Phase Of SUI Union Addition Gets Approval

Construction of a $60,000 steam tunnel, first phase of the legislatively delayed $3.5 million Iowa Memorial Union expansion program, was approved by the state board of education Friday at their meeting in Des Moines.

Work on the tunnel, which would also carry water and sewer service to the proposed addition, will be financed from the $300,000 Union building fund.

For several years, university officials have been planning a major addition to the Union's recreation facilities.

Commenting on the board's move, Fred Ambrose, SUI business manager, said, "This figure is merely a preliminary estimate presented to the board. Actual construction will begin sometime in the spring, as soon as plans are drawn up and bids accepted."

Ambrose expected the project to move slowly, since much of the required material, such as steel, is on the nation's critical list. The university has the necessary funds for this phase of the job, collected from student fees, Ambrose added, but their use requires the board's approval.

The Union expansion plan was presented to the state legislature last year, Ambrose said, but no enabling legislation appropriating funds was considered.

At that time Rep. G. M. Ludwig (R-Tiffin) claimed the bill to authorize borrowing of funds for construction of the addition had died in the house sitting committee under pressure from chain hotel interests.

Ludwig quoted a chain hotel lobbyist as saying the hotel lobbyists were against the bill because it would involve the university, a non-taxed state institution, competing with private enterprise.

The bill passed the senate, but missed getting through the committee on public lands and buildings by one vote.

An attempt was made to bring Ludwig's bill up again at the next meeting of the committee, but in the meantime it fell under the jurisdiction of the sifting committee.

Sifting committees are set up in both houses of the state legislature near the end of each session to "sift out" bills for consideration on the floors of both houses. Getting the bill out of the sifting committee would have been practically impossible, Ludwig declared.

The addition to the Union was first proposed in 1938. After preliminary sketches were drawn up by SUI Architect George Horner, President Virgil M. Hancher authorized construction of the addition in 1942.

The board of education approved plans to finance the addition by increasing SUI tuition fees March 16, 1950. It authorized increases of $6 a semester and $3 a summer session. The tuition hikes went into effect in September, 1950.

The addition is designed to provide facilities for dancing and motion pictures, add six dining rooms served by a central kitchen, and furnish a $1 million guest house with between 75 and 100 rooms.

Revealed for the first time Friday were plans for construction of a small student chapel southwest of the Union and east of the Iowa river.

"Construction on this project would begin in the spring and progress fairly rapidly," Ambrose declared, "since I don't believe any critical materials are involved there."

A $10,000 gift to be used in the project was accepted by the board. The gift came from Danforth Chapels, affiliated with a St. Louis feed business, which is sponsoring student chapels at several colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The gift will be combined with $30,000 now on hand to construct the chapel. This money has accumulated over the years through gifts from persons and organizations seeking a chapel on the campus.

Also announced was the resignation of Dr. Milford E. Barnes, for 22 years head of the department of hygiene and preventative medicine at SUI. He plans to retire in June, 1953. He will be replaced by Dr. Franklin H. Top of the University of Minnesota.

The appointment was approved by the board at the Friday meeting.

Top was hired for a one-year term at a salary of $13,500. He will assume the position July 1 of next year, or as soon thereafter as he can fulfill his obligations at Minnesota, officials said.

Barnes came to SUI as head of the department Feb. 1, 1930. He is also director of student health and consulting director of the state hygiene laboratory.

In another action, the state board of education approved the appointment and salary boost of SUI baseball coach Otto Vogel.

Vogel was promoted from assistant to associate professor of physical education and his salary increased from $7,500 to $8,000 per year.

Ratner Advises Editors Go Easy On Research Use

"Take research and look at it, but never use it as a club."

That was the advice of Joseph E. Ratner, editor of Better Homes and Gardens magazine, to journalism students and professional newsmen attending the annual Waygoose banquet Friday night at the First Methodist church.

Ratner said mass media continually needs new ideas and can't get them by employing researchers. Ratner's speech was entitled "Are Editors Nuts About Research?"

"Research is OK," he said, "but it's only in the beginning stages." He cautioned his audience of about 175 persons not to let this tool kill the tremendous force at their disposal.

