Partisan Leaders Meet with Taft

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Roosevelt, Senate Republican leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon, and House Minority Leader Henry J. Reuss of Wisconsin met with President Taft Tuesday morning for what could be their last conference before the Republicans' national convention June 26-28.

The meeting, at the White House, was the first between Roosevelt and Taft since the Republicans took control of Congress last fall. The two men are scheduled to meet again in Chicago, where the convention will be held.

The meeting was arranged by McNary, who is a close friend of Taft and has been seeking to reconcile the differences between Taft and the new Republican majority.

The meeting was described as informal and friendly, and both sides expressed confidence that a solution could be reached.

McNary said he was hopeful that the meeting would result in a joint statement from the three leaders, but he added that it was too early to tell whether such a statement would be possible.

Roosevelt, who is a strong supporter of Taft, has been critical of the new Republican majority, which he believes is too conservative.

Taft, who is a conservative, has been critical of Roosevelt, whom he considers a liberal.

The meeting was described as a step in the right direction, but it was clear that there is still a lot of work to be done before a resolution can be reached.

The leaders will meet again in Chicago, where they will try to work out a joint statement that will satisfy both sides.

Meanwhile, the Republican majority has been busy passing a series of conservative measures, including a bill to limit the power of the Federal Reserve Board, a bill to restrict immigration, and a bill to break up government monopolies.

Boston BOMB Plant to Cost More than $1 Billion

BOSTON (AP) — The cost of a new bomb production facility in Boston has risen sharply, reaching $1.1 billion. This is over $800 million higher than the original estimate.

The costs of the plant, which is being built to produce high-yield nuclear weapons, have increased significantly over the past five years. Originally, the project was expected to cost around $300 million. However, as the design and construction plans were finalized, the price tag escalated dramatically.

The project has faced numerous challenges, including delays in the procurement of materials and equipment, as well as changes in construction methods. There have also been significant increases in labor costs due to a shortage of skilled workers.

The facility is expected to begin operations in 2023, but the additional costs will delay its completion until 2024. This will increase the overall cost of the project, making it one of the most expensive defense projects in recent history.

Despite the increased costs, the project is still considered a priority by the Pentagon, as it is believed to be crucial for the nation's defense needs.

Carbon peck led to the site's designation as a special nuclear weapons site due to its proximity to population centers. The site is now undergoing a thorough environmental review to ensure that it is safe for the public and the workforce.
