

Ike Says He Will Run If Republicans Name Him As Candidate

Will Not Quit Job To Campaign for Party Nomination

PARIS (AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the world Monday that if the Republican party convention asks him to run for president of the United States he will give up his command here and enter the race.

But the general said he would not quit his job to campaign for the nomination.

The general's statement was read to several score correspondents in Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE) 22 hours after Senator Lodge of Massachusetts had announced in Washington that Eisenhower was a Republican and that his name would be entered in the March 11 primary in New Hampshire. Senator Lodge is spearheading a campaign in the general's behalf.

Emphasizing the great weight he attaches to his job as commander of North Atlantic pact forces, Eisenhower's statement said:

'Right of Citizens'

"There is no question of the right of American citizens to organize in pursuit of their common convictions. I realize that Senator Lodge and his associates are exercising this right in an attempt to place before me next July a duty that would transcend my present responsibility.

"In the absence, however, of a clear cut call to political duty I shall continue to devote my full attention and energies to the performance of the vital task to which I am assigned."

Senator Taft of Ohio, Governor Warren of California and Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, already have announced formally that they are candidates for the nomination at Chicago in July.

Europeans Saddened

The 61-year-old general's declaration was a dose of cold water to Europeans. His name, once associated with the liberation of Europe from the Nazis, has been linked with its defense against Communism since he came to organize SHAPE a year ago Monday.

"It will certainly be difficult to find another man whose very name will inspire as much confidence as Eisenhower's," said the Evening Standard of London.

Most Frenchmen declined to be quoted because they felt the presidential race is an internal United States matter. Some have been staying for weeks his departure from Europe would be a blow.

'Way to Beat Taft'

But one French editor, who declined to permit use of his name, said "if this is the way to beat Taft it is excellent."

Rightly or wrongly, many Europeans feel Senator Taft is not a wholehearted friend of the Atlantic pact plan for defense against the Russians.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, chief of staff at SHAPE, is widely considered the man most likely to succeed to the job should Eisenhower be given the nomination.

Lanham added that General Eisenhower did not intend to say anything more on the matter and "hopes his statement will convince our citizens and those of the other NATO countries of the responsibility he feels for his present duty."

Duty Is Key Word

To observers, however, "duty" appeared to be the key word.

The general's statement came out late this afternoon at the end of one of the biggest chases newspaper reporters have had here in a long time.

For weeks various correspondents have been writing speculative stories about whether the general would run or would refuse. Sunday Senator Lodge brought the speculation to a head. He told reporters the general was as much in the race as he could be while still wearing the uniform and "will not withdraw."

Raffensperger May Seek Another Grid Job

Evashevski to Visit City Next Monday

By JACK SQUIRE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Leonard Raffensperger, out as Iowa football coach, may seek a job elsewhere, he intimated to newsmen Monday as he pondered several alternatives for his future.

Raffensperger, who was replaced by Forest Evashevski Sunday night, still has a year to go on a three year contract and has been offered another position in the Iowa athletic department.

The exact nature of the proposed job was not revealed by Raff or Athletic Director Paul Brechler but it is reported to be concerned with counselling freshmen athletes.

Raff in No Hurry

"Under the present circumstances, I'm in no hurry to make any decision on the matter," Raffensperger said.

"I have been offered an attractive job which has a great deal of security to it. It's not directly connected with football but would deal with all athletics.

"I also plan to look into a few other possibilities, but at present I'm not at liberty to say what they are."

Raff did admit, however, that the "other possibilities" might include a coaching job elsewhere or might be outside athletics entirely.

Will Skip NCAA Meeting

Raff also said that he had changed his original plans and will not attend the NCAA coaches' convention in Cincinnati this week.

If Raffensperger does not accept the new position here, he will receive the $10,000 due him for the final year of his contract.

The status of Raffensperger's assistants was also unknown Monday and will continue so until Evashevski makes an announcement as to his complete staff.

Evashevski to Bring Aides

The new Iowa grid mentor has announced that he will bring three members of his staff at Washington State to Iowa. They are Alton Kireher, 41, his top assistant as backfield coach and former basketball coach at Michigan State; Robert Flora, 35, a teammate of Evashevski at Michigan; and Dan Snavely, 38, who generally worked with the line.

Raffensperger's principal aides in his two year regime were Pat Boland, line coach; Bob Fitch, end coach; Ben Douglas, backfield coach, and Wally Schwank, freshmen and JV coach.

Defense Problems Head Congressional Business

WASHINGTON (AP)— Congress convenes today for a session which promises to be dominated by defense problems and influenced throughout its course by the approaching national elections.

The second session of the 82nd congress begins at 11 a. m. (CST). The atmosphere in Washington Monday night was definitely political as members of the house and senate returned from their long winter vacation. Congress adjourned Oct. 20.

Prime topics of conversation on the hill were Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's apparent willingness to accept the Republican presidential nomination and a move to put Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) in the Ohio presidential primary.

Administration leaders are aiming for a brisk session so that congress can finish its business and adjourn before the major political conventions open in July.

All house seats will be at stake in November, as well as a third of the senate seats and the presidency and vice-presidency.

But Representative Martin of Massachusetts, Republican leader in the house, predicted a long session, extending beyond the July conventions. Although he doubts if there will be much legislation, he told reporters, appropriation bills and investigations are likely to delay adjournment.

Universal military training (UMT) is one problem congress may solve in the new session. It will also tackle a new program of military and economic aid for friendly foreign nations, the thorny question of economic controls at home, and defense spending.

President Truman will deliver his annual state-of-the-union message to a joint session of the senate and house Wednesday. It will outline his legislative program for the new year. Later Mr. Truman will deliver a major message on the domestic economy and a budget message. It is expected to ask for somewhere near $3 billion dollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill will address a joint session of congress Jan. 15.

Jan. 15 Deadline Set On Hawkeye Orders

Orders for the 1952 Hawkeye must be placed within the next week.

Ted Seldin, A3, Council Bluffs, Hawkeye business manager, reminded students Monday that all subscriptions for the yearbook must be in by Jan. 15. Orders may be placed at The Daily Iowan business office or at the Hawkeye office.

New innovations in this year's Hawkeye feature three-page foldouts depicting campus activity. Five of these foldouts will be included.

Other highlights of the 400-page volume include 16 pages of campus views and a 16-page queen section.

The senior pictures will be divided into colleges. Informal shots, individual portraits and the honorary organizations will be included in each of the college sections.

For the first time in recent years, a section on the graduate college will appear in the yearbook.

Art work on this 62d volume has been nearly eliminated to get more pictures into the book.

The books will be distributed about the middle of May.

Loyalty Board Refuses To Reconsider Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)— The government loyalty review board Monday notified John S. Service, ousted state department official, that it will not reconsider its finding that there is "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty.

