

Induction Ceremony To Formally Open 1952-53 School Year

Hancher Talk Will Highlight Day's Program

The 1952-53 SUI school year officially gets underway this morning at the 31st annual induction ceremony on the west approach to Old Capitol. The colorful ceremony is scheduled to last only 12 minutes.

All 7:30 classes will be dismissed at 8:10 a.m. so that university students may attend the opening exercises. Classes are expected to resume about 8:50 a.m.

Highlighting the program will be a short address by SUI President Virgil M. Hancher and the administration of the oath of allegiance.

Band to Play
The SUI band will be on hand for the opening of the 98th year of operation for the university and will play at the flag raising ceremony. Both the American flag and the Old Gold pennant will be raised above the dome of Old Capitol. The band will continue to play as students assemble on the lawn.

Hancher and deans and directors of the university's various schools and colleges will be present in academic uniform for the exercises. They will assemble in Old Capitol and at 8:20 will march through the west doors two by two, then separate forming a straight line at the railing on Old Capitol's steps.

Then Hancher will deliver his talk.

Coder to Make Introduction
He will be introduced by William D. Coder, coordinator of veterans service at SUI, while M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion here, will offer the invocation.

Following the short program, the university officials will return through the west doors of Old Capitol.

The ceremony is presented as an induction into the seriousness of a college education. It offers a challenge as well as an inspiration to the students.

In case of bad weather the exercises will be held in Macbride auditorium.

Legislative Group Gives ISC Approval For Science Building

AMES (AP) — The Iowa legislative interim committee Wednesday approved construction of a one million dollar science building at Iowa State college.

State Sen. Herman M. Knudson (R-Clear Lake) moved that the committee authorize the college to call for bids and let a contract for the construction.

Another committee session is to be held today.

After approval for the new science building had been given, Sen. Jay Coburn (R-Harlan), chairman of the interim committee, said:

"Although there has been a difference of opinion in this matter, at no time did any member of the board of education or our committee question the integrity of any member of either committee."

The interim committee had put off for a year approval of the science building, partly because of objection by legislators to the way Iowa State college co-mingles its own earnings, legislative appropriations for support, and legislative appropriations for new buildings.

LEGISLATOR TO SPEAK
DES MOINES (AP) — Congressman Harold Cooley of North Carolina, chairman of the house agriculture committee, will give a major farm address at Red Oak next Wednesday night, Democratic state headquarters announced Wednesday.

A Condensation of Late Developments

SEOUL (AP) — Communist troops were hurled back on the eastern front Wednesday in a series of mountain raids which Gen. Mark Clark said are designed to find out what the Allies are up to. Heavy rains drenched most of the fighting front early Thursday, slowing down the downpours resulted in one of the poorest nights thus far this month for Allied fighter-bombers hunting Communist supply vehicles bound for the front. B-26's teamed with U.S. marine planes in bombing Communist positions on the western front.

LONDON (AP) — Diplomatic informants said Wednesday Britain has arranged for new purchases of about 200,000 tons of coarse grains from Russia's 1952 harvest. The grains include some wheat, barley and oats. The specific quantities and prices were not disclosed. The informants said the 200,000-ton purchase would be followed by new negotiations for another and bigger contract.

TOULON, FRANCE (AP) — French navy officials said early Thursday they feared the submarine Sibylle was lost after a day and night air-sea hunt found no trace of the vessel. She disappeared in the Mediterranean Wednesday morning. The Sibylle carried a crew of 48. Ships, planes and helicopters ranged over the deep waters off Cannes from this great naval base looking for her. Wednesday night navy officers would say only that "serious uneasiness" was felt for the vessel but in the early morning hours they confessed that hope was fading.

Nixon 'Completely Vindicated' Ike Tells Enthusiastic Crowd

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told a cheering throng here Wednesday night that Sen. Richard M. Nixon had "completely vindicated himself" of charges in connection with a privately-raised expense fund.

The Republican presidential nominee said at the close of a speech he believed Nixon had "been subjected to an unfair and vicious attack."

Eisenhower said that he had received from Arthur Summerfield, Republican national chairman, a message that 107 of 138 members of the Republican National committee who could be reached want Nixon to remain on the ticket.

As for Nixon, Eisenhower expressed this personal sentiment as his own:

'Stands Higher'
"He is not only completely vindicated as a man of honor but as far as I am concerned he stands higher than ever before."

Although there was nothing officially sealing Nixon's position on the ticket, Eisenhower's statement, combined with the report from Summerfield, made it certain that the California senator will continue as the vice-presidential nominee.

Eisenhower quoted Summerfield's telegram to the senator that Republican National committee members regard Nixon as "worthy of the highest public trust."

'Took Nixon To Heart'
Summerfield said that as a member of the national committee he believes "America has taken Dick Nixon to its heart."

Eisenhower then asked Nixon to move before the microphone. The California senator referred to his radio-television broadcast Tuesday night as fulfilling an obligation he felt he had to the people.

Nixon said that a lesser man than Eisenhower might have said at the very beginning that the charges against Nixon were "just smear," and that he would not listen to them.

'Too Much Clamming'
"I am glad General Eisenhower didn't do that," Nixon said. "There has been too much of that in the present administration—too much clamming up when charges were made in high places. People don't want any more of that."

"He told me to take the case to the people, tell the truth and then we would decide what would be done," Nixon said.

Nixon said he felt this was a sharp contrast to the actions of President Truman and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nom-

Ike Wins WSUI Straw Vote

Dwight D. Eisenhower won the latest straw vote taken on the SUI campus by a sizeable margin. The election was conducted by the WSUI news bureau.

Returns from a voting booth set up in the SUI field house during three days of registration give Eisenhower 1,083 votes to 615 for Adlai Stevenson.

Herschel Lovelless, Democratic candidate for governor of Iowa, however, edged incumbent Republican William S. Beardsley, 824 to 755.

The purpose of the straw vote, according to Bill Harper of the university information service, was to train students in proper voting procedure as well as to sample student opinion on the 1952 presidential race.

The voting machines were furnished by Johnson county.

1st Year Registration Increases in Nursing, Engineering at SUI

Registration officially closed Wednesday at 11 a.m. with upperclassmen with last name initials from F to L and late students signing up for courses.

