Cut in Foreign Aid Would Help Kremlin Administration Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration told a reluctant congress Thursday that any deep cut in next year's $7.9 billion foreign aid program would be a "major victory" for the Kremlin. Such a sum, it added, is less than would be required for a single month of a world war.

These views were presented by four chief spokesmen in opening the administration's fight against any cuts in President Truman's plan for world-wide military and economic assistance in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1952.

The appeal, and a review of world problems, were made by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and W. Averell Harriman, mutual security administrator.

They appeared before a joint meeting of the senate foreign relations and armed services committee and the house foreign affairs committee.

A crowd of spectators, jammed into the floodlighted senate caucus room, heard Acheson describe a rare "moment of history" in Europe which he said should not be lost. All four outlined the threat of enlarged war in Asia.

But Chairman James Richards (D-S.C.) and Rep. John Vorys (R-Ohio) of the house committee said they were not yet convinced that the program should be left unchanged. Richards, who has predicted a billion dollar cut, said congress awaited further evidence to be presented before the two committees.

Question Harriman Today
The senate committee will begin questioning Harriman today, and the house group will start hearings next Tuesday with Acheson scheduled to appear.

Thursday, the four spokesmen merely read prepared statements — the foundation of the case.

Gen. Bradley said World War II cost an average of seven billion dollars a month to fight.

Thus, the entire mutual security program for fiscal year 1953 costs only a little more than one month of World War II. The military portion, 5.35 billion dollars, is considerably less than one month of World War II. And you all know, as well as I do, that the price of everything, including war, has gone up considerably since 1945.

This military aid, said Lovett, would permit supplying U.S. equipment to the 50 active and reserve divisions which the Lisbon conference last month decided to raise by the end of this calendar year.

Married Students Will Be Allowed To Elect Delegates
The Student Council Thursday night accepted a plan to allow spouses of married students to sign nomination petitions for married student candidates for the student council.

Married students for the first time will vote for three representatives at the general elections April 2.

Previously, one married student representative was selected by the now defunct University Married Students organization. Only married students will be eligible to vote for the candidates.

Election rules governing married students are:
1. Pick up nomination petitions at the office of student affairs.
2. Answer all questions on the form and obtain 100 signatures from married students and/or spouses. (Each person may sign only three such petitions.)
3. File the completed petition papers at the office of student affairs before 5 p.m. March 26.

The reorganization amendment adopted by the student council early this month provided for three married student representatives on the council instead of the one representative allowed before. The amendment permits one council representative for each 365 members for each organization with a limit of three representatives. There are about 2,000 married students at SUI.

Uncle Sam of 1952

THIS VERSION OF A MODERN UNCLE SAM won first prize and $2,000 for Eliot Freedman, North Hollywood, Calif., in a national art contest sponsored by the Southtown Economist, a Chicago neighborhood newspaper. Uncle Sam is depicted as a dark-haired businessman, about 40 and beardless. He is wearing a striped business suit and a star-studded vest.

City Council Names Group To Study Parking Problem
A committee to investigate the curb-to-sidewalk parking problem was set up by the city council at a special meeting Thursday night.

The council decided that no fines will be imposed in the parking issue until a final decision is made.

The committee will be composed of city council members and businessmen who are affected by the recent council order forbidding the curb-to-sidewalk parking.

About 75 persons filled the council chamber for the meeting called by Mayor William J. Holland after a petition was filed last Friday objecting to the recent council crackdown on the curb parking.

The petition was signed by 104 persons, mostly business men on the edge of the business district.

The group, represented by Atty. Clair Hamilton, maintained that the council's action forbidding the curb-to-sidewalk parking was detrimental to their business.

Hamilton contended that the only place to park along Burlington st. is on the sidewalk, where the car owner is subject to a ticket, or on the parking.

Hamilton said he couldn't see that present parking practices are detrimental to traffic control and urged the council to permit businessmen to have their curbs cut or allow them to utilize the curb to sidewalk space for parking.

Councilman Walter Daykin replied that he doubted if the city was obligated to furnish parking, and added that all other Iowa City people have the same trouble finding parking places.

He said the city should not grant privileges to just a few. Daykin said the parking is part of the beauty of the city.

"What harm would it do if I come out to your place and build a little shack?" he asked Hamilton.

Several businessmen voiced opinions at the meeting. Among them were Newton Weller, operator of Weller's service station; Dean Jones, owner of Jones Sales and Service, and Leonard Brodsky, manager of the Brady Super Market.

Await Verdict In Trial of Robert Fischer

BULLETIN

WEBSTER CITY — Robert Fischer, 15, was found guilty early this morning of 2d degree murder in the fatal shooting of his father. The jury returned the verdict after more than 10 hours of deliberation.

No date has been set for sentencing.

WEBSTER CITY (AP)—Six men and six women Thursday night weighed the fate of 15-year-old Robert Fischer, accused of second degree murder in his father's death.

The state urged the jurors to be guided by their "moral conscience" and convict the youth. The defense, picturing Robert as "an unwanted son with a broken heart," urged them to "turn this boy loose."

District Judge John Schupp gave the jury the choice of three verdicts: second degree murder, manslaughter and acquittal. Manslaughter carries a mandatory eight-year term and second degree murder a sentence of 10 years to life in prison.

The 15-year-old defendant, who is charged with the rifle slaying of his school superintendent father, Al W. Fischer, 42, of Jewell last April 18, sat with his mother as the jury took the case.

The jury had two word pictures of the case on which to base its decision.

One was the defense picture of a sad and lonely youth who was disliked by a father because he was defective and who on one occasion told a friend that "you know he's not really my own son."

The other was the state's picture of a boy who resented necessary paternal discipline, who did not respond to the companionship his father sought to offer him, and who sat in his bedroom closet with a loaded rifle on his knees, and shot his father as he entered the room.

The defense argued the shots which killed Al Fischer were fired after Robert's mind blanked out when his father struck him with a board.

He forgot $12,000, Tax Official Says In Questioning
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal tax agent Albert Cohen, who said he has been grilling taxpayers for 32 years, testified Thursday he became so rattled when questioned about his own finances that he forgot he had $12,000 cash in a safe deposit box.

Describing his anguish when congressional investigators quizzed him in mid-1951, Cohen told a house inquiry committee:

"I was highly nervous. I'd never gone through anything like that before. My mind went blank at times.

"It's one thing to answer questions and another to ask them. I've been accustomed to asking the questions."

