Highlanders Hold Final Drills; Will Leave for Europe Sunday

By MARJORIE BREHM

"They practice until they're almost numb, and you can't stop them no matter how hot the sun gets." Pipe Major William Adamson observed Friday afternoon as the Highlanders concluded the second day of rehearsals.

They leave Iowa City by train Sunday morning at 9:15.

Adamson, director of the SUI all-girl bag pipe band, said they will practice again today from 8:00 to 3:00 and then they will pack their instruments.

The Highlanders will leave Montreal July 15 and arrive in LeHavre, France, on July 26 to begin their European tour.

Practice Between Performances

"We hope to practice quite a bit on the boat and run through the routines again over there between performances," Adamson said. He explained that each field will be new to the group and that they will depend on the drum major to give the signals necessitated by the size of the fields.

Mary Lou Mortensen, A4, Des Moines, has been drum major during the 1951-52 year. This summer she has been in charge of the pipe band playing and marching rehearsals and she is also a member of the governing committee.

The governing committee of the Highlanders is made up of the drum major, 10 squadron leaders appointed by Adamson, and 3 girls elected by the Highlanders. Squadron leaders are responsible for members coming to attention when commanded, wearing uniforms properly and having instruments in playing condition. Committee Makes Rules

The governing committee sets the rules of conduct regarding hours, dating and side trips and recommends discipline for any offenses against the rules.

Adamson has directed the group to follow the rules "to maintain the good reputation that we have made for ourselves and to be respected by the institution we represent . . . the University of Iowa."

Definite social regulations have been set up for the Highlanders. All dates must be double dates with another Highlander; side trips can be made only if parents have given permission; smoking is forbidden on streets or public places and slacks are permitted only while traveling. "Use discretion!" is the motto which Adamson urges the Highlanders to follow.

Chaperones Make Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Adamson, Mrs. Lynn Ramond, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Strayer will act as chaperones for the group. Strayer is news editor of SUI's information service and will handle news for the information service concerning the Highlanders' activities abroad.

Mrs. Lynn Ramond, Iowa City, will photograph the entire trip. She will take between 2,000 and 3,000 feet of color film which will be cut to a 25-minute film complete with sound and running commentary. The film will be available for public showings.

Taft Talks to Wife, Ike After Watching Defeat

Robert A. Taft
Sign Tells the Story

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft, with three sons by his side, watched the 25th Republican national convention turn down his third bid for the presidential nomination.

Seated in front of a huge television set in his private office, the Ohio senator kept his own running tally.

When it was certain he had lost the nomination, Taft reached for a telephone and gave the operator the number of the Congress hotel two blocks away.

He was calling his wife, Martha, who in many past campaigns has hit as fast a pace as her husband. Now she is not able to, following a stroke she suffered some time ago.

Within a matter of minutes, Taft received a call from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the man to whom he lost the nomination. Taft invited the general to come across the street to see him.

Eisenhower did. The two chatted privately in Taft's office. Then, before television cameras, Taft pledged his full support to the general in the forthcoming campaign and after it. He predicted Eisenhower would win.

Taft headquarters were glum and downcast when the result of the balloting in convention hall four miles away became known. Workers clustered in small groups and talked about what might have been. Some girls — the "Belles for Bob" — wept openly, but most took the news calmly, though with obvious disappointment.