Ted McCarrel, SUI registrar, said Wednesday afternoon that there was a noticeable increase in the number of freshman nursing and engineering students.

McCarrel said that his office wouldn't know for a couple of days whether the total university enrollment increased or decreased. He said, "It's still too early to tell if there is an increase in enrollment, but I believe it will be very close to last year's."

Students must report to the SUI treasurer's office from Oct. 7 through Oct. 10 for fee payment. Student identification cards for admission to athletic events and other university activities will be issued at the time of payment.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — Harlan Lynn Noble, 40-year-old ex-Iowa convict, was sentenced to 10- to 62 years in prison Wednesday for the rape of a 10-year-old Leavenworth girl.

Group to Make Plans For Christian Mission

Today at 4:30 p.m. a meeting of the general committee in charge of the University Christian Mission will be held in the Iowa City Presbyterian church.

The University Christian Mission, to be held at SUI Nov. 9 through 13, will be similar to Religious Emphasis Week which has been held at SUI in several previous years.

Several outside speakers will be brought to the campus for the observance of the week. The event will be sponsored jointly by the National Council of the Churches of Christ and by the SUI Student Christian council.

Will Speak to Classes
The visiting lecturers will speak in several SUI classrooms, lunch-rooms and at SUI resident houses. They will also appear at a number of seminars on the campus and at a meeting of the faculty.

SUI Pres. Virgil M. Hancher is honorary chairman of the general committee.

Co-chairmen of the committee are L. Dale Faunce, dean of SUI students, and Wayne A. Moldenhauer, D2, Charles City.

Other committee chairmen who are members of the general committee are the Rev. John Craig of the Congregational church, chairman of the committee on assemblies; Prof. C. P. Berg, chemistry department, faculty committee; Mary Lou Newnam, N2, Des Moines, breakfast and retreat committee.

'Gift' Receivers Not Disclosed By Stevenson

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson Wednesday rejected demands that he name key Illinois state officials whose pay he said he has supplemented with "gifts" from a special fund.

The Democratic presidential nominee again defended use of the fund. He said it enabled him to attract to state jobs men of "real competence" who otherwise could not afford to leave private employment.

But he said to name them or the amounts they received would "subject them to publicity which they do not deserve and would, I believe, be a breach of faith on my part."

Gets Ovation

The governor discussed the controversial fund at a breakfast meeting of Volunteers for Stevenson at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore, Md. His audience of 550 partisans listened quietly while he talked of the fund, then gave him a standing ovation at the end.

Afterward, Stevenson flew home to his campaign base here in Springfield, ending a week-long Eastern tour.

The special Stevenson fund got into the headlines two days ago when a Chicago business executive, Kent Chandler, called on the governor to explain it to the public and to name those who contributed, the amounts they gave, and those who received money.

Compared to Nixon

Chandler, vice chairman of A. B. Dick and Company, office supply manufacturers, likened the Stevenson fund to the one into which political supporters of Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, the GOP vice presidential candidate, paid $18,000 for Nixon's use.

Nixon, in saying Tuesday night there was nothing wrong about his accepting the money, called on Stevenson to name those who contributed to the Illinois fund, and to "give the names of the people who put money into their pockets."

DEBATE BY TWO CITY COUNCILMEN marked Wednesday night's city council decision to abolish rent controls in Iowa City. Councilmen Walter L. Daykin (far right) and Ansel Chapman (second from right) argued over what the federal rent law meant by a "substantial shortage of housing." Daykin cast the only vote in favor of continuing rent controls in the 4-1 decision. Others shown are Councilman James Hottel (far left) and City Manager Peter Roan.

Taft Defends Labor Law; Warns Against 'Bosses'

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.) charged Wednesday night that unless the spirit of the Taft-Hartley law is retained Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, "will be our bosses."

Taft wound up a day's airplane stumping tour of Michigan with a talk at a Republican rally here at which he replied to Gov. Adlai Stevenson and President Truman's campaign attacks on the law of which he was co-sponsor.

Answering Stevenson's statements that the law should be repealed because of its "political symbolism," Taft said:

Hits Privileges of Leaders

"The only political symbolism of the Taft-Hartley law is that labor unions and their officials shall not have special privileges of arbitrary power unrestrained by law. Unless such 'political symbolism' is retained there will no longer be justice or equality or liberty in the United States. Mr. Murray and Mr. Green will be our bosses."

The Democratic attack on the law, Taft said, is intended only to get the support "of those union leaders whose arbitrary powers were somewhat limited by that law."

He said he was convinced a majority of labor union members believe the law is good and that union leaders privately admit it is fair except for a few needed minor amendments.

Cites Truman's Charges

Taft remarked that Stevenson did not "swallow" Truman's charges the Taft-Hartley law re-

Ends Ceilings By 4 to 1 Vote; Daykin Dissents

By PHIL O'CONNOR
A resolution to continue rent controls in Iowa City was voted down by the city council Wednesday night following a brief, but heated discussion among council members.

The measure lost by a 4 to 1 vote with Councilman Walter L. Daykin, professor of labor and industrial management at SUI, casting the only dissenting vote.

Rent ceilings will officially end here Sept. 30 as a result of the council's action.

Fierce Debate Arises

A short, but fierce, debate arose during the session between Daykin and Councilman Ansel Chapman over what was meant by a "substantial shortage of housing" as interpreted in the federal housing laws.

"I can't vote to remove controls in terms of the measurement mentioned in the law. Even if there are 146 apartments available (referring to the Iowa City Property association's Aug. 12 to Sept. 12 survey), they are not in the effective supply if they are priced too high or are not available for anyone with children," Daykin said.

Chapman Counters

Chapman countered quickly with a statement to Mayor William J. Holland and other council members. He said, "I can't read into the law any qualifications or conditions as Professor Daykin can."

Daykin started to reply, but was cut off by Chapman who said that he had given all of his arguments to the council in their secret meeting (held in the city manager's office just before the open meeting).

Daykin Ends Exchange

Daykin ended the short exchange by telling council members: "I'll walk alone, but I'm willing to walk that way" (referring to his lone vote in favor of continuing controls). He later said, "No one has proved that there is not a housing shortage in Iowa City."

Rent controls can not be reinstated in Iowa City now without an act of congress. Federal rent controls end Tuesday and city councils that wish to continue with local controls have to have a resolution to that effect in the federal rent office before the deadline.