Symington Resigns As Chief of RFC; McDonald Successor

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Truman Monday accepted the resignation of W. Stuart Symington as administrator of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and named Harry A. McDonald, now chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, to succeed him.

The white house said no successor has been chosen for McDonald in the SEC post.

Symington's resignation was made effective Jan. 15.

In his letter of resignation, Symington told the President:

"Last March, when I thought it best to leave the government, you decided to place me over here with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"This agency is in good shape. It has a fine organization and is functioning properly.

"For personal reasons I now think it best to return to private business as soon as that would be convenient to you."

In a letter, addressed to "Dear Stu," the President expressed his regret over the difficult task of severing official bonds "formed during my first months in the White House."

Symington was first secretary of the air force and later chairman of the National Security Resources board before taking on the RFC assignment.

He was appointed to the RFC to do a clean-up job when the agency was under heavy fire in congress on charges of yielding to influence in making loans.

McDonald, a Republican and a Detroit broker, has headed the SEC since 1949 and has been a member since 1947.

Reds Stall Talks, Vishinsky Urges UN Council Action

MUNSA, Korea (TUESDAY) (AP)— The Communists, in weird stalling tactics at the Korean armistice talks Monday, "acted like schoolgirls who had a secret and weren't telling their friends," the United Nations command spokesman declared.

A few hours later, in Paris, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky declared the Panmunjom negotiations had reached a deadlock and urged a high-level UN security council meeting to try to break it.

In thus renewing his efforts to throw the Korean affair into the UN, Vishinsky contended his proposal would not break up the Panmunjom meetings, but would merely seek to help them out of the rut "in which they have been floundering for six months."

Allied delegates at this forward camp had no comment on the connection between Vishinsky's move and the Communist tactics at the truce talks, but it appeared that the Red delegates were making sure there would be no progress while Vishinsky made his pitch.

The gyrations of the Reds Monday nevertheless amazed Allied officials. They hoped that the pattern of the Communist tactics would come clearer at further meetings.

Reds, Allies Tangle In Battle for Position

SEOUL, KOREA, Tuesday (AP)— United Nations infantry on the Korean western front fought fiercely for the 11th day Monday in efforts to regain a key advance position that the Reds took in an armored thrust Dec. 28.

Allied forces, edging slowly toward the objective, threw back two Communist attacks before dawn and then launched a strong assault of their own.

Carlsen Gets Within 110 Miles of Safety

LONDON (AP)— Capt. Kurt Carlsen and his hurricane-shattered ship plugged through Atlantic swells at walking pace Monday to within 110 miles of safety.

Latest reports from the little convoy said the tug Turmoil had towed the skipper and his listing Flying Enterprise two thirds of the way to the Cornish port of Falmouth which they hope to reach sometime Wednesday.

Falmouth is enjoying a boom as a result of Carlsen's imminent arrival. The sleepy little Cornish port is suddenly crowded. Hotels and restaurants are packed with visitors. Nearly 100 newsmen are there to report the arrival of the Flying Enterprise and more are arriving on each train.

The slow, hazardous journey began Saturday from 300 miles west of the English coast where the Flying Enterprise — the ship Carlsen refused to abandon — was almost capsized by the worst Atlantic storm in half a century.

Carlsen's vessel was reported riding easily in tow.

Carlsen and Mate Kenneth Daney of the Turmoil who made a perilous leap aboard the freighter last Saturday, spent a comfortable evening aboard the crippled ship. They had plenty to eat for the first time since the journey began and even enjoyed the luxury of reading by candle light.

Apartment House Damaged by Fire

A fire which began late Monday afternoon in a 4 apartment building at 212 E. Bloomington street burned out the basement and ground floor supports and did considerable smoke damage throughout the building, Assistant Fire Chief H. T. McNabb said.

None of the six occupants of the building were injured in the fire. They are Arnold J. Golub, G. Boston, Mass.; Walter Spieth, G. Iowa City; Vera M. Nelson, general duty nurse, and Pearl Allen, assistant to the director of nursing, both of the SUI college of nursing; Erma Moneypenny and Norma Knebel.

The building is owned by J. A. Benson, now vacationing in Florida.

Iowa Remains Perfect; Leads At Half, 26-24

ANN ARBOR, MICH.— Iowa's basketball team stayed among the ranks of the unbeaten Monday night by downing Michigan 54-46 before 1,500 fans.

Chuck Darling, the Hawkeyes' 6-foot 8-inch center, made it tough for Michigan under both baskets and paced the scorers with 17 points.

The win gave Iowa a perfect two-game record in the young Western conference race and an overall mark of nine straight victories. It was Michigan's second league defeat and sixth loss in nine games this year.

The Iowans, with the scoring punch centered in Darling, forward Herb Thompson and guard Bob Clifton, stepped out to a 15-10 first quarter lead before Michigan began to hit and get back in the game.

Michigan, whose center Milt Mead was high Wolverine with 12 points, pulled to within two points, 26-24, at the intermission. The Hawkeyes kept that margin until midway in the third quarter when Darling tipped in a rebound and Clifton a set-up and a free throw to enlarge the lead to 38-31.

From there on the closest the Wolverines came was 47-43 in the final period.

The Hawkeyes stalled out the last three minutes.

Clifton finished with 16 points before fouling out with two seconds left and Thompson had 13. Michigan lost forward Jim Skala and Mead on fouls.

The Hawkeyes hit on five of their first nine shots from the field to take a 12-4 lead over Michigan. Clifton and Thompson each hit twice and Darling tipped in another.

Michigan only hit three times from the floor in the first quarter.

After the half it was Clifton and Thompson who got Iowa off to another start with two quick baskets. After Michigan's Bob Jewel dropped in a two-pointer, Darling sank a free throw and Thompson came back with a successful jump shot to put Iowa ahead, 32-26.

Iowa enlarged its lead to 10 points late in the third quarter but a desperation fourth quarter start netted Michigan six quick points and it looked like the gap might be closing. With the score 47-43 Darling got two fast tip-ins and the Hawkeyes began to stall. Michigan picked up one point on a foul shot by Jewel and a basket from an interception by Mead. A breakaway by Thompson and a free throw by Skip Greene in the final seconds fashioned the ultimate score.

The teams were about even on shot averages with Michigan connecting on 18 out of 49 for 32 per cent while Iowa hit 20 from the floor out of 57 for 35 per cent.

A Gift From the Heart

The following letter has been submitted by the SUI chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, professional commerce fraternity. This is the first group to officially pledge blood for the Red Cross drive which opens next month in Iowa City.