Audio-Visual Panel Reviews Planning Of Educational TV

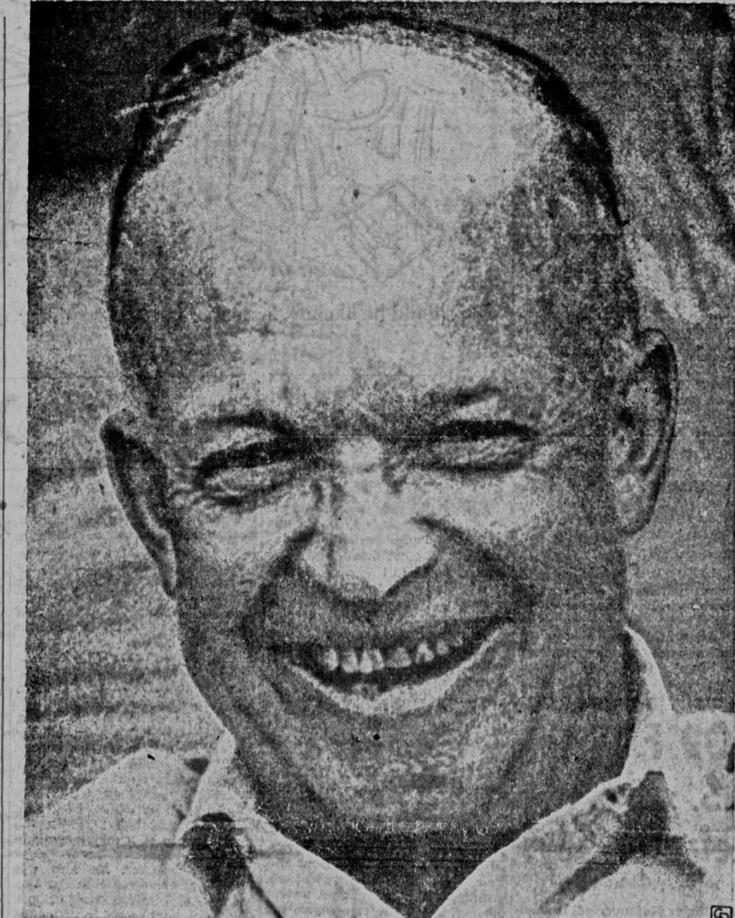

Educational television, reviewed by a panel of six, was the main topic before more than 30 Iowa educators who attended the audio-visual workshop Friday at SUI.

Referring to the recent federal communications commission allocation of more than 200 TV channels for educational stations, the group introduced the area as one "being planned and considered by many schools today."

Although there is little organized use of TV in education today, the panel members suggested that recent allocations have brought about serious consideration and planning in that direction. State educational networks, as an example, are now being planned in Wisconsin, New York and a number of other states.

According to members of the discussion group, the network would enable schools to combine their talent as well as their financial resources. The network would also make the programs available to every television set owner in the state, they concluded.

Members of the panel were chairman Arthur M. Barnes, associate professor of dramatic art; Earl Ellis, Coronet Instructional Films; and J. Dickman, Encyclopedia Britannica Films.

Minnesota Shift Gives Ike 1st Ballot Decision

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Kansas lad who once dreamed of baseball stardom rather than political glory, took the Republican presidential nomination Friday with a dazzling first ballot victory.

Friday night the five-star general formally accepted the summons to lead the GOP in a "great crusade" for another victory—and "for freedom in America and a freedom in the world."

As a running mate for the great political wars of 1952, the Republican national convention placed the man he wanted—39-year-old Richard M. Nixon, senator from California and nemesis of Alger Hiss.

For Nixon, it was an unopposed nomination, without even a roll call. For Eisenhower it was unanimous, too, but only after a roaring finish fight with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Eisenhower crashed to victory on the first ballot, after leading most of the way. The convention finally made it unanimous.

For the man who was an anonymous lieutenant colonel little more than a decade ago, the victory was as spectacular in many ways as those on other battlefields—North Africa, the Normandy beaches, the Rhine of World War II.

Down to bitter and perhaps lasting defeat went Sen. Robert A. Taft, son of a president, Mr. Republican to millions of the GOP legions. Twice before, in 1940 and 1948, the Ohio senator had reached for the nomination and twice he failed.

On the roll call of the states, in this convention amphitheater on the edge of the stockyards, Taft moved out ahead briefly. The voting see-sawed. Then Michigan put Eisenhower into the lead to stay.

Ike 9 Votes Short

But the end of the call the general hung just nine votes short of the magic 604 needed to clinch the nomination. He had 595 votes, Taft an even 500.

Minnesota took charge at that dramatic moment.

The Gopher state had caucused early Friday morning. Stassen showed up and left with tears streaming down his cheeks. Six of Minnesota's 28 delegates who had been pledged to the one-time governor wanted to leap to the Eisenhower bandwagon.

Ike Pledges Victory, Progressive Policies, In Party's Crusade

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower pledged Friday night to lead the Republican party to "total victory" and said he accepted "a dedication to the shining promise of tomorrow."

He declared: "Our aims — the aims of this Republican crusade — are clear: to sweep from office an administration which has fastened on every one of us the wastefulness, the arrogance and corruption in high places, the heavy burdens and the anxieties which are the bitter fruit of a party too long in power."

"Much more, it is our aim to give to our country a program of progressive policies drawn from our finest Republican traditions; to unite us wherever we have been divided; to strengthen freedom wherever among any group it has been weakened; to build up a sure foundation for sound prosperity for all here at home and for a just and sure peace in the world."

Eisenhower pictured the coming campaign as a battle and said he would use all-out battle strategy in seeking victory over the Democratic nominee.

He said his campaign aim would be to reach out for all Americans. "In that fight I will keep nothing in reserve," Eisenhower declared.

Ladd Will Speak At Yale University

Mason Ladd, dean of the SUI college of law, is leaving today for Yale university where he will deliver a talk on "Legal Aspects of Problems Relating to Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol," on Wednesday.

Dean Ladd will speak in the Yale summer school of alcohol studies.

Wednesday afternoon he will be a member of a panel discussion on the same subject with Professors Seldin D. Bacon and Leon A. Greenburg of Yale.

65 Superforts Hit Pyongyang In Night Raid

SEOUL, Korea (SATURDAY) (AP) — Sixty-five B-29 superforts renewed the blistering air attack on blazing Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, Friday night in the greatest night raids of the war, the air force announced today.