Ratner, who called himself a reformed researcher, attacked the word count system of Rudolph Flesch and the reliance by some researchers on polls, such as the one developed by George Gallup.

SUI journalism students presented skits as their part in the celebration with satires on persons in the field of mass communications.

Walter Steigleman, journalism professor, was master of ceremonies. The banquet was sponsored by The Associated Students of Journalism.

Father Refuses Medals; 'Truman Not Worthy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A heartbroken father of two sons killed in Korea said Friday he refused to accept the medal of honor on the ground that President Truman is unworthy to bestow it "on my boys or anyone's boys."

The 65-year-old father, Halsey McGovern, said he based his objection on Mr. Truman's "record" and because he doesn't believe in the idea of awards for heroism.

"Boys are dying by the thousands," McGovern told newsmen. "Perhaps some receiving awards for their gallantry did not measure up to some whose deeds went unnoticed."

The tall, white-haired father said he not only rejected the medal of honor awarded posthumously to one of his sons but also the silver star awarded to another.

over there." Pentagon officials said it was the first time in history — since congress established the medal in 1861 — that anyone has turned down the nation's highest award for gallantry "over and beyond the call of duty" in battle.

The son to whom the medal was awarded for "incredible valor" near Kamyangjan-Hi was 1st Lt. Robert H. McGovern, 23, of the 1st cavalry division.

His brother, 2nd Lt. Jerome F. McGovern, 21, of the 2nd division, won the silver star for "absolute fearlessness" in leading a charge against the Chinese Communists.

The brothers were killed 12 days apart. Officials pointed out that the president himself usually bestows the medal of honor only on living medalists. A high-ranking officer makes the presentation to next-of-kin in cases of posthumous awards.

Debris Found in Ship Search

SEATTLE (AP) — Coast guard planes and a search vessel Friday night reported finding wreckage and debris near the last known position of the missing freighter Pennsylvania.

The report was received by Seattle district headquarters from the cutter Klamath. It said aircraft sighted debris, and that the Canadian weather ship Stonetown had located a hatch cover, lumber and plates 34 miles southeast of the Pennsylvania's last radioed message.

No survivors from the crew of 45 or 46 persons were seen.

Aircraft also have sighted 15 boxes, an oil slick and oil drums 24 miles southeast of the Pennsylvania's radioed position, the coast guard said.

The report brought intensified plans for a wider aerial and sea search today and one coast guard and five navy planes will be in the vicinity at daybreak.

Previously, hopes for survival of any of the men who left the disabled freighter Wednesday evening, had faded almost to nothing.

"Not a trace" was the report of fliers who came back for rest and refueling from their hazardous mission 750 miles northwest of Seattle. "Not a trace" was the report from ships that sailed back and forth across a vast area of the storm-whipped north Pacific.

The hope aroused Thursday by a search ship's report of an unidentified object on its radar screen faded with the dawn. The Cygnets III radioed to the coast guard's search coordinating headquarters that it was only one of the search planes.

The fleet of search planes grew to 13 Friday. The navy added several two-engine Neptune and two four-engine PB4Ys. The latter pair were equipped to stay 14 hours over the search area. The two-engine planes could stay only about three hours at a time.

Pacific Powers Map Defense for Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-level conference called to map strategy in case Red China tried to turn Indo-China into another Korea ended Friday night in an atmosphere of deep secrecy.

No statement was issued as the military chiefs of the major Pacific powers concluded their deliberations.

The major issue before them was what will the U. S., Britain and other nations with high stakes in southeast Asia do if Red China invades Indo-China?

Diplomatic sources indicated these lines of approach:

The U. S., Britain and the British Commonwealth representatives probably will recommend to their political superiors prompt and energetic support for any French appeal to the United Nations in the event of an invasion in Indo-China.

'The Odds Were Against Me'

Cheering Crowds Greet 'Hero' Carlsen

FALMOUTH, ENG. (AP) — A tired little sailor in borrowed clothes, Capt. Kurt Carlsen stepped ashore here Friday after losing a grueling fight to save his Flying Enterprise from Atlantic gales. Humbly, he said: "The odds were against me."

