Student Dies In Washington Mountain Ice

SUIRIT LAKE, WASH. (AP)—Ski patrolmen pulled from a crevasse near the summit of Mt. St. Helens Monday the broken body of a University of Washington sophomore lost on a Sunday climbing trip.

Arthur Jessett, 20, who fell through an ice "bridge" over a crevasse at the 8,000-foot level Sunday, apparently died some time during the night, a physician with the rescue party said.

His father, an Episcopal clergyman, met the silent party of eight patrolmen as they neared base search headquarters at this western Cascade mountains lake. Reverently, tenderly, he read the last rites of the church over his son.

Father Arrives

The father, the Rev. Thomas E. Jessett, and his wife hurried to this Cascade mountain lake at the foot of the towering peak when word reached them of the tragic accident.

As the ski patrolmen neared the lake late Monday afternoon with the body of the University of Washington student lashed to a toboggan, the Rev. Jessett, vicar of the Florence Henry Memorial Episcopal church, Seattle, came out to meet them. He had his Bible in his hands. He read the church's last rites, and then knelt and looked at his boy's features.

Then, holding back his tears, he arose and went from one to another of the ski patrolmen. He shook hands with each of them, silently.

Falls in Crevasse

The Jessett boy was one of a party of four University of Washington youths who climbed the peak Sunday. Returning down the ice-tortured, crevasse-torn upper slopes near noon, Jessett was trailing behind the others. They looked back to see that he had slipped through an ice "bridge" over a crevasse.

It was in that crevasse his frozen body was found. He had lived for some hours, talking with his companions Sunday and telling that he had probably broken an arm in the fall. Near nightfall, about 6 p.m. Sunday, his last moans were heard.

Dr. Otto Tratt, Seattle, one of the ski patrolmen, said when the party reached Spirit Lake, the boy had been dead at least 12 hours. He died from exposure, Tratt said.

The Rev. Jessett also sent a message by state patrol radio to their two other children in Seattle, Frederick, 18, and his sister, Angel, a junior high school pupil. It said:

"We are on our way home. Arthur has entered into eternal life. May God be with you. (Signed) Dad and Mom."

Washington Student Died on This Mountain

A GROUP OF MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS waits in vain at the timber line on Mt. St. Helens for word of the attempt to rescue Art Jessett, 20, Seattle. The youth's body was found in a crevasse high on the 8,570-foot mountain. He was trapped at 8,000-foot level on the slope above.

British Firms In Red China Halt Business

LONDON (AP)—Britain informed Red China Monday that Britons have decided they can't do business inside that Communist country and want to get out.

British holdings in China have been estimated worth 300 million pounds ($840 million).

In a note delivered in Peiping, Britain asked the Communist regime to facilitate the disposal or closing down of British business interests and to grant exit visas for some 120 British business men. The Communists in the past have refused to give exit visas in some cases.

Britain to Keep Contacts

The note told the Communists that the decision to pull out was made by the business men. A foreign office spokesman said Britain would maintain its contacts — "such as they are" — in Peiping.

G. E. Mitchell, vice chairman of the China association, an organization representing British business interests in China, indicated that Britons still hope to trade with China, though not in it.

He said China exported 10 million pounds ($28 million) worth of goods and commodities to Britain in 1950, and eight million pounds ($22.4 million) in 1951. He estimated British exports to China in 1950 at 3½ million pounds ($9.8 million), and 2½ million pounds ($7 million) in 1951.

Business Operating at Loss

Mitchell said there were two main reasons why British firms decided to get out of Red China.

"The first is that they cannot continue indefinitely to operate at a loss," he said.

"They have been compelled to remit progressively larger sums of money into China to meet extremely heavy and often arbitrary taxation demands, and to continue to employ excess labor whom they are unable to discharge, although in some cases these employees have done no work for two years."

Travel Regulations Hamper

"The firms see no prospect of the position ever being radically altered.

The second reason is that the managers and other British employees of the firms have the greatest possible difficulty, and experience prolonged delays, in obtaining permission to enter or leave the country."

Re-elect 17 to Religion School Trustees Board

All but one member of the retiring board of trustees of the SUI school of religion were re-elected for three-year terms at the board's annual meeting Monday.

The board meeting and election were held following a luncheon observance of the school of religion's 25th anniversary.

The Rev. A. L. Drake, Waterloo, retired from the board and his place will be taken by the Rev. Everett P. Quinton, Des Moines, executive secretary of the Iowa Baptist convention.

Re-elected as officers of the board were F. C. Waples, Cedar Rapids, president; Eugene Mannheim, Des Moines, first vice-president; Frank A. O'Connor, Dubuque, second vice-president; Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division, secretary, and Thomas Farrell, Iowa City, treasurer.

Members who were re-elected to the board and whose new terms will expire in 1955 are Philip D. Adler, Davenport; the Rev. Leonard J. Brugman, Iowa City; Forest C. Ensign, Iowa City; Chancellor R. H. Fitzgerald of the University of Pittsburgh; O. D. Foster, Portville, Ind.; the Rev. Will M. Hughes, Morning Sun; Dean Emeritus Chester A. Phillips of the college of commerce; Judge William F. Riley, Des Moines; F. L. Sawyers, Centerville; Horace Van Metre, Waterloo, and F. C. Waples, Cedar Rapids.

World Federalists Plan Fund-Raising

Nearly 100 members and guests of the two local chapters of United World Federalists attended a fund-raising dinner in the Mayflower inn Monday night.

The Johnson county and SUI chapters have set a $6,500 goal for the coming year. The two chapters, with combined membership of nearly 350, are the largest of the 30 chapters in Iowa.

Speakers were the Rev. Rodney Shaw, regional director of the UWF on leave of absence from the Methodist church and Jerry Voorhies, executive secretary of the Cooperative Association of America and former congressman from California's 12th district.

Both men called for support and development of the United Nations into a world federal government with limited powers adequate to insure world peace.

Atty. William J. Jackson presided at the dinner-meeting.