The night attack came hard on the heels of 856 jolting daylight strikes by Allied fighter-bombers that made the Reds scream "barbaric."

Main target of the superforts was Pyongyang, hit by 540 tons of high explosives from 54 planes. This was in addition to 870 tons of bombs, 650 rockets and 9,600 gallons of napalm (jelled gasoline) poured on the Red capital during the day.

Other superforts blasted supply areas at Hamhung, Kyomipo and near Sinmark, in North Korea's eastern and central sectors.

The air force announcement from Tokyo said the superforts dropped their deadly cargoes on targets not hit in daylight by the fighter-bombers.

Iowa Delegation Seeking Harmony

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO (AP) — Iowa's feuding delegates to the Republican convention sought to close ranks Friday night for a joint assault on the Democrats.

Robert K. Goodwin, delegation chairman who ran into sharp criticism here from the Iowa I've forces, told a reporter he is anxious to forgive and forget.

World News Briefs

A Condensation of Late Developments

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Gen. Vasily I. Chuikov promised U.S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy personally Friday to investigate a kidnapping that has enraged beleaguered West Berlin. The chief of the Soviet control commission said he hoped McCloy did not believe the Russians had anything to do with the kidnapping—the abduction Tuesday of Dr. Walter Linse, an anti-Communist lawyer.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Price Chief Ellis Arnall said Friday night the office of price stabilization will cut off about 6,150 of its 12,000 employees by Sept. 1 due to slashed by congress in the agency's operating funds. "Even though this slash in our staff will be a big handicap," he said, "We don't intend to go into a willy-nilly rush of lifting price ceilings. We still intend to carry on the very best price control program we can."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian mail and passenger plane with 31 persons aboard Friday crashed into the sea about 37 miles southwest of Salvador City in northeastern Brazil, the Brazilian air force announced. The number of casualties was not immediately determined. A pilot for a private Brazilian airline, flying over the same route between Rio de Janeiro and northern Brazil later in the day, said he observed several bodies in the water and several survivors trying to reach the beach nearby.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (AP) — Gov. Adlai Stevenson issued a statement declaring this his own position "has not been altered in any way" by the outcome of the GOP convention. The statement reiterated that Stevenson is "a candidate only for re-election as governor of Illinois and wants no other office."

CIO, Big Steel Talk in Secret At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Top officials of several big steel companies and the striking CIO United Steelworkers held a 90-minute meeting Friday amid reports a new offer may be made to end the 40-day-old strike.

There was no report of progress in the second consecutive day of secret huddles.

After a morning meeting, industry and union negotiators held separate sessions.

Emerging from a conference room Friday night where he had been conferring with other union officials, steelworkers President Philip Murray declared:

"I have nothing to report on today's (Friday's) meeting with industry and that's that."

Asked if another meeting will be held today, Murray replied:

"It is a reasonable assumption that a meeting will be held tomorrow (Saturday)."

Tension Runs High as Ike Watches Vote on TV

By The Associated Press

The tense, dramatic scene in the general's Blackstone hotel suite was described to newsmen by Eisenhower's press secretary, Robert Mullen.

Here is Mullen's account of what happened as the general watched the convention proceedings on television:

"Ike turned on television just before the balloting started and when things quieted down, he watched the proceedings with his brothers, friends and staff."

"At the Rhode Island count, Ike fiddled with two coins in his hand."

"At Pennsylvania, all leaned forward with tenseness and then relaxed."

"All through the final stages, Ike fiddled with two coins in his fingers. I thought they were half dollars, but I asked to make sure. He tossed them to me."

Student, Faculty Poll Shows—

GOP Nominee Approved at SUI

By BILL TORAN

The Chicago 1952 Republican convention fire spread to the SUI campus this week and Friday afternoon it was ablaze with favorable reactions to the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Although there was some surprise at Ike's nomination on the first ballot, there was a stronger feeling of zeal and solid determination, among those who commented. Enthusiasm is high for a Republican victory in November.

Dean Mason Ladd, college of law, said, "I have been for Eisenhower from the beginning. A great choice has been made. He will win in November and will make a great president. He fulfills America's national and international needs."

Dean Sidney G. Winter, college of commerce, looked to the three and a half months between now and the November election: "The Republicans have a good chance to win in November with Eisenhower — if they will work at it."

Behind Eisenhower's nomination, Dean Dewey W. Stuit, college of liberal arts, saw the influence of the people throughout the country. "I was somewhat surprised that the nomination took place on the first ballot. But the strong endorsement of Eisenhower by the people, through public opinion polls, carried a great deal of weight."

Stuit added, "I believe that General Eisenhower will be a very strong leader for the party."

L. Dale Faunce, dean of student, interpreted the nomination as a sign of GOP strength. "Eisenhower's nomination is an indication of the reuniting of the Republican party, and I believe that their chances of success in November are greater by this move."