The dauntless skipper—20 days out of Hamburg on a voyage that ended in his first shipwreck—landed at the Prince of Wales pier in this small, Cornish port with Mate Kenneth Dancy of the British tug Turmoil, who rode the hurricane-cracked freighter with him for the final week of a two-week epic.

The Enterprise plunged to the bottom Thursday.

Thousands cheered Carlsen.

Fresh honors and fresh citations were pressed upon him. He accepted them modestly, quietly, in a drawing voice marked by the accents of his native Denmark.

Instead of a maritime cap, he wore a beret over his brown hair. The beard he grew on the Enterprise had been shaved off. Under a borrowed black raincoat which was too big for him, Carlsen wore a white shirt and a black tie, also given to him aboard the Turmoil.

His worst moment? "It was the moment that the Flying Enterprise disappeared below the sea," Carlsen said. "I hurt for quite a bit."

His brightest moment? That, he said, came when Dancy stepped from the pitching Turmoil to the deck of the Enterprise last Friday—after Carlsen had spent six days and nights alone — and said "shake hands."

Why did he stay aboard his ship, listing heavily from a beating in the worst north Atlantic storm in 50 years, after he ordered off his crew of 40 and 10 passengers to safety?

It was his duty, said the 37-year-old Carlsen.

And what finally caused him to decide the ship was doomed and to give up his tremendous struggle against the sea?

"The doors of the wheelhouse exploded from the pressure of the rushing water," he explained. So he and Dancy, 27, jumped HOBART, OKLA. (AP) — S. A. Foote, 101, was granted a divorce from his wife, Nannie, about 86, Friday.

The couple had been married five years. His attorney, J. Percy Hughes, said they got along fine until some of their children, themselves past the half century mark, came to live with them.

Cutback on Materials Curbs Home Building

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government put the brake on home building and almost all types of civilian construction Friday.

Announcing a new allocation of strategic metals for the construction industry, the defense production administration (DPA) said it would provide for a level of only 600,000 new home starts this year.

This is 45 per cent below the total of 1,100,000 dwellings begun last year and compares with a current starting rate of 850,000 homes a year.

DPA has the task of dividing up scarce materials between civilian and defense users. Its latest allocation of steel, copper and aluminum for civilian builders is for the quarter beginning April 1.

On its face, the cutback is greater than DPA administrator Manly Fleischmann predicted when testifying at a congressional hearing Wednesday. At that time Fleischmann estimated home starts would drop to an annual rate of 660,000.

DPA officials said Friday the government hopes to push the latest figure above 600,000 by encouraging the building of small homes and the substitution of materials in more plentiful supply.

Expect 15,000 As Iowa Tries To Win No. 10

By JACK SQUIRE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

The Big Ten and national basketball spotlight will be focused on the Iowa field house tonight as will the eyes of some 15,000 fans for the first crucial game of the conference season.

Center of attention will be undefeated Iowa and once-beaten Indiana, two of the nation's high ranking powers.

The Hawks, winner of nine consecutive contests, including league victories over Michigan State and Michigan, have risen to 10th in the weekly Associated Press national rankings.

Center of attention will be undefeated Iowa and once-beaten Indiana, two of the nation's high ranking powers.

The unexpected setback to the Buckeyes hasn't taken any luster out of the game, however, and a sell-out has been assured for several days.

There may be some general admission tickets put on sale shortly before game time if the student section isn't completely filled, but judging from the interest around town this week, that's extremely unlikely.

Indiana teams have always drawn well here, and Hoosier exploits thus far this season have done nothing to change that, even if their cast of characters is considerably different from the past few seasons.

Graduation has taken well known names like Billy Garrett, Bill Tosheff, Gene Ring, Lou Watson, and Jack Brown, but Coach Branch McCracken has apparently come up with a new batch of stars.

What's more, McCracken now has height — and plenty of it, a commodity Indiana teams have lacked in recent years.

The veteran Hoosier coach has rebuilt around a pair of outstanding senior guards, Bobby Masters and Sammy Miranda, who supply the poise to an otherwise youthful starting five.

Along with Masters and Miranda, will be sophomore forwards Bob Leonard and Dick Farley and freshman center Don Schlundt, who, at 6-9, tops Iowa's Chuck Darling by an inch.