Mrs. Leslie Moeller, chairman of the Red Cross Blood program, said Monday that in the event there are too many volunteers, donors will be drawn by lot.

TO THE STUDENTS OF SUI:

Since the outbreak of the Korean conflict, the armed forces of the United States and those of the United Nations have found it necessary to draw upon the blood reserves of the United States. This reserve has become alarmingly low. Consequently, the American Red Cross is currently sponsoring a blood donor campaign entitled, "A Gift from the Heart."

At a recent meeting, the members of Epsilon chapter of Delta Sigma Pi heartily endorsed the Red Cross' campaign and have pledged to give their blood when the "blood-mobile" is in Iowa City (Feb. 19, 20, and 21). We are writing this letter in hopes that other organizations on campus, fraternal and otherwise, will follow suit.

We feel that if every organization on campus can donate at least 20 pints of blood, a total of over 700 pints of blood can be donated. This would be equal to 10 per cent of the donation of the entire U.S. up to last September! Since the greatest percentage of male members on campus would be in the armed forces if it were not for college, we feel that the least we can do is to donate blood to a very worthy cause.

How about it "Hawkeyes", will you go along with us and give "A Gift from the Heart"?

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A TOURIST stopped at a gift shoppe in the mountains of Arkansas in search of souvenir postcards to mail back to New York. He selected some shots of gangling hillbillies in front of a dilapidated old cabin, and asked the sprightly, well-turned-out girl who was waiting on him, "How far into the hills would I have to go to find gawks like this?" The girl laughed and admitted, "Mister, a bunch of us young folks dressed up one Sunday and took these pictures not ten blocks from the state capital in Little Rock just to fool suckers like you."

Newt Todd tells of a man who was looking across his neighbor's lawn on Christmas Eve and observed, "The Smiths are bringing in a Yule log." "Yule log, my eye," corrected his wife. "That's Smith!" Newt also writes that the trouble with most wallflowers is their stems.

Interpreting the News - Supporters Expect Ike's Return to U.S.

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

Close followers — and leaders — of the Eisenhower for president boom showed little sign yesterday of interpreting too literally the general's words about taking a personal part in the pre-convention campaign.

There was no more question about his willingness to accept the nomination. There had been none for the last four or five months in the minds of those who

TV-Star Ray Malone Started Show Business at Age of 4

By CELIA WEBSTER
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK — For a guy who looks like a teen-ager, it's astonishing to hear him tell of 22 years in show business, not to mention that he has a wife and 3-year-old daughter.

The young man with the deceptively boyish appearance is Ray Malone, whose dancing feet brought him to the attention of millions of television viewers on the late Broadway Open House show.

His style of tap dancing lends itself to the unusual. Ideas and situations go to Malone's feet, eventually arriving before the footlights and cameras in the guise of an intricate dance routine.

Ray has almost always known the call of the entertainment world. As a child of four, he and his brother, Howard, who was then eight, started in show business as dancers.

The two youngsters and Joe Caleb, their partner, also of a tender age, toured the circuits booked as "The Three Southern Gentlemen." When Ray was eight, he and Howard joined the Major Bowes circuit.

Eventually, Ray graduated to such Broadway hits as "Best Foot Forward," "Raze the Roof" and "Banjo Eyes" with Eddie Cantor. The movies have also helped to round up his career.

Since the final curtain fell on the raucous "Open House," Ray has been a very busy young man making many personal appearances, television spot spots, and entertaining in night clubs throughout the country.

Malone tells of the original purpose "Broadway Open House" realized in its short life. It was intended to give talented, little known showpeople a chance. As a result, it skyrocketed an unknown girl by the name of Virginia Egnor, now the fabulous Dagmar, to fame and brought to light such talented people as Buddy Greco, Eileen Barton, Dave Street and others.

Ray, in speaking of Dagmar, observes, "I love to work with Dagmar. She keeps in touch with me." Dagmar used to refer to Ray as her little hush puppy.

Illinois to Undergo Mock Air Attack

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 400 privately owned planes will stage an imaginary attack on Illinois Saturday in the biggest test yet of the state's air raid warning system.

All of the state's 225 fully organized observation posts as well as two filter centers in Chicago and Springfield will be manned from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. while the exercise is under way.

Under the civil defense program, these posts have been established to detect and trace the course of any low-flying enemy planes.

The Civil Air Patrol will supply 200 of the planes. The others will be furnished by the Flying Farmers and other private, civilian air groups.

The flying courses have been fixed so that every observation post will see action.

After the courses of the planes are plotted, the information will be flashed immediately to the U.S. air force defense control centers for this region.

Observation posts in southern Wisconsin and eastern Iowa also will participate.

NEW YORK — When Rip Van Winkle awoke from his legendary 20-year nap in the rolling Catskills, he was startled by the many changes. "But nothing he encountered would have shaken him as much as the change that has taken place in one of his favorite valleys a few miles from where he par-took of the hospitality of "the little men."

THIS IS THE ENTRANCE to the atom bomb-proof storage vault built into the mountainside.

Forbidding Fortress
Where once was all peaceful-looking, the serenity has been altered considerably by the addition of a forbidding fortress cut into the side of a mountain. For here has been established the Iron Mountain Atomic Storage corporation, the east's first especially designed bombproof storage vault for the safeguarding of bank records, insurance policies, museum treasures and the important papers of private corporations.

Vaults
The individual vaults in this huge subterranean bank vary in size from the cubic content of a freight car to that of a small house.

Situated 125 miles above Times Square, New York city, in the shafts of an abandoned iron ore company, the site had been worked as an underground mushroom farm until the owner, Herman Knaut, Sr., became aware in a roundabout way of the great need for a storehouse of this kind.

A devout Lutheran, he helped his church in bringing refugees from the Soviet-dominated Baltic countries in 1948, guaranteeing a year's employment to 350 of them as mushroom farmers.

Heard
From them he heard how the destruction of business records and art treasures during war could bring misery to individuals as well as the country. This led to consultations with engineers and scientists as to the feasibility of the iron mine-mushroom farm into a huge atom bomb-proof cavern.

When the survey was completed it was established that the iron mountain was still rich in ore and provided a shield of the same resistance to radio-activity as 50 feet of lead. Construction was started in Jan., 1951, and in a few months 400 of the contemplated 1,000 chambers were finished.

Cost
The project, the eventual cost of which will be $4 million, consists of several levels from 100 to 300 feet below the surface. Solid rock, camouflaged against hostile airmen, forms the place.

Within the great cavern airtight, watertight floors, walls and ceilings have been built of concrete laced with steel, and thick steel doors, one of them weighing 38 tons, are guarded by both time locks and carefully chosen custo-

WORKMEN ARE SHOWN installing a massive door to the main entrance of the cavern.