Prof. Walter F. Daykin, department of labor and industrial management, reacted "quite favorably" to the nomination. "I felt Eisenhower would be the candidate. He was my favorite."

A number of students were on the Ike bandwagon too. Their comments were brief.

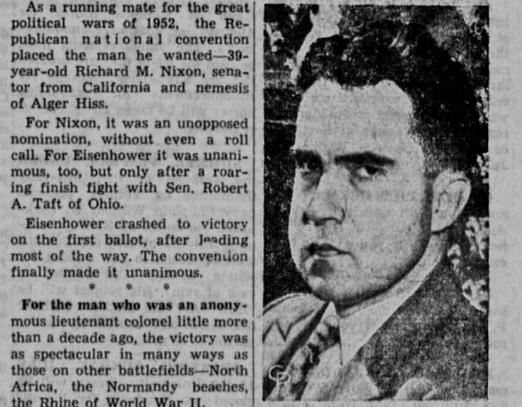

Joseph Murray, G. Strawberry Point, said, "I feel that Ike's nomination is for the good of the country. I'm in favor of it."

Don C. Dawson, C4, Audubon, is no hanger-on. "Glad to see Ike get it. I was for him all along."

Ada Combes, N2, Stronghurst, Ill., said "I thought it was dramatic when the Stassen delegation swung over to Eisenhower."

David Stanley, L4, Iowa City, state chairman of "Youth for Eisenhower" could not be reached for comment.

A student who would not give his name was quite saddened by the outcome of the convention. "I was for Taft — because I'm a Democrat."

Richard M. Nixon
At 39, a Veep Candidate

Down to bitter and perhaps lasting defeat went Sen. Robert A. Taft, son of a president, Mr. Republican to millions of the GOP legions. Twice before, in 1940 and 1948, the Ohio senator had reached for the nomination and twice he failed.

On the roll call of the states, in this convention amphitheater on the edge of the stockyards, Taft moved out ahead briefly. The voting see-sawed. Then Michigan put Eisenhower into the lead to stay.

But the end of the call the general hung just nine votes short of the magic 604 needed to clinch the nomination. He had 595 votes, Taft an even 500.

Minnesota took charge at that dramatic moment.

The Gopher state had caucused early Friday morning. Stassen showed up and left with tears streaming down his cheeks. Six of Minnesota's 28 delegates who had been pledged to the one-time governor wanted to leap to the Eisenhower bandwagon.

Stassen reluctantly let them go. That divided the delegation 19 for him, 9 for Eisenhower. The 19 agreed that if their votes were all that Eisenhower needed to go over the top, they would be delivered to the general.

Minnesota Switches

At the end of the roll call, the convention chairman recognized the Minnesota delegation.

"Mr. Chairman," came a voice from the floor, "Minnesota wishes to change its votes to Eisenhower. That did it. Eisenhower was in with 614 votes."

Other states switched to the Eisenhower standard, one by one, before the result could be announced. But Taft still was clinging to his solid 56 delegates from Ohio and scattered votes from other states. Warren held his 70 from California and a smattering of others.

There were a few MacArthur die-hards.

Convention waits for tally

There was a long delay while tally clerks added up the score and Eisenhower lieutenants went into a back-room huddle to look over vice-presidential possibilities.

Convention Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr., then banged his gavel to announce the standings:

MacArthur 4, Warren 77, Taft 280, Eisenhower 845.

A tremendous cheer thundered up from the floor and was picked up by onlookers in the balconies.

In the moment of triumph for one and downfall for the other, Taft and Eisenhower met dramatically, to provide the only real moment of harmony and unity that had been apparent in the hottest, angriest Republican convention in years. All the charges of "steal" and "thievery" that had torn the party were put aside then with pledges of friendship and support.

Eisenhower slipped down a back elevator and crossed the street. He and Taft conferred together privately for a few minutes in Taft's office and then appeared together for television cameras. Both were smiling broadly, but Taft's cha-

German Unity Meeting Will Not Be Decisive

By J. M. ROBERTS JR., Associated Press Analyst

On the same day that the West German parliament passed the new political and military pacts with the Western powers on first reading, the Big Three offered Russia "another opportunity" to meet with them if she is sincere about German unification.

Neither action decides anything. Russia's previous notes indicate that she will not be willing to meet Allied requirements even for the low-level meeting proposed for the purpose of setting up a commission to study all-German election possibilities.

What she wants is a high-level meeting with an agenda which will permit her to propagandize against the pacts and delay them by encouraging German hopes for a settlement.

The apparent unanimity of the West Germans, except for the Communists, on the first reading is misleading. The Socialists have been opposing, and still oppose, the substance of the pacts. They merely voted to send the measures to committee for study pending decisive readings in the fall.

Action Was Surprise
Their action in doing so was a surprise. They are placing their main dependence on a court fight challenging the constitutionality of the agreements. Regardless of how this turns out, the Socialists are expected to renew their active opposition when actual adoption of the treaties is at stake. And they will be helped by the extreme rightists.