Hancher Cites Path Of Success in Phi Beta Kappa Speech

President Virgil M. Hancher Monday night set a pattern for fruitful living before more than 60 new members of Phi Beta Kappa and their guests at a dinner in their honor in the Iowa Memorial Union.

"I set no easy task. Why should I?" he asked, and referring to the education received at SUI, quoted, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

The President urged for the new members "an examined life," and indicated some guide-posts for its attainment.

He said that from a liberal education the student should have acquired at least four things:

1. "A minimum body of basic and fundamental knowledge and skills;

2. "Skill in handling source material and in adding to previously acquired knowledge;

3. "Ability to think and act in the presence of new and unprecedented situations, and

4. "An ethical attitude toward the uses to which knowledge and skill may be put."

Master of ceremonies for the dinner was Prof. Edward F. Mason, school of journalism, who greeted new members. Wayne A. Danielson, A4, Burlington, responded for the initiates with a toast to old members.

The 67 new members were initiated into the honorary fraternity at ceremonies in old capitol preceding the dinner.

The Latest Fad Hits Vanderbilt UNIDENTIFIED VANDERBILT MEN STUDENTS display assorted articles of lingerie collected early Monday in panty raids on women's dormitories and sorority houses. Vanderbilt Chancellor Harvie Branscomb said he was "disgusted by the whole affair."

Railroads Accept Plan To End 3-Year Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's railroads Monday accepted a White House plan to settle the three-year rail dispute with three big operating unions.

But the unions—the engineers, firemen and conductors with a combined membership of 150,000—were still studying the proposal offered by presidential assistant John R. Steelman. There was no indication the unions would either accept or reject the peace proposal Monday.

Steelman Announces Plan

Steelman personally announced the plan and said it would boost wages 37 cents an hour for men who work in the yards and 23½ cents for men working on the roads. These amounts include a 12½ cent and five cent boost for yardmen and roadmen, respectively, which the army, in technical control of the roads since they were seized by the government in Aug., 1950, put in to effect in Feb., 1951.

Steelman said part of the wage boosts would be retroactive to Oct., 1950. He estimated each employe would receive between $600 and $1,100 in back pay and that retroactivity would cost the carriers more than $100 million.

Main obstacle to settlement of the long labor dispute, however, is a carrier demand for changes in working conditions or operating rules.

Both Get Proposal

Steelman, who is acting defense mobilizer and chief labor adviser to President Truman, presented his settlement proposal to both the union and railroad management Monday.

Steelman previously had been in conference with representatives of the railroad brotherhoods involved and with carrier officials. The carriers accepted Steelman's proposal soon after it was officially offered. At that time, it

3 More Schools In Big Ten Join 'Pantie Raid' List

By The Associated Press

Men students in three more Big Ten schools, Northwestern, Minnesota and Wisconsin, staged "pantie raids" on women's dormitories Monday night in the latest outburst of a campus fad that has now erupted in at least 18 schools, including eight Big Ten schools.

At Northwestern more than 1,000 students stormed five women's dormitories and engaged police in hand-to-hand combat before finally being quelled. Nine students were arrested but later released. There were no injuries reported.

Nearly 1,500 Wisconsin men broke into three women's dormitories to grab panties and other feminine garments which they carried off to their own dorms. Police stood by to maintain order. There were no arrests and no injuries.

At Minnesota where only 500 men turned out for a raid on three women's dormitories, raid leaders termed the action, "disappointing." Ten squads of Minneapolis police and local fire units were on hand but no force was necessary to quell the men.

Ohio State and Michigan State are the only remaining Big Ten schools now where men students have not staged a raid of some sort on women's housing units since the "pantie fad" started at the University of Michigan several weeks ago.

THOMAS NAMED CHAIRMAN

Don Thomas, E4, Sioux City, has been named chairman of the Institute of Radio Engineers for the coming academic year.

Cantata Won Him Pardon ...

Convict Composer Arrested Again

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Thirty-two years that brought him a varied fame as composer and convict found Frank Grandstaff right back where he started Monday—in a Wisconsin jail, charged with burglary.

The 50 year old part-time musician, whose "Big Springs Cantata" won him a Tennessee pardon from a life sentence in 1950, was arraigned in district court on separate counts of burglary, attempted burglary and vagrancy.

Judge Harvey L. Neelen set June 12 for a circuit court appearance and put bond at $5,000. It was not forthcoming immediately and Grandstaff, still natty in a grey suit although unshaven since his arrest Friday, was returned to county jail.

Grandstaff, now of Ft. Wayne, Ind., said Saturday night that his arrest was due to "mistaken identity." Monday at the district attorney's office and later in district court, however, he said not a word.

Trouble began for Grandstaff Friday, a day after he left Fort Wayne to "go on the road" after what his wife there said were some Hollywood negotiations that failed to come off.

In Milwaukee, a woman apartment dweller called police and said a man had tried to force his way into her apartment. Grandstaff was arrested at a nearby tavern, where officers also found a watch and some other jewelry abandoned in a washroom.

Miss Burdilla Hanson identified Grandstaff as the intruder, and shortly afterward Harry Meyer identified the watch as part of the loot taken from his apartment by a burglar.

At first, Grandstaff said he had arrived in Milwaukee only three hours before he was arrested, and that he had come here to try and obtain employment as an organist in some Milwaukee tavern.

3 Other Groups Indicate Dislike For New Rule

The Quadrangle council Monday night threatened to withdraw from the student council as a result of a council ruling forbidding its members to be bound to vote as instructed by groups which they represent.

At the same time at least three other campus groups indicated dislike of the rule which was passed last Thursday by the student council.

Currier hall general council met Monday night and also urged that the student council's ruling be reversed.

Westlawn Meets Tonight

A special meeting of the Westlawn general council is scheduled for tonight, while Hillcrest will discuss the situation next Monday night.

The Quad council passed a resolution 28 to 4 to consider withdrawing from the student council if the council maintains its present new ruling which also refused organizations the right of recall.