Schlundt, regarded as one of the game's coming stars, has averaged 13 points a game in two conference tilts, but the 6-3 Leonard has been the top point getter with 18 against Michigan and 19 with Ohio State.

In addition to the three youthful starters, several of the top line reserves are on the young side. These include, 5-9 Sammy Esposito, a nifty dribbler and floor man on the Miranda style; 6-5 Charley Kraak, and 6-10 Lou Scott. All are sophomores.

How well the inexperienced Hoosiers will hold up under the pressure of an important Big Ten game may be a key to the battle.

Indiana, with one loss already and another big one with Illinois coming up Monday night at Champaign, is in no position to drop another one.

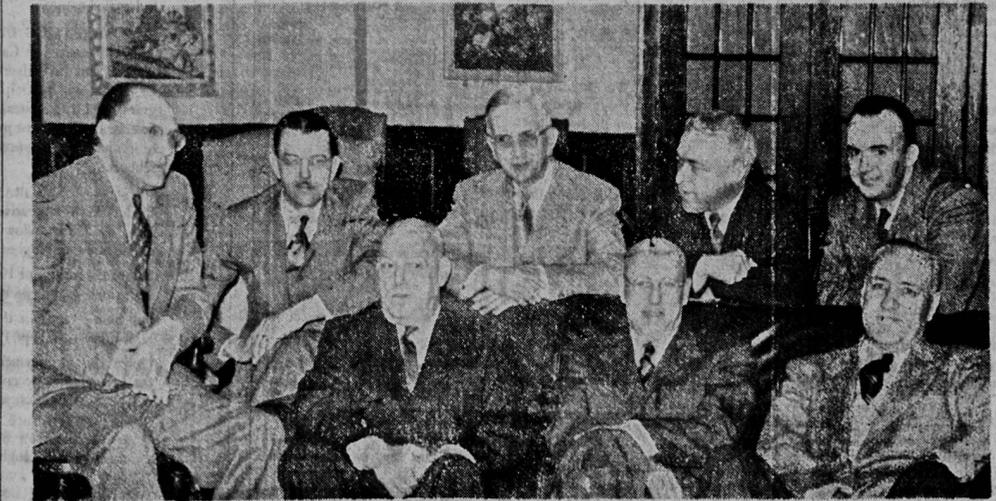

Iowa, of course, is also under pressure, but the Hawkeyes, with three seniors and a junior in the starting lineup, appear to be better equipped in this department. Both teams have held up well in previous tough moments this year.

The fifth Hawkeyes spot will probably go to freshman Deacon Davis at the start with sophomore Chuck Jarnigan set to share the job later on. If Ev Cochran's injured back permits, he'll be in there, too.

From the technical standpoint, it shapes up as a matter of whether Iowa can check Indiana's heralded fast break. It's expected that the Hawks will turn to a slower more possession type of game to accomplish this.

The lineups:
Iowa: Thompson, F., Leonard, Patsy Davis, C., Leonard, Schlundt, C., G., Miranda, Miranda, G., Masters, G., G., Iowa field house, Des Moines, WAUL.

They Need Your Help

Up until Jan. 31 people have the opportunity to fill innumerable miniature iron lungs — with money. The cause the money goes for is the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis Inc. drive. Here in Johnson county in 1951 there were a record number of polio cases — 22. In many communities throughout the county in 1951 there were also a record number of polio cases. Contributing money during this drive is a worthwhile insurance against a more widespread attack in 1952. Polio strikes any and everywhere. Some years it may not hit in a community and the next year the same community may be hit very hard. Money in the drive is used to help pay for the treatment of polio patients. In addition to adequate treatment the money makes it possible for patients to be given regular checkups after they leave the hospital. Johnson county has a goal of $10,000. Solicitation cards have been sent to the rural families throughout the county. You can do your part by helping to fill the iron lungs located in business establishments. A contribution today will make it possible for some undetermined polio victim to receive proper treatment later in 1952.

