combes, however, says "it's foolish to think that fans won't react somewhat to the scandal." Talent at other schools stacks up this way (last season's league record in brackets):
Indiana (12-2)—Bobby Masters, 6-3 guard and Sam Miranda, expert dribbler, are among the veterans... Leading sophomores are Lou Scott, 6-10, and Sam Esposito, a Chicago prep scoring sensation who set a single game record with 81 points... Freshmen include Don Schlundt, 6-9, South Bend, Ind., labeled the best big man ever to come out of Indiana high schools; Dick White, 6-2, Burk Scott and Jack Tilley, each under six feet.

Bucky 'Pretty Well' Pleased—

Hawkeyes Seek Polish

Defensive Mistakes To Get Attention

By JACK SQUIRE Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Coach Bucky O'Connor, "pretty well pleased" with his team's showing against Western Michigan last Saturday night, turned his attention Monday to polishing up some of the ragged edges evident in the 72-68 victory over the Broncos.

"I thought the boys did pretty well considering it was our opening game, but, of course, there's still a lot of work to do," said O'Connor before Monday's practice session.

"One of the first points we'll work on is improving our defensive work and defensive rebounding. Some of our young players, in particular, were lax on defense.

Timing Off
"And we'll also have to improve on getting the ball out on the fast break and sharpen our timing on our offensive patterns.

"But these are typical first game mistakes and you have to take them in stride. What we hope to do is show a gradual but definite improvement in each game."
O'Connor thought that his starting veteran five handled their assignments well and welcomed the opportunity to give the newcomers game experience.

The Hawkeye boss wouldn't single out any of the debuting freshmen or sophomores for praise, although, as a group, he thought they handled themselves

Reichardt, Rice Picked by Editors

Bill Reichardt and Dusty Rice won first and second team berths on the all-Big Ten teams picked by the sports editors of student newspapers of conference schools.

The all-star squad released Monday, had six players from Wisconsin, and five each from champion Illinois and Ohio State. It was the first such team selected by the conference sports editors who plan to make it an annual affair. Voting was handled by the Daily Illini, Illinois student paper.

in good fashion. Youngsters Overanxious
"Some of the younger kids made mistakes which I'm sure they won't make very often again. But new kids always tend to try the spectacular; to make good impressions and often leave themselves open to errors," O'Connor said.

Newcomers who saw considerable action Saturday were sophomores Ken Buckles, Chuck Jarnigan, and Billy Stenger and Freshman Deacon Davis.

"All in all, it was a good opening game," observed O'Connor. "Western Michigan certainly was not a set up and this DePauw team looks as good or better. They're bigger and just as fast as Western Michigan."
DePauw will be at the fieldhouse Saturday for Iowa's second game. The Indiana team played here last year losing to the Hawks, 74-67. Most of that team has returned.

Hawk Notes: O'Connor says that highly touted Chuck Jarnigan was handicapped against Western Michigan by a back injury suffered in an auto accident over Thanksgiving... Herb Thompson threw up on the sidelines after being removed from the game... Freshman Hod Fritz, from Freeport, who stands 6-4, is giving Ev Cochrane a run for the best shot on the team.

'Right of Way' Case Explained by Trott

Police Judge Emil G. Trott explained Monday why he recently ruled that the charge "failure to yield the right of way" does not constitute a crime in Iowa.

Judge Trott handed down the ruling last week in a case brought against Joseph Gene Hettrick, A2, 2013 H st. He said that this defendant was the first to bring such a case to court even though numerous charges of the same statute had been filed against motorists in recent years.

TROTT

"The charge is only an implication," he said. "It does not say you HAVE to do something."

Judge Trott said the statute reads: "The vehicle approaching the other from the right (upon coming to an intersection) shall have the right of way."

Does Not Constitute a Crime

He said that for criminal matters you can't make a crime by implication.

"If the statute said 'You SHALL YIELD the right of way,' this would make it a different matter," said the judge. "But it only says that one driver SHALL HAVE the right of way, without saying that the driver is required to grant it."