Peter Van Metre, L3, Waterloo, president of the student council said, "All indications point to a special meeting being called soon. The final decision, however, will be made today at a meeting of the executive council," he said.

The issue rose when the Quadrangle council ordered its three delegates to the student council to vote against a proposed amendment to the council's constitution.

Amendment Passed

The amendment, which was finally passed at Thursday's student council meeting, empowered the council's committee on student organizations to investigate and make recommendations on all campus organizations instead of proposed organizations as before.

One of the Quadrangle's representatives, Ralph Forney, A2, Sibley, however, voted with the majority instead of as instructed by the Quad association. Forney is vice-president of the student council.

In calling for support of Monday night's action, the Quadrangle group said that "the action of the student council has posed a threat to the rights of all organizations on the campus."

"All groups have the right to expect their elected delegates to loyally represent them, and to remove those who fail to do so. Delegates must be responsible to those who elect them. Yet the student council has voted to make itself irresponsible," the resolution said.

Court Delays Ruling On Steel Seizure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Resolution of the heated controversy over seizure of the steel mills remained a matter for the future Monday, when the supreme court passed up an opportunity to rule.

The court held its first opinion day session since hearing arguments in the case last week, but it did not hand down a decision and gave no indication when it might do so.

It could come any day now, even today, although court officers do not expect that. The next regular day for opinions is next Monday.

The case arises out of President Truman's April 8 seizure of the nation's steel mills to avert a strike by the CIO united steelworkers, who want more pay.

The steel companies got a court order preventing the President from holding the mills in the name of the government, but the district court of appeals voted to stay the order and allowed the case to go directly to the supreme court.

End of Oil Strike Seen As 10,000 Settle Wages

DENVER (AP)—A return-to-work move picked up speed among striking oil workers Monday, promising an end soon to the strike, now in its 20th day, and replenishment of the nation's dwindling stores of aviation gasoline.

The biggest break in the strike front occurred Monday when the oil workers' international union (CIO), with headquarters here, announced 10,000 members striking against the Sinclair Refining Co., had signed a wage agreement.

Lindbergh Trophy Collection Recalls Famed Flight of 1927

ST. LOUIS, MO. (CP) — More than 75 million persons have visited the Charles A. Lindbergh trophy collection here by today, the 25th anniversary of a flight that started a new age in aviation. A world's hero worship is enshrined in the collection—medals, gifts, trinkets and mementoes from every state and almost every nation. They range from a lifetime membership in the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues to the United States Distinguished Flying Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor. The collection contains virtually everything connected with Lindbergh's transatlantic flight except the plane itself—the Spirit of St. Louis—which hangs in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. Even parts of that are here—an altitude meter and a quart of oil drained from the engine after the plane landed in Paris. Suit, Boots Displayed The flying suit which Lindbergh wore on the New York to Paris flight is kept in a separate case along with a pair of boots which he designed himself when he was unable to buy a pair sufficiently light for his purposes. Visitors to the collection, which is housed in the Jefferson Memorial in Forest park, can trace the route of the famous flight on the very chart which Lindbergh used. The route is sketched on the chart in a precise semicircle ending at LeBourget field, Paris. One item in the collection was worth $25,000 to Lindbergh—the Raymond Orteig award which led him to undertake the flight. Orteig offered in 1919 a prize of $25,000 to the first man to fly non-stop between New York and Paris. The thought of attempting the flight occurred to Lindbergh one night in the fall of 1926 when he was flying an air mail route. Got Prominent Backing Lindy obtained backing from nine prominent St. Louisans, ordered construction of a Ryan monoplane, and a few months later the prize was his. The certificate of award records that Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh completed the flight on the 21st day of May, 1927, after a flight of 3,600 miles in an elapsed time of 33 hours and 33 minutes at an average speed of 107 1/2 miles an hour. Part of the collection, not open to the public, is being preserved for future historians. It includes Lindbergh's own log of the flight, his correspondence with backers of the venture, and hundreds of letters and telegrams bearing on the construction of the Spirit of St. Louis. Withheld by His Request Miss Esther Mueller, custodian of the collection, said Lindbergh has requested that these papers be withheld from publication until after the death of those concerned. In addition to the papers and trophies directly related to the flight, the collection includes hundreds of gifts to the flyer-hero. Some of the gifts are highly irrelevant—a kayak from Greenland, a knife belt from Alaska, a pillow case crocheted by an 80-year-old admirer in San Diego, Cal., and a portrait made from a tobacco leaf by a Cuban artist. Some of the gifts honored Lindbergh for his later flights. There are keys to dozens of cities and medals, scrolls, and tributes from foreign governments around the globe. Parents' Pictures Shown Flanking the entrance to the collection are oil paintings of Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, and his father, Charles A. Lindbergh Sr., congressman from Minnesota in 1906-08. The collection was started by the Missouri Historical society as a 10-day exhibit beginning June 25, 1927. After 80,000 persons visited the collection in that period, Lindbergh permitted the society to display the trophies for "an indefinite period." They have been on display ever since, and the crowds are still growing.

TO THE EDITOR:
Friday's editorial regarding last Tuesday's raid suggested that some sort of field day might be an excellent preventive plan for the future. I knew nothing of the raid until reading the next morning's Daily Iowan. But I remember the glorious time we had on Campus days when I was an undergraduate at Western Reserve university.

Campus day began with the Hudson Relays at 7 a.m. All classes which the professor was not gracious enough to call off were cut. The four classes of the men's college competed for a trophy in a relay race from Hudson, Ohio, where the college was founded, to the campus in Cleveland. The distance covered was about 25 or 30 miles, and the race ended about 1 p.m.

Then there was a student-faculty baseball game, always loudly won by the students. At 3 p.m. there was a canoe tilt on a nearby pond. Each fraternity put two haphazardly-dressed students in a canoe, and gave one a canoe paddle and the other a long stick with a boxing glove or padding on the end. Standing in the bow, the warrior attempted to force his opponents into the water by striking his standing opponent. No hard blows were permitted. It was rather skillful, certainly hilarious and an excellent cooler for hot heads in hot weather. There were picnic lunches or suppers and the evening was cili-maxed by fraternity open houses. In all, we had fun, and in my day (1947) we never had raids.