MICHIGAN

A University of Michigan student, once a member of the Imperial Japanese "Kamikaze" corps, now is dedicating himself to a study of Japanese-American relations. Yukishisa Suzuki was one of the doomed Japanese pilots selected for a suicide mission. In the late stages of the war the desperate Japanese government decided to turn its entire air force of 3,000 planes into a mass suicide fleet. But Suzuki fell ill—a stroke of luck—during his training program and lost some of the flying time needed for a Kamikaze assignment. Soon the war ended. Otherwise it would have been his duty to crash his plane into a U.S. ship as a "supreme sacrifice" for his nation. Suzuki's story, being printed by a magazine in three installments, describes what took place when a group of suicide pilots prepared for their final flight. There was a period of celebration for the chosen. Emotion and nationalism were well lubricated with quantities of sake, a Japanese rice-wine, while the fliers ate a final ceremonial meal. All the while the airmen were exhorted by their superiors with praises for the contribution they were making for their people. Then the airmen donned new flight jackets with a rising sun on the back and ornamental green parachutes. Then the take off, never to return. Suzuki relates that he shared the mental depression which gripped Japan after the war. It was believed the Americans would shoot all Kamikaze pilots. But he got a job with the historical division of the Supreme Allied Headquarters where he met a University of Michigan graduate who became his benefactor and helped Suzuki come to America. Michigan allowed him 15 hours of credit even though he had studied at two Japanese universities for five years. Now, in addition to college studies, the former pilot is working on a 700-page study analyzing the background and psychology which led the Japanese to war. Upon graduation in 1954, Suzuki plans to return to his native country, probably to teach and investigate the development and promotion of Japanese-American relations.

An Oklahoma university professor has invented an electrical "wiggler meter" that records how much fidgeting goes on during class. Wires are strung along the backs of chairs and every time a student yawns or wiggles, the impulse is recorded on a graph.

IOWA STATE

Honorary and professional societies at Iowa State college will be the subject of an investigation into clauses in the constitutions of campus organizations which restrict membership on religious or racial grounds.

WASHINGTON

All locks on campus buildings and offices on the Washington university campus had to be changed recently because a student ring had been breaking in to gain examination data. Five students have been dismissed and the university is guarding its papers with renewed vigor. A student survey indicated that cheating is "fairly widespread" in all classes. Declared Chancellor Arthur H. Compton: "Discussion in university circles throughout the country indicates that student insecurity over the draft and world conditions has led to a decline and breakdown in student behavior and has increased cheating."

INDIANA

University of Indiana students may keep love birds in their dormitories now. Previously students were permitted to keep only goldfish and canaries in their dorms, but a committee of deans and administration officials recently gave love birds the green light.

OHIO STATE

A new campus radio station, student-staffed and student-operated, is expected to begin broadcasts at Ohio State university this month. Sponsored by the department of speech, the station will be heard only by two dormitories at first, until operations can be expanded. WOIO is to be a wired wireless station. Telephone lines will take the broadcasts from a room in Derby Hall straight to electric outlets in dorms. Present plans call for WOIO to be on the air from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Programs will include campus news and disc jockey show.

Interpreting the News —

British Papers Inspired by Truman Talk

By J. M. ROBERTS JR. Associated Press News Analyst

It's an old truism that the way things look depends on where you are standing. In the United States, President Truman's state of the union message was received, judging from the weight of comment I have seen and heard, as something less than masterful.

In U.S., uninspiring. His assessment of 1951 as a year of great gains has been widely questioned, and the message in general seemed uninspiring.

In Britain, however, the report seems to have been well received. The Manchester Guardian, tagged as Liberal, even compared it with Prime Minister Churchill's Christmas broadcast in grimness and uncompromising devotion to the tasks of world affairs.

Domestic Angle. The News Chronicle of London, also tagged Liberal, looked at the domestic rather than the international angles of the address and decided that the President was steering "well left of center," but that, because of political reasons, his social program will never be fully carried out though there is no real economic reason why it should not be. The American economy is so strong that it could carry the enormous burden of armament without reducing the standard of living of its people.

Awesome Picture. The independent London Times said "it was an awesome picture that Mr. Truman sketched of industrial America armed and arming, of a huge machine moving toward its greatest speed and momentum." Then it adds slyly: "To steer it well will call for the highest wisdom, and sober counsel to the helmsman will be the duty of America's friends and allies," chief of whom, of course, are the British for whom the Times seeks to speak.