Another U.S. tax official, George Kleinman, 42, of Brooklyn, refused to tell the committee whether he ever took a bribe from a taxpayer. Kleinman said he would decline to answer "any questions" on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

Kleinman and Cohen were summoned as lead-off witnesses as Chairman Cecil R. King (D-Calif.) and a house ways and means subcommittee turned its searchlight on the New York area in a new phase of its lengthy investigation into nation-wide tax scandals.

Cohen, 53, a $7,600-a-year internal revenue agent in New York city, acknowledged under cross-examination that he spent about $25,200 more than his sworn income during the five-year period from 1946 to 1950.

Dr. J. S. Nollen Dies; Was Noted Educator

DES MOINES (AP) — Dr. John Scholte Nollen, 83, one of Iowa's most illustrious citizens, will be buried at Lake Forest, Ill., alongside the grave of his first wife who died in 1910.

Dr. Nollen died at Iowa Methodist hospital Thursday from the after-effects of a fall he suffered in Grinnell in January. He underwent an operation here for a cerebral blood clot Feb. 26.

Dr. Nollen, a native of Pella which was founded by his maternal grandfather, Dr. Scholte, was president of Grinnell college from 1931 to 1940. He had served as president of Lake Forest (Ill.) college from 1907 until 1918.

His first wife died at Lake Forest in 1910 and in 1914 he married her sister. His first wife was Emilene Barstow Bartlett and his second wife, who survives him, is Louise Stevens Bartlett.

Memorial services will be held at Grinnell college next week. Dr. Nollen received an honorary LL.D. degree from SUI in 1910.

Beards Best Efforts Honored At Smoker

Four bearded men were honored at a smoker Thursday night in the main hall of the Community building as engineering students began the windup of Mecca week.

Judged the owner of the most unique beard was Laurence Shaw, E3, Iowa City. Harold R. Miller, E3, Hannibal, Mo., grew the thickest beard, and Gale B. Hansen, E3, Audubon, had the thinnest.

Salameh was awarded a cave-man's club for his growth, and all four were promised free shaves at a local barber shop.

Charles Springer, E4, Wapello, was presented the Theta Tau professional engineering fraternity achievement award. It is presented annually on the basis of scholarship, popularity, and extra-curricular activities. The winner receives a key and his name is engraved on a plaque.

The Tau Beta Pi award, engineering honorary, was given to John Wait, E2, Iowa City, who had the highest grade point of last year's engineering freshmen.

Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honorary, presented their award for high scholarship in the sophomore class in the electrical engineering department to Claude King, E2, Cedar Rapids.

The following new Transit staff members were also announced at the smoker: Lindsey Lenhart, A3, Evanston, Ill., general manager; Gale B. Hansen, E3, Audubon, editor-in-chief; Samuel Syverud, E2, Bettendorf, business manager, and Warren Pagel, E3, Tama, comptroller.

Engineers voted at the smoker for the Mecca queen and the results of the election will be announced tonight at the Mecca ball. The queen and her four attendants will be presented with loving cups and will be guests at an intermission tea.

The Mecca ball will be held in the main lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union from 9 p.m. to midnight. Bobby Lindeman's orchestra will play.

New Plan Wipes Out 64 Political Appointees

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman's bitterly controversial plan to revamp the bureau of internal revenue was written into law Thursday when the senate, somewhat surprisingly, voted 53 to 37 in favor of it. Six senators were absent.

The major feature of the plan is to wipe out the 64 existing offices of collectors of internal revenue, who are politically appointed. They would be replaced by not more than 25 regional collectors under civil service.

Only the top commissioner, who runs the bureau under the supervision of the secretary of the treasury, would be a political appointee.

12 Votes Short for Rejection
Under the law, the votes of a full senate majority—49 members—were needed to reject the reorganizing proposal. Opponents thus fell 12 votes short.

Most pre-rollback guesses, even by administration supporters, had been that the vote would be close and that the senate might turn in a majority against the plan but that it would fall short of the required 49 votes.

The vote cut sharply across party lines. Voting in favor of the plan were 30 Democrats and 23 Republicans, including Sen. Williams (Del.), who helped uncover tax scandals. Against it were 19 Republicans, and 18 Democrats, all but four of them from the "solid south" states.

Iowa's senators divided in the vote. Guy M. Gillette (D) voted with the majority and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R) voted against the measure.

Plan Effective at Midnight
The plan technically will become effective at midnight tonight, but the reorganization will take months to complete. Under its terms, it must be fully effective by Dec. 1.

The house already had approved the plan.

The vote climaxed two days of senatorial debate on the plan, submitted to congress two months ago and the subject of heated controversy ever since.

Administration officials, in hearings on the plan, had said it would improve operations, set up more direct lines of authority between Washington and field offices, and tighten up supervision over the bureau's 55,000 employees.

Committee Voted Against Plan
Despite their arguments, the senate expenditures committee—since renamed the committee on government operations—voted 7 to 5 against the proposal.

Its submission to congress on Jan. 14 followed the dismissal or suspension of six collectors of revenue, the indictment of three, and the firing of more than 150 lesser officials.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), fresh from his New Hampshire presidential primary defeat of Truman, urged approval of the plan. Revenue collectors, he said, "should not owe their jobs to any one man or to any political faction."

On the other side, Sen. Henry Dworshak (R-Idaho) said there is "convincing evidence" that the Truman administration "will win distinction for being the most corrupt and venal in the political history of the country."

Dworshak said "full responsibility" rests on Truman's shoulders, and he argued that approval of the plan would not in itself improve conditions.

Ike Tells Backers He Won't Ignore Any Organization
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eisenhower-for-President headquarters in Washington Thursday made public an excerpt from a letter from the general giving assurances that he would not be a "wild maverick" and ignore the "rank and file" of any organization.

Although he did not mention specifically the Republican party organization, there was no doubt here that was what he meant in particular.

It was regarded as a move to build up Eisenhower strength with leaders and workers in the Republican organization, many of whom favor or are leaning toward Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio.

Coming on the heels of the general's victory in New Hampshire, it showed that the Eisenhower forces were pressing their campaign to enlist the backing of party workers who might be doubtful of their political future if Eisenhower won the presidency.

Meantime, President Truman kept silent on any plans to rebound from the stunning defeat he suffered at the hands of Sen. Estes Kefauver in the New Hampshire election.

Vacationing at Key West, Fla., the President skipped the usual Thursday news conference he holds in Washington, and so far has said not a word on the contest which saw him lose to Kefauver by a margin of 20,147 votes to 16,298.