Mrs. Joan Svetina
115 Central Park

TO THE EDITOR:
Noting that the male students of the University of North Carolina gave willing obedience to their beloved dean by replacing the word "hell" with the more decorous word "heck," and observing that the Iowa male students were completely unorthodox in the manner in which they accomplished their recent riot, completely disregarding the traditional pattern, and dodging the lunatical motorists while policemen play checkers, these and other observations have convinced the writer that our friends to the south are, in reality, southern gentlemen.

It is becoming increasingly evident that a second war between the states is inevitable.
W. D. Ashburn, G
125 N. Clinton

TO THE EDITOR:
In regard to the now nefarious "riot" of the other night, there is just one question puzzling me: Are the students passively going to allow the righteously indignant administration to run roughshod over them in asserting their authority to impose punishment? Whether or not one subscribes to the saneness of the student raid on Currier hall now becomes irrelevant in view of the situation as it now stands. What do the students intend to do about extricating themselves from the dictatorial powers being exerted by the school?
From their actions in the past, and now the present, it is difficult to feel that the administration officials are against the student instead of for him. One can also question the validity of the administration's theory of punishment which apparently adheres to the notion that expulsion is the only way of solving a situation. I, personally, resent the threats of the school officials! Who, then, is going to put in a strong word in defense of the students? Certainly not the editor of THE DAILY IOWAN; this morning he was not above arriving at misleading assumptions from the letter of Miss Walker, then launching forth into a tirade of profound pronouncements and speculations.

Who is going to back the students in this matter?
Archie N. Euwer, G
136-A, Quadrangle

(Editor's note: I believe, Mr. Euwer, that when a student enters a university, regardless of where it is, he does so with the understanding that he will obey the rules and regulations set down by the administration.)

TO THE EDITOR:
In view of the acknowledged desirability to meet the recent and seemingly institutionalized spring behavior pattern, it appears that we should take into account more than just the reduction of physical energy. Perhaps the students could hold an annual bout in the stadium each spring, with the boys on the field and the girls lined up on the seats armed with water-filled paper bags. At the firing of a gun, the boys will rush up the steps and seats toward the girls, whereupon the latter may either throw the water-filled bags at them, retreat by way of the exits or do both. The resulting excitement on the part of both groups should be more than compensating.

'Ten Tall Men' Has Burt Lancaster

By JIM GOLTZ

Hollywood production lines are currently shooting out some extremely glossy and designed-for-greater-audience-appeal films, each complete with background music played by the studio orchestra, new camera angles, and a stellar line-up of "big name" stars.

With greater summer audience consumption expected and badly needed, some of filmdom's newest efforts currently playing in Iowa City are:

"Wait 'Til the Sun Shines, Nellie," concerning the inhabitants of a small western town during a period of 50 years. Its central character is the town's barber played by David Wayne.

"Latuko" or "We Saw Primitive Man" has myriads of genuine African natives throwing spears at tigers and shooting each other with poison darts in the midst of blackest Belgian Congo. Filmed in Africa, many of its scenes, such as those showing the primitive ceremonial customs, are more enlightening than a fourth grade geography book. The film might start a back-to-nature movement.

"Ten Tall Men" has Burt Lancaster out gunning for a couple dozen Arabs. Love interest is supplied by Jody Lawrence, who, complete with Eastern accent and black wig, portrays the honorable princess of the tribe. Combined with it is "Behave Yourself," a rather difficult task when Shelly Winters is around.

"Bronco Buster" features ranch hands riding like crazy while taming the wildest horses on the range. More fun than a day at the Saratoga race track.

"Frankenstein" and "Dracula" are both re-issues of two famous films which later started a series of uninspiring sequels.

Due next week is "Singin' in the Rain," one of the most charming musicals made in a long time. Capturing the flavor and gaiety of the "jazz age," it has enough sparkle, flappers and mad party scenes to duplicate the spirit of the golden '20's. Its comedy scenes, including the early version of a movie premiere, are hilarious. It brings to the screen one of the ablest comedians of all time — Jean Hagen, who, with Judy Holliday's voice and Carol Channing's physique, runs away with the show.

Following this, visiting artist Louis Bouche will be at the Art Center from July 1-27 to conduct classes, critiques, conferences, and give talks.

Now on display at the Art Center are a group of student paintings from Iowa colleges and a series of life photographs. Also under their sponsorship is an art forum clinic, conducted by John W. Brooks. The clinic invites anyone who paints to bring in an original picture for constructive criticism.

Taft Says Women Could Man Post In Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has given a tip-or maybe it was just a slip—that he might name a woman to the supreme court if he's elected president and a court vacancy opens.

In talking to a group of women reporters he was asked what reward his women supporters could expect if he were elected. He replied he would name women to top-level posts—the cabinet or possibly the supreme court. Pressed on this, he explained that the supreme court had occurred to him as he was searching his mind for something else on a par with the cabinet.

"We have some women who are

System of Absentee Voting Explained

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles prepared by the Institute of Public Affairs of SUI to explain the laws and procedures which you must follow in order to vote in the state's primary election June 2. The first story described residence and registration requirements.)

Have Notary Witness
You must fill out the application form, mark your ballot and make the affidavit on the ballot envelope in the presence of a notary public. The notary must witness the fact that you personally marked the ballot but he should not see how you voted.

After you have marked your ballot, seal it in the special envelope and enclose this envelope with your application form in a larger carrier envelope. Mail all this to the county auditor in time to reach him before election day.

The absentee voter's ballot which you vote in this way is put in the ballot box in your precinct and counted with the ballots voted on election day.

If you live in a city which has permanent registration you must be registered in order to vote an absentee ballot. You can register by mail by requesting registration cards from the city clerk at least 10 days before the election, filling them out before a notary public and mailing the to the city clerk.