U.S. Built
According to the American Institute of Iron and Steel after the atomic bomb explosion at Hiroshima it was discovered that American-built vaults and their heavy steel doors were the only ones to stand up against the blast, which may be the reason why the Atomic Storage corporation is receiving so many requests for space from foreign business firms.

The snug interior of the cavern will be guarded around the clock, will have electric alarms and is completely air conditioned. Electricity is supplied by public power lines, but should an emergency arise there is a complete standby system.

Should the telephone line go out of kilter a radio transmitter is ready to take over. Dampness, a problem where the storage of papers is concerned, has been reckoned by the installation of the latest type of drainage system.

Alien GI Trainees Find Army Life A Rosy Prospect

FORT DIX, N. J. (AP) — A new bunch of privates in the U. S. army find the life of a GI trainee a rosy prospect.

They like the food, they like their officers, they like their duties — in fact, they like the army. Collectively, they've won high praise from their officers.

These privates, numbering 31 in all, represent the first group of aliens accepted for service in the U. S. army. They now are nearing the end of a 16-week basic training program.

Inducted in Germany, these army-loving privates arrived in America about three months ago. Since then they seem to have taken to the army like their American buddies take to furloughs.

Private Michael Daradan, who was born in a town near Moscow 27 years ago, summed up his feelings with a typical American expression.

"This is great stuff," he said, as a land mine exploded nearby during a training demonstration.

Daradan and his 30 fellow aliens have a five-year hitch in the army ahead of them. At the end of that time, those honorably discharged will be eligible for U. S. citizenship. Meanwhile, they get the same pay, benefits and allowances as citizen soldiers.

They came here by virtue of a 1951 congressional act which authorized the admission of 2,500 aliens to the army. There are supposed to be an additional batch of aliens starting training every month.

Sixteen other aliens inducted with Daradan's group were sent to Fort Devens, Mass., for instruction in English. The 31 here are considered satisfactory for English-speaking purposes.

Capt. Drexel M. Ace, commander of one of the two alien-studied companies, said flatly:

"I wish I had a whole company of those aliens. They far surpass our men."

"They know they have to make good. They never make the same mistake twice. Their goal is too big to miss."

Most of the alien trainees apparently have big plans for the future — whether it be in the army or civilian life. Some expressed a desire to marry an American girl and settle down. Some wanted to make the army their career. Some said they primarily wanted to "fight communism."

Tell It to the Birds - Pigeons Still Earn Their Keep

— Have 'Old Soldiers' Home

By DICK LA COSTE
Central Press Correspondent

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J. — Here at the army's only pigeon breeding and training center, there lives a glamorous group of pensioned pigeons. They live in semi-retirement. What's more, like all old soldiers, they like their luxuries and exclusive home.

Also, like old soldiers, maybe they like to swap war yarns. Take GI Joe for instance. If you understood pigeon English, you might hear Joe telling the birds how he saved the lives of 1,000 American soldiers.

Here's the story:
As in all armies, even the generals sometimes don't know just how good their men are. In this instance, a famous general's men advanced faster than scheduled. One thousand of them slashed through the enemy's defenses to occupy a town in no time flat.

Meanwhile, Allied bombers had the town zeroed in for annihilation that night. No messages could get through. Radio and radar this time were as useless as voice sound.

The general racked his brain. Being an oldtimer who had been around long before radio and radar, he knew about pigeons. So he called for one — a patriotic pigeon who, like Garcia, would get the message through at all costs.

"GI Joe" was chosen to carry the message across the channel to England. Strapped to his back was a small cartridge containing a message to the bomber skipper to cancel the scheduled raid on the German town.

To make a long story short, Joe arrived in England just as the bombers were taking off. Result: at least 1,000 American and Allied lives were saved.

Another World War II hero living at the Center is Snooky. This bird holds the distinction of being the first messenger — winged or otherwise — to carry a tactical message on enemy gun emplacements after the invasion of France.

Snooky flew 90 miles in less than 1 1/2 hours to deliver his message, thus carving his niche in the pigeon hall of fame by that deed of derring-do.

Pigeons pass? Not so you'd notice it! Though one of the oldest means of communications, carrier pigeons are a vital and necessary modern means of military communications.

Because of his inherent homing instincts, the pigeon succeeds when all other means fail.

At the Fort Monmouth training center, birds of the finest strain are trained with care and patience by the Army's Signal Corps pigeon experts. There the pigeon's natural homing instincts are perfected.

These Signal Corps birds, carrying messages in capsules harnessed to their backs, knife through the atmosphere at speeds as high as a mile a minute. Neither storms nor winds daunt them. Often they cover as many as 700 miles a day, a distance they can bridge in approximately 15 hours.

Otto Meyer, the Center's chief, is acclaimed by pigeon fanciers as one of the country's foremost carrier pigeon authorities.

The record military flight made by one of Meyer's birds took place in 1939 when a pigeon flew with a message from Maine to Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Distance? Exactly 2,300 miles.

Shoe Comfort Scores in Poll

The theory, held dear especially by the male sex, that most women will endure willingly any discomfort as long as vanity is served, received a setback in a recent survey conducted by the University of California laboratory of performance physiology.

In the course of this study, some 600 coeds were questioned as to what influenced them most when buying shoes. To everyone's surprise, some 98 per cent considered comfort the most important single factor. To top it off, a smaller percentage of male students placed primary stress on comfort!

Price was a very minor consideration in purchasing new shoes, with only one-third of the female students rating it first. Results of the survey revealed that the average American girl realizes that foot fitness is a requisite for general body health and comfort.

Consulted in this connection, a leading foot specialist expressed little surprise at the outcome of the poll. He corroborated the close connection between foot care and body health, and cited medical histories of women patients who had been freed of a variety of foot complaints after being fitted with comfortable, laced oxfords that had low heels and resilient leather soles and uppers.

NEW YORK (AP) — Westinghouse Electric company of Springfield, Mass., has a machine to wring the water right out of the air. It is an electric dehumidifier. Put the two-foot high cabinet in the basement or other room, plug it in, and it will squeeze three gallons of water a day out of the atmosphere. The machine traps water like a glass of cold water that sweats moisture on a hot day. Air is drawn into the machine by a fan and passed over a copper tube evaporator which condenses the water out of the air and trips it into a 12-quart bucket. A clock turns the machine on and off when needed.

U. S. Rubber company of New York has a simple device for getting rid of snow on your shoes — a rubber door mat. The company says the door mat has a "unique three-dimensional pattern" which has, in the words of the company, "excellent foot cleaning properties." The mat is available in standard sizes of 24 and 30 inches or you can buy it by the yard in 30-inch widths in black, maroon, red or green.