Councilman James Hottel set up the vote by moving that the resolution for continuance of controls be adopted and sent to Washington, D.C. Daykin seconded the motion and a roll call vote was ordered.

Proposal Defeated

Holland and council members Chapman, Hottel and George Parizek voted against sending the proposal. Hottel later told a Daily Iowan reporter that his action of moving that the resolution be adopted was only a formality so that a vote could be taken.

The small quiet handful of 11 persons present at the session was a sharp contrast to the crowd of 350 who attended the special hearing on rent controls in the Community building Monday night. No SUI students, other than reporters, were present when the final vote was cast.

Quad-City Fans to See Highlanders Perform

Quad-cities sports fans will see SUI's well-traveled Scottish Highlanders when they perform Oct. 10 at the Davenport-Cedar Rapids high school football game.

Sixty-seven members of the Scottish Highlanders, all girl bagpipe band, will make the trip to Davenport. Director William L. Adamson has announced. The group recently returned from a tour of six European and British countries.

SUI Students Have Hearing Checked in New Audiology Lab

QUIET PLEASE! NEW STUDENTS AT SUI have their hearing checked in a new audiology laboratory just completed in time for the opening of school this fall. Each student wears a set of headphones, into which electrical impulses—which the student hears as "beeps"—are fed at varying pitch from a control room outside the laboratory. Here proctor Charles Parker (upper left) assists in adjusting a headphone during the 30-minute screening test.

Students new to the SUI campus this fall have been getting their hearing checked in a new audiology laboratory which accommodates 40 of them at one time.

Individual sets of earphones are worn by each student and through them a series of electrical impulses are sent by an operator outside the laboratory. The impulses are transformed by the earphones into acoustical pulses and are heard as "beeps" of varying pitch by students taking part in the 30-minute test.

According to Earl Schubert, associate professor of audiology in charge of the program, the "screening test" reveals an average, in the long run, of five persons out of 100 who have sufficient hearing loss as to be detrimental to their schoolwork.

Students whose hearing is thus revealed as defective are recalled to the laboratory for further testing, so they may be directed to medical attention and given special instruction in making the most of the hearing ability which they do have.

"Such a screening test would be much less practical on an individual or small-group basis," Schubert says, "due to the great amount of time it would take to find those five people out of each hundred."

The new laboratory has sound-treated walls and ceilings and is one of a suite of similar audiology experimental rooms which will be placed in use for research and instruction during the year.

A Good Beginning

One of SUI's most colorful and impressive ceremonies — the Induction Day program — will be held this morning at 8:20 on the West Approach to Old Capitol.

The annual event marks the official opening of the 1952-53 school year at SUI — the 98th such opening in the school's history. In recent years, however, student and faculty attendance at the ceremonies has dropped considerably — far more than can be accounted for by any drop in enrollment.

Maybe this trend would stop if students really considered the opportunities of the Induction ceremonies.

It provides a chance for the student to do a little serious thinking on the big task that lies ahead.

It gives him, too, a chance to dedicate himself to the ideals for which this university, and many other similar institutions, stand — that is, the ideals of truth and freedom.

The university is not set up merely to teach some students journalism, some law, and others medicine, but it also has as its aim the teaching of a respect for truth and as a further duty the stimulation of its members to search for this truth.

Many persons tend to forget, too, that universities are among the last remaining citadels of this truth and freedom.

We can remember and give thanks that this is the case here in America since it is not so true in other sections of the world.

With this in mind there should be no need for anyone to urge SUI students to attend these ceremonies, which are considered so important by SUI officials that classes are dismissed so that all members of the SUI community may attend.

Interim Group Hears of Faults In Creston Lake

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa legislative interim committee took under advisement Tuesday a joint request that it make $26,640 available for improvement and remedial work on the new $220-, 436 state-owned Creston lake.

Committee members said they probably would make their decision while in session at Ames Wednesday. The request was made at the close of a lengthy discussion of faults found with the project.

Joining in the request were the Stanley Engineering company of Muscatine, which did the design work on the project; the state conservation commission, and a spokesman for A. Alin of Omaha, consulting engineer who found fault with the project.

One Suggests $6,100

C. Maxwell Stanley of the engineering firm had discussed the needs to put the dam in service. He suggested $6,100 worth of work. Committee members urged a joint recommendation. After a short meeting, Stanley, Bruce Stiles, commission director, and others came up with the $26,640 figure.

Stanley told the committee that amount would include: $8,600 to cover the extra amount of cost beyond estimates; $4,000 for improvements on the dam as recommended by him; $2,100 for repair of a sluiceway or canal under the dam and its iron piping; $10,300 for additional backing of the dam, and a $1,640 contingency fund.

Alin Found Many Faults

Alin, hired by the commission, had found many faults with the design, construction and results of the project. He also criticized three other similar commission projects. The committee previously allotted $7,500 for repairs at Geode park in Des Moines and Henry counties.

In his lengthy review of the Creston project, Stanley said the general performance of the dam and sluiceway were in accordance with expectations with three exceptions. These were: a separation of the joints of the sluiceway, breaks in two of the sluiceway, and failure of the center of the dam to meet the design by about a foot and a half.

Stanley said a crack or bulge in the dam, of which Alin complained in June, could not be located in a Sept. 10 inspection and that there is no evidence of further cracking at that point.

Stanley disagreed with Alin's report in many instances answering in several respects that to have done differently would have increased the cost beyond what the commission could pay.

Stanley recommended that the dam gate be closed, that all of the work he proposed be completed within 30 days, and that the lake be filled gradually and not brought to design level until all of the work is done.

Eisenhower Accuses Demos Of Using Cheap Money Policy

CLEVELAND, O. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's throw-away speech — which he was to have delivered Tuesday night but didn't — stands as his official views on inflation.

That was the announcement of James Hagerly, the Republican presidential nominee's press secretary, when reporters inquired about the speech, which already had been released to newspapers and radio.

In his prepared text, Eisenhower accused the administration of pursuing deliberately a "cheap money" policy that he said "has begun to plunder our future."

Could Be Savings

He said there could be a "substantial savings" in arms cost and a tax cut would boost consumer buying. He insisted a savings in arms production could be achieved without slowing the speed or cutting the size of the arms program.