The most striking thing about the two-day debate which preceded Thursday's action was the failure of the opponents to present any sort of substitute for the pro-Western policy of Chancellor Adenauer.

Defeatist Attitude
There were, instead, expressions of recognition that Germany had lost a war, that she was up against the Iron Curtain, and that she was in no position to press the Western Allies for more than they were willing to give in return for Germany's participation in Western European defense.

This urgency, the lack of any practical alternative for Germany, was expected to be decisive in the matter of eventual approval.

The Allied note to Russia, the general contents of which were known for several days prior to its delivery, may have helped Adenauer in these initial stages of the debate. It served as evidence that the Allies intended to keep open the matter of unification.

GOP Forgets U.S. Laborer, Kefauver Says

By The Associated Press

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who hopes to succeed President Truman in the White House, accused the Republican national convention Thursday of having made the American worker "the forgotten man."

Kefauver, front-running candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the newly unveiled GOP platform had given "the waste-basket treatment" to labor proposals, and he declared:

"In its eagerness to serve the Wall street wing, the Republican party once again has turned its back on 16 million trade unionists."

Campaigning in Illinois
Kefauver, campaigning in Illinois, said he expects to win the Democratic nomination on the fifth or sixth ballot at the Chicago convention starting July 21.

The tall Tennessee said he believes Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia will be his "most formidable opponent."

In Washington, D.C., Russell put a high rating on his own chances. Emerging from a White House talk with President Truman, Russell told newsmen:

"I would not exchange places this morning with any other candidate for the Democratic nomination."

'Understand Each Other'
Russell also remarked that he is "sure the President and I understand each other." He balked at saying any more when asked whether he meant to imply that he had Truman's endorsement.

In other developments: Campaign headquarters for Averell Harriman announced that Frances Perkins, for 12 years secretary of labor under President Franklin Roosevelt, had endorsed the Democratic candidacy of the foreign aid chief. Miss Perkins, a member of the civil service commission since 1946, presently is in Europe where she went to attend a meeting of the International Labor organization.

Others See Truman
Two former Democratic national committee officials paid calls at the White House, reflecting Truman's increased attention to the forthcoming Democratic convention in Chicago.

But if either "got the word" as to Truman's choice of a Democratic nominee, they kept it a secret as they left the White House.

William M. Boyle Jr., former national chairman, and Edwin W. Pauley, California oil man and one-time party treasurer, agreed that the Democrats will need their "best team" to beat Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Who's Who Among Democratic Candidates

By CLARKE BEACH, AP Newsfeatures Writer

Among the men who are running, or being pushed, toward the Democratic presidential nomination, these eight have been the most conspicuous:

Sen. Estes Kefauver, 48, who has by far the largest bloc of pledged delegates. The Tennesseean caught the national imagination last year when he was chairman of the televised senate crime investigation — looking very wise and righteous as he grilled one notorious gangster after another before the cameras. He first became nationally famous in 1948 when he beat the long-undefeated Boss Crump machine and got elected to the senate.

He had been a highly successful Chattanooga lawyer when he was elected to the house of representatives in 1940. He has voted usually for the New Deal and Fair Deal. The tall, rawboned, grinning candidate has an ardent partner in all his campaigns, his good-looking wife, Nancy, whose father is a Glasgow, Scotland, shipbuilder.

Vice-president Barkley, who has been selected the favorite son candidate of his home state of Kentucky. Barkley says he won't campaign, but he'll accept if nominated.

In Office Since 1905
Barkley, who has held some elective office since 1905, has been a party stalwart for decades. He has almost always followed the lead of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. As senate majority leader, he helped to sell that body on much of Roosevelt's New Deal. Elected vice-president in 1948, he has continued to be a strong leader in the senate and has also found time to keep a heavy speaking schedule throughout the country. He and his wife even took a tour of the Pacific battlefields and military bases last November.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, at 41 a spearhead of New Dealism in the party. He calls himself a "Roosevelt Democrat." He helped merge the farmer-labor and Democratic parties in his home state of Minnesota and now is leader of the joint party there.

Civil Rights Advocate
Humphrey is a tireless public speaker and television orator. He won his first election in 1945, to become mayor of Minneapolis. His big achievements in the office were his drive against gambling and establishment of a city fair employment practices commission. He was elected to the senate in 1948, after he had led a successful drive at the national convention for a strong civil rights plank.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, leader of the south's drive to control the party and of the bloc that opposes to the bitter end the civil rights plank that Humphrey promoted.

Long Career in Senate
Russell, 54-year-old bachelor, has devoted most of his adult life to hard work in the senate, where he is chairman of the armed services committee. He made a big impression on Capitol Hill when his committee investigated the group with consummate skill, safely weaving through a minefield of political dynamite.