For girls who knit, here's a new product called a "knit wit." It helps you figure out just how many stitches to cast for any particular gauge of yarn for any given number of inches. The sliding calculator computes the number of inches from one to 100 for yarn from four to nine gauge. The device is made by Progressive Enterprises of Los Angeles.

Refrigerators made by Admiral corporation in Galesburg, Ill., have a swift system for getting rid of frost on cooling coils. You press a button and heating elements under the coils melt the frost in seven to ten minutes. The company calls it "flash defrosting."

THE SLIM SILHOUETTE sets the prevailing motif for spring styles in 1952. The corseted midriff is exemplified in this princess coat shown by designer Pauline Trigere. The fitted coat is of upholstery fabric in beige and green stripes.

NEW YORK (AP) — The leap year silhouette for spring accents curving, feminine lines, a slim waist and some nostalgic ladylike touches such as Gibson Girl sleeves and lacy lingerie trimmings.

Such are the style trends that will be exhibited to some 150 visiting fashion editors from the United States and abroad during a week of New York dress institute previews that started Monday.

After that the group of ladies will board trains and planes for their home towns, armed with detailed information on what U.S. women will wear next spring.

This year they will find a few dramatic silhouette changes to report to the folks back home, but they will have heartening news of restrained and ladylike fashions, beautiful fabrics and enough variety of styling to suit all tastes and figure types.

Those voluminous skirts and multiple petticoats that have swished through the winter season, recalling the days of civil war crinolines, have been modified, to the great relief of all concerned. Full skirts still will be worn for leisure and after-five occasions, but the spring suit is slim and streamlined, and street wear generally returns to the narrow line.

No violent extremes are evident in the spring lineup — another cause for rejoicing among customers and retailers. Women will find the new styles easy to wear, with enough choice in silhouette to suit every taste and figure. Some prices, particularly of woolen garments, are slightly lower than last fall, because of the break in the international wool market. Others remain about the same. One bright note is that fabrics are handsomer than in many years, and though costs may seem steep as compared with a few years ago, quality is unquestioned.

A New Chapter—

The "Noble Experiment," another chapter in the trials and tribulations of Iowa football, has ended and a new author is being brought in to live up to this long unhappy story.

Leonard Raffensperger, a promising but unknown home grown product was given the Hawkeye typewriter two years ago but as things turned out his script proved unsatisfactory to too many readers. Now Forest Evashevski, a gentleman of rising prominence in better literary circles, is being imported from the west to try his hand. The names are different, but the problems, unfortunately remain the same.

Actually, those of us who have been following the most recent episodes in the story had pretty much guessed that a change was coming. The big tip-off, of course, came when Paul Brechler and two other Iowa officials, met with Evashevski in Denver Dec. 28. Since all parties saw fit to travel about 1,000 miles for the conference, it was obvious that they did more than talk about the weather while there.

The dispatch with which the whole thing was handled, however, did come as a bit of a surprise, especially compared to the proceedings two years ago when Dr. Eddie Anderson resigned.

Then, you'll recall, Raffensperger was hired but only after a cross country trek by athletic department officials failed to land certain other candidates. It was later to be learned that Iowa was genuinely after several "big names," and that when these turned down offers, the "Noble Experiment" was launched.

Since a lesser known figure would have to be obtained, it was decided that Raff, an Iowa graduate with a fine record in the state's high school ranks would be an excellent prospect, for, he, more than any other candidate of similar experience had the credentials to get solid backing from the alumni and the state.

The logic was that any shortcomings he had as far as college coaching experience was concerned could be made up for by surrounding him with capable assistants. However, that, in time was to become a sore point between Raff and the board in control of athletics.

Bernie Masterson, well-known T-formation expert was hired as backfield coach but resigned after one year.

Not Enough Assistants

But despite the requests of Brechler and members of the board that he hire another backfield coach and other assistants, too, Raff went along with his present staff, numerically one of the smallest of any major football school.

There were other factors, too, such as the problem of discipline and morale, all of course, in addition to the team's won-loss record. In the end, it was the threat of lost alumni support as much as anything else that prompted the move.

In spite of all this, however, never overlook the fact that in his two years as head man he never ceased to conduct himself as a gentleman on and off the field.

For some time now, it's been this observer's opinion (and strictly opinion) that Raff lacked the temperament and technical equipment to compete successfully in the Big Ten.

But, if that's a crime, it's one that many of us are equally guilty of in our undertakings, and to Raff's credit it can't be denied that he gave Iowa his all. Perhaps under different circumstances and with a little more help from Lady Luck it might have worked out.

At any rate, it's to be hoped that Raff sees fit to accept the offered position in the athletic department in which he certainly could help the Hawkeye's athletic cause.

As for Evashevski, he comes here heralded as one of the bright young names in the coaching profession and with a background befitting the rugged task he'll encounter at Iowa.

In his last job at Washington State, a traditional tail-end in the Pacific Coast conference, Evashevski faced many of the same problems that Hawkeye coaches long have been bothered with—comparatively small enrollment, lack of adequate alumni financial support, absence of winning tradition and heated competition for talent from bigger and richer schools. That he was able to solve those problems and give the Cougars a team that won seven of 10 games last season, speaks hopefully for the future at Iowa.

There's no reason we can think of why the choice of Evashevski should not be a popular one and pleasing to the various alumni groups. That hasn't always been the case around here, you know, and without everyone rowing in the same direction, the Big Ten can be a mighty tough stream.

Raff Considering Other Jobs

letic department Monday had Fitch definitely seeking a new job while Boland, who has been on the Hawkeye staff since 1937, was seen as the best possibility to remain here.

Salary Still Unknown

Meanwhile, there was continued speculation on the salary that Evashevski will receive with his five year contract. It's generally felt that the former Michigan blocking back star will get possibly as much as $15,000 for the task of bringing Iowa up in the Big Ten grid picture.

The exact amount will eventually come out in the year-end listing of salaries earned by state employees.

Word from Pullman, Wash., Monday was that Evashevski will attend the Cincinnati meetings and stop in Iowa City next Monday and Tuesday on his way back to the Pacific coast. He is due to assume his new post Feb. 1.

Will Use Single Wing

The new Iowa head man, 33, will introduce the deceptive, Michigan-type single wing attack here that he learned under Fritz Crisler, who, incidentally, was reported to have been instrumental in arranging contact between Evashevski and Iowa officials.

Evashevski was first contacted by phone during Christmas vacation by Brechler and later, the pair along with two other Iowa officials, met in Denver where preliminary negotiations were carried on. Brechler and his committee then reported to the full 13-man board in control of athletics which met Saturday night and decided on the change.

Evashevski's decision to leave Washington State, long a second-rate grid power in the Pacific Coast conference, came despite his team's 7-3 record last season, the promise of a top Rose bowl contender next fall, and a reported increase in salary.