In what was to be his last speech of the day — a day of whistle-stopping across Ohio — Eisenhower said:

"The inflation we suffer is not an accident; it is a policy... The resort to cheap money, like the resort to cheap politics, is not new. It is one of the oldest, most standard devices of a regime dictated to, perpetuating itself in power."

Eisenhower said the peril of inflation has grown to "dread size." He argued that while everybody "likes the comforting feeling of more money in his pocket," this feeling really is an illusion.

Says it's illusion "This illusion," he said, "the administration in Washington has nourished and exploited for political gains for many years."

Then he said:

"This is a measure of the achievement of an administration which loudly claims millions will vote for us because 'they never had it so good.'"

"The peril, however, is not just of the present. Already it has begun to plunder the future."

Eisenhower said he knows "substantial savings" can be made in the cost of arming America.

"This does not mean slowing the speed or cutting the size of the rearmament program we need," he said.

"No responsible citizen could foster such folly in today's world. It means subjecting all the Pentagon's costly operations to the scrutiny of business and professional examiners who can speak for the executive with expert knowledge.

Eisenhower insisted, however, that "financial health at home depends on the soundness of our foreign policy."

"We cannot, in short, win the peace with a foreign policy of drift, makeshift and make-believe," he added.

He said the Truman administration seems to think prosperity "depends on the production of armaments and that any reduction in arms output might bring on another recession."

Historians Call Attention to Forgotten President

NEW YORK (CP) — These are the days when November's presidential candidates are being asked by party faithfuls to do all sorts of things when they are elected. However, one request comes from historians with a passion for accuracy and is completely non-partisan.

They say: "Whether Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower or Gov. Adlai Stevenson is elected president, let's have one thing straightened out. Somewhere along the line, we've forgotten one of our presidents and the history books have things all wrong."

These sticklers for accuracy say that whether Eisenhower or Stevenson enters the White House in January, "we want notice taken of David Rice Atchison, the 12th president of the United States." They claim "it's a crime the way he's been ignored these last hundred years!"

Records Show Error

According to the history books, Harry Truman is the nation's 33rd president and Eisenhower or Stevenson will be No. 34. But some say: "No, sir! Just look at the records."

Looking back to 1844, we find that James K. Polk, a North Carolina Democrat, was elected 11th president of the United States. During his term, we fought Mexico and added six states to the Union.

Polk declined to run for another term and in Nov., 1848, the nation elected Gen. Zachary Taylor, a Whig and the hero of the Mexican war.

Inaugurated at Noon

In those days, presidents were inaugurated at noon on March 4. After a series of receptions and balls, General Taylor arrived in Washington to be inaugurated president number 12. However, March 4 fell on the Sabbath. General Taylor refused to be sworn into office on the Sabbath and so the inauguration was postponed to Monday, March 5.

What the country's statesmen apparently forgot was that the Constitution provided an immediate substitute should the president not discharge his duties because of "removal, death, resignation or inability."

Since the nation was temporarily without a legal vice-president, too, the automatic substitute as president was the president of the senate, David Rice Atchison.

So, from noon on March 4, 1849, until noon on March 5 when General Taylor was inaugurated, Missouri's Senator Atchison was in reality president of the United States.

Atchison was only 41 at the time—the youngest man then ever to become president. Born in Kentucky, he lived most of his life in Missouri, serving as county judge and in the state legislature. He was twice elected United States senator.

City Named After Him

In 1858 the city of Atchison, Kan., was named after him. In 1872 a new railroad serving the city also took his name when it became the famous Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe—later it became the title of a popular song.

He signed no bills during his one day in office as president. Nor did he receive a day's pay as the nation's chief executive. However, president he was. Even the official Congressional Directory shows that to be a fact.

Historians want Eisenhower or Stevenson to clear up the confusion and admit they are president No. 25, and not No. 34.

Winner Faces Embarrassment

Whichever way the election goes, the winner will be faced with the somewhat embarrassing fact that a recent seems to be in order—not a recount of the election ballots, but a recount of the number of men who have held the country's highest office.

Interpreting the News —

Western Allies Hand Russians 'Straight Talk'

By J. M. ROBERTS JR., Associated Press News Analyst

The Western Allies have within a period of a few days handed Russia two pieces of straight talk.

In just 190 words Britain and the United States told Russia that since she had blocked all efforts to make an international zone of Trieste as agreed soon after the war, they would go ahead and handle the disputed area in their own way.

In a few more words Britain, France and the United States made it clear that there would be no conference to dictate a German peace treaty without participation of an authentic all-German government, produced through free elections, which could assume responsibility for carrying out the terms of agreements.

Small But Important

In the Trieste matter the Russians had charged the Allies with trying to turn the territory into a military base for the "aggressive Atlantic bloc." Well, putting aside the propagandistic "aggressive" part, Trieste is a small but important military base, although you can hardly notice the Allied troops among the rock-pile hillsides surrounding the harbor.

The Allies are very busily engaged in trying to settle the sovereignty dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia. With Russia now on formal notice that she can consider herself frozen out, the Allies are hoping they can get some where with a settlement.

Long-Term Formalization

As for the future of the German dispute, the Allies now are resigned to long-term formalization of the division of the country. With the West Germans largely convinced that unification is for some other day, Russia is expected to change her tactics. Where she has been using talk of reunion as the carrot by which she hoped to lure Bonn away from its growing Western ties, she is now expected to go ahead with absorption of the East zone into the Soviet bloc.

If this develops — if Russia actually shows signs of accepting the division of Germany, it will be one of the greatest defeats inflicted on her foreign policy since the war.

Veterans Hospital Asks for Additional Volunteer Workers

One hundred and fifty additional workers are needed at the Iowa City Veterans Administration hospital to supplement the 200 volunteers who have already applied. L. E. Hunn, voluntary services chairman at the hospital, announced Wednesday.

Those volunteers are needed in 13 assignment categories he added.

Registration will begin Monday at 9:30 a.m. There will be a one-day orientation and indoctrination program from 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in room 3S-63 at the hospital.

Omaha Seeks Ways To Avoid Dumping Garbage in River

OMAHA (AP) — The man charged with disposing of Omaha's garbage Wednesday emphasized: Omaha wouldn't dump its garbage in the Missouri river if it could find another feasible means of disposing of it, and the city may be on the trail of satisfactory method in experiments now being conducted to turn the garbage into a dry meal feed for animals.