Russell was elected governor of Georgia in 1931 and senator in 1933.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr, 56-year-old oil millionaire, who recalls often that he was born in a 14-foot-square log cabin, in Ada, Okla. He was a lawyer before he struck oil. He became governor of his state in 1942 and senator in 1948.

Kerr a Prohibitionist
The 240-pound, 6-foot 4 Kerr made 300 speeches during 17 months as governor. He delivered the keynote address at the national convention in 1944 — where he is credited with helping to start the boom for Harry S. Truman for vice-president. His enemies call him "The Big Wind," and his friends refer to him as "Smiling Bob." He is a non-smoker, non-

TO THE EDITOR:
Independence day weekend I attended the national convention of the Progressive party in Chicago as a member of the Iowa delegation. On the basis of what I saw and heard I would ask Morgan Gibson and your other readers to reconsider the possibility of the Progressive party as the "honest and effective peace party."

The Progressive platform draft begins as follows:
"The American people want peace. In recognition of this universal desire, each political party will claim to be the peace party in 1952."

"There is one touchstone by which every voter can test the sincerity of these claims: Does the party have a program for ending the fighting in Korea?"

Mr. Gibson worries because the Progressives do not lay sufficient blame for the cold war on the U.S.S.R. Here is what the draft platform has to say:
"Despite the differences in political and economic viewpoints between the United States and the Soviet Union, whatever mistakes each may have made, whatever the shortcomings of each great country may be, they can and must work together on the basis of mutual self-interest and the dictates of survival, for world peace, far-reaching disarmament and normal international trade."

In my opinion to say other than this is to start down the short, painful road to disaster, paved by the old parties who cover their moves to war and their destruction of our economic life with ever more vitriolic attacks on the one country with whom we must get along or perish.

The specific peace planks of the Progressives include: Cease fire in Korea; stop rearmament and renazification of a disunited Germany; outlaw use of the A-bomb and H-bomb and germ warfare; a UN fund of $50 billion to help the underprivileged areas of the world develop their resources; defeat UMT; abolish trade barriers between East and West; a 5-power peace conference.

Are these peace proposals sincere? The proof will come only with the election of the Progressive party to office. One thing we know for sure — the Democrats and Republicans have stamped on the hopes of the American people for peace, weakened the United Nations, aroused the peoples of Asia against us and set the nerves of the European nations more and more on edge as they watch a new war come closer.

Is it worth voting for a party that is too small and too young to win? The credentials report at the Progressive convention listed 1,797 delegates from 41 states—farmers, factory workers, businessmen, churchmen, students, housewives—a good beginning. As Dr. W. E. B. Dubois said in his keynote address: "The flimsiest excuse for voting wrong is that the right cannot win. The right has won in the past and will win in the future. It loses only when you let it lose."

To Mr. Gibson and the other despairing ones amongst us—there is hope! Vote for Vincent Hallinan and Charlotta Bass, presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the Progressive party.

House Group Warns Against Fluoridation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A house committee Thursday told American cities to be careful before deciding to add fluoride to drinking water as a way of reducing tooth decay.

The recommendation came from a special house committee on chemicals in food. The group held hearings on fluoridation of water from Feb. 13 to March 6.

The warning of caution was approved by all seven committee members, but Rep. Miller (R-Neb) prepared a separate report suggesting delay in fluoridation.

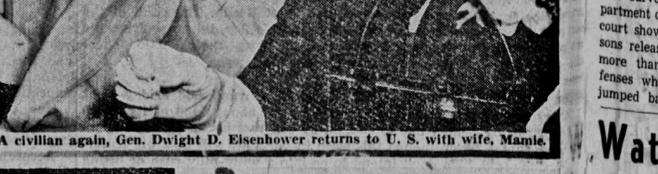

The committee report said all facts about fluoridation should be made public "and an opportunity given to the people of each community to decide for themselves whether they desire to assume, at this time, the calculated risk inherent in the program."

"A sufficient number of unanswered questions concerning the safety of this program exists as to warrant a conservative attitude," it said.

The house members chided pro-fluoride groups who contend that fluoridation is comparable with the long-accepted practice of chlorinating water.

Chlorine is added to destroy harmful bacteria in water. While fluorides are added to cause "a physiological change in the body," they said.

Political Maneuvering Helps Ike Win Wylie Collects Data for Meteor Research

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower became "Mr. Republican" Friday — and the way it was done is the fascinating inside story of a rough-house week of political maneuvering.

He took the title in the emotional climax that came in one moment of voting in the 25th GOP presidential nominating convention when Minnesota suddenly shifted 19 votes from Harold E. Stassen to Eisenhower.

The real story goes back to the opening of the convention Monday when Eisenhower and Taft forces were locked in a struggle for delegates.

Ike Needed Hard Core

Taft was predicting a first-ballot victory. The Eisenhower command knew it had to build up a hard core of strength to stop Taft, and then try to put the general across on the second or third ballot. They had not dared hope for a first ballot win.

The Eisenhower people were confident.