Red Radio Denies Epidemics Exist

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Peiping Radio, which for weeks has been accusing the Allies of waging germ warfare, Thursday denied there were epidemics in North Korea.

While not intended as such, this denial was a repudiation of Russian propaganda saying plague was rife in North Korea, and of all Peiping propaganda implying epidemics were widespread.

The denial was aimed at Secretary of State Acheson's proposal of March 4 that the International Red Cross be allowed to get at the facts in North Korea. He dismissed the germ warfare charges as nonsense.

Cleared Ship Deals Without All Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former members of the old U.S. maritime commission testified Thursday that if there had been a "full disclosure" of the facts they would not have approved the surplus ships deal in which Joseph E. Casey and two friends earned $450,000 on a $1,000 investment.

Witnesses have testified that he and two friends put up $1,000 to organize the National Tanker Corp. in 1948 and to buy three tankers from the government.

It has also been testified that the maritime commission approved the sale to National Tanker even before the company was incorporated.

In October, 1948, title to the ships was sold to United Tanker Corp., a Chinese-financed firm, for $450,000. Later United used some of its ships to ferry oil to Red China until a month before the Korean war.

Zimmerman, at present a member of the student council, will seek a one-year term on the Board of Publications. Two board members are to be named for two-year terms and one for a one-year term.

Zimmerman is student council treasurer and chairman of the council's book exchange. He is also a member of the South Quadrangle council and a member of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity.

Operations Normal As Rail Strikers Return to Work

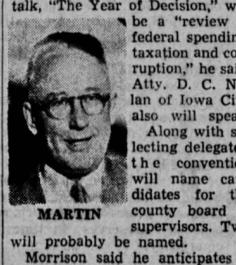

CHICAGO (AP) — Operations swung virtually back to normal on the New York Central system Thursday after the last holdout strikers went back to work in Chicago, Toledo and Elkhart, Ind.

Full shifts of engineers, firemen and conductors were on the job in all divisions. Through passenger trains left Chicago on schedule for the east and stalled freight trains moved from yards onto main lines.

A NYC spokesman said freight trains were back on schedule, but that another day will be required to get the backlog of freight moving.

The railroad's engineers, firemen and conductors struck Sunday. The federal court in Cleveland issued an order Tuesday for an end of the walkout.

The strike, involving more than 6,000 railroad workers, forced another 30,000 into temporary idleness. The walkout affected some industrial and coal production and defense shipments.

Point Is Clear Now: Indo-China Included In Defense Plans

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.

Associated Press News Analyst

Secretary Lovett's call for increased military aid to the anti-Communist forces in Indo-China coincides with word from Paris that France has no intention of backing down in the war with the Viet Minh.

For some time now, especially during the current French political crisis, there have been fears that France might decide that since she cannot support both, she would have to drop the Indo-China campaign in favor of building up her defenses in Europe.

It had been suggested the French might seek a stalemate similar to the one the Allies are negotiating for in Korea. The difference is that aggression in Korea has been stopped where it began, while in Indo-China a considerable territory, including highly important agricultural regions, would have to be yielded to the Communists.

The French government has now made the point, however, which is also the key point in the American attitude, that defense of Indo-China is part of the defense which the democratic nations intend to make everywhere and anywhere around the Communist perimeter.

The French make it clear they are not backing down on their commitments in this respect, and publicly recognize that any such action might cause the United States to write France off as an undependable ally.

Paris may have been advised in advance, or at least be presupposing, that increased American aid will be forthcoming.

This aid, judging by reports from Paris on French plans, would be largely for the native forces of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. France wants to build them up so that she can take home, or at least keep at home some new ones as they are produced, the officers which she needs to really get going in her European defense role.

The Pentagon ideas outlined to Congress Thursday show clearly that this aid would not be merely for France, but a part of the whole strategic picture.

Lovett included Formosa, meaning Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist army there, as another spot where similar work must be done, pointing out that the island of seven million people could not itself support a garrison of several hundred thousand needed against the possibility of Chinese Communist invasion.

Faculty, Staff Members View UMT

By PHIL O'CONNOR

Does the United States need universal military training? This controversial question, answered negatively by the house of representatives early this month, was asked of eight SUI faculty and administrative personnel members by The Daily Iowan. Their views are presented on this page.

The UMT bill, as presented to congress, would have required able-bodied youths to undertake six months of military training at the age of 18 years. Then the youths would have become members of the reserves, subject to recall, for seven and one half years.

House action on March 4 just about wiped out any chance of passage of the measure at this session. But the UMT issue is not dead. Military leaders are already revising the old bill.

The Iowan has also asked 10 SUI students for their views of UMT. They will appear in Saturday's Iowan.

Prof. John E. McAdam
"Put Efforts Elsewhere"

McAdam Raps Proposed Cost

JOHN E. MCADAM
(Associate professor of education and principal of University high school)

The funds that UMT would require should, in my opinion, be put to more constructive use.

Since education is my business, naturally I think of some of the current needs in the educational field — more and better trained teachers, well-equipped, modern classrooms, laboratories, libraries, health units, counseling services, etc.

A prominent educator, Dr. Donald Dushane, reporting to the armed services committee of the house of representatives, pointed out that $3 billion (a very conservative estimate of the initial year's cost of UMT) more constructively employed would do the following things:

"Construct a 10 room modern school building in every county in the U.S."

"Construct a $50,000 library in every county in the U.S."

"Construct a $150,000 hospital in every county in the U.S."

"Employ 10 full-time school and public health doctors and 10 full-time public health nurses in every county."

"Purchase 10 new modern school buses in each county in the U. S."

"Maintain one psychiatric and behavior clinic in every county in the U.S."

"Provide 10 full-time recreation and juvenile guidance workers in every county."

"Bring all schools in the country up to a reasonable standard of efficiency."

"Provide free education for the three million children under 18 who are not now attending school."

"Provide all the expenses of a three-year graduate course for 10,000 selected students each year."

"Meet the payroll of one junior college with 10 instructors in every county."

"Erect a $750,000 trade and technical school in each congressional district each year."

"AND leave an unexpended balance of $15,300,000 annually!"

Surely the cause of peace will be advanced and mankind will be better served by investing our brains, our efforts and our money in goods and services specifically designed for those purposes rather than in UMT which is apt to foster warlike ideals even among men of good will.

To adopt the principle of universal military training would be to admit that we have lost faith in orderly, legal processes of settling international disputes, and to recede ourselves to living in a world where war is an ever present danger.