Omaha isn't the only city dumping raw garbage in the river. Downstream Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., are doing the same thing — and, like Omaha, running into criticism.

Many Follow Same Practice 3. All up and down the river cities and towns are pouring their untreated sewage into the river polluting the stream to a far greater degree than is Omaha with its garbage.

Herbert Ulrich, a city engineer, made those points Wednesday as he discussed Omaha's progress toward a solution of a problem which arose when the state banned feeding of raw garbage to hogs.

The comments followed reports from Nebraska City that the Omaha garbage has begun to show up in the river there.

Ulrich said prospects of turning the garbage into a salable feed look better all the time. Tests at the Omaha Alcohol plant have proved that an acceptable feed can be made, he said.

Being Tested As Feed Tests now are aimed at determining its adaptability as a feed.

Ulrich said the feed in its present form contains at least 10 per cent protein — a prime measure in its use as a feed. There is a possibility that by adding high protein waste products now disposed of by some Omaha commercial and manufacturing firms, that protein content could be doubled.

He guessed that with that much protein it could be sold for perhaps $20 to $40 a ton.

If the dry meal does prove to be a salable product, Ulrich said, the city — ironically — would be better off with about four times as much garbage as it has now. That much would be needed to keep mills running efficiently.

Conversion Delay Seen At least for several years, Ulrich doesn't see the conversion to feed as a profit-making venture, though a small profit to the city might result later.

Meanwhile, Omahans will vote Nov. 4 on a one mill levy for a sanitary land fill method of disposing of both garbage and trash.

Tall Girls Shouldn't Minimize Height

Tall girls shouldn't try to be shrinking violets or minimize their height, says TV actress Anne Francine.

Miss Francine, a tall girl herself, takes particular exception to the school of thought advocating that you try to minimize your height.

Says the statuesque dramatic actress, who made her first success as a night club singer.

"If you're tall, wear your height as an advantage. Let it give you self-confidence. That way, with the grace that comes of good carriage, you'll give less an impression of undue height than if you walked around apologetically hunched over or slumped down."

No one wants to loom over others, Miss Francine agrees. And she doesn't believe in stressing height unduly with spike heels. Low heels, she says, make good sense for tall girls and give a more graceful walk.

Large Accessories? Miss Francine is opposed to the big hat and chunky jewelry idea for tall girls. She thinks no hat or a small hat with the width determined by the shoulders is prettier than a large hat which is likely to make a big girl "look like a ship in full sail."

Jewelry should be an accessory, not the motif of a costume, she says, with the goal to be inconspicuous rather than over-ornamented.

She doesn't recommend the full skirt, stand-out peplum or bouffant evening gown for the queenly girls.

Full skirts add bulk which merely contributes a feeling of width added to height, giving even more general largeness.

The bouffant evening dress is more naive than sleek and sophisticated, better lines for tall girls. Subtle draping and figured fabrics are more successful in breaking a too-long line.

Waistline The crux of this line problem is placing the waistline at the right point, she says. It should be neither high nor low, but midway, where it tends really to cut the figure in half and break a long line.

It isn't necessary however, to commit yourself to either the tailored or frilly look, says Miss Francine. If you have a yen for the soft, feminine look, do it with makeup and a new hairdo, she says.

A word of caution about your coiffure, however, she emphasizes. Most tall girls have long necks, and hair on the longish side should be a better style than hair that is cropped close, pulled back with a ribbon or twisted into a top-knot. Wear it softly curled, smooth and shining so that it frames your face becomingly.

Colors can create a feminine mood, also, she reminds us. Pinks, blues and lilacs are all good blouse, sweater or hat choices if you want to give an impression of softness that will contract dramatically with simple suit or dress line.

New Products

From Shade Pulls To Rugs

NEW YORK (AP)—New products on the market this week have a wide application at home or in business.

Here for example, is a shade pull. It is made of clear bakelite styrene plastic 3 1/2 inches wide, and it fits snugly over the wooden slat on the bottom of your shade.

When you raise and lower the shade you grasp the shade pull, thus protecting it against smudging or tearing. All very simple. Made by the Winnete company of Minneapolis.

The Mine Safety Appliance company of Pittsburgh has developed a portable oxygen inhalator just in time for the football season. The idea is to administer oxygen to athletes to revive them or pep them up. You just put a mask over your face, turn on the gas, and breathe naturally. It works automatically.

A new super-size toy airplane for papa that will fly up to 5,000 feet has been brought out by the Skyroplane division of Marxman Pipes Inc. of New York. It is a companion to the smaller kid-size plane.

The plane rises on the end of a thin nylon thread through the lifting power of rotating wings driven by the wind. The plane is extremely light with a 24-inch wingspread and 10 1/2 inch fuselage.

The Autopoint company of Chicago is producing a new line of billfolds, wallets and key cases made of vinylite plastic sheeting embossed with morocco, lizard or alligator grains. The tough vinylite is electronically sealed at the seams and resists tearing and soiling. It cleans with soap and water.

A safety signal for your auto that looks and works just like a traffic light flashes its instructions in red, amber and green. The signal can be mounted inside or outside your car.

Run along normally and the signal is green. Slow down and the amber light glows. The red light flashes when you stop. It comes from the Elron company of Chicago.

For this winter when ice and sleet gather on the windshield of your automobile, here's a help. It is a polyethylene plastic sheet with cloth edges.

When you park, put it over your windshield and fasten the ends in the car doors.

It won't stick to the windshield and withstands 60 below zero temperatures. When you are ready to go, whisk it off and the snow, and ice right with it. The maker is the Central States Paper & Bag company of St. Louis.

A new line of molded vinylite plastic rugs in 12 colors and three sizes with deep springy carpet textures is the newest offerings of Vinyl Linens Inc. of New York.

Formal Orientation Ends

Formal orientation for new SUI students ended Wednesday night with the final president's tea, the University Women's association announced.

However, informal orientation will continue through Oct. 31, with coke dates and other informal meetings among group leaders and members to further the contact between old and new students.

