GSU Now: Elect 1969 Summer Session
CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO—Republican senators and congressmen began arriving yesterday, and the fun began today, for the 1952 GOP convention opened its doors to thousands of dollars worth of delegates from across the nation.

By Cuba Today

The real story goes back to the decision of the convention's executive committee to accept $10,000 in cash from Cuba. The money was to be used to buy a gift for the Cuban president.

The gift, a large, circular table, was presented to President Batista by the convention committee. It was later presented to the American people.

The table was made of mahogany and had a large, circular top. It was designed to seat eight people and was used at the convention's opening session.

The convention hall was packed with people, many of whom had never been to a political convention before. The excitement was palpable as the delegates filed into the hall, eager to see the president's face.

The convention proceeded without incident, and the delegates were able to focus on the important issues of the day.

The hall was full of people, many of whom were already planning to vote for the Republican candidate. The atmosphere was one of anticipation, and the delegates were eager to hear what the president had to say.

The convention concluded with a speech by the president, in which he thanked the delegates for their support and promised to work hard for the betterment of the country.

The convention was a success, and the Republicans were confident that they would win the election.

The little foxes

The little foxes, 2d full-length play, was produced at the Playhouse, 1111 W. Wabash Ave., Chicago, in the first night of its run. The play was produced by the Chicago Repertory Theatre Corporation.

The play was directed by Robert Porter, and the cast included John Garfield, Mary Anderson, and John Logan. The play was based on the novel by James Agee and Charles Murchison.

The play was about the lives of a group of people living in a small town in the American South. The main character, John Garfield, is a young man who is caught up in the cycle of poverty and violence that plagues the town.

The play was a critical success, and it was praised for its realistic portrayal of the lives of working-class people.

Chicago Crime Expert Displays Lie Detector

The Chicago Crime Expert, a detective who specializes in lie detection, displayed his equipment at the convention. He demonstrated how the equipment works by having several people sit in a chair and answer questions.

The equipment was able to detect lies and was designed to help law enforcement agencies investigate crimes.