The draft, the selective service devices, contain no such implications. They have been emergency measures, intended to meet an imminent danger which we devoutly hope will soon pass. I prefer to maintain this point of view.

To resort to UMT is to give up hope, and to adopt a wholly different, fatalistic attitude. I am not yet ready to concede that we should do that. I prefer to cling to the belief that the danger of war is a temporary danger, an emergency, that can be dealt with by peaceful means.

The immediate, temporary danger must indeed be met. And it has been, by avowedly temporary measures which have been adequate, or can be made so. UMT implies the acceptance of war as a constant, permanent threat to our way of life. I think it would be calamitous if our people were to get into that state of mind.

At least for a while longer let us look upon the danger of war as an abnormal, temporary horror. Take adequate steps to meet the danger, of course, but in a mood that implies that we can deal with it, and get rid of it. Above all things let us keep our faith in an ultimate regime of law and order.

It seems evident that, with conditions as they are today, there is a need for some type of long-range preparedness program.

However, I do not believe congress will pass the universal military training bill until the defense department presents more definite plans for eliminating the selective service program. At the present it appears that the military department is asking for a blank check with no strings attached. I doubt that people will support a program of that nature.

Complete demobilization and world peace is the wish of all Americans, I am sure. However, with the present Communist threat to us and to all free nations (and we cannot stand alone), it is only practical that we must maintain a military preparedness program.

Universal military training seems to be the most efficient, fair, and practical plan presented to date.

McCarrel Favors Selective Service

TED MCCARREL

(SUI registrar and secretary on university committee on military affairs)

Universal military training is easily one of the most controversial bills that has been faced by congress since the Lend Lease act was passed before the beginning of World War II.

The advocates of UMT have made some very excellent and pertinent points for the enactment of this legislation. On the other hand, the opponents of UMT can point with considerable justification to our long history as a nation without any compulsory military training act.

It is a bit difficult to understand how in a single six-month period the services could give an individual adequate training to qualify him for immediate use in an emergency for the period of eight years in which he would remain in the reserves.

It is also my opinion that before the bill should be enacted that some very definite provisions might be included to continue our present reserve officer training program for students who will enter college immediately following high school and who will take regular ROTC work during their collegiate careers.

While selective service admittedly has several faults and while it in general has been responsible for some injustices, it does provide for an orderly flow of the necessary manpower into the various services.

I thus would favor the continuance of selective service as a chief source of manpower for the armed forces until the present conflict in Korea is ended.

If we are not discreet in the decisions we make, we may commit a grave error of judgment, such as overspending, ending in bankruptcy. We could hurt ourselves more by an error of judgment than some enemy could inflict on us through warfare.

Suppose one individual is in a factory producing tanks and another person is serving on the battlefield, since both are contributing to national survival, should not both be considered as participating in UMT?

Do we absolutely need UMT in the sense that everybody takes a prescribed course in military training, or do we compromise in the interest of a better national defense by having a smaller group of military trained soldiers who would be supplemented by technical and professional experts and organized reserves in times of emergency?

Father Robert Welch
"Evils Suggested"

Welch Reluctant; Sewell Firm

FATHER ROBERT J. WELCH
(Professor in school of religion)

Whether we like it or not, world conditions dictate large military forces, and constant preparedness for the U.S. We are not living in the quiet twenties and early thirties, and what was wise and adequate then is not necessarily so today.

There could scarcely be a quarrel with the proposition that, if UMT is necessary for the present and future of the country, then it is the function of the government to legislate.

The real point at issue is the practical one — is there a real need for this type of legislation at this time?

For the answer to this question, it seems to me the average citizen will have to depend upon the word of those who presumably should know more about the realities of the world situation than we can; namely, the military and the heads of our government.

They have not always delivered the unvarnished truth to us in the past, but they must know more than we do about the actual need.

UMT suggests some obvious evils for youths who might be incorporated into it. It is most certainly the duty of the government to assure parents and others that every measure will be taken to reduce or obviate altogether these evils, if UMT should become law.

The citizens have the right to expect and demand that of their government and their military.

From UMT will flow a permanent stream of individual soldiers skilled in the techniques of modern combat. And these soldiers will be physically fit, well trained and immediately available for molding into infantry divisions and combat teams when and if the need should arise.

The long delay occasioned by registration, examination, selection, classification, and individual training will be avoided.

UMT will give us the immediate and potential strength sufficient to discourage aggression, or to meet it with a force equal to the task. This is a vitally important factor in our present delicate relations with potentially hostile nations.

The opponents of UMT claim that it is undemocratic; on the contrary, it places military service where it belongs in a democracy — fairly and impartially on the shoulders of every able-bodied male citizen.

They claim that army life destroys character; surely the American character, formed over a period of 18 years in the home, the church, and the school, is not so fragile that it can be shattered by six months in camp.

They claim that military training will lessen a man's desire for further education; the number and the seriousness of the veteran students after World War II refute this claim rather emphatically.

They claim that Germany and France were defeated because they had UMT and that England and the United States were victorious because they didn't have it; actually we won not because we had no trained men, but in spite of this deficiency.

Our next enemy may not be sufficiently ringed about by universally trained nations, on our side, to provide us the time to train as well as mobilize.

Stuit Suggests Alternative Plans

DEWEY B. STUIT

(Dean of college of liberal arts and member of university committee on military affairs)

In this period of strained international relations it is obvious that our armed forces must be kept in a high state of readiness.

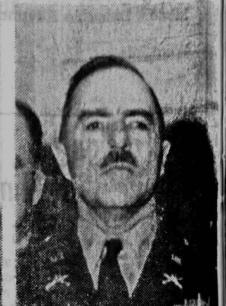

This in turn means that all young men must be prepared to serve their country in vital defense work or in the armed forces. There is no question, therefore, but what the principle of universal military service in periods of emergency or strained international relations is sound.

The question as to whether or not the recent bill before congress represents the best solution to the problem is quite another matter. It would seem that the same objectives as those sought in the bill could largely be achieved through increased numbers of national guard, ROTC and reserve units in high school and college and active reserve units.

It seems rather doubtful that a mere six months of military service would really give us a stronger armed force than those which could be obtained by expanded national guard, ROTC and reserve units.

The proposed program is alarmingly high in cost and would, of course, mean a radical departure from our previous methods of meeting our defense needs.

Since the program could not go into action at this time anyway, it would seem that other means of meeting the needs of our armed forces should first be thoroughly considered before the country adopts universal military training in the form in which it recently was presented before congress.