GLAMOR WASHDAY

Washday has been made glamorous with pretty pastels to decorate your yard. Clotheslines and plastic clothes clips are now available in pink, blue, yellow, red, green, and white. Suds your delicate lingerie and then flatter them with contrasting colored clothespins on the line.

LSA Will Hear Bucky O'Connor

Frank (Bucky) O'Connor, head SUI basketball coach, will speak to the Lutheran Student association Sunday night on the topic "Why Am I Here?"

O'Connor's address, especially for new SUI students and freshmen, will begin after a cost supper at 5 p.m. at the Zion Lutheran church.

The talk concerns the purpose of college and the relation of the church to the field of sports to the purpose of college.

SHOE WINDOWS

Bright, new, helpful plastic items are the shoe windows—pairs of small plastic bags that enable you to "see-through" for easy wardrobe choosing. Useful for weekend packing and for storing suede shoes, too, they should be washed inside and outside in soap and water when dirty.

New Television Project

Best in Art, Music, Drama Can Be Interesting

NEW YORK (AP)—A project designed to show that the best in art, music and drama can be made interesting and popular on television is rapidly taking shape.

The ambitious experiment by the Ford Foundation's TV-radio workshop is being watched with close attention by telecasters as a proving ground from which may come developments affecting all TV programming.

The two or three operas to be produced especially for the project by the Metropolitan Opera company are typical of what the workshop hopes to present in its weekly series of 90-minute programs entitled "Omnibus," starting on CBS-TV Nov. 9.

Worthwhile Programs Robert Saudek, workshop director, says the project is as concerned with making the programs interesting as in making them worthwhile.

They will be approached, he explains, "without loftiness or pomp" and produced with the same showmanship that would go into a variety program or comedy show.

Besides the operas, the series will include three original plays by Maxwell Anderson, five short ballet features now being filmed in Paris, musical features by Leopold Stokowski, several plays by James Agee, poet, critic and motion picture writer, and a series of sketches on the life of Abraham Lincoln.

A lot of quiz shows may look and sound alike, but they don't have to, says Peter Arnell, a leading producer.

In the first place, he declares, the game on each show should be distinctly different.

In the second, the game should be merely the basic element and not the whole show, but rather the point of departure for humor and

Iowa Ends Heavy Drills Before Opener at Pitt

Coach Forest Evashevski ran his Iowa football squad through their final workout involving any contact work Wednesday afternoon before embarking for the trip to Pittsburgh Friday for the Hawks' initial game of the 1952 season.

Again Wednesday routine work involving signal drills, blocking assignments and defensive work were the main phases of the game emphasized.

The probable starters in the Pitt contest worked for nearly an hour and a half on signal drills and blocking assignments with blocking dummies serving as opposition.

Hatch, who started from the fullback position in a scrimmage two weeks ago, was running from the left half slot for the first time. Another left half, Dusty Rice, was running with the second team Wednesday, and during the time his team was taking part in signal drills Rice seemed to be running better than he has all season. The fact that Rice's knee may be healing more rapidly gives the Hawks a boost.

Yanks Take 2; Roberts Gets 27th

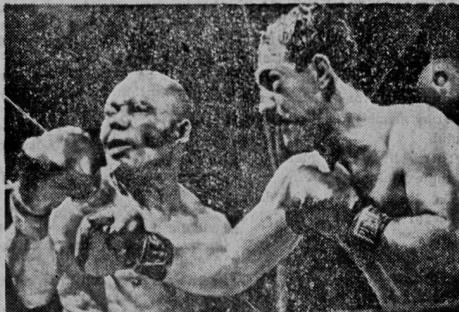

BOSTON (AP)—The New York Yankees extended their first place lead over the Cleveland Indians to two games and practically clinched their fourth straight American league pennant Wednesday, beating the Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader, 3-2, in 10 innings and 8-6.

Much of Wednesday's Yankee success was due to switch-hitting Mickey Mantle.

Mantle decided the overtime opener, which was protested by Manager Lou Boudreau, by tripping after Irv Noren opened the 10th with a double against relief pitcher and loser Dizzy Trout.

Mantle's second-game clouting—a single, another two-bagger and a three-run homer—provided half the Yankee runs.

Marciano New Heavy Champ

BATTERED AND WEARY, Rocky Marciano, 28, of Brockton, Mass., steps back as Jersey Joe Walcott begins his drop to the canvas (bottom) in the 13th round of their heavyweight championship fight at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium. The punch that knocked the crown from Jersey Joe's head (top) came in 43 seconds of the round, when Marciano, far behind on points and down himself for a three-count in the first round, uncorked the "Sunday punch" that made him the first white heavyweight champion since Jimmy Braddock lost to Joe Louis in 1937. A crowd of 50,000 watched the title change hands.

Lemon Wins 22d

CLEVELAND (AP)—With Bob Lemon coolly pitching three-hit ball, the Cleveland Indians tried desperately to stay in the American league pennant race Wednesday by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6-0.

Lemon, winning his 22d victory, allowed only one hit in the first seven innings, and the Sox pitcher, Lou Kretlow, got that one—a double in the third.

The Sox hit two more in the eighth. Pinch hitter Hank Edwards, a former Indian, and Chico Carrasquel, each singled.

Browns 7, Tigers 4

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers blew a four-run first inning lead Wednesday as they bowed to Tommy Byrne and the St. Louis Browns for their eighth straight setback, 7-4.

Duane Pillette started for the Browns but gave way to Byrne in the fifth, and Byrne got credit for the win, his seventh as against 14 losses. Bud Black was charged with the loss, the first decision he has figured in this year.

Ready for Rematch — Beaten Jersey Joe 'Unretires'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott "unretires" from a 13-hour retirement Wednesday to set up a return bout with Rocky Marciano, who knocked him off the heavyweight throne in Tuesday night's sensational bout.

Miami, Fla., or Chicago appeared to be the leading candidates for a January rematch of this bloody brawl, called by veteran boxing men the most exciting heavyweight scrap since the Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo thriller in 1923.

The fighters already are signed to a return bout agreement calling for a second fight within 90 days. However the 90-day clause undoubtedly will be waived.

"We're ready to fulfill our contract with Walcott," said Al Weill, Marciano's manager. "But Rocky needs a rest. I think Felix (Felix Boechicchio, Walcott's manager) and Jim Norris (president of the International Boxing club) will waive the 90 days. We won't fight until after Jan. 1."