Servicemen's Absentee Ballots
The state legislature last year passed a special law so that Iowa voters in the armed forces could vote absentee ballots in the primary and general elections this year. Some of the older election laws were modified so that absentee ballots could be returned from overseas in time for the elections.

The provisions of this special act apply only to members of the armed forces who are, or will be on election day, qualified voters of the state. Civilian absent voters must follow the steps outlined above.

In voting a serviceman's ballot in the primary election, a member in person to the office of the county auditor in his county any time within 55 days of the election and take care of the whole business of making application, marking his ballot and making the affidavit.

If you live in a city which has permanent registration you must be registered in order to vote an absentee ballot. You can register by mail by requesting registration cards from the city clerk at least 10 days before the election, filling them out before a notary public and mailing the to the city clerk.

Registration Necessary
Also, if you live in one of the 23 cities in the state where registration of voters is required, you must be registered—but you can do that by mail too.

(The cities where permanent registration is in effect are Ames, Boone, Burlington, Cedar Falls, Cedar Rapids, Charles City, Clinton, Council Bluffs, Davenport, Des Moines, Dubuque, Ft. Dodge, Ft. Madison, Iowa City, Keokuk, Marshalltown, Mason City, Muscatine, Newton, Oskaloosa, Ottumwa, Sioux City and Waterloo.)

The conditions under which you can vote an absentee voter's ballot are: (1) if you expect to be prevented from going to the polls on election day because of illness or other physical disability, or (2) if you expect to be out of the county on election day because of business or other necessary travel.

Vote at Auditor's Office
If you believe you will be away from home on election day but can go to the county auditor's office some time between 15 days before the election and election day, that is the easiest way to vote your absentee ballot.

By going to the county auditor's office in person, you can make your application for an absentee ballot, mark your ballot and fill out the affidavit on the envelope in which your ballot is sealed—all at one time.

If you can't go to the auditor's office in person, you must request an absentee voter's ballot by mail not more than 20 days before the election. You will be mailed your application form, ballot and the envelope in which to seal the bal-

Applications Are Due For Attendants' Jobs In Illinois Hospital

Applications are due Wednesday for the YWCA and YMCA summer job program at the Galesburg State Research hospital, Galesburg, Ill. They may be turned into room 4A, school of social work office, reserve library temporary.

For the second summer a unit of persons is being organized to work as attendants for a 10-week period in the hospital. Last summer seven SUI students were included in the unit along with students from other midwest colleges and universities.

The hospital treats adolescent and alcoholic psychoses. The attendants will have a two-week training course of classroom discussion and lectures, and will work an eight-hour day six days a week. Minimum pay is $138 per month.

There is a possibility that college credit for the 10-week period might be granted but arrangements are still pending.

Application blanks can be obtained at the YWCA and YMCA offices in the Iowa Union.

Argentine Modern Dancer To Present Recital Today

MARIA FUX, ARGENTINIAN FOLK DANCE INTERPRETER, is well-known for her dances without music in which the movement and line of her arms connote the musical rhythm.

Maria Fux, an Argentinian modern dance interpreter, will present a dance recital in the mirror room of the women's gymnasium at 4 p.m. today. There is no admission charge.

Miss Fux came to the United States for further study with Martha Graham on a scholarship from the Williams foundation. She creates the dance patterns that she performs, doing her own costumes as well as choreography.

In some of her interpretations she dances without music but the movement and line of her arms connote the rhythm of music. She has performed in Argentina and many other South American countries and at several American colleges since her arrival in the United States in October.

The Argentinian folk dances that she will interpret include "Zamba," "Baguala," "Chamame," "Machitum-Amapurum" and "Little Dance." "Conception and Birth" and "Encounter" are numbers performed without music.

"Upon a Theme of a Flute" and "Rhythms" are done to native music. Other numbers are "Gagliarda" and "These Our Days" by Prokofiev.

Miss Fux is the guest of Prof. and Mrs. Mauricio L. Lasansky, 404 S. Summit st.

1st World Title for Japan - Shirai Wins Flyweight Crown

Captures Decision Over Aging Marino

Mitchell Grabs AL Hitting Lead

TOKYO (TUESDAY) (AP) - Yoshiro Shirai, a skilled counter-puncher with a rapier left, Monday night brought Japan its first world boxing title, wrestling the flyweight crown from aging Dado Marino of Honolulu.

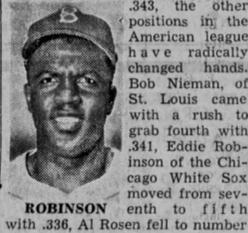

It was close but the decision was unanimous. The 42,000 who paid to see Japan's first world championship fight roared their approval. Both fighters broke in to tears as the referee raised Shirai's hand.

NEW YORK (AP) - Dale Mitchell, the surprise sparkplug of the front-running Cleveland Indians, is doing some front-running himself, hitting away for a .360 average to lead the American league in batting.

Hitting hard and often, wading in with base hits whenever the Indians needed them most, Mitchell picked up 20 points during the week to displace New York Yankee shortstop, Phil Rizzuto, at the top rung. Averages include games through Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) - There will be no regular broadcast or telecast of the light heavyweight title bout between middleweight champion Ray Robinson and light heavyweight king Joey Maxim at Yankee Stadium, June 23.

Stan Musial came up with a 9-for-19 week to add 34 points to his average and tie Sauer for the fifth slot. Jack Merson of Pittsburgh is seventh at .318, followed by Duke Snider of Brooklyn with .317.

NEW YORK (AP) - Sal Maglie made it seven in a row for 1952 and 10 in a row over a two-year span as he pitched the New York Giants to a 4-0 shutout victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates here Monday.

Maglie hasn't lost a National league game since last Sept. 13, when he bowed to the Cardinals in St. Louis, 6-4. Maglie allowed seven scattered hits Monday, all singles, walked only one and fanned six to run his league-leading total to 42 strikeouts.

Giving the instructions are Major Ren Saxton, (kneeling), a member of air force ROTC staff, and Col. George A. Bosch, head of the air force ROTC department at SUI.