Col. Walter Sewell
"Surest Solution"

Welch Reluctant; Sewell Firm

COL. WALTER E. SEWELL
(Head of military science and tactics and member of university committee on military affairs)

The United States faces the necessity of maintaining her military strength enough to counter a very real threat to her own security and to world peace.

This threat may persist in years, hence the problem demands a long-range solution. A large permanent armed force is the sure and simplest solution from the purely military point of view, but such a force of the necessary size would impose a burden in manpower and in money which would be prohibitive over a long period of time.

A relatively small permanent force, with ample combat-ready reserves supplied by universal military training is the second solution; there are, in my opinion, only two solutions which are militarily sound in the present age (push-button warfare is yet to come). This second solution will provide the strength we need at the price we can afford to pay.

From UMT will flow a permanent stream of individual soldiers skilled in the techniques of modern combat. And these soldiers will be physically fit, well trained and immediately available for molding into infantry divisions and combat teams when and if the need should arise.

The long delay occasioned by registration, examination, selection, classification, and individual training will be avoided.

ROBERTS

The French government has now made the point, however, which is also the key point in the American attitude, that defense of Indo-China is part of the defense which the democratic nations intend to make everywhere and anywhere around the Communist perimeter.

The French make it clear they are not backing down on their commitments in this respect, and publicly recognize that any such action might cause the United States to write France off as an undependable ally.

Paris may have been advised in advance, or at least be presupposing, that increased American aid will be forthcoming.

This aid, judging by reports from Paris on French plans, would be largely for the native forces of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. France wants to build them up so that she can take home, or at least keep at home some new ones as they are produced, the officers which she needs to really get going in her European defense role.

The Pentagon ideas outlined to Congress Thursday show clearly that this aid would not be merely for France, but a part of the whole strategic picture.

Lovett included Formosa, meaning Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist army there, as another spot where similar work must be done, pointing out that the island of seven million people could not itself support a garrison of several hundred thousand needed against the possibility of Chinese Communist invasion.

Seven Coeds Have Happy Cooking at Howard House

CAM SMITH, A1, Mountkisco, N.Y., samples the frosting of the spice cake that she baked as part of her house job at Howard house.

By JO ANN PACKEY

Despite the "little things" that happen, the seven cooks at Howard house, 8 E. Bloomington st., find that too many cooks don't spoil the broth, but help to make cooking lots of fun.

Spending approximately nine hours a week, or more at their semester house jobs as cooks, they learn how to cook in large quantities and to cook with someone who has different methods.

By one of the "little things" that happen which causes them to swear to never cook another semester, Cam Smith, A1, Mountkisco, N.Y., referred to the day the jello and salad overturned in the refrigerator or perhaps the time the chicken for Sunday didn't come until after the rest of the dinner was prepared.

Besides Cam, the dinner cooks at the cooperative include Betty Sager, A2, Bloomfield; Beverly Nebins, A4, Cedar Rapids and Shirley Falk, N1, Council Bluffs.

The lunch cooks, Marion Bodeen, N2, Cameron, Ill. and Betty Mustard, A3, Onawa alternate their cooking days. But the lone breakfast cook, Vionne Longstreth, A3, Elma, gets up about six o'clock six mornings a week to prepare breakfast.

Phyllis Apland, proctor of Howard, orders the groceries and meets with the cooks to plan the menus for the coming week.

This is the favorite recipe of the Howard house women:

Spice Cake

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/3 cup light molasses
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1/4 teaspoon allspice
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Beat in molasses. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating after each addition. Bake in 2 waxed-paper-lined 9-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes. Frost with butterscotch frosting.

We Must Respect Ourselves, Others, UWA Speaker Says

"We must respect ourselves, other individuals, and the positions which we hold in society to adjust to the unpredictable future," Mrs. Edyth Thomas Wallace, newspaper columnist, said Thursday in the keynote address to the University Women's association vocational conference.

Mrs. Wallace, author of the syndicated column, "Points for Parents," named three areas in which adjustments must be made to live a full, happy life.

First, she said, adjustment to personality must be made. A person must accept his limitations and abilities and grow more emotionally mature. To attain this maturity, each day must be lived at a time, socially acceptable outlets must be found for strong emotions, and a person must grow from being self-centered to being unselfish.

Second, in making adjustment to the small group — the family or the dormitory group at college — the differences must be accepted and appreciated and a person must respect his position in the group, she added.

Mrs. Wallace said that the position of homemaker is the most challenging job of all. Thirdly, individuals must adjust to large groups within our society and respect other views, Mrs. Wallace continued.

She pointed out that a good sense of values must be developed and that individuals must learn to live with others.

The address, the last in the Information First series, also opened the vocational conference.

HOT SCRAMBLE

Seconds after a telephone alert to a nearby Air Force base to "scramble," pilots hustle to their jets. In minutes, the stubby, swept-back interceptors thunder skyward.

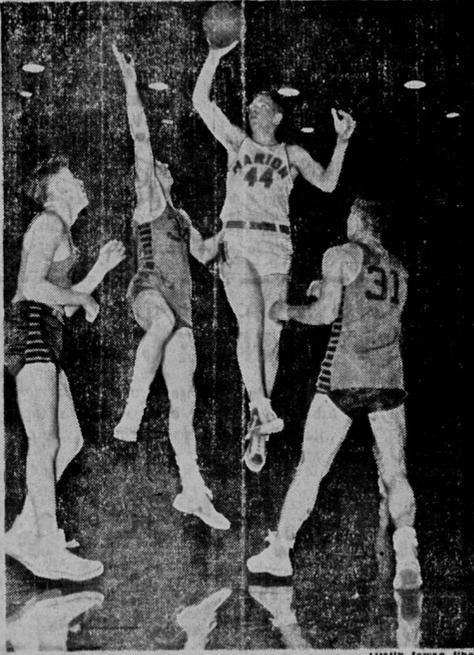

Modern air defense requires lightning-fast, dependable communication. That's why our radar defense system is interlinked by a web of direct telephone lines.

This is the real thing. Pilots call it a "hot scramble." Live ammo rides in their guns. It starts when an Air Force radar station detects an aircraft which cannot be identified. A telephone call by direct wire galvanizes the jet crews into action.

Some of today's college graduates will be piloting Air Force jets. Others will be welcomed into the Bell System where they can help, in peace or war, in the tremendous job of meeting the communications needs of our nation.

State Meet to Give Iowa Tankers Drill for NCAA

The Iowa A.A.U. championships in the Hawkeye pool March 22 will help to sharpen the Iowa swimming team for the National Collegiate championships at Princeton, N. J., March 27-29.

