England May Oppose Attempt to Unify Europe

By J. M. ROBERTS 20

A London diplomat has said there is considerable doubt among the Allies about the desirability of European unification. It is believed that many British officials believe that unification is likely to be a good thing, but they also believe that it is likely to be a bad thing as well. Some of them believe that unification will lead to the collapse of the British Empire, and others believe that it will lead to the collapse of the British monarchy.

The diplomat said that the British government is considering the possibility of seeking to negotiate a treaty of friendship and cooperation with the United States, in order to prevent the collapse of the British Empire. He said that the British government is also considering the possibility of seeking to negotiate a treaty of friendship and cooperation with the United States, in order to prevent the collapse of the British monarchy.

WACO (N.L.P) — A great typhoon lash- ed Wake Island yesterday, hurling the U. S. Marines ashore, and stranding the entire garrison. The typhoon, said to have been the strongest ever to hit the island, reportedly caused $100,000 worth of damage.

The typhoon, which began early yesterday morning, lasted for about 24 hours. It was accompanied by heavy rain, gale force winds, and severe lightning. The island, which is about 70 miles from the nearest land, was cut off from the outside world.

The typhoon caused extensive damage to the military installations on the island. The base, which is the only major U. S. military base in the Pacific, was temporarily halted at 10 a.m. yesterday.

The typhoon was caused by a combination of factors, including a high pressure system over the western Pacific Ocean, a low pressure system over the eastern Pacific, and a cold front moving in from the southeast.

The typhoon caused widespread damage, including the destruction of many buildings and the loss of life. At least 15 people were reported killed, and many more were injured.

The typhoon also caused extensive damage to the island's electrical system, causing blackouts throughout the island. The military was unable to provide electricity to the island for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's economy, including the destruction of crops and livestock. The military was forced to provide food to the island's residents for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's infrastructure, including the destruction of roads and bridges. The military was forced to repair these damages for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's environment, including the destruction of many trees and plants. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's environment for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's social structures, including the destruction of many homes and businesses. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's social structures for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's cultural heritage, including the destruction of many historical sites and landmarks. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's cultural heritage for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's natural resources, including the destruction of many water sources and animals. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's natural resources for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's human resources, including the destruction of many lives and jobs. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's human resources for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's financial resources, including the destruction of many banks and businesses. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's financial resources for several days after the typhoon.

The typhoon caused widespread damage to the island's legal resources, including the destruction of many courts and prisons. The military was forced to provide resources to help with the recovery of the island's legal resources for several days after the typhoon.