Decision Based on 1942 Case

The judge said the Hettrick case was a "fairly simple decision" his part. "I simply referred to the Iowa code which summarized a decision on the charge in 1942," he said.

The case he referred to was State vs. Brighi, Supreme court of Iowa, Dec. 15, 1942. It summarized the case as follows:

Information was filed against the defendant in the Ft. Dodge justice of the peace office. The information stated:

"(The defendant) did fail to yield the right of way, thereby causing a collision fatal to Mrs. Clyde Williamson, contrary to the statutes in such cases made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the State of Iowa."

The code goes on: "To this information the defendant entered a plea of innocent. Trial was had, resulting in a conviction and a fine of $100 and costs."

Defendant Appeals Case

"Appeal was taken to the district court of Webster county. The plea of innocent was withdrawn and a demurrer to the information was filed on the following grounds:

"1. The said information does not charge an offense against the laws of Iowa.

"2. That there is no clear statement of any affirmative act on the part of the defendant constituting an offense either of commission or omission such as defined by any statute of the State of Iowa.

"3. That there is no statute in the State of Iowa providing a penalty for the act charged in said information and that the court would be without jurisdiction to assess any penalty even admitting the defendant committed the act as charged in said information."

Court Upholds Defendant

The code, in explaining the decision of the supreme court, said: "The statute does not expressly forbid any act. And only by implication does it require one."

The code also states: "Strict construction of criminal statutes does not permit the definition of a public offense to depend upon implication."

That, said Judge Trott, was the basis for his decision.

Judge Trott wanted to point out, however, that civil action can be taken concerning the failure to yield statute. "The man on the right can try to collect damages from the other driver, but he cannot charge the man criminally and have him fined or jailed," Trott said.

Testimony Begins Today In Suit Against State

Jurors for the first lawsuit of the November term of Johnson county district court were selected Monday. The petit jury panel reported for duty at 10 a.m. and the selection of the jury was not completed until 4 p.m.

Those selected for jury duty were: Leo Sida, Mabel Rabas, Oris E. Connelly, Ed L. Kessler, Joe O. McGinnis, Esther E. McNabb, Ruth Crayne, Frank E. Schuller, Gertrude Paulus, Stanley J. Ham, Myrtle Conklin, and George W. Mellecker.

Testimony will begin today in the suit brought by Sam T. Morrison, of Iowa City, against the Iowa state highway commission.

Morrison is seeking judgment of $23,525 for land used by the highway commission in the new highway 6 cutoff south of Coralville last summer.

He claims that 4.09 acres of land was used, and that considerable damage has been caused to the remainder of his land by the relocation of the highway.

Another suit arising out of the highway construction was dismissed Saturday.

D. E. and Bessie Sweeping filed a dismissal of their action against the highway commission, stating that a settlement had been made. Details of the settlement were not listed.

36 from County Take Draft Exams

Thirty-six men from Johnson county were sent to Des Moines Monday to take pre-induction physical examinations under the selective service system.

Those who pass the examination will be called into the army at a later date. These men are those classified 1-A by the Johnson county draft board.

On Thursday of this week, eight local men are scheduled to be inducted into the army in Des Moines. This group will fill the county's December quota.

Funeral Services Today for John Walden

Funeral services for John P. Walden, 56, retired Iowa City contractor, will be at 2 p.m. today at the Hohenschuh mortuary. Walden died Sunday afternoon at his home at 702 E. Bloomington st., after a long illness.

Phillipsburg, Mo., four brothers, Fred Jefferson, Kansas City, Mo., and M. E. Jefferson, Hannibal, Mo., and two grandchildren also survive.

The Rev. A. C. Phoehl will officiate at the services. Burial will be in Memory Gardens.

ARRIVE FROM KOREA

First Lt. Donald F. Fetig, 204 N. Gilbert st., and Sfc. Richard Jacobson, 310 Melrose court, arrived in San Francisco Monday night on rotation from Korea.

The army's list included 43 Iowans that were returned to the U. S.