His salary at Washington State was said to be close to $13,000, and the proposed raise might have brought that figure to $15,000, according to some stories from Washington.

Impressed with Iowa

However, the story goes that Evashevski was dissatisfied with certain aspects of the Washington State athletic setup and was anxious to coach in the Big Ten. Moreover, he was impressed with Iowa facilities after his stay here in pre-flight school during the war.

He was quarterback and path clearer at blocking back for the famed Tommy Harmon at Michigan from 1938-40 and has had several coaching positions since leaving school.

He started as head coach at Hamilton college (N.Y.) in 1941 and moved to Pitt the following year as backfield mentor. After a navy hitch he was Biggie Munn's backfield coach at Syracuse in 1946 and for the next three years at Michigan State, from where he moved to Washington State in 1950.

His team won four, lost three, and tied two in his first season there.

In addition to the single wing, he employs occasional T-formation plays.

Indiana Tumbles To Ohio State, 73-72; Illini Win

Freeze Fails For Hoosiers; Spartans Roll

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Ohio State's lowly Buckeyes upset undefeated Indiana, ranked fourth in the Associated Press poll 73-72 Monday night. Indiana had won eight straight games. The Buckeye victory was its third in nine starts.

An overhook shot by reserve guard Dick Dawe just before the final gun gave Ohio State the victory.

Indiana had tried to freeze the ball with four minutes to go and a lead of 72-67.

Ohio State had lost three of its stars on personal fouls — center Paul Ebert and forwards Tom Williams and Ralph Armstrong.

Two field goals by reserve guard Dean Cook made the score 72-71. With three seconds to go Ohio State reserve forward Tommy Hague got a free throw, but missed. Dawe recovered the ball in the scramble and put in the winning points.

Indiana led the game, all the way, but never by more than seven points. Indiana center Don Schlundt was high scorer with 18 points.

Indiana led 43-41 at halftime. Ebert, who played only 15 minutes, led Ohio State scorers with 15 points.

Ohio State lost its Big Ten opener last Saturday to Northwestern, 75-70, while Indiana was defeating Michigan 58-46.

Looking Over the Hawkeye State

Michigan State blasted its way into the win column of the Western Conference basketball race Monday night by throwing a barrage of baskets to overpower Northwestern, 82-49, before a crowd of 8,184.

The Spartans, shaded 61-60 by Iowa in their Big Ten opener, galloped away to a fat early lead. By halftime the only question in the game was the width of MSC's winning margin.

Northwestern, a 75-70 victor over Ohio State in its conference opener, didn't penetrate the tight Michigan State defense. Center Frank Petracek, leading Northwestern scorer this season, was held to nine points.

Michigan State poured in 20 baskets in the first half to only eight for Northwestern. The Spartans led, 25-13, at the quarter, had a 46-25 advantage at the half, and were ahead, 63-37, going into the final quarter. The 82 points total set a new Michigan State field house record.

MSC center Bob Carey, who worked only about half of the game, was high for his team with 14 points. Six of his seven baskets were made in the first half.

Iowa Players Comment

Iowa's football players had varying opinions Monday on the coaching change that brought Washington State's Forest Evashevski in as new head football coach and moved out Len Raffensperger with a still a year to go on his contract.

Players commented as follows:

Andy Buntz, senior tackle: "Raff was a good coach but it's a rough job to move right in as coach of a Big Ten school almost straight from high school coaching with no college experience. Iowa has the personnel for the single wing and Evashevski's variety I understand has all the trickiness of the T."

Ron Fairchild, senior guard: "One of Raff's strongest attributes was that he and Line Coach Pat Boland built a strong forward wall. The two put out a line where they really didn't have the material. Pat's one of the best in the business. I'd hate to see him go."

Austin Turner, senior guard: "Iowa needs the single wing. We've never been very fast and will be even slower next season. We're just not fast enough for the T, and speed isn't quite so important in the single wing. And in Dusty Rice, we certainly have an excellent triple threat tailback who can pass, run, and kick."

Bob Phillips, sophomore defensive halfback: "We've got good big ends in the line in Fenton and Swartzendruber to help a tailback run the ends. Bob Stearnes is a good triple threat man and so is Rice. Using the T this past season was one of our biggest drawbacks. Raff knew his football fundamentals but his downfall was the lack of ability to work up the players psychologically for the games."

There were too many games when the team didn't care if it won the game or not.

Don Comack, senior halfback: "Raff's weakness was that when he first started he was too easy going. This year when he tried to clamp down, it didn't work. I was sorry to see that he wasn't given another chance to prove himself. I hope he decides to accept the offer of another position at Iowa and stays on."

Mike Riley, senior linebacker: "Pat Boland is the best line coach in the business. I hope Evashevski can find room on his coaching staff for him."

Don Swartzendruber, junior end: "We need to work as a unit more. In the pinches last year, Raff didn't seem to have the right man at the right place at the right time. Once or twice we had only ten men on the field when play started."

Andy Houg, sophomore end: "Raff really knew his fundamentals and he had good enough plays but we didn't seem to use them. I liked Raff very much but when he talked he couldn't seem to inspire us to win."

Binky Broeder, freshman back: "Raff was hard working but it seemed to me he wasn't always the boss of the team. But I understand Evashevski lets you know who is boss right away."

Badgers Scare Illinois Before Losing, 53-49

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — Undeclared Illinois, trailing 30-20 in the second quarter, broke loose in the last half Monday night to trim Wisconsin's 53-49 for its second successive Big Ten basketball victory and its ninth of the season.

Leading Wisconsin's second quarter surge was Paul Morrow who hit two quick field goals and two free throws.

With 90 seconds to go before halftime, Illinois rallied behind two hook shots by John Kerr and a rebound by Irv Bemoras to trail 30-29 at intermission.

In the first half, the Badgers hit 11 out of 30 shots from the court and maintained a zone defense which baffled the Illini until late in the second period.

The lead was jockeyed in the third period and eventually stayed at 43-43 after Morrow had made a free toss at the start of the fourth.

Then Kerr banged in two rebounds, Bob Peterson counted from the foul line and Kerr also made a charity toss to run the score 49-43 for Illinois.

Wisconsin could never close the gap thereafter.

Illinois, ranked second nationally in the Associated Press poll this week, connected on only 21 field goals out of 85 attempts while Wisconsin hit on 17 of 62.

One of the highlights of the game was the close guarding of Ab Nicholas, high scoring Wisconsin guard, by Irv Bemoras. Nicholas was held to three baskets.

72 County Youths Scheduled for Draft Exams This Month

Seventy-two men from Johnson county will travel to Des Moines this month for pre-induction physical examinations, local selective service officials announced Monday.