"If he (Walcott) wants a return match, he's got it."

Boechicchio, who revealed that Walcott had changed his mind at a Camden, N. J., news conference, said he wouldn't quibble about the 90 days.

Boechicchio planned to contact Norris, who had returned to New York, and set up a conference on date and site in a few days.

Shantz' Pitching Future Not Affected by Injury

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Southpaw Bobby Shantz disclosed Wednesday that the bone break which ended his 1952 pitching record apparently will not affect his pitching future.

Shantz was hit by a pitched ball while batting against Walt Masterson in the Philadelphia Athletics-Washington Senators game Tuesday. The A's little pitcher fell to the ground writhing in pain, and was at first reported to have suffered a fractured left wrist.

But he disclosed Wednesday that Dr. Ilarion Gopadze, the A's physician, had told him X-rays showed the break was in the arm bone, about three inches above the wrist.

"Dr. Gopadze tells me the break is as clean as though someone cut the bone with a knife, that it will heal without even being put in a splint or a cast," Shantz said.

Caudle Testifies McGrath Knew Of Firing Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath once said he knew "enough about the White House to blow it so high that force of gravity would never bring it back to earth," T. Lamar Caudle told investigating congressmen Wednesday.

The ousted former aide to McGrath also said his old chief told him "a White House clique" was behind Caudle's firing. He added that McGrath said the same group was "after" the attorney general himself.

Closed Testimony

The discussion of who wanted whose scalp closed out nearly a week of testimony by Caudle, former assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal and later of the tax frauds division, before a house judiciary subcommittee investigating the justice department.

Caudle was fired by President Truman last November, in the midst of a congressional study of the handling of tax fraud cases, for engaging in "outside activities" which Truman said were not compatible with his job.

McGrath got the axe in April a few hours after he had dismissed Newbold Morris as government corruption clean-up man.

McGrath Contacted

In Rhode Island, McGrath, informed of Caudle's testimony, said:

"There is nothing I want to say at this time."

There was no elaboration on McGrath's reported remark on what he knew about the White House. Nor were any names mentioned in the talk about a White House "clique."

After the hearing, however, Caudle was asked who belonged to any such group. He said he wasn't sure, but could guess.

He named Charles Murphy, special counsel to the President, David Stowe, an administrative assistant, and the late Joseph H. Short, press secretary.

ENJOYS GOP TROUBLE

DUBUQUE (AP) — M. P. Hogan of Dubuque, Iowa Democratic national committeeman, says he is "enjoying" GOP problems growing out of the expense fund of Sen. Richard Nixon, their vice-presidential nominee.

Judy Holliday Admits Error In Aiding Red Organizations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judy Holliday, star of "Born Yesterday," says her eyes were opened as never before when she learned she had given her name and contributions to Communist organizations.

"I have been awakened to a realization that I have been irresponsible and slightly—more than slightly—stupid," the actress told senators probing for subversive infiltration of the radio, television and entertainment industries.

She testified at a closed door session of the senate internal security subcommittee last March 26. The subcommittee made public the testimony Wednesday. Miss Holliday was asked if she ever made any investigation to find out about organizations before letting them use her name.

"Not until lately, not until the last year," she replied.

Well, had she instructed her secretary to investigate persons who called "asking her to be a sponsor of this or that or to make a contribution?"

"I didn't have a secretary," Miss Holliday said. "My name was in the telephone book, and anybody could get me, and most everybody did."

Miss Holliday's role as a dumb blonde in "Born Yesterday" won her the motion picture Academy Award in 1951.

Restaurant Owner Loses Court Suit

Elmer and Agnes Leu were Wednesday awarded a judgment of $3,294.42 from Curtis Yocum in Johnson county district court.

The judgment resulted from a case involving a lease, repairs, remodeling and alterations to a restaurant building that the Leus rented to Yocum.

Judge Harold D. Evans ruled that under terms of a lease signed on Feb. 13, 1951, Yocum is entitled to $4,230.86 for repairs and remodeling from the Leus. And that Yocum owed the Leus $7,555.32 for rent and supplies, leaving a balance of $3,294.42 owed by Yocum to the landlords.

The case was tried June 24 to 28, and final arguments were presented July 30 when Judge Evans took the matter under consideration.

New Drug Thought to Dissolve Blood Clots

NEW YORK (AP) — Discovery of a drug that apparently can dissolve blood clots was announced Wednesday to the American College of Surgeons.

It may open the door to great new life-and-pain saving possibilities — but it's far too early to tell.

Blood clots forming or lodging in veins and arteries cause heart attacks, brain strokes, blockage of lungs, and swollen, painful legs, the "milk legs" of new mothers.

Tiny clots or plugs may cause part of the trouble in rheumatoid arthritis, abscesses and infections.

This is the first drug that shows promise of being able to eat up and destroy such clots. So far, it's credited with some dramatic results against milk leg and arthritis.

The drug is trypsin, a natural enzyme or potent chemical agent that helps you digest the meat and other proteins you eat. Blood clots are made of fibrin, a blood protein. Highly-purified trypsin, made from animal pancreas glands, is being dripped into veins to try to digest big or little blood clots.

The first announcement of its use was made by Drs. Irving Innerfield, Alfred Angrist, Alfred Schwartz and Wilfred Ruggiero of New York Medical college and Jewish Memorial hospital here.

Gillette Is Silent On Resignation

CHEROKEE (AP)—Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Ia.) refused all comment on reports current in Washington that he is about to resign as chairman of the senate elections committee which polices political campaigns.

"I've had several calls about that rumor but I have no comment to make one way or the other," the senator said.

Loveless Claims Republicans Using 'Whispering Campaign' Against Him

DES MOINES (AP) — Herschel C. Loveless, Democratic nominee for governor, Wednesday answered what he described as a "whispering campaign" against him, "inspired by the Beardley element within the Republican party."

His headquarters, meanwhile, reviewed the circumstances of an embezzlement charge filed against the Ottumwa mayor in his home town in 1934 and later dismissed.

In Burlington Tuesday night Loveless said Republicans were conducting a smear campaign against him but he did not elaborate.

Issues Statement

Wednesday he issued a statement saying:

"As many of my friends in the newspaper business will verify, I have been most cooperative in my efforts to be frank, forthright, and honest about my personal background and history.