Coach David Armbruster will enter a full team in the Iowa A.A.U. meet, receiving heavy competition from Iowa State college. Iowa won the A.A.U. meet from 1947 through 1951.

The Hawkeyes placed fourth in the Big Ten championships last week, with top performances by Ross Lucas in the 440-yard freestyle and Bowen Stassforth in the two breaststroke events giving Iowa its boost.

Lucas was third in the record-breaking 440 race. The transplanted New Zealander's time of 4:47.5 broke the old Iowa record of 4:52.9 set by Don Watson in 1949.

Stassforth was second in the 200-yard breaststroke and also broke the Iowa record with a time of 2:16. This took four seconds off his own mark of 2:20. He was third in the 100-yard breaststroke race.

The performances of Stassforth were regarded as remarkable considering the fact that he had a heavy cold and had received penicillin shots while on the trip.

Riflemen To Leave For Illinois Today

Eight shooters of the SUI rifle team will leave this morning for the Illinois invitational tournament at Champaign Friday and Saturday.

Lt. Col. Harold E. Dilley, team director, announced that the following men will make the trip: Jim McLaughlin, Bob Best, Bob Doctor, Jack Westwick, Don Green, Stan James, Art Boerner and Jim Mayer.

Attendance Angle Equal

'Da Dough' Counts, Too

— To Results of Sports

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP) — The telephone will ring late at night or early in the morning and a froggy voice will croak over the wire: "Dat fight in Bridgeport — who win? How much dough in da house?"

Sometimes the order of the questions is reversed, but they always run 1-2, and the nose finish indicates the guy at the other end of the line rates them of equal importance.

It's usually a fight manager who is interested in some boy on the card or is contemplating booking a boy for a Bridgeport, or St. Louis, or Tacoma, or Cleveland show and wants to get an idea of what to expect in a financial way.

"Gate" and "Nut" Come First
The "gate" and the "nut" and other such items naturally are of primary concern to these gents, as they are pros who make their living out of the fight game and the money angle to them is just as important as the price of wheat to a farmer or stock quotations to a Wall Street.

We were reminded of this emphasis on the dollar when we read that Hank Greenberg was becoming the fact the Cleveland Indians were so deep in the entertainment business nowadays he doesn't have time for baseball.

"It used to be different," he said. "In the old days a manager put his mind on baseball and baseball alone. He never counted the gate. Since the war, that's all changed. Nowadays you pick up a newspaper and it looks as if the attendance is more important than whether we win or lose."

A Long Trend
There's a lot of truth in that, only we'd set the date of the start of this trend long, long before World War II. Back in the '20's, anyway, when the get-rich-quick mania made everyone money conscious. Sure, the newspapers play up the attendance and financial angles of any big sport event, but it is because the public demands such figures.

In fact, the class or importance of an event often is rated on the size of the crowd and the money involved. Two stumble bums might be booked to meet in a highly-publicized fight, and the size of the crowd and the take of each fighter becomes major news.

This interest in something colossal isn't confined to pro sports, either. The size of the crowd is a very important item of news when it concerns big college football games. The fans would like to know how the gate for such events was split, too, but colleges are very bashful about commenting on such a crude subject.

A Deep, Dark Secret
You might get your own estimate of the gate by figuring 80,000 people at $4.40 a throw, but what happens to the money remains a dark secret.

The cold fact is that the average citizen is fascinated by big figures, and we don't mean the fat ladies in the circus. The fans like to toy around with such items as a million dollars, and droolingly contemplate the $200,000 some illiterate pug got for committing assault and battery with the blessing of the law.

It was tremendous news back in the '20's when Babe Ruth signed contracts for what then were astronomical salaries, just as it still is news when a fighter gets $100,000 for 30 minutes work or a college football game draws 90,000 spectators.

But if Greenberg thinks the "who win" is unimportant, just let his Indians go into a losing streak and see what happens to the gate.

Defeat Tipton, Van Horne for Sub-State Titles

By LEE CANNING

Marion in the class A bracket and class B Dinsdale Thursday night earned spots in the state tournament by defeating Tipton, 43-38, and Van Horne, 32-27, respectively, before a crowd of 5,500 in the field house.

Both Marion and Dinsdale took early leads and held their margins during most of the game. The victors used semi-stalls in the fourth quarter to protect their leads.

For Marion, the victory was No. 23 of the season against only one loss. Tipton closed out its year with a 19 and five record.

32 Wins This Year

Dinsdale's victory boosted its mark to 32 wins and one defeat. Van Horne's record dropped to 22 and six.

Marion's balanced scoring attack, led by forward Hugh Leffingwell, the state's highest scorer, made the difference. Leffingwell counted 16 points and was followed by center Bob Christensen with 12.

The Indians got their first lead in the opening seconds of the game when Christensen scored on a rebound. Tipton then gained its only lead on fielders by Bob Rickard, John Sissel and Del Thumm.

Leffingwell Leads Team

Marion took over at this point and never trailed after Jerry Peck and Christensen boosted Marion in front with field goals.

Leffingwell was held scoreless during the first quarter but the big Indian forward hit for eight points in the second period and Marion had a 22-19 lead at half-time.

Tipton closed to 26-25 in the third quarter but Marion pulled away again.

Sissel was Tipton's scoring leader. The Tigers' center picked up seven field goals and three free throws for 17 points and the night's scoring honors.

Dinsdale Uses Only 5

The Class B tilt found Dinsdale's starting team go all the way in gaining the victory. The winners were ahead during the first half and sported a 17-8 lead early in the second quarter.

Van Horne rallied after the second half started and gained a 24-20 lead, only to fall short during the last period.

Dinsdale held the losers to one free throw in the last quarter. Dinsdale built its winning margin on fielders by center Jim Snow and forward Paul Ehrig and gift shots by Snow and guard Curtis Hoepfner.

Dinsdale and Marion join Class B teams Roland, Danville, Hull, Wales-Lincoln and Readlyn and Class A Cherokee in the state tournament. Wales-Lincoln advanced over Glencoe, 46-24, Thursday night.

Did You Guess Right?

CHANCES ARE GOOD THAT you've guessed wrong on who shot the ball in this sub-state action between Van Horne and Dinsdale Thursday night. In reality, it was Jim Nolan of Van Horne (left), but Dinsdale's Curtis Hoepfner's antics were enough as the shot missed. Watching from the right side is Jim Snow of Dinsdale. Dinsdale won, 32-27.