Officials said the group is the largest to go for physicals since the beginning of the Korean war. Thirty-six men are scheduled to go to Des Moines Monday for the examinations. The other 36 will go Jan. 23.

The men scheduled to take the examinations are those now classified 1-A in the county but who have not yet qualified physically for the draft.

Forty-four men are scheduled to be drafted into the army Jan. 28 to fill the county's quota for this month.

Yocum Files Suit Asking $7,742 for Remodeling Costs

Suit has been filed in Johnson county district court by Curtis Yocum against Elmer and Agnes Leu asking judgment of $7,742.28 claimed due for remodeling costs on a building he leased from the defendants.

Yocum, operator of a restaurant on S. Riverside drive, states that on Feb. 13, 1951 the defendants agreed to pay for improvements on the building up to $2,000. He claims that later all parties agreed that the improvements would cost much more.

Yocum says the remodeling cost about $11,750. He claims that since last March he has withheld a total of $4,007.72 from rentals he would have paid. He charges that $7,742.28 is still due from the defendants for the remodeling costs, which he has paid.

Ratner to Speak At SUI Waygoose Banquet

Joseph E. Ratner, editor-in-chief of Better Homes & Gardens magazine, will be the featured speaker at the annual SUI Waygoose-banquet Friday night.

Ratner's topic will be "Are Editors Going Nuts About Research?" The dinner, sponsored by the Associated Students of Journalism, will be held at the Methodist church. Tickets at $1.25 are available at the journalism office.

The Waygoose banquet is the continuation of an old printer's tradition. During the fall or winter every year the master of the print shop held a banquet to which he invited all of the workers in his shop. It was one of the few occasions when the master and his printers met at a social gathering.

Ratner joined the Meredith Publishing company as a research associate in 1946. He became director of editorial research in 1947, managing editor of Better Homes & Gardens in 1948 and editor-in-chief in 1950.

In 1950, Ratner served as a member of the national research committee of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity.

He is a special lecturer in business and journalism at Drake university community college and is president of the Des Moines adult education council.

Articles by Ratner have appeared in Printers' Ink, Journal of Marketing, Harvard Business Review, Journal of Business, Advertising Age, Retailing and Successful Farming.

Ratner served as a lieutenant commander in the troop transport amphibious forces of the U.S. navy during World War II.

He received his Ph.D. degree in 1930 and his Master of Business Administration degree in 1932 from the University of Chicago school of business.

After instructing in marketing and business administration at the University of Chicago from 1930 to 1935, Ratner became advertising manager of the Deep Rock Oil corporation in Chicago. He later became superintendent of operations of the western division of the company.

Red Chinese Racket Consumes Millions

HONG KONG (AP) — The Chinese Communist extortion racket, leveled at millions of Chinese living overseas, is still yielding a golden harvest of millions of dollars, despite worldwide exposure of the practice.

Chinese merchants and tradesmen scattered in populous communities throughout southeast Asia probably are the chief financial victims, an Associated Press survey indicated Monday.

The Reds force Chinese living at home to write relatives abroad for money under threat of dispossession of the writer's property, and even death, if the payments aren't made.

"Patriotic Contributions"

Overseas Chinese call this "extortion." The Reds call it "patriotic contributions" to the motherland.

Most of the money extracted from abroad goes through Hong Kong on its way to Red China's coffers — hungry for foreign exchange. There are no limitations on remittances into China from this British crown colony. Many countries prohibit sending money directly to China, but there is no such ban on funds sent to Hong Kong.

Correspondents have questioned Chinese throughout southeast Asia. Most of them said that in spite of wide publicity, the racket still is going on.

Requests Repeated

However, many have stopped sending money, because they found that one remittance merely brought a request for another and seldom saved the folks at home from Red vengeance.

Here are the reports:

Indochina: AP correspondent Larry Allen said that 600,000 Chinese in Saigon and Cholon, many of whom are wealthy rice dealers, have paid demands from 1,000 to 1-million piastres. The official value of the piastre is 20 to 1 U.S. dollar; thus the demands range from $50 to $50,000 each. The total can only be guessed.

Indonesia Touched

Indonesia: In this newly independent country, which recognizes Red China, AP correspondent Bob Krown learned that requests for funds range from 3,000 to 10,000 Hong Kong dollars (about $500 to $1,500). Indonesia has stiff exchange barriers, so the money has to move through non-official channels.

Malaya: In Singapore AP correspondent Jack BacBeth learned that the Teochew Chinese community, which includes many owners of land in China, received demands totaling 58 million Hong Kong dollars ($8,923,000), during 1951. There is no telling how much was paid.

Civil Service Lists Competitive Exams

The U. S. Civil Service commission Monday announced two examinations for positions in the United States.

Positions are open for chemists, physicists, and meteorologists at the Air Force Research Center, Cambridge, Mass. Openings for the filling of substitute postal transportation clerks are also available.

The qualifications for the examination for applicants for the chemist, physicist, and meteorologist positions are the meeting of a basic requirement of education and experience, or both, and 1 1/2 to 4 years of appropriate professional experience.

Salaries for the chemist, meteorologist and physicist range from $4,205 to $10,800 a year. The postal clerk applicants must be males entitled to veteran preference and are required to pass a written test. The hourly pay rate is $1.71 1/2.

Eligible residents of Iowa must file their applications not later than Feb. 5, for the latter post.

Hershey Announces New Draft Rules

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, Monday announced that the 1951 amendments to the selective service law provide that students are henceforth to be deferred instead of being drafted and then having their induction postponed.

A student who is entitled to a statutory I-S deferment must be ordered for induction, Hershey pointed out, before he can be deferred by his local board.

If an SUI student is ordered for induction he should immediately request Registrar Ted McCarrel to give his local board official notice that he is a full-time student doing satisfactory work and that he enrolled before the induction order was mailed.

The selective service law places on each registrant the obligation of keeping the local board advised of his current status. Hershey suggested that students have the school send official notice to the draft board as soon as the student passes his preinduction physical.

If the local board has been notified that the student is pursuing a full-time course, Hershey advised, any chance of a mix-up depriving the student of his I-S classification would be eliminated. Under the new law President Truman prescribed the Class II-S student deferment program. Students may be placed in this classification at the discretion of their local boards.

The law provides, however, that local boards are not required to defer men who score 70 or more on the exemption tests or stay in a prescribed portion of their class, or both. This is still left to the board's discretion.

Students who meet one or both of the criteria for the II-S deferment have a right of appeal if their local board does not defer them. This right extends through the local and state boards and, in case of split decisions, up to the National Selective Service Appeal board.