Article by Porter Discusses Proposed Legislative Changes

The problem of setting up single administrators in place of state policy-making boards, as recommended by the Iowa "Little Hoover" commission, was discussed in the current Iowa Law Review by Kirk H. Porter, head of the SUI political science department. The article pointed out that this procedure might channel both sub-legislative and executive powers into the hands of one person.

Such an individual would then have authority both to develop policies supplementing laws passed by the legislature and to carry out or execute his own rulings. Writing on "The Administrative Process and the Quasi-Legislative Function" in the quarterly journal edited by university law students, Porter explained that the modern legislature is faced with many complex undertakings.

Consequently, it delegates in effect a portion of its policy-determining duties to plural agencies of administration. This tendency shows that American hopes for separation of legislative and executive functions cannot always be realized, Porter said.

He lists some recommendations of the "Little Hoover commission" of Iowa's Fifty-third General Assembly as illustrations of how administrative and quasi-legislative functions can become overlapped. Porter agrees that centralizing administrative authority in one individual should increase efficiency. But he says that it is not wise to give that same person authority to decide when, where and how to spend millions of dollars, or to interpret broad terms of legislation to suit his own whim.

Porter also warned against concentrating vast patronage and purchasing powers in the hands of the proposed administrators. The state highway commission, Iowa liquor control commission, state board of social welfare, board of control of state institutions, Iowa state commerce commission, and state board of education are plural agencies which would be affected by recommendations of the Iowa Governmental Reorganization ("Little Hoover") commission, Porter declared.

In most instances, both these administrative and quasi-legislative functions would be taken over by single administrators by the Governor, according to the commission's proposals. Porter said it might be better to retain the present agencies as part-time groups concerned primarily with policy determination, suggesting that each board might be largely divorced from routine administrative chores. These could be directed by a single officer selected by the board and responsible to it, he said.

DAR Radio Program To Be Aired Today

The DAR-sponsored broadcast, Original Compositions by Iowa Composers will be aired over radio station WSUI this morning at 11:30. Arranged by Mrs. Paul Shaw, the composer will be Abram M. Plum, a graduate assistant in the music department. Three of Plum's piano compositions will be played including "Toccata," "Two Miniatures," and "Four Canons." A fourth number, "Salva Regina — Transformation of a plain chant," will also be heard. The last number will be a recording by the SUI chamber orchestra, made in May, 1950 under the direction of Robert Tyndall. It is in the form of a set of variations on a Gregorian chant, dating from the 11th century.

Special Polio Drive Advances

Bills for Betty," special polio drive that grew out of a woman's hobby of collecting autographed one-dollar bills, gaining momentum and promise to develop into a major campaign.

A young woman is Betty G. 29-year-old polio patient Cedar Rapids, who has been respirator in the polio ward university hospitals since August 1950.

Daughter in Hospital
Betty G. Young company in Cedar Rapids has been her seven-year-old daughter, Barbara, died just a few days before mother in 1950. Barbara is in the Iowa hospital school severely handicapped children. Autographed bills for Mrs. Young's personal drive, which she will donate to the March of Dimes, are arriving daily at the hospitals. The drive began slowly and quietly. Then, Alex Eidler, Cedar Rapids fight and wrestling promoter and referee and a personal friend of Mrs. Young's, took up the cause promoting the "Bills for Betty" slogan.

Entertainers and Athletes
Among Mrs. Young's collection now are autographed bills from Bob Hope, Marilyn Maxwell, Frankie Carle, Woody Herman and Page Cavanaugh, of the Cavanaugh trio. Besides the University of Illinois Rose bowl football champions, who also sent individual notes to her, bills have come from Wes Fester and Bennie Oosterbaan, football coaches at the Universities of Minnesota and Michigan respectively.

Basil O'Conner, president of the national foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Jack McCarthy, chairman of the Iowa chapter of the foundation, and Bourke B. Hickel, United States senator from Iowa, have also donated bills.

Bills from other big-name personalities have been promised, and Mrs. Young daily receives dollars from friends and people everywhere who have heard of her personal effort against the disease from which she has suffered for so long.