Immigration Bill Revision Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators opposing a controversial bill to overhaul the immigration laws Monday lost their fight to have the measure sent back to the judiciary committee for reconsideration.

The senate voted 44 to 28 against recommending and promptly resumed a bitter debate which has been going on for seven days.

Arguing that "restrictive sections of the bill would erect virtually an iron curtain around the United States, a group of senators led by Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.) and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) want to substitute a measure of their own.

About 200 amendments to the committee bill also have been introduced, opening avenues of debate which Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) claims would have the effect of a filibuster.

McCarran, chairman of the judiciary committee, contended it would have been insulting for the senate to have recommitted the bill after his group spent more than two years drafting it.

Electric Union Asks Retrial of Lost Suit

WATERLOO, IA. (AP) — Federal Judge Henry N. Graven took under advisement Monday the motion of the United Electrical Workers union (IUE) for a new trial of a suit won by the Oliver Corporation last March. The Charles City Oliver plant won a $66,722 verdict against both the local and international union for strike losses.

In addition to asking a new trial, the union also requested the defendant be given a directed verdict regardless of the judgment.

David Scribner of New York city, union attorney, said that standby expenses of the corporation during work stoppages were balanced by contemporary earnings and that Oliver actually suffered no loss whatever.

Flying Lessons Offered To 10 Air Force Cadets

Ten members of the air force ROTC cadet corps at SUI will receive an hour each of free flying instruction this week, donated by the Iowa City flying service.

Each of the cadets will receive two 30-minute periods of instruction.

The air force selected the cadets on the basis of outstanding leadership and academic qualities. The students are Gordon McCree, A2, Washington, Iowa; James Walker, A2, Waterloo; John Stewart, A2, Dunlap; Richard Bellinger, A2, Waterloo; Lee Ebert, A2, Iowa City; Rodney Sornson, A2, Exira; Maurice Rosen, A2, Davenport; Gleason McMichael, A2, Waverly, and Gordon Campbell, A2, Waterloo.

Two of the students, Ebert and Sornson, received part of their flying time Monday afternoon.

Instructing the cadets during their flights is Maj. Ren B. Saxton, a faculty member of the air force ROTC at SUI.

Don Mohr, head of the Iowa City flying service, donated the use of the plane, an Ercoupe, and the gasoline to the students.

The purpose of this instruction is to promote an interest in flying. Col. George A. Masch, professor of air science and tactics, said.

Odet's Tells Probers Red Criticism Caused Break with Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Playwright Clifford Odets told the story Monday of an artist breaking with the Communist party when the party criticized his works.

"I had enough to say out of my own mind and heart," Odets told the house un-American activities committee. He quit the party, he said, because he couldn't respect his fellow Communists "on a cultural basis."

"I disagreed with their critical estimates not only of my work but also that of John Steinbeck and Ernest Hemingway and others, and realized it was time to leave the party," he said.

And anyway, Odets continued, he was more interested in writing plays than attending party meetings, which "sometimes were silly." He said — as an example — the Communists would complain about the drinking water at a theater and decide to call a meeting about it.

Odets, 45, is known for his plays "Waiting for Lefty" and "Golden Boy."

Religious Leaders Praise SU1 School Of Religion

Laud Pioneer Inter-Faith Cooperation

Three religious leaders of different faiths joined an educator here Monday in affirming that no education is complete unless it includes a knowledge of religion.

The four made this assertion at a program marking the 25th anniversary of SU1's school of religion. They further maintained that such a knowledge of religion can well be taught on an inter-faith basis.

"No matter how you define religion you cannot ignore it," Catholic Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, Davenport, told a luncheon audience at the Iowa Memorial Union.

"It has always been a factor in the history of the human race," he said.

Praises Inter-Faith Work

And Methodist Bishop Charles W. Brashares declared: "Each of us longs for and should find a very individual and personal relationship with the eternal.

"But surely we also appreciate the possibility of having some part in a larger movement where we work with men of different faiths who remind us that God is greater than our little dreams, and He has sheep that are not of our fold."

Rabbi Eugene Mannheimer described the school's inter-faith program as one in which "Protestant, Catholic and Jew could and would cooperate on a basis of complete equality, without in any way compromising our fundamental American tradition of the separation of church and state."

Bishops Hayes and Brashares and Rabbi Mannheimer joined with Chancellor R. H. Fitzgerald of the University of Pittsburgh in congratulating the school for its pioneering efforts in religious education on a tax-supported university campus. It was the first such school to be founded in the country.

Iowa Finds Answer

"For some years we have tried to find a solution to the problem of an adequate religious program in state universities," Fitzgerald said. "The University of Iowa, through its forward-looking experiment in the school of religion, has found an answer which other state universities might well study."

The anniversary luncheon speakers joined in praise of Prof. M. Willard Lampe, who has been director of the school continuously since his appointment in 1927.

"Dr. Lampe has been a great pioneer in the spiritual realm," Chancellor Fitzgerald said; and Rabbi Mannheimer affirmed, "It is to Dr. Lampe that our school of religion owes its real and great success and significance."

Sunday Speakers

Generous praise for a unique experiment in religion and education at SU1 was expressed Sunday by representatives of three major religious faiths.

Speaking at the special vespers service which opened the two-day celebration, Prof. Clarence P. Sheed of Yale university, Judge William F. Riley of Des Moines, and Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld of New York commended the school for its inter-faith instructional program.

Pointing to the number of campus programs which have been established since the school proved the feasibility of such a venture, Sheed said:

"The growth of academic instruction in religion in state colleges and universities has been greater during the 25 years of your history than in all the previous history of state colleges and universities in the United States."

Iowa Plan 'Daring'

"The imaginative and daring initiative taken by those who pioneered the Iowa Plan a quarter of a century ago, has been a challenge to leaders in public higher education."