'Sugar' Holds Middle Crown On Nod in 15

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson successfully defended his middleweight championship Thursday night when he took a 15-round unanimous decision over Carl "Bobo" Olson of Honolulu in a fast tough fight.

The champion entered the ring as the overwhelming favorite but had to go at top speed almost all the way. He weighed 157½ to Olson's 159½.

The referee and two judges gave Robinson the decision unanimously. Olson backers shouted disapproval but the champion finished in front on points.

There was no doubt as to his supremacy, although there were no knockdowns.

A standing room crowd of some 11,000 saw the contest. Gate receipts were not immediately available but were believed to exceed $65,000.

Robinson had previously announced that he would donate his lion's share of the purse to the Damon Runyan Cancer fund in keeping with his support of that organization.

Duquesne, LaSalle Take Upset Victories In NIT Semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — La Salle cut down top-seeded Duquesne, 59-46, and Dayton routed third-seeded St. Bonaventure, 69-62, Thursday night to provide a "dark horse" final in the National Invitation basketball tournament.

These two unranked quintets will meet at Madison Square Garden Saturday night for the championship and a berth in the Olympic trials later this month.

In sweeping past the Bonnies, Dayton's slick-passing flyers racked up their 20th straight victory and saw their 6-foot 7-inch pivot ace, Don Meineke, become the second highest scorer in basketball history for a three-year career.

He dropped in 25 points to boost his career total to 1,899. This tops the old record of 1,786 set by Jim Lacey of Baltimore's Loyola in 1947-49, but falls short of the 1,888 set this season by Duke's all-America Dick Groat.

Dayton, surprise runnerup to Brigham Young in the 1951 NIT tournament, hasn't dropped a decision now since Dec. 29 when the Flyers bowed to St. John's of Brooklyn, 62-60.

A crowd of 17,131 witnessed the double-header semi-final card at the Garden.

La Salle's triumph over Duquesne was its third upset in succession in this tournament. The explorers, vying with Dayton for Cinderella honors, defeated Seton Hall, 80-76, and then beat fourth-seeded St. John's, 51-45.

3 Wrestlers Chosen For NCAA Tourney

Three Hawkeye wrestlers will represent Iowa in the 1952 NCAA championships to be held at Ft. Collins, Col., on March 28 and 29. Coach Mike Howard has named Phil Duggan, Don Heaton and George Myers for the western trip.

Duggan, Iowa captain and winner of seven straight dual bouts during the regular season, will wrestle in the 130-pound division, and Heaton, who won six and lost one during regular season competition, will go in the 167-pound class.

Myers, only Hawk to win an individual championship at the recent Big Ten conference meet, will wrestle at 191 pounds.

Howard has emphasized that competition will be extremely keen at the tourney, with grapplers from the country's best squads vying for honors.

Zaharias Leads Titleholders Meet

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP) — The venerable Augusta country club golf course, a par 72-layout without a soft touch hole, was too tough for the girls of the titleholders tournament Thursday and only Babe Zaharias got near par.

The Babe shot a respectable 74 in the first round and when she was finished on the 6,619-yard course she said, "I'm glad to get it. A 74 out there in that wind on that hunk of golf course suits me fine."

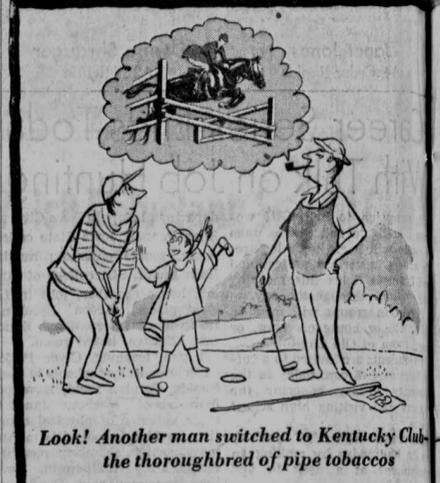

Heavy rains Wednesday and great gusts of wind Thursday made the course play long and hard. Lowest score ever made these tournaments was 71, record held jointly by the Babe and Marlene Bauer.

SUI Air ROTC To Join National University Program

The air force reserve officers training corps at SUI will become part of the national air university program Aug. 1, in a plan to consolidate the activities of the air force training in 187 colleges and universities. The move will bring under one command the training of 9,000 officer candidates at the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., and the ROTC units which are training more than 110,000 students. At SUI this semester, 884 students are enrolled in the program leading to reserve commissions in the air force after graduation. Col. George A. Bosch, director of the air ROTC unit here, said Thursday the change will bring additional curricula and facilities to SUI. The Air University, a part of the U.S. air force, is one of the nation's largest educational institutions. Like the military programs in colleges and universities, the Air University is mainly concerned with military education and training of air force officers or potential officers.

Colwell asks $25,000 for injuries he received while riding as a passenger in a car which crashed into a Miller truck parked on highway 218, 15 miles north of Iowa City last Feb. 25. Colwell contends that the truck driver was negligent in not posting warning flares. Johnson county's 1952 Red Cross drive totals $1,764, Otis Walker, campaign chairman, said Thursday. The 1952 goal is $19,844. The Iowa City campaign started March 4. The drive in the rural areas of the county began in February. Additional division chairmen appointed to assist in the business district drive are Joe B. Pugh for the S. Riverside drive business district, and George Leonard for the southwest business district. Special fields in which Red Cross funds are urgently needed this year include: assistance with the collection of blood for armed forces, sending emergency telegrams for members of the armed forces, financial emergency help to servicemen and their families, financing disaster emergency equipment for Johnson county, and paying instructors to teach swimming to Johnson county children. Other activities include maintaining an office and two paid workers to co-ordinate the activities of 1,608 Red Cross volunteers in the county, case work with armed forces and veterans and their families, overseas gift packages to servicemen and to veterans hospitalized in the country.

Final arguments in the case brought by Harold E. Colwell against Eldon Miller, Inc., Iowa City trucking firm, were completed Thursday afternoon. Colwell asks $25,000 for injuries he received while riding as a passenger in a car which crashed into a Miller truck parked on highway 218, 15 miles north of Iowa City last Feb. 25. Colwell contends that the truck driver was negligent in not posting warning flares. H. J. Gramlich Speaks to Rotary Club

Rotary club members and their farm guests heard an address by H. J. Gramlich, agricultural agent of Chicago and Northwestern railroad, Thursday, as a feature of the Rotary's annual Farm day. Gramlich said that agriculture has experienced more changes in the last 25 years than in the preceding 2,000; mechanization, scientifically developed seeds, and fertilization are the heroes of the day. America is the greatest country in the world, Gramlich said. It is the best fed, the most prosperous and the best educated. He said, however, Americans are the most wasteful of all people, and also the best complainers. He said tomorrow's challenges must be met with open minds; flexibility stands as the most necessary characteristic for people to possess.