Dr. S. Rose says— among the many medical items carry are supplies for diabetic use — most everything — course, we give special attention to the filling of your prescription — We are also Admin Headquarters.

Leo Baker, L4, Muscatine, and David Kirk, G, Kearny, N. J., of the Union Board movie committee are in charge of the films.

News Briefs

MANKATO, MINN. (AP) — An 18-day-old baby boy police said had been kidnapped by a childless woman "desperate" after a miscarriage was reunited unharmed with his mother Friday, some 20 hours after it was snatched from his crib.

Held without charge was an auburn-haired woman who sobbed to police and newsmen that she had taken the baby after a futile effort to "buy" an illegitimate child for $300 through a bar-room acquaintance.

When the acquaintance failed to bring a child to her, she drove here from nearby New Ulm. At gunpoint she took the baby boy, one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Callahan, said Ed Larson, New Ulm chief of police. The woman was identified by Larson as Mrs. Leonard Scheid, 35.

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge ruled Friday that televising of the hearings was no excuse for racketeer Frank Costello's refusal to testify at the senate crime probe last March.

Judge Sylvester J. Ryan made no clear cut ruling, however, on whether a witness can refuse to testify under oath in televised hearings.

Costello, on trial on charges of contempt of the senate, claimed he was a sick man last March and that his condition was made worse by the hubbub of the televised Kefauver crime committee hearings.

The jury had been dismissed for the weekend before the legal arguments were presented.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas Curtis (R-Mo.) said Friday he will ask congress to force the removal of Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, appointed to head President Truman's anti-corruption campaign.

McGrath and his justice department, Curtis said in a statement, "should be the subject of investigation and cleanup efforts, not in charge of them."

The attorney general has not announced details of his government housecleaning program. But before he left Friday on a brief trip to New York he said he plans an early conference with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation.

MADRID (AP) — Government and embassy sources disclosed Friday that Spain took extraordinary police precautions to protect U.S. Ambassador Stanton Griffis from a reported Communist assassination plot when he and an American navy squadron visited Valencia Thursday.

PARIS (AP) — Gen. Jean De Lattre De Tassigny, a World War II hero whose military genius sparked the drive against the Communists in Indochina, died Friday night in a Paris hospital. He was 61.

SUI's Updegraff Suggests Action In Maytag Dispute

NEWTON (AP) — Arbitrator Clarence Updegraff Friday recommended that eight men involved in a dispute at the Maytag manufacturing company last fall be reinstated without back pay and that six others not be given their jobs back.

The dispute was over working conditions and was submitted to arbitration. Updegraff, member of the SUI faculty, held that disciplinary action had been taken by the company for good cause.

The employees involved claimed that the company was using a "slowdown" in its production. The dispute dated back to last Oct. 9. Updegraff recommended that two employees be dismissed.

Named to Study . . .

Prof. Clarence Updegraff of SUI's college of law has been named by state Rep. Fred Schwengel, of Davenport, to head a committee for the drafting of a bill for Iowa utilities regulation.

Schwengel is the chairman of the study committee for this issue. Updegraff's committee includes state Rep. John Hansen, Dedham; E. J. Van Nostrand, Creston, newspaper publisher; Sen. DeVere Watson, Council Bluffs, who is vice-chairman of the legislative committee, and Schwengel.

The first text of the bill is expected for the study committee's meeting in February.

Will Announce Men of Year

The three outstanding men of the year, one each chosen from SUI, Iowa City and rural Johnson county, will be recognized by the Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening.

The three awards will be made at a banquet to be held in the River room of the Iowa Memorial Union at 8:30 p.m.

Selection of the award winners was based on nominations submitted by local citizens and judged by a committee of judges according to the men's service to their community.

Mayor William J. Holland will present the Iowa City award, Allan W. Dakin, SUI administrative dean, the university award, and Emil Novy, president of the Johnson County Farm Bureau, the rural award.

Last year's winners were Elbert Beaver, Iowa City award; Prof. Robert Ray, instructor of public affairs, the SUI award, and Donald K. Johnson, Oxford, the rural award.