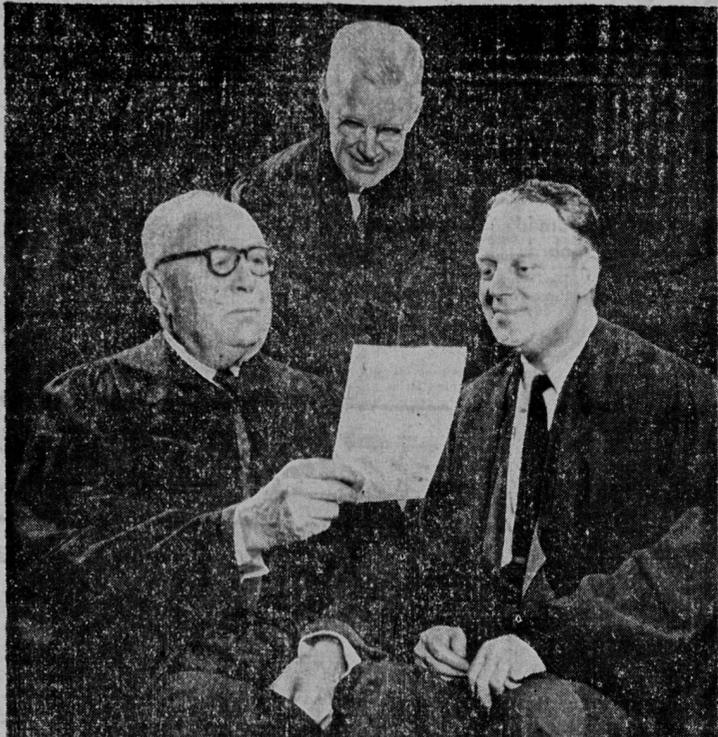

He praised the school for its work beyond the campus, saying: "Through radio, guest lecturers and many other services your school of religion has made contributions of great significance to the religious life of this community and state."

Judge Riley, who has served for several years as a Catholic representative on the school's inter-faith board of trustees, asserted: "There can be no bill of divorce between education and morality. The great bond between these—the annealing force—is religion."

"The school of religion in its 25 years of existence has been wholly devoted to instructing our young people about religion, not in religion," he concluded.

Follows Jefferson

Rabbi Lelyveld, national director of Hillel foundation, discussed Jefferson's ideal of "a situation in which there would be a free search for truth and a full opportunity for students to come into contact with all the factors of human knowledge and human experience."

Bach Authors History For 25 Anniversary

Appearing Monday was a new book by Iowa's best-known author on religious topics, Prof. Marcus Bach of SU1.

Entitled "Of Faith and Learning," the 260-page book is a history to date of the university's school of religion, which celebrated its 25th anniversary Sunday and Monday with a special program on the campus. Bach wrote the book especially for the occasion, and it will be available for distribution at the anniversary luncheon.

"Of Faith and Learning," while an historical account, is expected to prove more interesting reading than the average history. Dealing with situations and persons not far removed from present-day life and interspersed with anecdotes, the book tells of developments familiar to many living Iowans, as well as describing behind-the-scenes details of the school's "growing pains."

School Started in 1930's

Beginning with a suggestion made in the early 1920's that SU1 employ a "great spiritual teacher" to preach to the student body, Bach traces the development of the school of religion, from its start as a vision in the minds of a few far-seeing educators, laymen and theologians, through its early and difficult years, to its present-day position as the only institution of its kind in the U.S. to offer inter-religious teaching on the campus of a tax-supported university.

"Iowans felt that because of the state's treasured spiritual heritage the university should lead in integrating religion and education," Bach writes. He then describes how a small group of laymen, ministers and university faculty members studied for several years the possibility of establishing such a school.

At various times the group investigated such diverse suggestions as having a teacher on the university faculty from every denomination, having a department of religion, or establishing a number of schools, each offering the teachings of a different denomination, off the campus but closely connected with the university.

Rockefeller Support Gained

Bach relates how plans for the present school of religion were finally refined and set forth for public support, and how such support evolved: first from John D. Rockefeller Jr., then from church and individual contributions. Salaries of the school's inter-faith faculty have been paid from these contributions, and for some years administrative expenses have been met from university funds.

Author Bach also describes in some detail the search for a director for the new school, culminating in the appointment of M. Willard Lampe — who has since held that position continuously — and efforts to find other faculty members for the inter-faith school. Bach has himself been a member of its faculty since 1942, having been awarded the master of arts degree at the Iowa school in 1935 and the doctor of philosophy degree there seven years later.

"Of Faith and Learning" is the fifth book on religion to be written by Bach, who is also the author of a number of religious dramas and popular articles. His research and writing of such previous books as "They Have Found a Faith," "Report to Protestants," "The Dream Gate" and "Faith and My Friends" have led him, in the words of one New York Times reviewer, to "travel up and down America, discovering the springs and stimuli that rouse men and women to follow new faiths."

Services Today for Elizabeth Carlson

Services will be at 10 a.m. today at Beckman's for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Carlson, 78, 335 S. Johnson st., who died Friday at University hospital.

Mrs. Carlson was a member of the English Lutheran church and was active in church work. She was born in Iowa City May 11, 1874, the daughter of Joseph and Anna M. Sibel. In 1901, she was married to Charles W. Carlson, who survives.

Other survivors include one son, two sisters and one granddaughter.

The Rev. George T. L. Jacobsen, pastor of the English Lutheran church will be in charge of services. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Iowa City Woman Files $13,750 Suit

Mary E. Nelson, Iowa City, has filed a $13,750 damage suit in district court against H. F. Moffit, the Texan Development Co. and the Texan Realty Co.

The action is asked in connection with the sale of about 20 acres of Texas land containing grapefruit trees. Miss Nelson claims that the defendants made false and fraudulent representations in the sale of the lands.

Sausages? Cartoonist Sketches During Classes

The June issue of Magazine X, which will appear Wednesday, will again contain several cartoons by Richard "Red" Watson, A3, Sheffield, whose sausage-shaped characters have brought considerable comment from readers of the first two issues.

Many have found his work the most amusing feature in the magazine—others were left completely cold and called it "foolish modern art."