Bambi Doesn't Mind Newest Addition to the Family

"ISN'T IT A DEAR?" might be the pun Bambi, a pet deer, would use if he could talk. He doesn't seem a bit perturbed that the baby chick is another addition to the family. Peggy Cook, 6, introduces the new member to Bambi. The deer had wandered into the Cook's backyard in Port Orchard, Wash., nine months ago and now refuses to leave.

Trade Reports Show Little Exports To Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sold less to Soviet Russia in 1951 than a neighborhood radio store in the United States is likely to sell in a year.

This country bought less from Russia last year than the business done by a medium American department store.

The department of commerce said "one small shipment of books, valued under $500" represented the total 1951 exports to Red China and Manchuria.

Trade Roundup
These and other figures from the department's roundup of the United States' trade with the world in 1951 showed a sharply divided commercial globe, with U.S. trade booming outside the iron curtain and sinking toward the vanishing point where the Red star hangs. Lowered trade with the Reds resulted from increasing restrictions on trading with possible or actual enemies.

The department's report indicated that the Red nations are still willing to do a considerable export to this country, despite regulations stifling their buying here. Russia even sold the United States small amounts of cotton lint and crude glycerin, both potential material for explosives. Nevertheless, U. S. trade with Red countries in 1951, import as well as export, was tiny by comparison with years before restrictions went into effect.

Marshall Plan Aid
The department of commerce reported that in 1951 the United States shipped twice as much to the 17 Marshall plan countries of Europe as the U.S. bought. Exports to the 17 countries were $3 billion. That was to all Europe except the Soviet Union and her allies, and Yugoslavia, Spain and Finland. The figures include aid shipments.

The United States bought from the same 17 countries last year goods valued at $1.9 billion.

The 17 countries are: United Kingdom, Germany, Italy, France, Belgium-Luxembourg, Netherlands, Switzerland, Sweden, Austria, Greece, Iceland, Norway, Denmark, Ireland, Trieste, Portugal and Turkey.

Western Europe's total trade with the U. S. in 1951, the department said, jumped 1 1/2 billion dollars over the 1950 level.

Red Europe Exports
The department said that in 1951 United States exports to Red Europe amounted to $26,742,000 in 1950.

Imports from Red Europe, the department reported, were $63,582,000 in 1950.

United States imports from Russia in 1951, $27,396,000 compared to $38,296,000 the year before.

Boy, 13, Clings Outside of Train During Snowstorm

NORTH PLATTE, NEB. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy rode 137 miles through a snow storm Thursday on the outside of a speeding passenger train.

The boy, Duane Enright of Grand Island, was taken to a hospital by police who said he was "frozen stiff." Later, a doctor reported Duane was suffering only from exposure and his condition was fine.

Railroad men said the train, the Union Pacific streamliner City of Portland, covered the 137 miles from Grand Island to North Platte in an hour and 45 minutes at speeds up to 90 miles an hour.

Duane said he rode between the two cars of the speeding train holding on to bars attached to the cars. His arms didn't get tired, he said, but he thought the swaying cars would tip over.

Iowa River Level Reaches 9.5 Feet

The Iowa river level Thursday was reported at 9.5 feet, which is considered a medium depth by officials at the Iowa Institute of Hydraulic Research.

A high point of about 10 feet is expected by Saturday, after which a gradual recession is predicted.

Highway 218, across the river from the City park, will not be covered unless a height of 11.5 or 12 feet is reached.

The rise has been attributed to thawing snow with Wednesday's rain here having little effect.

FBI Nabs Deserter Turned Police Chief

NEW HAVEN, MICH. (AP) — FBI agents came to this southeastern Michigan community on a tip that a wartime army deserter might be here. They left with the town's highly respected police chief and a confession that he was their man.

Ray Sturgess, 45, was turned over to the army on a desertion charge. He had been known as Police Chief Russell E. McIntyre since 1949.

Sturgess readily admitted his past and said he felt "as though a 500-pound weight has been lifted from my shoulders."
The FBI agents said Sturgess offered to help them locate a soldier who deserted from Camp Young, Calif., in 1944. Noticing the similarity between Sturgess and the deserter's picture, they checked and confronted Sturgess with the facts.

The FBI said Sturgess had lived a model life since he joined the New Haven police force in 1946. He had endeared himself to New Haven school children while driving a school bus in his spare time by giving them silver dollars for their birthdays and other special occasions.

Mecca Trophy Stolen

— By Law Students

Law students won a round Thursday in their traditional bout with engineering students by nabbing the Mecca queen trophy.

In a private barnyard ceremony on a farm 2 miles north of Iowa City, the law students presented the trophy to a pig who in their opinion is the engineers' dream girl of 1952.

The trophy was snatched from Bremer's window dresser who was taking the queen's trophy to the jewelers for engraving.

A fake phone call by the law students led the store employe to take the trophy from its sanctuary to the jewelers.

While townspeople stood and gaped at the tussle between law students and the window dresser, a law student escaped with the trophy.

"Why didn't anybody stop those boys?" a woman bystander demanded, adding, "What do you suppose they were doing to that man?"

Last night the trophy was returned to the engineering students.

In previous years, both the Mecca cup and queen have been abducted. One year when this event took place, a dinner was given by law students and the cup presented to the Mecca queen ahead of schedule.

Marine Says Story Of Amputee Brothers Was a 'Tall Tale'

OAKLAND, CALIF. (AP) — Pfc. Charles William Gentry, an amputee at the naval hospital, fooled officials and newsmen for a time Thursday with a tall tale about two brothers also losing legs in the war.

Besides the two amputees, four other brothers are now on active duty with the marines, Gentry told hospital authorities, ward mates and newsmen with apparent seriousness.

"We Gentrys sure like the marines," he told one and all.

But at Sedalia, Mo., his father, Charles W. Gentry, said Charles has only one brother, Jack, a resident of Rolla, Mo.

And his sister, Jo Ann, a telephone operator at Sedalia, said the marine private has always been known as "a great kiddie."

Young Gentry confessed the hoax — but could not or would not give any explanation for it.