"The whispering campaign, inspired by the Beardley element within the Republican party, has been vicious and defamatory. I am in favor of clearing the air on this matter for I know that the facts can do me no harm. Therefore, I am happy to see the facts published.

Hopes Opponent Forthright

"I sincerely hope that my opponent for the office of governor of Iowa pursues the same forthright and honest attitude toward certain facts, upon which the voters of Iowa deserve to be informed."

Loveless' Republican opponent in the Nov. 4 general election is Gov. William S. Beardley.

Loveless aides said the charges against the nominee had been referred to in anonymous letters. The aides gave the background as follows:

Was Dissolving Connections

At the time the charge was filed, Loveless was dissolving his connections with a Chicago oil firm for which he had managed a bulk station in Ottumwa. The company claimed he owed it about $600, mostly in the form of gasoline stocks.

Loveless resisted the claim on the grounds that the gasoline loss was due to leaky tanks and valves the company furnished him and to shrinkage due to temperature changes. The oil firm first filed a civil suit and later filed the embezzlement charge.

Attorney Speaks

State Senator Elmer K. Bekman (R-Ottumwa), Loveless' attorney at the time, said the charge was regarded "as an attempt to collect a civil claim through a criminal action."

The charge was dismissed in January of 1935 after being on the books since April of 1934 without hearing or trial. The county attorney who applied for the dismissal said there was "lack of sufficient competent evidence."

The civil suit was dismissed earlier on agreement of settlement with costs paid by the oil firm. Loveless was not required to pay the company anything in the settlement. But the oil firm later failed and Loveless lost about $10,000 in the business himself.

Baby Returned Home From Omaha Hospital After Skull Fracture

An Iowa City infant is back home and in reported "good" condition after being treated in the Children's Memorial hospital, at Omaha, for head injuries.

The child is Richard Comly, 14-month-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Hunter H. Comly, 435 Magowan ave. Comly is assistant professor of pediatrics at Psychopathic hospital.

The baby was injured September 17, at Grand Island, Neb., when it was struck by the family car. The Comlys had stopped at a motel while on a vacation trip. Comly accidentally ran into young Richard while pulling up in a driveway. One of the automobile's tires passed over the baby's head.

The baby boy was rushed to St. Francis Hospital at Grand Island, then flown to Omaha's Children's Memorial hospital. After treatment it was brought home by automobile.

Comly said that a skull fracture was diagnosed at the Nebraska hospital, however the child recovered sufficiently to be brought home. Further examinations will be necessary to exactly determine the extent of injuries.

Iowa Man Indicted For Drunken Driving

GARNER (AP) — A Hancock county grand jury Wednesday indicted County Attorney Nels W. Branstad of Forest City on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Two other cases also were presented the jury in its two-day session ending Wednesday, but no other indictments were handed down.

Branstad was arrested several weeks ago by two state highway patrolmen who said they noted him driving his car in an erratic manner near Garner. He was taken to Forest City and then taken home after being detained in temporary custody.

The patrolmen said Branstad said he was on his way home after calling on a client. He was alone in his car.

Squirrel Hunting in City Is Taboo

It may be squirrel shooting season now—but not in the city limits. Iowa City police said Wednesday that they have received several complaints about hunting in the neighborhood of Oakland and St. Joseph's cemeteries and the adjoining Cedar street area.

Officers warned that all guns of would-be hunters in the city will be confiscated. Detective Harland Sprinkle said that several .22 caliber rifles have already been picked up. Squirrel hunters have peppered several houses and trees in the city.

Open season on squirrels will continue to Nov. 15, but officers say there are several restrictions. All hunters, regardless of age, must have licenses. The bag limit is six per day with a possession limit of 12.

Nixon's Dramatic Plea Brings Vast Response

By The Associated Press

Americans by the tens of thousands responded with a tumultuous outpouring of messages Wednesday in reply to Sen. Richard M. Nixon's dramatic radio-TV plea of innocence in using an $18,000 political fund.

Nixon had asked the people to give their verdict — whether he should step aside or remain as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice-presidential running mate on the publicans are proud of Nixon... "a man shining integrity"... "the smear attack has backfired"...

Democrats said — Nixon failed to give a full account of his financial affairs... "Nixon fanned out"... "a soap opera drama"...

GOP headquarters in Washington, D. C., said telegrams supporting Nixon were pouring in at a rate of 100,000 a day and were expected to eclipse the record set when President Truman fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Nixon Shows Strain

Nixon himself still showed signs of strain after his unprecedented ordeal. However, he joked and appeared relaxed as he took off in a chartered plane from Missoula, Mont., for a face-to-face meeting with Gen. Eisenhower at Wheeling, W. Va.

"We have just begun to fight," Nixon told a cheering crowd. "Just wait and see."

Eisenhower had already thrown out a strong hint that he intended to keep Nixon at his side.

Ike 'Likes Courage' Immediately after hearing Nixon plead his case, the retired five-star general had told an audience in Cleveland, O., Tuesday night: "I have been a warrior and I like courage. Tonight I saw an example of courage."

At the White House, there was no immediate comment on Nixon's defense, and Democratic bigwigs generally commented in somewhat restrained terms although predicting that the net effect of the Nixon episode would be to swell the prospects of a Democratic victory in November.

Says 'Smear Backfired'

On the Republican side, Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield of the GOP National Committee told newsmen in Cleveland: "The smear attack on Sen. Nixon has backfired. This is the turning point of the 1952 campaign."

Summerfield said he was "certain" Nixon would be kept on the Republican ticket.

Western Union officials said their offices were choked with calls in every corner of the nation. They called it one of the biggest message jams in telegraphic history.

Court Declares Boat Fees Unconstitutional

DES MOINES (AP)—The Iowa conservation commission appealed Wednesday to the Iowa supreme court to uphold the constitutionality of an act of the 1951 legislature authorizing the commission to collect fees from boat operators.

District Judge Tom Boynton ruled the act was void in a Cerro Gordo county district court case brought by Pearl L. Witke. She operates a boat concession at Clear Lake, from private property, she said.

Her attorneys claimed in the district court case that the fee rate set by the commission by arbitrary, the act was an unlawful interference with her business, and that the law was unconstitutional.