Watson, a philosophy major, insists he can't draw. He just scratches out his cartoon ideas the best he can, usually with a fountain pen and on whatever scrap of paper is handy. Most of his sketches are made during classes.

Occasionally he visualizes ideas that are beyond his artistic capabilities. After a number of unsuccessful attempts he offers the ideas to other staff cartoonists.

To escape this frustration he often generates the gags in coordination with his style of drawing. He will sketch a figure, and then sit and look at it until a funny idea is suggested. Sometimes he carries a sketch around for weeks before thinking of a gag line.

Watson believes his characters are a form of expression—usually of his moods. He draws quickest when angry and his characters are then more firmly drawn with straighter lines.

While attending Iowa State college, he collaborated with a roommate who cartooned for the college paper. Now on his own at SU1, the result, if not artistic, is certainly worth a laugh.

Leslie Elected to Head Mechanical Engineers

Howard Leslie, E3, Iowa City, has been elected president of the Associated Students of Mechanical Engineering.

Other officers are: Mel Lincoln, E3, Moscow, vice-president; Ray Flanders, E3, Wellman, secretary, and Marvin Sedlacek, E3, Fairfax, treasurer.

ENGINEERS INITIATE 6

Six men have been initiated into Pi Tau Sigma, mechanical engineering honorary. They are: Dwayne Mosey, E2, Cedar Rapids; Ed Foley, E2, Kansas City, Mo.; Bob Evans, E1, Salt Lake City, Utah; Ken Wilson, E3, Cedar Rapids; Ray Flanders, E3, Wellman, and Mel Lincoln, E3, Moscow.

Council Defeats Daylight Time In Des Moines

DES MOINES (AP) — The first move for establishment of daylight saving time during the summer in Des Moines failed on a split vote at Monday's city council meeting.

With only a bare majority of three members present, two council members voted for a proposed daylight time ordinance, and one was opposed. It takes three favorable votes.

The measure may be introduced for further consideration at any time. Two council members who previously indicated approval of daylight time were out of the city.

One councilman had made the motion that resulted in the drawing of the measure. The other absentee had said, at that time, that he favored it.

City Attorney John A. Blanchard advised the council that "the city of Des Moines is without the power to pass an ordinance (establishing daylight time) which could be enforced by penalty against those who might not choose to comply."

The city could enact such a measure, and make it apply to municipal governmental activities, but it would simply be "advisory" for private business and the public at large, the city legal chief said.

Individuals writing to the council have favored adoption of daylight time by about 4 to 1. Spokesmen for the Iowa Farm Bureau federation, the Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee and the chamber's board of directors, theaters, radio stations and other groups spoke in opposition.

Many stressed Des Moines' dependence on the surrounding territory, and that confusion would result if this city alone in all Iowa had clocks running an hour faster than standard time.

"We always get stuck on this question of what it's going to cost," councilwoman Ruby Holton declared.

"The people who aren't here are the little shopworker. . . the people who don't have enough sunshine."

Janitor to Teach Custodial School

Ray Wagner, janitor foreman at SU1, will serve as an instructor at the Nebraska State Custodial school June 2-6 in Kearney, Neb.

Wagner has taught for two years at the Iowa custodial school at Ames, and also in the Davenport custodial training program.

He will be the only non-Nebraska taking part at the Nebraska school.

Hearing Set for Youths On Breaking, Entering

Hearing is scheduled for Thursday morning in police court on charges of breaking and entering against two 20-year-old youths, one from Iowa City.

The pair, Lawrence C. Lemme, 603 S. Capitol st., and Max D. Wheatley Jr., Hills, were arrested Sunday night after guns and a radio were stolen from a guest house in the rear of the Drew McNamara residence on highway 218.

The two were arraigned Monday in police court. Lemme was released on $2,500 bond and Wheatley remained in custody under $2,500 bond.

City to Place Reflectors On Highway 6 Curve

Iowa City Monday made a move to curb an increasing number of automobile accidents on the highway 6 curve around Westlawn dormitory when it was announced that posts with glass reflectors would be erected on the curve.

The city will pay for the erection of the posts, City Manager Peter F. Roan said.

The move was made following the refusal of the Iowa State highway commission, which has charge of warning signs and other such structures on state highway property, to do anything about the dangerous curve except to move a curve sign further west on the highway.

The curve has been the scene of several serious accidents in recent years, when vehicles failed to make the turn and went over a bank onto Riverside drive which joins the highway at the curve.

Previously the city had asked the commission to place a large reflector arrow on the east side of the highway so motorists could see the extent of the curve.

At night, the curve could give the appearance to a motorist that it straightens out and goes in a southeasterly direction because of street lights visible from the east side of the Iowa river.

The posts the city plans to put in will be about 100 feet apart all around the curve on both sides of the highway. Each post will be about three feet high and have a white glass reflector on it.

Lampe Gives Talk At Center Dedication

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion, was speaker at dedication ceremonies for the student center and school building of the First Presbyterian church Sunday.

Others participating were Dr. Duncan MacLennan, Winfield, moderator of the Presbyterian synod of Iowa; the Rev. Paul Shurtleff, Des Moines, field representative for Christian education in Iowa.

Harold Pride, Ames, president of the Iowa Westminister foundation, and the Rev. William Henderson and the Rev. George Steele, directors of Westminister foundation work at Ames and Cedar Falls.

The new building, costing $80,000, is a two-story brick structure on the west side of the church.

High School Awards Given for Citizenship

Winners have been announced in the eighth judicial district of the annual American Citizenship award program of the Iowa State Bar association.

The award is presented to the senior in each participating high school who, in the opinion of the faculty of the school, has demonstrated his knowledge of the principles of American Citizenship and has shown the most outstanding qualities of American citizenship.

The award consist of a scroll and a bronze medal.

Iowa City winners are: Dean Kelsey, St. Patrick's high school; Mary Jo Ponce, St. Mary's high school; Philip Ware, Iowa City high school, and Nick Johnson, University high school.

Members of the bar will present the awards at all schools except St. Patrick's where the presentation will be made by a member of the clergy.