The II-S deferment is considered on the basis of class standing or qualification test and is discretionary on the part of the local board. It may be granted by the local board each successive year, thus enabling students who meet the criteria to complete their education.

The I-S deferment, on the other hand, allows only one induction postponement for students who do not have eligibility for II-S deferments and who have never before received a student deferment or postponement to complete an academic year.

A student who receives a I-S deferment until the end of his current academic year may receive a II-S deferment for the next year if he meets his local board's standards. The boards generally determine during the summer months to whom II-S deferments shall be granted for the next academic year. They consider the student's class standing for the previous two semesters or his exemption exam during the year.

Whether a man is classified I-S or II-S, Hershey reminded, it is a deferred classification and not a postponement of induction. At the end of the school year local boards must re-examine a student's case to determine if he qualifies for any classification other than I-A.

While the local board is re-considering, a student has the right to enlist in the service of his choice, Hershey said, and the right continues until he is ordered to report for induction.

The selective service law, however, prohibits a man from enlisting in the service of his choice once he receives his induction orders.

Although the selective service law allows a man to enlist at any time until ordered to report for induction, Hershey explained, the army, navy and air force in July, 1950, agreed not to accept any man for enlistment after he had been notified to report for his preinduction physical.

In June of 1951 the department of defense rescinded the interservice agreement. Therefore, any student desiring to enlist this month in the service of his choice may do so, Hershey said, and the opportunity will probably be extended through June of this year.

Childs To Be Judge Of Book Contest

Marquis Childs Judges Book Contest

Marquis Childs, journalist and author, will be one of the five judges who will select the outstanding non-fiction book of 1951.

Childs, whose column, "Washington Calling" is now syndicated in nearly 200 newspapers, was born in Clinton, Iowa, March 17, 1903. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1923 and received the Master of Arts degree from SUI in 1925. He taught here while getting his degree and later worked for the United Press and the St. Louis "Post-Dispatch."

He went abroad for the first time in 1930, and six years later, wrote the best seller, "Sweden: The Middle Way." He wrote a novel, "Washington Calling," in 1937 and collaborated with William T. Stone in 1942 on "This Is Your War." He has also been a frequent contributor to various magazines.

He has been a member of the selection committee for the Nieman Fellowships in Journalism at Harvard and has made frequent appearances on the television program, "Meet the Press." Childs is a resident of Chevy Chase, Md.

RODEO PRODUCER SUES DES MOINES (AP) — Albert J. Tansor, a producer of rodeo shows from Montana, has filed a petition in federal court in Des Moines asking a million dollars damages from the Argus Printing company of Sidney. He alleges that the Sidney firm, in a magazine called buckboard, printed false and defamatory remarks about him.

Surprised

Father of Quadruplets Can Only Gasp

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-eight-year-old Joseph Graber became the father of quadruplets Monday and all he could say was: "This is surprising."

The quads — three girls and a boy — were born a month prematurely to Graber's 32-year-old wife, Fannie. Mother and children were reported doing well.

Chances of having quads in the U. S. are about 643,971 to one. Graber, a Brooklyn liquor dealer, had been told to expect more than one baby, twins, perhaps, or even triplets.

"I don't know what to say," he gasped. "It's all new to me. What else do you want me to say?" The Grabers have three other children, the oldest five.

2 SUI Bureaus Get New Offices

Two bureaus connected with SUI's college of commerce are beginning the new year in new locations, according to Registrar Ted McCarrel, who heads campus space assignments.

The bureau of business and economic research, directed by C. Woody Thompson, moved during the holiday season to Union building Temporary D north of the Iowa Memorial Union.

The bureau of labor and management, now completing its location change, centers its operations in room 14, MacBride hall.

Space formerly occupied by the bureau of business and economic research in University hall will be converted into a classroom primarily for commerce classes, McCarrel said.

The bureau of labor and management formerly was situated in the University hall office of Karl E. Leib, head of the department of labor and management and acting director of the bureau.

Local Serviceman Aids Arizona Quest For Crash Victims

Lt. Lewis B. Claypool After a crash, a climb

A medical officer from Iowa City was among the air force rescue party which spent two and a half days on icy slopes removing victims from a 28-death airplane crash near Phoenix, Ariz., three weeks ago.

It was learned Monday that 1st Lt. Lewis B. Claypool, former SUI student and son of Mrs. Elsie M. Parker of 902 N. Third ave., was with the party from Williams air force base that pushed up Armer mountain following the C-47 crash.

Claypool, whose outfit was on the mountain for two and a half days, called the mountain "rugged country" and told of the outfit's work after a 7,000-foot climb up the mountain.

The party had to climb to the top of the mountain and then climb down the face of a cliff, which was composed mainly of loose shale and ice.

The climb took an hour and a half, Claypool said, and "sometimes it felt as if the cliff was sliding from underneath us." He concluded, "I don't think I have ever been so cold."

Voters' League Submits Water Report to Council

Five courses of action were offered by the League of Women Voters in a study of Iowa City's water service given to the city council Monday night.

The proposed actions involve granting or not granting a franchise to the operators of the present plant, buying the plant, building a new plant or joining with SUI in construction of a new plant.

The 22-page report was presented as a public service by the league. The report stated:

"It offers these suggestions and the accompanying background materials as the basis for discussion which will lead eventually to action insuring the people of Iowa City the best possible water service at the lowest possible price."

The original report was made in 1949 but no action resulted from its submission. It has been revised and brought up to date through December 1951.

Study of Present Plant

The report involves a study of the present plant, operations, the 1948 financial statement and history. It compares water rates and services with 18 comparable Iowa cities and quotes several other studies of utilities in Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, and Kansas.

In comparing figures with other Iowa cities, the local rates were 44 per cent above average. The average cost of 300 cubic feet of water in 21 cities was 89 cents. Iowa City's charge was $1.28.

Also, the city annually pays $40 per fire hydrant to the Iowa Water Service company, present owners of the plant, as a rental fee.

Other cities used hydrants free or paid upwards to $35. Three cities paid their fees with a tax levy.

The report also criticized the Iowa City service on four counts:

- 1. The pressure is unequal and too low in certain areas.

2. Water mains are often torn up resulting in many inconveniences.

3. The water often smells and tastes bad.

4. The water is hard and individual water softening is expensive and therefore not available to everyone.

According to the report, municipal ownership would permit substantial savings in three items:

- 1. Combining the sewage disposal plant and waterworks.
- 2. Quarterly rather than bi-monthly billing.
- 3. Elimination of travel costs which results from having headquarters of the present water company in New York city.

However, so many issues are involved in municipal ownership, granting a franchise to the company is suggested to prevent excess deterioration of the plant and services.

A franchise would require the company to maintain certain standards of equipment and services.