This confidence stemmed from the fact that they had assurances the big Michigan and Pennsylvania delegations would be top-heavy for Eisenhower.

These were the keystones of the general's strength—Michigan and Pennsylvania, plus the strength of New York which Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was ready to deliver to Eisenhower.

Fine, Summerfield Were Keys

The key figures in this situation were Gov. John Fine of Pennsylvania, who controlled many of the state's 70 votes, and Arthur Summerfield of Detroit, who is a power in Michigan politics.

After weeks of wooing, Fine and Summerfield agreed to line up with Eisenhower. The Eisenhower strategists knew then that they were ready for an open test with Taft.

They maneuvered it on the first convention day — on the "first play" issue over the disputed delegations from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia.

The Eisenhower people forced a vote. The technical question was whether any disputed delegate would be allowed to vote on the seating of any other delegate.

1st Test of Strength

But the delegates knew this actually was the first test of strength between the two leading candidates. When the counting was over, Eisenhower had beaten Taft, 658 to 548.

Pennsylvania and Michigan were revealed on the general's side by wide margins in this test while New York was 95 to 1 with Eisenhower. This was the solid core which Eisenhower people had been working for weeks to build up.

Two days later, the Taft-Eisenhower forces clashed again on seating disputed delegates. Again Eisenhower won — 607 to 531.

In both tests, the general had strong support from California's 70 delegates pledged to Gov. Earl Warren and from Minnesota's 28 votes, most of them pledged to Stassen.

Taft Beaten Twice

Taft had received two successive beatings. But the Taft camp figured correctly. Eisenhower couldn't win on a first ballot without California and Minnesota.

Taft huddled with Warren and Stassen. Both of them assured him their delegations would remain neutral at least on the first ballot. But a crack in this front came Friday morning when Minnesota delegates caucused and six Stassen delegates demanded and received a release from their pledge so they might vote for Eisenhower.

More important, the Minnesota delegates reached another agreement among themselves. They agreed that if, at the end of the first ballot, their total votes could nominate Eisenhower, then they would shift all their votes to the general, which finally happened.

Jap Courts Beginning To Doubt Use of Bail

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese courts are beginning to have misgivings about legal concept borrowed from the Western world — the granting of bail.

A survey by the criminal department of the Japanese supreme court showed that of 36,970 persons released on bail during 1951 more than 6,000 committed offenses while at liberty and 772 jumped bail.

Waterloo Slayer to Appeal to Governor

WATERLOO (AP) — An attorney for Edward J. (Buddy) Beckwith said Friday an appeal would be made to Governor William S. Beardsley to save the young Waterloo factory worker from being hanged.

Beckwith, twice convicted of first degree murder in the mutilation slaying of Mrs. Irma Jean Stahlhut in the walk-in cooler of the tavern her husband operated at Morrison, Ia., is slated to be hanged at the Fort Madison state penitentiary August 4.

Beckwith's last hope of escaping the death penalty through court action ended Thursday. That

2d SUI Theater Production Depicts Greed, Turbulence in Post-Civil War South

"The Little Foxes," Lillian Hellman's drama of greed and turbulence in the post-Civil War days of the South, will open a four-day run Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the University theater.

It is the second play on the theater's summer schedule. The original cast of "The Little Foxes," when it was showing on Broadway, included Tallulah Bankhead, Dan Duryea, Teresa Wright and Charles Dingle. The drama held a long run in New York and has since been taken on tour throughout many cities in the United States.

In the leading role of "Regina Giddens," the selfish and ruthless daughter of a Southern "carpet-bagger," will be Susan Wood, A2, Racine, Wis. Miss Wood appeared as "Queen Elizabeth" in last year's "Mary Stuart" and was also in "The Beggar's Opera."

Local Improvement Is Aim of Social Work, SUI's Seaman Says

Increasing efforts should be made now through community centers of various types to counteract centralization of governmental and economic control, according to Richard M. Seaman, specialist in group organization in the SUI school of social work.

Speaking Friday in Sioux City to a conference of group work, informal educational and recreational agencies backed by the Sioux City community fund, he said that such organizations have a basic American objective in common.

This, he pointed out, is the promotion of neighborhood life. In this time of crisis, children and adults must not merely be reminded of the traditions of America, but must be helped to make them come alive in neighborhood play and work, he said.

The employees and volunteers in our community agencies must have agreement and conviction about these social values.

Families and neighborhoods can be helped to provide their own solutions to their problems, Seaman declared. This is a tremendous challenge to community centers of all types.

The tendency toward centralization of control has left vast reservoirs of local ability undeveloped for lack of persons skilled in group organization, he concluded.

1st of 8 Streets Ready for Concrete In City-Wide Plan

E. Bloomington st., between Governor st. and Union place, is now being prepared for paving by workmen of the Horrabin Contracting company, low bidder on the project.

This is the first of eight street paving projects scheduled for Iowa City this summer. Started this week, the grading is completed and the forms are set and ready for concrete.

The paving in that block is expected to be completed by Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Grading has also begun on Lucas st., between Iowa ave. and Jefferson st.

Republicans Blast Brannan Farm Plan In New Platform

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO (AP) — Republicans Thursday staked their hopes for regaining midwest farm support on a promise that they would preserve farmers from "political dictators."

A farm plank approved by the party's national convention charged that the Truman administration, through use of subsidies and a "multitude" of federal agencies, is trying to put farmers under a political yoke.

The plank lashed out in particular at a controversial farm plan advanced several years ago by Secretary of Agriculture Charles A. Brannan. This plan would use federal subsidies to buoy farmers' income and give consumers low food prices when surpluses arose.

The GOP condemned this plan as a "fraud" on both consumers and farmers, because the government would have to exact taxes from both to pay the subsidies. The plank favored a farm program "aimed at full parity prices" at the marketplace.

Demos Predict Win Over Ike

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's first-round knockout victory in winning the Republican presidential nomination spurred predictions from the Democratic camp Friday that he will be "sadder but wiser" in November.

Two candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination—Senators Richard B. Russell of Georgia and Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma—said they thought they could beat Gen. Ike in the fall run-off.

President Truman, like millions of other Americans, watched the GOP convention windup via television, but sent out word to White House newsmen that he had no comment on Eisenhower's triumph.

The lie detector lives up to its name! That was the conclusion of Iowa police officers after watching John Reid, Chicago expert, catch three of their members in a simulated "burglary."

Reid was the main speaker Friday at the final session of the 16th annual police officers short course being held on the SUI campus.

Chicago Crime Expert Displays Lie Detector

The lie detector lives up to its name! That was the conclusion of Iowa police officers after watching John Reid, Chicago expert, catch three of their members in a simulated "burglary."

Reid was the main speaker Friday at the final session of the 16th annual police officers short course being held on the SUI campus.

Assisting Reid in his experiment were Officers Don Cooper, Corning, Emmett Evans, Iowa City, and Earl Brown, Grinnell, each of whom "lifted" a small, colored money box.

Each answered negatively, a series of questions referring to his guilt. However, the lie detector machine recorded high-spiraling blood pressure movements when each of the officers "lied."

This particular type of test, identified as "peak attention," gets its results in that the accused's blood pressure reacts to a feared question.

As an example, Reid cited a hypothetical burglary case where the accused was unaware that police knew his point of entry, a bathroom window. While continually denying any knowledge of the burglary, the accused's blood pressure gave him away when he had not entered through the bathroom window.

Iowa City Directors Work to Eliminate Vets Hospital Smoke

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce board of directors Friday morning discussed the Veterans hospital smoke nuisance.

The board took steps looking toward eventual elimination of the problem. The board voted to have Chamber President George Nagle call a meeting of Chamber officials, city officials and VA hospital officials to discuss the smoke abatement.

The board said Friday there are definite moves that can be made to eliminate coal now being used at the hospital.

Last month hospital officials said further steps to relieve the smoke nuisance were being taken with the installation of some over-fire steam jets in the boiler room.

The steam jets would aid in lessening the amount of fly ash and soot particles coming from the hospital smoke stack, officials said.

The amount of available material for a meteor research project at SUI increased in the space of a few hours recently.

C. C. Wylie, professor of astronomy at SUI and director of the project, has received the material in the form of reports about three brilliant meteors which were seen in one day, June 28.

At 3:42 a.m. on that date a spectacular meteor was reported by observers in northern Kansas, southern Nebraska and western Iowa. The object apparently fell in western South Dakota.

A meteor which was greenish in color was seen at 10:55 p.m. that night by several persons in Burlington, Iowa City and Grinnell. It was also observed in the Grand Rapids, Mich. area and was especially brilliant in the vicinity of Milwaukee. It is believed to have ended near Green Bay, Wis.

Through a lucky snap of the shutter, a Milwaukee man who was photographing an electrical storm took a picture of this meteor. Photographic data on brilliant meteors is extremely rare according to Wylie.

About 10 minutes later at approximately 11:05 p.m., Iowa City residents reported another meteor which was seen in the western sky.

The sudden spurt of meteor observations is due primarily to the fact that a large number of people are outdoors at night because of the hot weather, Wylie explains. He adds that there probably were a few more meteors during the period than usual.

Wylie Collects Data for Meteor Research

Wylie renewed his request for reports on the June 28 meteors and on other recent meteors which were unusually brilliant. These reports may be sent to the Department of Astronomy, State University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa.

A reception will be held Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the home of SUI President Virgil M. Hancher for all members of the visiting summer session faculty.

Pouring at the reception will be Mrs. A. W. Bryan, Mrs. H. A. Mattill, Mrs. Paul Brechler, Mrs. D. B. Stuit, Mrs. E. T. Peterson, and Mrs. H. H. Davis.
